Christian Classics Ethereal Library
A Dictionary of Hymnology: Volume 2
John Julian

Christian Classics Ethereal Library

A Dictionary of Hymnology: Volume 2 (Setting forth the origin and history of Christian hymns of all ages and nations)

Author(s): Julian, John (1839-1913)

Publisher: Grand Rapids, MI: Christian Classics Ethereal Library

Contents

A Dictionary of Hymnology: Volume 2 1

Title Pages 1

P 3

Q 36

R 39

S 57

T 122

U 160

V 167

W 180

X and Y 214

Z 216

Indices 220

I. Cross Reference Index of First Lines in English, French, German, Latin, and Other languages 220

II. Index of Authors, Translators, Editors, Etc. 319

Appendix: Part I 328

Appendix: New Supplement 367

Indexes 453

Index of Pages of the Print Edition 454

This PDF file is from the Christian Classics Ethereal Library, www.ccel.org. The mission of the CCEL is to make classic Christian books available to the world.

- This book is available in HTML, and other formats. See http://www.ccel.org/ccel/julian_j/hymn2.html.
- Discuss this book online at http://www.ccel.org/node/3694.

The CCEL makes CDs of classic Christian literature available around the world through the Web and through CDs. We have distributed thousands of such CDs free in developing countries. If you are in a developing country and would like to receive a free CD, please send a request by email to cd-request@ccel.org.

The Christian Classics Ethereal Library is a self supporting non-profit organization at Calvin College. If you wish to give of your time or money to support the CCEL, please visit http://www.ccel.org/give.

This PDF file is copyrighted by the Christian Classics Ethereal Library. It may be freely copied for non-commercial purposes as long as it is not modified. All other rights are reserved. Written permission is required for commercial use.

i

A DICTIONARY OF HYMNOLOGY

Setting forth the Origin and History of Christian Hymns of all Ages and Nations

Edited by

JOHN JULIAN, D.D.

VOLUME II P to Z

DOVER PUBLICATIONS, INC.
NEW YORK • NEW YORK

[illegible] LIBRARY
[illegible]

ii

First Edition ..... January, 1892

Second Revised Edition with New Supplement ..... June, 1907

This new Dover Edition first published in 1957, is an unabridged and unaltered republication of the Second and last Revised Edition. The original work appeared as one volume but is now bound as two. It is published through special arrangement with John Murray.

[illegible] Manufactured in the United States of America

[illegible]

iii

A DICTIONARY OF HYMNOLOGY

P

P. C. E., in the People's Hymnal, 1867, (i.e.) Dr. Littledale, "Priest, Church of England."

P. P. Bk., i.e. Priests' Prayer Book.

Pabst, Julius, s. of Karl Leopold Pabst, sometime Inspector of the Royal Normal School at Erfurt, was b. at Wilhelmsruhe, near Ettorf on the Sieg (Rhenish Prussia), Oct. 18, 1817. From 1838 to 1842 he studied theology and philosophy at the Universities of Breslau and Halle; from 1842 to 1852 he acted as private tutor in Berlin, in the Neumark, and in Dresden; and from 1852 to the end of 1853, was engaged in literary pursuits at Berlin. After New Year's Day, 1854, he resided at Dresden as secretary and teacher of the dramatic art on the staff of the general direction of the Court Theatre and the Royal Orchestra, receiving, in 1869, the honorary title of Hofrath. He d. Oct. 22, 1881 (F. Brümmer's Deutsche Dichter-Lexicon, 1877, pt. ii. p. 123; ws. from his family, &c.).

His hymns appeared principally in his (1) Die Parchi des Herrn in der Wrsheit' Anfang, Berlin, 1846, and his (2) Christliches Schatzkästlein, Hamburg, 1848. The only one in English is:—

Spirit of light, come down, we pray. Whitsuntide. Schatzkästlein, p. 337, in 7 sts. of 8 l., entitled "Festival Hymn." Tr. as—

Spirit of light, come down, we pray. In full, by Dr. R. Maguire, in his Melodies of the Fatherland, 1865, p. 75, repeated in R. Daniel's Hymns Etc., 1868, p. 75, consisting of 6 sts. v. [J., 2nd ed.]

Pain and toil are over now. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [Easter Eve.] Pub. in her Verses for Holy Seasons, &c., 1846, p. 50, in 6 st. of 6 l., and headed "Easter Even. "And laid it in his own new tomb.' St. Matt. xxvii. 60." In C. U. it is commonly abbreviated, one form being that in the American Protestant Episco. Church Hymnal, 1871, where st. i., ii. and iv., are altered, and the two closing lines of each stanza are omitted. These alterations and omissions have gone far towards utterly spoiling the hymn. [J. J.]

Palgrave, Francis Turner, M.A., eldest s. of Sir Francis Palgrave, the Historian, was b. at Great Yarmouth, Sept. 28, 1824, and educated at the Charterhouse (1838–1843) and at Oxford, where he graduated in first class Classical Honours. He was scholar of Balliol (1842) and Fellow of Exeter (1846). He was engaged in the Education Department of the Privy Council till 1884, being also Private Secretary to Lord Granville (then Lord President). In 1885 he was elected Professor of Poetry in the University of Oxford. Professor Palgrave's publications include:—

(1) Idylls and Songs, 1854; (2) Art Catalogue of the Great Exhibition, 1862; (3) Essays [illegible] (4) Lyrical Poems, 1871; (5) Hymns, 1st ed., 1867; 2nd ed., 1868; 3rd ed., 1876. He has also edited, (6) Golden Treasury of English Lyrics, 1861; (7) Sir Walter Scott's Poems, with Life, 1867; and (8) Chrysomela, a selection from Herrick, 1877.

A large proportion of Professor Palgrave's hymns are in C.U., the greatest number being in the Marlborough College Hymns, 1869 (5); Thring's Coll., 1882 (4); Horder's Congregational Hys., 1884 (11); and the Westminster Abbey H. Bk., 1883 (12). These include:—

i. From his Hymns, 1867–70:—

1. High in heaven the sun. (1867.) Morning.
2. Hope of those who have none other. (1867.) Consolation in Affliction.
3. Lord God of morning and of night. (q.v.) Morning.
4. O Light of Life, O Saviour dear. (1868.) Evening.
5. O Thou not made with hands. (1867.) Kingdom of God within.
6. One Man with man, now God with God above us. (1867.) Holy Communion.
7. Thy kingdom 'Take up thy cross.' (1865.) Taking the Cross of Christ. In Macmillan's Magazine.
8. Thou that once, on mother's knee. (1862-7.) The Child Jesus.
9. Thy night was long, in sin-wrought blindness. (1848.) Lent, and Ember Days.
10. We name Thy Name, O God. (1868.) Lent.

ii. From Other Sources:—

11. Christ, Who art above the sky. Christ, the Consoler and Guide.
12. Lord, how fast the minutes fly. The New Year.
13. O God, Who when the night was deep. Morning.
14. O God [Lord] Who when Thy cross was nigh. Passion-tide.
15. Thrice-holy Name that sweeter sounds. Litany of the Name of Jesus. From the School Guardian, 1865.

These hymns, in common with others by Professor Palgrave, noted in this Dictionary under their respective first lines, are marked by much originality of thought and beauty of diction, as well as great tenderness. His object was "to try and write hymns which should have more distinct matter for thought and feeling than many in our collections offer, and so, perhaps, be of little use and comfort to readers," and he has admirably succeeded in his object. He d. Oct. 24, 1897. [W. G. H.]

Πάλαι φέγγος, πάλαι εἰρήνη. Synesius, Bp. of Ptolemais. [Morning.] This is hymn No. ii. of his ten hymns. It is a morning hymn of some beauty. It is rendered into English as: "Again we hail the opening morn," This tr. is by Mr. Chatfield, and appeared in his Songs & Hymns, &c., 1876, p. 14, in 96 lines. Another tr. by A. Stevenson, in his Ten Hys. of Synesius, &c., 1865, is, "After the gloom of night is passed away." The original is found in the Anth. Graeca. Carm. Christ., 1871. [Greek Hymnody, § v.] [J. J.]

Πάλιν προσῆλθε ὁ δράκων. St. Gregory of Nazianzus. [To Christ.] This is composed of 11. 16–22 of his "Hymn to Christ," the full text of which is in Daniel, iii. p. 13. It is "imitated" by Dr. Bonar in his Hys. of Faith and Hope, 2nd series, 1861, in 4 st. of 3 l. ea., "Again the tempter comes: to Thee I cling." [J. J.]

Palmer, Horatio Richmond, mus. doc., was b. April 26, 1834. He is the author of several works on the theory of music; and the editor of some musical editions of hymn-books. To the latter he contributed numerous tunes, some of which have attained to great popularity, and 5 of which are in I. D. Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos, Lon., 1881. His publications include Songs of Love for the Bible School; and Book of Anthems, the combined sale of which has exceeded one million copies. As a hymn-writer he is known by his "Yield not to temptation," which was written in 1868, and pub. in the National Sunday S. Teachers' Magazine, from which it passed, with music by the author, into his Songs of Love, &c., 1874, and other collections. In America its use is extensive. Dr. Palmer's degree was conferred by the University of Chicago in 1880. [J. J.]

Palmer, Ray, D.D., s. of the Hon. Thomas Palmer, a Judge in Rhode Island, was b. at Little Compton, Rhode Island, Nov. 12, 1808. His early life was spent at Boston, where he was for some time clerk in a dry-goods store. At Boston he joined the Park Street Congregational Church, then under the pastoral care of Dr. S. E. Dwight. After spending three years at Phillips Academy, Andover, he entered Yale College, New Haven, where he graduated in 1830. In 1830 he became pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Bath, Maine. During his pastorate there he visited Europe in 1847. In 1850 he was appointed to the First Congregational Church, at Albany, New York, and in 1865 Corresponding Secretary to the American Congregational Union, New York. He resigned in 1878, and retired to Newark, New Jersey. He d. at Newark, Mar. 29, 1887. Dr. Palmer's published works in prose and verse include:—

(1) Memoirs and Select Remains of Charles Fosdi, 1830; (2) The Spirit's Life, a Poem, 1837; (3) How to Live, or Memoirs of Mrs. C. L. Waines, 1838; (4) Doctrinal Tract Book, 1839; (5) Spiritual Improvement, a Sermon preached before the Pastoral Union of Andover Theol. Sem., 1839; (6) Thoughts for Hours on the Formation of Religious Opinions, 1840; (7) Remember Me, or The Holy Communion, 1840; (8) Hymns and Sacred Poems, with Miscellaneous Poems, 1841; (9) Hymns of my Holy Hours, and Other Pieces, 1865; (10) The Poetical Works, 1876, 1876; and (11) Voices of Hope and Gladness, 1881.

Most of Dr. Palmer's hymns have passed into congregational use, and have won great acceptance. The best of them by their combination of thought, poetry, and devotion, are superior to almost all others of American origin. The first which he wrote has become the most widely known of all. It is:—

1. My faith looks up to Thee. Faith in Christ. This hymn was written in the winter of 1830–31, at Bath, Me., and during an engagement in teaching in New York. This was in 1830. The author says concerning its composition, "I gave form to what I felt, by writing, with little effort, the stanzas. I recollect to this time the very spot on the floor where I sat when I wrote them." A short time afterwards the hymn was given to Dr. Lowell Mason for use, if thought good, in a work then being compiled by him and Dr. T. Hastings. In 1831 that work was pub. as Spiritual Songs for Social Worship: adapted to the use of Families, &c. Words and Music arranged by Thomas Hastings, of New York, and Lowell Mason of Boston. It is No. 141 in it as, of 4 l., entitled "Self Consecration," and accompanied with the tune "Olivet." The first line reads, "My faith looks up to Thee," but subsequently knew as "Olivet." (Orig. text of hymn in Thring's Coll., 1882.) It has passed into most modern collections in all English-speaking countries, and has been rendered into several languages. In America, in 1876, S. Maguire (p. 228, &c., begins "Films To sun-spiritual." 2. Feast of everlasting love. Feasts for rescued Spiritual Life. This also appeared in the Spiritual Songs, &c., 1831, No. 191, in 4 st. of 4 l., and headed "Films for a Revival."

The hymns which are given below are all in Dr. Palmer's Poetical Works, N. Y., 1876, and the dates appended in brackets are those given by him in that work.

3. Thou who rul'st the year around. (1832.) Close of the Year. In several American collections.
4. Away from earth my spirit turns. (1833.) Holy Communion. Appeared in the Spiritual Songs, &c., 1831, No. 4, as of 4 l. In the Church Praise Bk., N. Y., 1845, it begins with st. ii., "Then, Saviour, art the Living Bread."
5. Bathe Thy throne with tearful eyes. (1834.) Sunday Morning.
6. Sinking from the world away. (1834.) Evening. Written at New Haven in 1834, and is very popular in America.
7. Thine [Thy] holy day's returning. (1834.) Sunday Morning.
8. Wake thee, O Zion. (1835.) New Earthiest.
9. We stand in deep repentance. (1834.) Lent.

This last, No. 9, in connexion with Nos. 10, 11, 12, is marked "original," in the Presbyterian Parish Hymns, 1843. Probably they were given to the editors of that book in ms., and had not previously appeared.

10. And is there, Lord, a cost! (1842.) Rent in Heaven. Written at Bath, Maine, in 1842.
11. Come, Holy Ghost, in love. (1842.) Consecration to Christ. This was accidentally omitted from Dr. Palmer's Poetical Works, 1876. S. W. Duffield says:— "It was written in the winter of 1842–43, at a time of revival. At the previous Communion several had been received into the church on profession. Wishing a hymn, 'O happy day that fixed my choice' a most appropriate selection. Not caring to repeat it, and needing something similar, Dr. Palmer composed the present hymn." English Hymns, N. Y., 1886, p. 433.
12. Jesus, I gaze, and gazing, love. (1842.) Death Contemplated. Written at Bath, Maine, 1842.

From 1843 there comes a long break, and Dr. Palmer seems to have done no more hymn-writing until called upon by Professors Park and Phelps, of Andover, for contributions to their Sabbath Hymn-Book, 1858. His hymns written for that important collection rank amongst the best that America has produced. This is specially true of the first four (Nos. 13–16) from the Latin.

13. Jesus, Thou joy of loving hearts. (1858.) Pr. of a certain True "Jesu dulcis memoria." p. 586, ii.
14. O Head to Pilgrims given. (1858.) Pr. of Christ's Sufferings.
15. O Christ our King, Creator Lord. (1858.) Pr. of "Rex Christe, factor omnium."
16. Come Holy Ghost, in love. (1858.) Pr. of "Veni Sancte Spiritus." See No. 11 above.
17. Jesus, Thine eyes have never seen. (1858.) Christ Loved, though unseen. This hymn is accounted by many as next in merit and beauty to "My faith looks up to Thee."
18. Thy cross was wrought thought in vain would climb. (1858.) The Transfiguration. This hymn deals with the mysteries of Predestination in a reverent and devout manner.
19. Thy Father's house! thine own bright home. (1858.) Heaven.

The next group, Nos. 20–27, appeared in Dr. Robinson's Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865.

20. Lord, Thou with Jesus the joyful day. (1864.) Contemplation of Heaven. Written in New York city.
21. Eternal Father, Thou hast said. (1864.) Missions.

22. Jesus, Lamb of God, for me. (1845.) Love, the Way of Salvation. Written in Ilfracombe, 30th Tyth.

23. Take me, O my Father, take me. (1864.) Love.

24. Wouldst thou eternal life obtain. (1864.) Good Friday.

25. Come Jesus, Redeemer, abide Thou with me. (1864.) Holy Communion.

26. O Love Divine, that stooped to share our sharper woe. (1864.) Fellowship with Christ.

27. Thou, Saviour, from Thy throne on high. (1864.) Prayer.

The next four (Nos. 28–31) present another group. They appeared in D. E. Jones's Songs for the Next Life, 1869, and the Reformed Dutch Hym. of the Church, N. Y., 1869. The dates of composition are from Dr. Palmer's Poems, 1876.

28. Lord, Thou hast taught our hearts to glow. (1850.) Ordination, or Setting of Ministers.

29. When inward turns my searching gaze. (1868.) Morning.

30. O Jesus, sweet the tears I shed. (1867.) Good Friday.

31. Jesus, this (my) heart within me burns. (1868.) Love.

The hymns which follow are from various sources.

32. O Christ, the Lord of heaven, to Thee. (1867.) Universal Praise to Christ. Appeared in the author's Hyn. of my Holy Hours, 1867. It is a hymn of great merit, and is widely used.

33. Behold the chain of night is now receding. 1868. In St. Andrew Hymnal, No. 5.

34. Bid evening shadows let us all be waking. (1868.) A tr. of "Nocte surgentes" (p. 809, l.).

35. I give my life to Thee. (1867.) Consecration. A tr. of "Ad te levavi animam meam" (p. 809, l.).

36. Holy Ghost, that promised came. (1873.) Whitsuntide. From the author's Poems, 1876.

37. O Holy Comforter, I hear. The Comforter. Appeared in the Boston Congregationalist, September 7th, 1868.

38. Lord, when my soul her secrets doth reveal. (1868.) Holy Communion.

Most of the foregoing hymns are in C. U. in G. Britain, and all are found in one or more American hymn-books of importance.

[F. M. B.]

Palmer, William. [Various.]

Palms of glory, raiment bright. J. Montgomery. [Heaven in Prospect.] Written for the Sheffield Sunday School Union, and first printed on a broadsheet for use at the Anniversary in June 1820, in 6 st. of 4 l. It then appeared in T. Russell's Sel. of Hys. . . . An Appendix to Dr. Watts's Ps. & Hys., p. 5, [circa 1833, see p. 809, l.]; again in Montgomery's Poet's Portfolio, 1835, p. 240; and again in his Original Hys., 1853, p. 160, where it is headed "Heaven in prospect." It is of more than usual merit, and is widely used.

[J. J.]

Pange lingua gloriosi corporis mysterium. St. Thomas of Aquino. [Holy Communion.] One of the finest of the mediæval Latin hymns; a wonderful union of sweetness of melody with clear-cut dogmatic teaching. It was written for the office of the Festival of Corpus Christi, which St. Thomas drew up in 1263, at the request of Pope Urban IV. The metre and the opening line are imitated from Fortunatus. It is found in the Roman (Venice, 1478; and again, untouched, in 1632); Moderatio of 1505, Sarum, York, Aberdeen, Paris of 1736, and many other Breviaries. Wherever employed it was always primarily for use on Corpus Christi, either at Matins (Sarum), or at Vespers (Roman). It has also been used as a processional on Corpus Christi, in the Votive Office of the Blessed Sacrament, at the Forty Hours, and otherwise. Stanza v., "Tantum ergo sacramentum," with the magnificent doxology, is sung as a separate hymn in the office of the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, or during Mass at the Elevation of the Host. The text, in 3 st. and a doxology, will be found in Daniel, i., No. 239, the Hymn. Sarisb., 1851, p. 121, and others. [W. A. S.]

The hymn is found in a ms. of the 13th cent. in the Bodleian (Ashmole 1525, f. 173); in a ms. of the end of the 13th cent. (Add. 23935, f. 8), and a 14th cent. Sarum Breviary (Reg. 2, A. xiv. f. 94), both now in the British Museum; in the St. Gall ms. 339 f. of the 13th cent. Also in Kehrein, i., No. 331; Mone, No. 91; Daniel, ii., No. 96; and Dreves's Analecta Hymnica, 1886 and 1888, and others. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U. :—

1. Speak, O tongue, the Body broken. By I. Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 169. In Stretton's Church Hys., 1850, st. i.–iii. of this tr. and st. iv.–vi. from another were given as one hymn. This arrangement, with the opening line changed to "Sing we that blest Body broken," was repeated in Dr. Oldknow's Hymns, &c., 1850.

2. Sing, my tongue, the Saviour's glory, Of His flesh the mystery sing. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 111, and again in his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 65. It is given unaltered in several Roman Catholic hymn-books, and a few other collections. In the Irvingite Hys. for the Use of the Churches, 1871, it begins with the same first line, but is considerably altered, especially in st. iv. The alterations in the Yoe Coag., 1859, No. 878, are also considerable, but in another direction, whilst the opening line remains unchanged. In Skinner's Daily Service Hyl., 1864, it is altered to "Of Christ's Body, ever glorious."

3. Hail the Body bright and glorious. By R. Campbell, in his Hys. and Anthems, 1850, p. 69. This is repeated in Hys. used in the Church of St. Thomas the Martyr, Oxford, 1861, and the St. Margaret's Hymnal (East Grinstead), 1875. In the St. Margaret's H. it is attributed to "Fortescue" in error.

4. Of the glorious Body telling. By J. M. Neale, in his Mediæval Hys., 1851, p. 136 (ed. 1863, p. 178, with a valuable note). It was repeated in the 1860 Appendix to the Hymnal N.; the People's H., 1867; the Hymnary, 1872, and others, in most instances with slight variations from the original translation. In Dr. Schaff's Christ in Song, N. Y., 1869, it begins "Sing, my tongue, the mystery telling." The alterations are by Dr. Schaff.

5. Sing the glorious Body broken, Ransom of the world to be. By J. A. Johnston, in his English Hyl., 1852, No. 99. In the 2nd ed., 1856, he rewrote it as "Speak, my tongue, the Body glorious," and in the 3rd ed., 1861, as "Speak, my tongue, a mystery glorious."

6. Sing the glorious Body broken, Sing the precious Blood, &c. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. & Tune Bk., 1852–5, and again in Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870.

7. Hail, each tongue, with adoration. By W. J. Irons. Contributed to the Rev. E. T. Lowe's Hys. for the Christian Seasons, Gainsborgh, 1854, and repeated in Dr. Irons's Hymns, &c., 1866, and his Ps. & Hys., 1875.

8. Now, my tongue, the mystery telling. No.

203 in H. A. & M., 1861, and No. 309, revised ed., 1875, is said in the Index to be by the Compilers, "based on tr. from Latin by E. Caswall." This is, however, not strictly correct. An examination of the text shows that st. i., ii., and vi. are Dr. Neale's tr. rewritten; st. v. Dr. Neale's tr. very slightly altered; st. iii. Caswall's tr. rewritten; and st. iv. a tr. by the Compilers. This tr. is repeated in the Lyra Eucharistica, 1863, without alteration: and with a nearer approach to the original in the Altar Hymnal, 1884.

9. Of that glorious Body broken. This tr. in the Sarum, 1868, No. 125, is Caswall's altered (except in st. ii. and iii.) almost beyond recognition. It is repeated in Thring's Coll., 1882, with slight changes, except in the crucial st. iv. This is materially changed in the wording, although it remains the same in doctrinal teaching.

10. Wake, my tongue, the mystery telling. By R. C. Singleton, in his Anglican H. Bk., 1868 and 1871.

Translations not in C. U. :—

1. Of Christ's his body glorious. Primer, 1894.

2. Sing thou my tongue with sound clear. Primer, 1616.

4. Sing, O my tongue, devoutly sing. Primer, 1685.

5. Sing, O my tongue, adore and praise. Primer, 1706.

6. Reward, my tongue, the mystery resound. D. French, 1626.

7. Tell, my tongue, the wondrous story. By Cosz in his Catholike Exhibition, 1846 and 1848.

8. Of the glorious Body bleeding. A. D. Wackerbarth, 1843.

9. Of the Body bright and gracious. In Dr. Posey's tr. of Bonar's Paradise of the Christian Soul, 1847.

10. Loudly sing my tongue: proclaiming. J. R. Beste, 1848.

13. Speak, my tongue, the mystic glory. J. D. Chambers. 1852 and 1857.

11. Sing, O [my] tongue, the Body glorious. H. N. Oxenham. In The Rationalist, Jan., 1852; his Hymnal for Private and Family Devotion, 1864, and Hymns, 1866.

12. Break we forth in high thanksgiving. W. Bright in his Athanasius and other Poems, 1858.

13. My tongue, the mystic doctrine sing. J. W. Howell. 1880.

14. Sing, and the mystery declare. Ray Palmer, in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869.

15. Let my tongue the mystery sing. J. Wallace. 1874.

16. Now, my tongue, the mystery singing. W. T. Brooke in his Hymnal of Private and Family Devotion, 1881.

17. Sing, my tongue, the joyful mystery. J. D. Aylward, in G. Stapley's Sound Sanctus, 1884.

Tantum ergo sacramentum. This portion of the "Pange lingua," consisting of st. v. and vi., and sung in the office of the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, &c., as noted above, has been tr. by all the above-named translators, and each tr. is given as the conclusion of the original hymn. In a few instances the stanzas (v.–vi.) are given as a separate hymn in English, as in Latin. These include (1) Caswall's "Down in adoration falling," which appears in some Roman Catholic hymn-books for missions and schools; (2) a conclusion to the Altar Hyl., 1884, in 2 st., the first being Caswall altered, and the second the doxology from H. A. & M., as "Down in lowly worship bending;" and (3) Neale's tr., altered to "Now we then in veneration," in the 1863 Appendix to the Hymnal N.

Dr. Neale's estimate of this hymn is well known. His words are so few and to the point that we may quote them here :—

"This hymn contends the second place among those of the Western Church with the Vexilla Regis, the Stabat Mater, the Dies Iræ, the Ad Regias Agni Dapes, the Ad Supernum, and one or two others, leaving the Dies Iræ in its unapproachable glory." (Med. Hys. 3rd ed., 1867, p. 178.)

Concerning translations, and of his own in particular, he says :—

"In [the hymn] he has been a bow of Ulysses to translators. The translation above given [his own] claims no other merit than an attempt to unite the best portions of the four best translations with which I am acquainted [i.e. Caswall's, Palmer's, Pott's, and Campbell's] in one book, and Mr. Caswell's. The great crux of the translator is the fourth verse."

Before continuing Dr. Neale's remarks it will be well to give the original Latin of st. iv., which reads :—

"Verbum caro, panem verum verbo carnem efficit, Fitque sanguis Christi merum, et si sensus deficit
Ad firmandum cor sincerum sola fides sufficit."

Dr. Neale continues, "I give all the translations :—

(1) 'God the Word by one word maketh
Very Bread His Flesh to be:
And whoso that Cup partaketh,
Tastes the Feast of Calvary:
Sense may fail, and nature quiver,
Faith receives the Mystery.' [Lords H. Bk.]

"Here the incarnation of the Word, so necessary to the antithesis, is omitted: and we exact a writer as S. Thomas would never have used the expression by one word.

(2) 'At the Incarnate Word's high bidding,
Bread is His Flesh, and Wine His Blood:
Who beneath Christ's Blood-shedding:
And, if sense cannot discern,
Guiltless spirits, never dreading,
May from Faith sufficient learn.'
[Wackerbarth's Hys. of Wackerbarth's 1. 2 reads, "Bread to very flesh." &c.]

"Here the antithesis is utterly lost, by the substitution of Incarnate for made flesh, and bidding for word, to say nothing of Blood-shedding, for Blood.

(3) 'Word made Flesh: The Bread of nature,
Thou by word to Flesh dost turn:
Wine into His Blood He changes:
If to sense the work discern,
Yet the true heart proves no traitor:
Faith unaided all shall learn.' [Posey.]

"Here the antithesis is preserved, though at the expense of the vocative case. And surely S. Thomas, in an exact dogmatical poem, would not have spoken of the Bread as the Flesh, and the Wine as the Blood, in the hint given by the last version, and substituting the appositive pronoun for the vocative, has given, as from his freedom of rhyme might be expected, the best version.

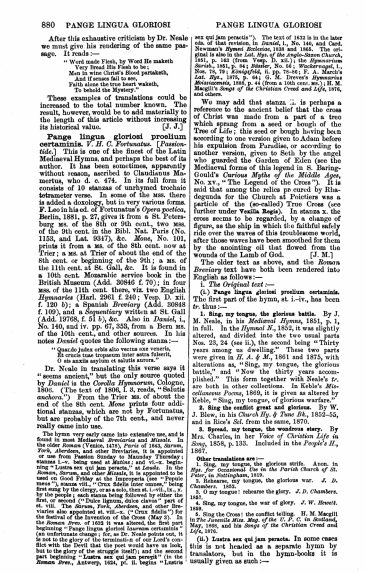
(4) 'Word made Flesh, the Bread of nature
By a word to Flesh He turns:
Wine into His Blood He changes
What though sense no change discerns,
Only be the heart in earnest,
Faith the lesson quickly learns.'

"In both these last translations [Posey and Caswall], the Word is the agent, and the Bread is the thing given; and Mr. Caswell brings in the words than unnecessary article—'By a word.' [It must be noted that Dr. Neale must have quoted Caswall from memory or from some other source than Caswall's Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 111, for he has "Word" in l. 1, "Flesh He turns," and l. 4, "Faith her lesson quickly learns." These readings of 1849 are repeated in Caswall's Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 65. But Dr. Neale misread Caswall, or did Caswall publish a text distinct from that in his Lyra Catholica?—J. J.]

"Since the first edition of my book [1867], Hymns Ancient and Modern have produced a translation put together from former ones,—but nearer my own version than to any other. Their fourth verse is their weakest :—

"'Word made Flesh, True Bread He maketh
By a word to Flesh He turns:
Wine into His Blood He changes:
What though sense no change discerns,
Only let the heart be humble,
Faith her answer learns.'

"It is needless to observe that the Italicised lies and a half-truth of the Romish Transubstantiation is watered English. I have substituted an alteration of Hymns Ancient and Modern for my original 4th verse, ('Therefore we, before it bending.)"



880 PANGE LINGUA GLORIOSI PANGE LINGUA GLORIOSI

After this exhaustive criticism by Dr. Neale we must give his rendering of the same passage. It reads :—

"Wert made Flesh, by Word He maketh
Very Bread His Flesh to be:
Man in wine Christ's Blood partaketh,
And if senses fail to see,
Faith alone the true heart waketh,
To behold the Mystery."

These examples of translations could be increased to the total number known. The result, however, would be to add materially to the length of this article without increasing its historical value. [J. J.]

Pange lingua gloriosi proelium certaminis. V. H. C. Verfasser. (Passiontide.) This is one of the finest of the Latin Mediæval Hymns, and perhaps the best of its author. It has been sometimes, apparently without reason, ascribed to Claudianus Mamertus, who d. c. 474. In its full form it consists of 10 stanzas of unrhymed trochaic tetrameter verse. In some of the mss. there is added a doxology, but in very various forms. F. Leo in his ed. of Fortunatus's Opera poetica, Berlin, 1881, p. 27, gives it from a St. Petersburg ms. of the 8th or 9th cent., two mss. of the 9th cent. in the Bibl. Nat. Paris (Nos. 1153, and Lat. 9347), &c. Mone, No. 101, prints it from a ms. of the 8th cent. now at Trier; a ms. at Trier of about the end of the 8th cent. or beginning of the 9th; a ms. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall, &c. It is found in a 10th cent. Mozarabic service book in the British Museum (Add. 30846 f. 70); in four mss. of the 11th cent. there, viz. two English Hymnaries (Harl. 2961 f. 240; Vesp. D. xii. f. 120 b); a Spanish Breviary (Add. 30848 f. 109), and a Sequentiary within at St. Gall (Add. 19768, f. 51 b), &c. Also in Daniel, i. No. 140, and iv. pp. 67, 338, from a Bern ms. of the 10th cent., and other sources. In his notes Daniel quotes the following stanza :—

"Quæ do Judex cribi alio vercus ore vesseis, Et crucis tuæ trophæum iuter astra fulserit,
O sis auxilio quæsitis salutis auctor."

Dr. Neale in translating this verse says it "seems ancient," but the only source quoted by Daniel is the Cocelia Hymnarium, Cologne, 1806. (The text of 1806, f. 8, reads, "Salutis auctores.") From the Trier ms. of about the end of the 8th cent. Mone prints four additional stanzas, which are not by Fortunatus, but are probably of the 7th cent., and never really came into use.

The hymn very early came into extensive use, and is found in the Uses of Benevento and Monza. In the older Roman (Venice, 1478), Paris of 1643, Sarum, York, Aberdeen, and other Breviaries, it is appointed or use from Passion Sunday to Maundy Thursday; and in the Roman Breviary of 1632 it is appointed to be sung "Lectis sex quæ jam peregit" at Lauds. In the Roman, Sarum, and other Missals, it is appointed to be used on Good Friday at the Improperia (see "Popule meus"), stanza viii., "Crux fidelis inter omnes," being sung while the Cross is unveiled, and stanza ix. "Flecte ramos" by the people; each stanza being followed by either the first, or second ("Dulce lignum, dulces clavos" part of st. viii. The Sarum, York, Aberdeen, and other Breviaries also appointed st. viii.-x. ("Crux fidelis") for the Procession to the Font on Holy Saturday, while in the Roman Arras of 1633 it was altered, the first part beginning "Pange lingua gloriosi lauream certaminis" (an unfortunate change); &c. &c. Dr. Neale points out, it is not to the glory of the termination of our Lord's conflict, but to the glory of the struggle itself; and the second part beginning "Lectis sex qui jam peregit" (in the Roman Arras, Antverp, 1634, p°. ii. begins "Lectis sex qui jam peractis"). The text of 1632 is the later rule of that revision. In Daniel, i., No. 140, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. The original text is also in the Paris Breviary of 1736, and 1861, p. 143 (from Vesp. B. xii.) the Hymnarium Sarisb., 1851, p. 94; Simker, No. 56; Wackernagel, i., Nos. 75, 76; Königsfeld, ii. pp. 76-81; F. A. March's Lat. Hym., 1875, p. 94; G. M. Dreves's Hymnodus Sangallensis, 1893, p. 76; Card. Newman's Verses, 1853, p. 76, Macgill's Songs of the Christian Creed and Life, 1876, and others.

We may add that stanza .. is perhaps a reference to the ancient belief that the cross of Christ was made from a part of a tree which sprang from a seed or bough of the Tree of Life; this seed or bough having been according to one version given to Adam before his expulsion from Paradise, or according to another version, given to Seth by the angel who guarded the Garden of Eden (see the Mediæval forms of this legend in S. Baring-Gould's Curious Myths of the Middle Ages, No. xv., "The Legend of the Cross"). It is said that among the relics preserved by Rhadegunda for the Church at Poictiers was a particle of the (so-called) True Cross (see further under Vexilla Regis). In stanza x. the cross seems to be regarded, by a change of figure, as the ship in which the faithful safely ride over the waves of this troublesome world, after those waves have been smoothed for them by the anointing oil that flowed from the wounds of the Lamb of God. [J. M.]

The older text as above, and the Roman Breviary text have both been rendered into English as follows :—

I. The Original text :—

(i.) Pange lingua gloriosi proelium certaminis. The first part of the hymn, st. i.–iv., has been tr. thus :—

1. Sing, my tongue, the glorious battle. By J. M. Neale, in his Mediæval Hymns, 1851, p. 1, in full. In the Hymnal N., 1852, it was slightly altered, and divided into the two usual parts Nos. 23, 24 (see ii.), the second being "Thirty years among us dwelling." These two parts were given in H. A. & M., 1861 and 1875, with alterations as, "Sing, my tongue, the glorious battle," and "Now the thirty years accomplished." This form together with Neale's tr. are both in other collections. In Keble's Miscellaneous Poems, 1869, it is given as altered by Keble, "Sing, my tongue, of glorious warfare."

2. Sing the conflict great and glorious. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. & Tune Bk., 1852–55, and in Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870.

3. Sprad, my tongue, the wondrous story. By Mrs. Charles, in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, 1858, p. 133. Included in the People's H., 1867.

Other translations are :—

1. Sing, my tongue, the glorious strife. Anon. in Hys. for Occasional Use in the Parish Church of St. Andrew, Wells Street, 1861.

2. Advance, my tongue, the glorious war. J. D. Chambers, 1862.

3. O my tongue! rehearse the glory. J. D. Chambers, 1862.

4. Sing, my tongue, the war of glory. J. W. Hewett, 1868.

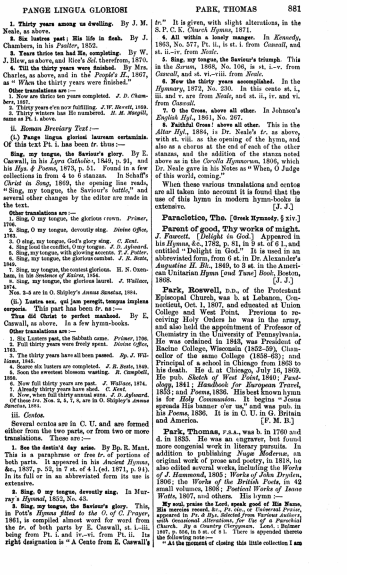
5. Sing the Cross! the conflict telling. H. M. Macgill in The Juvenile Miss. Mag. of the C. P. C. in Scotland, May, 1869, and his Songs of the Christian Creed and Life, 1876.

(ii.) Lustra sex qui jam peracta. In some cases this is not headed as a separate hymn by translators, but in the hymn-books it is usually given as such :—



PANGE LINGUA GLORIOSI PARK, THOMAS 881

1. Thirty years among us dwelling. By J. M. Neale, as above.

2. Six lustres past: His life in flesh. By J. Chambers, in his Psalter, 1852.

3. Years thrice ten had He, completing. By W. J. Blew, as above, and Rice's Sel. therefrom, 1870.

4. Till the thirty years were finished. By Mrs. Charles, as above, and in the People's H., 1867, as "When the thirty years were finished."

Other translations are :—

1. Now are thirty ten years completed. J. D. Chambers, 1857.

2. Thirty years e'en now fulfilling. J. W. Hewett, 1859.

3. Thirty winters has He numbered. H. M. Macgill, same as Pt. i. above.

ii. Roman Breviary Text :—

(i.) Pange lingua gloriosi lauream certaminis. Of this text Pt. i. has been tr. thus :—

Sing, my tongue, the Saviour's glory. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 91, and his Hym. & Poems, 1873, p. 51. Found in a few collections in from 4 to 6 stanzas. In Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869, the opening line reads, "Sing, my tongue, the Saviour's battle," and several other changes by the editor are made in the text.

Other translations are :—

1. Sing, O my tongue, the glorious crown. Primer, 1706.

2. Sing, O my tongue, devoutly sing. Divine Office, 1783.

3. O sing, my tongue, God's glory sing. C. Kent.

4. Sing, my tongue, the glorious fight. J. Chalmers.

5. Sing my tongue, with glowing accents. T. J. Potter.

6. Sing, my tongue, the glorious combat. J. R. Beste, 1849.

7. Sing, my tongue, the contest glorious. H. S. Osmond, in the Parish Choir, Jan. 1865.

8. Sing, my tongue, the glorious laurel. J. Wallace, 1874.

Nos. 3-5 are in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884.

(ii.) Lustra sex. qui jam peregit, tempus impleta corporis. This part has been tr. as :—

Thus did Christ to perfect manhood. By E. Caswall, as above. In a few hymn-books.

Other translations are :—

1. Six Lustres past, the Sabbath came. Primer, 1706.

2. Full thirty years were lived apart. Divine Office, 1783.

3. The thirty years have all been passed. Sp. J. Williams, 1840.

4. Scarce six lustres are completed. J. R. Beste, 1849.

5. Soon the seventeen blossom wanting. R. Campbell, 1854.

6. Now full thirty years are past. J. Wallace, 1874.

7. Already thirty years have shed. C. Kent.

8. Now, when full thirty annual suns. J. D. Aylward.

Nos. 4-6 are in O. Shipley's, as i. i. i, are in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884.

iii. Cowdon.

Several centos are in C. U. and are formed either from the two parts, or from two or more translations. Those are :—

1. See the Savior's day arise. By Bp. R. Mant. This is a paraphrase or free tr. of portions of both parts. It appeared in his Ancient Hymns, &c., 1837, p. 52, in 7 st. of 4 l. (ed. 1871, p. 94). In its full or in an abbreviated form its use is extensive.

2. Sing, O my tongue, devoutly sing. In Murray's Hymnal, 1852, No. 43.

3. Sing, my tongue, the Saviour's glory. This, in Pott's Hymns Fitted to the O. of C. Prayer, 1861, is compiled almost word for word from the tr. of both parts by E. Caswall, st. i.–ii. being from Pt. i. and iv.–vi. from Pt. ii. Its right designation is "A Cento from E. Caswall's tr." It is given, with slight alterations, in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871.

4. All within a lonely manger. In Kennedy, 1863, No. 571, Pt. ii., in st. i. from Caswall, and st. ii.–iv. from Neale.

5. Sing, my tongue, the Saviour's triumph. This in the Scrutt, 1868, No. 106, is st. i.–v. from Caswall, and st. vi.–viii. from Neale.

6. Now the thirty years accomplished. In the Hymnary, 1872, No. 230. In this cento st. i., iii. and v. are from Neale, and st. ii., iv. and vi. from Caswall.

7. O the Cross, above all other. In Johnson's English Hyl., 1861, No. 267.

8. Faithful Cross! above all other. This in the Altar Hyl., 1884, is Dr. Neale's tr. as above, with st. viii. as the opening of the hymn, and also as a chorus at the end of each of the other stanzas, and the addition of the stanza noted above as in the Cocelia Hymnarium, 1806, which Dr. Neale gave in his Notes as "When, O Judge of this world, coming."

When these various translations and centos are all taken into account it is found that the use of this hymn in modern hymn-books is extensive. [J. J.]

Paraclotice, The. [Greek Hymnody. § xiv.]

Parent of good, Thy works of might. J. Fawcett. [Delight in God.] Appeared in his Hymns, &c., 1782, p. 81, in 3 st. of 6 l., and entitled "Delight in God." It is used in an abbreviated form, from 6 st. in Dr. Alexander's Augustine H. Bk., 1849, to 2 st. in the American Unitarian Hymn [and Tune] Book, Boston, 1868. [J. J.]

Park, Roswell, D.D., of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was b. at Lebanon, Connecticut, Oct. 1, 1807, and educated at Union College and West Point. Previous to receiving Holy Orders he was in the army, and also held the appointment of Professor of Chemistry in the University of Pennsylvania. He was ordained in 1842, was President of Racine College, Wisconsin (1852–59), Chancellor of the same College (1858–63); and Principal of a school in Chicago from 1863 to his death. He d. at Chicago, July 16, 1869. He pub. Sketch of West Point, 1840; Pantology, 1841; Handbook for European Travel, 1853; and Poems, 1836. His best known hymn is for Holy Communion. It begins "Jesus spreads His banner o'er us," and was pub. in his Poems, 1836. It is in C. U. in G. Britain and America. [F. M. B.]

Park, Thomas, F.S.A., was b. in 1760 and d. in 1835. He was an engraver, but found more congenial work in literary pursuits. In addition to publishing Nugæ Medievæ, an original work of prose and poetry, in 1818, he also edited several works, including the Works of J. Hammond, 1805; Works of John Dryden, 1806; the Works of the British Poets, in 42 small volumes, 1808; Poetical Works of Isaac Watts, 1807, and others. His hymn :—

My soul, praise the Lord, speak good of His Name, His mercies record. &c., Ps. civ., or Universal Praise, appeared in Pt. 2 Sts. Selected from Various Authors, with occasional Alterations, for Use of a Parochial Choir, 1807, p. 305, in 8 st. of 4 l. There is appended thereto the following note :—

"At the moment of closing this little collection I am forward with the above hymn from my obliging friend. This almost extemporaneous effusion of his peculiarly neat and poetic pen was excited by my expressing (in the course of a letter) my regret, that I had only one set of words for Handel's simple, sublime tune for the 104th Psalm."

For those details we are indebted to Miller's Singers and Songs of the Church, 1869, p. 329. The opening line of this hymn is composed of the first two lines of W. Kethe's version of Ps. ciii. in the Old Version, 1561. [J. J.]

Parker, Matthew, D.D., was b. at Norwich in 1504, and educated at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, where he graduated in 1525. His appointments were many and influential, including that of Dean of Stoke, Chaplain to Queen Anne Boleyn and Henry VIII., Prebendary of Ely, Master of his College, Vice Chancellor of his University, and Dean of Lincoln. On the accession of Mary he was deprived of everything, and lived in obscurity till Elizabeth ascended the throne. In 1559 he was raised to the See of Canterbury. He d. in 1575, and was buried in his own chapel at Lambeth. His munificence is well known, as also his connection with the "Bishop's Bible." He was well versed in Saxon literature and Early English history; published several important works; and left his large collection of ancient MSS. to his College. His Psalter, written in 1553 (see Psalter, Eng., § VII.), was printed without date (about 1560) and anonymously. This led Wood in his Athenæ Oxonienses to attribute the Psalter to John Keeper, of Wells Cathedral. This question of authorship is further discussed in Psalter, English, § IX. [J. J.]

Parker, Theodore, M.A., was b. at Lexington, Massachusetts, Aug. 24, 1810; laboured with his father as a farmer and mechanic; entered Harvard College in 1830, but continued his work at home and attended the College for examinations; attended the Divinity School from 1834 to 1836, and became pastor of the Unitarian congregation in West Roxbury, June 24, 1837. He received the degree of M.A. from his College in 1840. Changes in his theological views led him to undertake the pastorate of a congregation in Boston, in January 1846. He continued his writing, preaching, and lecturing till 1859, when bleeding at the lungs compelled him to seek relief in Europe. He d. at Florence, May 10, 1860. His publications were numerous, and have been republished in G. Britain. An extended list is given, together with 12 poetic pieces, in Putnam's Singers and Songs of the Liberal Faith, Boston, U. S. A., 1875. His life has been published by Weiss, and by Frothingham. A few of his poetical pieces are given in American Unitarian hymn-books. These include :—

1. In darker days and nights of storm. Almighty Love. "Introduced in a sermon which Mr. Parker preached, entitled 'The Practical Effects of the Ecclesiastical Conception of God.'" In Putnam as above.
2. Thou great Friend of all the sons of men. Jesus. 3. Why, Father, seek that I should tell Thy name? In a modified form (see Putnam as above). Altered for use as a hymn, it is widely used by American Unitarians; and is also given in some English hymn-books. [J. J.]

Parr, Harriet, was b. at York in 1828, and has published several works under the nom de plume of "Holme Lee," including Meude Talbot, 1854; Sylvan Holt's Daughter, 1858; Warp and Woof, 1861; Mr. Wynyard's Ward, 1867; and several other works of fiction. Miss Parr is known to hymnology by one hymn only, viz. :—

Hear my [our] prayer, O heavenly Father. Evening. This beautiful and pathetic hymn appeared in her story The Week of the Golden Mary, which was the Christmas number of Charles Dickens's Household Words, 1863. The story is a simple one, and although the story has been often told, and is worth repeating. The story sets forth how the ship Golden Mary, on her voyage to California, struck on an iceberg, and the passengers, taking to the boats, suffered privations for many days. The hymn appeared in the story representations. One of them, Dick Farrant, a wild youth, relates some of his experiences, in which he says :—

"What can it be that brings all these old things over my mind? There's a child's hymn I and Tom used to say at our mother's knee. I've not thought upon one word of it since, that I remember. It's the strangest hymn I ever was a little window by my bed that I used to watch them at, a window in my room at home in Cheshire; and 'tis worse or afraid, as boys will be after reading a good ghost-story, I would keep on saying it till I fell asleep.

"That was a good mother of yours, Dick; could you say that hymn now, do you think? Some of us might like to hear it."

"It is as clear in my mind at this minute as if my mother was here listening to me," said Dick. And he repeated :—

"'Hear my prayer, O Heavenly Father,
Ere we lay us down to sleep,' &c.

Through the instrumentality of Dr. Allon it was included in the New Congregational H. Bk., 1859, No. 945, in 3 st. of 4 l. Since then it has reappeared in numerous collections in G. Britain and America. In some hymn-books, as in Turing's Coll., 1862, it begins, "Hear our prayer, O heavenly Father," and a doxology is added. Instead of the doxology, the Rev. W. J. Hall added the following lines (written in 1875).

"Home of rest and peace unending,
Whither turns my longing heart,
Home from whosesoever all the ages
Prayers were said to Thee,

This addition was given in the Nest Mitre Hymnal, 1875. In the Parish Hymn Book, 1863 and 1875, it is a Morning hymn, and begins :—

"Praise to Thee, Who hosts have watched us Through the helpless hours of sleep," &c.

[J. J.]

Parson, Elizabeth, née Rooker, dau. of the Rev. W. Rooker (for nearly fifty years Congregational Minister at Tavistock), was b. at Tavistock, June 5, 1813, and married in 1844 to Mr. T. Edgecombe Parson. She d. at Plymouth in 1873. Previous to her marriage (from 1840 to 1844) Mrs. Parson conducted a class for young men and women in the vestry of her father's chapel on Sunday evenings, and to which was given the name of the "Willing Class," because those who came came "willingly." For this class she wrote from 1840 to 1844 several hymns, some of which came into use through various collections including the Baptist Ps. & Hys., 1858, and others at a later date. A few years ago 18 of these hymns were collected, and printed for private circulation by one of her old scholars as Willing Class Hymns. The greater part of these hymns have found a place in children's hymn-books, some fifteen collections having one or more therein. For tenderness, "Saviour, round Thy footstool bending," is the most pathetic; and for praise, "Angels round the throne are praising," and "What shall we render?", the most joyous. Mrs. Parson also wrote a few hymns for adults, which have been printed for private use only. In addition to those hymns separately annotated (see Index) there are also the following in C. U. :—

1. Far above the lofty sky. Praise.
2. Father of spirits, we entreat. New Year.
3. Hark! a distant voice is calling. Missions.
4. Hear my [our] prayer, O heavenly Father. Children. In three use here? Pentecostals.
5. Jesus, we love to meet. Sunday.
6. Lord, we bend before Thee now. Home Missions, or Prayer Meetings.
7. Lord, we kneel before Thy throne. This is an altered form of No. 1.
8. Our Saviour's voice is soft and sweet. Missions.
10. This is God's most holy day. Sunday.
11. Youthful, weak, and unprotected. Self Dedication to Christ.

[J. J.]

Part in peace! Christ's life was peace. Sarah Adams, née Flower. [Close of Service.] 1st pub. in her Vivia Perpetua, 1841, a dramatic poem, in five Acts, where it is given as the close of Act iii. The persecuted Christians are represented as meeting in "A cave of sepulchre, dimly lighted," where they learn that the edict is gone forth that they must perish. Before parting, possibly never to meet again, "they all sing" :—

"Part in peace: Christ's life was peace—
Let us breathe our breath in Him!
Part in peace! Christ's death was peace,— Let us die our death in Him!
Part in peace! Christ promise gave
Of a life beyond the grave,
Where all mortal partings cease.
Part in peace!
Echo,' 'Peace!'"

In Act v. it is sung again after Vivia's condemnation, with l. 2 changed to "Let us live our life in Him." This form is sometimes used as in the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, where l. 3 is lengthened as "Holy brethren, part in peace." This last line is again altered in some collections to "Brethren, sisters, part in peace." The hymn is widely used. [J. J.]

Part in peace! is day before us? Sarah Adams, née Flower. [Close of Service.] This is altogether a different hymn from the above. It was contributed to W. J. Fox's Hys. and Anthems, 1841, No. 83, in 3 st. of 4 l. It is in several Unitarian collections. In the American Unitarian Hymn [and Tune] Book, 1868, it begins with st. ii., "Part in peace! with deep thanksgiving." [J. J.]

Παρθένε, νύμφη Χριστοῦ. St. Gregory of Nazianzus. [The Church of Christ.] "An Admonitory Address to a Virgin," pub. in various editions of his Works, and also found in the Anth. Græca Carm. Christ., 1871. From the letter Mr. Chatfield made his tr., "O bride of Christ on high," publishing the same in his Songs & Hymns, &c., 1876, p. 125, in 250 lines. The original dates 924-989. [Greek Hymnody, § iv.] [J. J.]

Parvum quando cerno Deum. [Christmas.] This hymn is found in the Sirenes Symphoniacæ, Col-gne, 1678, p. 81, the Psalterium cantionum catholicarum, Cologne, 1722, p. 20; and in the Hymnodia Sacra, Münster, 1753, p. 59. Also in Daniel, ii. p. 342, headed "The Mother with the Son." It is a Christmas Hymn of the Blessed Virgin and her Child. It may be remarked that it ends with a versified aspiration for the personal fulfilment (in a spiritual and mystical sense) of Ps. cxxvii. 3-5—arrows, or even one of them, desired to be discharged at one's own heart, such as the young child could discharge at the heart of His mother. Tr. as :—

1. Oft as Thou, my infant Saviour. By K. Caswall, in his Masque of Mary, &c., 1858, p. 299; and his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 142. It is in use in a few Roman Catholic hymn-books.
2. When I view the Mother's arms. By E. A. Washburn, 1846, and included in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869.
3. When I view the Mother holding. By H. C. Beanley, in Slatter and Beanley's Christmas Carols, n.d. [W. A. S.]

Past is her day of grace. J. Keble. [Christ Weeping over Jerusalem.] The poem from which this is taken is dated 1818, and was given in Keble's Christian Year, 1827, in 2 sts. of 8 l., for the 10th S. after Trinity. The hymn, No. 195, in Hall's Mitre H. Bk., 1836, is composed of st. i., based upon the first part of Keble's poem, and st. ii.-iv. from the two concluding stanzas of the poem. [J. J.]

Pastore percusso, mitnas. Guillaume de la Brunetière. [Conversion of St. Paul.] This hymn was given in the Chemins Breviary, 1686, p. 914, and in the Paris Breviary, 1736, as the hymn at 1st and 2nd Vespers on the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul. It is also in several later French Breviaries; J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 85, with omission of st. iii., iv.; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865, in full. Tr. as :—

1. The Shepherd slain, the wolf returns. By J. Chandler, from his Latin text as above, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 95. It was included in Oldknow's Hymns, 1850, and others.
2. The Shepherd smitten is, and, lo. By I. Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 176. It is used in an abbreviated form. In Johnson's English Hyl., 1861, No. 210, it begins, "The Shepherd smitten and laid low." The rendering in W. J. Blew's Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-55, "The spoiler fierce is lying low," is mainly from this by, beginning with st. v.
3. The Shepherd now was smitten. By F. Pott, in his Hys. Ated to the Order of Common Prayer, 1861, the People's H., 1867, and others. In one or two American books st. vi.-viii. are given as "Christ for heavens His soldier." The alterations in H. A. & M., 1861 and 1875 were by the Compilers.
4. O Lord, Thy voice the mountain chakes. Trial, in the Hymnary, 1872, is adapted from I. Williams's tr. as above, with a change in the order of stanzas, and several alterations.

Translations not in C. U. :—
1. Smitten is the Shepherd good. R. Campbell. 1849.
2. They smite the Shepherd! fired with wrath. J. D. Chambers. 1866. [J. J.]

Pater superni luminis. Cardinal Bellarmine. [St. Mary Magdalene.] Included in the Roman Breviary, Venice, 1603, f. 445, as the hymn at Vespers on the festival of St. Mary Magdalene (July 22), and repeated in later eds. It is said to have been written while with Cardinal Silvio Antoniano he was spending a holiday in the country at Frascati, as the guest of Pope Clement VIII.; the Pope having proposed to them to see which could compose the best ode in honour of St. Mary Magdalene. The text is in Donati, iv. p. 305, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

1. Father of celestial light. By W. J. Copeland, in his Hymns for the Week, &c., 1848, p. 121. This is in C. C. U. without alteration; and also slightly changed, as, "Thou that art celestial Light," in the Hymnary, 1872.

2. Father of Light! one glance of Thine. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 162, and his Hymns and Poems, 1873, p. 88. This is given in some hymn-books without alteration, and in others as "O Lord of Light, one glance of Thine."

Other trs. are :—
1. Father of light, that shinest above. Primer, 1619.
2. Sweet Father of supernal light. Primer, 1685.
3. Bright Parent of celestial Flame. Primer, 1706.
4. O Father of supernal light. S. French, 1852.
5. O Father of resplendent light. J. Wallace, 1871.
[J. M.]

Patrick, St., the 2nd Bishop and Patron Saint of Ireland, was s. of Calpurnius, a deacon, and grandson of Potitus, a presbyter, and great grandson of Odissus, a deacon, was b. most probably near Dumbarton, in North Britain, in 372. According to his epistle to Coroticus, his father was also a decurio, a member of the local town council, and a Roman by descent. Hence probably the name Patricius. St. Patrick alludes in Confessio, § 5, to his having been originally a freeman, and of noble birth. His birthplace is termed in his Confessio, § 1, Bannavem Taberniæ. Some have identified that place with Boulogne-sur-Mer, in France. His mother's name was Conessa, said to have been sister of St. Martin of Tours. According to Tirechan's Collectanea (circa A.D. 690), Patrick had four names—(1) Magonus, which Tirechan explains by clarus, illustrious; (2) Sucat (Succatus), god of war, or brave in war, said to have been his baptismal name; (3) Patricius; and (4) Cothrigius (Cothrigius), given because he had been a slave to four masters. At the age of 16 he was carried off with many others to Ireland, and sold as a slave. There he remained six years with Milcho, or Miliuc. He was engaged in tending cattle (pecora), though the later writers say that he fed swine. In his captivity he became acquainted with the Irish language. His misfortunes were the means of leading him to Christ, and he devoted himself to prayer, and often frequented, for that purpose, the woods on Mount Slemish. Having escaped after six years, he spent some years with his parents, and then was stirred up, when still a youth (puer), to devote himself to the evangelisation of Ireland. According to Secundinus's Hymn (St. Sechnall), which is probably not much later than the age of St. Patrick himself, the saint received his apostleship "from God," like St. Paul. No reference is made in that hymn, or in the later so-called Hymn of St. Fiacc, to any commission received from Pope Celestine, as is asserted by later writers. St. Patrick does not in his own writings allude to the external source whence he obtained ordination, and, as he speaks of his Roman descent, it would be strange for him not to have mentioned his Roman consecration, if it had been a fact. From some "sayings" of his, preserved on a separate page of the Book of Armagh, it is probable that he travelled through Gaul and Italy, and that he was ordained in Gaul as deacon, priest, and, afterwards, as bishop. He was probably a bishop when he commenced his missionary labours in Ireland. There were, however, Christians in Ireland before that period. Palladius, the senior Patrick, who preceded our saint by a few years, was, according to the chronicle of Prosper (the secretary of Pope Celestine), "ordained and sent to the Scots (the Irish) believing in Christ, by Pope Celestine, as their first bishop." Palladius's mission was a failure, while that of the second Patrick, which was quite independent of the former, was successful in a high degree. Its success, however, has been greatly exaggerated; for St. Patrick, in the close of his Confessio, or autobiography, written in old age, speaks of the high probability of his having to lay down his life as a martyr for Christ. The date of St. Patrick's mission is not certain, but the internal evidence of his writings indicate that it was most probably about A.D. 425. The day and month of his death (March 17), but not the year (493) is mentioned in the Book of Armagh.

St. Patrick's claim to a record in this Dictionary is associated with the celebrated hymn or "Breastplate," a history of which we now subjoin.

I. St. Patrick's Irish Hymn is referred to in Tirechan's Collectanea (A.D. 690). It was directed to be sung in "all monasteries and churches through the whole of Ireland," "antiquum ejus asciticum semper canere," which is a proof that it was at that time universally acknowledged to be his composition. That regulation was very naturally lost sight of when the old Celtic Church lapsed into the Roman. (a) The expressions used in the hymn correspond entirely with the circumstances under which St. Patrick visited Tara. (b) Moreover, although all the ancient biographies of St. Patrick (with the exception of his own Confession, and of Secundinus's Hymn) speak of him as a worker of miracles, and as having performed miracles at Tara, there is no trace of such a fact in St. Patrick's Hymn. (c) Further, the phrase, "creator of doom," which twice occurs in it, according to the most approved translation, curiously corresponds with another fact that, "my God's doom," or "the doom," or "judgment of my God," was, according to the ancient biographies, one of St. Patrick's favourite expressions.

2. The first notice of the existence at the present time of an ancient MS. copy of St. Patrick's "Hymn or Breastplate," was made known by the late Dr. Petrie in his Memoir of Tara, pub. in the Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy, 1839, vol. xviii. Dr. Petrie gave the original in Irish characters, an interlinear Latin version and an English tr. by himself, together with copious notes. Dr. Petrie found the original in the Liber Hymnorum, in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin (cir. E. 4. 5, fol. 19 b). "The tradition respecting its primary use by the saint is that he recited it on Easter Sunday, when proceeding to encounter the druidical fire-worshippers, with their pagan king, Laoghaire, and his court, at Tara, the royal residence." (Lyra Hibernica Sacra, 1878, p. 2.)

3. Dr. Todd in his work S. Patrick, Apostle of Ireland, 1864, gives a metrical rendering of the "Breastplate," which begins :—

"I bind to myself to-day,
The strong power of an invocation of the Trinity,
The faith of the Trinity in Unity,
The Creator of the elements."

The tr., which extends to 78 lines, was mainly the work of Dr. Whitley Stokes. A more correct version by the same scholar is given in the Rolls's edition of the Tripartite Life, 1887; and that revised version, with a few modifications, accompanied with critical notes, explanatory of the alterations made on the former version, is given in the 2nd and 3rd editions of the Writings of St. Patrick, by Dr. C. H. H. Wright. Dr. Whitley Stokes, therefore, is to be regarded as the real translator from the original Irish. Dr. Petrie's translation, though highly meritorious as a first attempt, has been proved in many particulars to be erroneous. There is no mention of Tara in the hymn. An uncertainty yet exists as to the meaning of a few words.

4. In Dr. W. MacIlwaine's Lyra Hibernica Sacra, 1878, Dr. Todd's tr. was reprinted (with notes), together with a second tr. by James Clarence Mangan, the opening lines of which are :—

"At Tara to-day, in this awful hour,
I call on the Holy Trinity!
Deeply I believe in the Trinity power,
The God of the elements, Father, and Son,
And Paraclete Spirit, while There are the One,
The everlasting Divinity."

5. A popular version of the hymn for congregational use was written by Mrs. Cecil F. Alexander, for St. Patrick's Day, 1889, and sung generally throughout Ireland on that day. The opening lines are :—

"I bind unto myself to-day
The strong Name of the Trinity,
By invocation of the same,
The Three in One and One in Three.

"I bind this day to me for ever,
By power of faith, Christ's Incarnation;
His Baptism in Jordan river;
His death on Cross for my salvation;
His bursting from the spiced tomb;
His rising up the heav'nly way;
His coming at the day of doom:
I bind unto myself to-day."

Mrs. Alexander's version is given, along with that of James Clarence Mangan, in the Appendix to the Writings of St. Patrick, edited by Dr. C. H. H. Wright (R. T. S.), 1889.

6. Another metrical version of this hymn was given in the Irish Ecclesiastical Gazette for April 5, 1889. It is by Joseph John Murphy, and the opening lines are :—

"I bind as armour on my breast
The Threefold Name to-whom I call,
Of Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
The Maker and the Judge of all."

7. The tr. in Stokes and Wright's edition of St. Patrick's writings was set to music as a cantata by Sir R. Stewart, and was performed for the first time in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, on St. Patrick's Day, 1888.

8. Mr. Thomas French, Assistant Librarian of Trinity College, Dublin, writes as follows respecting this hymn :—

"The vo. called the 'Liber Hymnorum' belonged to Archp. Ussher, and forms one of the volumes of the Ussher Collection now in the Library of Trin. College, Dublin. There is no interlinear Latin tr. in the MS., but one was added by Dr. Petrie, and printed in the hymn "for the satisfaction of the learned." (The St. Patrick controversy in) tradition only, so far as I know. Dr. Todd in his S. Patrick, Apostle of Ireland, p. 426, says 'It is undoubtedly of great antiquity, although it is impossible to fix the date.' Petrie adduces arguments in support of the tradition that St. Patrick was its author.' . . . . . Petrie and Todd make the age of the MS. of 10th cent., Whitley Stokes 11th or 12th."

We may add that St. Patrick's Latin works were pub. by Sir James Ware, 1656, in the Acta Sanctorum of the Bollandist Fathers, 1668, by Villanueva, 1835, and by others, as R. S. Nicholson, 1868, Miss Cusack, 1871, and, above all, by Dr. Whitley Stokes, in the Rolls' Edition of the Tripartite Life, 1887. The latter three works contain also translations. The tr. of the whole, or a portion of St. Patrick's writings, have been pub. by Rev. T. Olden, 1876; Sir S. Ferguson, LL.D. Transactions of Royal Irish Academy, 1883, and more completely in the Writings of St. Patrick, edited by Prof. G. T. Stokes and Dr. C. H. H. Wright, 1st ed. 1887, 2nd ed. 1889, 3rd ed., edited, with notes critical and historical, and an Introduction by Dr. C. H. H. Wright revised and enlarged. London : Religious Tract Soc., 1889. [C. H. H. W.]

Patris æterni Soboles coæva. Charles Gaud. [Dedication of a Church.] This hymn is appointed for use at Lauds on the Feast of the Dedication of a Church, in the Sens Breviary, 1702; the Paris Breviary, 1680; and later French Breviaries. It is based on the "Urbs beata cunctorum" (p. 838, ii.). The text is also in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

1. O Word of God above. By I. Williams, in the British Magazine, July, 1837, vol. xii. p. 93, and again in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839. This tr. is rarely found in its original form. In 1852 it was given, much altered, in Murray's Hymnal as No. 89. This was the received text until 1861, when the Compilers of H. A. & M. produced another text, which superseded both it and the original. This text is thus composed : st. i., Williams; ii. Murray, altered by the Compilers; iii., iv., Compilers; v., vi., Murray; vii., Murray and the Compilers. This cento is the most popular form of the text, but the wording of st. ii. has undergone several changes.

2. Jesu, most loving God. This rendering is in the Hymnary, 1872, and is attributed in the Index to "I. Williams." Of I. Williams's tr. three lines only are found in the hymn, and these are in the doxology. The rest of the hymn is the text of I. Williams rewritten.

To translators the crux of this hymn has been st. ii., which reads :—

"He sacri fontis lutium ab orta
Nos ablui jussit, nos renovavit
Ita et lotiosum nova membra Christo
Christus coaptat."

I. Williams translated this :—

"There dwells in this deep fount
Anointing made to love,
And from beneath this holy mount Goes forth the healing wave."

In Murray's Hymnal, 1852, it reads :—

"Grace in this Font is stored
To cleanse each guilty child,
The spirit's blest anointing poured
Brightens the once defiled."

This is changed in H. A. & M. to:—

"Here from the East is poured
The Incense of the Lord
The blest Anointing of the Lord
Brightens the once defiled."

The rendering in the Hymnary is:—

"Here in the East are offerings
Here incense the air defiles
Here God the Spirit with His strength
Endows the new-born child."

In addition to this stanza Williams's tr. of st. v. and vi. have been either subjected to great changes, or superseded altogether. They have not however the same doctrinal importance as st. iv. [J. J.]

Patris Sapientia, veritas [homitas] divina. (Feminalitide.) This is the best and most popular of the metrical Hours of the Passion of our Lord, which were commonly used in mediæval times. It is probably of the 14th cent., and consists of 8 stanzas, viz. one each for Matins, Prime, Tierce, Sext, None, Vespers, and Compline, with the concluding stanza—

"Has horas canonicas cum devotione
Tibi Jesu recolo pia ratione,
Ut sicut in passus es portas in agone,
Sic labore consonans cunctos sim coronæ."

Mone, No. 82, gives it from a Reichenau MS. of the 14th cent. (where it is ascribed to Pope Benedict XII., who d. 1342); a MS. of the 14th cent. at Coblenz (where it is ascribed to Pope John XXII., who d. 1334); a MS. of the 14th cent. at Licitental (where it is ascribed to Aegidius, Abp. of Bourges, who d. 1316), and other sources. It is in a MS. of the 15th cent. in the British Museum (Harl. 2961, f. 132), a MS. c. 1400, in the Bodleian (Bodl. 113, f. 40 b, &c.), a MS. of the 14th cent. in the Bodleian (Liturg. Misc., 251, f. 193 b), and others. The text will also be found in Daniel, i., No. 483; Wackernagel, i., No. 267. Neale's Hy. Eccl., 1851, p. 137; Bässler, No. 115; Königsfeld, ii. p. 318. Tr. as:—

Christ by His sorrow. By J. M. Neale, in his Mediæval Hys., 1851, p. 62 (with a note), and in the People's H., 1867. Of this tr. st. i.-iii. and part of vii. were given in J. D. Chambers's Lords Hymn, 1857, pp. 168-170, the rest of the tr. therein being by Sir. Chambers.

Other trs. are:—

1. He that is the great profounde Sapience. Sarum Primer, Paris, 1539.
2. The wisdom of the father, and truth divyne begynneth. Primer, 1534.
3. The Father's wisdome beegs. Primer, 1615.
4. The Father's wisdom, Truth divine. Primer, 1664.
5. An slight departing brings the day. Primer, 1706.
6. The wisdom of the heavenly Father, Truth divine. D. Wrench, 1820.
7. 'Twas at the solemn Matins'-hour. C. D. Aylward, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1864.

This hymn has often been tr. into German, and through the following has passed into English, viz.:—

Christus, der uns selig macht. A free tr., by M. Weiss, in the Neue geistg. Baseler, Jung Bernier, 1831, and thence in Wackernagel, iii. p. 203, and the Unv. Ges., 1851, p. 1. Of this tr. st. i. is altered to (1) "Christ, by whose all-saving Light," in J. C. Jacobi, 1745, p. 1 (1752, p. 24). (2) "Christ our blessed Saviour," in No. 103 in pt. ii., 1746, of the Moravian H. Bk., 1742. In the eds. 1748, 1789, 1801 it begins: "Christ our blessed Saviour, Who hast," and in later editions as mentioned, viz. 1, st. vii.:—"When the Lord of Glory died" (1849, No. 917), and st. viii. "Grant, O Christ, my God and Lord" (1886, No. 165). (3) "Christ the Author of our peace," by Miss Burlingham, in the British Herald, April, 1846, p. 248, and Reid's Praise Bk., 1872. [J. M.]

Patzke, Johann Samuel, was b. Oct. 24, 1727, at Frankfurt a. Oder, in the house of his grandfather, his father being an excise officer at Seelow, near Frankfurt. He entered the University of Frankfurt in 1748, and in 1751 went to Halle. After completing his studies he returned to Frankfurt as a candidate of Theology. In 1753, by the recommendation of the chief court preacher, F. S. G. Sack, of Berlin, he was appointed by the Margrave Heinrich von Schwedt, as pastor at Wormsfelde and Stolzenburg, near Landsberg on the Warthe. In 1758 he had to flee before the invasion of the Russian troops under General Fermor, and on his return found everything in desolation. In the beginning of 1759 he became pastor at Lietzen, near Frankfurt. Finally, by the recommendation of the Margrave, he was appointed, in 1762, preacher at the Church of the Holy Spirit, in Magdeburg, where he became, in 1769, pastor and senior of the Altstadt clergy. He d. at Magdeburg, Dec. 14, 1787 (Koch, vi. 293; Allg. Deutsche Biog. xxv. 238, &c.).

Patzke was a man of considerable talents and of a lovable nature. He was also very popular as a preacher. His poetical work began very early, his first volume of Gedichte appearing at Halle in 1750. His hymns appeared mostly in his weekly paper (the first of the kind in Magdeburg) entitled Der Greis, pub. from 1763 to 1769, and in his Musikalische Gedichte, Magdeburg and Leipzig, 1780. The latter contains a series of cantatas which had been set to music by Johann Heinrich Rolle, music director at Magdeburg, and performed during various seasons of winter concerts there. The only one of his hymns (over 20 in all) which has passed into English is:—

Lobt den Herrn! die Morgensonne. Morning. Pub. in 1780, as above, p. 75, in 3 st. of 4 l., as the opening hymn of his cantata, entitled Abel's Tod. Included, as No. 1075, in the Hallisches Gesangbuch of 1803. In 1771 Patzke's Abel's Tod was composed, set to music by Rolle, as Der Tod Abels, ein musikalisches Drama, at Leipzig, 1771; the hymn above being set p. 1, entitled "Hymn of Praise of the children of Adam (1780 ed. of Abel's Tod as above). The cantata is itself included in the 1780 ed. of Rolle's Musikalische Gedichte. In Zürich, April 1, 1784, J. C. Fäsi, of Zürich, March 5, 1787, which first appeared at Zürich in 1786, became exceedingly popular. It was in its various languages and translations included in upwards of 100 hymn-books and editions. The passage used by Patzke for his hymn is a portion of Bodi i., viz. a part of Abel's song of Praise, sung when he was in his bower with his wife Thirza, and which opens, "Wachet auf, erhebet von jedem Ang." (Bodi i. 5-7). Translated as follows:—

1. Praise the Lord, when blushing morning. This appears, without name of author, in the American Unitarian Cheshire Annus Cath., 1844, as No. 1081; and the Mc. of Hys., 1846, and in England in R. Cornelius's Ordo, 1866. It is in 4 st. of 4 l., being fairly close tr.
2. Praise the Lord, ye heavens adore us. Ib., &c., are practically original English stanzas.
3. Praise the Lord: the sun of morning. This is a full but free version by Dr. J. A. Seiss, as No. 61 in the Sunday School H. Bk., Philadelphia, 1875, of the Gen. Council of the Lutheran Ch. in America. [J. M.]

Paul the Deacon, a. of Warnefrid or Winnefrid, was b. at Friuli, in Italy, circa 720. He studied at Pavia. For some time he was tutor to Adelperga, daughter of Desiderius, the last of the Lombard kings, and then lived at the court of her husband, Archbishop of Benevento.

Eventually he became a monk at Monte Cassino, where he d. circa 799. He was the author of several works, including De Gest. Longobardorum. His hymn, "Ut queant laxis resonare fibris," in three parts, is annotated in full under it. [J. J.]

Paule doctor egregie. St. Peter Damiani. [St. Paul.] In Damiani's Opera, Paris, 1642, vol. iv. p. 11, entitled "On St. Paul the Apostle." Also in Daniel, i., No. 195; Migne, vol. 145, col. 942; Bässler, No. 82, &c. In the Hymnal N., 1854, the tr. is headed Tuba Daniels (q.v.) in error. Tr. as:—

Let Gentiles raise the thankful lay. By J. M. Neale, in the Hymnal N., 1854, No. 87, with the omission of st. ii. This is given in the Hymnary, 1872, as "To Thee, O God, we Gentiles pay," and in the Antiphoner and Grail, 1880, and the Hymnar, 1882 (with a tr. of st. ii.), as "From thee, illustrious Teacher, Paul." [W. A. S.]

Payson, Elizabeth. [Prentiss, E.]

Peabody, Oliver William Bourne, twin-brother of W. B. O. Peabody (see below), was b. at Exeter, New Hampshire, July 9, 1799; educated at Harvard College; followed the legal profession for a time; wrote for the press; was Professor of English Literature in Jefferson College, Louisiana (1842); and finally Unitarian Minister at Burlington, Vermont, where he d. July 5, 1847. [J. J.]

Peabody, William Bourne Oliver, D.D., twin-brother of the above, was b. at Exeter, New Hampshire, July 9, 1799, and educated in his native town and at Harvard College. Leaving Harvard in 1817, he taught for a year at an academy in Exeter, and then proceeded to study theology at the Cambridge Divinity School. He began to preach in 1819, and became the Pastor of the Unitarian Congregation at Springfield, Massachusetts, in October, 1820. This charge he held to his death on May 28, 1847. His Memoir (written by his brother) was pub. with the 2nd ed. of his Sermons, 1849; and his Literary Remains followed in 1850. "He was a man of rare accomplishments, and consummate virtue," whose loveliness of character impressed many outside his own sect. In 1823 he published a Poetical Catechism for the Young to which were appended some original hymns. He also edited The Springfield Collection of Hys. for Sacred Worship, Springfield, 1835. A few of his hymns also appeared in that collection. His hymns in C. U. are:—

1. Behold the western evening light. Death of the Righteous, or Autumn Evening. 1st pub. in his Catechism, 1823, No. 44, in 4 st. of 4 l., and again in his Hymns, 1824, No. 64. It is in C. U. in its original form; also as altered in the Sacred H. Bk., 1865; and again as altered by George Rawson in the Bap. Pr. & Hys., 1858, where it reads "Now softly on the western hills."
2. Hark! the notes of angel voices. Hymn of Nature. This is in Griswold's Poets and Poetry of America, in 6 st. of 4 l. This is thought by some to be the production of his brother Oliver (see above); but Putnam assigns it to William. It is given altered, viz. st. i. "Hark! the notes of angel voices, Softly rolling o'er the above," in the Boston Unitarian Hy. and Tune Bk., 1868, and others, begins with st. v.
3. O when the hours of life are past. The Hereafter. This hymn, in 8 st. of 4 l., was given in his Catechism, 1823, No. 45, and again in his Hymns, 1824, No. 63, as born of the Future State of Happiness. It is in use in its original form, and also altered as "When all the hours of life are past."
4. The moon is up: how calm and slow. Morning. A poem rather than a hymn, in 8 st. of 4 l., appended to his Catechism, 1823.
5. The sun is down in mists and milder skies. Spring. Appended to his Catechism, 1823, in 6 st. of 4 l.

The full texts of all these hymns are in Putnam's Singers and Songs of the Liberal Faith, Boston, U. S. A., 1875. [P. M. B.]

Peace be on this house bestowed. C. Wesley. [Household Peace desired.] This hymn, although beginning in a similar manner and on the same subject as the text below by Wesley, is altogether a different hymn. It was pub. in the Hys. & Sac. Poems, 1742, p. 157, in 3 st. of 8 l., and entitled "The Salutation." (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. ii. p. 213.) It was included in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 467, and has since passed into several Methodist collections. [J. J.]

Peace be to this habitation. C. Wesley. [Household Peace desired.] This is No. 35 of his "Hys. for Believers," which appeared in Hys. & Sac. Poems, 1742, vol. ii., in 9 st. of 8 l., and headed "On entering an House." (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. v. p. 93.) It is not in C. U. in its full form, but as follows:—

1. Peace be to this habitation. This, as given in Conder's ed., 1810, No. 194, was composed of st. i., ii. from this hymn (st. i. and vi.) altered, and st. iii. from C. Newton ("May the grace of Christ our Saviour"). This text, with slight changes, and the omission of the last line, is in the Rev. Baptist Dr. Rippon's Baptist hymn-book through Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825; Conder's Cong. H. Bk., 1836; the Bapt. Ps. & Hys., 1858, and others. The doxology in W. F. Stevenson's Hys. for Church and Home, 1873, is Conder's "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," given in the Cong. H. Bk., 1836, No. 155. It gives a stanza's metre to the hymn.
2. Peace be in this sacred dwelling. This, in the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, and others, is Conder's, 1836, No. 156, slightly altered. Another in the Christian Psalmist, 1825, again slightly altered to adapt it the better for Public Worship.
3. Peace be to this congregation. This is No. 1 with further changes. It is No. 25 in the American Unitarian Hy. and Tune Bk., 1868. The alteration of the first line is found in some of the earliest editions of the Lady Huntingdon Collection.

As these forms of the text are in extensive use, and as they differ somewhat widely from Wesley, we reprint sts. i. and vi. of his original:—

"Peace be to this habitation!
Peace from God our Father dear!
Peace, the foretaste of salvation,
Peace, the seal of cancell'd sin,
Peace that speaks in heavenly Giver,
Peace to earthly minds unknown,
Peace that lasts and lives for ever,
Here erect its glorious throne!

"Prince of peace, if Thou art ever
Pity to all our hearts Thy home,
By Thy best appearing clear us,
Quickly let Thy kingdom come:
Answer all our expectation,
Give our ragnarok souls to prove Glorious, uttermost salvation,
Perfect, universal love."

4. Visit, Lord, this habitation. In the Philadelphia Sel. of Hymns, 1841, this is composed of Wesley's st. i., ii. 1-4, st. iii., ii. 1-4; and st. vi. slightly altered. [J. J.]

Peace, doubting heart, my God's I am. C. Wesley. [Peace with God.] 1st pub. in Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1739, p. 153, in 7 st. of 6 l., and based upon Isaiah xlii. 1-3. (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. i. p. 135.) It was given in full in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 264, and subsequently in other Methodist collections. In addition it is found in some

Church of England hymn-books in 5 sts., a form given to it in Toplady's Ps. & Hys., 1776. Prec. it also the following hymns are derived:—

1. For ever nigh me, Father, stand. This in Martineau's Hymns, 1840 and 1873, is composed of st. iv., ii. and vi., slightly altered.

2. Still nigh me, O my Saviour, stand. This, in the Bap. Sel. of Hymns, 1858, No. 321, and the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, No. 1000, is st. iii. of this hymn, while st. ii. is st. xvi. of J. Wesley's Ps. from the German "Jesu, Thy boundless love to me."

G. J. Stevenson's note on Wesley's hymn in his Meth. H. Bk. Notes, 1883, p. 209, is of more than usual interest. [J. J.]

Peace, perfect peace, in this dark world of sin. Bp. E. H. Bickersteth. [Peace.] Written in 1875, and first printed in a small tract of five hymns (all by Bp. Bickersteth), entitled Songs in the House of Pilgrimage (Hampstead, J. Hewetson, N.D.), in 7 st. of 2 l. It is based upon the text, "Thou will keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee, because he trusteth in Thee," Isaiah xxvi. 3. It was given, without alteration, in the H. Comp., 1876; and has been repeated in numerous collections. It is also in the author's From Year to Year, 1883. In 1884 Bp. Bickersteth issued it, together with a companion hymn in the same metre on Prayer, printed on cardboard, as Prayer and Peace (Lond. Sampson Low). The hymn on Prayer begins "Pray, always pray, the Holy Spirit pleads." This was given in the author's Octave of Hymns, 1880, No. 1. [J. J.]

Peace that passeth understanding. J. Montgomery. [For Peace.] This hymn is dated on the original ms. ("M. MS.") "Sept. 20, 1827," and is indexed as having been copied and acut to many persons. The earliest printed form with which we have met is in Montgomery's Original Hymns, 1853, No. 245, in 3 st. of 8 l., and entitled "Invocation to Peace." It is in Kennedy, 1863, and other collections. [J. J.]

Pearce, Samuel, s. of a silversmith at Plymouth, was b. in that town, July 20, 1766. Early in life he joined the Baptist Church in Plymouth, and, showing gifts for the ministry, was invited to preach. After a course of study at the Baptist College, Bristol, he became, in 1790, pastor of the Baptist congregation in Cannon Street, Birmingham. There his ministry was remarkably successful; but after a brief and bright course he d. on Oct. 10, 1799. He was strongly disposed to foreign mission work, and was one of the founders of the Baptist Missionary Society, in 1792. His Memoirs, by A. Fuller, was pub. in 1800. Embodied in the Memoirs were eleven poetical pieces. In the 2nd ed., 1801, these pieces were grouped together at the end of the Memoirs. He is known to hymnology through the following hymns:—

1. Author of life, with grateful heart. Morning. This is the Meth. Free Church S. S. Bk., 1885, in its original with the omissions of st. iii., that noted on p. 887, ante, made for "Morning." Both are from the Memoirs, 1800.

2. God of our lives, our morning song. Morning. From the Memoirs, 1800, into the Meth. Free Church H. Bk., 1886, with the omission of st. ii.

3. Jesus, Thy blood and righteousness. Affection. "Given in a form," in the Memoirs, 1800, in 4 st. of 14 l. In the 1810 ed. of Rippon's Bap. Sel., 1800, it is given in another form of 3 st. of 6 l. This form has passed into modern hymnals.

4. Let us with a gracious welcome rise. Communion. Not in the Memoirs; but in Rippon's Sel., 1800, in 6 st. of 4 l.

5. Whene'er I look into Thy word. Sunday Morning. In the Memoirs, 1800, in 5 st. of 4 l. In the 10th ed. of Rippon's Sel., 1827, st. iv.–vi., slightly altered, were given as "Our precious Lord, or Saviour." [W. R. S.]

Pearse, Mark Guy, s. of Mark Guy Pearse, of Camborne, Cornwall, was b. at Camborne, Jan. 3, 1842, and educated for the Wesleyan ministry, which he entered in 1863. Mr. Pearse has held important and responsible appointments at Leeds, London, and Bristol, and is at present (1892) associated with the London West Central Wesleyan Mission. His publications number over twenty, in addition to numerous tracts on practical religious subjects, and have attained in several instances to great popularity, Daniel Quorm, and his Religious Notions, and John Trepennorth being specially well known. His hymns were mostly written in London in 1875, and were pub. in his little book The Child Jesus, 1875, each hymn having been suggested by one of a series of cartoons illustrative of the life of our Blessed Lord, pub. by the Wesleyan-Methodist Sunday S. Union. Of these hymns the following were included in The Methodist Sunday S. H. Bk., 1879 :—

1. Rested is the raging water wild. Season on the Temple.
2. O'er Bethlehem's hill, in time of old. Epiphany.
3. Servant, for Thy love we praise Thee. Epiphany.
4. The fierce wind howls about the hills. Flight into Egypt.

These hymns for children are of exceptional merit, and are worthy of attention. [J. J.]

Pearson, Charles Buchanan, M.A.; was b. about the year 1805, and was educated at Oriel College, Oxford, B.A. in honours 1828. Taking Holy Orders in 1830, he became Prebendary of Fordington in Salisbury Cathedral, 1832, and was Rector of Knebworth from 1838 to 1875. He d. Jan. 7, 1881. He was the author of Plain Sermons to a Country Congregation, 1839; Church Expression, 1853, &c. His Latin Translations of English Hys. appeared in 1862. His contributed versions of the Sarum Sequences to the tr. made by his son Albert Harford Pearson), of the Sarum Missal, which is entitled, The Sarum Missal in English, 1868. A number of these versions he afterwards revised and pub. in a separate volume (along with the original Latin), as Sequences from the Sarum Missal, 1871. Several of his versions passed into the Hymnary, 1871-72. [J. J.]

Pembroke, Countess of. [Sidney, Sir Philip.]

Pennefather, Catherine, née King, daughter of Admiral King, of Angley, was married Sept. 16, 1847, to the Rev. W. Pennefather (see below). Two of Mrs. Pennefather's hymns are in The Enlarged London H. Bk., 1873. (1) "I'm journeying through a desert world" (Heaven Anticipated); (2) "Not now, my child; a little more rough boating." 1863 (Working and Hoping). She d. Jan. 12, 1893. [J. J.]

Pennefather, William, B.A., s. of Richard Pennefather, Baron of the Irish

Court of Exchequer, was b. in Merrion Square, Dublin, Feb. 5, 1816. He resided for a time for educational purposes at Westbury College, near Bristol, and then at Levens Parsonage, near Kendal, Westmoreland. He entered Trinity College, Dublin, in Feb. 1832, and graduated B.A. in 1840. Taking Holy Orders in 1841, he became curate of Ballymascanlon, diocese of Kilmore. In July, 1844, he was pr. ferred to the Vicarage of Mullabrack, near Drogheda. In 1848 he removed to England, where he held successively the incumbency of Trinity Church, Walton, Aylesbury, 1848; of Christ Church, Barnet, 1852; and of St. Jude's, Mildmay Park, 1864. He d. April 30, 1873. His great work at Barnet and at Mildmay—the Conferences began at the former and continued at the latter place—the large religious and charitable organizations which he instituted and superintended, are matters of history. Full details are given of the rise and progress of these and his other works in his Life and Letters, 1878. His hymns were written mainly for the Barnet and Mildmay "Conferences," and were pub. sometimes as leaflets, and again, as for the Conference of 1872, as Hymns Original and Selected, By W. P. In this pamphlet there are 25 of his compositions. In the latter part of 1873 his Original Hymns and Thoughts in Verse were pub. posthumously. This work contains 71 pieces, but few of which are dated. Of these the following are given in a few hymnbooks:—

1. And may I really trust. Divine Worship.
2. Come, O Lord, to grace! Praise.
3. How shall we praise Thy name. Christian Communion. From this "O for ten thousand harps," is taken.
4. Jesus, in Thy blest name. Church Conferences.
5. Lo, we come to meet Thee. Divine Worship.
6. My blessed Jesus, Thou hast taught. Self Consecration.
7. O God of glorious majesty. For Retreats or Quiet Days.
8. O Jesus, Thy coming kingdom. The Second Advent desired.
9. O holy, holy Father. Divine Worship.
10. O Lord, with one accord. Divine Worship.
11. O Saviour! we adore Thee. Jesus the Faithful One.
12. Once more with chastened joy. Divine Worship.
13. Praise God, ye seraphs bright. Praise.
14. The foremost and foremost stand. Communion of Saints.
15. Yon shining shore is nearer. Heaven anticipated.

Mr. Pennefather's hymns possess much beauty and earnest simplicity; are rich in evangelical sentiment and doctrine; and are much more musical than is usual with lyrics of their class. They deserve greater attention than they have hitherto received. [J. J.]

Pentecostarion Charmosynon, The. [Greek Hymnody, § xiv.]

People of the living God. J. Montgomery. [On Turning to God.] In Hatfield's Poets of the Church, N.Y., 1884, p. 440, the author says, "At the close of 1814, he [Montgomery] was publicly recognised, at Fulneck, as a brother in the Lord, and a member of the [Moravian] Society. It was in all probability on this occasion that he wrote his beautiful and popular hymn beginning with 'People of the living God.'" This uncertainty in Hatfield's work becomes certainty in S. W. Duffield's English Hymns, N. Y., 1886, p. 455, where he says, "This hymn describes Montgomery's feelings at the prospect of being readmitted to the Moravian communion at Fulneck, November 4th, 1814." In Holland's Memoirs of Montgomery, pub. in 1854, the full details of Montgomery's application to the Moravian community at Fulneck, the consent of the authorities there, and his admission in Dec., 1814, are given, but neither there nor elsewhere in the Memoir is any reference made to this hymn. The original ms. is not amongst the M. mss., nor is there anything at our command which can fix the date of its appearance until 1819, when it was included in Cotterill's Sel. as No. 160, in 3 st. of 8 l., and headed, "Choosing the portion of God's heritage." Although therefore we cannot say positively, with Duffield, that it was written at the period when Montgomery joined the Moravians at Fulneck, in Dec., 1814, yet we are prepared to admit with Hatfield that it was in all probability written at that time. The text was repeated from Cotterill's Sel. in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 466, and in his Original Hymns, 1853, No. 51. The use of this hymn is extensive. [J. J.]

Perpetual Source of Light and Grace. P. Doddridge. [Inconstancy in Religion lamented.] This hymn is No. 74 in the 3 mss., and undated, but is found between other hymns dated respectively, "Jan. 15, 1725," and "Jan. 1, 1726," thus fixing the date as 1726. It was given, without alteration, in Job Orton's posthumous edition of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1755, as No. 151, in 6 sts. of 4 l., with the heading "Inconstancy in Religion. Hosea vi. 4," and again, with slight changes, in J. D. Humphreys's edition of the same, 1839, No. 170. It is in a few modern collections, including Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1840 and 1873. In a few collections it begins "Eternal Source of Light and Grace." [J. J.]

Perronet, Edward. The Perronets of England, grandfather, father, and son, were French emigrés. David Perronet came to England about 1690. His son was of the refugee Pastor Perronet, who had chosen Switzerland as his adopted country, where he ministered to a Protestant congregation at Chateau D'Oex. His son, Vincent Perronet, M.A., was a graduate of Queen's College, Oxford, though his name is not found in either Anthony Wood's Athenæ Oxonienses nor his Fasti, nor in Bliss's apparatus of additional notes. He became, in 1728, Vicar of Shoreham, Kent. He is imperishably associated with the Evangelical Revival under the Wesleys and Whitefield. He cordially cooperated with the movement, and many are the notices of him scattered up and down the biographies and Journals of John Wesley and of Selina, Countess of Huntingdon. He lived to the venerable age of ninety-one; and pathetic and beautiful is the account of John Wesley's later visits to the white-haired saint (b. 1693, d. May 9, 1785).* His son Edward was b. in 1726. He was first educated at home under a tutor, but whether he proceeded to the University (Oxford) is uncertain. Born,

* Agnes's Protestant Exiles from France in the Reign of Louis XIV. confounds Vincent the father with Edward his son.

baptized, and brought up in the Church of England, he had originally no other thought than to be one of her clergy. But, though strongly evangelical, he had a keen and searching eye for defects. A characteristic note to The Mitre, in referring to a book called The Dissenting Gentleman's answer to the Rev. Mr. Wilde, thus runs:—"I was born, and am like to die, in the tottering communion of the Church of England; but I despise her nonsense; and thank God that I have once read a book that no fool can answer, and that no honest man will" (p. 235). The publication of The Mitre is really the first prominent event in his life. A copy is preserved in the British Museum (995a. 21), with title in the author's holograph, and MS. notes; and on the fly-leaf this:—"Capt. Bolingbro, from his oblig'd and most respectful humble servt. The Author. London, March 29th, 1737." The title is as follows:—The Mitre; a Sacred Poem (1 Samuel ii. 30). London: printed in the year 1737. This strangely overlooked satire is priceless as a relic of contemporary ecclesiastical opinion and sentiment. It is pungent, salted with wit, gleams with humour, hits off vividly the well-known celebrities in Church and State, and is well wrought in picked and packed words. But it is a curious production to have come from a "true son" of the Church of England. It roused John Wesley's hottest anger. He demanded its instant suppression; and it was suppressed (Atmore's Methodist Memorial, p. 300, and Tyerman, ii. 240–44, 264, 265); and yet it was at this period the author threw himself into the Wesleys' great work. But evidences abound in the letters and journals of John Wesley that he was intermittently rebellious and vehement to even his revered leader's authority. Earlier, Edward Perronet shared all obloquy as a Methodist. In 1749 Wesley enters in his diary:—

"Went from Rochdale west to Bolton, and soon found that the Rochdale lions were lambs in comparison with those of Bolton. Edward Perronet was thrown down and rolled in mud and mire. Stones were hurled and windows broken" (Tyerman's Life and Times of the Rev. John Wesley, M.A., 3 vols., 1870; vol. ii. 87).

In 1750 John Wesley writes:

"Charles and you [Edward Perronet] behave as I want you to do; but you cannot, or will not, preach where I desire. This is the sum of the whole matter. Charles and they do not behave as I want them to do. I have a fine time between the one and the other. I think Charles and you have in the general a right sense of what it is to serve us soon in the gospel; and if all our helpers had the same, we should be happy men. I have received a letter both in England and Ireland. I have not one preacher with me, and not six in England, whom wills my brethren to serve me" (Ibid. ii. 68, and Whitehead's Life of Wesley, ii. 258).

In 1750 arrangements to meet the emergency created by its own success had to be made for Methodism. As one result, both Edward and Charles Perronet broke loose from John Wesley's law that none of his preachers or "helpers" were to dispense the Sacraments, but were still with their flocks to attend the parish churches. Edward Perronet asserted his right to administer the Sacraments as a divinely-called preacher (Ibid. ii. 200). At that time he was resident at Canterbury, "in a part of the archbishop's old palace" (ibid. ii. 259). In season and out of season he "evangelized." Onward, he became one of the Countess of Huntingdon's "ministers." In a chapel in Watling Street, Canterbury. Throughout he was passionate, impulsive, strong-willed; but always lived near his divine Master. The student-reader of Lives of the Wesleys will be "taken captive" by those passages that ever and anon introduce him. He bursts in full of fire and enthusiasm, yet ebullient and volatile. In the close of his life he is found as an Independent or Congregational pastor of a small church in Canterbury. He must have been in easy worldly circumstances, as his will shows. He d. Jan. 2, 1792, and was buried in the cloisters of the great cathedral, Jan. 8. His Hymns were published anonymously in successive small volumes. First of all came Select Passages of the Old and New Testament versified; London: Printed by H. Cock, MDCCLVI. The British Museum copy of this extremely rare little book has the ms. inscription on verso of title, "Cant° E. Perronet return'd after a Detention of 16 y^rs with several o^rs from A. J. A. on Sat. Ap. [rest turned in by the binder] 1774." A second similar volume is entitled A Small Collection of Hymns, &c., Canterbury: printed to the year MCCLXXXII. His most important volume was the following:—Occasional Verses, sacred and sacred. Published for the instruction and amusement of the Candidly Serious and Religious. London, printed for the Editor: And Sold by J. Buckland in Paternoster Row; and T. Sedlick, in the City Road, Moorfields, MDCCLXXXIV.: pp. 216 (12°). [The Brit. Mus. copy has the two earlier volumes bound up with this.] The third hymn in this scarce book is headed, "On the Resurrection," and is, "All hail the power of Jesus' name": p. 42, i. But there are others of almost equal power and of more thorough workmanship. In my judgment, "The Lord is King" (Psalm xcvi. 10) is a great and noble hymn. It commences:—

"Ye kingdoms of the world, proclaim
The Lord Jehovah's reign;
Adore the co-eternal Word,
And shout, the Lord is King."

Very fine also is "The Master's Yoke—the Scholar's Lesson," Matthew xi. 29, which thus opens:—

"O Great me, Lord, that sweet consent
That exceeds every state,
Which no internal Stars can rent,
Nor outward fires abate."

A sacred poem is named "The Wayfaring Man: a Parody" (pp. 26, 27); and another, "The Goldfish: a Parody." The latter has one splendid line on the Cross. "I long to share the glorious shame." "The Tempest" is striking, and ought to be introduced into our hymnals; and also "The Conflict or Conquest over the Conqueror, Genesis xxxii. 24" (pp. 30, 31). Still finer is "Thoughts on Hebrews xi.," opening:—

"Awake my soul—arise!
And run the heavenly race;
Look up to Him who holds the prize,
And offers thee His grace."

"A Prayer for Mercy on Psalm cxix. 94," is very striking. On faith lxv. 19 (pp. 45, 46), is strong and unmistakable. "To Sinner's Resolution," and "Thoughts on Matthew viii. 2," and on Mark x. 51, rows than worthy of being reclaimed for use. Perronet is a poet as well as a pre-eminently successful hymn-writer. He always sings as well as prays. It may be added that the brief paraphrase after Ovid, p. 62, given below, seems to echo the well-known lines in Gray's immortal elegy:—

"How many a gem unseen of human eyes,
Emmet! in earth, a sparkling entirys lies;
How many a rose, neglected as the grass,
Wastes its sweet blushes on the desert air!
So many a mind, that might a nation shine,
Had or its genius or its friend been known;
Whose want of all from some scattered land,
Still haunts the shade, or quits its native land."
[A. B. G.]

Peter of St. Maurice (Petrus Mauritius), also called Peter of Cluny (Petrus Cluniensis), or Peter the Venerable (Petrus Venerabilis), Abbot, was b. 1092 or 1094 (Trench, Sac. Lat. Poetry, 1874, p. 101) of a noble family (the Comtes of St. Maurice) in Auvergne ("Nobili genere natus fuit noster in Arvernis": Lepaer, Hist. Poem. Med. Ævi, p. 493). Beginning life as a soldier, he afterwards became a Benedictine monk, and on the death of Hugh, Prior of Marcigny, who had but three months before been elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the better known Pontius, Peter was elected Abbot of the celebrated monastery of his order at Cluny, in 1122. From this time much of his life was spent in controversy, a summary of which is an interesting piece of Ecclesiastical history.

Pontius, by his arrogance, in claiming an Abbot of Cluny, the title of "Abbot of Abbots," had raised up a cloud of opponents to his pretensions, and the matter had been carried to Rome. Innocent II. was Pope, and Sir Peter had scarcely been three years installed as Abbot, when Pontius established himself as head of another religious community at Trevins, in Italy, whence he started with a train of monks, and, taking advantage of the absence of Peter, entered the Abbey and took forcible possession of its old position at Cluny, and down ran the friends of Peter, with the Prior St. Bernard at their head. After great excesses had been committed by the usurper and his followers, and the villages and estates of the Abbey had been ravaged, Peter, by the authority of Pope Innocent II. summoned all parties to Rome, and, having heard both sides, decided in favour of Peter, excommunicated Pontius and imprisoned him in a dungeon, where he died a few months afterwards.

The Pontius difficulty had been settled, another dispute arose, in which the monks of Cluny, or Cluniacs, accused those of Cluny of an undue relaxation of the rule of their order. Robert, a cousin of St. Bernard, had become a monk at Clairvaux, but, finding the rule there too galling, had migrated to Cluny, and, on an appeal to Rome, had been supported by Peter. This was the occasion of the chagrin of St. Bernard, who, as the Cistercian head of Clairvaux, vehemently attacked the milder discipline of the Benedictine Cluny. Robert, in consequence of his appeal to Rome, was excommunicated by St. Bernard, but his monks, resenting such a tame surrender, put Wibalde, the Abbot of St. Thierry, near Rheims, to write a sharp letter of remonstrance to St. Bernard. The reply of the latter accusing the Cluniacs of all sorts of declensions from the rule, and of unwarrantable luxury, drew a severe rejoinder from Peter as characteristic of "that gentle forbearance and love of peace" of the latter, "which made him stand out conspicuous in his generation, when each man sought his own, or the things of his order, not the things of Jesus Christ" (Neander, Life of St. Bernard, Bohn's ed., December, p. 344), as the attack on St. Bernard's part was of his party, yet not altogether unfriendly, vehemence of invective.

In a subsequent controversy between St. Bernard and Peter, in which the latter defended the election of Hugh, son of the Duke of Burgundy, to succeed the see of Langres, when vacant in 1138, for a Cluniac monk. The Archbishop of Lyons consecrated Hugh's nominee in the teeth of St. Bernard's opposition, but Innocent II. refused to ratify the consecration of the new bishop which Peter could make, the Pope, who was wholly under the influence of St. Bernard, pronounced the consecration of the Cluniac monk void, and the Prior of Clairvaux, a cousin of St. Bernard's, was consecrated in his stead.

Once more the gentle Peter came into collision with the vehement Bernard, but this time the victory was his last. The latter had been condemned, if not altogether unheard, at any rate misunderstood, by the Council of Sens upon charges of heresy brought against him by St. Bernard, and the sentence upon him had been confirmed by Innocent II. Peter, the friend and protector of the persecuted Abelard, silenced and broken down, took refuge at Cluny on his way to Rome, and remained there for some two years, during which Peter so far won upon the victorious Bernard as to bring about a reconciliation between him and Abelard, and to effect a reconciliation, which allowed Bernard still to do his utmost to set the minds of men against his old adversary. The peaceful death of Abelard at Cluny in 1142 finally terminated his controversy.

Of the letters of Peter, many of the correspondence between St. Bernard and Peter on the subject of the two reforms, in which the latter takes credit for a warm love for the Cistercians, and contains his correspondence of the monks that here last witnessed in the question of the election of Hugh to the Archbishopric of Lyons, the appointment of Cluny to the Clunian monks, which had led to a keen controversy and many appeals; as well as in the matter about the Bishops of Langres. It was at this time that Peter sent to St. Bernard a copy of the Koran, with this letter, which Peter had caused to be made by Robert, an Englishman, but Archdeacon of Pamplona.

Peter was in high favour with Popes Celestine II. and Lucius II., and in 1145, in common with St. Bernard, was active in the endeavours to induce the people of the Jews to join in the crusade which had received from the preaching of St. Bernard against the infidels. But though Peter appealed to Louis VII. to stay the massacre, it must be said that he made no effort to prevent the plunder of the Jews.

The only other matter in which Peter was interested and engaged was that of Peter of Bruys, who founded a sect holding tenets strongly tinged with Manichæism, and was burnt alive by a zealous Catholic mob early in the twelfth century. A letter strongly condemning the heretic, his followers, and his opinions is still extant. Peter died at Cluny, Dec. 25, 1156, or Jan. 2, 1157, and Eugenius III., a member of St. Bernard, was Pope, and gave an account of Eugenius to St. Bernard by letter.

The rest of Peter's life was spent at Cluny, where he d. early in 1156 or 1157, leaving the impression behind him of "one of the most attractive figures which monastic and mediæval history presents to us" (S. Baring-Gould's Lives of the Saints, Dec., p. 281). Lacking the fire and power of his great antagonist and correspondent, he succeeded by the gentleness and imperturbability of his disposition in gaining and retaining an influence in the religious world second only to that of St. Bernard. His writings were chiefly controversial, and the poetry which he wrote was great neither in quantity nor quality. Amongst his latter were (1) Rhythmical Hymns, Prayers, Verses, and Hymns contained in the Bibliotheca Cluniacensis, 1614; (2) A Hymn on the "Translation of St. Benedict"—"Claris conjubila Gallia curribus," in the Bibliotheca Floriacensis, 1605; and (3) An "Epitaph on Peter Abelard." From the first collection, Archbishop Trench gives two specimens: (a) On Christ's Nativity, "Cœlum gaude, terra plaude," and (b) on the Resurrection of our Lord, "Mortis portis fractis fortis" (See Lat. Poetry, 1874, p. 102), both of which have been translated. See Latin, Tra. from the, p. 433, ii.
[D. S. W.]

Peter the Venerable. {Peter of St. Maurice.}

Peters, Mary, née Bowly, daughter of Richard Bowly, of Cirencester, was b. in 1813, and subsequently married to the Rev. John McWilliam Peters, sometime Rector of Quenington, Gloucestershire, and d. at Clifton,

July 23, 1856. Her prose work, The World's History from the Creation to the Accession of Queen Victoria, was pub. in seven volumes. Several of her hymns were contributed to the Plymouth Brethren's Ps., Hys., and Spiritual Songs, Lond., D. Walther, 1842. These with others, 58 in all, were pub. by Nisbet & Co., London, 1847, as Hys. intended to help the Communion of Saints. Dr. Walker introduced several from these collections into his Cheltenham Ps. & Hys., 1855. Many of these have been repeated in Stopp's Songs of G. & G., 1872, and other Church of England hymn-books. These include, besides those annotated under their respective first lines :—

1. From Psalms, Hymns, & S. S., 1842 :—

1. Blessed Lord, our hearts are panting. Burial. Given in later collections as "Blessed Lord, our souls are longing."

2. How can there be one holy thought! Holiness through Christ.

3. Jesus, how much Thy Name unfolds. The Name of Jesus.

4. O Lord, we see the day approaching. Second Advent.

5. O Lord, we know it matters not. Thought by the Spirit.

6. The murmurs of the wilderness. Praise to Jesus.

7. The saints are little deprived already. Heaven. Unaltered in all collections from the Brethren's.

8. Whom have we, Lord, but Thee. Christ all in all.

10. With thankful hearts we meet, O Lord. Public Worship.

11. From her Hymns, &c., 1847 :—

11. Earth's fetters fall, they will perish. Burial.

14. Enquire, my soul, enquire. Second Advent.

15. Hallelujah, we are hastening. Journeying Homewards.

17. Holy Father, we address Thee. Holy Trinity. Thomas, of Thee we never would tire. Holy Communion.

18. Lord Jesus, in Thy Name alone. Holy Communion.

19. Lord, through the desert drear and wide. Prayer for Perseverance.

20. Many seem to glory bring. Security in Christ.

21. O Lord, whilst we confess the words. Israel in Christ. Sometimes it begins with st. ii., "Dead to the World we once were."

22. Our God in light, we do not go. Christ the Guide.

23. Praise ye the Lord, again, again. Public Worship.

24. Salvation to our God. Pentecostal.

25. The holiest we enter. Public Worship. Sometimes given as "The holiest now we enter."

26. Through the love of God our Saviour. Security in Christ.

28. Thy grace, O Lord, to us hath shown. Offertory.

29. We're pilgrims in the wilderness. Life a Pilgrimage. [J. J.]

Petersen, Johann Wilhelm, was b. June 1, 1649, at Osnabrück: his father Georg Petersen, Kanzlei-beamter at Lübeck, having gone to reside at Osnabrück as representing Lübeck in the negotiations which ended in the Peace of Westphalia. Petersen matriculated at the University of Giessen, in 1669; went in 1671 to Rostock, and was then for short periods at Leipzig, Wittenberg, and Jena; the degree of M.A. being conferred on him by Giessen in absentia. He returned to Giessen in 1673, and began to lecture on philosophy and rhetoric as a privat docent. About 1675 he visited Spenser, at Frankfurt. This proved an important turning-point in his life. In 1677 he began to lecture at Rostock, as Professor of Poetry (D.D. from Rostock 1686), but in the same year accepted the pastorate of the St. Aegidien church at Hannover. He was then, in May, 1678, appointed by Duke August Friedrich of Holstein, as Court preacher at Eutin, and general superintendent of the diocese of Lübeck. In Advent, 1688, he became pastor of St. John's church and superintendent at Lüneburg. Here he made himself obnoxious to his fellow clergy by refusing to take fees for hearing confessions; received into his house Franklin Rosamunde Juliana von Asseburg, and began publicly to teach her ideas of the Millennial Kingdom. Being accused of Chiliasm and having his opinions condemned by the theological faculty of Helmstädt, he was removed from his office in the end of January, 1692. Thereafter he resided at various places, made tours over Germany, during which he propagated his views, and expounded his peculiar doctrines by books and pamphlets. He finally bought a small estate at Thymer, near Zerbst, and d. there, Jan. 31, 1727 (Koch vi. 121; Allg. Deutsche Biog. xxv. 508, &c.).

Apart from his importance as a theological writer, Petersen is remembered as the author of 3 hymns. A considerable number of them are in Latin, his wo. being entitled Cithara sacra. Of these he contributed 7 to Freylinghausen's Geist-reiches G. B., 1704. Two of these have passed into English, viz.: (1) "Ich bin das Brod der Welt," in 1704, as "Christ is the world's true bread," &c.; (2) "Ich ruf zu dir, Herr Jesu Christ," in 1704, as "To Thee, O Jesus Christ, I call." His German hymns were pub. as (1) Blumen aus Zion, in two parts, Halle, 1694 and 1701 (Wernigerode Library). These are hymns in prose and not versions of the Psalter; and 8 passed into the Gesangbuch of 1741. (2) Neue Lieder-Kunst auf Zion, n. d. 1701 (Brit. Mus. and Wernigerode). These are obscure, mystical, and diffuse, and do not appear to have come at all into use. (3) Others of his hymns appeared in the Pietistic hymn-books of the period, 1675-1704. One of the last class is tr. into English, viz.:—

Lieber Jesu, lieben Leben. Spiritual Watchfulness. In A. Lappius's Auserlesig Singender Christen Mund, Wesel, 1685, p. 16, in 5 st., repeated in Praxis Pietatis Melica, Frankfurt, 1692, p. 1, and in Freylinghausen, 1704, No. 614. Tr. as, "Jesus, Lord of life and glory," 1st st., as No. 1199 in the Suppl. of 1868 to the Moravian H. Bk., 1841 (1866, No. 996). [J. M.]

Petri laudes exequamur. [St. Peter.] In J. Merlo Horst's Paradisus animæ christianæ, Cologne, 1644, sect. ii. p. 116, as a "Rhythmical hymn on St. Peter the Apostle," briefly embracing his life and character." Repeated in later eds. of the Paradisus. Tr. as :—

O sing the great apostle. By F. Oakeley, in his tr. of Horst's Paradisus, as the Paradise of the Christian Soul, Lond., Burns, 1850, p. 137 (ed. 1877, p. 137), in 45 st. of 4 l. Of these 8 st. were given in the 1863 ed. of the Appendix to the Hymnal N., and again in the People's H., 1867, as "Sing we the praise of Peter." [J. M.]

Petrum, tyranne, quid catenis obruis. Jean Baptiste de Santeuil. [St. Peter.] Appeared in the Cluniac Breviary, 1686, p. 1026, in his Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, p. 49 (ed. 1698, p. 134), and the Paris Breviary, 1736. In the Paris Brev. it is the hymn at Lauds on the Feast of St. Peter's Chains, Aug. 1st. In later French Breviaries it is also given for the same feast. The text is in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

Where the prison bars surround him. By I. Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 236, in 8 7.8.7.4.7. In the Hymnary, 1872, it is altered to 6 of 8.7., and st. iii. is also omitted. [J. J.]

Pfefferkorn, Georg Michael, was b. March 16, 1645, at Ilta, near Creuzburg on the Werra, where his father, G. M. Pfefferkorn (a native of Creuzburg, but never pastor there), had become pastor in 1619, held the living for 58 years, but finally retired and d. at Creuzburg. After studying at the Universities of Jena (M.A. 1660) and Leipzig, Pfefferkorn was for a short time private tutor at Allenburg, and then in 1668, became master of the two highest forms in the Gymnasium at Altenburg. In 1674, he was appointed by Duke Ernst the Pious, of Gotha (who d. March 26, 1675), as a tutor to his three sons. In 1676 Duke Friedrich I. appointed him pastor of Fröman, near Gotha, and in 1682 made him a member of the consistory and superintendent at Gräfen-Tonna, near Gotha. He d. at Gräfen-Tonna, March 3, 1702 (Allg. Deutsche Biog. xxv. 619; MS. from Pastor H. Henning, Superintendent at Creuzburg, &c.).

Pfeffern's hymns appeared in the hymn-books of the period, and in his Poetisch-Philologische Rad- und Werkers- Last darinnen allerhand feine Deutscher Gedichte, &c., Altenburg, 1687 (Berlin Library), and the second enlarged ed., Altenburg, 1699 (Göttingen Library). The most important hymns associated with his name are (1) "Ich bin das Brod der Welt" (see p. 320, i.). Another hymn ascribed to him is :—

Was frag ich nach der Welt, Und allen ihren Schätzen. Renunciation of the World. According to J. Avenarius, in his Andenkenklausur, Leipzig, 1714, p. 1, this hymn was written by Pfefferkorn in 1668, but in Goedeke's Grundriss it is said, however, to be Gedichte, as above, either in 1687 or 1699. It is included, without his name, in the Geistreicher Gesangbuch G. B., Altenstein, 1871, p. 618; and, with his name, in Knapp's Evangelischer Liederschatz, 1865, p. 1, &c. In the Berlin MS. of 1745, No. 3, p. 2. It is founded on 1 John ii. 15-17, and is in 8 st. of 8 l., 1 st to each st. beg., "Was frag ich nach der Welt."

The only tr. is: "Can I this world esteem," by tr. H. Mills, 1845 (1856, p. 181). [J. M.]

Pfeil, Christoph Carl Ludwig, Baron von, was b. January 20, 1712, at Grünstadt, near Worms, where his father, Quirin Heinrich v. Pfeil, was then in the service of the Count of Leiningen. He matriculated at the University of Halle in 1728, as a student of law. After completing his course at the University of Tübingen, he was appointed, in 1735, Würtemberg secretary of legation at Regensburg; then, in 1737, Justiz- und Regierungsrath at Stuttgart; in 1745 Tutelar-raths-Präsident; in 1755 Kreisdirectorialgesandter to the Swabian Diet; in 1758 Geheim Legationsrath; and in 1759 Geheimrath. He found himself however at last no longer able to co-operate in carrying out the absolutism of the Würtemberg prime minister Count Montmartin. When his resignation was accepted, April 13, 1763, he retired to the estate of Dautlestetten, near Creilsheim, which he had purchased in 1761. In Sept., 1763, he was appointed by Frederick the Great as Geheimrath, and accredited Prussian minister or ambassador to the Diets of Swabia and Franconia. He was thereafter created Baron by the Emperor Joseph II., and in 1765 received the cross of the Red Eagle Order from Frederick the Great. An intermittent fever which developed itself in August, 1783, confined him to bed, where he remained till his death, at Dautlestetten, Feb. 14, 1784 (Koch v. 176; Allg. Deutsche Biog. xxv. 646).

v. Pfeil was a man of deep and genuine piety. His hymns appeared in the Gesangbuch of the Herrnhut Gemeine which he experienced on the 16th S. after Trinity, 1736; and it continued to be a favourite occupation, especially in his later years at Dautlestetten. He was one of the most productive of German hymn-writers, his printed hymns being about 600, besides many in MS. His Pietist versions of 1747 are noted under Paulsen, I. Christ.

German. The other hymns printed in his lifetime appeared in Mk (1) Lieder von der allgemeinen Brüderliebe und Zukunft des Herrn, Basingen, 1741, 2nd ed. Memmingen, 1748, as Apostolische Lieder von der, &c. (2) Evangelisches Gesangbuch, Memmingen, 1766, with 264 hymns dating from 1739 to 1791, edited by J. G. Pfeil, and (3) Evangelisches Gesangbuch zur öffentlichen Gottesverehrung, Dinkelsbühl, 1784, with 340 hymns dating from 1743 to 1785. In recent times a number of his hymns have come into German use (they originally appeared, it must be remembered, during the Rationalistic Period), and Knapp includes 10 of them in his Ev. L. S., 1865, and Schöberlein 9 in his Schatz, &c.

1. An Gruß der Christen singet man. Burial. Written in 1746. 1st pub. in No. 3, 1763, as above, p. 201, in 18 st., entitled, "Wo sing Zephilla of Victory at the grave of the righteous: the right hand of the Lord hath the victory." Repeated in Knapp, 1837, No. 1, p. 2, and 1865, No. 1455. Tr. as, "The Christian's grave is a joy we see," by Dr. G. Walker, 1860, p. 111.

2. Wahl einen Raum, du Jesus Christ. Family Prayer. 1st pub. in No. 2, 1762, as above, No. 61, in 8 st. of 4 l., entitled, "Delightful picture of a house that serves the Lord. On the Parsons of Jesus." It was repeated in Knapp, 1837, No. 2, and in Schöberlein, 1846. In the Gen. L. B., 1851, No. 443. Tr. as :—

Oh blest the house, whate'er befall. A good tr., omitting st. ii., vi., by Miss Winkworth, in Ger. C. B. for England, 1863, No. 173. Including, omitting the 1st, st. iii., iv., and adding a tr. of st. vi., as No. 344 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880. [J. M.]

Phelan, Charlotte Elizabeth. (Tuam, C. & I.)

Phelps, Sylvanus Dryden, D.D., was b. at Suffield, Connecticut, May 15, 1816, and educated at Brown University, where he graduated in 1841. In 1846 he became pastor of the first Baptist Church, New Haven. Dr. Phelps is the Editor of The Christian Secretary, Hartford. His publications include, Eloquence of Nature, and Other Poems, 1842; Sunlight and Heartlight, 1856; the Poet's Song, 1867, &c. He is the author of the following hymns :—

1. Christ, Who came my soul to save. Holy Baptism.
2. Did Jesus weep for me? Lent.
3. Saviour, Thy dying love. Communion.
4. Sweet is the work, my God. Home Missions.
5. This rite our Great Redeemer gave. Holy Baptism.

Of these Nos. 1 and 4 appeared in the Baptist ed. of the Plymouth Coll., 1857; Nos. 2 and 5 in the Baptist Devotional H. Bk., 1864; and No. 3 in Gospel Hys., 1st series, and Laudes Domini, 1884. [F. M. B.]

Phillimore, Greville, M.A., was b. in 1821 and educated at Westminster, the Charterhouse, and Christ Church, Oxford (B.A. 1842). Taking Holy Orders in 1843, he became Vicar of Down-Ampney, Cricklade, Gloucestershire, in 1851, Rector of Henley-on-Thames, 1867, and of Rowlinc, 1883. He d. Jan. 20, 1884. His Parochial Sermons were pub. in 1856. He was joint editor with H. W. Beadon and J. E. Woodford (afterwards Bishop of Ely) of The Parish Hymn Book, 1863 (195 hymns), and the enlarged, ed., 1875 (274 hymns). The first ed. of this collection was one of the first hymn-books which gave Dr. Neale's rrs. of Greek hymns for congregational use. To the 1863 ed. Mr. Phillimore contributed the following hymns, several of which have been repeated in other collections :—

1. Christ, through grief and toil we come. Epiphany
2. Lord, in Thy Name Thy servants sky. Good Friday Evening and Easter Eve.
3. Every morning they are new. (See p. 320, i.)
4. Lonely in her virgin home. Annunciation of the B. V. M.
5. O fear not, little flock. Security of the Church on

894 ΦΩΣ ΙΛΑΡΟΝ ΑΓΙΑΣ ΔΟΞΗΣ ΦΩΣ ΙΛΑΡΟΝ ΑΓΙΑΣ ΔΟΞΗΣ

4. O God, before the sun's bright beams. Morning. 7. O God, the weary pack of life. Public Worship.
8. O Lord of health and life, what tongue can tell. Baptism.
9. Peace be in the house of death. Evening, or Anticipation of Death.
10. Saul, why such furious hate, such blinded zeal? Conversion of St. Paul.
11. Thou art gone up on high, Why pass they, &c. Ascension.

In addition some of Mr. Phillimore's trs. from the Latin were given in the 1863 ed. of the Parish H. Bk.; and other original hymns which are annotated under their respective first lines. His hymn for Saints Days, "O Lord of glory, King of saints," was included in the 1875 ed. of that collection. Phillimore's Sermons and Hys. were pub. in 1884. [J. J.]

Φῶς ἱλαρὸν ἁγίας δόξης. The author of this hymn, which is found in the Service Book of the Greek Church as a Vesper Hymn, is unknown. It was quoted by St. Basil in the 4th century as of unknown authorship and date (De Sp. Sancto ad Amphilochium, c. 29). Its earliest printed form is in Archbishop Usher's De Symbolis, 1647, his text being taken from two Greek MSS., one supposed to be of the 12th, and the second of the 14th century. Routh also gives it in his Reliqu. Sacr. iii. 299, and Daniel in his Thes. Hymn. iii. p. 5. The form in which the original is printed varies in different works, as in the Lyra Apostolica, 1836, p. 74 (ed. 1875, p. 78); Littledale's Offices, &c., of the Holy Eastern Church, 1863, p. 277, but the text is the same. It is as follows, from Daniel :—

Φῶς ἱλαρὸν ἁγίας δόξης,
Ἀθανάτου Πατρὸς οὐρανίου,
Ἁγίου, μάκαρος,
Ἰησοῦ Χριστέ,
Ἐλθόντες ἐπὶ τὴν ἡλίου δύσιν,
Ἰδόντες φῶς ἑσπερινόν,
Ὑμνοῦμεν Πατέρα, καὶ Υἱόν, Καὶ Ἅγιον Πνεῦμα Θεόν.
Ἄξιόν σε ἐν πᾶσι
Καίρίοις ὑμνεῖσθαι φωναῖς
Υἱὲ Θεοῦ,
Ζωὴν ὁ δίδοις διὸ
Ὁ κόσμος σε δοξάζει.

This hymn was sung in the ancient Church at the Lighting of the Lamps, and hence is known as "The Candlelight Hymn." Its modern use as a translated hymn is at Evensong. It may be added that in modern Greek liturgical books it is attributed to Sophronius (see Greek Hymnody, § vi.), thirteen of whose compositions are given in Daniel iii. pp. 39–46.

Translations in C. U. :—

1. Hail! gladdening Light, of His pure glory poured. By J. Keble. This tr. appeared in the British Magazine, 1834; and again, together with the Greek text, in Lyra Apostolica, 1836, p. 75, in 1 st. of 10 l., and signed γ. In 1868 it was given in the Appendix to H. A. & M., and was repeated in the revised ed., 1875. The sign γ in the Lyra Apostolica is that of the Rev. John Keble (Card. Newman's Apologia 2nd ed., p. 397, and Lyra Apost., 1879, p. viii.). In some editions of the Lyra Apostolica, the signature is changed to β (i.e. Card. Newman) in error. This has been corrected in the ed. of 1879. This tr. is very popular, and is in extensive use.

2. Light of the Immortal Father's glory. By G. W. Bethune, pub. in his Lays of Love and Faith, &c., 1847, p. 137, in 2 st. of 8 l. This tr. is in C. U. in America, including the Dutch Reformed Hys. of the Church, 1869, No. 911.

3. Gladdening Light, all-glorious Fire. By W. J. Blew. First printed on a flyleaf for the use of his congregation, 1849–51, and pub. in The Church Hy. & Tune Book, 1852, in 6 st. of 4 l. It was reprinted in Blew's 8*d.* from that work, 1870; and the "Twilight Hymn" of the Wellington College Chapel H. Bk., 1880, is the same with the omission of st. v., vi.

4. Joyful light of holiest ray. This was printed in 1857, as No. 173 in the draft Hymnal for the Scottish Episcopal Church, and was given as No. 152 in the Additional Ps. & Hys. to the Scottish Episcopal Ch. Bk., 1858. It was rewritten for Dr. Horton's Hys. adapted to the Ch. Services, ed. 1860, as "Gladdening light of holiest ray."

5. O Gentle light of the Holy Glory. By Archbishop Benson. 1st pub. in the Wellington College Chapel H. Bk., 1880, and repeated in later editions. It has been set to music by Edmonds, and is the most literal tr. in C. U.

6. O Brightness of the Immortal [Eternal] Father's face. By E. W. Eddis. This tr. was given in the Irvingite Hymns for the Use of the Churches, 1864, in 3 st. of 4 l. It is repeated, with slight alterations, in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871; Thring's Coll., 1882, and others.

7. O joyful Light of God most High. By W. C. Dix, given in the People's H., 1867, No. 442, in 3 st. of 4 l.

8. Light of gladness, Beam divine. By W. Bright, in Hys. for the Use of the University of Oxford, in St. Mary's Church, 1872.

9. Gladdening Light, the bright Forth-showing. By W. Cooke. Written for the Hymnary, and given therein, 1872, in 4 st. of 4 l.

10. Hail Glorious Light, pure from the Immortal Sire. By W. J. Irons, in his Ps. & Hys. for the Church, 1873, in 1 st. of 8 l.

Translations not in C. U. :—

1. Jesus Christ, Most Light of Light. S. Woodford. Paraphrase of the Canticles, &c., 1679.
2. Thou lightsome day, the joyful states. Hymnus de S. Trinitate, 1685.
3. Giver of life! Jesus! the clearing Light. W. W. Hall, 1853, p. 141. Also on the same page a prose tr.
4. Very light that shin'st above. Sy. T. M. Neale in his Hymns of the Eastern Church, 1862.
5. O gladsome Light of the Father Immortal. H. W. Longfellow, in The Golden Legend, 1851.
6. Joyful light of holy glory. Mrs. Charles's Christian Life in Song, 1870, p. 24.
7. Joyful Light, of Light enkindled. G. Moultrie, in his Hymns and Lyrics, 1871.
8. Propitious Light of holy glory. A. W. Chatfield. Songs and Hymns, &c., 1876, p. 161.
9. Jesus, blessed Light. H. M. Macgill. Songs of the Christian Year and Life, 1876.
10. Gladdening Light of the holy glory. H. Bonar. Sunday at Home, 1876.
11. Holy Lord of heaven we bless Thee. "T. T. C." [Canon T. T. Churton (?)], in The Guardian, Jan. 24, 1883.

Card. Newman has also given a prose rendering in his tr. of Bp. Andrewes' Devotions, 1842. This is sometimes used, as in the Appendix to St. John's Hymnal, Aberdeen, 1851, and also in the Introits prefixed to some editions of H. A. & M. [J. J.]

Φωτεινὴ σε, φῶς. ['Λαμπτὴρ τηλαυγὴς.]

Φωτίζου, φωτίζου. ['Αναστάσιμος ἦχος.]

PIERPOINT, FOLLIOTT S. PILGRIM, BURDENED WITH 895

Pierpoint, Folliott Sandford, M.A., s. of William Horne Pierpoint of Bath, was b. at Spa Villa, Bath, Oct. 7, 1833, and educated at Queen's College, Cambridge, graduating in classical honours in 1871. He has pub. The Chalice of Nature and Other Poems, Bath, n.d. This was republished in 1878 as Songs of Love, The Chalice of Nature, and Lyra Jesu. He has also contributed hymns to the Churchman's Companion (Lewd. Masters), the Lyra Eucharistica, &c. His hymn on the Cross, "O Cross, O Cross of shame," appeared in both these works. He is most widely known through :—

For the beauty of the earth. Holy Communion, or Flower Services. This was contributed to the 2nd ed. of Orby Shipley's Lyra Eucharistica, 1864, in 8 st. of 4 l., as a hymn to be sung at the celebration of Holy Communion. In this form it is not usually found, but in 4, or sometimes in 5, stanzas, it is extensively used for Flower Services and as a Children's hymn. [J. J.]

Pierpont, John, s. of James Pierpont, of Litchfield, Connecticut, was b. at Litchfield, April 6, 1785, and educated at Yale College, where he graduated in 1804. After fulfilling engagements as a Tutor in New Haven, and in Charlestown, South Carolina, he was admitted to the Bar in 1812. Shortly after he retired and went into business, only to leave it also, and to pass on to Harvard College as a student in theology. In 1819 he succeeded Dr. Holley as the pastor of the Unitarian congregation in Hollis Street, Boston. At length his zeal against intemperance and slavery caused him to resign his charge in 1840 (see Lothrop's Proceedings of an Eccl. Council in the case of the Hollis Street Meeting and the Rev. J. Pierpont). At this date he pub. his Poems & Hymns, including his anti-slavery and temperance poems and songs. In 1845 he became the pastor of an Unitarian congregation at Troy, New York. This he vacated for another at Medford, Massachusetts, in 1849. That he resigned in 1859. When over 70 years of age he became Chaplain in the United States Army (1862), and was finally a Government clerk in the Treasury Department at Washington. He d. suddenly at Medford, Aug. 27, 1866. Pierpont's publications include Airs of Palestine, 1816, some school books, and his Poems & Hymns, 1840 and 1854. His hymns in C. U. include :—

1. Another day its course hath run. Morning. Appeared in Hys. for Children, Boston, 1830; in Greenwood & Sargent's Liturgy, 1838; and in the author's Poems, &c., 1840.
2. Break forth in song, ye trees. Public Thanksgiving. Written for the Second Centennial Celebration of the Settlement of Boston, Sept. 17, 1830, and included in the Poems of Hys., 1840.
3. Break the bread and pour the wine. Holy Communion. In Harris's Hys. for the Lord's Supper, 1830.
4. Father, while we break the bread. Holy Communion.
5. God Almighty and All-seeing. Greatness of the Father. Contributed to Elias Nason's Cong. H. Bk., Boston, 1857.
6. God of mercy, in Thee never. Ordination. Written for the Ordination of Mr. Wm. Ware, at Walpole, Nov. 15, 1838; and pub. in the author's Poems, &c., 1840.
7. God of our fathers, in Whose sight. Love of Truth desired. This hymn is composed of st. i., ii., iv., from the author's Poems, &c., 1840, and appeared in Hymns 17, 1839. In this form it was given in the Boston Hym. of the Spirit, 1864, and others.
8. Gone are those great and good. Burial. Written in 1826. Part of No. 9 above.
9. I cannot make him dead. Gone Before. "A part of an exquisitely touching and beautiful poem of ten stanzas, originally printed in the Monthly Miscellany, Oct. 1840."
10. Let the still air rejoice. Praise.
11. Mighty One, Whose name is Holy. Charitable Institutions. Written for the anniversary of the Howard Benevolent Society, Dec. 1836, and included in the Hys. for Children, 1837.
12. My [O] God, I thank Thee that the night. Morning. Appeared in his Poems, &c., 1840. In Skinner's Hymns, &c., 1872, it begins "O God, I thank Thee," &c.
13. O how thine ear, eternal One. Opening of House of Worship. This is dated 1820, but was not included in the author's Poems, &c., 1840, although one of his best productions.
14. O Thee to Whom in ancient time. Universal Worship. "Written for the opening of the Independent Congregational Church in Barton Square, Salem, Massachusetts, Dec. 1, 1833, and sung at the first public service preached by Henry Colman on that day. It was given in Pierpont's Poems, &c., 1840, and is found in several collections in Great Britain and America. It is widely known."
15. O Thou Who art above all height. Ordination. "Written for the Ordination of Mr. William Ware, as Pastor of the First Congregational Church in New York, Dec. 18, 1821," and included in his Poems, &c., 1840.
16. O Thou Who on the whirlwind rides. Indication of God's Power. Written for the Dedication of Dr. Beecher's School in Boston, Sept. 11, 1832. Sometimes given as "Thou Who on the," &c.
17. O'er Enlow's stream, and Salem's height. Ordinances. One of eight hymns contributed to Dr. T. C. Upham's Hymns for Christian Worship, 1831, and to Matheson's Hymns, &c., Lond., 1871, and others.
18. On this stone, now laid with prayer. Foundation-stone Laying. Written for the laying of the corner-stone of Suffolk Street Chapel, Boston, for the Rev. Thomas Starr King, 1835.
19. With Thy pure tears and pain. Against Slavery. Written for the African Colonization Society, and included in Chevers's American Common Place Book, 1841. Not in the author's Poems, &c., 1840.

Pierpont's talents as a hymn-writer, as in other fields, were respectable rather than commanding, but as energetically employed as to make their mark. Thus, although he never wrote a single hymn that can be called a great lyric, yet he has attained to a prominent position in American hymnody. [F. M. B.]

Pierson, Arthur Tappan, D.D., was b. in New York city, March 6, 1837, and educated at Hamilton College. He entered the Presbyterian ministry in 1860, and was pastor successively in Binghampton and in Waterford, New York, and Fort Street, Detroit; his last charge being the Bethany Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia. (Duffield's English Hymns, 1886, p. 576.) Dr. Pierson's hymns include :—

1. Once I was dead in sin. Praise for Salvation.
2. The Gospel of Thy grace. The Love of God in Christ.
3. To Thee, O God (Lord), we raise. Divine Remembrance.
4. With harps and with viols there stand a great throng. The New Song.

Of these hymns, No. 3 is in Hys. and Songs of Praise, N. Y., 1874, and the Lenox Domini, N. Y., 1884; and Nos. 1, 2, 4, are in I. D. Sankey's Sacred & Sol. Solos. [J. J.]

Pilgrim, burdened with thy sin. G. Crabbe. [The Christian Pilgrim.] In the preface to the 1807 ed. of his work, The Village, Crabbe says concerning Sir Eustace Grey :—

"In the story of Sir Eustace Grey an attempt is made to describe the wanderings of a mind first irritated by the consequences of error and misfortune, and afterwards soothed by a species of enthusiastic conversion; but the failure of the latter will, it is hoped, show that the presumption of the attempt may find pardon, it will not be refused to the failure of the poet."

The scene of this story is a madhouse, and the persons are a visitor, the physician, and the patient. Sir Eustace, the patient, gives his history in detail. He was the lord of the manor, had a wife, two children, and a friend; the wife is seduced by the friend; a duel in which the friend is killed; wife pines away; both children die; is himself distracted; plagued by two friends; found peace at last in the Sun of Mercy; and gives a specimen of the preaching through which he was saved. This specimen is:—

896 PIRIE, ALEXANDER PLASMATOR HOMINIS DEUS

"Pilgrim! burdened with thy sin,
Come to Calvary's holy hill,
There, till mercy speaks within,
Knock, and weep, and watch, and wait:
Knock—He knows the sinner's cry;
Weep—He loves the mourner's tears;
Wait—for heavenly light appears.
Wait—till heavenly light appears.
"Hark! it is the Bridegroom's voice,
'Welcome, pilgrim! to thy rest.'
Now within the gate rejoice,
Safe, and sealed, and bought, and blest:
Safe—from all the lures of vice;
Sealed—the earnest of the heavenly dower;
Bought—by love and fills the price;
Blest—the mighty debt to cover.
"Holy pilgrim! what for thee,
In a world like this remains?
Trials, conflicts, sufferings, foes,
Fear of change, and wrath, and pain:
Foes—the hope of heaven shall fly;
Shame—from glory's view retire;
Doubt—in certain rapture die;
Pain—in endless bliss expire."

These stanzas, when detached from their melancholy surroundings, form a somewhat spirited hymn, and as such they are in use in Great Britain and America. [J. J.]

Pirie, Alexander, was for some time a minister in connection with the Antiburgher Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland. He was appointed in 1760 a teacher of the Philosophical Class in the Theological Seminary, New York city, but was suspended shortly after and expelled from the body. On joining the Burghers he returned to Scotland and became the minister of a congregation in Abernethy. In 1769 he joined the Independents, and was minister of a congregation at Newburgh, Fifeshire. He d. in 1804. In 1777 he pub. Psalms, or Hymns founded on some important Passages of Scripture. From this work two well-known hymns have come down to modern collections through the Sac. Songs and Hys. on V. Passages of Scripture for the New Belief Church, Campbell St., Glasgow, 1791. These are:—

1. Come, let us join in [our] songs of praise, To our ascended Priest. Ascension.
2. With Mary's love without her fear. Easter. [J. J.]

Pistor, Henricus. Little or nothing is known of the life of this author, to whom is attributed the grand hymn on St. John the Baptist, "Praecursoris et Baptistae," which is given by Clichtoveus (Elucidat. 1516, f. 192 b.), and Trench in his Sac. Lat. Poetry, ed. 1874, p. 94, as well as by Daniel and others. Clichtoveus describes him as a Doctor of Theology in the University of Paris, and a Monk of the Abbey of St. Victor, and states that he took part in the Council of Constance (1414–1418), which would fix the time he lived to the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries. Archbishop Trench says of him "that the writer" (of the poem mentioned above) "was an accomplished theologian is plain; and no less so that he was trained in the school, and formed upon the model, of Adam of St. Victor." In the Missal of St. Victor, pub. at Paris in 1529, a sequence on St. Sebastian, beginning "Athleta Sebastianus," is also ascribed to Pistor. [D. S. W.]

Plasmator hominis Deus. [Friday. Evening.] This hymn is probably of the 7th cent. Mone, No. 280, gives the text from a ms. of the 9th cent. at Darmstadt, &c., and at i. p. 372, cites it as in an 8th cent. ms. at Trier; giving it as his opinion that it is later than St. Gregory the Great. Daniel has the text at i., No. 34, with the title, "On the work of the Sixth Day [of the Creation]"; and in his notes at iv. p. 52, ranks it among hymns composed in the 7th or 8th cent., and cites it as in a 10th cent. Rheinau ms. Among the British Museum mss. it is found in three 11th cent. Hymnaries of the English Church (Vesp. D. xii. f. 24; Jul. A. vi. f. 50; Harl. 2961, f. 224 b), an 11th cent. Breviary of the Spanish Church (Add. 30848, f. 74 b), &c. It is in a ms. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi, Cambridge (391, page 237); in two mss. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall, Nos. 387, 414; and in the Lat. Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Church (Surtees Society), 1851, is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32, f. 9). Its universal use in mediaeval times was at Vespers on Friday. In the Roman Breviary of 1632 it is recast, and begins Hominis Superne Conditor. The original form is in the older Roman (Venice, 1478), Sarum, York, Aberdeen, Paris of 1643, and other Breviaries. Also in Wackernagel, i., No. 119; Hymnarium Sarisb., 1851, p. 56, and in G. M. Dreves's Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, p. 33, from a 10th cent. ms. The Roman Brev. text is in recent eds. of the Roman Brev.; in Daniel i. No. 54; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. [J. M.]

This hymn has been tr. into English as follows:—

i. Plasmator hominis Deus. The trs. of this text are:—

1. Thou Fashioner of man, O Lord. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852–1855, and in Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870.
2. Maker of man! from Heaven Thy throne. By J. D. Chambers, in his Psalter, 1853, p. 316. This was repeated in the 1856 ed. of the H. Noted; in the People's H., 1867, and others.
3. Creator! Who from heaven Thy throne. By J. D. Chambers. This is Mr. Chambers's revised form of No. 2, pub. in his Lauda Sion, 1857, p. 55.

Other trs. are:—

1. O God, which didest man create. Primer. 1539.
2. God, from Whose work mankind did spring. Primer. 1706.
3. Great Maker of the human race. In T. Doubleday's Hymnarium Anglicanum. 1844.

ii. Hominis superne Conditor. This, the Roman Breviary text, is tr. as:—

1. Man's sovereign Framer, Who alone. Primer. 1685.
2. Man's sov'reign God, to Whom we owe. Primer. 1706. In O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884.
3. Father of men, Whose sovereign will. Sp. S. Hy. Bk. 1851.
4. Holy Creator of Mankind. A. J. B. Hope. 1864.
5. Lord! at Whose word all life came forth. Sp. J. Williams. 1865.
6. Who madest man to live. W. J. Copeland. 1848.

897

PLEASANT ARE THY COURTS PLUNKET, WILLIAM C 897

7. Maker of men, Who by Thyself. E. Caswall. 1849.
8. Whom all obey, Maker of man, &c. Card. Newman. 1853 and 1865. [J. J.]

Pleasant are Thy courts above. H. F. Lyte. [Ps. lxxxiv.] Pub. in his Spirit of the Psalms, 1834, in 4 st. of 8 l., and again in later editions. Its use in all English-speaking countries is extensive, and it is usually given in an unaltered form, as in H. A. & M., the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., &c. In the S. P. C. K. Hymns, 1852, No. 162, a portion of this hymn was given in 8 st. of 4 l., as "Happy they that find a rest." [See Psalter, English, § xxiii.] [J. J.]

Plume, Mrs. N. D., a nom de plume of Mrs. Van Alstyne.

Plumptre, Edward Hayes, D.D., s. of Mr. E. H. Plumptre, was b. in London, Aug. 6, 1821, and educated at King's College, London, and University College, Oxford, graduating as a double first in 1844. He was for some time Fellow of Brasenose. On taking Holy Orders in 1846 he rapidly attained to a foremost position as a Theologian and Preacher. His appointments have been important and influential, and include that of Assistant Preacher at Lincoln's Inn; Select Preacher at Oxford; Professor of Pastoral Theology at King's College, London; Dean of Queen's, Oxford; Prebendary in St. Paul's Cathedral, London; Professor of Exegesis of the New Testament in King's College, London; Boyle Lecturer; Grinfield Lecturer on the Septuagint, Oxford; Examiner in the Theological schools at Oxford; Member of the Old Testament Company for the Revision of the A. V. of the Holy Scriptures; Rector of Pluckley, 1869; Vicar of Bickley, Kent, 1873; and Dean of Wells, 1881. Dean Plumptre's literary productions have been very numerous and important, and embrace the classics, history, divinity, biblical criticism, biography, and poetry. The list as set forth in Crockford's Clerical Directory is very extensive. His poetical works include Lazarus, and Other Poems, 1866; Master and Scholar, 1866; Things New and Old, 1884; and translations of Sophocles, Æschylus, and Dante. As a writer of sacred poetry he ranks very high. His hymns are elegant in style, fervent in spirit, and broad in treatment. The subjects chosen are mainly those associated with the revived Church life of the present day, from the Precentoral at a Choral Festival to hospital work and the spiritual life in schools and colleges. The rhythm of his verse has a special attraction for musicians, its poetry for the cultured, and its stately simplicity for the devout and earnest-minded. The two which have attained to the most extensive use in G. Britain and America are "Rejoice, ye pure in heart," and "Thine arm, O Lord, in days of old." His trs. from the Latin (see Index), many of which were made for the Hymnary, 1871 and 1872, are very good and musical, but they have not been used in any way in proportion to their merits. His original hymns in C. U. include:—

1. Behold they gain the lonely height. The Transfiguration. Written for and first pub. in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871.
2. For all Thy countless bounties. National Hymn. Written for the Jubilee of Queen Victoria, 1887, and set to music by C. W. Lavington. It was printed, together with the National Anthem adapted for the Jubilee, in 1887. [J. J.]
3. Lo, summer comes again. Harvest. Written in 1871 for use at the Harvest Festival in Pluckley Church, Kent, of which the author was then rector, and pub. in the same year in the Hymnary, No. 220.
4. Now the Lenten fast begins. Ash Wednesday. Processional at Choral Festivals. Written in 1867 for the tune of Costa's March of the Israelites in the Oratorio of Eli, at the request of the Rev. Henry White, Chaplain of the Savoy, and first used in that Chapel. It was subsequently pub. in the Hymnary, p. xv. (1870), in 4 st. of 8 l., and in the Appendix to the Book of Peterborough, and in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871.
5. O Light, Whose beams illumine all. The Way, the Truth, and the Life. Written in May 1864, and pub. in his Lazarus, and Other Poems, 1864, as one of five Hymns for School and College. It passed into the 1868 Appendix to H. A. & M., and is also in the Appendix to the Hymnary, 1872.
6. O Lord of hosts, all heaven possessing. For School or College. Written in May, 1864, and pub. in his Lazarus and other Poems, 1864, in 5 st. of 4 l.
7. O praise the Lord our God. Processional Thanksgiving. Written in May 1865, for the Peterborough Choral Festival. It was pub. in his Lazarus, and other Poems, 1864, in 4 st. of 8 l. It is a most suitable hymn for Sunday school gatherings.
8. Rejoice, ye pure in heart. Processional at Choral Festival. Written in May 1865, for the Peterborough Choral Festival. It was pub. in his Lazarus, &c., 1865. In the same year it was pub. with special music by Novello & Co.; and again (without music) in the 3rd ed. of Lazarus, and Other Poems, 1868. It was included in the 1868 Appendix to H. A. & M., and in the 1875 ed. of the same. The opening line was at first "Your festal banner wave on high." It is now widely used than any other of the author's hymns. Authorised text in H. A. & M.
9. Thine arm, O Lord, in days of old. Hospitals. Written in 1865, for the Hospital Sunday Fund, London, and first printed on a fly-sheet for it. A Hymn used in the Chapel of King's College Hospital." It was included in the 3rd ed. of Lazarus, and Other Poems, 1868; in the 1868 Appendix to H. A. & M.; the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871; Thring's Coll., 1882; and many others.
10. Thy hand, O God, has guided. Church Defence. Included in the 1868 Supplemental Hymns to H. A. & M. The closing line of each stanza, "One Church, one Faith, one Lord," comes in with fine effect.

Dean Plumptre's Life of Bp. Ken, 1888, is an exhaustive and excellent work. The chapter on the bishop's three hymns is well written, but should be read with the article on the same subject in this Dictionary, p. 617, i. [J. J.]

Plunged in a gulph of dark despair. I. Watts. [Praise to Jesus, the Redeemer.] 1st pub. in his Hys. and Spiritual Songs, 1707, in 8 st. of 4 l., and headed "Praise to the Redeemer." In G. Whitefield's Hys. for Social Worship, &c., 1753, st. i.–iii., vi., viii., were given as No. 104. This form of the text was repeated by M. Madan in his Fs. & Hys., 1760, with the change in st. ii., l. 4, of "He ran" to "He came to our relief." Through frequent repetition this became the recognised form of the hymn in Church of England hymn-books. Other forms of the text, all beginning with the first stanza, are also in C. U. in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

Plunket, William Conyngham, D.D., 4th Baron Plunket, eldest s. of John, 3rd Baron, was b. in Dublin, 26 August, 1828; educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he graduated in 1850; and took Holy Orders in 1857. He was Precentor of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, from 1862 to 1876, when he was elected Bishop of Meath. In 1884 he was translated to the Archiepiscopal See of Dublin. His hymn "Our Lord Christ—hail! [illegible]

898

(Exeter), was first pub. in the Irish Church Hymnal, 1873, in 4 st. of 7 l. It was written for that collection in 1873, to suit the tune "O Ungerug des Lebens," by T. Selle. So far as we are aware this is Lord Plunket's only contribution to hymnody. [G. A. C.]

Plymouth Brethren Hymnody. The sect popularly known as the Plymouth Brethren was in its earliest stage called The Brethren, because its members professed to meet solely on the ground that they were brethren in Christ. Eventually, however, the branch of it which met at Plymouth, Devon, chiefly from the position, learning, and labours of its members, acquired so great influence in the society as to give its name to the whole body, and it was thenceforth known as The Plymouth Brethren. In giving an account of the hymns and hymn-books of The Brethren, it is necessary to refer somewhat to the history of the sect. For the purpose of our article it will be convenient to divide this:—Period I. From the commencement of the sect to the year 1848. Period II. From the year 1848 to 1889.

Period I.—Between the years 1828-33 a custom arose in Dublin, Bristol, Plymouth, and elsewhere for certain persons, irrespective of creed, to meet together for prayer, the joint study of the Scriptures, and mutual aid in spiritual matters generally. The principle on which they acted is thus put forth by one of their early associates, "the possession of the common life" (in Jesus Christ) and "that disciples should bear as Christ does with many errors of their brethren." At first the assemblies so formed did not in any way interfere with the worship of the members in the various churches and chapels to which they belonged; indeed their meetings were held at an early hour on Sunday morning so that they should not do so. But soon the separatist principle began to make itself manifest. With many, separation from religious communities was held to be the only means of promoting unity among Christians, and finally Mr. Darby, an author of some repute, who at one time held an Irish curacy, gained so much ascendency as to bring the desired separation about, and their meetings have ever since been held as distinct from other religious denominations. They were united as a body and known under one name, The Plymouth Brethren, till the year 1848.

This period produced many hymn-writers who put forth a great number of hymns, some of which are very beautiful, and all of which, without doubt, helped either to form or to strengthen the Society. The principal hymn-writers during this period were the following:—Chapman, R. C.; Darby, J. N.; Dork, J. G.; Denny, Sir Edward, Bart.; Kelly, Thomas (?); Tregilles, S. Prideaux, LL.D.; and Wigram, G. V.

The hymn-books put forward and used by the Plymouth Brethren during this period were many. They include:—

(1) Hymns for the use of the Church of Christ, by R. C. Chapman, Minister of the Gospel, Barnstaple. A New Edition, to which is added an Appendix selected from various sources by John Chapman. (First edition, 1841.) London: Houlston & Stoneman, 1845. Those of hymns written by R. C. Chapman are 9, all in. These collected number 137, and are, as the title sets forth, by various authors, some of whom were Brethren, and some of other denominations. Amongst the Brethren, Darby, Dork, Denny, and Kelly are found.

(2) A Selection of Hymns by Sir Edward Denny, Bart. London: Houlston & Stoneman, 1839. This book contains many hymns by the editor, at least 16 being written by himself. Chapman, Darby, Dork, Kelly, Tregelles, Wigram amongst the Brethren are also represented.

(3) Hymns for the Poor of the Flock. 1838, London, printed by G. V. Wigram. When compared with the foregoing this selection contains a special feature, namely, "Hymns arranged for Special Occasions," e.g. for "Baptism," "Christian Sabbath," "Evening," "Graces," "Intercessory to Prayer," "Lord's Day," "Lord's Day Evening," "Lord's Day Morning," "Lord's Supper," "Meeting," "Morning," "Sabbath," and "Saints." The hymns in the body of this work are gathered from a variety of sources. Of Brethren hymn-writers, Dork and Kelly are strongly represented. Darby and Chapman also contribute. The editor wrote one. The Appendix contains 40 hymns, and of these Denny wrote one.

(4) Psalms and Hymns and Spiritual Songs. In Two Parts. Part I.—"Intended specially for the united worship of the Children of God." Part 2. "Chiefly for the Assembly of Saints." Bristol: Bligh & Co. This collection is the work of J. G. Dork. Many writers contributed. From their own body Denny, Kelly, and Tregelles. Part 1. has Hymns on Burial, Resurrection, and the Lord's Supper. Part 2. contains many hymns common to the Brethren. Chapman is also entitled to. Darby and the Editor are also represented.

Period II.—In 1845 a controversy began which ended in a division of the Plymouth Brethren. The Lord's Advent was ever a favourite theme with them, and it was a difference of opinion on this subject between two of their leaders which was the primary cause of the rupture. Mr. Darby promulgated the theory that our Lord's coming for His saints would be a secret coming, while His coming to judgment would be open and seen by all. Mr. Newton, a man of high attainments and who had taken Holy Orders, protested against these statements. Mr. Darby retaliated by accusing Mr. Newton (about two years later) with teaching heresy concerning the Humanity of our Lord in a pamphlet which the Brethren had circulated for ten years. Mr. Newton withdrew the pamphlet; but this did not satisfy Mr. Darby and his followers. They seceded from those who held with Mr. Newton, excommunicated them, and called upon the Brethren elsewhere to do the same. Mr. Darby, in this matter, met with the greatest opposition in Bristol, and from Mr. Müller (the founder of the Orphanage on Ashley Down), and those who met with him. They resolved not to judge Mr. Newton. On this the Darby party excommunicated the Müller party, and all those who held with them. This they did in 1848, and from that time the Plymouth Brethren have been divided into two main sections: (1) The Plymouth or Exclusive Brethren. This section allows other Christians to meet with them on certain conditions, unless they belong to the Open Brethren: these they rigidly exclude. (2) The Open or Bristol Brethren, which admits to fellowship, as from the first, all who profess to be Christians.

This period has not been fruitful in the production of hymns. Neither section has brought forth any new hymn-writer of note, and but few hymn-books have been compiled. Besides three collections in use before the division of the Society the Plymouth or Exclusive section has put forth but one which is at all generally used, namely:—

A Few Hymns and some Spiritual Songs, Selected, for the Little Flock. 1856. Revised 1881. London. This book was first issued in 1856, and revised in 1881. It contained 161 hymns, but at its revision an Appendix was added containing 16 more. Many of the hymns in this book are Darby's own. There are also selections from Chapman, Dork, Kelly, Tregelles, and Wigram.

Besides the foregoing work the following books of poetry, though they cannot be called hymn-books pure and simple, yet contain many hymns, have been written by members of the Plymouth Brethren.

(1) Hymns and Poems by Sir Edward Denny, Bart., 1846. It contains "Millennial Hymns," with an "Introduction to the Millennial Hymns"; "Miscellaneous Poems." 2nd ed. London: 1847.

(2) Spiritual Songs by J. N. Darby. Dublin. Entered at Stationers' Hall. London. 1865.

The Open Brethren have put forth two hymn-books:—

(1) Hymns and Spiritual Songs for the Children of God. Alphabetically arranged. 8th ed. Stereotyped. London. 1871. This selection contains more than 500, which are far more general in character than those of the Exclusive section. They are gathered from all sources, and all writers, Brethren and others. Chapman, Dork, Kelly, Tregelles, and Wigram. In the Index the names of the writers of the hymns are given, a peculiarity worthy of notice, as it is found in no other hymn-book of either section. The hymns are arranged under the following headings:—"Adoration," "Aspirations," "Confession," "Reading and Prayer," "Private Use," "Meals," "Marriage," "Bringing little Children to Jesus," "Baptism," "Burial," "Mission," "The Gospel." This book is used by the Open Brethren generally.

(2) Hymns for Christian Worship. Bristol: Bligh. London and Bristol: 1870. This collection is the work of Messrs. Müller and Craik, of Bristol, two of the leaders amongst the Open Brethren. It is the most catholic of all the books put forth by either section. It contains hymns on the Holy Trinity, arranged under the following heads:—"God," "The Lord Jesus Christ," "The Holy Spirit," "The Christian Life," "The Second Coming of Christ," "Christian Ordinances," "Special Occasions," "Gospel." Amongst the Brethren 35 new writers are found in this book, of which Chapman, Dork, and Tregelles are represented. This work is used chiefly in Bristol and its neighbourhood.

The hymn-books put forth by the Plymouth Brethren up to the year of the rupture contain hymns for "the Assembly of the Saints," i.e. the Brethren themselves met in worship. But the books put forth since the rupture in 1848 contain also a selection, though a smaller one, for the "unconverted," i.e. those who are not in full communion with themselves. In the books of the Exclusive Section these hymns are placed in an Appendix, as seen in Hymns for the Little Flock, 1881, whilst in those of the Open Section, where fuller arrangement is found, they are placed under the heading "Gospel," with its subdivisions "Prayer for Blessing," "Testimony," "Invitation," as in the Hymns and Spiritual Songs compiled in Bristol.

The principle on which this division is made will be seen from the following extracts from the Preface of the first of the Books just mentioned, which, as it is fairly applicable to all, we quote somewhat fully:

"Three things are needed for a hymn-book. A basis of truth and sound doctrine; something at least of the spirit of Poetry, though not poetry itself, which is obviously impossible; and, what is comparatively easy and thirdly, the most difficult to find at all, that experimental acquaintance with truth in the affections which enables a person to make his hymn (if he of that to compose one) the vehicle in sustained thought and language of his communion with God, and of that which is communion with Christ and there even to the Father, and yet this in such sort that it is yet more individual experience which for assembly worship is out of place. . . . "Many authors may be comforted by knowing their hymns were sometimes very nice, but not suited to an 'Assembly of Saints'; several have gone into the Appendix, not personally unsuitable, but of a general character. . . . Many hymns have been corrected on the principles referred to."

Few hymns placed in these sections of their books for general use are written by the Brethren themselves, whilst many by them are found amongst those for the use of "the Assembly of the Saints." In the latter class hymns containing Confession of Sin and Prayer for Pardon are conspicuous by their absence. The doctrine such hymns teach is held to be unnecessary for the children of God, consequently they are deemed unsuitable for Assembly Worship. Hymns to be used at the Lord's Supper, and at Holy Baptism are found in some numbers, as are also hymns concerning the coming of Christ to raise His saints, and the millennium. Hymns teaching the greatness of the world and all belonging to it, the full assurance of faith, and the completeness of the Christian in Christ, are strongly represented. The efficacy alone of the Blood of Jesus for Salvation is the theme of many of their best hymns.

[W. S.]

Ποία τοῦ βίου τρυφή. St. John of Damascus. [Burial.] From the Greek Burial Office of Priests, in the Euchologion. Stichera Idiomela of great beauty, in which some of the strophes are supposed to be spoken by the dead. It is given in Daniel, iii. p. 96. The only tr. into English is Dr. Littledale's "With pain earth's joys are mingled," made for the People's H., 1867, No. 281, and transferred from thence to the Priest's Prayer Book, 1870. This is one of Dr. Littledale's best trs. from the Greek. He omits certain strophes of similar meaning, and the Theotokia (addresses to the B. V. M.). The original is also given in Bäumker, 1858, No. 17, with a tr. in German. (Greek Synaxary, § xvii. 2.) [J. J.]

Pollio, Symphorianus, originally called Altbiesser or Altbiesser, was a native of Strasburg, and was for some time in clerical work at Rosheim, near Strasburg. In 1507 we find him as one of the priests attached to St. Stephen's church at Strasburg. He was thereafter at St. Martin's in Strasburg, and being very popular as a preacher was appointed, in 1522, by the Chapter as interim preacher at the Cathedral. The Chapter hoped he would counteract the influence of Matthäus Zell, but as he preached quite as evangelically as Zell, he was soon sent back to St. Martin's. When, in 1524, he married his housekeeper, the Chapter tried to deprive him of his living, but by the help of the burgesses he continued in St. Martin's till the church had to be taken down in 1529. Thereafter he officiated as pastor of the church "Zu den guten Leuten," outside the city walls, and was still there at the Visitation of 1535. The date of his death is unknown (G. H. A. Rittelmeyer's Die evangelischen Kirchenliederdichter des Elsasses, Jena, 1855, p. 17; Allg. Deutsche Biog. xxvi. 205, &c.). In the early Strasburg hymn-books there are paraphrases of the Lord's Prayer and of the Magnificat by Pollio. The latter is:—

Mein Seel erhebt den Herren mein. The Magnificat. In Ordenung und gebett Deutscher Messe mit Figur, Strasburg, 1524, and thence in Wackernagel, iii. p. 504.

900 POLLOCK, THOMAS B. POPE, ALEXANDER

in 4 st. of 10 l. The 5th, are: (1) "My soul doth magnyfie the Lorde," by Sy. Coverdale, 1539 (Remaines, 1846, p. 565). (2) "My saule doth magnifie the Lord." In the Ciuile and Godlie Ballates, ed. 1568, f. 77 (ed. 1868, p. 130). [J. M.]

Pollock, Thomas Benson, M.A., was b. in 1836, and graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. 1859, M.A. 1863, where he also gained the Vice-Chancellor's Prize for English Verse in 1855. Taking Holy Orders in 1861, he was Curate of St. Luke's, Leek, Staffordshire; St. Thomas's, Stamford Hill, London; and St. Alban's, Birmingham. Mr. Pollock is a most successful writer of metrical Litanies. His Metrical Litanies for Special Services and General Use, Mowbray, Oxford, 1870, and other compositions of the same kind contributed subsequently to various collections, have greatly enriched modern hymn-books. These are specially noticed under Litanies, Metrical, p. 677, i. To the 1889 Supplemented Hys. to H. A. & M. Mr. Pollock contributed two hymns, "We are soldiers of Christ, Who is mighty to save" (Soldiers of Christ), and "We have not known Thee as we ought" (Seeking God), but they are by no means equal to his Litanies in beauty and finish. [J. J.]

Πολυήρατε, κύδιμε. Synesius, Bp. of Ptolemais. [To Christ.] A hymn to Christ, being No. ix. of his ten hymns. The full Greek text is found in the Anth. Graeca Carm. Christ., 1871, p. 23, in 70 lines. From this Mr. Chatfield's tr., "To Thee, much loved, be honour paid," was made, and pub. in his Songs & Hymns, &c., 1876, p. 84, in 66 lines. A. Stevenson's tr. "Thee, desire of all the nations," was pub. in his Ten Hys. of Synesius, &c., 1865. [Greek Hymnody, § v.] [J. J.]

Pont, Robert, son-in-law of John Knox, was the s. of John Pont, Culross, Perthshire. He was b. at Culross in 1524, entered the University of St. Andrew's in 1543, became, in 1562, minister of Dunblane; in 1563, Commissioner of Moray; in 1571, Provost of Trinity College, Edinburgh; and, in 1574, Joint Minister of St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh. He was one of the three who publicly protested at the Cross of Edinburgh against the Proclamation, on May 23, 1584, of the Acts of the Scottish Parliament against Presbyterianism. For this offence he was forced to flee the kingdom. After his return to St. Cuthbert's he was offered, in 1587, but refused, the Bishopric of Caithness. He d. 7 Jan 8, 1590, and was buried in St. Cuthbert's Churchyard. Six Psalm Versions in the Scottish Psalter of 1564–65 are by him, viz., Ps. 57, 59, 76, 80, 81, 85. Their first lines are given under Scottish Hymnody II., § 2. Being mostly in peculiar metres none were transferred to the Scottish Psalter of 1650. In 1601 Pont was requested by the General Assembly to revise the Psalter of 1564–65, but never accomplished the work. It is probable he was also one of its original compilers. [J. M.]

Poor wanderer, return to the home of thy bliss. Margaret, Lady Cockburn-Campbell. [Recollection.] Written at Exeter, Aug 27, 1830. In 3 st. of 6 l., and entitled "To a Friend." It was subsequently pub. in lithograph from the author's MS. In 1842 it was included in Pt. ii. of J. G. Deck's Ps., Hys., & Spiritual Songs, with alterations, and thence into Walker's Cheltenham Ps. & Hys., 1853, and others. [J. J.]

Pope, Alexander, the poet, s. of a wholesale linen merchant in Lombard Street, London, was b. in Plough Court, Lombard Street, May 21, 1688. His father being a Roman Catholic, he was first placed under the charge of Father Taverner, who taught him the rudiments of Greek and Latin. Later he attended a school at Wincheaton, and then at Hyde Park Corner. When about twelve he retired with his parents to Binfield, in Windsor Forest, and from thenceforth his education was mainly in his own hands. His subsequent success as a writer and poet is a matter of history, and has been dealt with in detail by Dr. Johnson, in his Lives of the Poets, and by others. He d. May 30, 1744, and was buried in a vault in Twickenham Church. For distinct public use, so far as we are aware, Pope wrote no hymns. His "Messiah"; his "Universal Prayer"; and his "Vital Spark" (q.v.), have been made use of for congregational purposes, but as a Roman Catholic he had no object in writing a hymn in a language which, at that time, his Church would refuse to use. In modern hymn-books his name is identified with the following pieces:—

1. Father of all, in every age. Universal Prayer. The Lord's Prayer. This Prayer was pub. in 1738, as a conclusion to his Essay on Man, in 13 st. of 4 l. Warburton in his Advertisement of the 1748 ed. of the Essay, says:—

"Concerning the Universal Prayer which concludes the Essay, the Author has been frequently asked in what sense he means to be taken; having been unjustly suspected of a tendency towards Fate and Naturalism, the either composed that Prayer as the sum of all, to show that his system was founded in Free-will, and terminated in Piety: that the First Cause was as well the Lord and Governor as the Creator of the World; and that our submission to His will (the great principle enforced throughout the Essay) was not meant the suffering ourselves to be carried along with a blind determination; but a religious acquiescence, and confidence full of hope and immortality." The Prayer is a model of beauty and reality, the Poet done for its mould The Lord's Prayer, which of all others best deserves the title prefixed to his Paraphrase."

The title here referred to is "The Universal Prayer, Doo Oph. Mas." The hymn is found in C. U. in the following forms:—

(1.) Father of all in every age. This is an abbreviated form, and has been in use, especially in Unitarian hymn-books, from an early date.

(2.) Father of all, (and Thou God of love. This centu was given in Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 218 (ed. 1812, No. 241); in Cotterill's Sel., No. 381; again in the 1819 ed., 141; in Sherwell's Pr. & Hys., 1837, No. 179; and again in later collections.

(3.) Not in this earth's contracted span. In Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 219; and in Cotterill's, No. 382.

(4.) Teach me that sacred day. Also in Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 220, in 4 st. of 4 l., and others.

(5.) Thou Great First Cause, least understood. Also in Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 608, in 4 st. of 4 l., and later collections.

(6.) When I am right Thy grace impart. Given in Kennedy, 1863, No. 1186.

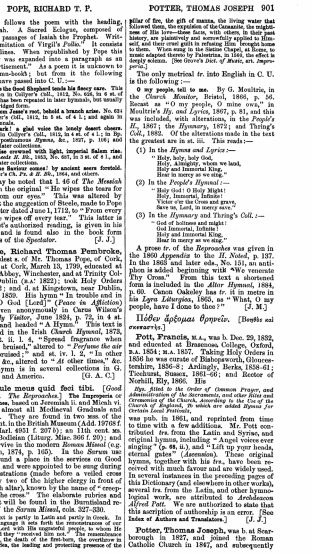
2. Ye nymphs of Solyma! begin the song. The Messiah. In No. 378 of the Spectator for Wednesday, May 14, 1713, Addison gave this poem with the introduction:—

"I will make no apology for entertaining the reader with the following poem, which is written by a great genius, a friend of mine, in the country, who is not ashamed to employ his wit in the praise of his Maker."

901



POPE, RICHARD T. P. POTTER, THOMAS JOSEPH 901

Then follows the poem with the heading, "Messiah. A Sacred Eclogue, composed of several passages of Isaiah the Prophet. Written in imitation of Virgil's Pollio." It consists of 107 lines. When republished by Pope this heading was expanded into a paragraph as an "Advertisement." As a poem it is unknown to the hymn-book; but from it the following centos have passed into C. U.:—

(1.) As the Good Shepherd tends his fleecy care. This was given in Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 624, in 6 st. of 4 l., and has been repeated in later hymnals, but usually in an abbreviated form.

(2.) Rise, Salem's rod, behold a branch arise. No. 624 in Collyer's Coll., 1812, in 5 st. of 4 l.; and again in later hymnals.

(3.) Hark! a glad voice the lonely desert cheers. In Collyer's Coll., 1812, in 4 st. of 4 l.; in Sir Robert's posticorne Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 106; and again in later collections.

(4.) Rise newcrowned with light, imperial Salem rise. In the Leeds Sel. Hys., 1853, No. 607, in 3 st. of 8 l., and in other collections.

(5.) The Saviour comes! by ancient sages foretold. In Mercer's Ch. Pr. & H. Bk., 1864, and others.

It may be noted that l. 46 of The Messiah reads in the original "He wipes the tears for ever from our eyes." This was altered by Pope at the suggestion of Steele, made to Pope in a letter dated June 1, 1712, to "From every face He wipes off every tear." This latter is the poet's authorized reading, is given in his Works, and is found also in the book form reprints of the Spectator. [J. J.]

Pope, Richard Thomas Pembroke, M.A., eldest s. of Mr. Thomas Pope, of Cork, was b. at Cork, March 15, 1790, educated at Hyde Abbey, Winchester, and at Trinity College, Dublin (B.A. 1822); took Holy Orders in 1822; and d. at Kingstown, near Dublin, Feb. 7, 1833. His hymn "In trouble and in grief, O God [Lord]" (Peace in Affliction) was given anonymously in Carus Wilson's Friendly Visitor, June 1824, p. 72, in 4 st. of 4 l., and headed "A Hymn." This text is repeated in the Irish Church Hymnal, 1873, with st. ii. l. 4, "Spread fragrance when they're bruised," altered to "Perfume the air when bruised;" and st. iv. l. 2, "In other times," &c., altered to "At other times," &c. This hymn is in several collections in G. Britain and America. [G. A. C.]

Populo meus quid feci tibi. [Good Friday. The Reproaches.] The Improperia or Reproaches, based on Jeremiah ii. and Micah vi. are in almost all Mediæval Graduals and Missals. They are found in two sets of the 11th cent. in the British Museum (Add. 19768 f. 51 b; Harl. 4951 f. 207 b); an 11th cent. ms. in the Bodleian (Liturg. Misc. 366 f. 20); and still survive in the modern Roman Missal (e.g. Mechlin, 1874, p. 165). In the Sarum use they found a place in the services on Good Friday, and were appointed to be sung during the prostrations (made before a veiled cross held by two of the higher clergy in front of the high altar), known by the name of "creeping to the cross." The elaborate rubrics and the text will be found in the Burntisland reprint of the Sarum Missal, cols. 327–330.

The text is partly in Latin and partly in Greek. In tender language it sets forth the remembrances of our Blessed Lord with the ungrateful people, to whom He had been so bountiful, from the bringing out of them of Egypt, the death of the first-born, the overthrow of the Red Sea, the leading and protecting presence of the pillar of fire, the gift of manna, the living water that followed them, the expulsion of the Canaanite, the magnificence of His love—these facts, with others, in their past history, are recalled to remembrance, and applied to Himself, and their cruel guilt in refusing Him, who had done so much for them. When sung in the Sistine Chapel, at Rome, to music adapted thereto by Palestrina, in 1841, the effect is deeply solemn. [See Grove's Dict. of Music, art. Improperia.]

The only metrical tr. into English in C. U. is the following:—

O my people, tell to me. By G. Moultrie, in the Church Monitor, Bristol, 1866, p. 56. Recast as "O my people, O mine own," in Moultrie's Hy. and Lyrics, 1867, p. 81, and this was included, with alterations, in the People's H., 1867; the Hymnary, 1872; and Thring's Coll., 1882. Of the alterations made in the text the greatest are in st. iii. This reads:—

(1) In the Hymns and Lyrics:—
"Holy, holy, holy God,
Holy Mighty! Lord we be land,
Holy and Immortal King,
Hear in mercy as we sing."

(2) In the People's Hymnal:—
"Holy God! O Holy Might!
Holy, Immortal, Infinite!
Victor o'er the Cross and grave,
Save us, Lord, in mercy save."

(3) In the Hymnary and Thring's Coll.:—
"God of holiness and might!
God Immortal, Infinite!
Holy and Immortal King,
Hear in mercy as we sing."

A prose tr. of the Reproaches was given in the 1869 Appendix to the H. Noted, p. 137. In the 1885 and later eds., No. 191, an antiphon is added beginning with "We venerate Thy Cross." From this text a shortened form is included in the Altar Hymnal, 1884, p. 60. Canon Oakeley has tr. it in metre in his Lyra Liturgica, 1865, as "What, O my people, have I done to thee?" [J. M.]

Πόθεν ἄρξομαι θρηνεῖν. [Βορᾶς καὶ σωτηρίας.]

Pott, Francis, M.A., was b. Dec. 29, 1832, and educated at Brasenose College, Oxford, B.A. 1854; M.A. 1857. Taking Holy Orders in 1858 he was curate of Bishopstrow, Gloucestershire, 1856–8; Ardingly, Berks, 1858–61; Tichurst, Sussex, 1861–66; and Rector of Norhill, Ely, 1866. His

Hys. Sted to the Order of Common Prayer, and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church, according to the Use of the Church of England. To which are added Hymns for Certain Local Festivals, was pub. in 1861, and reprinted from time to time with a few additions. Mr. Pott contributed trs. from the Latin and Syriac, and original hymns, including "Angel voices ever singing" (p. 68, i.), and "Lift up your heads, eternal gates" (Ascension). These original hymns, together with his trs., have been received with much favour and are widely used. In several instances in the preceding pages of this Dictionary (and elsewhere in other works), several trs. from the Latin, and other hymnological work, are attributed to Archdeacon Alfred Pott. We are authorized to state that this ascription of authorship is an error. [See Index of Authors and Translators.] [J. J.]

Potter, Thomas Joseph, was b. at Scarborough in 1827, and joined the Roman Catholic Church in 1847, and subsequently took Holy Orders. For many years he filled the Chair of Pulpit Eloquence and English Literature in the Foreign Missionary College of All Hallows, Dublin. He pub. The Spoken Word; or, The Art of Extemporary Preaching; Sacred Eloquence, or, The Theory and Practice of Preaching; and The Pastor and his People; together with several tales. He tr. the Vesper hymns in the Catholic Psalmist; contributed to the Holy Family Hymns, 1860; and pub. Legends, Lyrics, and Hymns, 1862. His most widely-known hymn is "Brightly gleams our banner" (q.v.). Several of his hymns and trs. are in use in Roman Catholic hymn-books for Missions and Schools. He d. at Dublin in 1873. [J. J.]

902

Pour out Thy spirit from on high. J. Montgomery. [For a Meeting of Clergy.] There are two copies of this hymn in the author's handwriting amongst the R. MSS. On one it is stated that it was written on January 23, 1833, for the Rev. J. Birchall, Rector of Newbury, Berks, who pub. a Sel. of Hys. in 1833. It was repeated in Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, 1833, No. 429, in 5 st. of 4 l., and again in Montgomery's Original Hymns, 1853, No. 306. The most popular form of the hymn is "Lord, pour Thy Spirit from on high." This is in very extensive use. [J. J.]

Powell, Thomas Edward, M.A., s. of David Powell, of Longsten, Essex, was b. at Hampstead, Middlesex, Aug. 22, 1823, and educated at Oriel College, Oxford (B.A. 1845). Ordained in 1846, he was Curate of Cookham-Dean, near Maidenhead; and then Vicar of Bisham, 1848. He pub., in 1858, The Holy Feast, and subsequently his Hys., Anthems, &c., for Public Worship. To this collection he contributed the following hymns:—

1. Again upon the gladsome earth. Harvest.
2. Alleluia! Thy glorious name. Transfiguration.
3. Around Thy throne, O God. All Saints.
4. Bow down Thine ear, Almighty Lord. (1864.) Easter Week.
5. God of hope and consolation. Holy Scripture.
6. Hallelujah, hallelujah, Raise the hymn of thanksgiving. Ascension.
7. Heavenly Father, King of kings. (1864.) Public Worship.
8. Jesus, from Thy heavenly dwelling. (1874.) Holy Matrimony.
9. Lord Jesus, Whom heavenly hosts adore. (1871.) Holy Communion.
10. Let our hymns of prayer ascending. Ascension.
11. Lord, when beside the grave we mourn. (1862.) Burial.
12. Lord, with grief and sin oppressed. (1863.) Lent.
13. O God, eternal Fount of Light. (1866.) Holy Trinity.
14. O Lamb of God for sinners slain. (1866.) Holy Communion.
15. O Saviour, from Thy heavenly throne. (1872.) Missions.
16. Redeemer, ever blest. Holy Baptism.
17. Though bowed beneath Thy chastening rod. (1862.) Lent.
18. Thy kingdom come. Missions.
19. To Thee, O holy King of saints. All Saints.
20. Until Thou comest, Saviour, in Thy might. (1874.) Holy Communion.

Mr. Powell's Hymns, Anthems, &c., have been privately printed as an Appendix H. Hy. for use in his parish of Bisham, Berks. The compilation was begun in 1855, and has gradually grown to 97 hymns, of which the above 19 are by the compiler. The dates given above are those of the composition of the respective hymns. D. Feb. 8, 1901. [J. J.]

Præcursor altus luminis. Venerable Bede. [St. John the Baptist.] The full text of this hymn is found in the collections of Cassander (Cologne, 1558; and Paris, 1616, p. 263); of Ellinger (Frankfurt-am-Main, 1578, p. 373); and of Thomasius (Rome, 1747, ii, p. 387). Also in the works of the Venerable Bede (Migne's Patrol., vol. 94). G. M. Dreves prints it in his Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, p. 22, from a 10th cent. MS. Daniel, i., No. 180, gives only the first four lines. Tr. as:—

1. The great forerunner of the morn. By J. M. Neale in the Hymnal N., 1854; and in H. A. & M., 1861 and 1875.
2. Hail, harbinger of morn. By C. S. Calverley in the Hymnary, 1872. [W. A. S.]

Præclara Christi mors adest. C. Coffin. [SS. Philip and James.] Appeared in the Paris Breviary, 1736, as the hymn at Matins on the Feast of SS. Philip and James, and again in Coffin's Hymni Sacri, 1736, p. 72. The text is also in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. At length dawns near the long expected day. J. Chandler. 1837.
2. Now the hour is drawing near. I. Williams. 1839. [J. J.]

Praise God, Who in the holiest dwells. Miles Smyth and E. Clarkes. [Ps. cl.] This is the second version of Ps. cl. in Smyth's The Psalms of King David Paraphrased, &c., London, Garthwait, 1668. It is in 2 st. of 6 l. In Clarkes's Cleveland Psalter, 1634, an altered version of this was given and headed: "Chiefly from Miles Smyth." It passed thence into Kennedy, 1863, and other collections. [W. T. B.]

Praise Jehovah, bow before Him. W. Barthalomæus. [Ps. xcviii.] Written in 1847, at Mendelssohn's request, for a sacred cantata adapted to Mendelssohn's music to Lauda Sion, composed for a church festival at Liège, May, 1846. It is set for Solo, Quartet, and Chorus as follows: i., ii. C.: iii. S. with C.; iv., v. Q. with C.; vi. C.; vii., viii., ix. S.; then a C. followed by a final Q. and C. The popular form when in use as a hymn is st. i., ii., iv., v., vi., as in the New Cong., 1859, and several others. [H. A. C.]

Praise, my soul, the King of heaven. H. F. Lyte. [Ps. ciii.] This is one of his most successful paraphrases of the Psalms, and is more jubilant than is usually the case with his renderings. It was pub. in his Spirit of the Psalms, 1834, in 3 st. of 6 l., with R. iv. bracketed for omission if so desired. It has passed into numerous collections in most English-speaking countries. Usually st. iv. is omitted, and sometimes minor alterations are introduced. The principal change is that of the fifth line in each stanza from "Praise Him, Praise Him," to "Alleluia, Alleluia," as in H. A. & M. and several others; and the addition of a doxology, "Alleluia to the Father," as in Harland's Church Ps. and Hymnal, 1876. [J. J.]

Praise, O praise our God and King. Sir H. W. Baker. [Harvest.] This hymn is based upon Milton's version of Ps. cxxxvi. (= "Let us with a gladsome mind"), and was written for the 1st ed. of H. A. & M., 1861. From H. A. & M. it has passed into numerous collections in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

Praise the Lord, His glories show. H. F. Lyte. [Ps. ci.] Lyte's original version of Ps. ci., appeared in his Spirit of the Psalms, 1834, in 2 st. of 8 l., and his revised version in the enlarged ed. of the same work in 1836. The two texts may be distinguished by st. ii. ll. 1, 2 thus:—

1834. "Earth to heaven, and heaven to earth Tell his wonders, sing His worth."

1836. "Earth, to heaven exalt the strain, Saints in heaven, to earth again."

Both texts are in C. U., but the first, as in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871; the H. Comp., 1876, and many others, is the more widely used of the two. [J. J.]

Praise the Lord Who reigns above. C. Wesley. [Ps. cl.] Pub. in Ps. & Hys., 1743, in 4 st. of 8 l. (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. viii. p. 303.) In 1780 M. Madan gave st. i., ii. and iv. in his Ps. & Hys., as No. 83. This arrangement was repeated by A. M. Toplady in his Ps. & Hys., 1776, No. 397. From Toplady it passed into several collections with the name of Toplady as the author, as in Hatfield's Church Pt. Bk., N. Y., 1872, No. 160. The form in 2 st. in the Islington Ps. & Hys. (ed. 1802, p. 95), which begins with the first line of the original, is considerably altered throughout. The full original text was given in the revised Wes. H. Bk., 1875, for the first time. [J. J.]

Praise the Lord, Whose mighty wonders. [Ps. cxlviii.] This appeared in The Parent's Poetical Anthology, being a Selection of English Poems primarily designed to assist in forming the tastes and the sentiments of Young Readers, London, F. C. & J. Rivington, 1814. There is no editor's name on the title-page, nor appended to the Preface. On the title-page of the Brit. Mus. copy is written "Mrs. Richard Maul," i.e. the Wife of Bp. Maut. On p. 27 there is:—

"Praise the Lord, &c. Ps. cxlviii.
" Amen.

" Praise the Lord, Whose mighty wonders
Earth, and air, and seas display;
Ye high inhabitants of wonders,
Him, Whose name is full of glory:
All ye works of God, adore Him;
Him, Who made you by His word;
Heaven, exulting shout before Him;
Earth, in concert, praise the Lord.

" In the eastern skies ascending,
Sun, with all thy golden ray,
Ocean, round the globe extending,
Praise Him o'er thy boundless way.
Thou, that crown the lofty mountains,
Awe, in sign of worship, bow;
Ye, that murmur through the fountains
Warble praises, as ye flow.

" Beasts thro' nature's dear dominions,
Praise Him, where the wilds extend:
Praise Him, birds, whose soaring pinions
Bear you to your native end.
Man below, the lord of nature,
Angel quires in realms above,
Hymning, praise the great Creator,
Praise the eternal Fount of Love."

In the S. P. C. K. Hymns, 1852, No. 64, the above text was given with the omission of ll. 4-8 of st. i., and the addition of four lines from C. Wesley's "Love divine, all love excelling," slightly altered as the conclusion of st. iii., thus making 3 st. of 8 l. This text has come down to modern hymnals, and is the one in C. U. The author of the original hymn has not been traced. [J. J.]

Praise the Lord, ye heavens adore Him. [Ps. cxlviii.] This hymn is given in a four-paged tract which is found pasted at the end of some copies of the 1796 xoxaral ed. of the Psalms, Hymns, and Anthems of the Foundling Hospital, London [see Keeshenn, F.], and again also at the end of the edition of words only, pub. in 1801. When this sheet was printed, and when it was added to the musical ed. of 1796, and then to the copy of words only, 1801, is unknown. As the 1801 ed. is only a reprint of the words of the 1796 ed., it suggests that the sheet was added to copies of both editions at the same time, and that after the printing of the 1801 ed. The sheet has this title:—

"Hymns of Praise. For Foundling Apprentices attending Divine Service to return Thanks." and the contents are:—

1. "Father of mercies! deign to hear." By the Rev. Mr. Hewlett. Music by "Shield."
2. "Again the day returns of holy rest." By J. Mason. Music by "Haydn."
3. "Now will the evening star with silver ray." By J. Mason. Music by "Haydn."
4. "Praise the Lord, ye heav'ns adore Him." Music by "Haydn."
5. "With health, and strength, and youth remain." Music by "Gluck."

To these are added the words of a Sanctus to be sung "Before the Communion Service." The special hymn now in consideration is printed thus:—

Hymn from Psalm cxlviii. Haydn.

" Praise the Lord, ye heav'ns adore him;
Praise him angels in the height:
Sun and moon rejoice before him,
Praise him all ye stars and light.

II.

" Praise the Lord, for he hath spoken;
Worlds his mighty voice obey'd:
Laws, which never shall be broken,
For their guidance hath he made.

III.

" Praise the Lord, for he is glorious;
Never shall his promise fail:
God hath made his saints victorious;
Sin and death shall not prevail.

IV.

" Praise the God of our salvation;
Hosts on high his power proclaim:
Heaven, and earth, and all creation,
Laud and magnify his name."

The same text is again found in Ps. & Hymns for Magdalen Chapel, 1804; in the Foundling Coll. of 1809, and then in J. Kempthorne's Select Portions of Ps. & Hys., 1810. In the last case slight changes are introduced, e.g. st. i. l. 7, "Laws which," to "Laws that"; and st. i. l. 8, "hath He," to "He has." This form of the text was repeated very extensively to 1855, when it appeared in the Cooke and Denton Church Hymnal, with the well-known stanza by E. Osler, from Hall's Mitre H. Bk., 1836:—

" Worship, honor, glory, blessing,
Lord we offer unto Thee;
Young and old Thy praise expressing,
In glad homage bend the knee.
Thus archangels sing Thy Name,
We would bow before Thy throne;
As Thine angels serve before Thee,
So on earth Thy will be done."

The use of this hymn in all English-speaking countries, sometimes with the addition of Osler's stanza, and at other times without, is very extensive.

The question of the authorship of this hymn has been a matter of serious inquiry for some years, with the result that on the one hand it is attributed to John Kempthorne, and on the other to Bishop Mant, and both in error. The claim for John Kempthorne was made by D. Sedgwick; and this claim, we find from his nephew, was a pure guess on his part. Mr. Kempthorne's son (the Rev. R. Kempthorne, of Elton Rectory) said in the Guardian (Dec. 10, 1879) that it was not written by his father, and he has repeated the same to the writer of this article during the progress of this work. Kempthorne, in the Preface of the 2nd ed. of his Sel. Portions of Ps. & Hys., 1813, omits it from his list [see Kempthorne, J.]. It is clear therefore that it was not written by John Kempthorne. The ascription of authorship to Bp. Mant occurred through confounding the hymn "Praise the Lord Whose mighty wonders" (q.v.), which appeared in Mrs. Mant's Parent's Poetical Anthology, 1814, with this hymn. [J. J.]

904 PRAISE TO GOD PRAISE TO THEE

Praise to God, immortal praise. Anna L. Barbauld, née Aikin. [Harvest.] This, the most popular and widely used both in Great Britain and America of Mrs. Barbauld's Hymns, first appeared in Dr. W. Enfield's Hys. for Public Worship, &c., Warrington, 1772, No. 36, in 9 st. of 4 l., and entitled "Praise to God in Prosperity and Adversity." In the following year it was repeated in Mrs. Barbauld's (then Miss Aikin) Poems, Lond., J. Johnson, 1773, p. 115, without title, but with Habakkuk iii. 17, 18, "Although the fig-tree shall not blossom," &c., quoted as a note. It is not found in many collections until 1812, when it was included by Dr. Collyer in his Coll., No. 689. From that date it gradually increased in use, sometimes in its complete form, but more frequently with abbreviations, extending to the omission of various stanzas, until in one or two cases it has been reduced to twelve lines only. The various centos, all beginning with the same first line, are too numerous to analyse, save the more important and such as have additions made thereto by others. These are :—

1. In S. F. C. K. Hymns, 1852, No. 172, this cento is given in 4 st. of 8 l., from Dr. Collyer, with alterations, from the original text, and the last "Peace, prosperity and health," from another source.

2. In Morrell and How's Ps. & Hys., 1854 : the same three stanzas as above, and a new fourth stanza by Bishop How, st. iv. l. 1, "Let the nations bow," &c. Repeated in 1871, No. 376, with the last stanza by Bishop How reduced to 6 lines.

3. In the New Mitre Hymnal, 1875, from the original Mitre, H. &c., of 1836, with a doxology.

4. In Kennedy, 1863, No. 1284, the cento is composed of 4 st. of 4 l., of which stanzas i., ii. are from the S. F. C. K. Hymns, 1852, altered; st. iii. is the new stanza first given in the S. P. C. K. as above, and st. iv. a doxology.

Other centos may be traced out by consulting the original text in Lyra Brit., 1867, p. 33, or Lord Selborne's Book of Praise, 1862 and 1867, pp. 283–290. In addition to these centos, beginning with the original first line, there are also the following in C. U. :—

5. Praise to God, unceasing praise. This, in Francis Pott's Hymns, &c., 1861, is the S. F. C. K. Hymns cento, with alterations, and a doxology of his own.

6. Praise to God, unceasing praise. This, in T. Darling's Hys., &c., 1867, is from the original with alterations by Mr. Darling.

7. Lord, amid rising whirlwinds tear. This, in the Presb. Hymnal, 1874, for the Synod of Pittsburgh, U.S.A., Lord, No. 476, is composed of st. iii.–vi. slightly altered.

Most of the foregoing arrangements of this hymn are repeated in other collections than those named, and their use, taken together, is extensive. The text rendered into Latin by R. Bingham, in his Hymns. Christ. Latina, 1871, and beginning "Laus sit Domino sine fine," is a cento of 3 st. of 8 l., compiled from the original. [J. J.]

Praise to God, who reigns above. R. M. Bowan. [St. Michael and All Angels.] Contributed to H. A. & M., and after curtailment and alterations, was pub. therein in 1861. In the revised ed., 1875, the original text (still abbreviated) was restored, with the exception of two minor changes. These facts account for the two texts in H. A. & M. of 1861 and 1875. The line in st. vi., "Thrilling through those Orders wise," refers to the (1) Seraphim; (2) Cherubim; (3) Thrones; (4) Dominions; (5) Princes; (6) Powers; (7) Might; (8) Archangel; and (9) Angel hosts, named in st. ii. and iii. In the American Church Pastorals, Boston, 1864, st. ii., iv., vii. of the 1861 text are given as :—"Seraphim His praises sing." [J. J.]

Praise to the Holiest in the height. Card. J. H. Newman. [Praise.] Written in 1865, and first published in the author's Verses on Various Occasions, in 1868. It forms part of a poem of some length, entitled The Dream of Gerontius. This Dream describes the journey of a disembodied soul from the body to its reception in Purgatory. Various hymns are introduced throughout the poem, and this is given as being sung by the "Fifth Choir of Angelicals" as the disembodied soul is conducted into the presence chamber of Emmanuel previous to passing forward into Purgatory. In 1868 it was transferred to the Appendix to H. A. & M., the only change being the repetition of the first stanza at the close. From H. A. & M. it has passed into a large number of hymn-books. [J. J.]

Praise to Thee, Thou Great Creator. [Praise.] This hymn is commonly ascribed to J. Fawcett, but was only in part composed by him. In 1782 he pub. his Hys. adapted to the circumstances of Public Worship, &c. In this vol. No. 56 is "Lo! the bright the rosy morning," in 6 st. of 8 l., on Spring, the last stanza of which begins, "Praise to Thee, Thou great Creator." In the Lewin's Mead Bristol book (Unitarian) of 1836 this stanza was given as a separate hymn. Then, in the Exeter Unitarian Coll. of Ps. & Hys. for Social and Private Worship, 1812, appeared the hymn as found in modern collections, as follows :—

"Praise to Thee, Thou great Creator,
Praise to Thee from whom all blessings flow;
Join, my soul, with every creature,
Join the universal song.
Father, source of all compassion,
Pure, unbounded grace is Thine,
Richest stores of tender mercy,
Praise Him for His love divine.

"For ten thousand blessings given,
For the hope of future joy,
Sound His praise through earth and heaven,
Sing in rapturous strains on high;
Angelic on earth adore Him,
Ye in lowest ear sang we raise;
There, enraptured, fall before Him,
Lost in wonder, love, and praise."

The portions of those stanzas which are printed in ordinary type are the concluding

905

PRAISE WAITS FOR THEE PRÄTORIUS, BENJAMIN 905

stanza of J. Fawcett's hymn divided into two parts : whilst the lines in italics are mainly from C. Wesley's well-known hymn, "Love divine, all loves excelling" (q. v.), 1747, as the following comparison will show :—

C. Wesley, 1747.	Exeter coll, 1813.
"Jesu, Thou art all compassion,	"Father, Source of all compassion,
Pure unbounded love Thou art;	Pure unbounded grace in Thine
Visit us with Thy salvation,	Hail the God of our Salvation,
Enter every trembling heart.	Praise Him for His love divine.
"Changed from glory into glory,	Joyfully on earth above Him,
Till we take our place before Thee,	Tribute heaven our song we raise;
Till we cast our crowns before Thee,	Then, enraptured, fall before Him,
Lost in wonder, love, and praise."	Lost in wonder, love, and praise.

The cento in the above form of 4 st. is in numerous hymn-books in G. Britain, and in a few also elsewhere. In America it is sometimes found with an additional stanza :—

"Praise to God, the great Creator,
Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
Him the universe shall glorify,
Earth and heaven's radiant host."

In the Lauden Domini, N. Y., 1884, this doxology is dovetailed between st. iii. and v., whilst in Hatfield's Church H. Bk., N. Y., 1872, it is given its legitimate position as the close of the hymn. Taken as a whole the cento is of more than average merit. [W. R. S.]

Praise waits for Thee in Zion, Lord. [Ps. lxv.] This is the version of the 65th Ps. in the Scottish Psalter, 1650. It is in C. U. in its full form, in an abbreviated form, and re-written as "Before Thee, Lord, a people waits," as in the Presb. Hymnal, Philadelphia, 1874. [J. J.]

Praise ye Jehovah, praise the Lord most holy. Lady Cockburn-Campbell. [Ps. cxlix.] Written at Exeter, Dec. 24, 25, and 27, 1838, and subsequently printed in lithograph from the writer's mss., together with 31 additional hymns. It was first pub. in J. G. Deck's Ps., Hys., and Spiritual Songs, 1842, Pt. i., No. 191, in 4 st. of 4 l. This was repeated in Dr. Walker's Ps. & Hys., 1855, with the signature "M. C. C.," and subsequently in a large number of hymn-books. Orig. text in Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872. [J. J.]

Praise ye the Lord ! immortal choir, In heavenly heights above. G. Rawson. [Ps. cxlviii.] Written for the Locks H. Bk., 1853, No. 200, in 9 st. of 4 l. In the author's Hymns, Verses, and Chants, 1876, it is revised and extended to 10 st. Mr. Rawson was somewhat indebted to Waite's paraphrase of the same Psalm, "Praise ye the Lord with joyful tongue" (q. v.), as seen in Waite's st. ii. and Rawson's st. i. :—

Waite, 1706.	"Gabriel, and all th' immortal choir That fill the realms above, Sing ; for the formal eye of Him fire, And feeds you with His love."
Rawson, 1853.	"Praise ye the Lord ! immortal choir In heavenly heights above, With harp and voice and souls of fire, Burning with perfect love."

The resemblance throughout the rest of the hymn is still slight : but not so marked as in the lines which we have quoted. The 1853 text is in extensive use. [J. J.]

Praise ye the Lord ; 'tis good to raise. I. Watts. [Ps. cxlvii.] 1st pub. in his Psalms of David, &c., 1719, p. 385, in 9 st. of 4 l., and entitled "The Divine Nature, Providences, and Grace." It was included by J. Wesley in the 1st ed. of his Ps. & Hys., published in Charlestown, 1736–37, p. 10, with slight variations, the omission of st. ii., and the addition of Ken's doxology, "Praise God," &c. Further alterations were made by Wesley on adapting it for the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 216, and these latter readings are still retained in all collections of the Methodist bodies. The hymn in its original and altered forms is in extensive use. Orig. text in Watts's Psalms, late editions ; Wesley's 1st reading in the reprint of 1736-37 Coll., Lond., 1882 ; and Wesley's final reading in the Wes. H. Bk., 1875. [J. J.]

Praise ye the Lord with joyful tongue. I. Watts. [Ps. cxlviii.] Pub. in his Horæ Lyricæ, 1706, in 14 st. of 4 l., and headed "The Universal Hallelujah." In Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872, st. ii.–iv., vii., viii., and xiii. are given as :—

"Praise ye the Lord ! immortal choirs,
That fill the realms above."

these lines being altered from Watts's—

"Gabriel and all th' immortal choir
That fill the realms above."

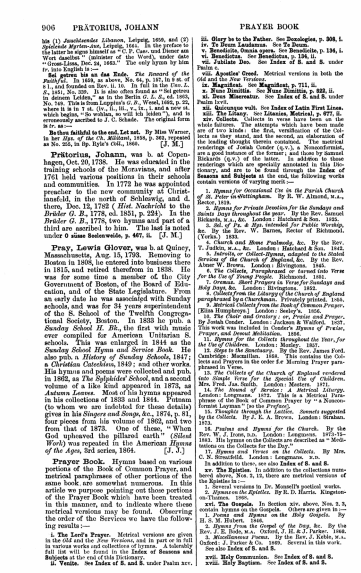
See also "Praise ye the Lord ! immortal choir," by G. Rawson. [J. J.]

Praise to Him Who built the hills. H. Bonar. [Praise of the Trinity.] Pub. in his Hys of Faith and Hope, 1861, in 7 st. of 4 l., and entitled "Praise." It had previously appeared in the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, No. 810. It is also in the American Bapt. Service of Song, Boston, 1871, in 5 st., beginning with st. iii., "Praise to Him Whose love has given." In the Hymnary, 1872, it is again altered as "All praise to Him Who built the hills," and is appointed for Septuagesima. [J. J.]

Prätorius, Benjamin, s. of Andreas Prätorius, pastor at Obergruisdon near Weissenfels in Saxony, was b. at Obergruisdon, January 1, 1636. In 1637 his father was appointed pastor at Gross-Lissa near Delitzsch, in Saxony. Benjamin became a student of theology, and graduated M.A., probably at Leipzig. In the entry of his marriage in the registers of Gross-Lissa, for 1657, he is described as "regularly ordained substitute and future successor of this parish"; and he is never described in the registers except as Pastor-substitute. His ninth child was b. in 1671, and on Jan. 8, 1675, his son Andreas Benjamin, on acting as godfather, is described as "surviving son" of M. Benjamin Prätorius. It is probable that he d. some time in 1674, but as the register of deaths of this period is lost, we are unable to fix the exact date (K. Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 170 ; ms. from Pastor Meckius of Gross-Lissa, &c.).

According to Winkel, ii., 314, he was crowned as a poet on Feb. 10, 1661. In the registers for 1663 he first designs himself "Poeta Caes." and "Aula. poëtarum Caes." In 1664 he signed himself "Poeta Caes. et Aula. poëtarum Caesar." His hymns appeared in his (1) Jesuitenlieder Libanon, Leipzig, 1699, and (2) Opitzische Myrrhen-Ast, Leipzig, 1645. In the preface to the latter he signs himself as "C. P. Cant. und Diener am Wort daselbst" (minister of the Word), under date "Grim-Linn, Dec. 24, 1663." The only hymn by him in English is:—

906



906 PRÄTORIUS, JOHANN PRAYER BOOK

Let prayer be as an Eve. Rule. The Samuel of the Family. In 1859, as above, No. 64, p. 127, in 6 st. of 8 l., and founded on Rev. i. 10. In full in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 226. It is also often found as "Sei getreu bis an den Tod," and "Sei getreu bis in den Tod." In the Unv. L. S., No. 948. This is from Leopold's G. B., Wesel, 1846, p. 32, where it is in 7 st. (iv., ii., iii., v., i., and a new st. which begins, "So wirken, so will ich leiden"), and is erroneously ascribed to J. C. Schade. The original form is in:—

Be thou faithful to the end. Let not. By Miss Warner, in the Appendix of the enlarged 1858, p. 363, reprinted as No. 355, in Sp. Hyde's coll., 1860. [J. M.]

Prätorius, Johann, was b. at Copenhagen, Oct. 20, 1738. He was educated in the training schools of the Moravians, and after 1761 held various positions in their schools and communities. In 1772 he was appointed preacher to the new community at Christiansfeld, in the north of Schleswig, and d. there, Dec. 13, 1782 (Hist. Nachricht to the Brüder G. B., 1778, ed. 1851, p. 224). In the Brüder G. B., 1778, two hymns and part of a third are ascribed to him. The last is noted under O süsse Seelenwelde, p. 467, ii. [J. M.]

Pray, Lewis Glover, was b. at Quincy, Massachusetts, Aug. 15, 1793. Removing to Boston in 1808, he entered into business there in 1815, and retired therefrom in 1838. He was for some time a member of the City Government of Boston, of the Board of Education, and of the State Legislature. From an early date he was associated with Sunday schools, and was for 34 years superintendent of the S. School of the Twelfth Congregational Society, Boston. In 1833 he pub. a Sunday School H. Bk., the first with music ever compiled for American Unitarian S. schools. This was enlarged in 1844 as the Sunday School Hymn and Service Book. He also pub. a History of Sunday Schools, 1847; a Christian Catechism, 1849; and other works. His hymns and poems were collected and pub. in 1862, as The Sylphides' School, and a second volume of a like kind appeared in 1875, as Autumn Leaves. Most of his hymns appeared in his collections of 1833 and 1844. Putnam (to whom we are indebted for these details) gives in his Singers and Songs, &c., 1874, p. 81, four pieces from his volume of 1862, and two from that of 1875. One of these, "When God upheaved the pillared earth" (Silent Work) was repeated in the American Hymns of the Ages, 3rd series, 1864. [J. J.]

Prayer Book. Hymns based on various portions of the Book of Common Prayer, and metrical paraphrases of other portions of the same book are somewhat numerous. In this article we purpose pointing out those portions of the Prayer Book which have been treated in this manner, and to indicate where these metrical versions may be found. Observing the order of the Services we have the following results:—

i. The Lord's Prayer. Metrical versions are given in the Old and the New Versions, and in part or in full in numerous collections of hymns. A tabularly arranged list will be found in the Table of Sources and Subjects at the end of this Dictionary.

ii. Venite. See Index of S. and S. under Psalm xcv.

iii. Glory be to the Father. See Doxologies, p. 308, i.

iv. Te Deum Laudamus. See Te Deum.

v. Benedicite, Omnia opera. See Benedicite, p. 134, i.

vi. Benedictus. See Benedictus, p. 134, ii.

vii. Fabitur Deo. See Index of S. and S. under Psalm.

viii. Apostles' Creed. Metrical versions in both the Old and the New Versions.

ix. Magnificat. See Magnificat, p. 711, ii.

x. Nunc Dimittis. See Nunc Dimittis, p. 832, ii.

xi. Quicunque vult. See Index of S. and S. under Psalm lxxvi.

xii. Quicunque vult. See Index of Lasts First Lines.

xiii. The Litany. See Litanies, Metrical, p. 977, ii.

xiv. Collects. Collects in verse have been at the least numerous. They are of two kinds: the first, versification of the Collects as they stand, and the second, an elaboration of the leading thoughts therein contained. The metrical renderings of Josiah Conder (q.v.), a Nonconformist, and Bickersteth (q.v.) of the Church of England, and Bickersteth (q.v.) of the latter. In addition to these renderings which are specially annotated in this Dictionary, and are to be found through the Index of Sources and Subjects at the end, the following works contain versions of varying merit:—

1. Hymns for Occasional Use in the Parish Church of St. Peter in Nottingham. By R. W. Almond, M.A., Rector, 1819.

2. Hymns for Private Devotion for the Sundays and Saints' Days throughout the year. By the Rev. Samuel Bickersteth, M.A., &c. London: Hatchard & Son. 1825.

3. Set of Ps. & Hys. intended for Public Worship, &c. By the Rev. W. Barnes, Rector of Richmond. (Yorks.) 1826.

4. Church and Home Psalmody, &c. By the Rev. T. Judkin, M.A., &c. London: Hatchard & Son. 1842.

5. Introits, or Collect-Hymns, adapted to the Stated Services of the Church of England, &c. By the Rev. Alex. Dallas, M.A. London: Rivingtons. 1844.

6. The Collects, Paraphrased or turned into Verse for the Use of Young People. Richmond. 1841.

7. Sermons. Short Prayers in Verse for Sundays and Holy Days, &c. London: Rivingtons. 1852.

8. The Collects of the Church of England paraphrased by a Churchman. Privately printed. 1855.

9. Metrical Collects from the Book of Common Prayer. (Miss Humphreys.) London: Seeley's. 1856.

10. The Choir and Oratory; or, Praise and Prayer, by Members of the Church of England (R. Waller). 1857. This work was included in Costerton's Hymns of Praise, Prayer, and Sacred Meditation. 1865.

11. Hymns for the Collects throughout the Year, for the Use of Children. London: Nunley. 1857.

12. Hymns in the Sanctuary. By the Rev. James Ford. Cambridge: Macmillan. 1858. This contains the Collects, Epistles, and Gospels in the order for Morning Prayer paraphrased in Verse.

13. The Collects of the Church of England rendered into Simple Verse for the Special Use of Children. Mrs. Fred. Jas. Smith. London: Masters. 1871.

14. The Collects of the Year. By the Rev. J. Jennings. London: Longmans. 1872. This is a Metrical Paraphrase of the Book of Common Prayer by "a Nonconformist Layman" (so the Preface).

15. Thoughts through the Collects. Annett suggested by the Collects. By J. L. A. Steven. London: Strahan. 1873.

16. Psalms and Hymns for the Church. By the Rev. W. J. Irons, D.D. London: Longmans. 1874-75-1883. His hymns on the Collects are described as "Meditations in Verse on the Collects."

17. Hymns and Verses on the Collects. By Mrs. C. N. Scandfield. London: Longmans. n.d.

In addition to these, see also Index of S. and S.

xv. The Epistles. In addition to the collections mentioned under Nos. 1, 2, 11, there are metrical versions of the Epistles in:—

1. Several versions in Dr. Mussell's poetical works.

2. Hymns on the Epistles. By R. D. Harris. Kingston-on-Thames. 1880.

xvi. The Gospels. In Section xiv. above, Nos. 2, 3, will be found versions of the Gospels. Others are given in:—

1. Poems and Hymns on the Holy Gospels. By H. S. W. Hebert. 1848.

2. Hymns from the Gospel of the Day, &c. By the Rev. Sir H. W. Baker, Bart. Oxford: J. Parker & Co. 1859.

3. Miscellaneous Poems. By the Rev. J. Keble, M.A. Oxford: J. Parker & Co. 1869. Several in this work.

See also Index of S. and S.

xvii. Holy Communion. See Index of S. and S.

xviii. Holy Baptism. See Index of S. and S.

PRAYER IS THE BREATH OF GOD PRESWERK, SAMUEL 907

xix. The Catechism. In addition to consulting:—

1. Hymns for Children, 1845-46. By Dr. Neale.

2. Hymns for the Young, 1844. By Dr. Neale.

3. Hymns on the Catechism. By the Rev. I. Williams, 1858.

See also in the Index of Subjects and Seasons under "The Creed," "The Lord's Prayer," "The Ten Commandments," "Holy Communion," and "Holy Baptism."

xx. Confirmation; Holy Matrimony. See Index of S. and S.

xxi. Visitation of the Sick. See Index of S. and S. under "Affliction," "Patience," "Resignation," and kindred subjects.

xxii. Burial. See Index of S. and S. under "Burial" and "Funeral."

xxiii. Churching of Women. See Index of S. and S.

xxiv. Commination. See Index of S. and S. under "Ash Wednesday" and "Lent."

xxv. Ordination; Consecration of Bishops. See Index of S. and S.

xxvi. Hymns. The hymns found in the Supplement at the end of the Psalms in the old Prayer Books, although often called "the Prayer Book hymns," are, strictly speaking, not so. Those hymns are noted under New Version, and Old Version in Various.

The whole Prayer Book was rendered into Latin Verse by Baudolph Gilpin, as:—

Liturgica Sacra; cura Theotisca, Sibi inexplicabilis veluti Aquarius et vili Aerarius Regni Solimii à Stand. Gilpin Sacerd. ut, Opuscis Spiritualibus omnibus ac Christianis etiam pueris aquatendis. Anno Dom. 1661.

Another work which deals with every portion of the Prayer Book from the "Sentences" to "The Fifth of November," is:—

A Companion to the Book of Common Prayer, Being an Explanation of the Liturgy, Offices, and Articles of Worship, Epistles, Gospels, and on the Feasts, Festivals, and Fasts of the United Church of England and Ireland. London: Smith, Elder & Co. 1851.

This work was compiled by a lady, and contains about 600 hymns. [J. J.]

Prayer is the breath of God in man. B. Beddome. [Prayer.] This appeared in Robert Hall's posthumous ed. of Beddome's Hymns, &c., 1817, No. 405, in 5 st. of 4 l., and headed "Importance of Prayer." It was added to the 27th ed. of Rippon's Sel., 1827, No. 353 (Pt. i.), and from thence has passed into several collections, sometimes dated 1787 (Rippon's 1st ed.) in error, and at other times with the opening line changed to "Prayer is the Spirit of our God." The hymn "When God inclines the heart to pray," in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, is composed of st. iv., v. of the original. [J. J.]

Prayer is the soul's sincere desire. J. Montgomery. [Prayer.] This hymn was written in 1818, at the request of the Rev. E. Bickersteth, for his Treatise on Prayer. It was first printed in 1818, together with three other hymns by Montgomery as Prayer ("Thou, God, art a consuming fire," "Lord, teach us how to pray aright," and "What shall we ask of God in prayer?"), on a broadsheet, for use in the Sunday Schools of Sheffield (Wilcockbank Hall Library). In 1819 it was published simultaneously in Bickersteth's Treatise on Prayer and the 8th ed. of Cotterill's Sel., No. 278. Cotterill's text is that of the broadsheet, whilst Bickersteth's is slightly different, as in st. v. l. 4, "And cry 'Behold,'" &c., changed to "And say 'Behold,'" &c., and st. vi., which reads in each:—

Cotterill. "In prayer on earth the saints are one,
They speak the same the whole world round
Where with the Father and the Son
Sweet fellowship they bind."

Bickersteth. "The saints in prayer appear as one,
In word, and deed, and mind,
When, with the Father, and the Son,
Their fellowship they find."

In his Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 480, Montgomery repeated the text as in Bickersteth, with the change in st. vii. l. 4 of "For sinners intercedes," into "For mourners intercedes." In his private copy of the Christian Psalmist Montgomery marked st. iv. and v. to be transposed in case of a reprint, and this was carried into effect in his Original Hys., 1853, No. 62. The altered line, st. vii. l. 4, is also restored to read "For sinners intercedes." In addition to the extensive use of the hymn in its full form, it is also abbreviated. Sometimes the abbreviated texts begin with the first stanza, and at other times with "Prayer is the Christian's vital breath," or with "Prayer is the contrite sinner's voice." [J. J.]

Precious Bible! what a treasure. J. Newton. [Holy Scriptures.] Pub. in his Twenty Six Letters, &c. By Omicron, 1774, in 6 st. of 6 l., and headed, "The Word of God more precious than Gold." It was repeated in R. Conyers's Coll., 1774, No. 270, and again in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. ii., No. 65. It is found in a few modern hymnbooks. [J. J.]

Precious promise God hath given. N. Niles. [The Divine Guide.] Concerning this hymn and its writer, S. W. Duffield says in his English Hymns, 1886, p. 461:—

"This well-known 'Moody and Sankey' hymn was written by Nathaniel Niles, a lawyer of Morristown, New Jersey, and, at that time, a lawyer in New York City. Mr. Niles was born at South Kingston, Rhode Island, September 18th, 1838. He composed these verses on the margin of a newspaper in the railway car while on his way to business."

The hymn was pub. in The Episcopalian; and again in P. Bliss's Gospel Songs, 1874, with music by Bliss. The text and music in I. D. Sankey's Sacred S. and Solos, are from the Gospel Songs. [J. J.]

Preis, Lob, Ehr, Ruhm, Dank, Kraft und Macht. [Glory to the Lamb.] In the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 591, in 7 st. of 6 l., repeated in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1628. It is tr. as, "Thanksgiving, honour, praise and might," as No. 628 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754, and No. 630 in the ed. of 1886. [J. M.]

Preiswerk, Samuel, s. of Alexander Preiswerk, pastor at Rümlingen, in the canton of Basel, was b. at Rümlingen, Sept. 19, 1799. After studying at the Universities of Basel, Tübingen, and Erlangen, he was for some time curate in charge at Benken, in the canton of Basel. In 1824 he was appointed preacher at the Basel Orphanage, and in 1829 tutor of Hebrew at the Basel mission house. In 1830 he was chosen as pastor of Muttenz, near Basel, but on the outbreak of the Revolution of 1832 had to leave. After being from 1834 to 1837 professor of Old Testament Exegesis and Oriental languages in the Evangelical Theological Institution at Geneva, he returned to Basel, where he was instituted, in 1843, as pastor of St. Leonard's church, and in 1859 as antistes, or highest dignitary in the Cathedral. He d. at Basel, Jan. 13, 1871

(O. Kvasz, 1879, p. 400; Allg. Deutsche Biog. xxvi. 552, &c.).

Prentiss, was a distinguished preacher. He was one of the editors of the Basel G. B., 1854. His hymns were written at various times, generally to be used at Mission and other meetings in which he was to take part. Sixteen were included in a collection edited by two of his friends and published in 1856 as Hymns of Faith and Hope. Another Hymns (?) hymns old and new, 3rd ed. Eight of his hymns are in Knapp's Ev. L. S., ed. 1884. The only one tr. into English is:—

Das ist der Gemeine Stärke. Missions. In 1846, as above, No. 38, p. 138, in 6 st. of 4 l. Included in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1853, No. 1180 (1884, No. 1396). Tr. as "This is the Lord's Command," in Miss Winkworth's Lyra Ger., 2nd ser., 1858, p. 33, and her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 104 (she misquotes the first line as Dass ist der Gemeine Stärke). Repeated in the Fr. & Hym., Bedford, 1859, and the Ohio Luth. Hyf., 1880. [J. M.]

Prentiss, Elizabeth, née Payson, youngest daughter of Dr. Edward Payson, was b. at Portland, Maine, Oct. 26, 1818; married to George Lewis Prentiss, D.D., then at Bedford, Massachusetts, April, 1845; and d. at Dorset, Vermont, Aug. 13, 1878. Her Life and Letters by her husband appeared some time after. Dr. Prentiss removed from Bedford to New York in 1851, and was appointed Professor of Pastoral Theology at Union Seminary, New York, 1873. Mrs. Prentiss's works include The Flower of the Family; Stepping Heavenward, 1869; and Religious Poems, 1873. Of her hymns the two following are most widely known:—

1. As on a vast eternal shore. Thanksgiving. Contributed to Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869.

2. More love to Thee, O Christ. More Love to Christ desired. Written in 1869, and first printed on a fly-sheet; then in Hutton's Church S. Mo., N. Y., 1872. [F. M. B.]

Presbyterian Hymnody, English. Presbyterianism in England presents in its history four distinct and sharply defined periods, and in all of these it has been directly associated with English hymnody.

i. It was the form of religion "as by law established" in England from 1647 to 1652, a period of five years. It was originally intended to institute a Synod in each county, and a General Assembly for the whole kingdom. The usurpation of Cromwell, however, and the interference of the army in ecclesiastical as well as in civil affairs, prevented the execution of this design, and it was only in London and Lancashire that Synods were formed. In Lancashire there were nine Presbyteries, and several must have been formed in the neighbouring counties. The Presbyteries of Manchester and Newcastle-on-Tyne were established in 1646 and 1648, under the ordinance of Parliament; and the first meeting of the Synod of Lancashire was held in 1646.

The Metrical Psalms, which were in use in the Presbyterian Churches during this period were those of Francis Rous (q.v.), Speaker of the House of Commons, and one of the lay deputies to the Westminster Assembly. [See Psalters, English, § xi.]

ii. The overthrow of Presbyterianism was followed by a general decline. Having ceased to meet in Presbytery, many of the ministers, in the face of the Calvinism of the Westminster standards, became tinged with Arianism which ultimately developed into Socinianism. A considerable number of congregations in various parts of the country, especially in the north, adhered to the doctrine formulated in those documents; others became Congregationalists; but a considerable number also were influenced by their Arian pastors. Thus in the course of 150 years the once rigidly orthodox Church became openly Unitarian.

During this period, the Scottish Psalter of 1650 was in use amongst the congregations throughout England.

iii. In 1836 a new era dawned. A convention of ministers and elders of the remaining orthodox Presbyterians was held at Manchester, when they agreed to form themselves into a Synod, in accordance with the recommendation of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, and styled the same "The Presbyterian Church in England." For forty years its progress was rapid and encouraging. The Home Mission Committee succeeded in establishing preaching stations in many of the leading towns and cities, especially in Liverpool, Newcastle, Manchester, and London, which became self-supporting. Great activity was also shown in Foreign Mission work, especially in China and India.

For a few years the reconstructed body used the Psalter of 1650 as before; but in 1847 a committee was appointed to prepare a hymn-book for its use, which was published as Paraphrases & Hymns, &c., in 1857. In 1867 the late Rev. Dr. Hamilton, of Regent Square Church, London, laid upon the table of the Synod Psalms and Hymns for Divine Worship. This book consisted of 521 hymns and versions of Psalms, together with paraphrases of Scripture. It was carefully edited, and set to music of a high order, the latter being edited by Dr. Bimbault. It was accompanied by a Preface setting forth its scope and design, and embodying an explanation of its contents. As a hymnal it soon took a foremost position, and was almost universally adopted by the congregations of the body in England, and also by many congregations of Presbyterians in the British Colonies, especially in Australia, New Zealand, and at the Cape.

iv. In 1876 a great impetus was given to Presbyterianism in England by the union which then took place between the Presbyterian Church in England, and nearly 100 congregations belonging to the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland, located throughout England, and many of which date their origin from the 18th century. This united body is now known as the "Presbyterian Church of England."

At the Union in 1876 the United Presbyterian section continued to use the hymnal which had been recently introduced by the Mother Church in Scotland—The Presbyterian Hymnal. [See Scottish Hymnody], and the Presbyterian Church in England congregations, mainly, the Psalms and Hymns for Divine Worship of 1867. A feeling, however, arose that the time had come when a new hymnal, enriched with the fruits of more recent hymnody, should be prepared. A committee was accordingly appointed by the Synod of 1886, with instructions to consider what should be done with a view not only to enrich the materials for the service of song in the sanctuary, but to bring the congregations of the Church, as far as possible, into unison in the matter. Under the convenorship of the Rev. W. Rigby Murray, Brunswick Street Church, Manchester, that committee produced in 1887 the present hymnal of the "Presbyterian Church of England," Church Praise. (Lond., Nisbet & Co.). It contains 335 hymns and 19 doxologies, arranged in 15 sections, as i. "The Holy Trinity"; ii. "The Lord Jesus Christ"; iii. "The Holy Spirit"; iv. "The Gospel," &c. In the text of the hymns the originals have been followed in every instance except where a divergence seemed to exist in doctrine from that of the Presbyterian Church. The section for the young forms a prominent feature, 63 hymns being supplied for the purpose of adapting the collection for Sunday Schools and Children's Services. The music has been revised by Dr. E. J. Hopkins, and is of a high order. The expression marks throughout the collection are by the Rev. W. Rigby Murray.

v. Great progress has been made in Psalmody in the Presbyterian Church of England within the past twenty years. The use of instrumental music, strictly forbidden till 1876, has become general. The practice of chanting and the use of anthems in public worship, are also spreading rapidly. Sir Herbert Oakeley's Bible Psalter is in use in a considerable number of congregations; and the Rev. W. Rigby Murray (Editor of Church Praise, and School Praise,) has published (1886) The Revised Psalter, being the first attempt to adapt the Revised Version of the Holy Scriptures to chant music.

vi. The only hymn-writer of note belonging to the Presbyterian Church of England is the late J. D. Burns, M.A., sometime minister at Hampstead, who died in 1864. [See Burns, J. D.] [W. R. M.]

Prichard, Vicard, M.A., younger brother of Rhys Prichard, was an eminent Welsh poet and the author of the well-known book called Canwyll y Cymry. He was b. at Llanymddyfri, Carmarthenshire, about 1579. His father was the owner of large property in the neighbourhood. He was educated at Jesus College, Oxford, where he took his degree in June, 1602, having been previously ordained Priest on the 25th of April in that year by John, Suffragan Bishop of Colchester. In the same year he was presented to the Vicarage of Llandingad, his native parish, in which the town of Llandovery is situated, and whence he was called Vicar of Llandovery. As a preacher he was one of the first of his day, and such was his popularity that when he came to keep residence at St. David's, of which Cathedral he was a Prebendary, he was obliged to keep a moveable pulpit, which was placed in the churchyard, the Cathedral being too small for his congregations. Perceiving the people to be very ignorant, and also much addicted to singing, he turned the substance of his sermons into verse which he gave to his parishioners, and thus originated most of those hymns which had so great an influence over the countrymen. He d. at Llandovery in 1644. When the pious Bishop Bull, who was so charmed with Prichard's character and the unspeakable good done in Wales by his poems, wished to be buried near him, his grave could not be found. [W. G. T.]

Primers and Offices for the Laity. I. Introduction.—1. The term Primer, in its ritual sense, designates a series of devotional books for the laity, marked by certain general characteristics. The word is found thus as early as Piers Ploughmans (before 1360). The earliest known copy is a MS. of the end of the 14th cent. The earliest printed Primer, according to the Sarum Use, is of the year 1494. Its contents are:—

(1) The Kalendar. (2) Sunday Prayers. (3) Matyns of our lady, with prymo and the houres, the houres of the passyon of our lorde, and of the compasyon of our lady. (4) De Profundis for all Cristen soules. (5) Sunday prayers. (6) The fifteen houres of the passyon. (7) Placebo and Dirige. (8) The seven psalmes with the letanye and suffrages. (9) Placebo, Dirige and commendacyon. (10) Psalmes of the passyon. (11) The fifteen Ues in Englysche. (12) Sunday prayers.

From this period to 1545 a number of editions of the Sarum Primer are extant. Additions are made to the contents of the volume, which attains its greatest development in the editions of Regnault at Paris, 1526-34 (Rev. Bd. Hoskins). From 1545 there is a break in the Sarum series, but it is resumed in 1551, and in Mary's reign (1554-8). These Sarum Primers are of great interest in regard to the provision of vernacular devotions for the laity in the Roman Church.

2. The Reformation produced another series, which may be divided into three stages: (1) The illicit Primers of the Gospellers, commencing as early as 1530. The earliest extant edition is that known as Marshall's Primer (1534-5). The basis of these is still the Sarum book, but with alterations, omissions (e.g. in some editions, of the Litany and Dirige or Office for the Dead), and explanations in the Reformed sense. (2) The Primers of Henry VIII and Edward VI. (3) The Revised editions of these, with the Orarium, of Elizabeth.

3. Finally, The 17th cent. (1599-1706) produced a series founded no longer on the Sarum but on the Roman Breviary, for the use of English Roman Catholics.

4. For the purposes of this Dictionary, these groups, with their numerous members, can only be considered with reference to the hymns of the Latin hymns, which they exhibit. As they extend over a lengthened period, they present a variety of renderings, changing with the change of poetical fashion, and are thus well worth attentive study with a view to securing the best representation of the Latin hymns for purposes of worship. They seem, except in a few cases, of which an echo remains in the 18th cent. of this century, to have passed almost into oblivion, even among Roman Catholics.

ii. Sarum Primers.—1. The MS. Primer of Sarum (c. 1400), printed in Mr. Maskell's Monumenta Ritualia (vol. iii.), has prose renderings of the hymns. A MS. at Cambridge (c. 1430) has the memories of the hours in metre. In the Sarum Primers, 1538-64, and 1555-8, not only the hymns for the hours and the memories, but portions of the Dirige (the Office for the Dead), are versified in a rude fashion; more, apparently, as an indication of metre in the original than for singing. Such a verse as this could never have been sung to the tune of "Veni Creator":

"Come holy Ghost, Creator eternall
In our soules to make visitation,
And fylle the hertes that bee spirituall
With thy heavenly inspiration."

iii. Unauthorised Primers of the Reformation.—Of the early and illicit primers of the Reformation, the primer known as Marshall's, 1535 (reprinted in Three Primers set forth in the reign of Henry VIII., Clarendon Press), is a good type. The hymns for the hours are versified. In metre they are more regular than those of the Sarum series, and more conformed to Latin types. The Latin originals of the Sarum series are rejected; and all hymns to the B. V. M. are omitted. The "Veni Creator" is translated in part, and probably many of the hymns have some Latin source of inspiration, but the feeling and the doctrinal cast is that of Coverdale's Goostly Psalmes and the Gospellers. Bp. Hilsey's Primer (1539), which was drawn up at Thos. Cromwell's command, is based for uses on the Sarum series, is similar to it in irregularity of metre, and retains with little modification the addresses to the B. V. M.

iv. Authorised Primers, 1545–1559.—1. The Primer of Henry VIII. (1545), which was reprinted frequently, with increasing modification of the worship of the B. V. M. up to 1553, and then revised under Elizabeth, in 1559, chooses from the Sarum Breviary an entirely new set of hymns, "Jam lucis"; "Alex diei nuntius"; "Consors paterni luminis"; "Rerum Creator"; "Æeterna cœli gloria"; "Salvator mundi"; and in two cases, apparently, joins centos from two Latin hymns so as to form a new piece. They are chosen partly for allusions to the hours for which they are fixed, and partly as expressions of sober piety. The trs. are evidently intended to reproduce Latin measures, and are either trochaic or L.M. (The sacred use of L.M. for our hymns springs from the Reformation Primer, as a representative of the Iambic Latin.) The versification is a great advance on the Sarum Primers, and the trs. contain some good verses. The following may serve as a specimen of the sort of verse which might be still enshrined in the Prayer Book if the Latin hymns had then been made part of Matins and Evensong.

"Quench the flames of our debate:
Feed and nurture best abate;
Grant unto our body health,
To our hearts true peace and wealth."

In the assertion if not the production of this book, Cranmer must have had a hand, and a letter of his (Oct. 7, 1544, Works, p. 412, Parker Society) shows that he had it in his mind to translate the Latin hymns. But the Prayer Book of 1549 has no hymns, except the "Veni Creator" (C.M.), in the Ordinal; nor has that of 1552. And as if the omission in both cases was the result of some change of view, perhaps connected with Calvin's restriction of praise to the Metrical Psalter, the Primer of 1553, which has very little of the distinctive features of the other primers, and is based on the Book of Common Prayer, has no hymns whatever.

2. In connexion with the Primer of Elizabeth, or more accurately with the Orarium (1560), should be mentioned a book called The Hours of Prayer, &c., 1027, by Bp. Cosin; and John Austin's Devotions in the Ancient Way of Offices, 1668 [Austin, J.]. Both are framed on the model of the Primers, and have some Latin translations, but most of the pieces are original English hymns [English Hymnody, Early, § III. 10].

v. Roman Primers, 1568–1706. It is probable that some Primer was issued by the Church of Rome in the earlier part of Elizabeth's reign; but for the present an edition of 1599 (Lambeth Lib.) published at Antwerp, with a preface signed R. V. (probably Robert Verdegan) must be considered the first of a new series, founded no longer on the Sarum but on the Roman Breviary. The numbers of it are the Primer of 1599, reprinted 1604, 1650 and 1658, all at Antwerp; the Primer of 1615, Mechlin (Brit. Mus.), reprinted at St. Omer, 1619, and again (place not given) 1629 (Brit. Mus.); that of 1684, Rouen; 1685, Antwerp; 1687, printed by Henry Hills, London; 1706, no place of publication or name of printer; reprinted in 1717 and 1732.

So far as the general contents of these editions are concerned, it is sufficient to say that they add to the Hours of the B. V. and the general outline of the Sarum books the Hours of the Cross, and the office of the Holy Ghost. The Antwerp editions are alike in general arrangement; but that of 1658 adds "with the Litanies of the Saints, and the Litany of Jesus, and St. James," and the Litany of Our Lady of Loretto. The Rouen book has a different arrangement and six offices, as well as other new matter, not found in the Antwerp editions. The London edition (1687, Bishop Cosin and Brit. Museum) is of great interest as having been "Published by His Majesties Command, for the Excellent Majesty for his Household and Chapel," at the south of James's power. It adds to the contents of the Antwerp books, the Vespers on Sundays and Holydays, the Ordinary of The Mass, and several other matters, and has a different arrangement in contents and arrangement to the Antwerp, 1658.

2. The hymns in this series have lately attracted well-deserved attention. One of the new features of these primers is a selection of "Hymns throughout the year." The Latin originals chosen for translation remain constant in all the edd. (speaking generally), and are, until 1706, Vesper hymns: in 1706, the whole of the Breviary hymns are translated. In the case of the Vesper hymns and those that are incorporated in the offices (say 40) there are consequently four sets of translations from the same originals, changing by easy steps from the Elizabethan freshness of 1599 to the Dydonesque rhetoric of 1706. (The change is the more gradual from the fact, that with some exceptions, especially in 1706, the metres remain the same. In the preface to the reprint of 1694 it is said that "the hymnes are so turned into English meeter that they may be soong unto the tunes in Latin;" and these metres, with the exception of the Sapphics, approved themselves (in later editions) A good selection from these trs., printed side by side in pairs, for comparison, in Mr. Orby Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884, has made some of these hymns easy of access. One other hymn of 1694 should have been added, the beautiful translation of "Veni Sancte Spiritus" ("Come unto us, Holy Ghost"), of which Mr. Shipley has published the revision of 1685. It is singularly like Cornwall's translation, "Holy Spirit, Lord of Light," and the H. A. & M. translations. "Come, Thou Holy Spirit, come," in treatment, and here and there in actual lines.

3. The Primer of 1615 is examined under Drummond, 18 of its hymns being included in the 1711 ed. of Drummond's poetical works.

Mr. Orby Shipley, in the Annus Sanctus, strongly disputes Drummond's claim. (See also Saturday Review, Aug. 23, 1884.) Mr. W. T. Brooke, however, still upholds Drummond's authorship. The Primer of 1615, 1st ed., 16th, the 1st, are said to have been the work of "one most skilful in English poetrie."

4. The next known Primer is that of 1684. But in a little book, examined by Mr. W. T. Brooke, entitled Prioru Pietie, by Samuel Speed, 1677, there are renderings of "Christe sanctorum decus," in C.M., and the "Dies Iræ," and 7 trs. which reappear in the Primer of 1685, relics apparently of some lost Primer. The Primer of 1684 (Rouen) is independent in arrangement of the 1615 (Mechlin) and 1599 (Antwerp), and has additional devotions. The hymns are generally the same as in 1615. But in the additional offices of "The Name of Jesus," and "The Immaculate Conception," there are new hymns. The hymns in the office of the "Blessed Trinity," and of "The Holy Ghost," are also new. In the first of these offices is a good tr. of "Jesu dulcis memoria" (part), in L.M. couplets (Jesu, the very thought of Thee), which is repeated and furnished with additional stanzas, so as to represent the entire hymn, in 1685. The Primer of 1685 has, as has been said, 7 pieces (trs. of "Te Deum"; "Veni Sancte Spiritus"; "Memento salutis Auctor"; "Jesu dulcis memoria"; "Salutis humanæ Sator"; "Creator alme siderum"; "Salvete Flores"), found in Speed's Prioru Pietie, 1677. As Speed's book is quite as much a compilation as an original (e.g. containing pieces from Austin, Quarles, and a variation of Conin's "Veni Creator"), these pieces are probably copied from some earlier Primer now lost. The "Te Deum" is in the Primer for the first time in metre. The hymns for the office of "The Holy Ghost" are identical with those of 1684. The "Veni Sancte Spiritus," which had come down from 1599, is revised (see Annus Sanctus, Appendix, p. 33, "Come unto us, Holy Ghost"). A few hymns for Holy Days (Martina, St. Joseph, Hermenegild, Vemantius, Teresa) are added. The Latin originals are throughout those of the Reformed Roman Breviary of 1632, and the trs. are new. In this Primer the new manner of the Restoration poetry makes itself distinctly felt. The trs. are sometimes unequal, but there are stanzas and some whole pieces of great nervousness and beauty, and its excellence is attested by the large use made of its trs. in the English offices of the 18th cent. The tr. of "Cœlestis urbs" ("Jerusalem, celestial place") is a fine one. The Primer of 1687 (London) is, so far as its hymns are concerned, a revision of 1685, with the addition of a few new hymns. The revision extends to the substitution of new stanzas in some cases. Among the new hymns is a tr. of "Dies Iræ" ("Day of wrath, that dreadful day"), which appears in this same year (1687) in The Great Sacrifice of the Next Law, 8th edition, by James Dymock, but is probably only quoted by him, either from this Primer or some unknown earlier source. The new tr. of "Stabat Mater" ("Under the world-redeeming rood"), is notable as occurring again in the succeeding Primer of 1706, and later Office Books.

5. The Primer of 1706 demands somewhat closer attention. Its place of publication is not stated. In arrangement and contents it recalls the Antwerp series, not the London Primer of 1687. The number of translations it contains is a great advance on preceding Primers. Not the Vesper hymns only but those for Matins and Lauds are translated in the series of hymns for the year; the Breviary hymns are translated entire, together with the "Dies Iræ," and "Jesu dulcis memoria," in all 120 pieces. Of these, the tr. of "Stabat Mater" is from 1687. The "Dies Iræ" ("The day of wrath, that dreadful day") was first published in a text that varies from this, in Tate's Miscellanea Sacra (1696, 2nd edition, 1698), and was there ascribed to Lord Roscommon. The tr. of "Veni Creator" ("Creator Spirit, by whose aid") is Dryden's. So also is the tr. of "Ut queant laxis" ("O sylvan Prophet"), the hymn for evensong on St. John Baptist's Day; and the tr. of the "Te Deum" ("Thee, Sovereign God, our grateful accents praise"); both of which were printed by Scott in his Life of Dryden, 1808. These two latter translations are in metres that had not occurred in previous Primers. The tr. "O sylvan Prophet," is one of 11 pieces, chiefly representing the Sapphic originals, which preceding Primers had always dealt with awkwardly, from an attempt to produce some syllabic equivalent of the Latin. The tr. of the "Te Deum" is one of a series of 8 pieces in heroic metre. A third new metre (C.M.) occurs in the tr. of "Ave maris stella," and "Jesu dulcis memoria," which is not found in any known Primer previously, though there are two C.M. trs. in Speed's Prioru Pietie, which may belong to some lost edition. A very full selection from this Primer is given in Mr. Orby Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884; and it demands closer analysis than the rest, because both Mr. W. T. Brooke and Mr. Shipley claim a very large proportion of these translations as the work of Dryden. The special question of Dryden's authorship is dealt with under Dryden, John, but one or two general remarks may be best given here.

The claim of Dryden will in great measure depend on the evidence of unity of hand. The natural presumption in the several successive editions of the Primers is that each new set of translations is by a single hand; and in the case of the edition of 1615 this is positively asserted by the publisher. But it is not always safe to assume it. Thus the pieces in Speed's Prioru Pietie may possibly be older than the other pieces contained with them in 1685. The "Veni Sancte Spiritus" in 1599 is an instance of a piece of older date reproduced in a later edition with new stanzas. Another instance of caution is the fact that the trs. of "Stabat Mater" and "Dies Iræ," in this edition (1706) had both appeared before; the latter, notwithstanding Mr. Shipley's re-assignment, being with little doubt by Lord Roscommon. The claim of Dryden will, however, rest on the correlations of the Primers one up, the three and phrases of their predecessors shows that the idea of plagiarism was not a restraining force with them. (The beautiful "Veni Sancte Spiritus" of 1599 is probably the work of Thos. Pounde, q.v. a striking influence of this "if it were simply a reproduction in C.M. of the lines and phrases of the 8-syllable tr. of 1685.) But a very strong presumption of unity of hand arises out of a close study of the Orarium of 1706. Large groups of the Latin originals have an identical Gloria; and this identity is faithfully reproduced in the English glorias. The Latin glorias have affinities with each other, and these affinities are constantly maintained in English by reproductions of the same phrases. The English glorias have also affinities of their own, not found in the Latin. In style they are very like our another; they are quite in accordance with the conventionalities of the Anglican closet, and certain mannerisms occur (e.g. the use of "equal"). The repetition of common lines, the slight variations of phrase accompanying large repetition, and other economies, are such as a man would naturally adopt who had to write many glorias, and was working strongly to a common matter. The number of glorias, which the Glorias that bear clear family likeness touch, comprises the great bulk of the book; and links, of varying strength, connect most of the remainder with these.

912 PRIMERS AND OFFICES PRIMO DIERUM OMNIUM

The style of the Primer of 1706 is by no means always superior to that of 1685. It is often less nervous, too rhetorical and too florid. The translations of 1685-7 have consequently remained in at least equal circulation with those of 1706 and later. In point of literary and metrical poetry, the translations of 1706 are often of great merit; and the bold handling, the brilliance of single lines, and the frequent beauty of cadence, look far more like the work of a poet coming fresh to the task, than of a routine translator.

vi. Manual of Prayers, and The Garden of the Soul. Two other devotional books for the laity, which passed through many editions, contain translations of the Latin hymns, viz.: the Manual of Prayers, and The Garden of the Soul: but perhaps in no instance are they independent trs., but transcripts from the Primers or English Offices current at the time of publication. An edition of The Manual, circa 1596, has no hymns: perhaps the Primer of 1599 was the first to introduce translations of the Latin hymns. An edition of 1613 reprints 22 of the translations of the Primer of 1599. Another of 1688 by Henry Hills reprints from the Primer of 1687. Another of 1699 reprints, sometimes revising, from Primers of 1685-7. That of 1733 retains the same Latin originals (28) as 1699, but adopts the translations of the 1706 Primer. The same thing occurs in the ed. of 1739 (Shipley).

The hymns in the various editions of the Garden of the Soul apparently follow the same law, taking their Latin translations from the current edition of the Primer, or in the latter part of the 18th cent. from the editions of Vespers or The Divine Office. This fact is important in its bearing on the question of Dryden's authorship of the 1706 Primer. Under the impression that Bp. Challoner (who improved both the Manual and The Garden of the Soul) selected hymns by Dryden for the editions of 1737 (Garden) and 1750 (Manual), Mr. Shipley has adduced these editions as proofs of Dryden's authorship. But all that Bp. Challoner did, supposing there are editions which he superintended, was to substitute the newest trs. for the previous ones. This, in the case of the Manual, had been done as early as 1733. Dryden's authorship did not determine the choice, and is not attested by it.

vii. Conclusion. The needs of the laity, which were supplied in the 17th cent. by the Primers and The Manual, produced in the 18th translations of the Vesper Office, of the entire Breviary, and of the Missal. But they do not supply many Irish translations of the Latin hymns. The eds. of the Primers of 1685, 1687, and 1706, are drawn on in equal proportions. Sometimes the 1706 in one edition of the Evening Office will make way for the 1687 translations in the next. Sometimes stanzas from 1706 are mixed with stanzas of 1685 (Exx. will be found in the pieces from the Evening Office of 1710 in the Annus Sanctus). Sometimes lines and phrases are freely used up in re-manufactured translations (see Evening Office of 1760); prose translations are substituted for metre; and the old pieces are revised. A few new translations are found (e.g. in the Evening Office of 1748, and in the Divine Office, 6 vols., 1763, which requires translations of the entire Breviary). The Missals do not supply much material; the Latin hymns are sometimes only printed in the original (e.g. in Missal for the Laity, 1803). [H. L. B.]

Primitive Methodist Hymnody. [Methodist Hymnody, § iv.]

Primo Dena coeli globum. The Venerable Bede. [The Creation.] A poem of 112 lines, given by Mone, No. 1, from a ms. of the beginning of the 9th cent., now at Darmstadt, and written in an Irish hand. The title in Mone is "A hymn of the blessed Bede the priest on the work of the six days at the beginning, and on the six ages of the world." Also in Thomasius, ii. p. 429; Migne, vol. 94, p. 621, &c. So far as we can ascertain the full hymn has not been tr. into English; but a canto therefrom, beginning with line 65, "Post facta celsa conditor," was tr. as "God ended all the world's array," by J. M. Neale, and given in the Hymnal N., 1854. This was repealed, abridged, and beginning, "Christ's servants while they dwell below," in Skinner's Daily Service Hymn, 1864. [W. A. S.]

Primo dierum omnium. St. Gregory the Great. [Sunday. Morning.] This is one of the eight hymns which the Benedictine editors assign to St. Gregory (Opera, Paris, 1705, iii. col. 878). Mone gives it as No. 271, in 8 st. of 4 l., and at i. p. 272, cites it as in a ms. of the 9th cent. at Trier. Daniel gives the text in 8 st. of 4 l., at i., No. 145, and at iv. p. 55, cites it as in a 10th cent. Rheinau ms. Among the British Museum mss. it is found in three 11th cent. Hymnaries of the English Church (Vesp. D. xii. f. 3; Jul. A. vi. f. 19; Harl. 2961, f. 213), in an 11th cent. Monastic Hymnarium (Add. 30851, f. 172 b.), an 11th cent. Monastic Breviary (Add. 30848, f. 67), &c. It is in a ms. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi, Cambridge (391, page 227); in three mss. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall, Nos. 387, 413, 414; and in the Lat. Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Ch. (Surtees Society), 1851, is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32, f. 24 b.) In the Roman Breviary, 1632, it was recast, beginning, "Primo die quo Trinitas."

The original form is included in the older Sarum (Venice, 1576) Horæ, Aberdeen, Paris of 1643, and Hereford (Paris, 1505) Breviaries, in the Temporale, part ii. beginning with st. v., "Jam nona Patrem claritas." Its universal use was on Sundays at Nocturns or Matins; sometimes throughout the year or else from the octave of the Epiphany to Lent, and also from Trinity Sunday to Lent, or from Trinity Sunday to Advent. The original text is also found in Wackernagel, i., No. 69, the Sarum Horæ, 1531, p. 31. The text of the Roman Brev., 1632, is in recess sts. of that Brev., and also in Daniel, ii. No. 145, Königsfeld, p. 146, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. [J. M.]

913

PROBUS PROMITTIS, ET SERVAS DATAM 913

Both texts of this hymn have been tr. into English as follows:—

1. Primo dierum omnium. The trs. of this text are:—

1. On this the day that saw the earth. By J. M. Neale, in the Hymnal N., 1852. In Murray's Hymnal, 1852, it was altered to "On this blest day when first the light." This form of the tr. passed into other collections, as also has the original translation.

2. On this the day when days began. By J. Ellerton, made for and 1st pub. in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871.

Other trs. are:—

1. This is the day when first of all. Hymnarium Anglicanum. 1844.
2. This primal day, of days the first. W. J. Hive. 1852-54.
3. First day of days! wherein were made. J. D. Chambers. 1862.
4. First day of days wherein arrayed. J. D. Chambers. 1866.
5. On this first day, when earth stands forth. J. W. Hewett. 1870.
6. This glorious morn, time's eldest born, Wherein was, &c. J. Kidd. 1865. Based on Copeland's tr. from the Rom. Brev. (See below.)
7. Welcome! thou eldest of all days. B. T. Morgan. 1871.

2. Primo die quo Trinitas. The trs. of this text are:—

1. This day the glorious Trinity. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1815, p. 3, and again in his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 3. In a few collections it is given without any change in the text, but in the Hymnary, 1872, where it begins, "This day the Blessed Trinity," the alterations are very numerous.

Other trs. are:—

1. The happy day will soon disclose. Primer, 1706.
2. On this first day when heaven and earth. Sp. R. Mead. 1837.
3. This glorious morn, time's eldest-born, When God, &c. W. J. Copeland. 1848. (See also J. Kidd, above.)
4. Blest morn, when earth's Creator spoke. N. Campbell. 1850.
5. This day when the eternal Three. J. Wallace. 1851.
6. To-day the Blessed Three in One. Card. Newman. 1838 and 1865.

Probus, a nom de plume of W. Shrubsole, jun., in the Christian Observer, 1813.

Procter, Adelaide Anne, daughter of Bryan Waller Procter (Barry Cornwall), was b. in Bedford Square, London, Oct. 30, 1825. In 1851 she entered the Roman communion, and d. in London, Feb. 2, 1864. Miss Procter displayed more than usual intellectual powers at an early age. In later years she was skilled in music and languages. Her poetical gifts have been widely appreciated. Her Legends and Lyrics, A Book of Verse, was pub. in 1858. Of this an enlarged edition was pub. in 1862. Her hymns in C. U. from these two editions are:—

1. I do not ask, O Lord, that life may be. Resignation. In her Legends, &c., 1858. It is one of the most widely used of Miss Procter's hymns.
2. My God, I thank Thee, who hast made. Thankfulness. In her Legends, &c., 1858, p. 197, in 4 st. of 4 l. In several collections, including the H. Comp., it begins in an altered form, "My God, I thank Thee, Who hast made;" and in others, "Our God, we thank Thee, Who hast made." The original text is also found in the H. Comp., 1876, app. "This most beautiful hymn by A. A. Procter (1858), touches the chord of thankfulness in trial, as perhaps no other hymn does, and is thus most useful for the visitation of the sick."
3. One by one the sands are going (Sewing). The Idols of Life. In her Legends, &c., 1858, p. 20, in 8 st. of 4 l.
4. Rise, for the day is passing. Redeem the Time. In her Legends, &c., 1858. Sometimes given as "Arise, for the day is passing," as in Holy Song, 1846.
5. Strive; yet I do not promise. Striving. Wait. Prog. Mel., 1860, p. 206, in 5 st. of 8 l. In H. Comp., 1876.
6. The long day closes. Sunset and Evening Star. In her Legends, &c., 1858, p. 129, in 3 st. of 8 l. and a refrain.
7. The shadows of the evening hours. Evening. In her Legends, &c., 1858.
8. We ask for peace, O Lord. Peace with God. In her Legends, &c., 1858, p. 216, in 4 st of 8 l. [J. J.]

Promæ vocem, mens, canorum. Claude de Santeüil. [The Five Wounds of Christ, or, Pantocrator.] This hymn appeared in the Paris Breviary, 1680; Chevalier Breviary, 1686, p. 414, and again in the Paris Breviary, 1736, and later French Breviaries, and is given in the Office of the Five Wounds of Christ. The text is also in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 67, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. Now, my soul, thy voice upraising. Sing aloud, &c. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 75, and again in his Hys. of the Church, 1841, No. 41, in 8.7.8.7.4.7. It is found unaltered in a few collections, and also altered as: (1) "Now, my soul, thy voice upraising, Sing the Cross," &c., in 8.7.8.7.4.7. in Murray's Hymnal, 1852. This was reported in other collections. In the Sarum, 1868, it was altered to 3 st. of 6 l. in 8.7 metre. (2) "Sing we now, our voice upraising," in Kennedy, 1865, is the same text as Sarum with slight variations.

2. Slow and mournful be our tone. By E. Campbell, in his Hys. and Anthems, 1850, and a few collections of a later date.

3. Now, my soul, thy voice upraising, Tell in sweet, &c. By Sir H. W. Baker. This tr. is based upon the above by J. Chandler, more specially in the first and last stanzas. It is in 6 sts. of 8.7. Its first appearance was in the trial copy of H. A. & M., 1859, and then in the 1st ed., 1861. It is in several hymn-books, and sometimes with slight alterations.

4. Lift, my soul, thy voice harmonious. This was given in Mercer's Church Ps. & H. Bk., Oxford ed., 1864, No. 180, and is probably by the Editor.

5. Now, my soul, thy voice upraising. Sing in sweet, &c. This cento in the Hymnary, 1872, No. 245, in 6 sts. of 8.7. metre, is somewhat peculiarly constructed. St. i. is by Chandler and the Editors; ii. is by Sir H. W. Baker and the Editors; iii. is by Chandler and the Editors; iv. is by Sir H. W. Baker and the Editors; and v. is by the Editors alone. The result is not good.

Other trs. are:—

1. Draw out, and hast, thy melody. I. Williams. 1839.
2. Soul, draw forth thy voice, deep-sounding. W. J. Hive. 1852-54.
3. O my soul! thy lamentation. J. D. Chambers. 1857. [J. J.]

Promittis, et servas datam. C. Coffin. [Wednesday.] This is the hymn on Wednesday at Lauds in the Paris Breviary, 1736. It is also in C. Coffin's Hymni Sacri, 1736, p. 99; J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 28; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

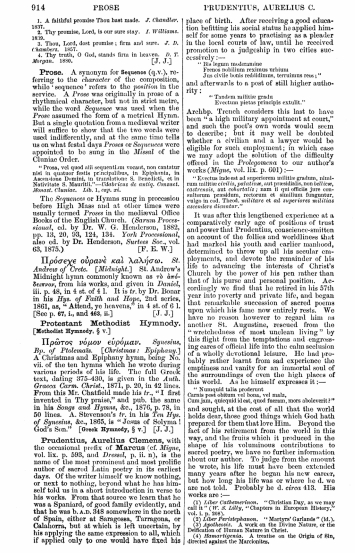
914



914 PROSE PRUDENTIUS, AURELIUS C.

1. A faithful promise Thou hast made. J. Chandler, 1837, p. 1.
2. Thy promise, Lord, is our sure stay. J. Williams, 1839.
3. Thou, Lord, dost promise; firm and sure. J. D. Chambers. 1857.
4. Thy truth, O God, stands firm in heaven. Ib. 2nd Morgan. 1890. [J. J.]

Prose. A synonym for Sequence (q.v.), referring to the character of the composition, while 'sequence' refers to the position in the service. A Prose was originally in prose of a rhythmical character, but not in strict metre, while the word Sequence was used when the Prose assumed the form of a metrical Hymn. But a single quotation from a mediæval writer will suffice to show that the two words were used indifferently, and at the same time tells us on what festal days Proses or Sequences were appointed to be sung in the Missal of the Cluniac Order.

"Prosa, vel quasi alii sequentiam vocant, non cantatur nisi in quatuor principalibus, in Epiphania, in Ascensione Domini, in translatione S. Benedicti, et in Nativitate S. Mauritii."—Udalricus de antiq. Cluniac. Monast. Clunior. Lib. i. cap. xi.

The Sequences or Hymns sung in procession before High Mass and at other times were usually termed Proses in the mediæval Office Books of the English Church. (Sarum Processional, ed. by Dr. W. G. Henderson, 1882, pp. 13, 20, 93, 124, 134. York Processional, also ed. by Dr. Henderson, Surtees Soc., vol 63, 1875.) [F. E. W.]

Πρόσεχε οὐρανέ καὶ λαλήσω. St Andrew of Crete. (Midnight.) St. Andrew's Midnight hymn commonly known as τὸ ἁγὲ Κυριε, from his works, and given in Daniel iii. p. 48, in 4 st. of 4 l. It is tr. by Dr. Bonar in his Hys. of Faith and Hope, 2nd series, 1861, as, "Attend, ye heavens," in 4 st. of 4 l. [See p. 67, l., and 468, 2.] [J. J.]

Protestant Methodist Hymnody. [Methodist Hymnody, § v.]

Πρώτος νόμον εὑρόμαν. Synesius, Bp. of Ptolemais. [Christmas: Epiphany.] A Christmas and Epiphany hymn, being No. vii. of the ten hymns which he wrote during various periods of his life. The full Greek text, dating 373–430, is given in the Anth. Græca Carm. Christ., 1871, p. 20, in 42 lines. From this Mr. Chatfield made his tr., "I first invented in Thy praise," and pub. the same in his Songs and Hymns, &c., 1876, p. 78, in 50 lines. A. Stevenson's tr. in his Ten Hys. of Synesius, &c., 1865, is "Jesus of Solyma! God's Son." [Greek Hymnody, § v.] [J. J.]

Prudentius, Aurelius Clemens, with the occasional prefix of Marcus (cf. Migne, vol. lix. p. 893, and Dressel, p. ii. n.), is the name of the most prominent and most prolific author of sacred Latin poetry in its earliest days. Of the writer himself we know nothing, or next to nothing, beyond what he has himself told us in a short introduction in verse to his works. From that source we learn that he was a Spaniard, of good family evidently, and that he was b. A.D. 348 somewhere in the north of Spain, either at Saragossa, Tarragona, or Calahorra, but at which is left uncertain, by his applying the same expression to all, which if applied only to one would have fixed his place of birth. After receiving a good education befitting his social status he applied himself for some years to practising as a pleader in the local courts of law, until he received promotion to a judgeship in two cities successively:—

"His legum moderatus
Fomes nobilium reximen urbium
Bis civile bonis eruditus, terniarum mox," and afterwards to a post of still higher authority:

"Tandem militiæ gradu Evectus primo principe cultui."

Archbp. Trench considers this last to have been "a high military appointment at court," and much the poet's own words would seem to describe; but it may well be doubted whether a civilian and a lawyer would be eligible for such employment; in which case we may adopt the solution of the difficulty offered in the Prolegomena to our author's works (Migne, vol. lix. p. 661):—

"Evectus indeed at superiorem militiæ gradum, similem militiæ civilis, patritiis, aut præsidiis, non tollitur, contronis, aut cohortalis; nam ii qui officia jure consultorum peragebant, cancerus et similium fungentes, reliqui in col. Theod. militare et ad superiorem militiæ merendæ dignitatem."

It was after this lengthened experience at a comparatively early age of positions of trust and power that Prudentius, conscience-smitten on account of the follies and worthlessness that had marked his youth and earlier manhood, determined to throw up all his secular employments, and devote the remainder of his life to advancing the interests of Christ's Church by the power of his pen rather than that of his purse and personal position. Accordingly we find that he retired in his 57th year into poverty and private life, and began that remarkable succession of sacred poems upon which his fame now entirely rests. We have no reason however to regard him as another St. Augustine, reasoned from the "wretchedness of most unclean living" by this flight from the temptations and engrossing cares of official life into the calm seclusion of a wholly devotional leisure. He had probably rather learnt from sad experience the emptiness and vanity for an immortal soul of the surroundings of even the high places of this world. As he himself expresses it:—

"Numquid talia prodierat
Cuncta post obitum vel bona, vel mala, Cum jam, quicquid olim, quod fuerum, mors obliterat?"

and sought, at the cost of all that the world holds dear, those good things which God hath prepared for them that love Him. Beyond the fact of his retirement from the world in this way, and the fruits which it produced in the shape of his voluminous contributions to sacred poetry, we have no further information about our author. To judge from the amount he wrote, his life must have been extended many years after he began his new career, but how long his life was or where he d. we are not told. Probably he d. circa 413. His works are:—

(1) Liber Cathemerinon. "Christian Day, as we may call it" (W. & Lilly, "Ongoes in European History," vol. i. p. 369).

(2) Liber Peristephanon. "Martyrs' Garlands" (Id.).

(3) Apotheosis. A work on the Divine Nature, or the Holy Trinity, in 1,084 hexameters.

(4) Hamartigenia. A treatise on the Origin of Sin, directed against the Marcionites.

PRUDENTIUS, AURELIUS C. PRYS, EDMUND 915

(5) Psychomachia = Ψυχομαχία, or "The Spiritual Conflict"—an allegorical work.

(6) Libri contra Symmachum. A controversial work against the restoration in the Senate House at Rome of the altar of Victory which Gratian had removed. Symmachus had petitioned Valentinian II. to restore it in 384, but the influence of St. Ambrose had prevailed against him at that time. In 392 the altar was restored, but removed again by Theodosius in 394. After the death of the latter the attempt to restore it was renewed by Eugenius and Arbogastes in 394, and it was during the Easter week (as Dr. Smith has it) that the first book of Prudentius was written in 403. Pagani considers that the first may date in 385.

(7) The Dittochæon = the double food or double Testament. A collection of 49 sets of four verses each, on Old and New Testament subjects.

Of these different works the most important are the first two, and it is from them that the Liturgical hymns enumerated below have been chiefly compiled. The general character of Prudentius's writings it is not easy fairly to estimate, and to judge by the wholesale condemnation he obtains from some of his critics, and the equally unsparing censure of others, his judges have so found it. In venturing upon any opinion upon such a subject, the reader must bear in mind the peculiar position in which the period at which he was writing found the poet. The poetry of classical Rome in all its exact beauty of form had long passed its meridian, and was being replaced by a style which was yet in its infancy, but which burst forth into new life and beauty in the hands of the Mediæval hymnodygists. Prudentius wrote before rhyming Latin verse was thought of, but after attention had ceased to be given to quantities. Under such circumstances it were vain to look for very finished work from him, and such certainly we do not find. But amidst a good deal of what one must confess is tasteless verbiage or clumsy rhetorical ornament—however varied the metres he employs, numbering some 17—there are also passages to be found, not unfrequently, of dramatic vigour and noble expression, which may well hold their own with the more musical utterances of a later date. He writes as a man intensely in earnest, and we may gather much from his writings concerning the points of conduct which were deemed the most important in Christian living at a time when a great portion of mankind were still the victims or slaves of a morality which, heathen at the best, was lowered and corrupted the more as the universality of its influence was more and more successfully challenged by the spread of the Gospel of Christ. If, therefore, we can scarcely go as far in our author's praise as Barth—much given to lavish commendation—who describes him as "Poeta eximius eruditissimus et sanctissimus scriptor; nemo divinius de rebus Christianis unquam scripsit;" or as Bentley—not given to praise—who calls him the "Horace and Virgil of the Christians," we shall be as loath, considering under what circumstances he wrote, to carp at his style as not being formed on the best ancient models but as confessedly impure; feeling with Archbishop Trench that it is his merit that "whether consciously or unconsciously, he acted on the principle that the new life claimed new forms in which to manifest itself; that he did not shrink from helping forward that great transformation of the Latin language, which it needed to undergo, now that it should be the vehicle of truths which were altogether novel to it." (See Lat. Poetry, 1874, p. 121.)

The reader will find so exhaustive an account of the various writings of Prudentius in the account given of him and them in Smith and Wace's Dict. of Christian Biography, and Smith's Dict. of Greek and Roman Biography, that it is only necessary in this work to refer very briefly to them as above. The poems have been constantly reprinted and re-edited, till the editor who produced the best edition we have of them, Albert Dressel (Leipsic, 1860), is able to say that his is the sixty-third.

The use made of Prudentius's poems in the ancient Breviaries and Hymnaries was very extensive. In its form of centos stanzas and lines were compiled and used as hymns; and it is mainly from these centos, and not from the original poems, that the translations into English were made. Daniel, i., Nos. 103–115, gives 13 genuine hymns as having been in use for "Morning," "Christmas," "Epiphany," "Lent," "Easter," "Transfiguration," "Burial," &c., in the older Breviaries. A reference to the article Latin, Trs. from the, p. 631, i., will show that almost as many more which were used in like manner have been translated into English. When to these are added the hymns which are annotated in this Dictionary under their respective first lines (see Index of Authors and Translators), and those which have not been translated into English, we realise the position and power of Prudentius in the hymnody of the Church.* [D. S. W.]

Prynne, George Rundle, M.A., s. of John Allen Prynne, was b. at West Looe, Cornwall, Aug. 25, 1818, and educated at St. Catherine's College, Cambridge, B.A., 1839; M.A. 1861. He took Holy Orders in 1841, and became Vicar of St. Peter's, Plymouth, in 1848. He has pub. Parochial Sermons, 1846; Plain Parochial Sermons, 1856; another series, 1876; The Dying Soldier's Visions, and Other Poems and Hymns, 1881, &c. He also pub. Hymns suited for the Services of the Church, 1858. His most popular hymn is "Jesu, meek and gentle," p. 261, ii. His hymns "The day is done; O God the Son" (Evening); and "Thy glory fills the heavens" (The Glory of the Father), have also been included in a few collections. He d. Mar. 25, 1903. [J. J.]

Prys, Edmund, Prys or Price, a learned Welsh divine and eminent poet, was b. about 1541 in the parish of Llandecwyn, Merionethshire, and educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, where he took his degree of M.A. He was appointed Archdeacon of Merioneth in 1576, and Canon of St. Asaph in 1592. He was one of the best Welsh poets of his time, and a great many of his compositions are preserved, mostly in manuscript. He is the author of the Welsh metrical version of the Psalms, which is still in use. He assisted

* The earliest and best ms. of Prudentius is one in the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris (Lat. 8084), written about the end of the 9th cent. The Principal Librarian, M. Leopold Delisle, has kindly supplied references to the mss. of the Cathemerinon and Peristephanon, which centos, now in C.C. in English, have been taken.

Dr. Morgan, Bishop of St. Asaph, to translate the Bible into Welsh. The latest of his compositions, preserved, is a copy of elegant Latin verses in commendation of Dr. John Davies's Welsh Grammar. He was then 80 years of age. This Latin copy bears the date of 1621. He d. in 1624, and was buried at Macutwrog Church. [See Welsh Hymnody.] [W. G. T.]

Psalters, American. [American Hymnody.]

Psalters, English. I. Introductive. A glance at the long list appended to this article will suppose many for the first time of the enormous number of efforts made to versify the Psalms. Among the authors will be found Queen Elizabeth, Lord Bacon, Fuller, and many of our poets and theologians. The Psalter has been subjected to a great variety of experiments. Literal translation, paraphrase, evangelical expansion, the development of portions as themes, have been successively attempted. The change of metrical and poetical expression is reflected in the history. In the Puritan period the versification of the Psalms even touches the history of the nation. But notwithstanding all this, partly from extreme reverence for the letter of Holy Writ, partly from the fact that the bulk of the translators were hampered by the secondary object of turning the Psalter into a hymnal, and most of all from the impossibility of representing Hebrew parallelism in English metres, no version approaches in merit such translations as Lord Derby's Homer or Conington's Virgil. With but few exceptions the succeeding pages are a comparison of mediocrities.

II. Curious examples.

Some experiments are very eccentric, such as Abraham Fraunce's iambmeters (1591), Pilot's lyrics without rhyme (1751), Wransford and Sylvester's heroics (1754), Dennis's blank verse (1908). The strangest is Psalterium Americanum by Cotton Mather (1718), printed like prose, but in reality simply the Authorized Version thrown into unrhymed C.M. for singing.

III. Pre-Reformation Psalters.

Metrical Psalters existed in England at a very early date. Bp. Aldhelm of Sherborne (died A.D. 709) is said to have composed one (Bede); and Archdeacon Churton (see Preface to the Cleveland Psalter) ascribes to him the Anglo-Saxon Version edited by Thorpe (1835). Thorpe himself, however, assigns it to a later date. A Latin Psalter, with interlinear Anglo-Saxon gloss, and a translation into Middle English has been published by the Surtees Society. T. Brampton's Seven Penitential Psalms (1414) have been printed by the Percy Society; and Holland (Psalmists of Britain, 1842) mentions a translation of St. Jerome's Gallican Psalter into English of the date of Henry II. or Richard I.

IV. Importance of Psalm-singing at the Reformation.

The practice of versifying the Psalms assumed a larger significance among the Reformers. The Psalm Versions of Luther and Justus Jonas, combined with their translations of the Latin Hymns and their original compositions, stirred the heart of Germany: the Psalms of Marot became the badge of the French Huguenot in court and camp; and, completed by Beza, became the sole hymnal of Geneva: while in England and Scotland, following the Genevan precedent, the metrical Psalms alone were long exclusively used in public worship. Consecrated by the long tradition of the Church in their Latin form, set at first to ballad tunes and then to special music of their own by the leaders of the Reformation, the Psalms became endeared to the people, not merely by their sublimity, their Messianic import, and their wide interpretation of human emotions, but specially by their living trust in God as a hiding place in peril, and even by their terrible denunciations of His enemies. They seemed, in the wonder aroused by a new-found Bible, the supreme, divinely ordained vehicle of human praise; and the metrical form was at the same time a necessity for singing, and, according to the ideas of that day concerning the structure of Hebrew poetry, was accounted a truer representative of the original than prose. This last point is argued, with reference to Hebrew treatises of that day, in the Preface to the English Psalter, published at Geneva in 1556 (see p. 807, b.), a revised ed. of Sternhold's 37 Psalms, and 7 by Hopkins, to which 7 fresh ones are added by Whittingham.

V. German influence on Gospellers.

The introduction of Psalm-singing into England probably sprang from the intercourse of the Gospellers with Luther and Melancthon, and their familiarity with their writings. Three of these fathers of the Reformation, Wisdom, Becon, and Coverdale, have left us Psalm versions bearing a strong family likeness. Those of Wisdom and Becon were incorporated in Sternhold and Hopkins [see Old Version] and may possibly be the oldest pieces in that book, though not found in the earliest editions. The Goostly Psalmes by Miles Coverdale contains fifteen psalms, besides hymns and paraphrases (see English Hymnody, Early, III., IV.). The German originals of this book have been carefully traced out by Mr. Mearns, All the Psalm versions, except Pss. 2, 137, 146, and all the paraphrases and hymns, except two, have been identified as German. The metre of the unidentified Psalms, except the 132nd, is also German, and Coverdale's 65th is in the same metre as Luther's "Ein Feste Burg." [For details see Goostly Psalmes, The.]

VI. Rolled Metres of Edward VI.'s reign.

In the Act, which authorized the First Prayer Book of Edward VI. (1549), there was a proviso "That it be lawful . . . in churches . . . chapels or oratories or other places to use openly any Psalme or Hymne in the English tongue . . . before or after Matins, likewise the service or any part thereof mentioned in the said book."

It has been generally held, by Strype, Burnet and others, that this proviso covered the legality of Psalm-singing (see § VIII., where Psalms and goodly prayers are synonymous); and some have thought that the partiality of the king for Sternhold's essays then published (see Old Version, § iv.) dictated it. It is at least certain that several small attempts at versification of the Psalms appear at this period, among which may be mentioned Sir

Thos. Wyatt's Seven Penitential Psalms (1549). The whole Psalter was also now versified by Robert Crowley, sometime Vicar of St. Giles's, Cripplegate, in C.M., and set to a harmonized chant (1549). The German influence now ceases, and the irregular metres of Wisdom and Becon, which are akin to some in the early English Primers, give way to the ballad measure of Chevy Chace, which from this time receives its consecration. Sternhold's aim was to supplant the "amorous and obscene songs" (Wood) of the court and people; and he probably sung his psalms to well-known ballad tunes. A discussion of the nature and character of his work and that of his coadjutors, as represented in the Old Version of Sternhold and Hopkins, is, however, too elaborate for this section of our work. It is fully treated elsewhere. [Old Version.]

VII. Genevan Influence on the Marian Exiles.

The public singing of psalms ceased of course under Mary. But the movement gained new force and new ideas among the exiles. Parker soloed himself by versifying the entire Psalter (Absolei Psalterium versum metrice lingua vulgari, Parker's Diary, 1557). At Geneva the psalms of Marot were part of the authorized service: and it is from this period that the metres, the tunes, and the structural features of the Genevan Psalter begin to affect that of England, and more largely, of Scotland. [For details see Old Version, § iii.]

VIII. Psalm-singing at the accession of Elizabeth.

On the accession of Elizabeth nothing so roused the enthusiasm of the people as the practice "brought from abroad by the exiles" of singing Psalms (Strype). They were sung at St. Paul's Cross after the sermons of bishops; Jewel speaks of six thousand people as present on one occasion. Psalms were introduced at St. Anthelin's and spread to other churches in London. The authorities not merely "connived" (Hayling) at the fashion, but encouraged it.

Jewel, for instance, who was one of the Visitors for the execution of the Queen's Injunctions, favoured it. The attitude of Parker is shewn by a curious set of documents in Wilkins's Concilia, Dec. 1559. Certain men had introduced into the Choir of Canterbury and the Cathedral at Easter at 4 A.M., disturbing matins. On being prohibited by the Dean and Chapter, they appealed to the Queen's Visitors, Jewel and others, who thereon reprimanded the Dean and Chapter. Upon this the Archbishop wrote to the Dean, censuring the interference of the Visitors, and bade the Cathedral authorities "permit and suffer" congregations to "sing or say the godly prayers set forth and permitted in this Church of England." The use of the word "godly prayers," as synonymous with psalms, should be noted. [W. G. T.]

Permission to use psalms publicly in worship was frigidly granted by the 49th injunction of Elizabeth (June 1559), which is wider and yet more defined than the proviso of 1549: guarding more carefully the Morning and Evening Prayer from interference, and yet at the same time withdrawing the stipulation that the composition was to be taken out of Holy Scripture:—

"For the comforting of such as delight in musick, it is ordered that in all Cathedral and Collegiate Churches and Chapels having any organs or other musical instruments belonging to the same, after the Divine Service is ended, there may be used an hymn or such like song to the praise of Almighty God in the best melody and music that may be devised, having respect that the sentence of the hymn may be understood and perceived."

IX. Readerings by Abp. Parker, Sir Philip Sidney, the Davisons, and Spenser.

Partial translations of Psalms at this period are very numerous. The two most notable complete versions are dealt with elsewhere. (See Old Version and Scottish Hymnody.) A third, entitled The whole Psalter, translated into English metre, with an argument and collect to each Psalm: John Day, London, n.d., is only to be found in the great libraries (there is a perfect copy also at Lincoln Cathedral). It is the work of Abp. Parker, alluded to above, written in exile: but the marked similarity of the book, in its introductions, extracts from the Fathers, and apparatus of appended Canticles, to the work of Sternhold and Hopkins makes it probable that these, and perhaps the metrical arguments at the head of each psalm and the appended collects were added after 1562. It is composed with scholarly care, and, not only as a metrical version, but for the value of the collects, should be reprinted. Besides the three usual metres (C.M., L.M., S.M.) he makes use of stanzas of 8's, and one or two curious measures; and he supplies a doxology in each metre. The metrical Introduction "Ad Lectorem," is a quaint apology for offering a new version. There are eight tunes to it by Tallis; one being Tallis's "Canon." His C.M. has often a double rhyme in the third line; and, even where this is not the case, the rhythm and stresses of the measure are entirely distinct from that of Sternhold, and feel strictly regular, so as to facilitate singing. An example of his unrhymed C.M. may be seen in his tr. of "Veni Creator" (q.v.), which is apparently simply the text of the first Prayer Book of Edw. VIth, 1549, regulated into uniform feet. The authorship of this book is given in Bp. Barlow's copy to John Keeper of the Cathedral of Wells. But Parker's authorship is established by external and internal evidence. In Bp. Kennet's copy it is said that the Archbishop permitted Margaret, his wife, to present his Psalter to some of the nobility: and the copy at Lambeth has in a hand of that time, "To the vertuous and honorable Lady the Countesse of Shrewsbury from your lovinge friende, Margaret Parker." Apart from the presumption raised by this coincidence in favour of Parker, it makes Keeper's authorship unlikely, as he would only have been twenty-four at Mrs. Parker's death (1570) (Dibdin's Ames). But the conclusive evidence is the acrostick "Matthew Parkerus" on which the metrical argument to Ps. 119 is formed.

Of a different order from these is the Version commenced by Sir Philip Sidney (Pss. 1–43) and completed by his sister, the Countess of Pembroke (pub. 1823). The metres are "more rare and excellent for method and variatie,"—the fantastic and capricious measures of the lighter Elizabethan style; not intended probably for congregational use. They have frequent freshness and spirit; and now that a higher music no longer chains us wholly to routine metres, a composer fond of the Elizabethan poetry would find the 84th, 92nd, and the more regular 96th full of grace and charm. The same description may be given of Divers Selected Psalms of David in verse, of a different composure from those used in the church: the work of Francis and Christopher Davison and others, found in a Harleian MS. of the British Museum. Full selections from both these versions may be seen in Farr's Select Poetry (Parker Society). To these may be added a text version of the Seven Penitential Psalms by Edmund Spenser.

X. Partial translations, Bacon, Herbert, &c. Versions by Dod, Wither, Sandys.

Among the versifiers of "Selected Psalms" are found the eminent names of Donne, Dean of St. Paul's (1633), Phineas Fletcher (1633), George Herbert (1632), and R. Cosin (1648). The first ten Psalms were rendered closely and naturally by Bishop Hall (1607), and a few by Lord Bacon (1625), (see Fuller Worthies Library by Grosart), dedicated to George Herbert. The complete version of Henry Dod (1603–20) is utterly valueless, and according to Wither was burnt by the hangman; the preface however shows the early dissatisfaction felt with Sternhold and Hopkins, and there is appended to it a ludicrous versification, intended apparently to be sung, of the Act of Parliament passed after the Gunpowder Plot! The so-called Version of King James (1631) is described elsewhere. (See Scottish Hymnody, t. § 3.) The version by George Wither (1619–32) was a far more serious rival of the Old Version. He obtained a privilege from the King, which ordered it to be bound up with every copy of the Bible, and authorized Wither to seize every Bible in which it was not found. But it met with the same fate as a similar privilege of Wither's for his Hymns and Spiritual Songs of the Church. (See English Hymnody, Early, § viii.) The resistance to the privilege on the part of the Stationers' Company, who owned the Old Version, ended in the withdrawal of this monopoly by the Privy Council (1633). (See Preface to Wither's Hymns and Spiritual Songs, by E. Farr in Library of Old Authors.) The metres of this book are more varied than those of the Old Version, and yet more regular and even than those of Sidney, and hence are set to them by Orlando Gibbons. The author of Ausbolopia Davidica, a compilation of Psalms from many sources (1846), considers this the best version for fidelity, harmony, and simplicity of expression. Judged, however, by his copious extracts (the book itself is rare) there is a want of force and spirit. The 137th, "As nigh Babel's streams we sat," is grandfully rendered; the best is the 150th, "Come praise the Lord, come praise Him" (S. P. C. K. Ps. and Hys., Ps. cl.). The version by George Sandys (1636), son of the Abp. of York, is of far greater literary merit. Though set to music by Henry Lawes, it was intended only for private devotion, and perhaps never used otherwise. Baxter laments that Sandys's "simplicis stroin" was useless to the vulgar because not composed in the ordinary metres; but its poetical grace exercised a considerable influence on translators. The longer Psalms are often in L. M. couplets; some of his most graceful pieces are in couplets of 7's, as Ps. 150, "Praise the Lord enthroned on high" (S. P. C. K. Ps. and H., Ps. cl.), and Ps. 148, "You who dwell above the skies" (Wes. H. Bk. 639). The book is prefaced by an eulogy by his friend Lord Falkland. In the opinion of Burney, Montgomery, Conder, and Holland, it is the best metrical version. See, however, Keble, below, § xviii.

XI. Puritan Versions; Rous, Barton, Milton.

To the psalm-loving Puritan the perfection of the metrical version was a matter of supreme moment. The first book pub. in America (Cambridge, N.E., 1640) was The New England Psalter, often called The Bay Psalter (p. 119, n.), the editors of which boast themselves by the most rigorous literalism. In the same year in England the Committee of Peers, lay and spiritual, recommended in their Report on Religion that "The metre in the Psalms should be corrected and allowed of publicly." The first ed. (1641) of Francis Rous, afterwards Provost of Eton under the Commonwealth, was an attempt to satisfy this recommendation by amendment of the old version. Further changes were made in his second ed. (1643), which was ordered to be printed by the House of Commons. The establishment of the Directory (1645), in which "every one that can read" was ordered to "have a psalm-book," made revision more urgent. Rous's third edition (1646), was ordered to be printed on the recommendation of the Assembly of Divines; and later in the year this Version "and none other" was ordered by the House of Commons "to be sung in all churches and chapels within the kingdom." There was an earnest desire at this time on both sides of the border to agree on a version which might be a bond of uniformity in religion. But it was frustrated by two causes. The House of Lords inclined to a rival versifier, William Barton, minister of St. Martin's, Leicester (1st ed., 1644; 2nd, 1645); and they submitted his 3rd ed. (1646) to the Assembly of Divines, who, however, declined to authorise it. When Rous's version came up from the Commons, they referred it to a Committee, but never apparently sanctioned it. The Scots also were discontented with Rous, whom they suspected of hatred of Presbytery, as an adherent of Cromwell, and introduced considerable variations, derived from other versions, in their new Scottish Psalter (1650). (See Scottish Hymnody.) Confidence in Rous was short-lived in England. It may have been dissatisfaction with it which made Milton in 1648 attempt Ps. 80–8, which had a special significance to him at that crisis of the war (Masson). His versions are translated direct from the Hebrew. Hebrew words are printed in the margin: and every word not in the original is printed in italics. No better illustration of the literal principle of the Puritan translations can be given; and no one can say it was successful. He made another essay in 1653, without this assertion of exceeding literalism, and in various metres, not easy to be sung; but the result is no better. Portions of Ps. 82, 85, 86, formed into a canto, "The Lord will come and not be slow," and part of Ps. 84, "How lovely are Thy dwellings fair," are found in some of our hymn-books; but the only one of real note is the 136th, "Let us with a gladsome mind," which he wrote at the age of fifteen. In 1651 Bp. King of Chichester, in the preface to his version, sneers, from the churchman's stand-point, at the failure of one of our "pretended Reformers" (probably Rous). And in 1654 appeared a new edition of Barton, which bore on its title-page a license for publication from Cromwell. A version by Thomas Lord Fairfax is mentioned in the preface to Cotton's Editions of the Bible; he quotes the 137th Psalm in stanzas of four long lines. It was never published.

XII. Baxter, Miles Smith, Denham, Patrick.

From Sternhold to Rous the prevailing principle of translation was literal exactness; but the dreariness of all those efforts, and in some measure the grace of Sandys, now produced a demand for some literary excellence. In the preface to his version (written probably about this time, though not published till 1692), Richard Baxter says, after reviewing preceding versions, "The ear desireth greater melody, than strict versions will allow." And in their measure the versions that followed the Restoration were an attempt in this direction. Examples may be seen in S. Woodford's verbose and pompous Psalter (1667); in Miles Smith's, which is often smooth and melodious (1668); in Luke Milbourne (1685), who tried to adapt his metres to the music of Playford, who had recently edited Sternhold and Hopkins, and to that of Henry Lawes, found in Sandys's Psalter; and in the stately though monotonous L.M. of Sir John Denham (written at this time, though only published in 1715). But the difficulty lay in the decay of music, by which metres were more than ever restricted. Baxter adopted a plan of bracketed words, by which L.M. could be sung as C.M., or C.M. as S.M., for the use of ignorant congregations, but scarcely in the interest of literary success. A Century of Psalms was published by John Patrick, Preacher to the Charterhouse, brother of the Bishop, in 1679; and a complete version in 1691-3, which attained considerable success for its fidelity. It was not however exactly a literal version. It adopted a mode of evangelical interpretation, of which the germ exists in Parker, and which will be discussed at large under Watts. See § xv.

XIII. The New Version.

(1.) History.—The first instalment of Tate and Brady's Psalter is a sheet and a half, without date (Bodleian); the next is "The first XX. Psalms by N. Brady and N. Tate" (Bodleian) published as a specimen (1695). The complete version followed (1696), entitled A New Version of the Psalms of David, Fitted to the Tunes Used in Churches, By N. Tate and N. Brady (Brit. Mus.), and dedicated to William III. This edition was apparently subjected to criticism and revised; and in its settled form, which differs from each of the preceding essays in some of the metres and expressions, it was "allowed" by the King in Council, and "permitted to be used in all churches, &c., as shall think fit to receive them," Dec. 3, 1696. This second edition was not published till 1698 (Brit. Mus.). (See New Version.) The Supplement thereto was authorised, in the same terms as the Psalter, by the Queen in Council, July 30, 1703.

(2.) Value of Authorisation.—So far as license to print was concerned, the royal "allowance" was not strictly necessary, as the Licensing Act had recently expired; but it was extremely politic. (See it again under § xvi.) The "permission" to use it in churches, &c., which is a distinct matter from the "allowance," whether actually necessary or not in order to legalise its adoption, was of great value. Under the sanction of the sovereign, and recommended by the Abp. of Canterbury and Compton, Bishop of London, The New Version presented itself as a settlement of the long dissatisfaction with Sternhold and Hopkins. Its success was not however universal. Beveridge (1710) wrote a vigorous protest against it, and in favour of the Old Version. He calls it a "New Version in deed," "fine and modish," "flourished with wit and fancy," "gay and fashionable." He dilates on the inconvenience of two versions; calls it a breach of uniformity; "in time we might have one secundum usum London, another secundum usum Richmond (see Brady below), another secundum usum Sarum." He records the protests of congregations: one vestry had cast it out, after its introduction by the clergyman. It was then only used in a few churches in London.

(3.) Character and Merits.—The material of the New Version may be thrown into three groups: 1. Psalms of an ornate character, with occasional vigour of rhythm, written mostly in L.M. and P.M. The best is 139th, "Thou, Lord, by strictest search hast known." 2. A large quantity of very spiritless C.M., as poor in language as the literal versions. 3. A few examples of sweet and simple verse, such as the 84th, "Through all the changing scenes of life," 42nd, "As pants the hart;" 51st, "Have mercy, Lord, on me;" and 84th, "Oh, God of hosts, the mighty Lord," which retain their hold on our hymn-books. There is nothing to show certainly how the work was divided between Tate and Brady: both were poets; it is plausible to attribute the ornate work, in which some have even suggested an occasional aid from his patron Dryden, to Tate. Another theory makes Brady the theologian, Tate the poetical workman throughout. Beveridge's epithets suggest the general impression of the book. The artificial style of that period is applied to the Psalms: and in the hands of men of genius—far less in those of mere versifiers—no alien a form could not have succeeded. "Tate's poor page" (Pope) has been abused as roundly as The Old Version. And yet one condemned to tread the waste of metrical Psalters will consider it an advance on its predecessors, suffering more from its own success than comparison with them. And this merit is fairly theirs: they asserted successfully, and with an emphasis scarcely known before, literary and poetical excellence (according to their light) as a principle of translation, and the precedent thus set was seldom ignored afterwards. It has been gravely censured for want of fidelity by Keble and others. Traces of political allusion have also been pointed out. The curious reader may like to trace them in Ps. 18, 37–43, in the courtly complexion given to Ps. 101, 2–7, in a possible allusion to the queen, Ps. 45, 16, and in Ps. 107, 40 ("The prince, who slights what God commands, exposed to scorn must quit his throne".

(4.) Authors.—The New Version was the work of two Irishmen. Nahum Tate was the son of Faithful Teate, an Irish clergyman, author of some religious verses. He was b. in Dublin (1652), and educated at Trinity College. He wrote, under Dryden's superintendence, the second part of Absalom and Achitophel with the exception of about two hundred lines. He succeeded Shadwell as Poet Laureate. Among his works are Characters of Virtue and Vice (1691), Miscellanea Sacra, a selection from various writers (1696-8), and Panacea, a Poem on Tea. He is said to have been a man of intemperate and improvident life. He wrote a reply to Beveridge, defending the style of the version on literary grounds. (Essay on Psalmody, 1710.) He d. in London in 1715. Nicholas Brady was born at Bandon (1659). He was educated at Westminster, and went afterwards to Christ Church, Oxford, and to Trinity College, Dublin. From the latter he received the degree of D.D. for services to the Protestant cause. He was a Prebendary of Cork. In the Irish war he was an active adherent of William; and three times saved his native town from burning. Coming from Bandon with a petition to William, he remained in London, and was appointed Chaplain to the King; and afterwards (1702-3) Incumbent of Stradford-on-Avon. He had previously been minister of St. Catherine Cree's, and Lecturer of St. Michael's, Wood Street; probably holding some or all of these appointments in plurality. Notwithstanding the income derived from his appointments, his extravagance obliged him to keep a school, while incumbent of Richmond (1710). He died in 1726. Besides several volumes of sermons, he published a tragedy called The Rape, or the Innocent Impostors, and a poetical translation of the Æneid of Virgil in four vols.

XIV. J. Addison.

In the Spectator of 1712, were published the well-known paraphrases of the 19th Ps., "The spacious firmament on high," and the 23rd Ps., "The Lord my pasture shall prepare." They have been attributed to Marvell, but (see Addison, J., p. 16, b.) are Addison's. They are found in many collections, and have been admired by good judges. The style is more florid than the New Version. The fault in both is, that the sense of God's Presence, which is so vivid in the original, is subordinated to the somewhat unreal description of landscape.

XV. Watts's Version.

The versification of the Psalms engaged the attention of Isaac Watts in his early days; a translation of Ps. 137, not included in his complete Psalter, is found in Reliquiæ Juveniles. Paraphrases of Ps. 148 were published in the Horæ Lyricæ (1705); and at least half of the Psalms had been versified at the date of the publication of his Hymns (1707-9). Ps. 114 was published in The Spectator (1712); and the complete version (so far as his theory of completeness extended) in 1719; entitled, The Psalms of David imitated in the language of the New Testament, &c. Taken as a whole it is not better than Tate and Brady. There is a want of restraining reverence about it; and the turgid epithets and gaudy ornament dishonour the simple grandeur of the original. Yet it contains some of his choicest pieces, such as Ps. 84, "Lord of the worlds above;" the noble Ps. 90, "Our God, our help in ages past," Ps. 136, "Give to our God immortal praise;" and one or two more. The Psalter is not really complete. Watts saw and was bold enough to say, that there were parts of the Psalter which could never be sung, and which were therefore useless as hymns. His renderings are paraphrases rather than translations. He breaks up the Psalms into different portions: sometimes, especially in Ps. 119, he selects and groups verses so as to produce a new hymn, and adds little prefatory stanzas. He utilized lines from his predecessors; some from Tate and Brady, more from Dunham, most of all from Patrick. From Patrick also he borrowed the new principle, used long before by Luther, and by Parker, which he worked out elaborately—evangelical interpretation of the Psalms. To this, which is the really notable characteristic of the book, he devoted great pains, embodying in his verse the New Testament expositions of our Lord and the Apostles, exhibiting the Messianic Psalms in the light of the life of Christ, and expanding adumbration, type and prophecy, into their fulfilments. Such a mode of treatment was of course a new divergence from literalism, but a legitimate and fruitful one. No principle has such promise of future usefulness in the adaptation of the Psalter to the purposes of hymnology. The tender modern hymn by Sir H. W. Baker, "The King of Love my Shepherd is" (H. A. & M., 197) is an illustration; and Watts's version of Ps. 72, "Jesus shall reign where'er the sun," is a beautiful example of the principle and of his best style. At the same time it requires extreme caution and reverence, if it is to be kept from error. When he tried to push it beyond the guidance of Scripture, Watts was betrayed into such vulgarity as the substitution of Britain for Israel, &c. A full exhibition of Watts's Psalter will be found in the New Coll. H. Bk.

XVI. Blacklock, Wesley, Smart, Merrick, Basil Woodd, Dwight.

In 1721 appeared a Version by Sir Richard Blackmore, which was dedicated to George I., and on the recommendation of both the archbishops and fifteen bishops "allowed and permitted to be used in all churches, &c.," by order in Council, in precisely the same terms as The New Version. It is rather a reaction in the direction of naked literalism, and it made no way, notwithstanding its lofty patrons. In Anne Steele's Poems (1760) there are forty-seven renderings of Psalms. C. Wesley at one time or other translated nearly the whole Psalter. Some were published in 1738 and 1743; again in the Arminian Magazine, 1798-1801; and the whole are included in the Poetical Works of J. & C. Wesley, 1868-72. They are naturally expressed in the refined and cultivated language which was habitual to C. Wesley, but they are not of high poetical excellence. The best are Ps. 23, "Jesus Thou Good Shepherd is"; Ps. 121, "To the hills I lift mine eyes"; and especially Ps. 131, "Lord, if Thou Thy grace impart." Charles Wesley adopts freely Watts's system of evangelical interpretation. Christopher Smart, published a version (1765), in which the introduction of New Testament matter is so great, that the characteristics of the Psalms are erased. In this book there is also a great variety of new metres, and among the rest that of Cowper's Alexander Selkirk, found in Charles Wesley, and in Shenstone. James Merrick published a Psalter (1765) which attracted attention from the known learning of the author. It bears signs of the influence of Bp. Lowth's theories of Hebrew poetry, and was also approved by Secker. It is written in continuous lines, but was divided into stanzas for congregational use by Tattersall (1767), who added a prose paraphrase. It is weak and full of epithets. Montgomery calls it "immeasurable verbiage." Basil Woodd published a few psalms in 1794; other editions followed. The final one (1821) contained his own, with alternative renderings selected from Watts and Tate and Brady, &c. Timothy Dwight, the American theologian, published a revised edition of Watts (1800). A Version of a few Psalms by William Mason appeared in 1797, and with additions in 1811; and another in the same year (1811) by William Goode. A partial Version by Richard Cumberland (1801) may be mentioned for the sake of the author, not of the book.

XVII. Montgomery, Mant, Harriet Auber, Lyte.

James Montgomery's Songs of Zion (1822) contain nearly half of the Psalter. The sombre and plaintive verse of Ps. 39, "Lord, let me know mine end"; and Ps. 63, "O God, Thou art my God alone"; are fine examples of lonely and sorrowful trust. The 121st, "Lord, for ever at Thy side," is of a tenderer character. Ps. 91, "Call Jehovah thy Salvation"; and Ps. 103, "Oh my soul, with all thy powers," are soft and unmusical. Far the finest is the rich and splendid Messianic hymn which few perhaps recognise as a Paraphrase of Ps. 72, "Hail to the Lord's Anointed." Bishop Mant published a version (1824) composed with great care, and founded much on Lowth's Lectures. But the language is cold, and the Psalms assume the form of stiff and stately odes. Harriet Auber's Spirit of the Psalms was published anonymously (1829), edited by a clergyman. She uses evangelical interpretation freely. Several renderings are full of gentle melody, such as Ps. 45, "With hearts in love abounding"; Ps. 75, "Whom have we, Lord, in heaven but Thee"; and Ps. 78, "Oh praise our great and gracious Lord." A book with the same title, The Spirit of the Psalms, was published (1836) by H. F. Lyte. Though it touches nearly the whole Psalter, and though there are a few among the best that have a joyous tone, such as the sunny rendering of Ps. 84, "Pleasant are Thy courts above" still it is with the tenderness and tearfulness of the Psalms that he is most deeply penetrated. His renderings are seldom close translations; they are either free paraphrases, or the expansion of a few verses, as a theme, with free interweaving of his own thoughts and metaphors, and perhaps for this reason they are less known than they deserve. Ps. 55, "Oh had I, my Saviour, the wings of a dove," a successful treatment of an undignified metre, illustrates his habit of isolating the sad part of a psalm. Ps. 91, "There is a safe and secret place," is good; and "Far from my heavenly home," exactly represents his method and his tenderness. Few probably are aware that it is founded on Ps. 137, "By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down; yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion."

XVIII. John Keble.

The Psalter or Psalms of David in English verse, by a member of the University of Oxford (1839) is the work of the reverend John Keble. That he should have deemed such a thing worth doing, is, in some sort, a measure of the advances of the last forty years in the matter of church music. There was "small hope," he thought, that the custom of chanting the psalms would cease in; and therefore, despite his conviction that the Hebrew was intended for chanting, not singing, and that success was "impossible," because the form and tone of English metre and Hebrew parallelism were irreconcilable, he set himself to improve the Metrical Version, "adhering reverentially to the meaning of the original." He submitted the work to Dr. Pusey. The adverse criticism which has been given had been anticipated by Keble himself. The close adherence to the terseness and the images of the Hebrew has produced some constraint and obscurity. But in the judgment of the present writer no other version has such refinement of diction, sustained merit, lyric force and fire, and flashes of imaginative energy. There are occasional traces of the influence of Scott's chivalrous phrases. Ps. 93, "God the Lord a king remaineth," is one of the finest. Ps. 46, "God our Hope and Strength abiding," is of the same order, but less clustered; the trochaic, Ps. 96, "Sing the song unheard before," is good; as also Ps. 135, "Sound high Jehovah's Name"; Ps. 136, "Praise the Lord, for He is Love;" and Ps. 148, "Praise ye the Lord from heaven."

XIX. Churton, Sir R. Grant, Conder, Hookham Frere, Prosser, &c.

The Cleveland Psalter, by Archdeacon Churton (1854), is one of the best versions. It is written in firm, equal, and melodious verse, and though inferior to Keble in spirit and freshness, and high imagination, avoids his abruptness and compression by a slightly lower texture, and greater liberty of translation. Though thoroughly an original work, it adopts ideas and lines from the ancient Anglo-Saxon Version which Churton attributes to Aldhelm (see § m), from Wyatt, Sidney, Sandys, Miles Smyth and Keble. Portions of Ps. 15, "Lord keep me, for I trust in Thee"; Ps. 37, "Vex not thy soul for men of pride," are in S. P. C. K. Ps. and Hys.; Ps. 67, "God of grace, oh let Thy light," is in H. A. & M. (364). Ps. 68, "Lord, to my and voice attending"; and Ps. 131, "Lord, my heart is with the lowly," are like Herbert

The best is Ps. 95, "Raise the psalm; let earth salute" in Kennedy, 1865, and the Wor. H. Bk. (904), 1875. A smooth, fairly-sustained Version, but deficient in spirit, had been published (1831) by Bp. Trower (revised in 1870). Sir Robert Grosd had published some renderings early in the century, among which is the fine ornamentation of the old 104th, "Oh worship the King." J. Conder's Ps. 113, "Hallelujah, raise oh raise," is a lyric of great brightness and jubilance. A Selection of Psalms by Hookham Frere was privately printed, see his Poetical Works (1872). The Synaxtrical Psalter by W. Vernon Harcourt appeared in 1856, and The Cambridge Psalter by Dr. Kennedy in 1860 (revised 1876).

XX. Recent Versions.

The reader of this sketch will have observed that in one aspect it is the history of the long tenacious struggle of the Metrical Psalter against the growing power of original hymns as the material of praise. This conflict has been now long ended, and the task of versifying the Psalms greatly simplified by enfranchisement from the routine metres. But fresh efforts are still made under these freer conditions. A version of considerable freshness, freedom, and spirit appeared in 1863, with an irregular structure of verse, by Mr. A. Maltè. The Companion Psalter, by Rev. T. R. Birks (1874), is a valuable compilation of the choicest pieces of preceding versions, and contains several of his own developments of the meditative psalms. His lyric measures are often soft and melodious: his intricacy freely Evangelical ideas; but they are not always the legitimate unfolding of the psalm, and sometimes the groundwork is scarcely perceptible. Ps. 19, "The heavens declare Thy glory"; Ps. 20, "O Christ, whose intercession"; Ps. 80, "Oh King of Mercy"; and Ps. 89, "O comfort of the weary"; are good specimens. The Marquess of Lorne published alternate renderings of the Scottish Version (1877). The late Dr. Irons produced a complete version, written with special attention to Hebrew parallelisms; an embodiment of it appeared in 1875. The latest versions are by Digby Seymour (1882), and Digby S. Wrangham (1885).

Among the efforts to make the Psalter compete with original hymns may be noted Matthew Henry's Finally, Hymns (mostly selected Psalms, 1695); Dorrington's Devotions in Psalms and Hymns and Spiritual Songs, arranged as a hymnbook for Sundays, &c.; Select Psalms and Hymns for the use of St. James's Westminster (1697). The most interesting is an arrangement by Romaine (1775), to which is prefixed an essay in defence of the Old Version, a strenuous protest against the growing power of Wesley's hymns.

XXI. Conclusion.

The quotations in the foregoing sketch show that metrical psalms still contribute largely to our hymnals. The least successful renderings have been those of the Messianic psalms. Nor have the penitential psalms yielded much for Lenten use. In one or two instances the dauntless trust of the Psalmists has been nobly reproduced. And for the worship of the masses certain grand and simple psalms are unequalled. The indirect influence of the long tutelage of the Psalter must not be lost sight of. It gave to our earlier hymns a severity, a breadth, an objective tone, and a wide and deep base in natural religion. Nowhere is the glory of God in his works so magnificently exhibited as in the Psalms, and the strength of the presentation is grounded on the whole power of the works in themselves, not on some single and perhaps sentimental aspect of the works. Nowhere is the jubilance of praise, unchecked by the chilling and irrelevant thought—true and sad as it is—of the sinfulness and inadequacy of our utterance, so majestic. These characteristics are impressed deeply on Watts; and they are of abiding value, as a counterpoise to the morbid emotion, effeminacy, self-consciousness, and anatomy of motives, which make some modern hymns so sickly. The influence of the Psalter on English hymns is by no means worked out. It may take new forms, select and develop more freely from the ideas, but it is impossible that the Psalms can cease to inspire many of the deepest, truest, best-rest, most intense utterances in future hymns.

[H. L. B.]

Psalters, English. Minor Versifiers. Biographical articles of the greater versifiers of the Psalms named in the foregoing catalogue, are given under their respective names in this Dictionary. In the notes given below the writers of less importance, either in themselves or in the work which they have done in paraphrasing the Psalms in metre, are grouped together in alphabetical order; and a reference number is added to aid in tracing out each person's work in the article on Psalters, Versions in English, p. 926.

Barnard, John, M.A., sometime Archdeacon of Taunton. [No. 138.]

Bartholomew, Alfred. From his Sacred Lyrics, 1831, we gather that he was an architect. B. 1801, d. 1846. [No. 227.]

Beaumont, John. From his Original Psalms, 1824, the following have been transferred to Spurgeon's O. P. Treas.: (1) "Lord, I am vile, conceived in sin." Ps. xxxix. (2) "Lord, I daily call on Thee." Ps. cxl. (3) "Many times since days of youth." Ps. cxxxix. (4) "Praise ye Jehovah, shout and sing." Ps. cxlviii. [No. 342.]

Bellamy, Charles Smith was the author of Love and Zeal and other Poems, Liverpool, 1833. [No. 334.]

Blackall, Elizabeth, author of Psalms and Hymns and Spiritual Songs, pub. in Dublin, 1828, which contained, along with other pieces, versions of twelve Psalms. Her intention was "to complete the paraphrase of the Psalms," as she states in her Preface, but this design, if such it was, can be gathered, was never carried out. [No. 344.]

Bowring, Edgar Alfred, was b. in 1826, and was M.P. for Exeter, 1868. According to Glass (p. 192) he has also "translated two small volumes of German hymns, and the Psalms into English metre, privately printed for her Majesty's use." [No. 346.]

Boyse, Samuel, s. of a dissenting minister, was b. in 1708. He received the rudiments of his education in Dublin, and then passed on to the University of Glasgow. He left it without graduating, and, being poor and unconnected, but his manners were of the lowest, and his life most wretched. He d. in Shoe Lane, London, in obscure lodgings, in May, 1747, and was buried by the parish. [No. 124.]

Brady, Nicholas, was one of the earliest translators of the Psalms into English metre. Nothing is known of him, save what is recorded on the ms. copy of the Seven Penitential Psalms, which is preserved in the British Museum. At the beginning of this ms. is written—"Peter Thomas Brangton Secret Theologiæ Doctor fl' minore pœnitentiæ confessor' de Latino in Anglicu Anno Dom. 1414, sed licet innocens et inconsentiens devotionis." This little work is written on beautiful vellum, and in an old curious mixture of Anglo-Saxon characters, and old English words, which tends to show that it was made at a time when the language was in a state of change. [No. 1.]

Brady, Richard, b. 1648, d. 1673, at one time Deputy-Lieutenant of the county of Westmoreland, was the author of several metrical works. Hazlewood, the editor of Braithwaite's Barnabee's Journal, is of opinion that No. 43 by "R. B." is his work.

Bryan, Joseph, one of the "other gentlemen" referred to in No. 51. Concerning him we know nothing except that he was a native of Ireland, a contemporary of Daniel, and that he was a friend of the versians therein. See Davison, C., below.

Byrd, William, one of the "Gentlemen of the Queen's honourable Chappell," s. of Thomas Byrd, was b. circa 1538, and d. in London, July 4, 1623. He was a chorister in St. Paul's Cathedral; Organist of Lincoln Cathedral, 1563; and Gentleman of the Chapel Royal, 1569. He was the composer of several well-known anthems. [No. 32.]

Carey, Thomas. A gentleman attached to the court of King Charles I. See Davison, C., below.

Cayley, C. B., B.A., translator of Dante's Divine Comedy, author of Pyeke's Interludes, &c. [No. 336.]

Chamberlayne, James, composed a few poems that he might "not trifle away too much of his time," and put a selection therefrom as—A Sacred Poem on the Birth, Miracles, Death, Sepulture, Resurrection, and Ascension of our Blessed Saviour, &c., 1665, which was added to Psalm Versions, the Lamentations of Jeremiah in verse, &c. [No. 93.]

Cobb, Samuel, M.A., sometime Master of Christ's Hospital, pub. in 1747, Poems on Several Occasions. He d. in 1715. [No. 115.]

Cole, Benjamin Thomas Halcott, M.A., sometime Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge, and Rector of Wavendon, Bucks, B.A. 1803, M.A. 1807. [No. 276.]

Colman, George, the elder, s. of Francis Colman, d. at Tottenham in 1766. In addition to his paraphrases from the Italian, &c., he was the author of a History of Bolingbroke. [No. 46.]

Coldwell, William, sometime resident in Sheffield as an architect and surveyor, was a local preacher in the Methodist New Connexion body. He pub. (1) Hobbs Hall, a Satirical Poem, 1819; (2) Poems, Descriptive and Historical, 1820; and (3) The Life of Psalms, &c. [No. 304.]

Colman, George, the younger, s. of George Colman, a dramatic writer, and for some time the Lord Chamberlain's Examiner of Plays, was b. at London, Oct. 21, 1762, and d. in 1836. [No. 137.]

Conop, Thomas, D.D., sometime Rector of Chedzoy, Somersetshire, and Prebendary of Wells. [No. 124.]

Cotton, Charles, the translator of Walton's Angler is well-known to us. His version of Nine Select Psalms is in the British Museum (Harl. 6946). [No. 37.]

Craddock, Thomas, a native of Staffordshire, and sometime Rector of St. Thomas's Church, Baltimore County, Maryland, pub. his paraphrase of the Psalms as below. He d. in 1846. [No. 144.]

Cranfield, Henry Cranfield, Earl of, was b. in 1595, and was the son of Sir Lionel Cranfield. "In the discussions which arose between Charles the First and his Parliament the Earl is said to have "distinguished himself more by his fidelity to the King's cause, than by his activity or skill:" his character will be found in Clarendon's History, where he is called "a man of great honour and integrity: and of a very universal knowledge in all things." [Bellamy] [No. 83.]

Cumberland, Richard, dramatic and miscellaneous writer, was b. at Cambridge, 1732, and d. at Tunbridge, 1811. He was for a time Secretary of the Board of Trade; but during the latter part of his life he devoted himself entirely to literature. [No. 108.]

Daniel, Richard, D.D., sometime Dean of Armagh and Chaplain to the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. [No. 122.]

Darby, Charles, M.A., was for some time Rector of Kedington, Suffolk. Beyond this we have no details. [No. 315.]

Davies, Sir John (Davis), b. in 1570, d. Dec. 7th, 1626. For further notes see his Scourge of Folly, 1610. [No. 58.]

Davison, Christopher, second s. of William Davison and brother of Francis Davison (see below), was a member of Gray's Inn. We cannot ascertain the dates of his birth or death. He is one of the "other gentlemen" referred to in No. 51.

Davison, Francis, eldest s. of William Davison, Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth, and brother of Christopher (see above). He was also a member of Gray's Inn. He d. circa 1619. His Poetical Rhapsody was pub. in 1602. [No. 16.]

The Harl. MS. referred to in No. 51 is one of three mss. which are thus referred to by W. T. Brooke in his ed. of Giles Fletcher's Christ's Victory and Triumph, &c., Lond., Griffith, Farran, &c., 1885, p. 242:—"Sir Egerton Brydges has printed a portion of the Psalms supplied Davison (on hitherto appears), and for the first time (with the hitherto unknown introduction of Francis Davison himself) they are here completely given. It is probable that Davison's death interrupted the work, and that it remained in MS. among his papers. At least three mss. of it have survived, (1) the apparently original ms. in the Harleian Collection; (2) a transcript by Ralph Crapp with additional pieces (referred to by Farr in his Select Poetry, &c., 1845, p. xxx., under the year 1621); and (3) a ms. in the Bodleian, which is the anonymous ms., formerly Archdeacon Cassal's and the late Alexander Gardyne's, from which we print. Of the fellow-workers of the Davisons—Joseph Bryan, Richard Gilpin, and Thomas Carey—little is known. Bryan was probably a literary protégé of Davison; and Francis Davison and Christopher Davison and Richard Gilpin each wrote and T. Carey a single psalm. Mr. Brooke reprints about one half of the ms., all of Bryan's but one being omitted.

Dewick, Thomas. Concerning this author our information is limited to the titlepage of his version. [No. 139.]

Dickson, Thomas, a schoolmaster at Cirkcaldy, Berwickshire. [No. 140.]

Dod, Henry, is called by G. Wither "Dod the clerk-man." Beyond this, and that his "late ridiculous translation of the Psalms was by authority, wastfully condemned to the fire" (i.e. legible by the common people), we know nothing of him. He was appointed by royal proclamation to preach before the Privy Council during a Public Thanksgiving on the 30th of November, but notice to be sung in church, we know nothing of him. [No. 48.]

Donald, Robert, an illiterate person of Woking, Surrey, was persuaded in his own mind that he had a divine call to prepare a new version of the Psalms, and was induced by the assistance of a friend to correct the grammar. [No. 126.]

Duncan, P. J. Our knowledge of this versifier is confined to the details on the titlepage of No. 208.

Eden, John, D.D., b. circa 1770, and d. in 1849, was for 41 years Vicar of St. Nicholas and St. Leonard's, Bristol. His version of the Psalms was pub. posthumously with a Memoir. [No. 307.]

Fairfax, Thomas, Lord, eldest s. of Ferdinando, Lord Fairfax, was b. at Denton, Yorkshire, in 1611, and d. at New Appleton, Yorkshire, in 1671. He is well known in history as a general of the Parliamentary Army during the Civil War. [No. 86.]

Farr, Edward. Of this versifier we know nothing beyond the information on the title page of No. 348.

Fenwick, George, A.B., b. in 1699, was rector of Hedley, Durham, for 33 years, and d. April 24, 1780. [No. 141.]

Tellis, Edward, M.A., b. in 1785, and educated at Cambridge. He was for some time a master in a large school at Ealing, and curate of Pluiston. Whilst at Cambridge he pub. Select Psalms, being a Selection of Portions of the New Version adapted to every Day of the Month, and to the Services or Circumstances of every Sunday throughout the Year, Lond., Rivington, 1821. The Preface is signed "E. F." He was incumbent of St. Mary's, Whitechapel, from 1824 to 1827, and during his residence there that he pub. his Ps. of David. He is said by those who knew him to have been a learned man and a devoted parish priest. He d. at Harrogate, Jan. 25, 1851. [No. 275.]

Fleming, Robert, s. of Robert Fleming, a Scottish Presbyterian minister, was b. at Cushendun, and educated at Glasgow. He was for a time a minister of an English congregation at Leyden, and then at Amsterdam. Eventually he became pastor of the Scottish Church in Lothbury, and was also lecturer at Salters' Hall. He d. May 31, 1716. He was the author of Pietas Oxoniensis, 1676, and of the Rise and Fall of Rome's Papal, 1701. [No. 101.]

Ford, Simon, D.D., b. in Devonshire in 1619, and d. in 1699. He was for some time Rector of Old Swinford, Worcestershire, and pub. his version of the Psalms in 1684. He wrote extensively on religious subjects. [No. 41.]

Forrest, Sir William, Chaplain to Queen Mary during her short reign, was a polemical poet and skilled musician. He pub. works from circa 1550 to 1560. His Certayne Psalmes of Dauyd are dated 1551, and his latest is, (Dep. 17, A. xxi.) is dated 1572. Specimens of his poetry are given in Arber's English Garner, Strype's publications, and in the German periodical Anglia. [No. 13.]

Franch, James. [No. 168.] The correct name is James Panch. (See p. 364, c.)

Frezaus, Abraham, a native of Shropshire, took his degree (B.A.) at St. John's, Cambridge, in 1579; was Master of Hadham School, Herts, and died in 1613. He was living in 1612, but the date of his death we have not been able to ascertain. [No. 35.]

Fryer, John Hoskins, M.A., s. of John Fryer, sometime High Sheriff of Suffolk and M.P. for Norwich, was b. in London, May 31, 1709, and educated at Eton and Caius College, Cambridge (B.A., 1732). He was extensively engaged in the Levant trade, and was appointed by colonel the Foreign Office. He was M.P. for West Looe, Cornwall, 1796–1802; Under Secretary of State in the Foreign Office, 1796; Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to Portugal, 1804, to Spain, 1802, to Portugal, 1808, to Spain again, 1809. He d., Jan. 7, 1841. [No. 36.]

Galagan, Henry, M.A., was a graduate of Christ Church, Oxford, and a Barrister-at-Law. [No. 33.]

Gipps, Richard, is one of the "other gentlemen" referred to in No. 51. We know nothing concerning him except that he wrote some of the versions in the set named. See Francis Davison, above.

Good, John Mason, M.D., a Congregationalist minister, was b. in London, Aug. 20, 1764, and d. in 1827. He left medical profession. He became F.R.S. 1805 and M.R.I. 1809. He wrote largely on medical, theological, and classical subjects. His O. St. 1827, and his Memoirs, by Dr. Gregory, were pub. in 1828. [No. 222a.]

Gregory, George [No. 176], b. in 1754; d. 1808.

Grymeston, Elizabeth, née Barney, dau. of Martin Barney, or Barnye, of Grimeston, in Suffolk, and wife of Christopher, s. of Thomas Grymeston, of Yorkshire, pub. Miscellanea, Meditations, Memoratives in 1604, and again enlarged it corrected in 1618. [No. 41.]

Hall, John, M.D., was b. in 1629. He was a celebrated writer on anatomy, &c. He resided at Maidstone in Kent. [No. 34.]

Hall, Thomas, B.D., was b. at Ashby-de-la-Zouch in 1610, and educated at Cambridge. He was successively Rector of Halstead, Prebendary of Wolverhampton, Dean of Worcester, Bishop of Exeter, and Bishop of Norwich. In July, 1616, he attended Lord Doncaster into France, and on his return he was appointed by King James as one of his divines to accompany him into Scotland. At the Synod of Dort he was one of the preachers, and his Sermons to the Assembly. He d. 1° 1656. His works are numerous, and include his versions of Ps. i.–iv. [No. 41.] These works were pub. in London by Parker, in 1605. [Index Anglicus, p. 1.]

Hamilton, William, a native of Scotland, b. 1704; d. 1754. [No. 126.]

Hare, Francis, D.D., who d. 26th April, 1740, was educated at Eton and King's College, Cambridge. He was for some time chaplain-general to the army. He was successively Rector of Hurstmonceux, Dean and Bishop of Chichester. He also held the Deanery of St. Paul's with his bishopric. He was the author of several works. His version of the Psalms was pub. posthumously in 1760. [No. 159.]

Hare, Julius Charles, M.A., was b. in 1795, educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and d. in 1855. In conjunction with his brother, Augustus William Hare, he published the celebrated Guesses at Truth. He also assisted Dr. Thirlwall in translating Niebuhr's History of Rome. His Essays, Sermons, and other publications were numerous and important. He was a Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, and for a time Archdeacon and Chaplain to the Queen. The following of his Psalm versions are in C. U. at the present time:—(1) "Lo, I come to do Thy will (Ps. xl.), and (2) "Lord God, my Saviour, day and night (Ps. lxxxviii.) [No. 163.]

Harte, Walter, M.A., s. of a clergyman, was b. at Taunton, circa 1686, educated at Oxford, where he was for some time Vice Principal of St. Mary Hall. He was also a canon of Windsor. He d. at Bath in March, 1774. He pub. History of the Life of Gustavus Adolphus, and other works. [No. 128.]

Holford, G. P. The British Museum copy of No. 241, contains a ms. note by a former owner, "This is Holford's Psalter." The Rev. Holford here referred to is probably G. P. Holford, M.P.

Hunnis, William, a gentleman of the Chapel Royal under Edward VI., and afterwards Master of the Children in the reign of Elizabeth. In addition to his Psalm versions he pub. A Hyve full of Honye, Seven Sobbes of a Sorrowfull Soule for Sinne, and A Meer Full of Mirrhe, being paraphrases of various portions of Holy Scripture. Some of his pieces are reprinted in E. Farr's Select Poetry chiefly Devotional of the Reign of Q. Elizabeth. (Parker Society.) [No. 17.] He d. June 2, 1597. [English Hymnody, Early, p. 91.] See also Various.

Jackson, Abner. An American Professor of Music. [No. 238.]

Keith, James. H. A. Glass, p. 189, says that this versifier "was a bookseller at Hagenau, S.H." [No. 209.]

King, Henry, D.D., eldest s. of John King, some time Bishop of London, was born at Worminghall, Buckinghamshire, 16 Jany. 1591-2, and educated at Westminster, and Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated in 1611, and became Student of his college. In 1614 he published, in vse collated to the Protocol of St. Paucras, in the Cathedral of St. Paul's, and also "the office of Penitentiary or Confessor in that Cathedral, and the Rectory and Patronage of Chigwell, Essex." In April, 1617, he was collated to the Prebend of Consumpta per Mare, and subsequently to the sinecure Rectory of Pulham. Later, in Feby. 1638-9 he was preferred to the Deanery of Rochester, and on the 6th Feby. 1641-2 he was consecrated Bishop of Chichester. In Dec. 1642, he was imprisoned in the Tower, and deprived of his See of Chichester. On his release from prison he resided for a time at Langley, Bucks. At the Restoration he was reinstated in his Episcopic at Chichester, where he d. Sep. 30, 1669. His Metrical Version of the Psalms was pub. in 1651, and his Sermons in 1657, 1664, and 1667. Extracts from these were republished with elaborate Historical and Biographical notes by the Rev. J. Hannah, M.A., as Poems & Psalms. Lon.: Pickering, 1843. [No. 78.]

Leaper, Mary, the daughter of a gardener to Judge Hutchins, of Marston, St. Lawrence, Northamptonshire, d. in 1760, aged 22. Her Psalm versions were pub. posthumously in 1760 for the benefit of her father. A second volume appeared in 1761. [No. 134.]

Lee, Henry, second s. of Henry Lee, of Locko, a London merchant. Concerning the dates of his birth and death we have ascertained nothing. His Ecclesiastes, otherwise called the Preacher, was pub. in 1597. [Licensed 1596.] [No. 52.]

Lorne, John Douglas-Sutherland-Campbell, Marquess of, son of the Duke of Argyll, b. Aug. 6, 1845, to H.R.H. Princess Louise, 1871). Governor-General of Canada, 1878. [No. 224.]

Marsh, Edward Garrard, M.A., was b. in 1710, and educated at Wadham College, Oxford. (B.A., 1734.) He was Rector of Bishopstone, Wilts, 1744–1800, previously been Minister of Hampstead Chapel. His Sixty Ps. and Hys., 1st ed., were pub. in 1760. The entire Book of Psalms was pub. in 1794. The 4th ed. of his Ps. & Hys. (1810 in all) was pub. by Seeley's, London, 1845. Mr. Marsh d. Sept. 24, 1801. [No. 138.]

Mannerman and Fernard, John Foster, 10th Viscount Mannerman and Fernard, b. 1812, d. 1865. [No. 242.]

Mather, Cotton, D.D., s. of Increase Mather, b., a Congregationalist minister, was b. in Boston, New England, 1663, and d. in 1728. He was educated at Harvard College, and was for sometime a pastor in Boston. He received his D.D. from Glasgow University, and he was F.R.S. (London.) His principal work was Theriki Sive, Psalmorum Davidis Versio Nova Metrica, Anglicana, Ad Hebraicum Fontem Facta in 1626 to 1720. He was noted also for his work on Witchcraft entitled The Wonders of the Invisible World, &c., 1718. [No. 118.]

Maule, John, M.D. Concerning this versifier we know nothing beyond what is contained on the titlepage of No. 210.

McClure, Samuel. [No. 252.]

McLaren, David, M.A., Minister of Humble, Haddingtonshire, at Dundee, and educated at St. Andrew's University. [No. 234.]

Milbourne, Luke, s. of Luke Milbourne, one of the ejected ministers of 1662. He was Vicar of St. Ebbes-

Scott, Robert Allen, M.A., was b. 1804, and educated at Balliol, Oxford (B.A., 1826). Taking Holy Orders, he was successively Curate of Shenfflaies and Woodcote, Salop, Vicar of St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, and Rural Dean of Shrewsbury. He d. 1870. He published, in his Paraphrases, he pub. Parish Rhymes for Schools and Colleges, in 1846. Two of his paraphrases are in C.U.:—"All glory be to Thee," Pt. III, and "Lord, Thou hast formed my every part," Pt. IIIb. [No. 202.]

Seymour, William Digby, M.A., b. D., b. 1822; M.P. for Southampton, 1857–1865, and for Finsbury, 1865–1868; Recorder of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, 1864. [No. 232.]

Skurray, Francis, D.D., was b. in 1773, and educated at Lincoln College, Oxford, of which College he was also a Fellow from 1801 to 1824. He was Rector of Winterborne Stoughton, Dorsetshire, and Perpetual Curate of Hemingstone, Wilts. He d. Mar. 10, 1840. His Hymns for a Parish were pub. in 1826, and his Psalms in 1845. [No. 211.]

Slatyer, William, D.D., b. in Somersetshire in 1587, his entered St. Mary Hall, Oxford, in the Lent term 1600, but afterwards migrated to Braseuose; B.A. in 1607; M.A. in 1610; B.D. in 1617; and D.D. in 1626. He was Rector of Otterden, Kent, where he d., Feb. 14, 1646. His pubs. in 1621, a History of Great Britaine, in English and Latin verse, in addition to his paraphrases of the Psalms. [No. 68.]

Smart, Christopher, M.A., was b. at Shipbrom, Kent, in 1722, and educated at Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, where he gained a high reputation for his Latin verse, both of which were in succession. (B.A. 1745.) He removed to London in 1753, and gave some attention to literature; but neglecting both his property and his constitution, he became poor and insane. He d. in the King's Bench, May 21, 1771. Among his pubs. are his Hymns and Spiritual Songs, 1764. [No. 142.]

Smith, Sir Thomas, was born at Walden, Essex, 1513, and educated at Queens' College, Cambridge, where he was successively Fellow, Public Orator, and Regius Professor of Civil Law of Cambridge, and in 1548 Secretary of State, when he was knighted. On the downfall of the Protector Somerset, he lost his appointment as Secretary of State, and was confined in the Tower for about a year. Subsequently he was restored to favour, and was employed on several embassies by Queen Elizabeth. He died at Stondland, Essex, in 1577. [No. 9.]

Smyth, Miles, secretary to Dr. Sheldon, Archbishop of Canterbury. [No. 48.]

Spalding, Thomas, member of a firm of wholesale stationers in Drury Lane, was b. in 1805, and d. in 1887, "a man of considerable literary ability and a liberal contributor to its funds." [No. 274.]

Stanyhurst, Richard, was b. at Dublin circa 1548, and educated at University College, Oxford. He studied Law for some time at Furnival's and Lincoln's Inns; but finally turned his attention to literature. He translated the first four books of Virgil's Æneid into English hexameters, 1582. He d. in 1618. [No. 38.]

Sylvester, Tipping. Of this versifier we know nothing beyond the fact that he joined Stephen Whitehead in publishing the Ps. of David, &c., in 1754. [No. 146.]

Tate, Nahum, D.C.L., Poet Laureate, 2nd Baron, registrar of Lord Chancellor Hardwicke's Court, was b. June 16, 1761, and d. June 3, 1820. [No. 180.]

Tolet, Elizabeth, d. in 1694; d. in 1754. [No. 145.]

Towers, William Samuel, a layman, concerning whose history we know nothing. [No. 193.]

Townsend, George, d.a., was b. at Ramsgate, Sep. 12, 1788, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, s.a., 1812; M.A. 1816. Entering Holy Orders in 1813, he was successively Curate of Hanwell, Middlesex, 1813–1814; Classical Master of the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, 1814; Domestic Chaplain to Sir Harrington, 1816; and Prebendary of Durham, 1826. He d. in Nov. 1857. His pub. Chronological Arrangement of the old Testament, 1826; Harmony of the Four Gospels, 1830; Modern Church of Rome; Reformation; History to Reign of Henry IV., of England, &c. [No. 206.]

Trapp, Joseph, D.D., vicar of a parish in London, who d. in 1747, pub. a tr. of Virgil; Explanatory Notes on Milton's Paradise Lost, and Lectures on Poetry; Thoughts upon the Book and Things, &c. [No. 136.]

Tweney, Walter John, D.D., b. April 5, 1804, was educated at Oxford, where he graduated in high honours in 1826, and became a Fellow of Oriel College. After holding some minor appointments, he was consecrated

Bishop of Glasgow and Galloway in 1848. Retiring in 1859, he was appointed Rector of Ardrossan. He d. 1st Jan. 1867. He was the author of several works, including the S. P. C. K. Epistles and Gospels, &c. [No. 222.]

Turner, Baptist Noel, M.A., b. in 1798, and educated at the Oakham Grammar School and Emmanuel College, Cambridge. He took Holy Orders in the Established Church, and of Wing, in Rutland. He was also for a time Head Master of Oakham Grammar School. He d. May, 1858. His memoir and portrait are in Nichols's Illustrations of the History of Literature in the Eighteenth Century. [No. 212.]

Turner, Thomas, M.A., sometime a Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, b. in 1756, d. 1829. He was 32nd Wrangler and Smith's Prizeman. [No. 204.]

Usher, James. From the titlepage and the Preface of his version [No. 216] we gather that Usher was a layman, who, with a limited education and little or no preparation, began to paraphrase the Psalms in 16th of Augt., 1709, and finished them 27th Dec., 1722.

Vowell, Richard, a Roman Catholic, d. circa 1623. [No. 33.] He was possibly the editor of the 1598-1601 Primer, printed at Antwerp, where he was at that time, and the Preface of which is signed "R. V."

Wicars, John, b. in London, 1542, educated at Oxford, was for some time an usher in the school of Christ's Hospital, and d. in 1593. He was a virulent writer against the Roman Catholics. His version is in his Briefe Explanation of the Whole Booke of Psalmes, &c., 1586, with nowe Psalmes of Dauid in Verse was pub. in 1631. [No. 65.]

Wheatland, Stephen. Of this versifier we know nothing beyond what is given in the titlepage of his version [No. 214] of Dauid, &c., 1744. [No. 144.]

White, John, M.A., sometimes called "The Patriarch of Dorchester;" a hero in was rector for 42 years, was b. in 1574, and d. in 1648. He was one of the Clerical Assessors of the Westminster Assembly of Divines, 1643. His version was pub. posthumously in 1654. [No. 81.]

Winchester, Elkanah. A celebrated Universalist preacher who ministered in a chapel in Petticoat Lane, London, in 1787. He was the author of several works on the teachings of the Universalists, and specially for the use of that community. [No. 194.]

Woodford, Samuel, D.D., b. in London, 1636, and educated at Waltham College, Oxford. He was for successively Archdeacon of Huntingdon and Prebendary of Winchester. He d. in 1708. [No. 84.]

Watson, Sir Henry, M.A., b. in Kent in 1560, and educated at New and at Queen's Colleges, Oxford. After spending nine years on the Continent, on his return he became secretary to Robert, Earl of Essex, with whom he continued until Essex was committed for high treason. Watson was committed to the Tower, and was known to the friend Duke of Tuscany, and was sent by him, in the name of "Octavio Baldi," with letters to James VI., King of Scotland, in which the king was informed of a design against his life. On succeeding to the throne of England, James appointed Watson one of his ambassador to the Republic of Venice. In 1623 he was made Provost of Eton (having previously taken Deacon's Orders). He d. in 1626. His works include The Elements of Architecture, Parallel between the Earl of Essex and Duke of Buckingham, and Of the Art of Navigation, &c. His poems and other matters found in his son, were pub. posthumously by Isaak Walton in 1651, as Reliquiæ Wottonianæ. This has been several times reprinted. [No. 78.]

Wilson, Thomas, D.D., sometime Archdeacon of Cleveland, b. in 1743, educated at Magdalen and Trinity Colleges, Cambridge, and d. Dec. 27, 1821. [No. 209.]

Wrangham, William, a tradesman of Louth, Lincolnshire. He d. in 1822. [No. 222.]

Wyatt, Sir Thomas, b. at Allington, Kent, in 1503, and d. at Sherborne, Dorset, 1542, in his 39th year. He was knighted by Henry VIII., and was sent by him on various embassies. His songs and sonnets were pub. with those of his friend, the Earl of Surrey. His Poetical Works were reprinted by R. Bell, 1854, and are also included in the Aldine Poets. [No. 4.]

Young, Robert, M.A., says on the titlepage of his version [No. 219] that he was "Minister of the Gospel, Glasgow, latterly for some time Minister of the Free Church, Chapleton." [No. 220.] [J. T. T.]

Psalters, Versions in English. In the subjoined list of Complete and Partial versions of the Book of Psalms in English (including those pub. in Scotland and America) not only are all known complete versions named, but also such partial and individual versions as, because of their authorship or merit, are of importance, are also enumerated. As the other versions are very difficult to consult, we give here the most accessible works wherein specimens of the various paraphrases may be found. These works, together with their Index Letters, are:—

A. Select Psalms in Verse, with Critical Remarks, by Bishop Lowth and Others. Illustrative of the Beauties of Sacred Poetry. London: Hatchard, 1831. This work is by Lord Ashley.

B. The Book of Psalms, Daily Devotional of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth Collected and Edited for The Parker Society by Edward Farr, Esq. Cambridge, 1845.

C. The Story of the Psalters. A History of the Metrical Versions of Great Britain and America, from 1549 to 1871, by Henry Alexander Glass. London, Longmans, 1871. 12mo.

D. The Psalmists of Great Britain. Records Biographical and Literary of upwards of two hundred and fifty authors, who have rendered the whole or parts of The Book of Psalms into English Verse. With Specimens of the Different Versions, and a General Introduction. By Rev. Thomas Wright. London, Groombridge. 2 vols. 1843. (See p. 339, ii.)

E. Anthologia Davidica, 1646. See p. 72, ii. This is by Henry Latham.

In addition the various editions of Cotton's Editions of the Whole Book of Psalms in English (2nd ed., 1632) should also be consulted.

List of Complete and Partial Versions of the Psalms in English from 1414 to 1880.

1. 1414. Thomas Brampton. Paraphrase of the seven Penitential Psalms. Edited with Notes for the Percy Society, 1842. (A. p. 108; and H. i. p. 74.)

2. 1535. Miles Coverdale, p. 208, i. Ghostly Psalms, p. 642, i.

3. 1547. John Croke. Thirteen Psalms fr. in the Reign of Henry VIII. Edited by the Alexander Croke, for the Percy Society, 1844.

4. 1547. Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey. Reprinted in the Aldine and other editions of Surrey's Poems. (Ox. ii. 1815.) [H. i. p. 56.]

5. 1544. Queen Elizabeth. Pp. 14, at the end of A Godly Medytacyon of the Christen Soule. Put by Margaret, Q. of Navarre, and translated by the Princess Elizabeth. Reprinted in the Appendix to Cotton's list (as at 1612). [F. p. 11; H. i. p. 146.]

6. 1545. Thomas Sternhold. Nineteen Psalms; 3rd ed., 1549, 37 Psalms. [H. i. p. 76.]

7. 1549. Robert Crowley, p. 278, i. [9, p. 69.]

8. 1549. Sir Thomas Wyatt. The 7 Penitential Psalmes drawen into English meter. Reprinted in the Aldine ed. of Wyatt's Poems. [H. i. p. 81.]

9. 1549. Miles Coverdale. Metrical version of about a dozen psalms in a ms. in the Brit. Mus. (Reg. 17 A. xvii.) entitled Certaigne Psalmes or Songues of David, Translated into English meter, by Sir Thomas Smith, Knight, then prisoner in the Tower of London; with other Ditties of his owne deuising, as wrote to pass the time there. 1548. [H. i. p. 161.]

10. 1549. John Hall, M.D., 12 psalms in his The Court of Virtue; containing many Holy or Spirituall Songs, Sonnetts, Psalms, Ballets and Short Sentences, partly of the Auncient Fathers, as others, with Many Newes. [F. p. 108; H. i. p. 176.]

11. 1550. William Hunnis. (See also No. 32.) Certayne Psalmes chosen out of the Psalter of David, drawen into perfyt ryme Englishe meter. [F. p. 141; H. i. p. 90.]

12. 1551. William Forrest, M.A. in the Brit. Mus. (Reg. 17. A. xxx.) Certayne Psalmes of Dauyd in Englysh Metre, with a prose translation. Reprinted by William Pickering, 1851. This is dedicated to Edward, Duke of Somerset. [H. i. p. 164.]

13. 1551. T. Sternhold and J. Hopkins. 3rd ed. of Sternhold, in which 7 versions by Hopkins are added. [H. i. p. 76.]

14. 1552. John Bale. Pp. 23, and 118, appended to his Expostulation, or complaynte against the blasphemies of a Franke priest in Almaine.

15. 1553. Francis Seager. 19 psalms versified in his Certayne Psalmes select out of the Psalter of David, and drawne into Englishe Metre, with Notes in every Psalme to sig^n by, by S. [H. i. p. 198.]

16. 1556. Anglo-Genevan Psalter. See Old Version, § iii.

17. 1556. Miles Huggarde. A short treatise in metre on the 130th Psalm.

18. 1558. William Kethe. In addition to his versions noted under O. Version, and Scottish Hymnody, 25 Psalms are printed at the end of John Knox's Appellation. [F. p. 146.]

19. 1559-61. T. Sternhold and others. See Old Version, §§ iv., v.

20. 1560. a. Matthew Parker, p. 682, i. [9, p. 43.]

21. 1561. Anglo-Genevan Psalter. See Old Version, § vi.

22. 1562. Sternhold and Hopkins. The complete English Psalter. See Old Version, § vii.

23. 1563. Thomas Bacon. Ps. 103 and 113, in his Completely Ready to the Affected People of God.

24. 1566. Scottish Psalter. See Scottish Hymnody, § ii.

25. 1566. John Pits. Two psalms. [F. p. 307.]

26. 1568. John Wedderburn (q.v.).

27. 1570, c. Sir John Harrington. Version of the Psalms in ms. in the Bodox Collection in the Bodleian. Specimens in Park's ed. of the Pegge Analysis, 1804. [F. p. 119.]

28. 1576. Lady Elizabeth Tyrwhitt. In her tract Morning and Evening Prayers with divers Psalms, Hymns, and Meditations.

29. 1580. Thomas Sackville (p. 660, i.). Ps. 130 in his A Mirrour for Magistrates, &c.

30. 1582. Richard Stanyhurst. Four versions (Ps. i.-iv.) at the end of his tr. of the Æneid. Specimen in H. i. p. 109. Copy of the Æneid in the Bodleian. The Psalms are in Poulter's measure.

31. 1581. William Byrd. Mottet: Psalmes, Sonets, and Songs of Sadnes and Pietie. [F. p. 225.]

32. 1585. William Hunnis. (See also No. 11.) Seven Sobs of a Sorrowful Soule for Sinne; compendiously collected out of the Seven Penitential Psalms of David, commonly called Panitentiall, &c., 1585. Copy in the Brit. Mus. [F. p. 142; H. i. p. 102.]

33. 1587. Sir Philip Sidney, and Mary, Countess of Pembroke (q.v.).

34. 1591. Richard Robinson. [F. p. 364.]

35. 1591. Abraham Fraunce. Eight versions in his The Countesse of Pembroke's Ivy Church, and Emanuel. [F. p. 327; H. i. p. 208.]

36. 1594. Henry Lok. Sundry Psalmes of David, translated according to the Hebrew, and poetically framed out of the text with Briefes (Bodleian, 1199). Also Ecclesiastes, otherwise called the Preacher: containing Salomon's Sermons, or Counsellorie (as may probably be collected), upon the 42 Psalme of David, his father, &c. London: Rich. Field, 1597. [F. p. 138; H. i. p. 222.] See also the Psalter Worthies Manifesto, ii. 1871.

37. 1595. Thomas Wentworth, circa 1597. Some select Psalms. [F. p. 426.]

38. 1600, c. Sir John Davies. His Metaphrase of Psalm 38, and a few others translated in an Irish MS., which the Rev. Alexander Grosart has in his possession. Specimen in his preface thereto.

39. 1601. Robert or Richard Verstegan. Odes in Imitation of the xii. Penitential Psalmes, with Sundry other Poeme and Divine Imitations touching to devotion and godly life. [F. p. 273.]

40. 1602. Richard Rowl. Metrical versions of certain Psalms, by "R. R." (Cambridge University Library); and, All the Psalmes of David, with sertaine Songes and Canticles of Moses, Hannah, and others, out of the Canticles of the Bible, 1639. [F. p. 448; D. p. 71; H. i. p. 204.] See also No. 80.

41. 1604. Elizabeth Grymston. Miscellanea: prayers, meditations, memorialines. In this are Odes in imitation of the seven Penitentiall Psalmes, in seven several languages, with English versions. [H. i. p. 242.]

42. 1606. Alexander Montgomery. The Minde Mislikit: Containing certayne Psalmes of the Kinglie Prophete David, applyed in a new and pleasant tone, verie comfortable to verie onelie but rychtlie acquainted thairwith. Reprinted by Laing, 1821.

43. 1607. Sir John Beaumont. Paraphrase of David's Penitent metaphrased in metre (Lond.). In his Works, vii. p. 185. 8vo edition. [H. ii. p. 33.] Reprinted in Chalmers's ed. of Sir Hadis Poets, 1810; in Peter Hall's ed. of the same, 1822; and in Dr. Grosart's private reprint. [F. p. 13; H. i. p. 208.]

44. 1613. Henry Ainsworth. The Booke of Psalmes: Englished both in Prose and Metre. Printed at Amsterdam. [F. p. 345.] [D. p. 71; H. i. p. 209.]

45. 1613. Sir John Beaumont. Divers of the Penitential Psalms, printed as the "Doleful Dove," in his Musæ sacræ, &c. Reprinted in Grosart's Chertsey Worthies Library.

46. 1613. Sir Thomas Leighton. Seven penitential Psalms in his Teares, or Lamentations of a Sorrowful Soule.

47. 1615. Sir Edwin Sandys. Fifth Select Psalm of David, and Others. [H. i. p. 271.]

48. 1615. David Murray. A Paraphrase of Ps. 104, in his Poetical Remains, 1823.

49. 1615. George Wither. Preparation to the Psalter. Reprinted in the Spenser Society's reprint of Wither. See also No. 64.

50. 1620. Henry Dod. See No. 60.

51. 1621. C. Darlton, J. Davison, J. Dyson, R. Gould. Certaine Psalmes or Songs, &c. Given as a ms. in the Brit. Mus. (Harl. 6931), entitled Divers selected Psalmes of Dauid (in verse) of 4 different composers from those used in Church. By Pia. Darlton, Esq., deceased, and others of his time. [H. i. p. 223, foll.] P. pp. 213-237; D. pp. 238-260. All the Psalms are by Darlton, Davison, and Dyson, the other writers are also of T. Carre, are printed from another ms. in Brooke's edition of Giles Fletcher, Lord. Griffith, Turner, &c., 1868.

52. 1621. Francis Bacon. Certain Psalmes in Verse, printed in Spedding's Letters and Life, vii. 380. Miscellanies, vol. i., 1870. [H. i. p. 208.]

53. 1630, c. Earl of Cumberland. A ms. in the Bodleian, Poetical Translations of some Psalms, and the Song of Solomon, with other Divine Poems. By the Right Honourable Margaret Countesse of Cumberland, the right honourable Henry Earle of Cumberland, &c. Sixteen psalms in metre. [H. ii. p. 368.]

54. 1631. James I. See Sir W. Alexander, p. 30, i.; and Scottish Hymnody, § iv. 3. [D. p. 74.

55. 1631. George Wither. Hymnes and Songs of the Church, with other Divine Poems. By George Wither. Whereunto are added the Hymnes of the Nativity, Circumcision, Passion, Resurrection, and Ascension of our Saviour, with sundry Psalmes of David, turned into Lyrick Verse, according to the Truth of the Hebrew, and agreeable to the Primitive Church, never published, 1623. [H. i. p. 214.]

56. 1632. George Wither, q.v. (See also No. 49.) The Psalms translated into Lyric Verse, according to the Truth of the Originall, and agreeable to the Primitive Church. Composed with a brief Prayer, or Meditation, before and after every Psalm. By George Wither. Imprinted in the Netherlands, &c. [A. p. 134; D. p. 71; E. p. 1; H. i. p. 214.]

57. 1632. George Herbert, p. 511, ii. Seven versions in Playford's Music Book. Reprinted in Grosart's Poulter Worthies Library, 1874. [H. i. p. 278.]

58. 1633. John Donne. Pp. 137 in his Poems, 1633, and later editions.

59. 1633. Thomas Fletcher, p. 279, i. Six versions in Miscellanies appended to his Purple Island. [A. p. 238; and H. ii. p. 16.]

60. 1636. Richard Rouldridge. A Paraphrase of the whole Psalter, and additional versions of more than 100 Psalms. [E. p. 13.]

61. 1636. George Sandys (q.v.). A Paraphrase upon the first Fifty Psalms of David's Psalms. [A. p. 151; E. p. 70; H. i. p. 226.]

62. 1638. Anonymous. The Psalms in Metre, altered from Sternhold and Hopkins.

63. 1639. Sir Thomas Salusbury. Psalmes of the King and Prophet and of other holy Prophets, paraphrased in English: conferred with the Hebrew verities, set forth by R. Iarvis Montenus, together with the Latin, Greek Septuagint, and Chaldee Paraphrase. By T. S., &c. Reprinted by Edward Farr, for the Parker Society, 1845, and, even more recently, by Dr. Grosart in his Poulter Worthies Church, more Lobgasts, 1638. The "S. S." is sometimes said to mean Robert Burnaby (Mr. Taylor suggests), but the Rev. Alexander Grosart has found the Christian name in the Dedication, which enables us to decide for either, and must leave it an open question. [D. p. 81.]

64. 1638. A Rotterdam Version. The Booke of Psalmes in English Meter. Printed for Henry Twill, Iohn Iaggard, and Thomas Dawkins (Lambeth Library.) [D. p. 96.]

65. 1640. Francis Quarles, p. 119, ii., and American Hymnody, § i. [D. p. 74.]

66. 1640. Anonymous. Paraphrase of the entire Psalms. In the Bodleian Library. Specimen in Cotton's Appendix, p. 142.

67. 1641. Francis Rous (Rouse). See Scottish Hymnody, § iv. 4.

68. 1642. William Slatyer. Psalmes or Songs of Zion, 1642, reprinted as The Psalmes of David, in 4 Languages and 4 Parts, &c., 1643. The four languages are Hebrew, Greek, Latin, and English. [A. p. 145. In Hebrew, Greek, Latin, and English. [H. i. 283.]

69. 1643. F. Thorne. The Soul's Solace in Plaies of Trouble, collected out of the Psalmes of David. 12mo, 1643.

70. 1644. William Barton. See p. 116, ii. [D. p. 74.]

71. 1644. Francis Roberts. The Book of Psalms, &c. Afterwards embodied in his Clavis Bibliorum, the Key to the Bible, unlocking the Richest Treasury of the Holy Scriptures, 1672. [H. II. p. 63.] See Nos. 66, 81.

72. 1646. John Milton. p. 177, ii.

73. 1646. Francis Rous. [H. I. p. 98.]

74. 1646. Richard Crakanthorp. p. 205, i.

75. 1646. Scottish Psalter. Authorised edition. See Scottish Hymnody. [Cf. [D. p. 98.]

76. 1646. Rev. English. The Psalms, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs of the Old and New Testament; faithfully Englished by the English Reformed Churches. Newly corrected and fitted to the Tunes of Geneva, as it is sung in the Dutch Churches. London, Printed for Richard Chiswell, at the Rose and Crown, in St. Paul's Church Yard. (Brit. Mus.) This was mainly a revised edition of Rous's version, and was largely used in Harvard College, Richard Lyon, and thirty others. It had a large circulation and was in extensive use for many years. [D. p. 97.]

77. 1650. Henry Vaughan (q. v.).

78. 1650. Rous's Psalter. The Psalms of David from the New Translation of the Bible turned into Meeter. To be sung after the old Tunes now in the Churches. [D. p. 98.]

79. 1651. Sir Henry Wotton. Ps. 104 in Reliquiæ Wottonianæ, 3rd ed., p. 499. [H. II. p. 63.] See also Dr. Hannah's Courthy Poets from Raleigh to Montrose, Aldine edition.

80. 1651, c. Thomas, Lord Fairfax, the Parliamentary General "not only versified the Psalms, but composed tunes to them, which are sung at Nun Appleton." They were never thought worth printing! The ms. of Fairfax's version of the Psalms was formerly in the Museum of the excellent Ralph Thoresby, of Leeds, as he tells us in his Ducatus Leodiensis, p. 518.

81. 1651. Sir Edward Sherburne published a version of the Odes of Seneca into Iambics of Dr. Hiles. A detailed account of it is given in the Preface to Cotton's Editions of the Bible, 1855.

81. 1654. John White. David's Psalms in Meter, done out of the Originall Hebrew, for the use and edification of the Churches of Christ. By the Reverend Mr. John White, Minister of God's Word in Dorchester. London, printed by E. Griffin for J. Rothwell, at the Fountain and Bear in Goldsmith's Row in Cheapside. 1655. [D. p. 91. H. I. p. 98.]

82. 1654. Henry Lawes. Five versions in Select Psalms and Hymns, 1655.

83. 1655. Abraham Cowley. Psalm 114 in his Davideis, and again in later eds. of his Poems.

84. 1661. Samuel Leigh. Samuel's Prophecie, or An Essay towards a Metrical version of the whole Book of Psalmes, according to the Hebrew: with the most advantagious circumstances of words and sclence. By Samuel Leigh, &c. (Bodleian Library.) [H. II. p. 95.]

85. 1661. Lord Clarendon. (See also No. 88.) The Advice of the Soul, or David's Heart towards God's House. Being Paraphrase on the Fifteen Psalms of Degrees, written in Italian by the Illustrious Sig. Francesco Loredano, a noble Venetian, 1635. Rendered into English, Anno Dom., 1660. (Brit. Mus. ed. 1661.)

86. 1662. Robert Baxter. The Saints Sacrifice, or Gods Saints: or a Book of Devotions, Ruteal and Gradual, Being Incants on the Fifteen Psalms of Degrees, in Meter; with Contemplations and Collects upon them in Prose. [A. p. 139; and H. II. p. 84.]

87. 1663. Thomas Hall. Funebria Florida, The Bay of the Bible, unlocking the Richest Treasury of the Holy Scriptures, appeared in 1648 and 1649 without his version of the Psalms. These were added in the 3rd ed., 1659. The 4th ed. is dated 1676. A few copies of the 1st ed. were struck off, with Thomas Hall's name and in a separate form as The Book of Psalms. This was identified as the work of Roberts by Mr. A. Gardner, of Hackney. See also Nos. 71, 91. [D. p. 91.]

88. 1667. Sir Samuel Woodford. A Paraphrase, in English Verse, upon the Hymns used in the Church of England. [H. II. p. 75.] The ms. is in the Brit. Mus. (Lbrt. 1763.) The title of the 1st ed., 1667, was A Paraphrase upon the Psalms of David. The 2nd ed., 1685, was printed by Henry Hills for Sebastian Pullein, near the Pump, in Little Britain. The title of the ed. of 1691 was much fuller: A Paraphrase upon the Psalmes of David and the Canticles, with Select Hymns fitted to the Church of England, to which is added Occasional Meditations in Verse. By Samuel Woodford, D.D. Printed and Sold by Samuel Keble, at the Turk's Head in Fleet Street. [D. p. 95.]

89. 1667. Mary Beale. Four versions of Psalms in Sir Roger L'Estrange's Paraphrase as above (74, 75, 76, 130). [H. II. p. 84.]

90. 1668. Miles Smyth. Psalms of King David, Paraphrased and turned into English verse, according to the Common Metre, as they are usually sung in Parish Churches. [D. p. 97. H. II. p. 97. I. p. 174.]

91. 1670. Thomas Hall. See No. 87.

92. 1673. Francis Roberts. See No. 88. The Complete Psalter in his Clavis Bibliorum of this year, or Clavis Bibliorum. The Key of the Bible, unlocking the richest Treasury of the Holy Scriptures, etc., wherein are also added the Metrical Version of the whole Book of Psalmes, (translatorily out of the Hebrew) and the Evangelicall Hymns sung by the Church of Christ, diligently revised. By Francis Roberts. [D. p. 100.]

93. 1679. John Patrick. Century of Select Psalms for the Use of the Charter House, 1679. Expanded into the complete Psalter as The Psalms of David in Metre, Newly Translated and Fitted to the Tunes used in Parish Churches, 1696. [D. p. 100.]

94. 1680. Isaac Chamberlayne. A Sacred Poem on the Birth, Miracles, Death, Sepulture, Resurrection, and Ascension of the Most Holy Jesus. Also Epitome of David's Psalms, Paraphrased; the Lamentations of Jeremiah, and Canticles. Manuscript in Emmanuel Coge in the Cambridge University Library. [H. I. p. 99.]

94. 1682. Richard Goodridge. The Psalter or Psalms Paraphras'd in Verse. Completed ed., 1684. 2nd ed., 1690. [D. p. 94. H. I. p. 101; H. II. p. 91; I. p. 44.] See also No. 95.

95. 1683. John Oldham. Psalm 137 in his Remains.

96. 1687. John Norris. Four versions in his A Collection of Miscellanies. (3rd ed., 1699.) [H. II. p. 92.]

97. 1688. Simon Ford. A New Version of the Psalms of David, in Metre, Smooth, plain and more to the most ordinary capacities: by Simon Ford, D.D., &c. [A. p. 170; D. p. 102; H. I. p. 92.]

98. 1688. Sir Richard Maitland. Poems, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, in low Dutch. Edinburgh.

99. 1689. Charles Cotton. Psalm 8 in his Poems. [H. II. p. 93; I. p. 94.]

100. 1691. Benjamin Keach, p. 610, i. Seventeen Psalms versified in his Exposition.

101. 1691. Robert Fleming. Several Psalms diversely rendered in his The Mirror of Divine Love Unmasked, in a Poetical Paraphrase of the High and Mysterious Song of Solomon; Wherewith is added a Miscellany of several other Poems, Sacred and Moral. By Robert Fleming, jun., V.D.M. 1691. [H. II. p. 103.]

102. 1692. Richard Baxter. See p. 118, ii. [D. p. 103.]

103. 1694. Daniel Warner. A Solution from the Psalms, composed on two Parts. A version of the Old Version.

104. 1696. John Mason. See p. 716, i.

105. 1696. N. Tate and N. Brady. See New Version, p. 720, i., and Psalters, English, I. xxix.

106. 1696. Lake Milborne. The Psalms of David in English Metre. Translated from the Original, and Compared with the Septuagint and other Ancient Versions. By a Presbyter of the Church of England. Dedicated to His Highness the Duke of Gloucester. London, printed for W. Rogers at the Sun, S. Clauds at the Peacock, and R. Yooke at the Middle Temple Gate, Fleet Street. 1696. [D. p. 103.]

107. 1696. John Phillips. Davideis, or A Specimen of some of David's Psalms in metre. This work is undated [1700].

108, c. 1700. Joseph Stennett (q.v.). Ps. 45 printed in his Hymns and Spiritual Songs, 1732.

109. 1700. Samuel Wesley (q.v.). Six in his Poems Commemorat.; and others in his Life of Christ.

110. 1701. James Gibbs. The first fifteen Psalms versified.

111. 1706. Charles Darby. The Book of Psalms in English Metre. The Newest Version Fitted to the Common Tunes. London, printed for Thomas Parkhurst, at the Bible and Three Crowns in Cheapside. [D. p. 118.]

112. 1708. Basil Kennett. An Essay towards a Paraphrase on the Book of Psalms, with a Preface, to which is added a Paraphrase on the third chapter of the Revelation. London, 1708. [H. II. p. 127.]

113. 1707. Samuel Cobb. Three versions in his Poems on Several Occasions, 1707. p. 123.]

114. 1710. Joseph Addison. p. 16, i.

115. 1712. Anonymous. Ps. 58 in Tyrne.

116. 1714. Sir John Beaumont. p. 207, i. [D. p. 94.]

117. 1714. Daniel Rogers. p. 196, ii. [D. p. 111.]

118. 1714. Anonymous. A Paraphrase on Several Psalms. The Book of Psalms in a Paraphrase Strictly conformed unto the Original: but all in Blank Verse, Fitted unto the Tunes commonly used in our Churches, which gave Occasion to accompanie it with Illustrations, and Annotations upon Difficult Texts. Translated from the Hebrew and adjoyned some other pertinent Observations and Scriptures to enrich the continent. Dublin, in 8°. E. [D. p. 118.]

119. 1719. Isaac Watts (q.v.).

120. 1720. Rosco Browne, p. 180, ii.

121. 1721. Sir Richard Blackmore, p. 144, ii. [D. p. 112.]

122. 1722. Richard Daniel. (See also No. 126.) A Paraphrase on some Select Psalms, By the Reverend Mr. Richard Daniel, Dean of Armagh, the Chaplain of his Grace the Lord Lieutenant. London, Printed for Bernard Lintot, between the Temple Gates, in Fleet Street. 1722. [D. p. 104.]

123. 1722. Thomas Gouge. Eighteen versions in his The Inward Soul.

124. 1724. Various. Psalms in Verse selected from Addison, Denham, &c., in An Essay for composing a Friendship between the Psalms, and other parts of the Scripture.

125. 1727. Walter Harte. Two versions in his Poems. [H. II. p. 226.]

126. 1727. Richard Daniel. (See also No. 122.) The Psalms of David, Translated into English Verse.

127. 1730. George Attwood. The rest. Ps. Paraphrased in English Verse.

128. 1730. John Burton. Ps. 104, 137, in his Sacra Scriptura incorrupta corruptelas omnes multivias.

129. 1731. Charles Wesley, John Wesley, jun., and Charles Wesley, jun. Wesley Family.

130. 1733. William Tanner. Ps. 1, 23, in his Sermons on Death, or The Beauty of Holiness.

131. 1734. Richard Lewlyn. Ps. 114, 137, in his Psalms and English Poems. By a Gentleman of the Middle Temple.

132. 1735. Elizabeth Rowe. Several versions in her Miscellaneous Works. [A. p. 158; H. II. p. 177.]

133. 1740. Samuel Boyse. Ps. 4, 42, in his Poetry on Several Occasions; and in H. II. p. 160.

134. 1740. Mary Leapor. Various in her Poems, Pub. posthumously in 1748.

135. 1742. Samuel Say. Ps. 87 in his Poems.

136. 1743. William Hamilton. Ps. 45 in his Poems, and in H. II. p. 160.

137. 1744. Christopher Pitt (d. 1748). Reprinted in Anderson and Chalmers's British Poets. [A. p. 161. H. II. p. 162.]

138. 1746. Joseph Trapp. To the 3rd ed. of his Thoughts upon the Four Last Things, 1749, are added Psalms in Blank Verse.

139. 1750. Thomas Blacklock, p. 144, ii.

140. 1750. Thomas Gibbons, p. 220, i.

141. 1751. Samuel Jemmitt Harry; Pike. The Book of Psalms in Metre. [D. p. 118.]

142. 1752. Congregations. Versions in Hymns for the Use of the Congregation on Grey Friars' Street, Spitalfields.

143. 1752. John Barnard. A New Version of the Psalms of David, with several Hymns out of the Old and New Testament, as they are sung in the Parish Churches. Humbly Inscribed, (leave of a Church at Shuttleland, Boston, N.E. printed by J. Draper, for T. Leverett, in Cornhill. [D. p. 113.]

144. 1754. Thomas Cradock. [H. II. p. 159.] A Poetical Translation of the Psalms, with Notes. By Mr. Shakespeare's Latin into English. Translated by the Rev. Thomas Cradock, Rector of St. Thomas's Parish, Salisbury, Maryland. By permission of the Dedicatory Company. London, printed for Mrs. Ann Cradock, at Wells, in Somersetshire, and sold by R. Ware, on Ludgate Hill. [D. p. 119.]

145. 1754. Thomas Sallet. Ps. 96 in her Poems on Several Occasions, &c. [H. II. p. 159.]

146. 1754. Stephen Wheatland and Tipping Sylvester. The Psalms of David translated into Heroic Verse, as at Liberty to Adorn or Alter from the Metre Version, Adapted to the Tunes used in the Parish Churches of New York, and Publish'd in Paternoster Row. With Arguments to each Psalm, and Explanatory Notes. Dedicated to His Royal Highness, George, Prince of Wales, &c., by Stephen Wheatland and Tipping Sylvester. [A. p. 64; D. p. 119; H. I. p. 99.]

147. 1756. Anonymous. Ps. 23 in A Call of Sion, for the Use of the Congregation in Margaret Street, Cavendish Square.

148. 1756. Philip Doddridge, p. 222, i.

149. 1755. Mary Masters, p. 714, i.

150. 1755. Sir Francis Haye. A New English Translation of the Psalms from the Original Hebrew, reduced to Metre by a Method entirely new. By Sir Francis Haye, M.A., Fellow of Clare Hall, Cambridge. Cambridge, printed by J. Bentham, Printer to the University, for R. Dod, in Ave Mary Lane, London. [D. p. 122.]

151. 1756. Henry Bell (q.v.).

152. 1757. Anonymous. A Paraphrase of Ps. 119, 143, 149, 130, 13, 144, 126, by an "American Gentleman."

153. 1757. Thomas Prince. The Psalms, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs of the Old and New Testament, faithfully translated into English Metre. Intended for the New England Psalm-Book Revised and Improved, by an Endeavour after a yet nearer Approach to the Original Original, as well as to the Rules of Poetry. By Jo. Prince. Boston, N. E., printed by Thomas and John Fleet, at the Heart and Crown in Cornhill. This was a version of the Bay Psalter. p. 128, i. [D. p. 125.]

154. 1759. George Fenwick. The Psalter in its Original Form, or the Book of Psalms reduced to Lines, as they are Distributed in the Hebrew Text, and Translated to Compleat Measure: answering for the most part to the Original Lines, as supposed to contain each a sentence, or some little's part of one. With arguments, etc. London, printed for T. Longman, in Paternoster Row. [D. p. 125.]

155. 1760. Alex Steele (q.v.).

156. 1760, c. William Julius Mickle. Ps. 68. [A. p. 199.] [H. II. p. 226.]

157. 1761. James Gibbs. The First Fifteen Psalms of David, translated into Lyric Verse, &c. [H. II. p. 164.]

158. 1761. John Rebow. The First Book of the Psalms of David, Translated into English Verse of Heroic Measure, with Arguments and Notes. [H. II. p. 164.]

159. 1765. Mrs. Wharton. Ps. 4 Rep. by Mrs. Wharton, 2nd ed., with appendix. Ps. Elim had a copy, but the book seems not to be unknown.

160. 1766. James Fauch, p. 304, i.

161. 1766. Jane Merrick, p. 712, ii. [D. p. 134.]

162. 1766. Christopher Smart. Translations of the Psalms of David, attempted in the Spirit of Christianity, and Adapted to the Divine Service. By Christopher Smart, A.M., Sometime Fellow of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, and Scholar of the University. London. Printed by Dryden Leach for the author. [D. p. 134.]

163. 1768. Christopher Collins and T. Vason. The Psalms in Verse, designed as an improvement on the old versions of the Hebrew. Dublin. A revision of Rous's Version.

164. 1768. Reformed Protestant Dutch Psalter. The Psalms of David, with the Ten Commandments, Creed, Lord's Prayer, etc. in Metre, for the use of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of the City of New York. New York, printed by James Parker, at the New Printing Office, near the Exchange. This is mainly from the New Version, "some of the Psalms being transcribed verbatim . . . others altered so as to fit them to the Music in the Dutch Churches." [D. p. 137.]

165. 1767. John Barclay. See Scottish Hymnody, I. viii. 16. [D. p. 138.]

166. 1768. George Scott. The Psalms in Metre. Privately printed in Edinburgh.

167. 1769. Anne Steele (q.v.), in Ash and Evans's Collection, 1769.

168. 1770. James Maxwell. [D. p. 139; H. II. p. 230.] p. 230.]

169. 1770. John Ogilvie. Ps. 148 in Sp. Horne's Commentary on the Ps. of Psalms. Previously in Ogilvie's Poems, 1769.

170. 1780. Rosco Browne, p. 186, i., where it is noted that his paraphrases previously appeared in 1762.

171. 1780. Anonymous. Sacred Odes on the Psalms of David, Paraphrased from the Original Hebrew.

172. 1781. Anonymous. The Book of Psalms as Translated, Paraphrased, or Imitated by some of the most eminent English Poets, viz., Addison, Blacklock, Brady, &c. [18 names in all], and several others. And adapted to Christian Worship in a form entirely new. With a Preface and Notes. Printed by Benj. Williams, Salisbury. Printed and sold by Collins and Johnson, MDCCLXXXI. Various versions of each Psalm are given. There are several suggestions. Probably some of these are by the editor. See Unitarian Psalters.

173. 1781. William Cowper, p. 852, i. Pr. 137 in his Poems.

174. 1786. Robert Boswell, p. 166, i., and Scottish Hymnody, I. viii. 5. [D. p. 139.]

175. 1787. Alex Scott. See American Hymnody, p. 27, i. (Introduction).

176. 1787. George Gregory. Several versions in his Dr. of Sp. Lovth's Prælectiones Hebraicæ. [A. p. 69; and H. I. p. 205.]

177. 1787. George Colman. Ps. 39 in blank verse in his Miscellaneous Works. [H. II. p. 235.]

178. 1797. Rev. — Kees. Two versions in Miscellaneous Pieces by a Clergyman of Northamptonshire, 1797.
179. 1799. John Ryland, p. 960, i.
180. 1799. Thomas Ray. Three versions in his Poems. [H. ii. p. 354.]
181. 1794. Rev. Samuel Cotton, p. 909, i. Ps. 15, 42, in his Various Pieces in Verse, &c. [A. p. 44; and H. ii. p. 351.]
182. 1796. The Tingstadius Version. The Psalms of David. A New and Improved Version. London, printed for the Author, by Richard Taylor and Co., and J. Matthews, in the Strand, near Charing Cross. "This version was made from a translation of the Psalms by John Adam Tingstadius, D.C., Professor of Oriental Languages at the University of Upsal, by command of the King of Sweden." [H. ii. p. 354.]
183. 1797. William Kaye, p. 757, i.
184. 1797. Elkanah Winchester. The Psalms of David versified from a New Translation, and adapted to Christian Worship. Particularly intended for the use of such churches as have adopted the sentiments of the Baptists, worshipping upon all His Fifth, ministers by Christ Jesus. London, printed for the Author, and sold by Yorke, No. 166 Boundsditch, &c. [D. p. 152.]
185. 1810. Timothy Dwight, p. 216, ii.
186. 1800. Robert Burns, p. 127, i.
187. 1800. Joseph Cottle, p. 988, i. [D. p. 153.]
188. 1801. Richard Cumberland. A Poetical version of certain Psalms of David. 56 versions. [A. p. 42; H. ii. p. 350.]
189. 1800. Anonymous. A Collection of Psalms from various Authors. Original. [H. ii. p. 354.]
190. 1800. Erasmus Middleton. Versions and imitations of the Psalms.
191. 1806. Thomas Dunlie. A New Version of the Psalms in Blank Verse with a Looke Version of the Hymns, &c. in Prose. Vers. by the Rev. Thomas Dunlie, Vicar of Shalfleet, Surrey. London, printed for J. White, Horace's Head, Fleet Street. [D. p. 134; H. ii. p. 275.]
192. 1805. John Stow. A Version of the Psalms of David, with Occasional Observations, Moral and Explanatory, and adapted, by variety of measure, to all the Music used in the Versions of Sternhold and Hopkins and of Brady and Tate. By a Lay Member of the Church of England, 3rd ed., 1842. [D. p. 135.]
193. 1808. Rev. Thomas Gisborne. Versions of the Psalms. By the late William Samuel Powell, Esq. Printed at the very particular request of several of the Author's friends. London. [D. p. 136; H. ii. p. 274.]
194. 1811. William Goode, p. 961, ii. [D. p. 136.]
195. 1812. Rev. Thomas Jones. The Book of Psalms: a Select Portion of the Book of Psalms. [H. ii. p. 274.]
196. 1815. Robert Donald. The Psalms of David, on Christian Experience. By R. D., Woking, Surrey, 1815. [D. p. 137.]
197. 1813. John Bowdler, p. 108, i.
198. 1819. Edward H. Thurlow (Lord Thurlow). Ps. 148 in the Gentleman's Magazine, 1819. [H. ii. p. 330.]
199. 1820. James Neligan. The Psalms Versified. Dublin.
200. 1820. Henry Lowe. Twenty versions in his Ps. & Hym. adapted to the Services of the Church of England for every Sunday and Holiday throughout the Year. [H. ii. p. 354.]
201. 1820. G. F. Ridout. The Book of Psalms in Verse; with a short Explanatory Preface to each Psalm, taken from the Works of Different Writers on the Psalms, but chiefly from Bishop Horne's Commentary. Vers. by G. F. Ridout. London, printed and Printed by the Philanthropical Society, St. George's Fields. [D. p. 141.]
202. 1816. Anonymous. Additional Psalmody, comprising metrical versions of more than 30 psalms or portions of psalms, omitted in the version of the Scottish translators. Edinburgh. This was an unpublished Draft, and is noted under Scottish Hymnody, Ver. I.
203. 1820. James Sibbald, p. 861, ii. Ps. 23, 24 in his Sacred Lyrics, 1820.
204. 1821. Rev. Alexander Russell. The Book of Praises. The Psalms, or Sacred Odes of the Royal Psalmist David, and others, the Prophets of Jehovah, in metre. [D. p. 142; H. ii. p. 284.]
205. 1821. Basil Wood (q.v.). [D. p. 142.]
206. 1822. Rev. Thomas Pringle. Ps. 104 in Scottish Verse. Edited by Dr. Laing. Edinburgh, privately printed.
207. 1822. Thomas Dale, p. 979, i.
208. 1822. James Montgomery, p. 703, i. [D. p. 143.]

209. 1823. Sir John Bowring. Ps. 90 in his Matins and Vespers, 1823.
210. 1823. James Usher. A New Version of the Psalms; principally from the Text of Bishop Horne. By James Usher. Printed and Published by the Author, Wigton, and sold by Longman & Co. [D. p. 144.]
211. 1824. Sir Robert Grant, p. 713, i. [D. p. 145.]
212. 1824. Baptist Noel Turner. Songs of Sályma; or a New Version of the Psalms of David, the long ones being compressed in General into Two Yards, or Portions of Verse, and the Alphabetical Ones into Single Verses, and Principal Stanzas. By Baptist Noel Turner, M.A., &c. Lond. Rivington. [D. p. 146; H. ii. p. 275.]
213. 1826. William Knox, p. 526, i. His Songs of Israel contains 19 versions of Psalms or portions of Psalms. [D. p. 147; H. ii. p. 275.]
214. 1825. Matthew Saxby. A New Version of the Psalms of David, dedicated to the Archbishop of Cashel. By Matthew Saxby, Esq. Printed for C. and J. Rivington. [D. p. 148; H. ii. p. 313.]
215. 1826. Rev. Thomas Kendall. The Psalms of David, attempted in Verse, Regular, Irregular, in the way of Paraphrase, &c. By Amos. A Clergyman. [D. p. 149; H. ii. p. 315.]
216. 1827. John Mason. A New Version of the Psalms of David. By John Mason, M.D. Marlborough, printed by J. Lay. [D. p. 149.]
217. 1827. Evangelical Magazine for 1827, p. 512, a Version of Ps. 2.
218. 1827. Mrs. Reid. The Harp of Salem. By a Lady. Edinburgh. This contains versions of several Psalms.
219. 1828. William Peter. (Also No. 239.) Sacred Songs; being an attempt to Paraphrase or Imitation of some Portions and Passages of the Psalms. London: Ridgway. Contains 83 versions. Reissued in 1834 as Sacred Songs by a Layman.
220. 1828. Rev. Charles Pallalis. The Christian Psalter, a New Version of the Psalms of David, calculated for all Denominations of Christians. Edinburgh. [D. p. 150; H. ii. p. 315.]
221. 1828. William Wirstanley Hall, p. 542, i.
222. 1828. Anonymous.
223. 1828. Sir William Mure. Three versions in the Rev. William Muir's History of the Boom of Irvine. (See also p. 777, ii.)
223a. 1858. John Mason Good, M.D. Versions of Pss. 45, 84, 118, 23, 24 in his Memoirs, by Dr. O. Gregory.
224. 1829. William Wrangham. A New Metrical Version of the Psalms, adapted to Devotional Purposes. [D. p. 151; H. ii. p. 320.]
225. 1829. Rev. Thomas Salter, p. 90, ii.
226. 1829. Dr. C. Terrot. Ps. 114 in The Outlet.
228. 1831. William Riley Bathurst, p. 117, ii.
227. 1831. Alfred Bathhlomew. Sacred Lyrics, an attempt to render the Psalms more applicable to Christian Worship.
229. 1831. Rev. Walter John Trevor. A New Metrical Psalter. By a Clergyman of the Established Church. Sportford, 1874. [D. p. 152.]
229. 1831. E. D. Jackson. The Crucifixion and Other Sacred Poems. Longman, London, 1831. This contains Versions of 4 Psalms.
230. 1832. Edward Garrard Marsh. The Book of Psalms translated into English Verse, and illustrated with Practical and Explanatory Notes. [D. p. 153; H. ii. p. 320.]
231. 1832. Henry Gahagan. A Rhyme Version of the Literary Psalter. [D. p. 154; H. ii. p. 325.]
232. 1832. Anonymous. Ten versions in the British Magazine.
233. 1833. Anonymous. Ps. 46 in the Saturday Review, vol. ii. p. 71.
234. 1833. Charles Smith Bird. Forty-two free versions in his Feet and Feet, and other Poems.
235. 1833. George Musgrave. The Book of the Psalms, translated into Blank Verse; being a New Poetical Arrangement of the Sacred Songs of Israel, &c. [D. p. 154; H. ii. p. 336.]
236. 1833. F. J. Tizard. A Paraphrase of the Psalms, executed in Blank Verse; with strict attention to the Sense, Spirit, and Imagery of Bishops Hordly, Horne, &c. By F. J. Tizard, Esq. Reg. London, Hamilton, Adams & Co. [D. p. 157.]
237. 1835. Joseph P. Bastern, p. 116, ii. [D. p. 155.]
238. 1834. Henry Francis Lyte, p. 706, i. [D. p. 158.]
239. 1834. William Peter. See No. 219.
240. 1836. H. A. S. Atwood. A New Version of the Book of Psalms adapted to the purpose of Congregational Psalmody. By the Rev. H. A. S. Atwood, M.A.,

Curate of Kenilworth. Coventry, printed for the Author. [D. p. 157.] See also p. 961, i.
241. 1838. Rev. Thomas Dykes, p. 959, ii.
242. 1838. Thomas Dinham. Paraphrase and Hymns. Norwich. Fourteen versions. [H. ii. p. 342.]
243. 1838. John Beaumont. Original Psalms, or Sacred Songs, taken from the Psalms of David, and adapted to the Services of the Church, according to the Sarum and other different offices. Printed at Shrewsbury. [H. ii. p. 341.]
244. 1838. Elizabeth Blackall. Twelve versions in Psalms, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs. [H. ii. p. 351.]
245. 1838. Michael Thomas Sadler. Select Psalms from the Psalms of David Sanctioned by the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States.
246. 1838. Michael Thomas Sadler. His Memoirs contain versions of 8 Psalms. [H. ii. p. 343.]
247. 1838. Wainwright. [D. p. 160, i. p. 159.]
248. 1838. Rev. Thomas Dale, Pss. 46, 130 in Poems, Original and Translated.
249. 1838. Edward Farr. A New Version of the Psalms of David in all the Various Metres suited to Psalmody, Divided into Short Compositions adapted to Public Worship. By E. Farr. London. H. Hooper. 2nd ed., 1847. [D. p. 161.]
250. 1837. Nathan Drake. The Harp of Judah; or Songs of Sion: being a Metrical Translation of the Psalms, &c. [H. ii. p. 344.]
251. 1837. Jacob, p. 898, i.
252. 1837. Robert Bruce Boswell. About fifty versions in his Psalms and Hymns. Printed at the Mission Press, Calcutta. [H. ii. p. 360.]
253. 1838. C. F. and E. C. A New Metrical Version of the Psalms of David, by C. F. and E. C. Hull, &c. Printed by Jackson and Walford, Elizabeth College. [D. p. 162; H. ii. pp. 286, 288.]
254. 1838. James Helme, p. 939, ii. Psalms and Hymns, Original and Select. Harrogate.
255. 1838. Joseph Keeling. Portions of the Psalms in English Verse.
256. 1838. John Keble, p. 619, ii. [D. p. 162.]
257. 1838. George Burgess, p. 196, ii. (See No. 265.)
258. 1838. Sir Robert Strael, p. 960, ii.
259. 1839. Francis Wrangham. The 137th Ps. in The Christian Remembrancer.
260. 1839. Miss Lee Follen, p. 980, i. Several in her Poems, pub. at Boston.
261. 1838. John Monkhaus Penn. Version of various Psalms, printed on one side of the paper only.
262. 1839. Rev. Thomas Dale. Select Psalms, arranged for the use of the Book of Psalms, &c. Edinburgh. [H. ii. p. 274.]
263. 1839. Julia Charles Hare. Portions of the Psalms in English Verse.
264. 1839. Edward Swaine. Versions of several Psalms in his privately printed work The Hand of God, Illustrated, with Poems, Hymns, and Versions of Psalms.
265. 1839. George Burgess, p. 196, ii. [D. p. 165.]
266. 1840. William Vernet-Harcourt, p. 686, ii.
267. 1841. John Rhes. The Book of Psalms in Blank Verse. Edinburgh. [H. ii. p. 344.]
268. 1841. Richard W. Hamilton, p. 485, ii. Thirteen versions in his Sugar Liberator, 1841.
269. 1842. Songs. Ps. 137 in the Evangelical Magazine, p. 118.
270. 1842. Michael Thomas Sadler. Memoirs, see No. 246.
271. 1843. Francis Skurray. A Metrical Version of the Book of Psalms composed for Private Meditation or Public Worship. London, Pickering. Of these versions 50 are reprinted in the Treasury of Sacred Song, Oxford, 1856. [D. p. 167; H. ii. p. 327.]
272. 1843. Frederick Russell. A Metrical Version of 50 Psalms.
273. 1844. Edward Fuller. The Psalms of David, Newly Translated and Arranged in Metre, Adapted to Congregational Worship. By a Cambridge Master of Arts. London, Whittaker. [D. p. 168.]
274. 1844. Moses Montagu. See No. 250.
275. 1862. Anonymous. A Metrical Version of the Psalter: with Explanatory Notes. London, Ward & Co.
276. 1845. Thomas Spalding. A Metrical Version of the Hebrew Psalter; with Explanatory Notes. London, Ward & Co.
277. 1846. Anonymous. A Metrical Version of the Hebrew Psalter.
278. 1907. Benjamin Thomas Malcott Cole. The Psalms of Israel: a New Metrical Version. London, Seeley. [D. p. 170.]
279. 1846. Joseph Irons, p. 471, i. [D. p. 169.]
280. 1846. William Henry Black. An Entirely New Metrical Version of the Psalms, written for the Music in Common Use. By W. H. B. London: Rudall, Rose, &c.
281. 1850. Frederic Pyer. The Psalms: A Lyrical Metrical Version, 2 vols., 1850-56. [D. p. 174.]
282. 1850. Samuel McClure. The Psalms of David, and Songs of Solomon, in Metre. By Samuel McClure, Minister of Newtownlimavady, Newtownlimavady. (Philadelphia Lib.) [D. p. 171.]
283. 1851. Moses Montagu. The Psalms in a New Version. Filled in the Tower and in Church[?] with Notes on Enumeration of the Difficult Passages. By Moses Montagu, Gentleman. [D. p. 171.] He heard the seven Penitential Psalms as a specimen of his work. See No. 274.
284. 1851. A. T. Russell. In his Ps. & Hym. (q.v.)
284. 1853. Anonymous. The Book of Psalms, translated into English Verse, from the Original Hebrew, compared with the Ancient Versions. Later editions, London, and 1860. [D. p. 173.] By a Layman. London, Rivington.
285. 1854. Edward Churton, p. 933, ii. [D. p. 173.]
286. 1854. Abner Jones. The Psalms of David rendered into English Verse of Various Measures, calculated for Public Worship, and for Private Devotion, printed to their own Likality; in which their responsive lines are kept unbroken, the dannet and sentiments, with which they everywhere abound, expressed in their own familiar and appropriate language, and the Poetical Spirit of the Original preserved entire. By Abner Jones, Professor of Music. New York. Mason Brothers. [D. p. 177.]
287. 1855. Anna Shipton. Versions of 3 Psalms in her Whispers in the Pines.
288. 1855. Rev. Thomas Townsend. Selahia Senechelia, or the Book of Psalms, showing the Probable Origin, the leading Aim, and the Inference suggested by each Psalm, versified in various metres. [D. p. 178; H. ii. p. 379.]
289. 1856. William Vernet-Harcourt, p. 686, ii.
290. 1856. Various. Hymns Written for the Use of Hebrew Congregations. Charlestown, S. C. Pub. by the Congregation Beth-Elohim A. M. 5616. This is a metrical version made by Jews for the use of Jews.
291. 1856. Rev. Thomas Townsend. An Illustration of the Book of Psalms, accompanied by Churchly, an attempt to Preserve as far as possible the leading characteristics of the Original, in the language of the English Bible. London. Baynes & Son. [D. p. 181.]
292. 1857. Rev. Alfred Morrow. The Holy Book of Psalms. Arranged for Responsive Use, according to the Prayer Book Version. London. J. W. Parker. [D. p. 182.]
293. 1859. Anonymous. Hebrew Lyrics. By an Octogenarian. London. Saunders Otley & Co. [D. p. 182.]
294. 1859. Thomas Turner. A Metrical Version of the Book of Psalms (Shykmoul). [D. p. 184.]
295. 1860. Benjamin Hall Kennedy, p. 622, i. [D. p. 184.]
296. 1860. C. B. Cayley. The Psalms in Metre. [D. p. 185.]
297. 1862. W. G. Young. A Version of the whole Book of Psalms in Various Metres, with Pieces and Hymns suggested by New Testament quotations; also an Appendix of various Translations, etc. London. Jackson, Walford, & Hodder. [D. p. 186.]
298. 1863. Arthur Mainl. A Metrical Version of the Psalms. London. Rivington. [D. p. 187.]
299. 1863. Robert Young. Proposed Resolutions of the Metrical Version of the Psalms used in Scotland, &c. Edinburgh. [D. p. 187.]
300. 1863. William Milligan. A Revised Edition of the Psalms and Paraphrase, to which are added one hundred and fifty short Hymns, selected with care from nearly twenty former editions. Edinburgh. J. Nichol. [D. p. 188.]
301. 1864. American Metrical Psalter. The American Metrical Psalter. To the Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States, this attempt to preserve Metrical Psalmody in the Church, and to promote uniformity in the Public Worship of God, is filial reverence and fraternal affection. New York: Huntington. In this work 10 versions of the Psalms are tortured and mutilated. [D. p. 189.]
302. 1865. Edward Caswall. A Metrical Psalter, adapted to the Offices of the Latin Vesperal. Resurrexit and Portiuni. By the Rev. E. C. Dublin, McGlashan. [D. p. 190.]
303. 1866. Charles H. Spurgeon. Several versions in his Our Own Hymn Book.
304. 1869. T. L. Hasty.
305. 1867. Daman Hopkins. The Ancient Psalms

on Appropriate Metres: a strictly Literal Translation from the Hebrew; with Explanatory Notes. Edinburgh: Oliphant. [D. p. 191.]

3562. 1867. Joseph Stammers. Ps. 23 in Lyra Britannica, p. 176.

567. 1867. J. C. Wright and H. B. Wright. Selection of Psalms in Verse in their Poems and Translations.

568. 1868. Horatius Bonar, p. 161, 1. Hymns of Faith and Hope. Versions of 37 Psalms.

569. 1871. James Merrick. The Book of Psalms translated into English Verse . . . from the authorised Version. With a repetition of Psalms 1 to 1, in Miscellaneous Metres. London: Nisbet. [D. p. 192.]

570. 1865. R. C. Singleton. Version of a few Psalms in his Anglican Hymn Book.

571. 1868. Thomas Sister, &c. Hymnal Melodyrestic: A Metrical Version of the Book of Psalms, made by Apollinarius, a Bishop of Laodicea, in Syria, circiter A.D. 362. Translated by Thomas Sister, &c. London: Simpkin and Marshall. [D. p. 193.]

572. 1871. Rev. Thomas Wickham. Versions of Psalms in his Original Poetry. Lond.: Whittaker.

573. 1871. John Burton. The Book of Psalms in English Verse. A New Metrical Paraphrase. London: John Stone. [D. p. 194.]

574. 1871. Rev. Percy Hatherly. Pilgrim Songs of the Nitons. From the Captivity, retranslated and versified. Ps. 120-134.

575. 1874. Daniel Bagot. Versions of a few Psalms in his Hymns. London: Groombridge & Son.

576. 1875. Rev. Thomas Darling, M.A. Ps. 1, 2.

577. 1876. Lord Selborne. Ps. 90, in Dr. Rogers's Story of the Christian Home, p. 97.

578. 1879. Thomas Rawson Birks, p. 163, ii.

579. 1879. George Rawson, p. 252, i.

580. 1879. Henry Downton. The Book of Psalms, literally rendered in Verse. (D. p. 197.)

581. 1879. D. G. McLaren. The Book of Psalms, Versified and Annotated. Geneva. New York. (D. p. 198.)

582. 1880. W. D. Seymour. The Hebrew Psalter, or the "Book of Praises," commonly called the Psalms of David. A New Metrical Translation. (D. p. 198.)

583. 1882. Ben-Tehillim. The Book of Psalms in English Blank Verse; using the Verbal and Literal Arrangement of the Original. By Ben-Tehillim. Edinburgh: Gillander. [D. p. 199.]

584. 1885. David Mallock. The Book of Psalms in Metre, according to the Version approved by the Church of Scotland. Edinburgh: D. Douglas. [D. p. 200.] This is a version of the Scottish Psalter.

585. 1887. Digby S. Wrangham. Lyra Regia, The Book of Psalms, Translated into Lyrical Verse from the Old Testament, rendered into English Metres. Leeds, Fletcher & Co. (D. p. 201.)

586. 1886. John De Witt, D.D. Praise Song of Israel. A new Rendering in Verse, by John De Witt, D.D.

Extended as this list is, it can only be rendered complete by adding on the numerous versions of individual Psalms which are given in the Index to Sources and Subjects, in this Dictionary. It must be remembered, however, that all which are given in that Index are not additional to those named above, as by far the greater number are taken from the foregoing works. [J. J. and W. T. B.]

Psalters, French. The French Psalters, in common with the English, the German, and others, require a distinct history from the hymnody of the same nation.

i. Clement Marot.

1. Very few trs. of the Psalms have been found prior to the great Psalter of Marot and Beza. The germ of this work was Ps. 6, attached to the Miroir de tres chrestienne Princesse Marguerite de la France Royne de Navarre, Duchesse d'Alençon (1533). At least 18 others must have been trs. by 1539 (§ 2). In 1540 the psalms which Marot had then written and circulated in MS., were in the highest favour with Francis I., Catherine de Médicis, the Dauphin, and the court. They were sung to ballad tunes. Charles V. rewarded Marot with 200 golden doubloons for his present of 30 Psalms, and asked him to versify for him "Confitemini Domino" (prob. Ps. 16).

2. The earliest printed psalms by Marot emanated from the Protestant party of the Reformation, and it is not clear from what source Calvin obtained them. The text also of these early psalms differs from the first edition afterwards pub. by Marot himself. In an unique book in the library at Munich, entitled Aulcuns Pseaumes et Cantiques mys en chant, Strasbourg, 1539—the earliest effort of Calvin to introduce singing into public worship at Strasburg—there are 18 psalms, together with the Song of Simeon, the Creed, and Ten Commandments. There are melodies to each piece.

Of these psalms 13 are, in a form varied from his own subsequent ed. of 1542, by Marot. (Pss. 1, 5, 8, 15, 19, 24, 51, 103, 114, 115, 130, 137, 143.) Of the other pieces, two (Pss. 25, 36) are by Calvin himself; two (Pss. 91, 128) by (Ps. 33, 36, 46, 81, 138, The Song of Simeon, and Ten Commandments) are strongly marked off from Marot's pieces by their inversion, want of feminine rhymes, and German melodies. They are probably by Calvin himself.

3. In 1541 appeared Psalmes de David, translatez de plusieurs autheurs, et principalement de Cle. Marot, ou, reconguez et corrigé par les Huguenotz, nouuellement par M. F. Pierre Alexandre, conciunateur ordinaire de la Royne de Hongrie. Anvers. (An unique copy is in the possession of M. Henri Lutteroth.) The contents of this volume are 30 psalms by Marot, and 15 by ten or eleven different authors. Some of these latter are alternative versions of the same psalm. Tunes of the day are named for one of Marot's psalms and nine of the others. The text of the 30 psalms of Marot, though, in the 13 Pss. named above, identical with that found in the Strasburg edition, differs from that of Marot's own edition (1542) of those same 30 psalms. Pierre Alexandre may have received Marot's psalms from the Queen of Hungary, who may herself have obtained them from her brother Charles V. Alexandre was inclined to the Huguenot doctrines, and at a later period (1555) became pastor of the Reformed congregation at Strasburg.

4. A very curious Liturgy (of which there is an unique copy in M. Gaiffe's possession) appeared in 1542.

La manyere de faire prieres aux eglises Françoyses . . . ensemble pseaumes et cantiques Françoys ques chantz aux dictes eglises . . . (the title is of great length). At the end of the psalms there is the following note: "Imprimé à Rome par le commandement de Nostre Sainct Pere le Pape, et de Messeigneurs les cardinaulx." The Psalms in this edition comprise all the psalms by Marot and others in the Strasburg ed. (1539); the other 7 psalms of Marot contained in the Antwerp ed., and 4 others from the same book (42nd signed "C. M." and 43rd signed "M. C. M." and 44th and 45th "C. V."). To these are added the Song of Simeon, Creed, and Ten Commandments of the Strasburg book, and Marot's Pater Noster from the Miroir. The 31 melodies of the Strasburg book are re-printed, together with 9 others, and 3 for the Ten Commandments. The Mass was a piece found, of which there is a similar example in one of the works of Lefèvre d'Etaples, the first translator of the Bible in French. The real place of printing seems to have been Strasburg, as a letter from Calvin to Farel, dated 5th Nov. 1542 (Opera, Calvini xi. 11), addressed to the chief magistrate at Metz, in which he says that a new ed. of the Liturgy and the Psalms had been made, for the use of the French congregation, and that he will prove that some of the errors which had been urged at Metz on account of an inconsiderate addition of the printer "—imprimé à Rome avec privileges du Pape." The internal evidence effected by a comparison of the liturgical portions with subsequent liturgies at Geneva (1542) and Strasburg (1545) is consistent with this assumption. The printer was very probably Johan Knoblauch. Pierre Brully, the pastor, was perhaps the editor.

5. In the library at Stuttgart there is an unique copy of Calvin's first Liturgy pub. at Geneva, entitled La forme des prieres et chantz ecclesiastiques avec la maniere d'administrer les sacremens, et consacrer le mariage, selon la coustume de l'Eglise ancienne, 1543."

There is no name of place or printer; but the device of an olive branch, ending in an ornamental "G.," is known to be the mark of Jean Gérard or Girard, a Genevan printer. The liturgical contents of this volume are of great interest; but the only portion of them that concerns our subject is the preface, which exhibits Calvin's sentiments on the use of music in public worship.

The Psalms are a reprint of those in the last-mentioned ed., known as the Pseudo-Roman, with the omission of the prose 119th Ps., and the 4 by various authors (45, 126, 130, 142). The other pieces of the Pseudo-Roman are also reprinted, with the exception of the prose Creed, which is exchanged for Marot's versified Creed. In the Ten Commandments additions are made in the text of the Psalter. But considerable alteration is made in the melodies. Only 17 are common to this and the Pseudo-Roman ed., and modifications which lessen their German character are made in 10 of these. The melodies are 31 in all, with 3 additions for rejected tunes of the earlier edition, 9 set to psalms, which previously had no melodies attached to them. This musical contribution is probably the work of Louis Bourgeois.

A second ed. of this book, probably only a reprint with no material alteration, is known to have been pub. later in the year. These several editions show plainly that for nearly three years the psalms of Marot were in favour alike in the Catholic court and the Huguenot worship.

6. In 1542, Marot himself pub. his 30 Psalms. The title of the book is—

Trente Pseaulmes de David, mis en francoys par Clement Marot, valet de chambre du Roy, dans privilege. Imprimé a Paris, s. n. (An unique copy is in the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris.)

It contains the privilege from the King, dated Nov. 30th, 1541; an epistle dedicatory to Francis I., not without evidences of real religious feeling, in which Marot contrasts the true inspiration of David with the fabled muse of Greece and Rome; and the 30 Pss. of the other editions (1–15, 19, 22, 24, 32, 37, 38, 51, 103, 104, 113, 114, 115, 130, 137, 143). At the head of some of the Psalms are short indications of the nature of the metre, but no suggestions of melodies, and no music. The text of this ed. varies, as has been said, greatly from that in the editions noticed in the last section. Whether both texts are by Marot himself, or whether the editions of 1539 and 1541 represent a text revised by other hands than his, it is difficult to decide.

M. Douen has printed the principal variations in the first 8 Psalms, and pronounces that the Paris text is infinitely superior in elegance and rhyme; that in only a few instances (Ps. 1) is the Strasburg or Antwerp edition more literal than in Marot's; and that of those a Marot himself adopted 3 in his ed. of 1543. On the ground of its superiority, and of the phrase on the Antwerp title-page ("rengingues et corrigé"), which indicates Marot's hand, M. Douen is inclined to look for the first time prints Marot's genuine text, and that the others exhibit a text that has been altered by Pierre Alexandre and the Theologians. To this verdict however the 13 Pss. in the Strasburg ed. (1539) which are identical in text with those of Pierre Alexandre's book (1541) are a considerable objection. The imprimatur of Pierre Alexandre also in the Antwerp ed., does not seem necessarily to indicate extensive alteration, for he says that he has "reveu et conferé avec plusieurs autres," and the other 14 psalms by various authors would share the revision with the 30 of Marot.

7. The publication of the 30 Psalms driven Marot from France to Geneva. Though the privilege for it had been signed by three doctors of theology, the book was condemned by the Sorbonne, and Marot was only saved from arrest by flight. In August, 1543, he pub., evidently at Geneva, Cinquante Pseaumes en francois par Clement Marot. Item ung Epistre par lug enuoyee aux dames de France.

The contents of this book are :—

An Epistle to the Ladies of France; an Epistle to the King; the 30 psalms already pub., revised and corrected; the Song of Simeon, the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Commandments, the Articles of the Faith (the Creed); the Lord's Prayer; the Angelic Salutation; and two prayers, one before, one after meals. The Epistle to the King is very brief. It contains an allusion to the fact that Marot had been compelled to flee, and a request for a sum of translation. The Epistle to the Ladies of France is in the courtier vein. He bids them quit their love-songs to Cupid to sing Him, Who is love indeed, "O bien heureux qui vuit pouvra, Fleurir le temps que Dieu donra, Et sans fraude et sans malice, Aymera Dieu de tout son cueur, Et l'aimera en sa beaulté: A vespres ou Pseaumes ou Cantique En son honneur se occupper." The new psalms are Pss. 18, 23, 25, 28, 33, 36, 46, 68, 72, 73, 84, 85, 101, 107, 110, 118, 120, 128. There is no music in this ed. The Song of Simeon (omitted in the 1st ed. but of those Fifty Psalms, with music, was pub. along with the Liturgy and Catechism by Calvin. The 8 psalms, generally assigned to Calvin, which had hitherto come down from the Strasburg ed. (1539) were in this ed. replaced by Marot's.

8. Marot's death (1544) arrested the progress of the Genevan Psalter. But his psalms were utilised in other quarters. Editions of them appeared in Paris, Lyons, Strasburg, and Geneva, 16 of which are extant. The Strasburg ed. of 1545, printed 10 of the new psalms, together with the psalms and pieces of Marot and others in the Pseudo-Roman ed., the Commandments by Marot, and a hymn, "Salutation à Jésus-Christ," beginning "Je Te salue, mon certain Rédempteur" (p. 879 i.) Louis Bourgeois pub. a harmonised ed. of the Cinquante Pseaumes in 1547. A compilation of Marot's psalms, 29 by Gilles d'Aurigny, 42 by Robert Brincel, 31 by "C. R." and "C. D." forming an entire Psalter, was pub. in Paris (1550). And Poitevin's 100 psalms (Poitiers 1550) were bound up, in later editions, with Marot's 50 as a complete Psalter.

ii. Completion of the Psalter by Beza.

1. The Genevan Psalter was completed by Théodore de Beze, at the request of Calvin, who had found on his table a fr. of Ps. 16. The first instalment of them was principally written at Lausanne. On March 24, 1551, he requested from the Council of Geneva permission to print "the rest (le reste) of the Psalms of David," which he "has had set to music," and asked for a privilege of exclusive sale. They were however very far from being completed at that date; and on June 24 Calvin wrote to Viret asking Beza to send what psalms he had, without waiting for the versification of their companions. Accordingly before the year closed there appeared :—

Trente quatre gaumes de David nouvellement mis en rime Françoise en plus pres de l'Hebreu, par Pr. de Beze de Vezelay, en Bourgogne. Geneve. 1551.

This volume contains a dedicatory epistle, "A l'Eglise de nostre Seigneur," and the new psalms by Beza.

The Psalms are: 16, 17, 20, 21, 26, 27, 29, 30, 34, 91, 92, 101, 103, 104, 105, 106, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 118, 120, 121, 124, 125, 126, 128, 129, 130, 134, 135, 136. The dedicatory epistle is justly eulogised by MM. Douen and Bovet. It illustrates the difference of standpoint and temper between the two poets. In place of the lighter graces of Marot's dedication to Francis I., we have the stronger note of Marot's addresses to the King and the Ladies of France, we have the strong firm tone, the contempt of worldly poetry, the sense of endurance, hardiness, even scorn, left by persecution, which marks the Huguenot theologian. The church to which he dedicates his work is the "petite troupeau," which he knows is despised and persecuted of earth, the kings he honours are not Francis the king of flatterers, but the champions of the Reformation in Germany and Edward VI. of England. There is however a high eulogium of Marot, "Leur to en mort ung aussi soueué et plaisant aucteur, duquel la mémoire nous sera tousiours laissé en mondz. Dont peult bonnes, qui le scauoit Voire, pour quoi quand la mort le rauit, Auecques toy se tint assez Dueil."

2. In 1558, 6 new psalms (52, 57, 63, 64, 65, 111), 4 of them without melodies, the other 2 set to previous tunes, were added as an appendix to the combined ed. of Marot and Beza which had been pub. under the title of Pseaumes Octante trois in 1552. In an ed. without date, Ps. 67, the Song of Moses, the Song of Simeon, and the Ten Commandments are added.

3. The various volumes extant show no further increase of pieces: until 1562, when the complete Psalter appeared, entitled Les Pseaumes mis en rime Françoise par Clement Marot et Theodore de Beze.

The privilege for this ed., obtained from Charles IX. (?), is dated Dec. 20, 1561. It was printed for Antoine Vincent at Geneva, Paris, Lyons, Caen, and other places, in 24 editions at least of that year. There are 69 new psalms, and 40 new melodies: the total of melodies is raised to 125. The Faire Notier and the Credo are no longer included; the Song of Simeon and the Ten Commandments are alone appended.

4. The music of the Psalter is beyond our scope. It is treated fully in M. Douen's work, in a series of articles in The Musical Times (1881), and in several articles of The Dictionary of Music. The melodies in the Strasburg ed. (1539) are of German descent. The editor of the Genevan psalters (1542–5 probably, 1545–57 certainly) was Louis Bourgeois. Only 11 of the Strasburg melodies are retained in the complete Psalter, most of them in a modified form; 74, the finest in the Psalter, are by Bourgeois; the 40 of 1562 are by an unknown hand. Side by side with the work of Bourgeois, Guillaume Franc, cantor at Lausanne, wrote in 1541 melodies for the psalms then recently translated by Beza, and obtained a licence to print them at Geneva, together with the original melodies to Marot's psalms. Nothing further however, so far as is known, was done until 1565, when a psalter was printed at Geneva for use at Lausanne. The bulk of the tunes in this psalter were derived from that of Geneva, 4 melodies by Bourgeois, and 15 by the unknown editor of 1562. The new tunes introduced by Franc were 46 in number, of which 26 were by himself, one from the first Genevan psalter of 1542, and afterwards omitted, with 19 from other sources. Harmonised editions, though never admitted for public worship, were printed from the first. Among these may be named 50 Psalms by Bourgeois in 5 parts (1541); 31 Psalms by Pierre Certon (1546) for the Sainte Chapelle, at Paris (?); Goudimel's three celebrated editions (1564, 1565, 1566), the latest of great elaboration; Claude Le Jeune's (pub. posthumously in 1601). The immense popularity of the music contributed largely to the wide spread of the Psalter in translations, the melodies accumulating the adoption of the French metres.

5. The fortunes of the Genevan Psalter, thus completed, were brilliant and singular. Its use even among Catholics did not cease for awhile. It was among the books which Francis I. cherished on his deathbed. Henry II. used one of Beza's psalms as a hunting song (?). Among the Huguenots, psalm-singing became universal. Catholic troops, wishing to disguise their identity, would raise a psalm. Crowds sang psalms in the streets. At the Pré aux Clercs, multitudes, among whom were the King and Queen of Navarre, sang them enthusiastically. In Poitou the Catholic curé mixed psalms with the Latin hymns. Florimond de Rémond, a contemporary author, dates the foundation of the Huguenot Church by the practice of psalm-singing. The necessity of conciliating the Huguenot power accounts for the singular fact that Charles IX., and Charles V. (probably really the Duchess of Parma, acting as his Viceregent) in the Low Countries, granted a privilege for the sale of the book. MM. Douen and Bovet have collected together the glorious and touching records of its use on the battle-field and at the stake in the days of Coligny, and in the dragonnades after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes. The 65th was the psalm of battle. The 51st, the Song of Simeon and others, were sung in the flames. The number of editions of the book is enormous. The splendid bibliography of M. Douen gives 1400 editions of French metrical psalters, far the largest share of which is composed of Marot and Beza's psalms. The influence of this book extended far beyond France. In German, 50 of these psalms were translated by Melissus of Heidelberg, at the command of the Elector Palatine Frederick II. (1572). A complete version, following the text, metres, and melodies of the French, presented (1565) to Albert of Brandenburg, was pub. by Ambrosius Lobwasser, a Lutheran (1575), with Goudimel's harmonies. Though never accepted by the Lutherans, it became the recognised Psalter of Germany and German Switzerland, and was frequently revised in the 17th and 18th cents. Serving as an original, it was re-translated in several dialects of the Grisons (among others in Italian) and in Danish. The Dutch version of Datheenus (1566) became the universal Dutch Psalter of the Low Countries; 30 revisions of it, all preserving the French metres and melodies, were made before its displacement by a new version (1773). To these may be added tra. from the French into Italian, Spanish, Bohemian, Polish, Latin, and even Hebrew. In England a volume entitled All the French Psalm Tunes with English Words (1632) is in the British Museum, Lambeth and Lincoln Cathedral libraries. At the end of a French tr. of the Liturgy of the Church of England, dedicated to George I. (1719, London), perhaps for the Savoy Church, the psalms of Marot and Beza are printed. In England's Hallelujah, by John Vicars (1631), are Divers of David's Psalmes according to the French forme and metre. The influence of the French on the O. V. of England and Scotland is only perceptible in a few French tunes and metres; 30 of the Scottish, and a smaller number of the English melodies are French. Pss. 90, 104, 120, 121, 124, 127, 129, in the English, and Pss. 102, 107, 110, 118 in the Scottish version are identical in melody with the corresponding French Psalms.

6. The general verdict of critics from the time of Voltaire to that of Sainte-Beuve has been severe. MM. Bovet and Douen are more kindly. Yet the former speaks strongly of the wearisomeness, diffuseness, inversions, obscurity, and vulgar, even gross, expressions in the work of Beza, and the prosy commonplace, inversion and coarseness in the far better verse of Marot. The judgment of the 16th and 17th cents., when the antiquated language was current, and the coarseness less perceptible, was full of eulogy. Out of the wide variety of subject matter, emotion and poetical style which the Psalter exhibits, the simplicity, plaintiveness, lyric grace, and subjective meditation are those best reproduced in Marot's choicest pieces, descending through him into the body of French hymns. The striking variety of metre evidently impressed Kethe and Whittingham, and an imitation of it was inefficiently attempted by them, as a relief to the humdrum monotony of the English and Scottish versions. The solidity, the breadth, the celebration of God in nature, on the other hand, which passed from our Old Version into the work of Watts, has no counterpart in the French Psalter, or the hymns that succeeded it. The contrast is due doubtless to deeper differences in the genius of the nations. The merit of fidelity has been generally conceded. The work of Marot was based on the direct translation from the Hebrew by Vatable, and perhaps other Hebrew studies. Beza was a deep student of the Psalms, as well as a theologian.

iii. The Revised Psalters of the Reformed Church and Independent Versions.

1. The version of Marot and Beza was the psalm-book of the Reformed Church. The French Lutheran Church, which from the first used hymns in worship, felt less the necessity of a complete Psalter. The Frankfurt Psaumes, Hymnes, et Cantiques (1612) contains 55 psalms by Matthieu Barthel. M. Douen also mentions in his bibliography Les Psaumes de David, avec les hymnes de D. M. Luther et autres docteurs de l'Eglise mis en vers françois selon la vraie et composition allemande. Montbéliard, 1618. More than 50 versions were pub. in the interval that preceded the revision of Marot and Beza. Two—a poor one by the Abbé Philippe Des Portes (1591), and that by Godeau, bishop of Grasse (1664), to which Louis XIII. contributed four tunes, and which was interdicted, because the Huguenots, forbidden for the time to sing their own psalms, adopted it—were efforts within the Roman Church. Those of Bailly (1587), J. B. Chassignet (1618), Bacon (1631), Damarets de Sainct-Sorlin (1690), were not intended for music. Louis des Masures (1557), Cardinal du Perron (1592), Malherbe (1630), Corneille, Racine, and his son Louis, have left partial translations. In the Reformed Church Charles de Navrière, of the suite of the Prince of Orange, pub. (1580) a version, as an improvement in versification on Marot and Beza. Diodati's Psalter (1646) testifies to the growing unpopularity ("sticcidiosemente et desgustemens") of the French old version, but was not designed for public use.

2. The great change in the French language towards the close of the 16th cent. made the old version grotesque and antiquated. "People feared," says M. Bovet, "that the passage of time would gradually make the Psalms unintelligible, and that the reproach of being written in a dead language would be as true of them as of the Latin." The general decision of the synods was for a revision, preserving the metres, and departing as little as possible from the old version. The author of it was Valentine Conrart, the eminent founder of the French Academy. The first ed. is entitled—

Le Livre des Pseaumes en vers françois. Par Cl. Marot et Th. de Bez. Retouchés par feu Monsieur Conrart, ciuuallier Secrétaire du Roy . . . Premiére partie, 1677.

It contained only 51 psalms, which are admitted to be the work of Conrart alone. The complete version—was to some extent perfected by La Bastide, to whom Conrart had entrusted his mss. Gilbert's Psalter asserts in the preface that La Bastide had made such large changes in Conrart's text, that the 99 new psalms are only nominally his. But M. Bovet's examination of the evidence decides—on the ground of the expressions in the preface to the ed. of 1677, and the universal ascription of the version to Conrart alone, without mention of La Bastide, in letters and acts of synods of the time—that La Bastide's alterations were probably trifling. Conrart's Psalter, though called a revision, and preserving here and there some phrases, and throughout the metres of the old version, is in reality The French New Version. When allowance is made for the difficult conditions of proscription, M. Bovet pronounces it, though unequal and sometimes deficient in spirit, a remarkable work; recalling in parts the naïve simplicity and lyric movement of Marot, in others the noble solemnity of the classic language of the 17th cent.

Les Pseaumes en vers françois, retouchez sur l'ancienne version. Par feu M. V. Conrart, Chevalier, &c. . . . 1679.

3. The distressed condition of the French Huguenots under Louis XIV. preventing the authorization of this book in France, the French exiles at Zurich appealed to the Church of Geneva as the chief of the French Reformed Churches, to take up the matter. In reply the Venerable Company of Pastors appointed three of their body, Benedict Pictet, De la Rive, and Calandrin to review the version, adding as a special instruction, that they should remove all phrases that savoured of Jewish imprecations against their enemies. The work was principally done by Pictet. Saurin, an synod of Nismes, also assisted the editors. Completed in 1693, pub. in 1695, the title of this edition seems to have been:

Les Pseaumes de David mis en vers François. Seviis de nouveau et accommodez aux tunes, et approuvez par les Pasteurs et Professeurs de l'Eglise et de l'Académie de Genève. (Title of 3rd ed. 1701. The 1st ed. is lost.)

The text of Conrart is for the most part retained, with occasional reversions to the language of the Old Version, and occasional excision of phrases of it, which Conrart had spared. First used in public worship at Geneva in 1698, it was sent (1699) by the Venerable Company to the other Reformed Churches, and generally adopted by the French refugees in Switzerland, and the national Churches of Erguel and Neuchâtel. The Church of Berlin reserved to itself the right to make a few alterations, which were carried out by Beausobre, whom Frederick the Great called "the best pen in Berlin," and his subsequent colleague in the translation of the New Testament, Lenfant. The title of this version is Les Pseaumes de David en vers. Nouv. Ed. retouchée une dernière fois sur toutes celles qui ont précédé, 1742.

The Church of the United Provinces, under the leadership of Jurieu, resenting the assumption of primacy by Geneva, made a longer resistance. Bitter recriminations passed, and the adoption of the new version was stigmatised as an act of schism. An unsuccessful attempt was made to produce a version of their own, and they fell back on the old version. After Jurieu's death, Conrart's version was made the base of a new revision, which is entitled:—

Les Pseaumes de David mis en vers François et revûs par ordre des Synods Wallon des Provinces-Unies. 1709.

It was authorized by the States General in 1727.

4. The era of Conrart and Pictet marks the beginning of decline. The new versions never attained the popularity of the old. The unsuitability for singing, not only of the imprecations, but of other portions more plainly avowed itself. They ceased to be sung as a whole; and the selection in actual use continually narrowed. Voltaire expended his ridicule on them. Even the music began to give way to new melodies. (The earliest substitution is by Dr. Camus (1760), who alones the old music roundly.) Hymns pushed out the Psalms more and more at the close of the 18th century. The collections of St. Gall (1771) and Berlin (1791) have only from 50 to 60 Psalms. The Walloon Collection retained the whole Psalter, with a Supplement of hymns (1802). The ed. of Beiruti, resulting from several commissions of the Churches of France and Geneva (1823), contained the whole Psalter in an abbreviated form, with several new melodies and alterations of the old ones. That of Gallet of Neuchâtel (1830) was made on the same principle. Wilhem (1840) pub. a complete Psalter, with changes in the music, alteration of antiquated expressions and softening of the imprecations. The Recueil des Pseaumes et Cantiques, Paris, 1859, has only 79 psalms: some of these fragments.

5. A few among the 130 names in M. Doner's list of persons in the 18th and 19th centuries, who have dealt with the psalter, must be added. Lefèvre de Pomigmas, Fire Manoel, and the Abbé Pellegrin are known also as writers of hymns. Gabriel Gilbert, Resident of Queen Christina of Sweden at Paris, wrote a version (1680). Several versions by Pierre Symond, Jouset, Rivasson, and Joncourt appeared in the United Provinces during Jurieu's opposition to the Genevese revision. The seventeen odes of J. B. Rousseau, founded on the Psalms (1721), have been greatly admired. That on Ps. 18, "Les cieux instruisent" is in C.U. The Psautier Ecossaise of Daniel Zacharie Chatelain (1781) is an example of that treatment of the Psalms, which was common among the followers of Luther, and which Watts elaborated—expansion of the Psalms, in the light of their evangelical fulfilment. César Malan (q.v.) pub. Les Chants de Sion (50 psalms) in 1824, and a complete psalter, Les Chants d'Israel, in 1835. The version and the music are new. Among recent editions may be named a Roman Catholic version, approved by Morlot, Abp. of Tours, Les Psaumes mis en Quatrains par un ancien Magistrat (Fey), 1844; that by Hector de St. Maur (1866), commended by M. Bovet; and that of Dr. la Jugie (1865), esteemed by M. Doner the best of modern versions.

Authorities. Clément Marot et le Psautier Huguenot, by M. Bovet.) Histoire du Psautier des Eglises Réformées by M. Félix Bovet; Clement Marot, and the Psalter of the Reformed Church in France, by (Miss Cranford) in The Sacred Times, 1861. [H. L. D.]

Psalters, German. [Various.]

Psalters, Scottish. [Scottish Hymnody.]

Psalters, Welsh. [Welsh Hymnody.]

Public School Hymn-Books, English. Introduction.—One or two relics of the use of the Latin Hymns in our Public and Grammar Schools have been discovered and preserved in a small volume, edited by Rev. J. W. Hewett, and entitled Sacra Academica. A Collection of Latin Prayers now or lately used in certain Colleges and Schools in England, 1865. At Winchester a metrical Latin rendering of Psalm 130, "Te de profundis, Summe Rex," was sometimes sung after grace. The hymn "Jam lucis orto sidere," used to be sung on certain days, while the boys walked in procession round Chamber Court. In The Psalms, Hymns, Prayers, Graces and Duke Deanum used by the Scholars of Winchester College, 1845, it is described as "Hymnus Matutinus die Recessionis ante Festum Pentecostes." The use of this hymn may have been the germ from which Keet's "Awake, my soul" originally sprung. It is still occasionally used in Chapel. At Eton, as late as the close of Dr. Keate's Headmastership, 1830–3, the hymn "Salvator mundi, Domine" formed part of the Evening Office. "Jesu Redemptor omnium" was used in 1575 at the Thame Grammar School among the prayers before leaving school. These are in all probability survivals of a very general if not universal use of the Latin hymns at our old foundations.

The hymn-books of the English Public Schools are part of the modern hymn movement, and scarcely connected with this use of Latin hymns. Taking the hymn-books in chronological order, the Schools represented are:—

i. Rugby.—The earliest of our modern Public School Hymn-Books is Psalms and Hymns for the Use of Rugby School Chapel. It was in use in 1837. There were perhaps two editions during Arnold's lifetime; the text in this book of the hymn by J. H. Gurney, "We saw Thee not when Thou didst tread" (q.v.), is said to be a revision of Gurney's original by Buckoll. The earliest accessible edition (1850) of this book contains a hymn, which could not have been added until after Arnold's death. Small as it is (18 Pss. 68 Hys.), and merely providing hymns for such Christian seasons as occur during the school period, this little book contained very few pieces that are devoid of merit. The Psalms are the best specimens of the Old and New Versions, with some from Watts, Montgomery, and Henry Vaughan: the hymns are for the most part standard hymns at the present day, drawn from the Latin and German, from the Wesleys, Ken, Keble, Heber, and others. The hymns that are peculiar to it are those, partly original, partly tr. from German and Latin, by Rev. H. J. Buckoll, who is believed to have edited the book. Two hymns of his—"for the first Sunday of the half year" ("Lord, behold us with Thy blessing"), and "for the last Sunday of the half year" ("Lord, dismiss us with Thy blessing")—are found in every Public School hymnal. Shortly after Dr. Goulburn's entrance on the Headmastership, he issued (1857), with Mr. Buckoll's assistance, the Psalms and Hymns for the Use of the Congregation of Rugby School Chapel. All the pieces of the original book, except 4, are retained; 10 new Psalm versions—from Milton, Keble, Trowsy and others; 33 hymns—from Isaac Williams, Neale, Caswall, Trench, and older sources; and an Appendix, containing a Latin Version of Ps. 117, "O omnes gentes undique" (taken from the Communion Office in the Liber precum, Ch. Ch., Oxford, 1720), with a tr. "O all ye nations, praise the Lord," and a Selection of Psalms (Latin titles only) for chanting between the Litany and the Communion Service (really the Introits from the 1st Prayer Book of Edw. VI.) are added: the object being to increase the hymns for the Festivals and give a more decided Church tone to the hymnal.

In 1876, Hymns for the Use of Rugby School were published, edited by Dr. Jex-Blake, the Head Master, assisted by a Committee of Masters. The division of the book into Psalms and Hymns was discarded, 14 pieces from the previous edition were omitted, and the total of psalms and hymns together raised to 339. The names of the authors were given in the index of first lines. The new pieces are chiefly from modern sources, and most of them the accepted hymns of our general collections. Some of the pieces are more of the class of devotional poetry than of hymns; two or three of the Latin hymns are given in the original. The tone of the book is pure and high: the hymns of praise full; but there is a dejection in some of those on Prayer, Faith, and Hope, which seems more adapted to older stages of Christian experience than that of the boy.

ii. Harrow.—The next Public School to compile a Hymn-book for its own use was Harrow. Hymns for the Chapel of Harrow School were 1st pub. in 1855, edited by Dr. Vaughan (then Head Master). It is a far larger collection than either of the two prior Rugby hymn-books (240 hymns). The sources from which it is drawn are chiefly Watts and Doddridge, Cowper and Newton, the Wesleys, Heber and Milman, Ken, Keble, and the Metrical Psalms. It belongs to the older type of Church hymn-books; full of simple piety, with no great effort at relation with the Prayer Book; often losing its directness of address to God in reflection. The number of hymns on death seems out of proportion in a school collection. A few hymns (e.g. Buckoll's hymns for the opening and ending of the Half-year) are apparently taken from the Rugby Collection. The 3rd ed. of this book (1866), edited by Dr. Butler (then Head Master), retained all the hymns of Dr. Vaughan's book, and raised the number to 331. Several of the new pieces are common to the newer series of hymnals, of which H. A. & M. is the type; others are from less obvious sources. The book in its present shape might be considerably reduced without the loss of really good hymns: a pure ideal, an ardent thirst for holiness, and a vivid faith in the Unseen God are its leading ideas. Some of the pieces are too reflective to be suitable for direct worship, though useful for private meditation.

iii. Marlborough.—The Marlborough Series of hymn-books commenced in 1856, with Psalms and Hymns for Use in the Chapel of Marlborough College. About half of its 100 hymns are from the Rugby prior editions; of the other hymns three demand special notice, as having rightly been included in most subsequent Public School Collections: a hymn of Bp. Cotton's (apparently, from the description of scenery, written at Marlborough), deeply imbued with the sense of the beauty of creation, "We thank Thee, Lord, for this fair earth"; a beautiful hymn by Dr. Jex-Blake (then Assistant Master at Marlborough), on the gladness, fulness, buoyancy of human life, which is so vivid to the boy, "Lord, we thank Thee for the pleasure that our happy lifetime gives"; and one for the Anniversary of the Consecration of The Chapel (St. Michael and All Angels) by Archdeacon Farrar, "Father, before Thy throne of light, the guardian angels bend." These three hymns are an excellent illustration of a principle that runs through the numerous editions that followed under the successive Head Masters of Marlborough (see below)—the production of a book, not only good in itself, and reproducing the hymns endeared by the associations of home, but specially meeting the needs and aspirations of a Public School community. On the side of boyhood, this aim reaches its fullest achievement in the edition of 1869: it may be traced in the simplicity and clear reality, with which the Christian ideas of faith, penitence, fruitly, dependence, and the stainlessness of heaven are presented, in the absence of morbid longings for death, in hymns of fortitude and endeavour, in jubilance and thanksgiving, and in celebration of God's glory in nature. The edition of 1869, and still more that of 1878 (which adds several rarer pieces, especially from the German, and has greatly enhanced the effect of the general hymns by massing them more broadly, under the headings of Praise, Prayer, Faith, and Hope), recognize the further fact, that the atmosphere of culture at a Public School permits and demands a higher literary and poetical standard, careful editing, and such full indication of sources and authors, as may encourage and suggest study of the history of hymns. Among the more choice pieces are some by Dean Stanley and F. T. Palgrave. The names of authors are given at the foot of each hymn, as well as in an index. The edition of 1869 has in an Appendix some beautiful selections of devotional poetry, from the Christian Year and other sources. Very little use is made of translations from the Latin.

ix. Cheltenham. See § viii. Bibliography.

v. Repton.—The Repton Series of hymn-books began in 1859. The 103 hymns of the 1st ed. were reprinted in the 2nd ed., 1864 (141 pieces), and in the 3rd ed., 1869 (154 pieces). These three editions were compiled in Dr. Pearse's Headmastership. The 4th ed., 1874 (211 pieces), and the 5th ed., 1881 (216 pieces), were compiled under Dr. Huckin's Headmastership. All but 20 from the original editions are retained in that of 1881; several of them are of no particular merit, and might well be omitted in any new edition: and the alphabetical arrangement, nowhere so ineffective as in a Church hymn-book, should be abandoned. This series shows no special connection with other Public School hymn-books, and has no very salient features.

vi. Wellington.—The 1st ed. of The Hymn-book for the Use of Wellington College, appeared in 1860. The three editions published during Dr. Benson's Headmastership only add about 20 pieces to those of the 1st edition (102 pieces), which is always substantially retained. In the psalm versions by Montgomery and Keble, and other pieces, and in the translocation of the Psalms (quoted by their Latin headings only) from the 1st Prayer Book of Edw. VI., the book has affinities with the Rugby edition of 1850. But the sources from which the hymns are drawn are far wider. The hymns and trs. from the Latin, by I. Williams, Chandler, Caswall, and others, which reproduce the spirit of the Breviary, are largely used. Pieces by our older poets, by the Wesleys, Cowper and Newton, Heber and Milman, Keble and Newman, Professor Bright and Bp. Wordsworth, are combined with the familiar hymns of our general books. The principal pieces that are peculiar to the volume are the hymns and trs. from the Latin by Archbishop Benson himself. The special characteristic of the book is however by no means indicated by the range and judiciousness of selection. The order in which the hymns are to be used is fixed beforehand with elaborate care; so that morning, and night, each day of the week, each season of the year, each Holy Day, each Festival, each Sunday, by its own never varied cycle of hymns enforcing the great teaching of the Prayer Book Offices or the changes of nature, may have its distinctive familiar illustration. The idea at the root of this arrangement is evidently that prescription of hymns, as an integral part of the offices and an illustration of them, which the Breviary exhibits, and which our Prayer Book would have retained, if the Latin hymns, as well as the other parts of the offices, had been translated by the Reformers. The book is intended to reproduce this harmonious impression of hymn and office, and this power of association through stated repetition, while pressing into service the accumulated wealth of our subsequent English hymns, and the best attainable representations of the great Latin hymns themselves. It has thus a value beyond that of a Public School hymn-book; and it illustrates the gains, as well as the losses, of the omission at the Reformation. Under the present Head Master (Rev. E. C. Wickham) an Appendix, which in the 5th edition of the book contains 74 hymns, and Introits, has been added. It is a great enrichment to the book, and composed of hymns, which are in general use, with the addition of 4 Latin hymns in the original. Many of them are allotted to special Seasons and Festivals; and the book could easily be re-cast on its original principle, admitting the new hymns as alternatives; or the appendix might be classified.

vii. Clifton.—The Clifton Series began in 1863, with Psalms and Hymns for the Use of Clifton College (39 Pss., 143 Hys.). It is evidently in very large measure a reproduction of the Marlborough edition of 1852, and has few hymns from any other source. The 2nd (1872) and 3rd (1885) editions have very little in common with the 1st, except pieces which are in universal use. The total in the 3rd ed. only reaches 114 pieces (68 of the 1st ed., 46 new ones). The 100 pieces that have been rejected were for the most part inferior ones: of the few good ones, Bp. Cotton's hymn, "We thank Thee, Lord, for this fair earth," and Dr. Jex-Blake's "Lord, we thank Thee for the pleasure," are the most surprising exclusions. In its present shape, the Clifton book is a small collection of good hymns, of pure and healthy tone, drawn chiefly from modern sources, the more special hymns being trs. by T. E. Brown from the German; it has no very salient features as a Public School hymnal. The names of the editors and composers are given at the foot of each piece, as well as in a separate index. The music of this book has been prepared with great care.

viii. Shrborne and Uppingham.—The Shrborne Psalms and Hymns, 1867, are of the Rugby and Marlborough type, and apparently borrow greatly from those hymn-books. The Hymn-book for the Use of Uppingham and Shrborne Schools, 1874, reprints the bulk of the Shrborne book, omitting the Anthems. It is enlarged to 224 pieces by the addition of good general hymns, in common use, and a number of original pieces by the Rev. E. Thring, the Head Master, and the Rev. Godfrey Thring, and translations from the German. The latter are characterised by a higher standard of metrical and poetical expression, for which German music is largely used. This appeal to a more cultured taste is further encouraged by an appendix of devotional poetry, containing some poems of singular beauty. The whole book is set to music, and contains music for the Canticles and Responses. Some of the tunes are by Mr. F. David. In 1888 the Head Master of Shrborne, the Rev. E. M. Young, pub. Hymns for the Use of Shrborne School. It is a choice selection, is well edited, and has been brought down to the latest date.

ix. Rossall.—Hymns for Use in the Chapel of Rossall School, 1880, is one of the best Public School hymn-books. It is mainly founded on the Marlborough edition of 1878, and draws largely from the same sources—Watts and Doddridge, the Wesleys, Montgomery, Heber, Keble, Mrs. Alexander, Dr. Bonar, and Miss Winkworth. Among the rarer pieces are some by Professor Bright, Bp. Walsham How, Mr. F. T. Palgrave, Dean Stanley, Dean Plumptre, Miss Procter, the Rev. John Ellerton, and the Rev. H. A. Martin. The book is designed to express "the hopes and fears, the difficulties, trials and temptations of school-boys," and it largely achieves its object by the full and buoyant praise, the sense of the gladness of life, and the glory of nature, and the bright Christianity it presents. Some of the pieces are more of the order of devotional poetry than hymns; but good pieces of this kind have more justification in a school hymn-book than elsewhere. Hymns "of which the burden is the weariness of earth and the longing for death," have been specially excluded. The book is carefully edited, as regards text, indices, and indication of the authors at the foot of each hymn.

x. New Hymn-Books.—New hymnals are in course of preparation at Westminster and Merchant Taylors' Schools. The first, following the lead of the Abbey hymnal, will enshrine hymns of old Westminsters as one of its distinctive characters. The latter will pay some attention to Latin hymns.

xi. Appendices.—It may be noted that an analogy exists between the various Appendices in these books for private use, and the often forgotten canons of hymns for private devotion, of which the Sarum and Reformation Primers exhibit early examples, and the Primers of the 17th cent. Besides these there are Ken's great hymns for the use of the Winchester scholars; a book dedicated to Etonians by Randolph Gilpin, Liturgia sacra cura Theobitis . . . vel spontanea spiritualia . . . circa puerile deputanda, 1657; and the Latin hymns attached to the edition of Herbert's Church Porch with Notes, by Canon Lowe, and others. (Parkers, 1867.).

xii. Conclusion.—Some of the aims and difficulties of the task of compiling a School hymn-book can be easily gathered from this review of the books. It should have some relation to childhood, so far as the child's devotion remains true and touching to the boy and even the man. It should express as fully as possible those spiritual needs—such as, on the one hand, the sense of dependence and frailty, young sorrow and penitence for falls, purity and the high vision of heaven, and on the other, steadfastness, resolve, the facing of odds, the warrior and chivalrous aspect of the cross, the thrilling memory of prophet and apostle, saint, hero and martyr—which vibrate in the boy's soul and consciences. It should be rich in praise and jubilance, penetrated with the majesty of God's creation, and the God-given beauty of human life. Its two greatest dangers are puerility and unreality. To the first, boys, especially in the higher forms, are intensely opposed; the second, by placing in their mouths expressions that are untrue to their nature (such as a longing for death), turns worship into something little removed from acting. As designed for a community, drawn from the higher ranks, and through its masters and older boys, full of culture, it should not only be thoroughly edited, in the matter of purity of text, exact indication of the source and authorship of each piece, effective grouping of the general hymns under declared headings and full indices, but it should aim at a higher mark of imagination and poetical form; and in schools of the Church of England, the hymn-book should be in the fullest sense the hand-maid of the Prayer Book, enhancing, not crossing her utterances of doctrine, illuminating her festivals, and through the Latin hymns (sometimes even in the original) attesting her deep root in the Catholic past.

xiii. Bibliography. The following is a full list of the hymn-books of the English Public Schools:—

1. Charterhouse. 1st ed. n.d. 212 Hys., 6 Doxs. 2nd ed. n.d. 220 Hys., 6 Doxs. This book is no longer in use. [See Various.]

2. Clifton. 1st ed., Psalms and Hymns, 1863, 39 Pss. 143 Hys. and an Anthem. 2nd ed., Hymns and Tunes, 1872. 68 Hys. from 1st ed., 46 new Hys. 114 Hys. in all. 3rd ed., 1885. 100 pieces [Nos. 1 to 3 compiled by Dr. Percival, the 3rd by Rev. J. M. Wilson; assisted in each case by a Committee of Masters.] The 1st ed. independent, the 2nd ed. reprinted in the 3rd, the 3rd ed. reinstates 4 out of 107 Hys. rejected from the 2nd ed. [Bod.]

3. Cheltenham. 1st ed., 1854, 163 Hys. and 4 Doxs. 2nd ed., 1857, a reprint; 3rd ed., 1864, 252 Hys., 3 Doxs. [Bod. 1, 3 by 10. Vaughan, ed. 3 by Dr. Butler.]

4. Marlborough. 1st ed., Psalms and Hymns, 1856, 180 pieces and 27 Hys. Interesting alphabetically arranged. 2nd ed., 1857, and 3rd, 1862, 211 Pss., 163 Hys., and an Anthem. 4th ed., Ps. and Hys., 1868. 211 Pss., 163 Hys., and an Anthem. 5th ed., Hymns, 1869. 268 Hys. and an Anthem, and Appendix for private devotion (19 Hys.). 6th ed., Hymns, 1875. 268 Hys. and an Anthem. 7th ed., Hymns, 1881. Edited by Dr. Cotton's Headmastership, eds. 5-6, by Dr. Bradley's ed., 6 to Dr. Bell's. The book of the 1st ed. is retained throughout.]

5. Rugby. 1st ed., Hymns, 1850. 183 Hys. 2nd ed., Hymns and Tunes, 1851. 181 Hys. 3rd ed., Hymns, 1860. 184 Hys. 4th ed., Hymns, 1874. 211 Hys. 5th ed., Hymns, 1881. 216 Hys. The hymns in all the editions are alphabetically arranged. [The 1st ed. belongs to Dr. Penn's Headmastership, eds. 4, 5, to Dr. Hawtrey's.]

6. Rossall. Hymns, 1880. 204 Hys. Rev. H. A. Jones. New and enlarged ed. 1886.

7. Rugby. Psalms and Hymns for the Use of Rugby School, 1857. 150 Pss. and 150 Hys. 2nd ed., 1857. 1858. 16 Pss. or Hys. Ed. of 1857. 24 Pss. and 150 Hys. Appendix. Ed. of 1876, Hymns. 220 Hys. [The earliest eds. compiled by Dr. Arnold and Rev. H. J. Buckell; one hymn, if not more, added in Dr. Tait's Headmastership, eds. 2-3, to Dr. Hawtrey's, eds. 4-5, to Dr. Goulburn and Rev. H. J. Buckell; the edition of 1876 by Dr. Jex-Blake and a Committee of Masters.]

8. Shrborne School. Psalms and Hymns, 1867. 139 Hys. and 76 Anthems.

9. Uppingham and Shrborne. Hymn-Book for the Use of Uppingham and Shrborne Schools, 1874. 224 Hys. and Appendix of devotional poetry, with 22 Hys. Selected by the Head Masters, Rev. E. Thring, and Rev. Dr. Harper. The music, by Mr. P. David and Mr. E. Thring, is published in a separate book. It also extends to the Psalms and Canticles as well as the Hymns. A new selection was pub. in 1888 by the Rev. E. M. Young as Hymns for the Use of Shrborne School, 1880. It contains 390 hymns, and three carefully compiled Indices.

2. Washington, 1st ed., Hymn Book, 1880. 192 Hys. 3rd ed., Supplement to the Hymn of Washington, 1st ed., Hymn-Book, 1884. 169 Hys., Commemoration, Introits (31). Pr. to be used in place of Introits. 2nd ed., same title, 1875. 181 Hys., Commemoration, Introits, and Psalms in place of Introits. 4th ed. Reprint of 1st ed., with an Appendix of 14 Hys. 5th ed. Reprint of 1st, with an Appendix of 74 Hys. and Introits for the Festivals, 1880. [Eds. 1-3 edited by Dr. Benson, then Head Master (Adp. of Canterbury). Eds. 4, 5 by Rev. E. C. Wickham. The first edition, with very slight changes, is retained throughout.]

At Charter House; City of London; Dulwich; Eton; Shrewsbury; St. Paul's; and others, there are no special hymn-books, H. A. & M. being that commonly in use.

[H. L. B.]

Puchta, Christian Rudolph Heinrich, a. of W. H. Puchta, then residing as Justizrath at Kadolzburg, near Nürnberg, was b. at Kadolzburg, Aug. 19, 1808. He matriculated at the University of Erlangen, in 1826, and completed his theological course at Berlin. In 1832 he was appointed Stadtvicar (general assistant preacher) at Munich, where he became acquainted with many men of light and leading; and in 1837 became repetent in theology at Erlangen. In 1839 he was appointed professor of Philosophy and Religion in the newly organized Lyceum at Speyer (Spires), but his nervous system broke down in 1841, and he had to be confined in the lunatic asylum of Winnenthal, Württemberg. After a year he was able to take charge of the parish of Eyb, near Ansbach, and then became, in 1852, second pastor, and in 1856, first pastor of St. James's Church, in Augsburg. He d. at Augsburg, Sept. 12, 1858 (Koch, vii. 277; Allg. Deutsche Biog. xxvi. 687, &c.).

Puchta had a genuine poetic faculty, and a mastery of style. His early poems were secular; his later were mostly hymns. His hymns were mainly meant for private use, and appeared principally in his Morgen- und Abendopfer eines Christen, Nürnberg and Leipzig, Steinlein, 1843 (2nd ed. 1847, 3rd 1860). Besides these, 30—including 11 tr. from the Latin—were given in Knapp's Christoterpe, 1837-1842. A few others, with a selection of his poems, edited by Knapp, appeared in his posthumous Gedichte, Stuttgart, Liesching, 1859. In the St. L. S., 1855, included in Hymns by Puchta, and in his edition of 1856 no less than 43. Puchta was also one of the most active coadjutors of C. H. Spitta. Of his hymns which have passed into English (all from his posthumous, 1842) are:—

i. Ein neues Jahr ist angebrochen. New Year. In 1843, p. 173, as above, in 6 st., entitled, "A New Year's Hymn." In the Unser Lieder, 1851, p. 1, in 7 st., as "Another year we now have enter'd," by Miss Bevingham, in the British Herald, January, 1866, p. 206, and Reid's Praise Bk., 1872.

ii. Herr des Himmels, Gott der Gnade. Sunday. In 1843, p. 3, as above, in 8 st., entitled "Sunday Hymn." Tr. as "Lord of heaven, God of grace," by Miss Bevingham, in the British Herald, January, 1866, p. 206, and Lord St Leaves; in L. Bellows's Church of Sea, 1866, p. 34.

iii. Herr sie gasne Leidesang. For the Sick. In 1843, p. 8, as above, in 8 st., entitled "Hymn for the Sick, evening." In Knapp, Nos. 1859. Tr. as "Lord, a whole long day of pain," by Miss Winkworth, 1860, p. 81. Her st. i.-iv. are No. 305 in Rp. Bp's Coll., 1864.

[J. M.]

Puer natus in Bethlehem. [Christmas.] A beautiful and simple Christmas carol on the adoration of the Child by the ox and ass, and the visit to Him by the Magi—so equally appropriate for the Epiphany. It became a great favourite in Germany, and is found in many varying forms. The oldest text known is given by G. M. Dreves, in his Centiones Bohemicæ, 1886, No. 178, from a Benedictine Processional of the beginning of the 14th cent., formerly belonging to the monastery of St. Georg at Hradčani, near Olmütz, and now in the University Library at Prag. Here it has 9 st., viz.:—

i. Assumpsit carnem filius; iii. Per Gabrielem nuntium; iv. Tanquam sponsus de thalamo; v. Pontur in præsepio; vi. Cognovit bos et asinus; vii. Reges de Saba venient; viii. Immotus domum intrabit; ix. Trino unicumpleno. From the Cantionale of Jistebnicz, c. 1410, he adds, v. St benedicta Trinitas.

This text, in 10 st., is also found in the Herzfeld Brev. of 1505, where it is appointed for the Epiphany. Wackernagel, i., Nos. 309-318, gives 10 forms of varying length, the oldest being from a Munich MS. of the 15th cent. This has 6 stanzas, viz., 1, 5 (reading "His jacet"), 6, 7, 8 of the above text, and a 6th st., "Ergo nostra consolo."

The text, which passed into the German Lutheran hymn-books and survives, e.g. in Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 393 (each st. being followed by a German tr.), appeared in V. Babst's G. B., Leipzig, 1545, and in Wackernagel's No. 310. It has 10 st., viz. 1, 5 (reading "His jacet"), 6, 7, 10 (reading "Laudetur sancta.") and

v. In sancto cœlos virgine; vi. Sine serpentis vulnere; vii. In carne nobis similis; viii. Ut viderent nos homines; ix. In hoc natali gaudio.

These interpolated stanzas seem to be of later origin (if not Post-Reformation), and to have been added to give the hymn a more theological ring. The text of 1545 is in Daniel, i., No. 630; and also in Trench ed. 1864, with the stanza "Intrantes domum invicem" added. Tr. as:—

1. The Child is born in Bethlehem. By Elizabeth Charles, in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, 1858, p. 173, in 11 st. of 2 l. When repeated in the People's E., 1867, it was slightly altered, and the refrain "Alleluia" was added to each stanza.

2. Infant born in Bethlehem. Born to save Jerusalem. Anonymous in Mrs. Carey Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1881.

Other trs. are:—

1. A Babe in Bethlehem's Born. W. J. Hicks. 1852-55.
2. A Child is born in Bethlehem, Rejoice, rejoice, Jerusalem. J. W. Stewart. 1858.
3. A Child is born in Bethlehem, And joyful is Jerusalem. R. F. Littledale, in Lyra Messianica, 1864, p. 7.
4. A Child is born in Bethlehem, Rejoice and sing. &c. P. Schaff, in his Christ in Song, N.Y. 1869.
5. A Child is born in Bethlehem; Exult for joy, &c. Cogwill, with the Latin. H. A. Mægill. 1870.
6. A Boy is born in Bethlehem. E. J. D. Ryder, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. 1884.
7. A Child is born in Bethlehem, And joy is in Jerusalem. F. C. Worsley, in his Poems, &c. 1875.

This hymn has been very frequently tr. into German, the versions ranging from that by Heinrich of Laufenberg in 1433 down to recent times. The version in German Protestant hymn-books is generally that in V. Babst's G. B., 1545, which begins, "Ein Kind geboren zu Bethlehem," and is in 10 st. of Latin, with interlaced German versions of all save ii. (thence in Wackernagel, ii. p. 701). In later books, e.g. Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, tre. of st. ii., x., are added, from the text of V. Schumann's G. B., Leipzig, 1539. In the Roman Catholic hymn-books it is found in a great variety of forms but all, or almost all, beginning "Ein Kind geboren zu Bethlehem."

The text used by Miss Huppus is that in the St. Gall Katholisches G. B., 1863. The tre. from the German are (1) "A Child is born in Bethlehem, There's joy in all Jerusalem." By Dr. H. Harbaugh in the German Reformed Guardian, Dec. 1866, p. 310. (2) "A Child is born in Bethlehem, Therefore is glad Jerusalem." By Miss Huppus, as No. 304 in E. Paxton Hood's Children's Choir, 1878.

[J. M.]

Pugnate, Christi milites. (All Saints.) This hymn, in common with "Coelestis O Jerusalem" (p. 880, ii.), is usually given as being in the Paris Breviary of 1736. This is however not the case. It is found in the Brev. of Chalons-sur-Marne, 1736 (Himmelin, p. 148), appointed for Saturday; in the Amiens Brev. of 1746; the Paris Brev. of 1822, and other French Brevs. Also in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. Soldiers who to Christ belong. By J. Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 256, in 5 st. of unequal lines. This was rewritten for the Hymnary, 1872, and retained from the Hymnary in Thring's Col., 1880.

2. Soldiers who are Christ's below. By J. H. Clark, written at Marston, Montgomery, on Palm Sunday, 1855, and pub. in the 1866 Appendix to H. A. & M. Also in the revised edition, 1875.

Another tr. is :—

Soldiers of Christ, fight manfully. A. J. S. Hope. 1864. [J. J.]

Pullain, John. [Old Version.] § cx. 4.]

Pulsum superna sedibus. Joan Baptiste de Sentetil. [Assumciation of B. V. M.] Appeared in the Chanter Breviary, 1686, p. 949; in Santeüil's Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, p. 3 (ed. 1698, p. 88), and in the Paris Breviary, 1736, where it is appointed for the Feast of the Annunciation at Lauds. The text is also in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865; and H. M. Macgill's Songs of the Christian Creed & Life, 1876. Tr. as:— Long time the fallen human race. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 100. This is given in several collections, and sometimes with alterations. In the Hymnary, 1872, it begins "For from their home, our fallen race." The alterations in this case are somewhat numerous.

Other trs. are :—

1. Driven from their home, their pathway lost. I. Williams. 1839.
2. Exil'd from Paradise and Heaven. W. Palmer. 1844, p. 58.
3. Poor wanderers, banished from their home. E. Caswall. 1849.
4. Driven from Eden's happy home. In the Scottish Episcopal coll. of Hymns, 1857, 1880.
5. Down from the realms of glory driven. H. M. Macgill. 1876. [J. J.]

Punshon, William Morley, LL.D. This greatly and justly honoured name of recent Wesleyan Methodism finds a tiny niche in this work from a thin poetic vein, which gave him much enjoyment, if its working out must be confessed to have yielded nothing of permanent value for hymnody, or at all comparable with his splendid service to the Christian Church as preacher and lecturer. His contributions to J. Lyth's Wild Flowers, or, a Selection of Original Poetry (1843) [see Lyth, J., p. 707 i.], though reprinted in 1846, speedily withered as "flowers" in a hortus siccus. His Lays of Hope (1853) was no advance on the Wild Flowers. His Sabbath Chimes, or, Meditations in Verse for the Sundays of a Year (1867), suggested inevitable comparisons with Keble's classic of the Christian Year. Throughout, the thinking is bewilderingly meagre, the sentiment commonplace, the workmanship clumsy and poor. Ease and inspiration are absent. His Life has been amply and lovingly written by F. W. Macdonald and A. H. Reynar (1887); and it is a noble and beautiful story. He was b. at Doncaster on 29th May, 1824, only child of John Punshon and Elizabeth Morley. The latter was of a good family. He lost his parents in boyhood. Through maternal relationship, young Punshon was introduced to commercial life in Yorkshire, Hull, &c. He married 29th November, 1838, as the day of his spiritual birth. In 1842 he began to be heard of locally as a preacher, being still in business. In 1844 he proceeded to the Methodist Theological Institute at Richmond; but remained there only a few months. He preferred evangelizing to stated preaching. He leapt into popularity at a bound, probably not to his gain, either intellectually or morally, though his diary breathes an admirable humility. In 1854 he made his advent as a lecturer [v. his Prophet of Horeb. The impression made by it was amazing. Then followed others, with ever deepening and widening impression. Contemporaneous with his abundant, over-abundant preaching and platform speaking, was such quantity and quality of effective work and service in raising large sums of money for Christian and other missionary and educational work as astounds a reader of his Life. He was five times President of the Canadian Methodist Conference (1868-72), and once of the English Conference (1873). His degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by the Victoria University, Cobourg, Canada, in 1873. Throughout, in private and public, he was a large-souled, whole-hearted, true man of God. "Weakened by the way" on the continent, he slowly worked his way home, and after a brief final illness, fell gently and softly asleep on April 14, 1881. His hymns in the Wes. H. Bk., 1872, and the Meth. S. S. H. Bk., 1879, are :—

1. Listen: the Master beseecheth. Go, work in the Vineyard.
2. Sweet is the sunlight after rain. Sunday Morning.
3. We wake to-day with anthems sweet. Sunday Evening.

No. 1 is in the Meth. S. S. H. Bk., 1879; and 2 and 3 are from the Sabbath Chimes, 1867.

[A. R. C.]

Pure spirit, O where art thou now? Anna L. Barbauld, née Aikin. [Death and Burial.] Pub. in The Works of Anna Laetitia Barbauld, with a Memoir, 1825, vol. i. p. 224, in 9 st. of 4 l., and headed, "Dirge. Written November 1808." From the Memoir we gather (p. xliv.) that the occasion was the death of her husband, "whose latter days were oppressed by a morbid affection of his spirits, in a great degree hereditary, which came gradually upon him, and closed the scene of his earthly usefulness" (p. xlix.). The "Dirge" was repeated in Martineau's Hymns, 1840, No. 623. In the same Hymns, 1840, No. 404, is arranged from this poem, and begins with st. ii., altered to "Not for the pious dead we weep," sometimes given elsewhere as "Not for the dead in Christ we weep." The original poem only is repeated in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873. [J. J.]

Pusey, Edward Bouverie, D.D., s. of Mr. Philip Pusey, was b. Aug. 22, 1800, and educated at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated in first class honours in 1822. Subsequently he became a Fellow of Oriel, a Canon of Christ Church, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University of Oxford. He d. Sept. 16, 1882. Dr. Pusey's prose writings and tr. are very numerous. Amongst the latter was his tr. of a part of Horst's Paradisus Animæ Christianæ, pub. in 1847 as The Paradise of the Christian Soul. In this work there are several metrical trs. of hymns which in the early pages of this Dictionary we have attributed to Dr. Pusey. We have Dr. Liddon's authority for stating that the hymns were not translated by Dr. Pusey. Some were tr. by W. J. Copeland, and others probably by J. Keble. [J. J.]

Pusey, Philip, eldest s. of Mr. Philip Pusey, and brother of Dr. Pusey, was b. June 25, 1799, and d. July 8, 1855. His father, a son of the first Viscount Folkestone, had assumed the name of Pusey instead of that of Bouverie. [G. A. C.]

Pye, Henry John, M.A., s. of H. J. Pye, of Clifton Hall, Staffordshire, was b. circa 1825, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge. (B.A. 1848, M.A. 1852.) Taking Holy Orders in 1850, he was presented by his father in 1851 to the Rectory of Clifton-Campville, Staffordshire. In 1868 he, together with his wife (only daughter of Bishop S. Wilberforce), joined the Roman Catholic Church. Mr. Pye pub. Two Lectures on the Church, 1852; Short Ecclesiastical History, 1854; and various Sermons. He also compiled a book of Hymns for use at Clifton-Campville in 1851. To that collection he contributed a few hymns, including:—

1. In His temple now behold Him. Purification of B. V. M. This hymn was repeated, in a slightly altered form and an additional stanza (iv.), by Canon W. Cooke in the Cooke and Denton Hymnal, 1853; the following (Nos. 1-3) in the Appendix to the same work, 1863; those given with the fourth stanza as in the former, 1868; Sharpe's Songs of G. & G., 1872, &c. The full Pye-Cooke text of 1863 is in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871; Thring's Coll., 1882 (slightly altered); and the Cooke and Denton Hymnal, 1875, as a tr. from Angelus Silesius (Scheffler's, but in error).

2. O praise ye the Lord. Ye nations rejoice. Jerusalem. This hymn was also repeated in the Cooke and Denton Hymnal, 1852, No. 169. [Wm. C.]

Q

Quæ dixit, egit, pertulit. St. John the Evangelist.] Included in the Cluniac Breviary, Paris, 1686, p. 187, in 5 st. and a doxology, as the hymn at Matins on the Festival of St. John the Evangelist; in the Cyprian Bren., 1693, it is assigned to Lauds. Tr. as:—

The life which God's Incarnate Word. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 297, and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 194, in 5 st. of 4 l. It passed into Murray's Hymnal, 1852, and the Scottish Episc. Hymns, 1858, each with alterations peculiar to itself. In H. A. & M., 1861 and 1875, st. v. is omitted; st. ii. and vi. are rewritten, and st. iii. is altered. This text, again slightly altered, is in Kennedy, 1863, and the Hymnary, 1872. In Bevison's Hys. & Anthems, 1851, it begins, "Three holy Gospels tell in turn." [J. M.]

Quæ gloriosum tanta cœlis evocat. Guillaume de la Brunetière. [Conversion of St. Paul.] Appeared in the Cluniac Bren., 1686, p. 220, and the Paris Bren., 1736, as the hymn at Lauds on the feast of the Conversion of St. Paul. It is also in several modern French Breviaries, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

Why, Saviour, dost Thou come? By R. Campbell, in his Hys. and Anthems, 1850, p. 83; and the 1869 Appendix to the Hymnal N. Another tr., by I. Williams in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Bren., 1839, p. 180, is, "Lord, from out Thy glorious skies." [W. A. S.]

Quæ stella sole pulchrior. Ct. Coffin. [Epiphany.] Included in the Paris Breviary, 1736; and, again, in Coffin's Hymni Sacri, 1736, p. 98. It is also in several modern French Breviaries as the hymn at first Vespers at the feast of the Epiphany; in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 33; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. What star is this with beams so bright, Which shames the sun, &c. By J. Chandler in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 50. It passed into Murray's Hymnal, 1852; The English Hys., 1836; Salisbury H. Bk., 1857; H. A. & M., 1861; Kennedy, 1863, and several others. In each hymn-book the text is altered, and no two books agree upon the same alterations. H. A. & M. is the worst. In the whole hymn four lines only remain unaltered. In some of these collections, including Kennedy, 1863, it begins, "What star is this so strangely bright?"

2. How lovely in the Eastern sky. By J. Chandler, another tr. in his Hys. of the Church, mostly Primitive, &c., 1841, No. 31. It was given in Stretton's Church Hys., 1850, and again in Alford's Year of Praise, as "Behold the long predicted sign."

3. Hail the day when in the sky. Anon. in the Cooke and Denton Hymnal, 1853, and Alford's Year of Praise, 1867, No. 46.

4. What star is this that beams so bright. The sun eclipsing, &c. By R. C. Singleton, in his Anglican H. Bk., 1868. In the revised ed. of 1871 it reads, "What star is this that beams so bright, And dims the sun," &c.

5. What star is this—more glorious far. Edward Thring. Appeared in G. Thring's Coll., 1880, and again in 1882. The 4th st. is from J. Chandler and others.

Other trs. are:—

1. "What is that which shines afar? I. Williams, in the British Magazine, 1840, p. 35; and his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Bren., 1839.

2. What beauteous sun surpassing star. R. Campbell, 1850.

3. What star is this that beams abroad. W. J. Hoss, 1852-56.

4. What star is this, whose orb of flame? J. D. Chambers, 1857. [J. J.]

Quæ te pro populi criminibus nova. Claude de Santeüil. [Passiontide.] This hymn is given for Lauds on the feast of the Five Wounds of Christ, in the Paris Breviary, 1680, the Narbonne Bren., 1709, the Paris Bren., 1736, and in other and later French Breviaries. Text also in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

O wondrous love, that reds in twain. By H. Kynaston, made for and included in the Hymnary, 1872.

Other trs. are:—

1. Say, what strange love works Thee this sad unrest. I. Williams, 1839.

2. O Christ! what peerless love. J. D. Chambers, 1857.

3. O Thou Who, though High Priest, art Victim made. J. C. Earle, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1872. [J. J.]

Quam nos potenter allicis. Jean Baptiste de Santeüil. [Transfiguration.] Pub. in his Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, p. 11 (ed. 1698, p. 138); and, again, in the Paris Breviary, 1736. Text also in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. In the Cursus Bren., 1686, p. 1033, it begins "Quibus modis nos excitas." Tr. as:—

1. How tenderly, how patiently. By W. Palmer, in his Short Poems, 1845, p. 88, and in Skinner's Daily Service Hyl., 1864.

2. O Christ, how potent is Thy grace. By C. S. Calverley, made for and first pub. in the Hymnary, 1872.

Another tr. is:—

How strongly and how sweetly still. I. Williams, 1839. [J. J.]

Quando noctis medium. [Sunday.] A poem of 65 lines given by Mone, No. 97, from a Stuttgart MS. of the 14th cent., and entitled "On the life of Christ." Tr. as:—

When in silence and in shade. By J. M. Neale, in the Hymnal N., 1854, and the Hymnary, 1872. [W. A. S.]

Quarles, Francis. The life of this "fine old English gentleman" and charming essayist and quaint singer, will be found in full in the present writer's collective and complete edition of his works in verse and prose (3 vols. 4°, 1880-81, Chertsey Worthies' Library). His father was James Quarles, of Stewards, Esq., and his mother Joan Dalton. He was their 3rd son and child. In the registers of Romford, Essex, is this entry, "1593, May 8. Baptizatus fuit Franciscus filius magistri Jacobi Quarelles." He lost his father in 1599. His first school was Romford and his first tutor William Tichbourne, chaplain of Romford. He lost his mother in 1606. He proceeded to Christ's College, Cambridge, and later was of Exeter College, Oxford. It is to be regretted that the College registers furnish no exact data. He passed from the University to Lincoln's Inn, where his widow-biographer tells us—

"He studied the laws of England; not so much out of a natural disposition to them, as his friends and neighbours (knowing therein his fortune and inclination to peace) by composing suits and differences amongst them."

Some years advance us from 1608 (at Lincoln's Inn) to probably 1612-13, or his 21st year. His widow continues,

"After he came to maturity he was not desirous to put himself into the world, otherwise he might have had employments enough, for he had the good fortune to gain both for Court preferment, or as ill-believed there, but that he might have raised his fortunes thereby if he had had any inclination that way. But his mind was chiefly set upon his devotion and study; yet not altogether so retired but that he was known to many of the gallants of those times, and particularly to the Queen of Bohemia" (p. 3).

How long Quarles continued with the Queen is unknown. He accompanied Frederick and Elizabeth to Germany. He married Ursley [= Ursula] Woodgate, of St. Andrew's, Holborn, on May 28, 1618. In 1619 appeared the first and most characteristic of his poems, entitled, after the old phrasing of the period, A Feast for Worms. In the epistle he says, "Wonder not at the title, for it is a Song of Mercy: what greater Feast than Mercy? and what are men but worms" (vol. ii. p. 5). Kindred with the Feast followed Hadassas, or the History of Queene Esther. In 1621 he was in Dublin. He dated his Argalus and Parthenia, "Dublin, 4th March, 1621." He filled the office of Secretary to the illustrious Usher, on whose death John Quarles composed a memorable elegy. Usher wrote to Vossius highly laudatory of our Quarles. His successive books are practically the only landmarks of his remaining years. (The reader is referred to our Life and the Works, of supra.) The Emblems appeared in 1634-35, and his Hieroglyphics in 1638. In 1639 he was appointed "Chronologer" of the City of London, an office which he held till his death. From 1639 his various prose books were written, and became as popular as his poems. They are all in fine English. He was an out and out loyalist, and was with the king at Oxford. He had a numerous family. He d. Sept. 8, 1644, and was buried in St. Olave's, Silver Street, London, "11 Sep. 1644." His title to a place in this work rests mainly on his versified Psalms. These appear in the famous Bay Psalter. [See Bay Psalter, p. 110.] Quarles's are Psalms xvi., xxv., li., lxxxviii., cxiii., cxxxvii. They were reclaimed by us for Quarles on the authority of John Josselyn's Account of Two Voyages to New England (1674). In the year 1638 he says, on his arrival in Massachusetts Bay,

"Having refreshed myself for a day or two at Nicolles Island, I crossed the bay in a small boat to Boston, which then was rather a village than a town, there not being above seven dwelling houses, and was courteously met by Mr. Winthrop, the Governor, and by Mr. Cotton, the teacher of Boston Church, to whom I delivered from Mr. Francis Quarles, the poet, the translations of Psalms 34, 35, 51, 86, 113 and 137 Psalms into English metre for his approbation," &c.

These "Psalms" are more curious than successful. But besides them the pocky of Francis Quarles is a virgin field for the capable hymnologist. It is a mystery and a sorrow that few only have been adapted and adopted. There are many of his verse-Emblems that fittingly married to music would be solemn and searching, and nobly displace accepted pious inanities. No. xii. of Book iii. of Emblems (vol. iii. pp. 72-76), "Oh that Thou wouldst hide me in the grave," deserves a supreme effort of highest genius to make it worthily. In delightful contrast in its vividness and sweetness is his "Like to the damask rose you see" (vol. iii. p. 285). Equally noticeable are his "Backsliding" (ibid. p. 66, xix.), "Vain Physicians" (ibid. p. 193, iv.), "Waste not Life" (ibid. p. 194, xi.), "A Little While" (ibid. p. 196, xiv.). (See Critical Essay in Works as above.) [A. B. G.]

Quarles, John, a. of the above, was b. in Essex in 1624, and was educated at Exeter College, Oxford. He bore arms within the garrison at Oxford on behalf of Charles I. and subsequently (it is said) he was raised to the rank of captain in the King's service. On the downfall of the King, Quarles retired to London, and devoted himself to literature for a livelihood. He d. there during the great Plague, 1665. His pub. several works including (1) Jeremiah's Lamentations Paraphrased, with Divine Meditations, 1648; and (2) Divine Meditations upon Several Subjects wherewnto is annexed God's Love to Man's Unworthiness, with several Divine Ejaculations. Lond. 1653. (Wood's Athenæ Oxon.) From the Ejaculations, Mr. Darling adapted two hymns for his Hys. for the Church of England. In the 1860 ed. these are:—"O King of kings, before Whose Throne" (Holy Trinity); and "O Thou Who sittest in heaven and seest" (Visitation of Sick). [J. J.]

Quam misit in terras Deus. Joan Baptiste de Santeüil. [Commemoration of Apostles.] Appeared in the Chaniac Breviary, 1686, p. vi.; Santeüil's Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, p. 191 (ed. 1698, p. 277); the Paris Brev., 1736; J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 88; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

1. He whom the Father sent to die. By I. Williams, in the British Magazine, June, 1836; and his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 275.

2. He whom the Father sent to earth. By T. I. Ball, in the 5th ed., 1875, of the Appendix to the Hymnal N., No. 361.

Another tr. is :—
His only Son the Father gave. J. Chandler, 1837. [J. J.]

Quem terra, pontus, æthera [sidera]. [Purification of the B. V. M.] This has been frequently ascribed to V. H. C. Fortunatus, and is included by F. Leo in his ed. of Fortunatus's Opera Poetica, Berlin, 1881, p. 385, but among the hymns falsely attributed to him. It is found in four mss. of the 11th cent., in the British Museum (Jul. A. vi. f. 38 b; Vesp. D. xii. f. 61 b; Harl. 2961 f. 231; Add. 30848 f. 55 b); and in the Lat. Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Church, 1851, p. 74, is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32 f. 22). It is also in the St. Gall ms., No. 387, of the 11th cent. Mone, No. 419, cites it as in a ms. of the 9th cent. at Admont. The second portion, "O gloriosa femina, Excelsa super sidera," is often given as a separate hymn, sometimes beginning "O glorious Domina," as in a 12th cent. ms. in the British Museum (Harl. 2928 f. 129 b); in Mone, No. 420, and in G. M. Dreves's Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, p. 38, from a 10th cent. ms. In the Roman Breviary, 1632, the first part begins Quem terra, pontus, sidera, and the second part O gloriosa virginum. The original, and the Roman Breviary texts, will be found in Daniel, i. No. 144, with readings at ii. p. 382, iv. p. 135, from a Munich ms. of the 9th or 10th cent., a Rhenian ms. of the 10th cent., &c. The hymn, in whole or in part, has been used in various Breviaries (Sarum, York, Aberdeen, Roman, &c.) for almost all the Festivals of the B. V. M., including the Conception, Nativity, Annunciation, Visitation, and the Assumption. [J. M.]

The full original form of this hymn has not been translated. We have the following forms in English.

i. Quem terra, pontus, æthera. This, the oldest form of the text, in the Sarum and other Breviaries in 4 st. and a doxology, has been tr. thus :—

The God, Whom earth, and sea, and sky Adore and laud, &c. J. M. Neale, in the Hymnal N., 1854; H. A. & M., 1861 and 1875; the People's H., 1867; the Hymnary, 1872, and others, and sometimes with alterations. It is more extensively used than any other tr. of this hymn.

Other trs. are :—

1. The governours of the tryple empyr. Sarum Primer, Paris, 1538.
2. Whome earth, and sea, and ele the skyes. Primer, 1604.
3. He whome the earth, the sea, and skie. Primer, 1685.
4. Lo, He Whom Earth, and Sea, and Sky. J. D. Chambers, 1852.
5. Whom earth, and sea, and air. W. J. Hew, 1852 and 1861.
6. The God whom earth and sea and sky Revere, adore, &c. J. D. Chambers, 1866.

ii. Quem terra, pontus, sidera. The only difference between this Roman Brev. text and the above is in the first line. The trs. are :—

1. Him Whom the skies, the earth, the sea. By Sp. Mant, in his Ancient Hymns, 1837, p. 45. It is given in several collections, including the English Hymnal, 1852, and as "Whom earth, and sea, and sky," in the 1861 ed. of the same.
2. The Lord, Whom earth, and sea, and sky. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 199; and his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 106. In a few collections.

Other trs. are :—

1. He Whom the Land, the Sea, the Sky. Primer, 1706.
2. The Sov'raign God Whose hands sustain. Primer, 1858.
3. Whom earth, and sea, and stars, and light. W. J. Copeland, 1848.
4. Whom earth, and seas, and heaven's high frame. R. Campbell, 1852.
5. The God we sing, Whose wondrous story. H. N. Oxenham, 1864.
6. The earth, the sky, the mighty ocean. J. Wallace, 1874.

iii. O gloriosa femina. This, which is composed of 3 st. and a doxology, is tr. as :—

1. O glorious Virgin, ever blest. By F. E. Littledale, pub. in the People's H., 1867, with the signature "F. E."
2. O glorious Lady, throned on high. In the Antiphoner and Grail, 1880, and the Hymnary, 1882.

Other trs. are :—

1. Gloryous Lady, stellyfyed. Sarum Prymer, Paris, 1538.
2. O Lady set in glorie great. Primer, 1604.
3. O glorious Lady, Queene of might. Primer, 1615.
4. How glorious, Lady! is thy fame. J. D. Chambers, 1866.

iv. O gloriosa virginum. This text differs from the above in several instances. It is tr. as :—

O Queen of all the virgin choir. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 200; and his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 106. In the 1863 ed. of the Appendix to the Hymnal N., it is altered to "Most glorious of the virgin choirs."

Other trs. are :—

1. O Glorious Virgin, thron'd on high. Primer, 1685.
2. O Mary, Mother blest. Primer, 1706.
3. O Virgin, Queen of the skies. Sp. Mant, 1837.
4. O Mary, now great is thy glory. J. Wallace, 1874.

v. O gloriosa domina, De cujus virgo gaudet. This is a recast of the third form above, adapted to St. Anne. It is given by G. M. Dreves in his Liturgische Hymnen, 1886, p. 79, from a ms. Antiphonary of the 16th cent. This text is tr. by E. Caswall in his Masque of Mercy, 1858, p. 327, and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 189, as "O Lady, high in glory, Whose daughter ever blest."

Qui procedis ab utroque. Adam of St. Victor. [Whitsuntide.] A fine sequence, expanding the thoughts of the "Veni Sancte Spiritus" (q.v.). Gautier in his ed. of Adam's Œuvres poétiques, 1881, p. 56, gives it from the Limoges Sequentiary of the 12th cent. (Bibl. Nat. Paris, No. 1139), a Gradual of St. Victor before 1229 (B. N., No. 14452), a Paris Gradual of the 13th cent. (B. N., No. 15615), and other sources. It is in an early 14th cent. Paris Missal in the British Museum (Add. 16905, f. 179). The use of St. Victor was for the Tuesday, of Paris for the Friday, in Whitsun week. The printed text is also in Trench, ed. 1864, p. 187; Daniel, ii. p. 73; Kehrein, No. 190; Wrangham, 1881, i. p. 100. [J. M.]

Translation in C. U. :—

Spirit of grace and union. By E. Caswall, in the Masque of Mercy, 1858, p. 283; and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 158, in 13 st. of 6 l., and headed, "Praises of the Paraclete." It is in C. U. as :—

1. O Holy Ghost, Who with the Son. This is No. 418 in the Hymnary, 1872, and is composed of st. i. by the Editors, and the rest from Caswall.

2. O Holy Ghost, Who ever One. No. 573 in the Hymnary, 1872, is compiled with alterations from st. i., vi., ix., x. of Caswall's tr.

Translations not in C. U. :—

1. From Bah proceeding, as from One. In Dr. Posey's tr. of Hermann's Paradisus Animæ Christianæ, 1847; and again in Canon Oakeley's tr. of the same, 1850.
2. Thou from Father, Son proceeding. P. S. Worsley, 1849, in the Lyra Messianica.
3. O Comforter, All-blessed one. D. T. Morgan, 1850.
4. Comforter, from both together. D. S. Wrangham, 1861.

[J. J.]

Qui regis sceptra forti dextra solus cuncta. [Advent.] This sequence is found in a ms. in the Bodleian (Bodl. 775 f. 168 b), written c. 1000; and a ms. of the 11th cent. (Douce, 222 f. 82 b.); in a Winchester book of the 11th cent., now in Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (No. 473); in a 12th cent. Gradual (Reg. 2 B. iv. f. 62 b), and a ms. circa 1199 (Calig. A. xiv. f. 43 b), in the Brit. Mus., &c. Annaj Missale it is in an early 14th cent. Paris, and a 14th cent. Sens, in the British Museum; in a Sarum, c. 1370; a Hereford, c. 1378; and a York, c. 1390,—all now in the Bodleian; in the St. Andrews, and various French Missals. In the English Missals it is the Sequence for the third S. in Advent. The printed text is also in Neale's Sequentiæ, 1852, p. 7; Daniel, v. p. 173; and Kehrein, No. 8. [J. M.]

Translation in C. U. :—

Thou God, 'mid Cherubim on high. By E. A. Dayman, made for and included in the Hymnary, 1872. Mr. Dayman, in rendering the Sequence for the 3rd S. in Advent, prefaced it with a stanza taken from the Gradual "Qui sedes Domine super Cherubim, excita potentiam tuam et veni," &c. The hymn is a very free paraphrase, rather than a translation; and Mr. Dayman has drawn out at some length the allusions which the Source seems to make to certain passages and personages of Holy Scripture.

Other trs. are :—

1. Thou Who rulest earthly sceptres. C. B. Pearson, 1868.
2. Thou Who dost each earthly throne. C. B. Pearson, 1871. [Wm. C.]

Qui sacris hodie astitur aris. C. Coffin. [Purification of the B. V. M.] Given in the Paris Breviary, 1736, and in Coffin's Hymni Sacri, 1736, p. 68. It is also found in some modern French Breviaries, and in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

Who now in helpless infancy. This tr. was given in Williams's Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 107, in 6 st. of 4 l., and headed "Purification." It was repeated unaltered in some collections, such as "Jesus, in helpless infancy," in the Hymnary, 1872. [J. J.]

Quicunque certum quæritis. [Lord, The Sacred Heart of Jesus.] This hymn is probably of the 18th cent. It is the hymn at Vespers in the Office of the "Most Sacred Heart of our Lord Jesus Christ," which in the Roman Breviary, Lisbon, 1786, cum Extr. p. 447, is marked as a festival of the Second Class, and appointed for the Sixth Day after the Octave of Corpus Christi. It is repeated in some more recent eds. of the Breviary, e.g. Bologna, 1827; but in other eds. the alternative Office for the same festival (a greater double by decree "Urbis et orbis," 23 Aug. 1856), with the hymn "Auctor beate sæculi," and "Cor, urea legens continens," is preferred. Text in Biggs's annotated H. A. & M., 1867, p. 198. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U. :—

1. All ye who seek a certain cure. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 121; and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 68, in 7 st. of 4 l. headed "All ye who seek a comfort sure." This tr. in its extensive use, and with several changes, especially in the first line, as follows :—

(1) All ye who seek a certain cure. This is the original as above.

(2) All ye a certain cure who seek. This is in W. J. Hoe's Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1863-83, and Hoe's Ed. from the same, 1876. In this st. i.-iii. are by Caswall, and iv.-vi. are by Hoe.

(3) All ye who seek for sure relief. This is the H. A. & M. text of 1875, 1889, and 1904, with slight alterations, and st. iv. is omitted. This text is in several collections.

(4) All ye who seek a sure relief. In Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866.

(5) All ye who seek a comfort sure? This is Caswall's text in his Hys. and Poems, 1873, and is found in a few collections.

(6) All ye who seek a refuge sure. In the 1874 Appendix to the Hyl. for the use of St. John the Evangelist's, &c., Aberdeen.

2. All ye who seek for sure relief, In every time, &c. By E. F. Littlefair, made for and pub. in the People's H., 1867, with the signature "A. L. P."

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. All ye who seek a solace sure. J. Wallace, 1874.
2. Haste, all who hold His testimony ways. T. J. Potter, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884. [J. J.]

Quicumque Christum quaeritis. Prudentius. [Epiphany.] This is the 12th and last poem in his Cathemerinon, and in its full form consists of 208 lines. It is found in a MS. of the 9th cent. in the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris (8048, f. 39 b), and is included in all eds. of his Opera: e.g. Halle, 1703, p. 73; and Aurelii Prudentii Clemetis V. C. Opera Omnia. . . . (Delphin and Variorum Classics), London, 1824, vol. i. pp. 156–163. Though one of the finest poems of Prudentius, it was comparatively little used in the services of the Church until the revision of the Roman Breviary after the Council of Trent. In the ed. of that Breviary pub. at Rome, 1570, there are the following centos:—

i. Quicumque Christum quaeritis. Transfiguration.

ii. O sola magnarum urbium. Epiphany.

iii. Audit tyrannus anxius. Holy Innocents, at Matins.

iv. Salvete flores martyrum. Holy Innocents, at Lauds.

These centos are repeated in later eds. of the Roman Breviary, and also in Daniel, i., Nos. 107, 108, 112, and iv. p. 121. The earliest and most beautiful cento is the Salvete flores martyrum, which is found in the St. Gall MS., No. 413, of the 11th cent., in a 12th cent. MS in the British Museum (Add. 18301, f. 115), &c. [J. M.]

These centos have been translated into English as follows:—

i. Quicumque Christum quaeritis. The Transfiguration. This begins with the first line of the poem. The Roman Brev. text is in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. All ye who seek in hope and love. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 167; and again in his Hym. & Poems, 1873, p. 90. This is repeated in several collections, and is usually given in an unaltered form. In J. A. Johnston's English Hyf., 1852, it begins, "Ye who for Christ are seeking, raise."

2. O ye, who Christ are seeking, raise. In J. A. Johnston's English Hyf., 1856, based upon Caswall.

Other trs. are:—

1. Whose you be that Christe do seek. Primer, 1644.
2. All you that seeke Christe, let your sighs. Primer, 1615.
3. All that seek Christ, your eyes erect. Primer, 1685.
4. O All, who seek with Christ to rise. Primer, 1706.
5. All that desire with Christ to rise. Canto from Primers, 1706, 1740, 1743.
6. All ye who seek the Lord. Card. Newman, in Tracts for the Times, No. 75, 1836.
7. Ye who Messiah seek. Sp. R. Mont. 1837.
8. O you who truly seek your Lord. F. C. Husenbeth, 1841.
9. Ye, who'er for Christ are seeking. W. J. Copeland, 1842.
10. O ye the truly wise. R. Campbell, 1853.
11. Who seek the Christ must look above. W. J. Blew, 1852-55.
12. O ye who seek the Christ. H. Kynaston, 1862.

13. All ye who seek the Lord of love, Lift up, &c., W. M. Mosgill, 1876. This is a different cento, although beginning with the same stanza.
14. All ye who seek the Lord of love. T. J. Potter, in the Catholic Psalmist.
15. All ye who seek our Lord to know. J. Wallace, 1874.
16. O ye, who search for Jesus, raise. W. C. Dix, in Church Times, Jan. 7, 1881.

ii. O sola magnarum urbium. Epiphany. This cento begins with line 77 of the poem. The Roman Brev. text is in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. Bethlehem! of noblest cities. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 55; and with slight alterations in his Hym. & Poems, 1873, p. 56. This Tr. is not only in C. U. in its original form, but also sometimes slightly, and at other times greatly, altered. In addition to altered texts which begin with the original first line, there are also:—

(1) Earth has many a noble city. This is the H. A. & M. text, 1861 and 1875, and is repeated in a few collections.

(2) Bethlehem! earth's noblest cities. In the Parish Hymnal, 1863 and 1875.

(3) Bethlhem, not the least of cities. In the Hymnary, 1872.

In these various forms Caswall's Tr. is more extensively used than all other trs. put together.

2. Than mightiest cities mightier far. By W. J. Copeland, in his Hym. for the Week, &c., 1848, p. 71. In Murray's Hymnal, 1852, it was given as, "Thou Bethlehem, with thy crowning star."

3. Fair queen of cities, star of earth. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk, 1852–55, and Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870.

4. Of noblest cities thou art queen. By R. C. Singleton, in his Anglican H. Bk., 1868; and again, after revision, in the 2nd ed., 1872.

5. Earth hath many a mighty city. By C. E. Maldon and W. Quennell, in the Church of England S. S. H. Bk., revised ed., 1870.

Other trs. are:—

1. Let other cities strive, which most. Primer, 1706.
2. Thou greatest cities greater far. J. J. B. Hope, 1864.
3. Chief 'mongst the cities of the plain. Sp. C. Wilcox, 1865.
4. O Bethlehem, of cities blest. In Skinner's Church Hys., 1866.
5. Small amongst cities, Bethlehem. Mrs. Charles, 1858.
6. The noblest cities upon earth. H. Freud, in Lyra Messianica, 1864.
7. O Bethlehem! thou dost surpass. J. Wallace, 1874.
8. Of all the cities of renown. W. M. Mosgill, 1876, in his Hymns for Children. Begins the Latin, although it begins with the same stanza.

iii. Audit tyrannus anxius. Holy Innocents. This cento begins with line 93 of the poem. The Roman Brev. text is in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. The jealous tyrant saw with fear. Primer, 1706.
2. With boding fears, the tyrant learn. W. J. Copeland, 1848.
3. When it reached the tyrant's ear. E. Caswall, 1849. The tyrant hears, and not in vain. J. Wallace, 1874.
4. Against the tyrant rocked with care. W. M. Mosgill, 1876. Another cento from the Latin beginning with the same stanza.

iv. Salvete flores martyrum. Holy Innocents. This cento begins with line 125 of the poem. The Roman Brev. text is in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865, in 3 stanzas. The Hymni Ecclesiae has also the Paris Brev. text in 6 stanzas. See also J. Chandler, 1837, No. 46. There are also centos, each beginning with the same stanza. Tr. as:—

(1.) Roman Breviary text.

1. Hail, flowerets of Christ's martyr-crown. By W. J. Copeland, in his Hym. for the Week, &c., 1848, p. 68. This is in several of the older collections.

2. All hail, ye infant martyr flowers. By J. M. Neale, in the Hymnal N., 1852, No. 16. The Hymnary, 1872, and the Hymner, 1882, have each an additional stanza.

3. All hail, ye martyr blooms so bright. By R. C. Singleton, in his Anglican H. Bk., 1868. This is a paraphrase only.

Other trs. are:—

1. All hail to you, ye Martyrs flow'rs. Primer, 1664.
2. Hayle you that are the flowers. Primer, 1615.
3. Hail, holy Flow'rs of Martyrs, you. Primer, 1668.
4. Hail martyrs, blossoms early blown. Primer, 1706.
5. All hail, ye flowers of martyrdom. J. J. B. Hope, 1864.
6. Flowers of martyrdom, all hail. E. Caswall, 1849.
7. Hail, flowerets of the martyr-train. H. N. Oxenham, 1854.
8. Sweet Martyr flowers, fresh from your early dawn. D. T. Morgan, 1851 and 1866.

(ii.) Paris Breviary text.

1. Little flowers of martyrdom. By I. Williams, in the British Magazine, 1833, p. 655; and his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 72. In a few collections. In the Parish Hymnal, 1863 and 1875, it begins, "Hail, ye flowers of martyrdom."

2. Hail, infant martyrs, new-born victims, hail. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, p. 52; and Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869. In Chandler's Hys. of the Church, mostly Primitive, &c., 1841, No. 28, it is rewritten as "Hail, flowrets of the martyr wreath."

3. Hail, ye fleeting martyr flowers. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-55, and again in Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870.

4. Sweet flowerets of the martyr band. By Sir H. W. Baker, in the revised ed. of H. A. & M., 1875. Two stanzas are omitted.

Other trs. are:—

1. Ye flowers, ye buds of martyrs, hail. J. R. Beste, 1849.
2. Sweetest flowers of early spring. R. Campbell, 1853.
3. Hail, martyr flowers, in childhood's dawn. J. D. Chambers, 1857.
4. Ye flow'rets of the martyrs, hail. J. W. Bissell, 1864.
5. Hail, garland of martyrs. G. S. Hodges, 1874.

(iii.) Cento.

1. Hail, martyr-saints dedicate'd. H. Kynaston, 1862.
2. Hail, ye flowers of martyrs bright. R. M. Hospital, 1870.

Dr. H. M. Mosgill's tr. of this poem in his Songs of Christian Creed and Life, &c., 1876, is broken up into the following parts:—

1. "Quicumque Christum quaeritis." See above.
2. "Ut Perseï ex urbe stirpe." Tr. as: "Lo! far from under Persic skies."
3. "Sed vertigus puerï supra." Tr. as: "Behold! the sign has ceased to move."
4. "O sola magnarum urbium." See above.
5. "Quam sidus ostendit novum." See above.
6. "Salvete flores Martyrum." See above.
7. "Sic stolla Pharaeum mali." Tr. as: "So Moses Israel's destined guide."
8. "Iure rogo te Judae chorum." Tr. as: "Well had Judea's choir to thee."

In addition Dr. Kynaston has a cento in the Lyra Messianica, 1864, beginning, "Ex Perseï ex orbis sinu," which he has tr. as "From day-light's portals, burning."

The use which has been and still is made of this fine poem is extensive both in Latin and English. [J. J.]

Quiet, Lord, my froward heart. J. Newton. [Resignation.] Appeared in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. iii., No. 63, in 4 st. of 6 l., and headed "The Child." It has passed into a large number of hymn-books, in some it begins "Jesus, make my froward heart," but this form of the text is not popular. [J. J.]

Quis te canat mortalium? Joan Baptiste de Santeüil. [The Assumption of the B. V. M.] Appeared in the Cantus Breviary, 1686, p. 1071. It is also in the Orléans Brev. 1693, both for the Conception and for the Nativity of the B. V. M. In Santeüil's Hymni Sacri, 1689, p. 99 (ed. 1698, p. 20), it begins, "Quis ore digno te canat," and in this form it is in the Narbonne Brev., 1709, and later French Brevs. Tr. as:—

What mortal tongue can sing thy praise! By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 204; and his Hym. and Poems, 1873, p. 175. It is in C. U. in Roman Catholic collections for missions and schools. [J. M.]

Quisquis valet numerare. [Eternal Life.] A fine poem "on the glory of the heavenly Jerusalem" given by Mone, No. 303, from a Karlsruhe MS. of the 15th cent., and in 16 st. of 6 l. In some copies of the Hymnal N., 1854, the first line reads "Si quis valet numerare." The tr. is usually given for All Saints. Tr. as:—

1. If there be that skills to reckon. By J. M. Neale, in the Hymnal N., 1854, in 7 st. of 8 l., including a doxology, being a part only of the hymn. This has been repeated in whole or in part in Kennedy, 1863; in the Hymnary, 1872, and the Hymner, 1882, as "If there be that skills to reckon?" in the former, 1880. In Dr. Neale's Hym. on the Joys and Glories of Paradise, 1865, the Latin text of 8 st. is given, together with a tr. of which 6 st. are from the H. Noted. This tr. is divided in the St. Alphonsus Hymn Book (Liverpool, n.d.), into two parts, (1) "O what a glorious city!" (2) "Who can tell."

2. Is there man could ever reckon? By T. A. Johnson, in his Sup. Hymns to H. A. & M., 1868. [J. J.]

3. Who the multitudes can number. By T. B. Pollock, in the 1884 Suppl. Hymns to H. A. & M. [J. J.]

Quo sanctus ardor te rapit. Joan Baptiste de Santeüil. [Visitation of the B. V. M.] Appeared in the Cluniac Breviary, 1686, p. 397; and his Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, p. 32 (ed. 1698, p. 110). Also in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

Whither thus in holy rapture! By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 201; and his Hym. and Poems, 1873, p. 171. It was included in the 2nd ed., 1863, of the Appendix to the Hymnal Noted. [W. A. S.]

Quo vox Magistri gloria quo salus. C. Coffin. [Whitsuntide.] Appeared in the Paris Breviary, 1736; and in Coffin's Hymni Sacri of the same year. The text is also in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. Where thy Master's glory Calls thee forth abroad. I. Williams, 1839.
2. Go where your Master's glory. W. J. Blew, 1852-55.
3. Herald of your God! Haste, where every nation. J. D. Chambers, 1857. [J. J.]

Quod chorus vatum venerandus olim. St. Ambrosius Mauriac (?) (Purification of the B. V. M.) Included in Brower's ed. of his Poemata, Mainz, 1617, p. 74, but not in E. Dümmler's ed. of his Carmina. It is found in four mss. of the 11th cent. in the British Museum (Vesp. D. xii. f. 44 b; Jul. A. vi,

f. 38; Harl. 2961, f. 231; Add. 30848, f. 58), and in the Lat. Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Church, 1851, p. 94, is printed from an 11th cent. MS. at Durham (B. iii. 32 f. 10). It is in the Sarum, York, Aberdeen, Paris of 1085, and other Breviaries. The printed text is also in Wackernagel, i. No. 132. Daniel, i. No. 222, gives st. i., and st. iv. p. 271, cites it as in a 10th cent. MS. at Bern. G. M. Dreves prints it in his Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, p. 39, from a 10th cent. MS. Tr. as :—

That which of old the reverend chair of prophets. By T. I. Ball, in the 2nd ed., 1863, of the Appendix to the Hymnal Noted.

Other trs. are :—

1. What they of old, the reverend chair of prophets. W. J. Blew, 1852-55.
2. Lo, what the reverend prophet seers of old. A. D. Chandler, 1864.
3. That which the Prophets reverend Assembly. Antiphoner and Grail, 1868. [J. M.]

Quod lex adumbravit vetus. (See Ex more docti mystico, p. 368.) Additional trs. are :—

1. The law Ex eano yet in destroy. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-55; and Blew's Ch. Hymn the same, 1870.
2. The fast that in the ancient law. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra, 1849, and J. C. Earle, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884.

In Blew's Church Hy. & Tune Bk., 1852-55, Lent No. 2, there is another tr. beginning with st. iv. Omens ad sanas cervas, tr. as :—In prayer all prostrate let us fall." We must also note that the form of J. Chandler's tr., "With fast and prayer for sinful men" (p. 399, ii.), found in Remedy, 1863, and others, appeared in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Church, &c., 1841, No. 37. [J. J.]

Quos in hostes, Saule, tendis. Joan Baptiste de Santeüil. [Conversion of St. Paul.] Included in his Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1685, p. 32, where it begins "Saule, tendis quos in hostes." In the Paris Breviary, 1736, it begins "Quos in hostes." It is also in the Lyons and other modern French Breviaries; in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 84; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

1. 'Quinst what foeman act thou rushing, Saul, what madness, &c. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 95. It was repeated, with several alterations, in Murray's Hymnal, 1852, the 1861 ed. of H. A. & M., and others. In Skinner's Daily Service Hymnal, 1864, No. 175, st. iv., ii., iii., v., are given as :—"Christ, Thy power is man's salvation."
2. 'Gainst what foeman act thou rushing, Saul, what frenzy, &c. By R. C. Singleton, in his Anglican H. Bk., 1868 and 1872.

Another tr. is:—

Whither, Saul, this raging cause. I. Williams, 1839. [J. J.]

R

R., in Bristol Bap. Coll. of Ash & Evans, 1st ed., 1769, i.e. Mrs. Rowe.

R., in the Christian Observer, 1811, &c. One of the signatures of Bp. Heber.

R. A. B., in The Cavendish H. Bk., 1864 Dale's English H. Bk., 1874, and others, i.e. R. A. Bertram, p. 198, i.

R—n, in the Bristol Bap. Coll. of Ash & Evans, 1st ed., 1769, i.e. Robert Robinson.

R. S. M., in Collyer's Coll., 1812, i.e. Robert S. McAll.

Rabanus. [Various.]

"Ράββοι ἐκ τῆς ῥίζης. [Χριστὸς γενόμενος.]

Raffles, Thomas, D.D., LL.D., s. of Mr. W. Raffles, solicitor, was b. in Princes Street, Spitalfields, London, May 17, 1788. In 1802 he became a clerk in Dorfers' Commons, but shortly after retired, and through the influence of Dr. Collyer (p. 385, ii.), of whose church at Peckham he was for some time a member, he entered Homerton College in 1805. His stated ministry began at Hammersmith, where he was ordained as a Congregational minister on June 22, 1809. In 1812 he removed to Liverpool, where he succeeded the Rev. T. Spencer, and remained for 49 years the honoured pastor of the Great George Street Congregational Church. He d. at Liverpool, Aug. 18, 1863. For upwards of fifty years Dr. Raffles was one of the most prominent ministers of the Congregational body. His labours outside of his own congregation were very great, his aid as a preacher on behalf of missions and other religious works being eagerly sought after. The Lancashire Independent College owes its existence mainly to him; and to many religious works in Liverpool he gave great personal attention. His degree of LL.D. was conferred by the University of Aberdeen in Dec. 1820, and that of D.D. by Union College, Connecticut, in July 1840. His works include Memoirs of the Life and Ministry of the Rev. Thomas Spencer, 1813; A Tour on the Continent, 1817; and several Sermons, &c. He also edited the 1815 ed. of Brown's Self-Interpreting Bible; was joint author with J. B. Brown and J. H. Wiffen, of Poems by Three Friends; and joint editor with Dr. Collyer and Dr. J. B. Brown, of the Investigator, a London quarterly. As early as March 3, 1813, he says, in a letter to his friend, Mr. Brown, "I am about to put to press a collection of hymns for the use of my chapel:" but this intention was not carried out until 1833, when he pub. his Supplement to Dr. Watts's Ps. & Hys. His son's history of this Supplement is :—

"Early in January, 1833, he published his long-projected Supplement to Dr. Watts's Psalms and Hymns, which he had in hand for many years. He would never have published it at all, but, in common with other Independent Ministers, would have used the Congregational Hymn-book [J. Conder's 1836 and 1842] had that not been published by the Union. The Supplement, in its original form, however, it did not contain one Hymn, one, but given as above.]; and Dr. Raffles might, without vanity—seeing that numerous hymn-books of modern date contained one or more of his hymns—have published a Hymn-book entirely his own, entirely omitted from the hymn-book emphatically of his own denomination. But so it was, and he never would introduce it, though, with the greatest readiness, when the improved edition was contemplated [the Rev. Dr. Raffles, Memoirs, 1863, p. 418], applied to by the Rev. Dr. G. Smith, Dr. Raffles contributed some of his hymns to its pages. His own collection is very good, but limited in extent; the hymns are selected with considerable judgment; and the true versions, as written by the authors, are given, in every instance where the original source could be reached."—Memoirs, 1864, p. 418.

Dr. Raffles contributed, in 1812, 8 hymns under the signature "T. R." to the Coll. of his old friend and former pastor, Dr. Collyer. Gradually other hymns came into notice. These, with others to the number of 46, were included in his Supplement, 1833. His hymns at present in C. U. include :—

1. Hast hear, when mortal man retires. Prayer. In the "n. ms." this is headed "The Hour of Prayer," and at the foot is written by Dr. Raffles, "Printed in the winter for 1810, and thence copied into the Christian Observer." It is dated "Jany. 26, 1809," and is in 8 st. of 4 l.
2. Cause of all causes, and the Source. Hymn to the Deity. Contributed to Dr. Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 614, in 12 st. of 4 l.
3. Come, heavenly peace of mind. Peace of Mind. Pub. in Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 915, in 3 st. of 10 l. In the "n. ms." this, in a revised and expanded form of 10 st. of 8 l., is undated; but underneath Dr. Raffles has written "Printed in the American Khan Assembly for 1828."
4. Eternal Father, throned above. Doxology. In the "n. ms." this is in 1 st. of 8 l., and headed "Doxology." It is undated, and underneath is written by Dr. Raffles at a later date (the change in the ink proving that it was not written at the same time) "Congregational Hymn Book," i.e., J. Conder's 1836 and 1842.
5. Father of mercies, God of love, O hear a humble, &c. Lent. Appeared in Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 809, in 6 st. of 6 l., and headed "The Penitent's Prayer."
6. Father of mercies, to Thy throne. Missions. In the "n. ms." in 7 st. of 4 l., headed "To the Agents of the Liverpool town mission," and dated "May 1st." At the foot is written "Printed at the Printing Office of the Liverpool Town Mission Bazaar, Lyceum, Bold Street."
7. High in yonder realms of light. Heaven. Contributed to Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 811, in 4 st. of 8 l. It was sung at Dr. Raffles's funeral, Aug. 24, 1863. It is the most widely known of his hymns, but is usually given in an abridged form.
8. Lord, like a publican I stand. Lent. Dated in the "n. ms." "December, Oct. 4th, 1831," and headed "The Publican, Luke xviii. 13." It is in 3 st. of 4 l., and is in several collections.
9. Lord, on Thy heart to heaven! No gathering storm. In 8 st. of 4 double lines, headed "And there shall be no night there," Rev. xxii. 5, and dated "April 4, 1837." ("n. ms.")
10. O God of families, we own. Family Worship. In the "n. ms." in 6 st. of 4 l., headed "Prayer for the families of Israel," and dated "Jany. 16th, 1825." It appeared in the New Song, 1856.
11. Rapid flows the stream of time. New Year. The last but one of his New Year's hymns, in 8 st. of 4 l., written "For New Year's Morning," and published in Collyer's Coll., 1812, No. 913.
12. Saviour, let Thy sanction rest. Holy Matrimony. In the "n. ms." in 9 st. of 4 l., entitled "The Marriage Feast," and dated "November 3rd, 1825. On occasion of the marriage of the Rev. J. F. and Mrs. Gurney." Included in the New Song., 1858, with the omission of 11. st.
13. Sovereign Ruler, Lord of all. Lent. No. 810 in Collyer's Coll., 1812, in 6 st. of 4 l.
14. Thou hast Thy right, Thou hast both given. In Affliction. In the "n. ms." in 2 st. of 8 l., but without date. In the Memoirs, 1864, p. 321, the history of the hymn from Dr. Raffles's Diary is this :—

"Ashby-de-la-Zouch, 10th [Oct., 1829.] I preached to an overflowing congregation in the Methodist chapel, and slept at Mr. Gilbert's. Mr. Rawson (of Nottingham Castle), a fine young man, and but recently married, has broken a blood-vessel, and with his wife and mother, and father and sister, set out yesterday for Devonshire. Mrs. Rawson, the mother, called on me this morning, and begged me to insert something appropriate. As I dressed in the morning I composed the following lines, which I sent her just before they set out: 'The cup, &c.'"

Mrs. Rawson, soon left a widow, resided at Wincanton, near Bradford, nearly 40 years, and died there in 1867.

15. Thou art my Hiding-place, O Lord. The Hiding-place. In the "n. ms." in 4 st. of 8 l., and dated "Barnsley, June 23rd, 1826."
16. Thy life, my God, and season. Life. In the "n. ms." in 4 st. of 4 l., and dated in pencil 1828. At the foot is written by Dr. Raffles "Originally published in the Investigator, and, anonymously, in Affection's Gift, a poetical selection published by Simpkin and Marshall, Hamilton, &c., London."

The "Raffles MS." from which we have annotated these hymns, was kindly lent by Mr. T. S. Raffles, B.A., Stipendiary Magistrate of Liverpool. Mr. Raffles is the author of his father's Memoirs, 1864, and of hymn 25 in his father's Supplement. Dr. Raffle's original Hymns were pub. in 1808, with a Preface by J. Baldwin Brown. [J. J.]

Raise the psalm, let Earth adoring. E. Charles. [Pa. xcvi.] 1st pub. in his Clerefond Psalter, 1854, in 12 st. of 4 l., with the refrain, "Hallelujah, Amen." In 1863 Dr. Kennedy embodied it in his Hymn. Christ. st. i., ii., viii.-xiii., as a hymn, of 2 st. of 16 l., each st. ending with "Hallelujah, Amen." This successful arrangement was repeated in the Wes. H. Bk., 1875. No. 694, but divided into 4 st. of 8 l., and with the omission of the refrain. This rendering is one of the author's best and most vigorous versions of the Psalms, and is worthy of more extended use than is accorded to it. [Psalter, English, § xix.] [J. J.]

Raise thee, my soul, fly up and run. I. Watts [Heavenly Joys.] Appeared in his Hys. and Soc. Songs, 1707 (ed. 1709, Bk. ii., No. 33), in 8 st. of 4 l., and headed "The blessed Society in Heaven." It is in C. U. in its full, and also in an abridged form. In some American collections, including The Baptist Praise Bk., N. Y., 1871, it begins "Arise, my soul, fly up and run," and st. ii. and vi. are also omitted. [J. J.]

Raise your triumphant songs. I. Watts. [The Love and Work of Christ.] 1st pub. in his Hys. and S. Songs, 1707, Bk. ii., No. 104, in 6 st. of 4 l., as the second of two hymns on "Christ's Ascension." John iii. 16, 17." It was extensively adopted by the older compilers, including G. Whitefield, M. Madan, A. M. Toplady, and others. Bickersteth (1833), Elliott (1835), the Leeds H. Bk. (1853), &c., followed; and modern editors in G. Britain and America have, in very many instances, also included it in their collections. Notwithstanding this popularity it does not rank with the best of Watts's hymns. [J. J.]

Rambach, August Jakob, s. of Johann Jakob Rambach (then pastor of St. Nicolai's Church, at Quedlinburg, and, after 1786, chief pastor of St. Michael's Church, at Hamburg), was b. at Quedlinburg, May 26, 1777. He entered the University of Halle in 1796, passed his final theological examination in Nov. 1799, was appointed diaconus of St. James's Church at Hamburg, in May 1802, and on March 16, 1810, preached his first sermon as chief pastor of St. Michael's, in succession to his father. He received the degree of D.D. from the University of Marburg, on the occasion of its tercentenary, Nov. 12, 1827; and became senior of the Hamburg clergy in 1834. After 1844 the burden of infirmities made him resign his public offices one after another. He finally resigned his pastorate in the beginning of 1851, and retired to Ottensen, near Hamburg, where he d. Sept. 7, 1851. (Die Familie Rambach. By Dr. T. Hansen, Gotha, 1875, p. 227; Allg. Deutsche Biog., xxvii. 195, &c.)

A. J. Rambach is better known as a hymnologist than as a hymn-writer. His earliest work, entitled, Über d. ältesten Lieders Verfasser und den Abendsegang, Hamburg, 1813, is an essay on Luther as a hymn-writer musician, &c. His greatest work is his Anthologie Alt-christlicher Gesänge aus allen Jahrhunderten der Kirche, Altona & Leipzig, vols. I.–V., 1817 (Ill., 1818; iv., 1822; v., 1823; vi., vii., also pub. separately, as Der heilige Gesang der Deutschen . . . mit Gellert's und Klopstock's Lieb). Though this is now to a considerable extent antiquated, and is really of value only for the historical notes, it is a work of great learning, and critical notes on many of the more obscure writers, and for the exceptional accuracy of the references to the sources from which the hymns are taken. (It is occasionally referred to in this Dictionary as Rambach's Anthologie.) His other publications include Bibliothek für Kinder, an extensive and valuable hymnological library, over 2000 volumes of which are now a part of the Hamburg Town Library. He was also the principal editor of the Hamburg G. B. of 1842, and in 1843 pub. a small volume of Lieder für Sonntagsschulen und Kinderfeste (Songs for Sunday-schools and Children's Festivals). (Koch-Gerhard-Zahn-Goedeke).

Rambach does not seem to have pub. any original hymns. His trs. are given in vol. i. of his Anthologie, as above, and five are included in the Hamburg G. B., 1842. The only one which has passed into English C. U. is noted at p. 827, i. [J. M.]

Rambach, Johann Jakob, D.D., a. of Hans Jakob Rambach, cabinet maker at Halle on the Saale, was b. at Halle, Feb. 24, 1693. In 1706 he left school and entered his father's workshop, but, in the autumn of 1707, he dislocated his ankle. During his illness he turned again to his schoolbooks; the desire for learning awoke; and on his recovery, early in 1708, he entered the Latin school of the Orphanage at Halle (Glaucha). On Oct. 27, 1712, he matriculated at the University of Halle as a student of medicine, but soon turned his attention to theology. He became specially interested in the study of the Old Testament under J. H. Michaelis. In May 1715 he became one of Michaelis's assistants in preparing his ed. of the Hebrew Bible, for which he wrote the commentary on Ruth, Esther, Nehemiah, &c. His health began to suffer in the spring of 1719, and he gladly accepted the invitation of Count von Henkel to stay at Pötritz, near Sonnenburg, where he spent several months. By August he had quite recovered, and went to pay a visit to Jena, where a number of the students asked him to lecture to them. For this purpose he settled at Jena in Oct., 1719, and lived in the house of Professor Buddeus (J. F. Buddeo). He graduated M.A. in March 1720. In 1723 he was appointed adjunct of the Theological Faculty at Halle, as also inspector of the Orphanage; in 1726 extraordinary professor of theology; and in 1727, after A. H. Francke's death, ordinary professor as well as preacher at the Schuhkirche. Here he was very popular, both as preacher and professor, but the jealousy of his colleagues induced him to accept an offer from the Landgrave Ernst Ludwig of Hesse, who, in 1731, invited him to Giessen as superintendent and first professor of theology (before leaving Halle he graduated D.D., June 28, 1731), and in Aug., 1732, appointed him also director of the Paedagogium at Giessen. In 1734 he was, for various reasons, greatly inclined to accept the office of the first professorship of theology in the newly-founded University of Göttingen, but eventually, at the earnest request of the Landgrave, remained in Giessen, where he d. of fever, April 19, 1735 (Die Familie Rambach. By Dr. T. Heinrich, Gotha, 1873: Allg. Deutsche Biog., xxvii. 196; Blätter für Hymnologie, 1885, pp. 113, 129, 145, 165, 186; 1884, p. 20: 1885, p. 13, &c.)

Rambach was a voluminous author in various departments of practical theology, e.g. his Institutiones hermeneuticae sacrae, Halle, 1723, and his Erbauliche Betrachtungen über die Psalmen, 1731 (see below), which reached an 8th ed. in 1776, and a 14th in 1746; his various volumes of sermons, &c. He justly earned his popularity by the practical character of his writings, and by the simple, clear way in which he set forth the results of his investigations. It is however as a hymn-writer that his name is likely to be best known. While not entitled to rank with the best hymn-writers of the 16th and 17th centuries, Rambach is by no means a commonplace compiler, and deserves to be remembered as much as almost any of the 18th cent. hymn-writers. His style is good and dignified: his thought is profound yet clearly expressed. While his hymns are often sufficiently objective, they are pervaded throughout by charity in tone, and are protected from mere freely imagination, and earnest, sober piety. Of hymns, in the strict sense, he wrote over 180, a large number of which passed into the German hymn-books of the 18th cent. (e.g. the Hannover G. B., 1740, and Lüneburg G. B., 1743, contain 12 by him), and a good many are still in common use in Germany. Dr. Julian in his Dict. Hymn. gives 106 in his ed. of Rambach's Geistliche Lieder, Leipzig, 1844, and the rest are printed by Hansen as above, while the first lines of the whole are given in the Mitthr as above. Four are recasts (practically new hymns) of hymns by Luther, 1 of 1 by Selnecker, 1 of 1 by Heermann, 1 of 1 by Gerhardt, 1 of 1 by Hasenbein G. B., to replace similar hymns in the ed. of 1765. The rest principally appeared in the following works by Rambach, viz.: (1) Geistliche Poesien, Halle, 1720 (Brit. Mus.). The first part contains 72 cantatas on the Gospels for the Christian year, and the second includes 36 hymns, mostly written at Pötritz in 1718. (2) Poetische Fest-Andachten. Jena and Leipzig, 1722 (Royal Lib., Berlin). Included are 13 pieces which may be called hymns. The 2nd ed. of 1727 (Brit. Mus.) has 16 hymns. (3) Erbauliche Betrachtungen über die Psalmen Davids, Giessen, 1731 (Hamburg Library). The 3rd part contains 8 new hymns. (4) Geistreiches Harmonisches Gesang-Buch, Frankfort and Leipzig, 1735 (Hamburg Library), with a Supplement, 1737 (Brit. Mus.). This contains 100 hymns by Rambach, of which 84 are practically new, 11 of these, however, being recasts of his own earlier hymns. (5) Wunder der bis zum Tode des Kreuzes erniedrigten Liebe, Giessen, 1736 (Berlin Library). This includes 27 new hymns.

One of Rambach's hymns is noted at p. 500, i. The others which have passed into English are:—

i. Auf! Seele, schicke dich. Holy Communion. Written, by request for the 11th ed., 1719, of Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, as No. 229, in 15 st. of 6 l., in order to replace the hymn "Auf, Seele, auf und wache." [J. M.]

This hymn, by George Heinz, was included in the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 431. In the 2nd ed., 1714, of the complete book formed by the fusion of Freylinghausen's G. B. of 1704 with the Neues Geistliches Gesang-Buch of 1705, both hymns are given, Heinz's as No. 234, and Rambach's as No. 233, both marked as being No. 229 in pt. i., 1704.

Rambach's hymn is in his Neue G. B., 1735, and No. 269 i. the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 471, &c. In Pozig's ed. of his Geistl. Lieder, 1844, p. 112, entitled "Before the reception of Holy Communion." It has been tr. as:—

My soul prepare to meet. Omitting st. i., ll. 4–6; ii., ll. 4–8; viii., xiv., as No. 570 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1849, No. 966). In the ed. of 1886, No. 979 begins with st. iv., "How should I, shepherd Lamb"; and No. 1012 with st. xi., "Lord, of Thy wondrous love."

ii. Mein Jesu, der du vor dem Schreien. Holy Communion. Appeared in Freylinghausen's G. B., 11th ed., 1719, as No. 236, in 9 st. of 6 l. It was written to replace the hymn "Mein Jesu, hier sind deine Beter" (Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 363), in the 1st ed. of Freylinghausen's G. B. It is in his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 305; the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 160i; and in Pozig, 1844, p. 110, entitled, "On the treasure of Grace in Holy Communion." The trs. are:—

i. Lord Jesus, Who before Thy passion. Omitting st. ix., this is No. 1181 in the Suppl. of 1808 to the Moravian H. Bk., 1801 (1886, No. 963).

ii. O Lord, Who on that last sad eve. A good tr., omitting st. ix., by Miss Cox, contributed to Lyra Eucharistica, 1863, p. 15, and repeated in her Hys. from the Gov., 1864, p. 75. Included, omitting st. iii., in G. S. Jellicoe's Coll., 1867.

iii. O Lehrer, dem kein Andrer gleicht. Christ our Prophet. In his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 107, in 8 st. of 6 l., entitled, "On the prophetical office of Jesus Christ." Repeated in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 118, and in Pozig, 1844, p. 51. Tr. as:—

Surely none like Thee can teach. By Miss Fry, in 102 lines, in her Hys. of the Reformation, 1845, p. 126. A recast in 3 st. of 8 l., beginning, "Saviour, none like Thee can teach," was included in C. Whittemore's Suppl. to all H. Bks., 1860, No. 263, and repeated in the Meth. N. Conn. H. Bk., 1863, No. 62.

iv. Wie herrlich ists sie Schäflein Christi werden. Joy in Believing. In his Poetische Fest-Andachten, 2nd ed. 1727, p. 131, in 9 st. of 6 l., entitled, "The Blessedness of the Sheep of Christ. John x. 28, 'I give my sheep eternal life.'" In his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 322: the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 645; and Pozig, 1844, p. 139. Tr. as:—

How great the bliss to be a sheep of Jesus. A tr. of st. i., ii., v., by C. J. Latrobe, as No. 293, in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1886, No. 385).

Hymns not in English C. U.:—

v. Allwissender, vollkommner Gott. The Omniscient One. In his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 13, in 9 st.; the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863; and in Pozig, p. 8. Tr. as, "Thou Spirit, perfect and sinless." By Dr. H. Mills, 1845, p. 8.

vi. Herr, Jesu Lamm, von was für Sünden. Passiontide. In his Poetische Fest-Andachten, 2nd ed., 1727, p. 46, in 8 st. In his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 151, it begins, "Frommes Lamm, durch dessen Wunden." Also in Pozig, p. 97. Beginning with the sorrows, tr. as "Lamb of God, for Sin," By Dr. H. Mills, 1845, p. 8.

vii. Gesetz und Evangelium. Law and Gospel. In his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 254, in 10 st.; the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863; and Pozig, p. 105. Tr. as, "The holy law and gospel, both." By Dr. H. Mills, 1845 (1857), p. 9.

viii. Herr, du hast nach dem Fall. Before Work. In his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 345, in 8 st.; and Pozig, p. 151. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1000 (probably by J. S. Diterich), and begins "Du hast uns, Herr die Pflicht." This tr. as, "Lord, Thou hast bid us labour, bid us toil." By Miss Warner, 1858, p. 358.

ix. Herr bin ich Herr, du ruhst mir. Christian Watchfulness. In his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 346, in 9 st.; Whitemarsh, 1845, No. 1045; and Pozig p. 153. The trs. are (1) "Here am I, Lord, Thou callest me; Thou drawest me." By Miss Warner, 1858, p. 360. (2) "Here am I, Lord, Thou callest me, Thou drawest me." By Miss Winkworth, 1863, p. 160.

x. Herr Jesu Christ, du höchstes Gut. Christ our Majesty. Written for the 11th ed., 1719, of Freylinghausen's G. B., No. 179 (in 20 st.), to replace an anonymous hymn in the 1st ed., 1704, which began "Höchste Majestät, Ursprung alles Guten." In his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 4, Rambach reduced it to 13 st., and rewrote it to an easier metre, so as to begin "Höchster Wesen, reinste Reine." Both forms are in Pozig, pp. 5–6. Tr. as "If Heav'n and Earth there were unnamed." By Dr. H. Mills, 1845, p. 5. This, st. i., ii., as No. 972, in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

xi. O grosser Gott, dess Wesen Alles füllet. The Omnipresent One. In his Geistliche Poesien, 1720, p. 238, in 9 st.; his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 13; the Whitemarsh G. B., 1845, No. 44; and Pozig, p. 7. Tr. as, "Eternal God, Thy dwelling-place." By Dr. G. Walker, 1846, p. 31.

xii. O grosser Gott! O Ursprung aller Dinge. God's Omnipresence. In his Geistliche Poesien, 1720, p. 9 st.; his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 12; and Pozig p. 15. Tr. as, "O mighty Spirit: Source whence all things spring." By Miss Winkworth, 1858, p. 152.

xiii. Verklärte Majestät, anbetungs-würdigst Wesen, Dem alle Himmels-Heer mit Furcht und Zittern dient. In Geistliche Poesien, 1720, p. 305, in 11 st.; his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 7; and Pozig, p. 3. The first tr. is "Anbetungs-würd'ger Gott," a recast (probably by J. S. Diterich), which is No. 1 in the Berlin G. B., 1765, and No. 1 in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863. The second, "Majestic glory," By Dr. H. Mills, 1845 (1856), p. 3.

xiv. Wird bleiben Sinn, den Kummer hin. Christmas. In his Neue G. B., 1735, No. 122, in 4 st. (founded on Rom. viii. 32). In Pozig, p. 6, and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 80. Tr. as, "Thrive, soul, I say, thy sins away." By Miss Bevington, 1867, p. 17. [J. M.]

'Παντοκρατορ ήμῶν ἀνακτε. [Ancient hymnody.]

Randall, Thomas, M.A., was b. in 1711, and studied at the University of Edinburgh, where he graduated M.A. in 1730. In 1739 he became parish minister of Inchture, Perthshire, and in 1770 minister of the East Church, Stirling. He d. at Stirling, July 21, 1790. He was one of those added in 1744 to the Committee of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland which compiled the Translations and Paraphrases of 1745. To him is ascribed No. 11 in the collection of 1745, No. 49 in that of 1781. See Scottish Translations and Paraphrases. [J. M.]

Randolph, Anson Davis Fete, was b. at Woodbridge, New Jersey, Oct. 18, 1820, and subsequently became a publisher and bookseller in New York. His Hopefull: Waiting and other Verses were pub. in 1867. His hymn "Weary, Lord, of struggling here" (Desiring to Depart), was written in 1849, and first printed in the New York Independent. It was reprinted in his Hopefully Waiting, &c., 1867, and is in a few collections. [F. M. B.]

Rands, William Brighty, was b. in Chelsea in 1826 and d. at Dulwich on April 23rd, 1882. He was a considerable contributor to literature, but published his works under nom-de-plumes—e.g. "Matthew Browne," "Henry Holbeach," "Lilliput Levee," &c. One hymn by him of great force and originality has found its way into recent hymnals, "One Lord there is all Lords above" (God a consuming fire to sin). It appeared originally in his "Lilliput Lectures," 1872. It has been included in Horder's Congregational Hymns, 1884, and in the Congregational Church Hymnal, 1887. [W. G. H.]

Rankin, Jeremiah Eames, D.D., was b. at Thornton, New Haven, Jan. 7, 1828, and educated at Middlebury College, Vermont, and at Andover. For two years he resided at Potsdam, U.S. Subsequently he held pastoral charges as a Congregational Minister at New York, St. Albans, Charlestown, Washington (District of Columbia), &c. In 1873 he edited the Gospel Temperance Hymnal, and later the Gospel Bells. His hymns appeared in these collections, and in D. E. Jones's Songs of the New Life, 1869. His best known hymn is "Labouring and heavy laden" (Seeking Christ). This was "written (in 1858) for a sister who was an inquirer," was first printed in the Boston Recorder, and thus included in Nason's Cong. H. Bk., 1857. Another of his hymns is "Rest, rest, rest, brother rest." He d. in 1904. [F. M. B.]

Rawson, George, was b. June 5, 1807, at Leeds, in which town he practised for many years as a solicitor. In 1853 he assisted the Congregational ministers of Leeds in the compilation of Psalms, Hymns, and Passages of Scripture for Christian Worship, a vol. commonly known as the Leeds Hymn-book. Mr. Rawson was a member of the Congregational body. In 1858 he also assisted Rev. Dr. Green and other Baptist ministers in the preparation of Psalms and Hymns for the use of the Baptist Denomination. A number of Mr. Rawson's own compositions first appeared in this and in the Leeds H. Bk. In 1876 he pub. his Hymns, Verses and Chants (Hodder and Stoughton, London), including his previously published hymns, and containing (exclusive of chants) 80 original pieces. In 1883 most of these, with several additional hymns, were pub. by the R. T. S. under the title Songs of Spiritual Thought. Mr. Rawson d. March 25, 1889. His hymns are distinguished by refinement of thought and delicacy and propriety of language; and if they do not attain the first rank among the songs of the Christian Church, many are of great excellence. The most widely known are, "By Christ redeemed, in Christ restored;" "Come to our poor nature's night;" "Father in high heaven dwelling;" "In the dark and cloudy day;" and "Reaper, behold the fields are white." In the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, and the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, there are also several remains of and additions to the hymns of other writers. These are noted in this Dictionary, and may be gathered from the Index of Authors and Translators. In addition to Mr. Rawson's hymns which are annotated under their respective first lines, the following are also in C. U.:—

i. From the Leeds H. Bk., 1853.

1. Captain and Saviour of the host. Burial.
2. Give dust to dust: and here we leave. Burial.
3. God the Lord is King—before him. Ps. xcix.
4. In the dark and cloudy day. Consolation.
5. Soul, thy week of toil is ended. Saturday Evening.
6. Though the night be very long. Resignation.

ii. From the Baptist Psalms & Hymns, 1858

7. Beautiful, desired, and dear. Public Worship.
8. Blessed are they who have not seen. Faith.
9. Blessed is the faithful heart. Faithfulness.
10. Christ to heaven is gone before. Ascension.
11. God the Father, in Thee large. Evening.
12. He fell asleep in Christ the Lord. Burial.
13. Immersed beneath the closing wave. Holy Baptism.
14. Lord, we bless Thee, Who hast given. Holy Communion.
15. My Father God, with filial awe. Abiding in God.
16. Our eyes we lift up to the hills. The Lord the Father's Keeper.
17. Reaper, behold the fields are ripe (white). Missions.
18. Rise, heart, thy Lord arose. Sunday.
19. Upon the holy mountains high. Security of the Church.

iii. From the Leeds Sunday S. H. Bk., 1858.

20. And will [How shall] the mighty God. The Holy Ghost.
21. Jesus, the Lord, our Righteousness. Jesus, the children's Friend.
22. O Thou Good Shepherd. The Good Shepherd.

iv. From Dr. Allon's Supplemental Hymns, 1868.

23. My Father, it is good for me. Trust.
24. Thou Who hast known the careworn breast. Burning.
25. Waiting with Thee, my God. Waiting with God.

v. From Mr. Rawson's Hymns, Verses, &c., 1876.

26. God is our Refuge; God our Strength. Ps. xlvi.
27. Lo, a voice from heaven hath said. Burial.
28. Lord, let me pray. I know not how. The Holy Spirit desired.
29. Lord, seated, gentle, grief-worn face. Easter Eve.
30. God of the depths, the guilt, the night. Ps. cxxx.
31. This, the old world's day of rest. Saturday Evening. [1876-7.]
32. Thou who Thyself didst sanctify. Ordination. [1864.]
33. Voices of the deep blue night. The Heavenly call.
34. With gladness we worship. Public Worship.

When to these 34 hymns are added those which are annotated under their respective first lines, and the recasts which are mainly Mr. Rawson's own composition, he is represented by about 50 hymns in the collections of the present day. It must be noted that in the Hymns, &c., 1876, and in the Songs, &c., 1883, the texts of the hymns have been revised by the author, and in several instances been weakened thereby. [W. R. S.]

Raymond, William Sterns, M.A., was b. in 1832, and educated at Magdalene College, Cambridge, B.A. 1854. Taking holy orders, he was for sometime Curate of Toddenham-Dalmeyes, Herefordshire. Subsequently he became a Fellow of St. Nicholas College, Lancing, Sussex. He d. in 1863. His hymn for Easter Eve, "Weeping as they go their way," was pub. in I. G. Smith's H. Bk. for the Services of the Church, &c., 1855, and is found in several collections. [J. J.]

Rebus creatis nil egens. C. Coffin, (Septuagenius.) Pub. in the Paris Breviary, 1736; and again in Cotton's Hymni Sacri, 1736, p. 42. It is also in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. Our God, in His celestial seat. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 61: and, again, in his Hys. of the Church mostly Primitive, 1841, No. 54. It was repeated in the People's H., 1867, and others. There are also altered versions of Chandler—as (1) "Blest in Thyself, created thing," in Johnston's English Hyl., 1852 and 1861; and (2) "O Lord, who art enthroned on high," in the Hymnary, 1872.

2. Thou dost not need creation's aid. By R. Campbell, in his Hys. and Anthems, 1850, p. 61: and, again, in a few collections.

3. Of creation naught Thou needest. By W. J. Blew, in his Church H. & Tune Bk., 1852-55: and Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870.

4. O Christ, in Thine all-blissful state. By J. D. Chambers, in his Lords Sym, 1857, p. 121. This was rewritten by the Compilers of H. A. & M., 1861, as, "O Lord, in perfect bliss above" (omitted from H. A. & M. in 1875); and this, again, altered in the Rev. F. Pott's Hymns, 1861, as, "Thou, Who art All in All above."

5. O God, the joy of hosts above. By the Compilers of H. A. & M. in their Suppl. Hymns, 1889.

Other trs. are:—

1. Then that lack'st no created thing. A. J. S. Hope. 1864.
2. Thou of the things created nothing needing. I. Williams. 1839.

[J. J.]

Recordare sanctæ crucis. St. Bonaventura. [Passiontide. Holy Cross.] Included as his "Laudismus de sancta cruce," in a collection of his tractates pub. at Paris c. 1510 (Brit. Mus. 3338 a). The text, in 90 lines, is also in his Opera, Mainz, 1609, vol. vi. p. 423. F. W. E. Roth, in his Lat. Hymnen, 1887, gives a long form in 77 st. of 3 l. from a ms. of the 12th cent. at Darmstadt. A selection of stanzas beginning with the first, is given by Daniel, i. p. 315; Daniel, ii. p. 161; Kehrein, No. 62, and others. Trench, ed. 1864, p. 145, gives a selection of stanzas from the second part of the poem beginning, "Quam despectus, quam dejectus." [J. M.]

Both of those selections from the original have been tr. either in full or in part, thus:—

i. Recordare sanctæ crucis. This, from Daniel's text, st. i.–viii., xv., as:—

Ponder then the Cross all holy. In Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869, was made by Dr. E. A. Washburn, of N. York. In the Hymnary, 1872, No. 37, is compiled, with slight alterations, from this tr., together with the addition of the last stanza.

Other trs. are:—

1. Remember, O my poor meditation. Dr. H. Harbaugh in the American Mercersburg Review, 1850, p. 491.
2. Jesus' holy Cross and dying. Dr. J. W. Alexander, in his The Breaking Crucible, &c., 1841; and Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869.
3. In the holy Cross delight. D. T. Morgan, 1871 and 1880.

ii. Quæso dejectus, quæso dejectus. This from st. i.–iv., as in Trench, is tr. as:—

1. Son of Man, and Man of sorrows. By H. Kynaston, in his Occasional Hymns, 1862, No. 43.
2. O what shame and desolation. By P. S. Wesley, in his Poems and Trs., 1865, p. 185: and in Lyra Messianica, 1864.

iii. Qui hanc sedis ingressus. This from the remaining sts. of Trench, is tr. as:—

Thou that hearest, with His pressing, also by H. Kynaston, in his Occasional H., No. 43, Pt. ii.

From those two parts in Kynaston, No. 36, in the Hymnary, 1872, is compiled. [J. J.]

Rector potens, verax Deus. St. Ambrose? [Noon.] This hymn has been ascribed to St. Ambrose, and is certainly ancient, but is not assigned to him by the Benedictine editors. Daniel, i., No. 41, gives the original (and the text of the Roman Brev., 1632), in 2 st. of 4 l., and at p. 44, cites it as in a Rhenian ms. of the 10th cent.; while at iv. p. 43 he expresses the opinion that the hymn "Bis ternas horas" (q. v.), is more probably that written by St. Ambrose for the Sixth Hour. In all the ancient Breviaries it is the hymn at Sext, as in the Ambrosian of 1539, the Roman (Venice, 1478 and the revision of 1632), Mozarabic of 1502, Sarum, York, &c. It is suggested by Hosea vii. 4, Ps. xci. 6, and James iv. 1. As the sixth hour was the time for the mid-day meal (Acts x. 9), it may have been meant for use as a prayer against the temptations of the flesh. [W. A. S.]

Mone, i. p. 372, cites it as in two mss. of the 8th cent. at Fulda and at Trier, both assigning it to Sext. It is also in a ms. of the 9th cent. at the British Museum (Vespas. D. xii. f. 2 b), and at Berlin (Phill. 1667), in a ms. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi, Cambridge (261, p. 226); in the St. Gall. ms., No. 413, of the 11th cent., &c. In the Latin Hym. of the Anglo-Saxon Church (Surtees Society), 1851, it is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32 f. 4). [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. O God, the Lord of place and time. Card. Newman, in Tracts for the Times, 1836, No. 75, p. 66. In his Verses, &c., 1853 and 1868, it begins, "O God, Who canst not change nor fail." It is in several modern collections, including the S. P. C. K. Church Hys. 1871 (1853 text), Hys. for the Use of the University of Oxford, 1873, &c.
2. O God of truth, Almighty Lord. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, p. 6. It was rewritten for the English Hyl., 1852, as "Unchanging God, all-powerful Lord." It is also slightly altered in the Hymnary, 1872.
3. Lord of eternal truth and might. By E. Cassell, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 11: and his Hys. & Poems, 1875, p. 7. In Murray's Hymnal, 1852, and others.
4. Eternal Truth, eternal Might. By R. Campbell, in his Hys. and Anthems, 1850, p. 40: the Scottish Episc. Hymns, 1858, &c.
5. O God of truth, O Lord of might. By J. M. Neale, in the Hymnal N., 1852, No. 6, and later editions. In the Salisbury H. Bk., 1857, etc., ii., were considerably altered, and a new doxology was substituted for that by Dr. Neale. It was again altered by the Compilers of H. A. & M., 1861, and others. Mercer's text, in his Church Ps. & H. Bk., Oxford ed., is that of H. A. & M. again altered. It begins, "Thou God of truth, Thou Lord of might."
6. Thou Mighty Ruler, God of truth. By J. D. Chambers, in his Psalter, &c., 1852, p. 157, and the People's H., 1867. In Chambers's Lords Sym, 1857, p. 37, it was altered to "Almighty Ruler, God of truth."

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. Mighty Ruler, God most true. Sarum Primer. 1706.
2. All-ruling God, steering Way. Primer. 1706.
3. Mighty Sovereign, God Supreme. Hy. S. Mend. 1837.
4. Ruler omnipotent, Whose might. T. Dentleday's Hymn-book for Christian Worship. 1845.
5. Mighty Ruler, God most true, Guiding all, &c. Hy. Z. Williams. 1846.
6. God of might, in truth and power. W. J. Copeland. 1848.
7. Prince of all power, high God and true. W. J. Blew, 1852-55.
8. God of truth and King of power. H. Bonar, Hys. of Faith and Hope. 1866.
9. Strong Ruler, God Whose word is truth. J. Keble, Miscellaneous Poems. 1869.
10. O God of truth, and Lord of might. J. Wallace. 1870.

[J. J.]

Redeemed offender, hail the day. J. M. Toplady. [Passiontide.] 1st pub. in his Poems on Sacred Subjects, &c., 1759, in 8 st. of 4 l. It was not included in his Ps. and Hys., 1776, but is republished in D. Sedgwick's reprint of his Hymns, 1860, p. 128. In its full form it is not in common use, but a cento therefrom, "For me vouchsafed 'll th' unspotted Lamb," is given in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, No. 285. It is composed of st. iii., iv., and viii. unaltered. [J. J.]

Reed, Andrew, D.D., son of Andrew Reed, was b. in London on Nov. 27, 1787, and educated for the Congregational Ministry at Hackney College, London. He was first the pastor of the New Road Chapel, St. George's-in-the-East, and then of the Wycliffe Chapel, which was built through his exertions in 1830.

His degree was conferred by Yale College, America. He d. Feb. 25, 1862. As the founder of "The London Orphan Asylum," "The Asylum for Fatherless Children," "The Asylum for Idiots," "The Infant Orphan Asylum," and "The Hospital for Incurables," Dr. Reed is more fully known, and will be longer remembered than by his literary publications. His Hymn Book was the growth of years. The preparation began in 1817, when he pub. a Supplement to Watts, in which were a few originals. This was enlarged in 1823; and entirely superseded by his collection The Hymn Book, prepared from Dr. Watts's Ps. & Hys. and Other Authors, with some Originals, in 1842 (Preface). His hymns, mostly of a plain and practical character, numbering 21, were contributed to these various editions, and were republished with those of his wife (see below) in the Wycliffe Supplement, 1872. The best known are "Ah Jesus, let me hear Thy voice," and "Spirit Divine, attend our prayer." All Dr. and Mrs. Reed's hymns are anonymous in The Hymn Book, 1842, but are given with their names in the Wycliffe Suppl., 1873. His hymns now in C. U. include, in addition to those annotated under their respective first lines :—

1. Come, let us strike our harps afresh. Praise.
2. Come, my Redeemer, come. Desiring Christ's Presence.
3. Gentle Saviour, look on me. Christ's protection Desired.
4. Gracious Lord, as Thou hast taught us. Public Worship.
5. Hark, hark, the notes of joy. Missions.
6. Holy Ghost, with light divine (1817). Prayer to the Holy Spirit. Sometimes given as "Holy Ghost, Thou light divine;" and again as "Holy Spirit, Light divine."
7. Listen, sinner, mercy hails you. Invitation. Generally given as "Now, O Sinner, mercy hails you."
8. Rich are the joys of solitude. Retirement. Sometimes given as "How deep and tranquil is the joy."
9. There [yonder] is an hour when I must part. Death Anticipated.
10. Ye sublime your music bring. Praise of the Cross.

[J. J.]

Reed, Eliza, née Holmes, was b. in London, March 4, 1794; married to the Rev. Andrew Reed (see above) in 1818; and d. July 4, 1867. Mrs. Reed entered fully and earnestly into her husband's extensive charitable works. Her publications include Original Tales for Children; and The Mother's Manual for the Training of her Children, 1865. Her hymns, 29 in all, were contributed to her husband's collection, and were republished with his in the Wycliffe Chapel Supplement, 1872. They are only of average merit, and have not attained to a marked position. They include :—

1. Gracious Lord, as Thou hast bidden. Holy Baptism.
2. Jesus, I come, O take my heart. Dedication of Self to Christ.
3. O do not let the word depart. The Accepted Time.
4. O that I could for ever dwell. Communion with God Desired.

[J. J.]

Regina coeli laetare. [B. V. M.] Ascribed by Schubiger, in his Musikalische Spicilegien, Berlin, 1876, p. 37, cites it as in a ms. of 1372, now at Engelberg in Switzerland. It is given as an Easter antiphon in the Rosetum Brev., Mediol., 1480, f. 512. Repeated in later edns. of the Rosetum Brev., and also in Daniel, ii. p. 319. Tr. as :—

Joy to thee, O queen of heaven. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 39; and his Hymns and Poems, 1873, p. 51. Repeated in a few Roman Catholic hymn-books for schools and missions.

Other trs. are :—

1. Rejoice, thou Queen of heaven. Primer. 1804.
2. O Queene of Heaven rejoyce. Primer. 1619.
3. Rejoice, O Queen of heaven, angels, and apply. J. Austin, in his Devotions, &c. 1668.
4. Triumph, O Queen of heaven, to see. Primer. 1706.
5. Rejoice, O Queen of heaven. Card. Newman, in Lyra Catholica, 1849, No. 25. [J. J.]
6. Queen of heaven, now rejoice. C. Wallace. 1874.

[J. M.]

Regnantem sempiterna per saecula suscepture. [Advent.] This Sequence is found in a ms. in the Bodleian (Bodl. 775, f. 159), written c. 1000: and another circa 1070 (Douce, 222 f. 82 v); in a Winchester book of the 11th cent. now in Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (No. 473); in a 12th cent. Gradual in the British Museum (Reg. 2 B iv. f. 59 b), &c. Among Missals it is found in an early 14th cent. Paris, and a 14th cent. Sens, in the British Museum; in a Sarum, c. 1370; a Hereford, c. 1370, and a York, c. 1390, all now in the Bodleian; in the St. Andrew's and various French Missals. In the English Missals it is the Sequence for the second S. in Advent. The printed text is also in Neale's Sequentiae, 1852, p. 5; in Daniel, v. p. 172, and Kehrein, No. 2. Tr. as :—

Christ that ever reigneth. By E. A. Dayman, made for and pub. in the Hymnary, 1872.

Other trs. are :—

1. Him Who reigneth ever. J. D. Chambers. 1865.
2. To welcome Him Who doth for ever reign. J. W. Horsley, in Lyra Messianica, 1864.
3. Reception giving to the King eternal. C. B. Pearson, in the Sarum Missal in English, 1868.
4. Let the choir devoutly bring. C. B. Pearson, in his Sequence from the Sarum Missal, 1871. [J. M.]

Regnator orbis summus et arbiter. Jesu Baptiste de Sanctis. [St. Michael and All Angels.] Appeared in the Paris Brev., 1680; the Cluniac Brev., 1686, p. 1092; the author's Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1693, p. 43 (ed. 1698, p. 184); the Paris Brev., 1736; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

Where the angelic hosts adore Thee. By I. Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 255. In the Hymnary it begins, "Where the angel hosts adore Thee." It is also altered in W. J. Blew's Church H. and Tune Bk., 1852–1855.

Another tr. is :—

Omnipotent, infinite Lord. E. Caswall. 1851.

[J. J.]

Reinmar, sometimes called Reinmar der Alte, or Reinmar von Hagenau, seems to have been b. at Simsaburg, about 1160. He lived principally at the court of Duke Leopold VI. of Austria, seems to have taken part with him in the Crusade of 1190, and wrote one of his finest pieces as an elegy on his death in 1194. Reinmar d. about 1207 (K. Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. i., 1884, p. 52, &c.). He was one of the most important of the Minnesingers, and is said to have been the inventor of most of the forms of lyric used by the later Minnesingers. This is strengthened by the fact that their pieces are in great measure variations on themes which were first employed by him. His pieces are principally love songs, and songs of the Crusades. The only one tr. into English is :—

Des Tages do ich das Krütze nam. Crusader's Songs. On Crucifix Thoughts. F. H. v. der Hagen, in his Minnesinger, iii. 1838, gives this as the first line of a poem, with a list of the MSS. where it is found in the Königl. Bibliothek Nationale, at Paris. Also in Wackernagel, ii., p. 30, in 4 st. of 14 l. Tr. as :—"O'er since the day this Cross was mine." By Miss Winkworth, 1869, p. 44.

[J. M.]

Reissner, Adam, was b. in 1496 at Mindelheim (now Mindelheim) in Swabian Bavaria. He first studied at Wittenberg, and then, about 1521, he learned Hebrew and Greek under Johann Reuchlin. He then became private secretary to Georg von Freundsberg (who d. Aug. 20, 1528), and accompanied him during the campaign in Italy, 1526–27. After the capture of Rome in 1527, he went back to Germany, and spent some time at Strassburg, where he became a friend and adherent of Caspar Schwenckfeld. He seems to have been living at Frankfurt-am-Main in 1563, but thereafter returned to Mindelheim, where he was still living in 1572. He appears to have d. there about 1575. (Koch, ii. 156; Preface to his Historia Herrn Georgen und Herrn Caspars von Frundsberg [d. Aug. 21, 1536] Vatters und Sons . . . Kriegsrathern, Frankfurt-am-Main, 1568. The Brit. Museum copy is unmistakably dated on title 1568, but the preface is dated Jan. 31, 1572.)

Three of Reissner's earlier hymns are in Zwick's G. B., 1536–48. His later hymns, including a tr. of the hymns of Prudentius, are collected in two mss., both dated 1588 (see Wackernagel, i. pp. 589, 590). Four are in Wackernagel's Kirchenlied, ii. pp. 1–3, under the title of Adam Reissner, and contains over 40 hymns which may be regarded as by Reissner, the rest being by other writers of the school of Schwenckfeld. Wackernagel, vol. iii., gives Nos. 119–194 under his name.

The only hymn by Reissner tr. into English is :—

In dich hab ich gehofft, Herr. Ps. xxxi. 1st pub. in the Neue und frölliche Gesenglein among vol. iii. of Forster's Songbooks, of various b. Wackernagel, iii. p. 135, in 7 st. of 8 l. It was included in V. Babst's G. B., 1545, and repeated in almost all the German hymn-books up to the period of Rationalism. It is one of the best Psalm-versions of the Reformation period. Found in the Cen. L. Bks., 1601, No. 648. Tr. by C. T. Brooks :—

In Thee, Lord, have I put my trust. A good tr., omitting st. vii., by Miss Winkworth, in her C. & Jer. England, 1863, No. 138.

Other trs. are :—

1. "In Thee, Lord, I never be confounde." In the Gude and Godlie Ballates, ed. 1590, f. 92; ed. 1600, p. 141. (2) "Great God! in Thee I put my Trust." By J. C. Hewlett, 1720, p. 33 (1738, p. 195). Repeated in the Scottish Translations & Par., 1745, p. 31. (3) "In Thee have trusted in Thy mercy." By Dr. R. Bell, 1854, p. 171. (4) "On Thee, O Lord, my hopes I fix." By N. L. Frothingham, 1870, p. 385.

[J. M.]

Rejoice and be glad, the Redeemer has come. H. Bonar. [Praise of Jesus.] Written for I. D. Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos, circa 1875. From that collection it has passed into a large number of Sunday School hymn-books, and others.

[J. J.]

Rejoice, rejoice, ye fallen race. C. Wesley. [Whitsuntide.] Pub. in Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1742, p. 165, in 12 st. of 4 l., and headed "Hymn for the Day of Pentecost." (P. Works, ii. p. 227.) The following centos are in part, or in full from this hymn :—

1. Our Jesus is gone up on high. Compost of st. ii.–iv. in the revised ed. of Hys. H. Bk., 1875.
2. Lord, we know Thou comest soon. Compost of st. i., ii., iv., and last given as a Hymn for Easter Day in Skinner's ch. Psalter & H. Bk., Oxford ed., 1864.
3. Come, Holy Spirit, raise our songs. This cento is composed of st. i.–iii. from R. C. Brickenden's Sac. Poems & Hys., 1772: and the rest from this hymn by C. Wesley. It was given in this form in the Wes. H. Bk., 1836, but omitted in 1875.

[J. J.]

Rejoice, the Lord is King. C. Wesley. [Easter or Ascension.] This is No. viii. of 16 hymns printed in 1746 as Hys. for Our Lord's Resurrection. It is in 6 st. of 6 l. It had previously appeared in J. Wesley's Moral and Sacred Poems, 1744. (P. Works, iv. p. 140.) It has been included, either in full or in part, in most hymn-books of any moment from Whitefield's, in 1753, to Thring's, in 1882, with the result that it is in extensive use in all English-speaking countries. Curiously enough, however, it was not given in the Wes. H. Bk. until the revised ed. of 1875. A cento for harvest beginning with the first stanza is found in some Unitarian hymn-books both old and new, including Ellen Courtauld's Ps., Hys. and Anthems, 1860. It is in 5 st., the first stanza and ll. 5, 6, of each of the others being from this hymn, whilst the rest are by John Taylor in Enfield's Norwich Sel. of Hys., 1795. [See Taylor, John.] In R. Bingham's Hymns. Christ. Latina, 1871, st. i., ii., iv., vi., slightly altered, are rendered into Latin as, "Rex est Dominus! Letantes."

[J. J.]

Rejoice to-day with one accord. Sir H. W. Baker. [General Thanksgiving.] Contributed to the 1st ed. of H. A. & M., 1861, and continued in the revised ed. of 1875. It is also repeated in a large number of hymn-books both at home and abroad. It is justly regarded as a good example of the author's jubilant style.

[J. J.]

Religion is the chief concern. J. Fawcett. [Pure Religion desired.] Pub. in his Hymns, &c., 1782, No. 68, in 8 st. of 4 l., and entitled "The Nature and Necessity of inward Religion." It is in C. U. in an abbreviated form, under the original opening line, and also as, "O may my heart, by grace renew'd."

[J. J.]

Remark, my soul, the narrow bounds. P. Doddridge. [New Year.] 1st pub. in J. Orton's posthumous ed. of his Hymns, &c., 1755, No. 52, in 5 st. of 4 l., and again in J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1839, No. 65. In each case it is headed "Reflections on our waste of years, Psal. xc. 9. For New Year's Day." It is in C. U. in the following forms :—

1. Remark, my soul, the narrow bounds. The original form in several collections both old and new.
2. Remark will save the narrow bounds. In Stowell's Manchester Pr. & Hys., 1831 and 1877, &c.
3. Remember, O my soul, the narrow bounds. In W. Bacchus's Plymouth Coll., 1863.

[J. J.]

Reproaches, The. [Populs meus quid feci tibi.]

Rerum Creator omnium. C. Coffin. [Saturday.] Appeared in the Paris Breviary, 1736; and again in Coffin's Hymni Sacri, 1736, p. 30. It is also in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, and Card. Newman's Hymni Eccl., 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

1. Creator of mankind. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 26. It is in this form in a few collections; and also as, "O Saviour of mankind," in Kennedy, 1863.
2. Maker of all things, aid our hands. By I.

Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 39. Given in a few collections without alterations; and, in others, including the Sarum, 1868, and the Hymnary, 1872, as "Creator of the world, do Thou."

Other trs. are :—

1. Maker of all, Who the worlds were made. J. D. Chambers, 1857.
2. Maker of all, vouchsafe to bless. D. T. Morgan, 1868.

Rerum Creator optime. St. Gregory the Great? (Wednesday Morning.) Mone, No. 275, gives this as probably by St. Gregory (it is not assigned to him by the Benedictine editors), and at l. p. 372, cites it as in an 8th cent. ms. at Trier. Daniel gives the text at i., No. 44: and at iv. p. 37, cites it as in a Rheinau ms. of the 10th cent., and ranks it as a hymn of the 7th or 8th cent. Among the British Museum mss. it is found in three 11th cent. Hymnaries of the English Church (Vesp. D. xii. f. 173; Jul. A. vi. f. 26; Harl. 2961 f. 222 b); in an 11th cent. Monastic Hymnaries (Add. 30851 f. 178); an 11th cent. Monastic Breviary (Add. 30848 f. 70), &c. It is in an 11th cent. ms. at Corpus Christi, Cambridge (201, page 224); in three mss. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall, Nos. 387, 413, 414; and in the Lat. Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Church (Surtees Society), 1851, is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32 f. 7). It is included in the Roman (Venice, 1478, and the revision of 1632), Sarum, York, Aberdeen, Paris of 1643, and other Breviaries; uniformly for Wednesday at Nocturns or at Matins. The text is also in Wackernagel, i., No. 92; Hymnarium Sarisb., 1851, p. 69; Königsfeld, i. p. 10; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865; and G. M. Dreves's Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, from a 10th cent. ms. Tr. as :—

1. O Creator, most benigne. Sarum Primer, 1545.
2. O God, Whose power did all create. Primer, 1706.
3. Dread Maker of whate'er we see. T. Doddridge's Hymnorium Anglicanum, 1744.
4. Creator, ever good and kind. W. J. Copeland, 1848.
5. Creator, Lord of all the earth. J. Ellerton, 1865.
6. Creator, Lord of all. R. Campbell, 1862.
7. Creator of all worlds, look down. J. D. Chambers, 1852. In 1857 it reads : "Creator of the world, look down," &c.
8. Who madest all, and dost control. Card. Newman, 1838.
9. O great Creator of the orb. J. Wallace, 1874.
10. Let us keep steadfast guard. American Meth. Epis. Hymns, 1878.
11. Maker of all things, God of Love. Hymner, 1885.

[J. M.]

Rerum Deus tenax vigor. St. Ambrose? (The Ninth Hour.) This hymn is given by Biraghi as one of the Inni sinceri e Carmi di Sant' Ambrogio, 1862: but it is not one of the twelve received as genuine by the Benedictine editors of St. Ambrose. Daniel gives the text at i., No. 42, and at iv. p. 45, cites it as in a Rheinau ms. of the 10th cent. and ranks it as a hymn of the 7th or 8th cent. Mone, i. p. 372, cites it as in mss. of the 8th cent. at Darmstadt and Trier; and Thesaurus, ii. 418, as in a Vatican ms. of the 8th cent. It is found in three 11th cent. Hymnaries of the English Church now in the British Museum (Vesp. D. xii. f. 9; Jul. A. vi. f. 22; Harl. 2961 f. 220); in an 11th cent. ms. at Corpus Christi, Cambridge (201, page 230); in the St. Gall ms. No. 413, of the 11th cent.; and in the Lat. Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Church (Surtees Soc.), 1851, it is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32 f. 4 b). It is included in the Roman (Venice, 1478, and the revision of 1632), Sarum, York, Aberdeen, Paris of 1643, and other Breviaries, uniformly for None. The text is also in Wackernagel, i., No. 8; Hymnarium Sarisb., 1851, p. 41; Königsfeld, ii. p. 24; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865.

[J. M.]

Translations in C. U. :—

1. O God, unchangeable and true. By Card. Newman, in Tracts for the Times, 1836, No. 75, p. 72, and his Verses, &c., 1853 and 1868. In Thring's Coll. 1882.
2. Almighty God, Thy Throne above. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 7. Repeated in the Hymnary, 1872, and other collections.
3. God, of all the Strength and Stay. By W. J. Copeland, in his Hys. for the Week, &c., 1848: the Salisbury H. Bk., 1857, &c.
4. O Thou, true Life of all that live. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 12: and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 8. It was repeated, with alterations, in Murray's Hymnal, 1853; and, again, in later collections, usually without any change.
5. O God, creation's secret Force. By J. M. Neale, in the Hymnal N., 1852, No. 7, and later editions of the same.
6. O God, of all the Strength and Stay. By J. D. Chambers, in his Psalter, &c., 1852, p. 144, and his Lauds Sync, 1857, p. 39. This is the most popular of the trs. of this hymn, and is found in several hymn-books, including the Parish H. Bk., 1863; People's H., 1867; Sarum, 1868; Thring's Coll., 1882, &c.
7. O God, of all the Strength and Power. This tr. was given in H. A. & M., 1861. In the Index of the revised ed. 1875, it is said to be by "Rev. J. M. Neale, D.D., and compilers: from the Latin." The rendering, however, is much nearer those of Caswall and Chambers than that of Neale. It is in a limited number of hymn-books.
8. O Strength and Stay, upholding all creation. This popular tr. appeared in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, and is by J. Ellerton and F. J. A. Hort. It is repeated in several collections. In H. A. & M., 1875, and Thring's Coll., 1882, it is given with the addition of a doxology, by Mr. Ellerton. This tr. bids fair to supersede that by Mr. Chambers in popularity. Its metre is greatly in its favour. It is in Mr. Ellerton's Hymns, 1888.
9. O God, the Light of all that live. This centō, in J. A. Johnston's English Hyl., 1856, and the American Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865, is thus composed : sts. i., ii., Caswall; st. iii., Cord. Newman.

Translations not in C. U. :—

1. O God, the Keeper of things. Primer, 1706.
2. Supreme God, all-ruling Power. Hy. H. Mont., 1737.
3. Thou God of Strength and Stay. J. Doddridge's Hymnorium Anglicanum, 1744.
4. Great God, o'er all things ever reigning. Hy. J. Williams, 1816.
5. Strength of the everlasting hills. R. Campbell, 1862.
6. Thou God of all, enamored and strong. W. J. Hoss, 1869-85.
7. God of heaven and earth, Whose Might. H. Bonar, Hys. of Faith and Hope, 1861.
8. O God, th' enduring Might of things. J. Keble, Miscell. Poems, 1869.
9. Creator, whose almighty power. J. Wallace, 1874.

[J. J.]

Rest from thy labour, rest. J. Montgomery. [Death and Burial of a Minister.] Montgomery was received into the Moravian communion as a member of that Society by the Rev. Christian Ramftler. Mr. Ramftler died at Bristol on Oct. 25, 1832. In the letter which conveyed to him the sad intelligence, Montgomery was requested to write a suitable hymn for the approaching Lovefeast at Bristol. The response was this hymn, which was first sung in public at Bristol (Memoirs, v. 66). It was included in Montgomery's Original Hys., 1853, No. 307, in 2 st. of 4 l., and headed "On the death of a Minister." On Jan. 22, 1851, Montgomery wrote a hymn on the death of the Rev. Dr. Sutton, Vicar of Sheffield, which began with the same opening stanza. This hymn is not in the Original Hys., nor in C. U. The original is in a large number of hymn-books. In 1849 st. iii.-v. were given in Dr. Alexander's Augustine H. Bk., No. 494, and have been repeated in several later collections as "Lord Christ, into Thy hands." The early date of this centō suggests that the hymn was published before it appeared in the Original Hys., 1853, and possibly in a magazine, but it has not been traced to any work of the kind. [J. J.]

Rest in the Lord; from harps above. Bp. E. H. Bickersteth. [Holy Matrimony.] Bp. Bickersteth says in his Notes to his H. Comp., 1870, that "This hymn was written by the Editor for this hymnal, and is especially designed to follow the air from Mendelssohn's Elijah, 'Rest in the Lord,' which is so often played at the solemnization of holy matrimony." In addition to the H. Comp. this hymn appeared in Bp. Bickersteth's The Two Brothers, &c., 1871, p. 242, and in several hymn-books. [J. J.]

Rest, weary heart (soul): The penalty is borne, the ransom paid. Jane Borthwick. [Passiontide.] Pub. in her Thoughts for Thoughtful Hours, 1850, p. 33, in 4 st. of 7 l. It has passed into several collections, and sometimes as "Rest weary soul: The penalty," &c. It is a beautiful hymn, but better adapted for private devotion than for public worship. [J. J.]

Restore, O Father, to our times restore. Maria Popple. [Christian Unity desired.] Contributed to Beard's Unitarian Coll. of Hys., 1837, No. 304, in 2 st. of 4 l., and entitled "Christian Unity." It is signed "Miriam." It has passed into a few collections in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

Retire, vain world, awhile retire. [Home Musicus.] This is found in the 1825-1829 ed. of the American (Old Presbyterian) Ps. & Hys. . . . of the Presb. Church, in 7 st. of 4 l., and again in later collections. In most cases it is attributed to I. Watts, but we have failed to trace it to any of his works. Two centos therefrom are also in C. U., both beginning with st. ii., "Blest Jesus, come Thou gently down." The first is in the Presby. Ps. & Hys. for the Worship of God, Richmond, U. S. A., 1867, composed of st. ii., iv.-vi.; and the second, in Hatfield's Church H. Bk., N. Y., 1872, composed of st. ii., iii., vi., vii. It is usually given for Revival Services and Prayer Meetings. [J. J.]

Return, O wanderer, return. W. B. Collyer. [Call to Repentance.] Appeared in the Evangelical Magazine, May 1806, and in his Hymns, &c., 1812, No. 928, in 6 st. of 4 l., and headed "The Backslider." It is in use in its original form: as "Return, my wandering soul, return And seek an injured," &c., in the Philadelphia Bap. H. & Tune Bk., 1871; and as "Wanderer from God, return, return," in a few of the American collections. [J. J.]

Reunner, Adam. [Reisner, A.]

Reunner, Christoph, was a bookseller and bookbinder in Stockholm, and was probably born there, but date of birth is unknown. In 1675 he printed, and seems also to have edited, a collection of hymns for the German congregation at Stockholm, entitled Christliche Haus- und Kirchen-Andacht, zu Dienst der Gemeine der Teutschen Kirche in Stockholm. This work contains a number of hymns signed "R.," which have been ascribed to Reunner. By others this "R." has been taken to mean Regina, i.e. the Queen of Sweden (Ulrike Eleonore, dau. of King Frederick III. of Denmark, b. at Copenhagen, Sept. 11, 1656; became Queen of Sweden by her marriage with Charles XI. in 1680; d. at Carlberg, July 26, 1693), but this ascription seems quite impossible. One of these hymns has passed into English, viz. :—

Ro ich allein ein Fremdling auf der Reise. Cross and Consolation. 1st pub. 1675 as above. A copy of this work is in the Royal Library at Stockholm, and Dr. O. E. Klemming, the librarian, has kindly informed me that the hymns therein signed "R." are all by one hand. He adds that in the ed. of 1693 it has 18 (or 20, viz., all being additional), and that in the Geistliches Handbuch, Stockholm, Wankijf, 1694, it has 17 (21-IV., being additional). As the German hymnbooks of Stockholm frequently borrow hymns from each other, e.g. the Frankfort ed., 1698, of Colgen's Fremde, No. 627, has the 13 st. of 1675; while the Rips G. B., 1860 (Andachts-Stunde), the 17 st. of 1693, and so in Freylinghausen's Neues Geistreiches G. B., 1714, the 18 st. of 1693, and in the Herrnhut G. B., 1778, the 20 st. of 1693, we retain it in C. U. No. 2.

Am I a stranger here, on earth alone. In full from Sonnets, by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Germ., 1st Ser., 1864, p. 57. In her C. & Ps. England, 1865, No. 45, the trs. of st. v., vi., viii., x. are omitted, and it is given abroad in metre as "Am I on earth a lone and friendless stranger." [J. M.]

Revive Thy work, O Lord, Thy mighty arm make bare. A. Midlane. [Home Missions.] 1st pub. in the British Messenger, Oct. 1836, again in the Evangelical H. Bk., 1860, and again in a large number of hymnals in G. Britain and America. The original text is usually given with the change of st. v. l. 2, "Give pentecostal showers," to "And give refreshing showers," as in the H. Comp., No. 150. It is one of the most popular of Mr. Midlane's hymns. [J. J.]

Rex aeterne Domine. [Eastertide.] This hymn is certainly ancient, being mentioned in the Rule of Aurelianus of Arles (d. 555), and by the Venerable Bede (d. 735) in his De arte metrica. It is found in a ms. c. 700, in the British Museum (Vesp. A. i. f. 133); in a ms. c. 800, in the Bodleian (Junius 25 f. 116 b); in an 11th cent. Monastic Breviary, in the British Museum (Add. 30848 f. 121 b); in a ms. of the 8th cent. at St. Gall, No. 2; and in the Lat. Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Church (Surtees Society), 1851 is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32 f. 9 b).

The original text has 16 stanzas and a doxology. This form is in Daniel, i., No. 80 (for metrical reasons but without any authority Daniel reads, O Rex aeterne); Wackernagel, i., No. 84; the Hymnarium Sarisb., 1852, p. 95; and in C. M. Inverts Hymnarium Moissiacense, 1888, p. 39. Parts of it, with the text of the Hymnarium Sarisburg. (s.l. Venice, 1571), st. i.–vii., were given as a hymn for Matins on Low Sunday. At the revision of 1556 it was altered to Rex sempiterne Domine, and at the revision of 1632 to Rex sempiterne coelitus. The text of 1632 is in Mant and D'Oyly's Book of Common Prayer, Oxford, "i.e. during Eastertide), is in recent edn. of the revised Roman Brev.; in Daniel, i., No. 81; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. [J. M.]

This hymn has been tr. as follows:—

i. Rex aeterne Domine. Of the full text there is one tr., that by J. D. Chambers in his Psalter, &c., 1852, p. 90, "O king Eternal, Lord of grace," and in his Lauds Syon, 1857, altered to, "Eternal Monarch, Lord of all."

ii. Rex sempiterne coelitus. This Roman Breviary text in 6 st. has been tr. thus:—

1. O Thou, the heaven's eternal King. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 95; and his Hym. and Poems, 1873, p. 54. In a full or in an abbreviated form it has passed into several hymnals.

2. O Christ, the heaven's eternal King. By the Compilers of H. A. & M., 1861, "based on former translations." It was repeated in Kennedy, 1863.

3. Eternal King of heaven, Whose word. By C. Moultrie, in his Hym. and Lyrics, 1867, p. 125; and thence into the People's H., 1867.

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. Eternal King, whose equal Reign. Primer, 1706.
2. Thou, Whom their Maker heaven and earth. Bp. R. Mant, 1837.
3. O! heaven's high host, eternal Lord. W. J. Copeland, 1848.
4. Eternal King of all the spheres. J. Wallace, 1874.

iii. Qui pastor aeternus gregem. This, beginning with st. v. of the Roman Brev. text, is tr. by W. J. Blew, in his Church H. and Tune Bk., 1852-5, as "Shepherd of life, Who dost Thy flock."

[J. J.]

Rex angelorum praepotens. [Praesentibile.] This is found in a ms. of the 11th cent. in the British Museum (Harl. 2961 f. 239). Daniel, i., No. 224, gives st. i. only as a hymn "on the Invention or Exaltation of the Cross." Tr. as:—

O King of Angels! Lord of power. By J. D. Chambers, in his Psalter, &c., 1852, p. 83, and altered to "O King, by angel-hosts obeyed," in his Lauds Syon, 1857, p. 147, in 5 st. of 4 l. In the Parish H. Bk., 1863 and 1875, and in Chope's Hymnal, 1864, it is given, with alterations and the omission of st. ii., as "O King of angels, Lord of grace."

[J. M.]

Rex Christe, factor omnium. St. Gregory the Great. [Translatitia.] This is one of the eight hymns accepted in the Benedictine ed. of Gregory's Opera (Paris, 1705, vol. iii. col. 879), as his genuine productions. It is found in a ms. of the 11th cent. in the British Museum (Harl. 2961 f. 240); in a ms. of the 12th cent. in the Bodleian (Liturg. Misc. 297 f. 309); in three mss. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall (Nos. 387, 113, 214), and others. In mediaeval times it was often used at the Tenebrae service on Good Friday, but does not seem to have been received into the more important Breviaries. It long survived in its original form in the Lutheran Church, and is e.g. in the Dresden G. B., 1748, p. 991, as one of "Certain Latin hymns as they are sung from time to time at week-day sermons in the Holy Cross Church, at the beginning of Divine service." The text is found in Daniel, i., No. 151; Rambs, No. 58; Königsfeld, i. p. 72, and others. Tr. as:—

O Christ! our King. Creator. Lord. By Ray Palmer, in the Andover Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, No. 336.

Other trs. are:—

1. O Christ our King, Who all hast made. W. J. Copeland, 1848.
2. O Christ our King, by Whom were framed. J. A. Chambers, 1852 and 1857.
3. Thou King anointed, at Whose word. Rev. James Ingalis, S. York, 1849, in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869.
4. O Thou by Whom the worlds were made. P. S. Worgan. [J. M.]

Rex gloriose martyrum. [Common of Martyrs.] Probably of the 6th cent. Included in the Bern ms. 452 of the 10th cent.; in a ms. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (291, p. 272); and in four mss. of the 11th cent. in the British Museum (Vesp. D. xii. f. 106; Jul. A. vi. f. 64 b; Harl. 2961 f. 248; Add. 30851 f. 132 b); and in the Lat. Hym. of the Anglo-Saxon Church, 1851, is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32 f. 38 b). Also in an 11th cent. ms. at St. Gall, No. 414; and in the Roman, Sarum, York, Aberdeen, and other Breviaries. The printed text is also in Mone, No. 732; Daniel, i., No. 237, and iv. p. 120; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865; G. M. Dreves's Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, from a 10th cent. ms., &c.

[J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. O Thou, the Martyr's glorious King Of Conquerors, &c. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 214; and his Hym. and Poems, 1873, p. 113. In a few collections only.

2. Glorious King of martyrs. By T. I. Ball, in the 1860 Appendix to the Hymnal N.

3. O glorious King of martyr hosts. By R. F. Littledale, in the People's H., 1867, under the signature of "R. T."; and, again, in the Hymner, 1882.

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. O King of Martirs glorious. Primer, 1604.
2. O Thou the Martyrs glorious King. The Crowne, &c. Primer, 1618.
3. The Bright King of Martyrs and the Crown. Primer, 1706.
4. O Christ, thy Martyrs' glorious King. Primer, 1706.
5. Glorious King of martyrs Thou. R. Campbell, 1850.
6. O glorious King of martyrs. W. J. Hfew, 1852-55.
7. All glorious King of martyrs Thou. J. D. Chambers 1854.
8. Jesus, the glorious martyrs' King. J. Wallace, 1874.

[J. J.]

Rex omnipotens die hodierna. Hermannus Contractus (?). [Ascension.] This is found in a ms. in the Bodleian (Bodl. 775 f. 145), written c. 1000, as a Sequence "on the Ascension of the Lord," and in another ms., in the same Library, of circa 1070 (Douce, 222, f. 101); in a Winchester book of the 11th cent. now in Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (No. 473); in a ms. of the 11th cent. (Harl. 2961 f. 254), and another of the 11th or 12th cent. (Reg. 8 C. xiii. f. 22), both in the British Museum, &c. Among Missals it is found in an early 14th cent. Paris and a 14th cent. Sens in the British Museum; in a Sarum, c. 1370, a Hereford, c. 1370, and a York, c. 1390, all now in the Bodleian; in the St. Andrew's, and various French Missals, its use being uniformly for the Ascension. The printed text is also in Neale's Separation, 1832, p. 58; Daniel, v. p. 66, and Kehrein, No. 116 (see also p. 267, 5.). Tr. as:—

1. Lord of all power and might. Mankind redeemed, &c. By C. S. Calverley, in the 1871 ed. of the Hymnary, No. 264, and in his Literary Remains, 1885.

2. The Lord of power and might ascends. By R. M. Pennyman, made fr. and pri. in the Hymnary, 1872, No. 265, in the place of the above No. 1.

3. The almighty King victorious, on this day. By C. B. Pearson, in the Sarum Missal in English, 1868, and his Sequences from the Sarum Missal, 1871.

[J. M.]

Rhodes, Benjamin, b. at Mexborough, Yorkshire, in 1745, was brought under the influence of religion by the preaching of George Whitefield in 1760. He was the son of a schoolmaster, and received the elements of a good education in his youth. He was for many years a Wesleyan Minister, having been sent forth to preach by John Wesley. He d. at Margate Oct. 13, 1815. To Joseph Benson's Hys. for Children and Young Persons, 1806, and his Hymns for Children selected chiefly from the publications of Rev. John and Charles Wesley, and Dr. Watts, &c., 1814 (an additional volume to the first, and sometimes bound up with it), he contributed several hymns. Very few of these are now in C. U. They include "Children, your parents' will obey" (Duty towards Parents), "Come, let us join our God to praise" (Praise), and "Thou shalt not steal thy neighbour's right" (Against Stealing.) His best known hymn is "My heart and voice I raise" (The Kingdom of Christ). It appeared as st. i. of his poem Messiah, 1787, pt. ii. being "Jerusalem divine." Each part is in use as a separate hymn.

[J. J.]

Rhys, Morgan, a famous Welsh hymnwriter of the last century. He published several collections of hymns under quaint titles. Gobeg o ben Nebo ar athof yr Addaraid (A View of the land of promise from the top of Mt. Nebo). Trysgl Tabrydol (The Spiritual Warfare). Gradd'ausau y Credadyn, &c. (The Groanings of the Believer). He d. in 1776, and was buried at Llanfynydd Church, in Carmarthenshire. [W. G. T.]

Richards, George, born near Newport, Rhode Island, circa 1715. For some years he was Purser and Chaplain in the United States Navy, and also taught a school in Boston. In 1780 he became an Universalist preacher, ministered at Portsmouth, New Haven, 1793–1805, and from 1805 in Philadelphia, where, his mind having given way under trouble, he d. by his own hand, March 16, 1816. With S. Lane he edited the Universalist Hymn Book, pub. at Boston, 1792. This was one of the earliest collections of that body. It contained 49 of Richards's hymns. In 1801 he pub. A Coll. of Hys., Dover, New Hampshire, which contained 6 additional hymns by himself, and in 1806, also at Dover, a second ed. of the same, greatly enlarged, with another 26 hymns. Of these the following are in C. U. at the present time:—

1. O Christ, what gracious words. The Gospel Message. This hymn appeared in the Boston Coll., 1792, and is the best of the early Universalist hymns. In the Andover Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, it is given as "Saviour, what gracious words." In this form and also in the original, it is found in several collections.

2. Long as the darkening cloud abode. Easter. This hymn in modern collections, as the Songs of the Sanctuary, 1865, No. 687, is composed thus: st. i. and ii., ll. 1–4, are from Richards, and the rest of the hymn, 3 st. of 8 l. in all, is anonymous.

Additional hymns by Richards, from both the Boston and the Dover collections, are in modern Universalist hymn-books. [F. M. B.]

Richardson, James, a of the Hon. James Richardson, of Dedham, Massachusetts, was b. in that town May 25, 1817, and graduated at Harvard College, 1837. After being engaged, first as a clerk of the county courts, and then in teaching, he entered the Divinity School at Cambridge, where he graduated in theology in 1845. Subsequently he was Unitarian Pastor at Southington, Connecticut, and then of the Unitarian Society in Haverhill, Massachusetts. Ill-health compelled him to retire from his pastoral work to Dedham. During the war he joined himself to the hospitals at Washington, where he d. Nov. 10, 1863. Mr. Richardson was well known as an Essayist, Poet, and Preacher. Two of his hymns, from Longfellow and Johnson's Book of Hys., 1848, are still in C. U.: "From Zion's lofty hill there rose" (Cross in Christ), and "How glad the tone when summer's sun" (Summer). We are indebted to Putnam's Singers and Songs of the Liberal Faith, Boston, U. S. A., 1875, for these details.

[J. J.]

Richter, Anne, née Rigby, was the third daughter of the Rev. Robert Rigby, Vicar of St. Mary's, Beverley, Yorkshire, from 1791 to 1823, and married the Rev. W. H. Richter, sometime Chaplain of the County Gaol at Kirton Lindsey, Lincolnshire, and then Rector of St. Paul's, Lincoln. Mrs. Richter d. at 23 Minster Yard, Lincoln, in 1857. She contributed to various magazines, and pub. The Nun and Other Poems, Hull, 1841. Her intimate literary acquaintance included Mrs. Hemans. Mrs. Richter was descended from the celebrated John Bradshaw, whose name is the first in the list of the signatures on the death warrant of Charles I. Her hymn, "We have not seen Thy footsteps tread," in its altered form as "We saw Thee not when Thou didst come," is widely used in G. Britain and America.

[J. J.]

Richter, Christian Friedrich, s. of Sigismund Richter, Rath and Chancellor to Count von Promnitz at Sorau, in Brandenburg, was born at Sorau, Oct. 5, 1676. At the University of Halle he was first a student of medicine and then of theology. In 1698, A. H. Francke appointed him Inspector of the Pecklagogium, and then made him, in 1699, physician in general to all his Institutions. In company with his younger brother, Dr. Christian Sigismund Richter, he made many chemical experiments, for which he prepared himself by special prayer; and invented many compounds which came into extensive use under the name of the "Halle Medicines," the most famous being the Essentia dulcis, which was a preparation of gold. He d. at Halle, Oct. 5, 1711 (Koch, iv. 334, &c.).

960 RICHTER, CHRISTIAN F. RICHTER, GREGORIUS

Richter was one of the most important hymn-writers among the Pietists of the earlier Halle school; and his hymns possess the defects as well as the excellences of the class. The defects are chiefly connected with the use of the spiritual union with Christ as the Bridegroom of the soul, with a minuteness that is hardly reverent (e.g. No. xi. below). They are also frequently not clearly thought out, and consequently somewhat obscure. Their merits are their deep devotional spirit, which can lead to tones not very devotional in character. Apart from these defects there are various of his hymns worthy of note for their genuine, fervent piety, their childlike spirit of love to God, and the depth of Christian experience which they express. They were published chiefly in the various Pietistic hymn-books of the period, especially in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704 and 1714, and were collected and appended (as his Geistliche Lieder) to an essay edited by his brother (named above) and pub. at Halle, in 1719, as Erbauliche Betrachtungen vom Ursprung und Ende der Seelen.

Two of Richter's hymns are noted separately —see p. 584, i. and p. 931, i. The others which have passed into English are :—

i. Gott den ich als Liebe kenne. For the Sick. Included in Freylinghausen's Neues geistreiches G. B., 1714, No. 647, in 7 st. of 8 l.; repeated, 1718, as above, p. 420, entitled, "Hymn in Sickness." According to Ehmann, in his ed. of Gotthold Arnold, 1856, p. xii. (see p. 81, ii.), it had previously appeared in Arnold's Holsteiner Bath und Unterricht für Kranke und Sterbende, 2nd ed., 1709. It is in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 603. Tr. as :—

God! whom I so love have known. A full and very good tr. by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Germ., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 226. Repeated, abridged, in L. Schiele's Church of Sto, 1860, p. 53. A canto, in 3 st. of 4 l., taken from st. v., vi., iii. and beginning, "Let my soul beneath her load," is No. 398, in the Unitarian Hym. of the Spirit, Boston, U. S. A., 1864.

Another tr. is :—O God, Whose attributes shine forth in turn." By Miss Cox, 1864, p. 181.

ii. Meine Armuth macht mich schreien. Supplication, or Longing for Christ. In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 602, in 7 st. of 6 l. Repeated, 1718, as above, p. 381, and in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 702. Tr. as :—

Take Him my spirit crieth. A good tr., of st. i., ii., vi., by A. T. Russell, in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

iii. Stilles Lamm und Friedefürst. Sanctification. A hymn on the Following of Christ the Lamb of God, and founded on Rev. xiv. 4. In Freylinghausen's Neues geistreiches G. B., 1714, No. 423, in 8 st. of 5 l. Repeated in 1718, as above, p. 364, entitled, "On the name Agneta, which may be derived from Agnus, which in German is called a Lamb." In Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 922. Tr. as :—

Thou Lamb of God, Thou Prince of Peace. A free tr., omitting st. iii., vii., by J. Wesley, in his Ps. & Hys., Charlestown, 1736-7, p. 51, and Hys. & Sac. Poems, 1739 (P. Works, 1868-72, i. p. 129). Included in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 329 (1875, No. 338), and recently in the Meth. N. Conn. H. Bk., 1865, Mercer's C. P. & H. Bk., 1857 and 1864, Holy Song, 1869, the Amer. Meth. Epis. H. Bk., 1849, and others.

Another tr. is :—"Holy Lamb and Prince of Peace." By J. Gambold, as No. 98 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1742 (1886, No. 446).

Eight others of his hymns have been tr. into English, viz :—

iv. Die sanfte Bewegung, die lieblichs Kraft. Whitsuntide. In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 89, in 9 st.; and in 1718 as above, p. 85, entitled, "Of the Life in the Holy Ghost." Tr. as :—"This Impulse so gentle, this Movement so sweet," as No. 351, in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

v. Ich gläube, wer Christum inwendigen habe. The Life of Faith. In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 551, in 7 st. ; and in 1718 as above, p. 390, entitled, "On the hidden life of believers." Repeated in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 619. It is Richter's finest hymn, and was Cantz Koch, viii. 249) a great favorite with Dr. F. Arndt, its character. It is founded on 1 Jn. iii. 6, and delineates the life of which the true child of God should be described from Richter's own experience. The tr. are : (1) "The Christian's Life in—as it displays the height of grace." As No. 351, in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754. (2) "All Christian true children of the light." By Mrs. Bevan, 1858, p. 24.

vi. Ehter! wird die Nacht der Sünden. Morning. A fine hymn, for use especially in Advent, and founded on Isaiah xxi. 11. In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 108, in 9 st.; 1718, as above, p. 401, and in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 1. Tr. as :—"Watchman! tell us of the night" By R. J. Buchell, 1845, p. 45. (2) "O Watchman, tell the night of sin." By Miss Winkworth, 1855, p. 1. Repeated in Miss Warner's Hym. of the Ch. Militant, 1858, the Gilman-Schaff Lib. of Rel. Poetry, 1878, &c.

vii. Jesu, gib mir deine Fülle. Supplication. A prayer to Christ as the Great Physician. In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 66, in 8 st. vii. being entitled "Answer." In 1718, as above, p. 404, entitled, "Of the Fulness of Christ." In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 268. Tr. as :—Jesu grant Thou me Thy Fulness," In the Suppl. to Ger. Psalmody, ed. 1765, p. 47.

viii. Jesus ist das schönste Licht. Love to Christ. On St. John xii. 36. In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 553, in 7 st. ; and in 1718, as above, p. 391, entitled, "On Desire towards God and Christ." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 320. Tr. as :—" Jesus is my light most fair," as No. 625, in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754 (1886, No. 434).

ix. Ich bin ein Kind des Todes, Sündlichen Begiers. Peace in believing. A fine hymn, founded on St. John i. 14. In Freylinghausen's Neues geistreiches G. B., 1714, No. 313, in 11 st. In 1718, as above, p. 416; and in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 434. Tr. as :—(1) "My Sakement of sin and death." By Miss Winkworth, 1855, p. 227. (2) "I the Moravian H. Bk.," 1754. In 1789, altered to "Jesus my King, Thy kind and gracious mercies" (1886, No. 304). (3) "Jesus, my King! Thy mild and kind control." By Dr. Bonnberger, on behalf of Klockenfromm, 1848, p. 337.

x. Ich liebe meinen Himmelskönig. Christ's Love to the Soul. In Freylinghausen's Neues geistreiches G. B., 1714, No. 54, in 9 st. and in 1718, as above, p. 414, entitled, "On the Incarnation of the Son of God. In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 82. Tr. as :—"Oh! love that did the heavens rend asunder." By Miss Bevington, 1858, p. 1.

xi. Ich will dich lieben, meine Stärke. Love to Christ. Founded on Hosea ii. 19, 20, and Eph. v. 25. In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 512, in 10 st. ; and in 1718, as above, p. 396, entitled, "On the high dignity of believers." In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 1. The tr. in Cox's Cantz Koch, viii. 287) originated by a dream Richter had about 1700, that in the by-gone at Halle he would find a truly Christ-like soul. After searching all the wards he found an old neglected patient in a garret, with whom he conversed and prayed. On awaking from his dream he was writing, inspired by her relations of her inner experience, he embodied her thoughts in this fine hymn. Tr. as :—"O what joy for them is stored." By Mrs. Bevan, 1858, p. 88. (J. M.)

Richter, Gregorius, s. of Gregorius Richter, then diaconus at Görlitz, was b. at Görlitz, March 4, 1608. He studied at the University of Leipzig, became in 1629 fourth master in the gymnasium at Görlitz, was ordained as diaconus there in 1634, and d. at Görlitz, Sept. 5, 1633 (K. G. Dietmann's Priesterschaft in den . . . Oberlausitz, 1777, p. 261 ; Blätter für Hymnologie, 1887, p. 71, &c.). The latter dating his death Sept. 4). Two hymns have been ascribed to him, one of which has passed into English, viz. :—

Sieh doch, Seele, sieh doch stille. Confirmation. This is a hymn on self examination and renunciation of the world, and is founded on 1 John ii. 15-17. It appeared in B. Wilke's Geistl. Andachten, Strelitz,

RICKARDS, SAMUEL RINGWALDT, BARTHOLOMÄUS 961

1640, p. 543, in 16 st., entitled "To the soul that longs after the world," and is signed Gregorius Richter. It has sometimes been ascribed to the father (b. at Görlitz, Feb. 1, 1595, pastor primarius there, 1626, and d. there Aug. 14, 1654. See also Dietmann, p. 174, and G. F. Otto's Lausitzisches Magazin, Görlitz, 1800, p. 257, &c.), but is more probably by the son. In many hymnbooks, as in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 343, st. iv. is omitted. The tr. in C. U. is :—

Now from earth retire, my heart. A good tr. of st. i., iv.-vi., by A. T. Russell, in his Ps. & Hys., 1851. (J. M.)

Rickards, Samuel, s. of Thomas Rickards, was b. in 1796, and educated at Oriel College, Oxford, B.A. 1817, M.A. 1820. He was the Newdigate Prizeman in 1815, and took second class Classical Honours in 1817. From 1819 to 1823 he was a Fellow of his College, and contemporary with Keble, Newman, and other men of note. He was Curate of Ulcombe in 1825, and became Rector of Stowlangtoft, Ely, in 1832, and d. Aug. 24, 1865. His published works included The Christian Householder, or Book of Family Prayers ; A Parish Penny-Book ; Short Sermons, &c. His Hys. for Private Devotion for the Sundays and Saints' Days throughout the Year, were pub. in 1823 (Lond. Hatchards). Very few of these hymns have come into C.U. That for Christmas Day, "Though rude winds usher thee, sweet day," has supplied two centos, one beginning with st. i. and the second with st. iii., "Bright is the day when Christ was born." Another hym. For Holiness, "O God, from Whom alone proceeds," in No. 1178 in Kennedy, 1863. [J. J.]

Ride on, ride on in majesty. H. H. Milman. (Palm Sunday.) Pub. in Bp. Heber's posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 58, in 5 st. of 4 l., and again in Milman's Sel. of Ps. & Hys., 1837, No. 1, for Palm Sunday. The opening stanza, which reads :—

> Ride on ! ride on in majesty!
> Hark! all the tribes Hosanna cry!
> Thine humble beast pursues his road,
> With palms and scatter'd garments strew'd."

has failed to be acceptable to most editors. Murray, in his Hymnal, 1852, endeavoured to soften down the third line by making it read :—

> "O Saviour meek, pursue Thy road."

This was adopted by H. A. & M., and others. In 1855 Mercer tried another change :—

> "With joyous throngs pursue Thy road," but this has received but little attention. Several hymnals follow the example of Elliott's Ps. & Hys., 1835, and omit st. i. Others include the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871. Original text in Book of Praise, 1862-67. This hymn ranks with the best of the author's lyrics, and is the most popular hymn for Palm Sunday in the English language. [J. J.]

Ringwaldt, Bartholomäus (Ringwald, Ringwaldi), was b. Nov. 28, 1532, at Frankfurt a. Oder. He was ordained in 1557, and was pastor of two parishes before he settled in 1566 as pastor of Langfeld (or Langenfeld), near Sonnenburg, Brandenburg. He was still there in 1597, but seems to have d. there in 1599, or at least not later than 1600. (Koch, ii. 182; Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. ii. 1886, p. 512 ; Blätter für Hymnologie, 1885, p. 109, &c.)

Ringwaldt exercised a considerable influence on his contemporaries as a poet of the people, as well as by the hymns properly so called. He was a true German patriot, a staunch Lutheran, and a man who was quite ready to face the consequences of his plain speaking. His style is as a rule clear and good, though his rhymes are often enough halting ; and he possessed considerable powers of observation and description. After 1577 he was much occupied with his pen. His works include (1) Newenteilige, da Etwas, Trewmann und nicht unser der Bilden wand den Himel brackt, Ainberg, 1605, and the later eds. enlarged and rewritten as Christliche Warnung der Frommen Bekarin, &c., Frankfurt a. Oder, 1577, a poem of considerable length, which went through at least 34 editions up to 1708. This work is a mirror of the times and of the morals of the people. (2) Das Lauter Warheit, &c., Eisleben, 1585, and other eds. (3) Von Wahrheit und Gottlicher Zeugknuss in sixteen sermons, Frankfurt a. Oder, 1585, and other eds. which had at least 18 eds. appeared up to 1708. In its prose finely pictures of the life of the various ranks and orders of his time, and shows the temptations and failings of each, not by any means sparing his own class, i.e. the Lutheran clergy.

As a hymn-writer Ringwaldt was also of considerable importance. He was one of the most prolific hymn-writers of the 16th cent. Wackernagel, iv. pp. 906-1055, gives 208 pieces under his name, about 163 of which may be called hymns. A selection of 59 as his Geistliche Lieder, with a memoir by H. Wendeburg, was pub. at Halle in 1858. A number appeared in the various eds. of his Trewer Eckart and Lauter Warheit as above. The rest appeared principally in his

(1) Der 91. Psalm wahre Alten andern schönen Liedern, &c., Frankfurt a. Oder, 1577. (2) Evangelia, Auff alle Sontag wand Fest, Darzu gantze Lehr, &c., Frankfurt a. Oder, n.d. The earliest ed. now known is undated, but Wackernagel, v. p. 1, assigns it to 1580. It is marked as a 2nd ed., and has a preface dated Nov. 28, 1581. It contains hymns founded on the Gospels for Sundays and Festivals, &c. (3) Himmlische, geistliche Lieder und Gebetlein, Auff der Reise, &c., Frankfurt a. Oder, 1582, and other eds. (4) Summarien, 1583, which has hymns passed into German collections of the 16th and 17th cents., and a number are still in German C. U.

Three of Ringwaldt's hymns which have passed into English are :—

i. Es ist gewisslich an der Zeit. Second Advent. The anonymous original of this hymn is one of Zwey schöne Lieder, printed separately circa 1565, and thence in Wackernagel, iv. p. 344. W. von Maltzahn, in his Bücherschatz, 1875, No. 616, p. 93, cites it as in an undated Nürnberg broadsheet, circa 1550. Wackernagel also gives along with the original the revised form in Ringwaldt's Handbüchlin, 1586. Both forms are also in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 746, in 7 st. of 7 l. It is based on the "Dies Irae," but can hardly be called a version of it. The original has a picturesqueness and force which are greatly lost in Ringwaldt's revision. It was much used in Germany during the Thirty Years' War, when in these distressful times men often thought the Last Day was at hand. The trs. are all, except No. 2, from Ringwaldt's text. They are :—

1. 'Tis sure that awful time will come. In full, by J. C. Jacobi, in his Pod. Germanicus, 1722, p. 95 (1753, p. 202). Repeated, altered and abridged, in the Moravian H. Bk., 1754 to 1886. It is also found in two centos.

(1) The waking trumpets all shall hear (st. ii.), in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825.

(2) When all with awe shall stand around (st. v.), from the Moravian H. Bk., 1801, in the Pennsylvania Luth. Ch. Bk., 1868.

2. Most surely at th' appointed time. By A. T. Russell, as No. 38 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851, repeated in the College Hyl., N. Y., 1876. It is marked as tr. from the "Dies Irae," but is really a good tr. of st. i., ii., v. of the German of 1565.

3. Behold that awful day draws nigh. A tr. of st. i., ii., v., by W. Sayden, as No. 129 in the Methodist Sabbath H. Bk., 1870.

4. The day is surely drawing near. In full by P. A., Peter as No. 457 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880.

5. Surely at the appointed time. By H. L. Hastings, made in 1878, and included as No. 722 in his Songs of Pilgrimage, 1886. It contains iii., iv. as iii.

6. The time draws near with quickening pace. By Miss Fry, in her Hyn. of the Reformation, 1845, p. 56.

A hymn which has been frequently but erroneously called a tr. from Ringwaldt's text, is noted as "Great God, what do I see and hear" (p. 414, i.).

Hymns not in English C. U.

i. Allein auf Gott setzt dein Vertrauen. The Christian Life. A hymn of the 16th century, which has been ascribed to Rinkart on internal evidence, but is not found in any of his works now known. Wackernagel, iv. p. 737, gives it as anonymous from the Greifswald G. B., 1597, where it is entitled "The golden A. B. C. wherein is very ingeniously comprised what a man needs to know in order to lead an honourable and godly life." It is in 24 st. of 4 l., the initial letters of which spell out the A. B. C. alphabet. Also in Freis's G. B., ed. 1645, No. 754. Bilsander, ii. p. 324, cites it as in the ms. collection of a nun called Catherine Tira, written in 1580, in the nunnery of Nieuing, Münster. There it is in Low German, and begins "Alleen op God stelt dyn betrouwen." Bilsander thinks Ringwaldt may possibly be the person who made the High German version. Tr. as (1) "Alone to God put then thy trust." By J. C. Jacobi, 1720, p. 29 (1722, p. 41).

ii. Herr ist mein getreuer Hirt, Hilft mich in seiner Hütte. Ps. xxiii. Wachsmuth, iv. p. 364, prints it from Ringwaldt's Evangelia, n.d., 1582 as above, in 7 st. of 7 l. The first four lines of st. i. are taken from the older version, "Der Herre ist mein treuer Hirt." In the Geistliche Kirchenordnung, 1586, it is in 8 st. of 7 l. (1.) "The Lord He is my Shepherd kind." By Miss Winkworth, 1863, p. 56.

Ihr, Herr Jesu Christ, die höchsten Gut. Da Brunngall der Gnaden. Lent. One of the finest of German (exclusive of Latin) hymns for Lent. In 8 st. of 8 l., in Ringwaldt's Christliche Warnung, 1588, where it is entitled "A fine hymn [of supplication] for the forgiveness of sins." In Bunyi's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 1374. The tr. are (1) "Lord Saviour Christ, Who highest good." By J. C. Jacobi, 1720, p. 29 (1722, p. 42). (2) "Lord Jesus Christ, my soul's delight, good," as No. 226 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1754. In the ed. of 1805, No. 378, it begins "Jesus, thou source of every good." (3) "O Christ, thou highest good." By Miss Cox, 1841, p. 65. (4) "Lord Jesus Christ, thou highest good." By F. W. Young, in the Family Treasury, 1871, p. 253. [J. M.]

Rinkart, Martin, a. of Georg Rinkart or Rinckart, cooper at Eilenburg on the Mulde, Saxony, was b. at Eilenburg, April 23, 1586.* After passing through the Latin school at Eilenburg, he became, in Nov., 1601, a foundation scholar and chorister of the St. Thomas's School at Leipzig. This scholarship also allowed him to proceed to the University of Leipzig, where he matriculated for the summer session of 1602, as a student of Theology; and after the completion of his course he remained for some time in Leipzig (as did not take his M.A. till 1616). In March 1610 he offered himself as a candidate for the post of diaconus at Eilenburg, and was presented by the Town Council, but the Superintendent refused to sanction this arrangement, nominally on the ground that Rinkart was a better musician than theologian, but really because he was unwilling to have a colleague who was a native of Eilenburg, and who appeared to have a will of his own. Rinkart, not wishing to contest the matter, applied for a vacant mastership in the gymnasium at Eisleben, and ordered on his duties there in the beginning of June, 1610, as sixth master, and also cantor of the St. Nicholas Church. After holding this appointment for a few months, he became diaconus of St. Annen's Church, in the Neustadt of Eisleben, and began his work there May 29, 1611; and then became pastor at Eckdorf and Lyttichendorf (Lüttgendorf), near Eisleben, entering on his duties there on Dec. 5, 1613. Finally he was invited by the Town Council of Eilenburg to become archidiaconus there, and in Nov. 1617 came into residence at Eilenburg. He d. at Eilenburg, Dec. 8, 1649. A memorial tablet to his memory, affixed to the house where he lived, was unveiled at Eilenburg on Easter Monday, April 26, 1886. (Martin Rinkart's Geistliche Lieder, ed., with a biographical introduction, and an extensive bibliography, by Heinrich Bemba and Johannes Linke, D.D., Gotha, F. A. Perthes, 1886; K. Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, pp. 169, 211, &c.)

The greater part of Rinkart's professional life was passed amid the horrors of the Thirty Years War. Eilenburg being a walled town became a refuge for fugitives from all around, and being so overcrowded, pestilence and famine were the consequences. During the great pestilence of 1637 the Superintendent went away for change of air, and could not be persuaded to return; and on Aug. 7 Rinkart had to officiate at the funerals of two of the town clergy and two who had had to flee from the town, and were dying in the villages. At one time was the only clergyman in the place, and often read the service over some 40 to 50 persons a day, and in all over about 4,480. At last the refugees had to be buried in trenches without service, and during the whole epidemic Rinkart himself conducted over 4,000 funerals, of which May 8, 1637. The next year he had an epidemic of marriages to encounter, and himself fell a victim on June 24. Immediately thereafter came a most severe famine, during which Rinkart's resources were strained to the very uttermost to provide for the wants of the Eilenburgers from the fresh corn. The famine lasted 1637, and again in 1638 (see p. 318, i.). Unfortunately the services he rendered to his place seemed to have made them to authority the more regretful, and in his old age he was subjected to much annoyance in regard to fees and other matters, and by the time that the war-troubles for peace came (Oct. 24, 1648) he was a worn-out and prematurely aged man.

Rinkart was a voluminous writer and a good musician, but a considerable number of his books seem to have perished, and others survive only in single copies. His early hopes to write poetry, and was crowned as a poet apparently in 1614. Among other things he wrote a cycle of seven, as well as "Comedies," or rather dramas, on the Reformation Period, suggested by the centenary of the Reformation in 1617. Three of these were printed respectively in 1618, 1619, and 1625, and two of them were noted in public. Rinkart's hymns appeared principally in the following works:—(1) Jesu Hertz-Büchlein, Leipzig, 1636; 2nd edition, 1636, and first pub. at Leipzig in 1636. None of these now known. The 3rd ed., pub. at Leipzig, 1663, is in the Royal Library at Hanover. (2) Der Musicalische Haussegen Gottes, Leipzig, 1663. (3) Jesu Hertz-Büchlein, Leipzig, (?) ed., Christliches Jubelwunder, oder Jubilirender Gnaden-Eyfer, &c. (4) Lobliches Gesellschafft und Himmlischer Brand Jesu, Leipzig, 1643. In Wolfenbüttel Library. (5) Catechismus-meditation, und Catechismus-Lieder, Leipzig, 1645. In the Berlin Library.

Dr. Linke, 1886, as above, gives a list of the first lines of all the hymns in the works of Rinkart which have come under his notice, and prints a selection from them, including 66 in all. The best of them are characterized by a true patriotism, a childlike devotion to God, and a firm confidence in God's mercy, and His promised help and grace. A few passed into the German hymn-books. Those which have been tr. into English are:—

i. Alleluja, Lob, Preis und Ehr. This hymn, noted at p. 413, seems to be based on two hymns, beginning with the same first line, and both found in Rinkart's Brand Mosis, 1642. Dr. Linke does not print the full text. (See Blätter für Hymnologie, 1886, p. 91.)

ii. Nun danket alle Gott. Thanksgiving. The oldest text now accessible is in J. Crüger's Praxis, 1648, No. 183, in 3 st. of 8 l.; also in the Crüger-Dunge G. B., 1653, No. 187. It is also in Rinkart's Jesu Hertz-Büchlein, 1663, where the text slightly varies, and is entitled "Grass" ("Tisch-Gebetlein," i.e. a short prayer at table). There does not seem any good reason for supposing that it did not appear in the 1st ed., 1636, of the Hertz-Büchlein, and in any case it has no connection with the Peace of Westphalia. (A good specimen of the way in which stories of hymns are manufactured is in the Sunday at Home, Aug., 1888, p. 539, where a full and particular account is given of its legendary origin in Nov. 1648.) It is founded on Ecclesiasticus l. 22–24; and st. i., ii. are indeed little more than a paraphrase of these verses, st. iii. being a version of the Gloria Patri. The fact that the regimental chaplains, when holding the special service of thanksgiving for the conclusion of the peace, were commanded to preach from this passage, may have suggested the theory that Rinkart's hymn was written for the same occasion. It gradually came into general use, successfully survived the period of Rationalism, and is now to be found in every German hymnbook, e.g. in the Berlin G. L. B., ed. 1863, No. 1022. It may be called the German Te Deum, and as such is used at all national festivals or special occasions of thanksgiving. It was recently used at the festal celebration of the completion of Cologne Cathedral, on Aug. 14, 1880, at the laying of the foundation stone of the new Reichstag building in Berlin, by the Emperor William, June 9, 1884, &c.

The fine melody (set to the hymn in H. A. & M. and most recent English collections) appears in the Praxis, 1648 (Crüger's Kirchenmelodien, 1649, No. 94), and in the Crüger-Dunge G. B., 1653, is marked with Crüger's initials. It has been described as adapted from a melody by Lucas Marenzo (choirmaster at Rome, who d. 1599), or as adapted from a motet by Rinkart; but to prove either statement, very little evidence is forthcoming.

The trs. of the hymn into English are:—

* 1. Let all men praise the Lord. This is a tr. of st. i., iii., by Alfred Novello, as part of his version of the word-book to Mendelssohn's Lobgesang, or Hymn of Praise, 1843, p. 89. This form has passed into a number of hymnals, including the N. Cong., 1859; Dale's Eng. H. Bk., 1874, and others. In the Baptist Hyl., 1879, a tr. of st. ii. is added, of which ll. 1–4 are, from Miss Winkworth's tr.

2. Now praise the Lord on high. In full as No. 53 in the Dalston Hospital H. Bk., 1848. This appears to be the version which Kübler, in his Mod. Notes to the Lyra Germanica, 1865, p. 347, says was made by Baron C. K. J. von Bunsen, for the opening of the German Hospital at Dalston, on Oct. 15, 1845.

3. Now let us all to God. In full, by A. T. Russell, as No. 304, in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

4. O let us praise the Lord, From hearts by true love guided. This is No. 240 in the Winchester Ch. H. Bk., 1857, and seems to be intended as a paraphrase of the German.

5. Now thank we all our God. A full and very good tr. by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 145, repeated in her C. & Par. England, 1863, No. 11, and her Christian Singers, 1869, p. 181. It has been included in many recent English and American hymnals, e. g. H. A. & M., 1861; People's Hyl., 1867; Cong. Hyl., 1887, &c., and in America in the Epis. Hyl., 1871; Presb. Hyl., 1874, and many others, generally in full and unaltered.

6. Now all give thanks to God. In full as No. 264 in the Anglican H. Bk., 1868 (1871, No. 307), marked as a versification by R. C. Singleton. Repeated in J. L. Porter's Coll., 1876.

7. Now all men thank ye God. In full by T. E. Brown, as No. 97 in the Clifton College H. Bk., 1872.

Other trs. are:—

(1) "Now let us praise the Lord." In full by J. C. Jacobi, 1722, p. 76 (1732, p. 144), repeated, altered, in the Moravian H. Bks., 1754 to 1886. (2) "Now all, to God give thanks." By Dr. H. Mills, in the Evang. Invasion, Gettysburg, 1851, p. 281, and his Hymns for a Year, 1854, p. 281. (3) "Now all to God give thanks." By Miss Cox, 1864, p. 236. (4) "Now all give thanksgiving God." By J. D. Burns, 1864, p. 223. (5) "All hearts and tongues and hands." By N. L. Frothingham, 1870, p. 213.

8. So fahr ich hin mit Freuden. For the Dying. In his Mosaische Thränen-Saat, 1637, No. 24, p. 19, in 5 st. of 8 l., entitled "Even the same, and her soul-rejoicing Farewell Hymn. On May 8." St. i. is,

> "So fahr ich hin mit Freuden
> Aus dieser Welt nach Haus,
> Ins Engel, Cherub und Seraphim
> In Himmels-Freuden Saal,
> Da wir sind alle Frommen
> Durch Gottes Wintermacht
> Zusammen wiederkommen:
> Ist das zu guter Nacht."

The title refers to the preceding hymn, which is in 19 st., the initials of the six forming the acrostic Christian Rinckardin. Dr. Linke abridges it and misprints the title, which is:—

"Die Deutsche Jobs-Historie (Christina M. Rinckart's Jungfrauen Tochter und Creutz-gesangs) und ihre Hoffnung, Trost, Jubiliren, Freude und Lust, wenn jungen erwachten und an 19. Jahr alt. Tage des Creutzleidens Hiobs diesen 1637. Jahrs von lieben Ehrengedächtnüss abgehandelten Lieds-Buch: das 27. Psalm."

From this it is clear that both hymns are in memory of his wife, that she died on May 8, 1637, and that her funeral sermon was preached by her husband on May 10, 1637. The form tr. into English is the greatly altered, or rather practically new text which is noted under Sturm, Leonhard (q.v.).

A version of the "Jesu dulcis memoria," made by Rinkart, is noted at p. 580, i. [J. M.]

Rippon, John, D.D., was b. at Tiverton, Devon, April 29, 1751, and was educated for the ministry at the Baptist College, Bristol. In 1773 he became Pastor of the Baptist church in Carter Lane, Tooley Street (silver-wards removed to New Park Street), London, and over this church he continued to preside until his death, on Dec. 17, 1836. The degree of D.D. was conferred on him in 1792 by the Baptist College, Providence, Rhode Island. Dr. Rippon was one of the most popular and influential Dissenting ministers of his time. From 1790 to 1802 he issued the Baptist Annual Register, a periodical containing an account of the most important events in the history of the Baptist Denomination in Great Britain and America during that period, and very valuable now as a book of reference. But his most famous work is his Selection of hymns for public worship, which appeared in 1787. The full title of the 1st ed. is A selection of Hymns from the best authors, intended as an Appendix to Dr. Watts's Psalms and Hymns. In 1791 he pub. a Selection of Psalm and Hymn Tunes from the Best Authors, adapted to Dr. Watts's Psalms and Hymns, and to his own Selection, and from that time the names of tunes were prefixed to the hymns in the successive editions of his hymn-book. In 1800 he pub. the 10th ed. of his Sel., containing more than sixty additional hymns. In 1827 it was still further enlarged, and in 1844, after his death, appeared The Comprehensive Edition, commonly known as The Comprehensive Rippon, containing most of the additional hymns, with about 400 then first added, making in all upwards of 1170, in 100 metres. A rival to the Comprehensive was also afterwards published under the old title, somewhat enlarged. In the preparation of the original book, and its subsequent improvement, Dr. Rippon performed an important service to Baptist Hymnody, and also, it is said, gained for himself "an estate" through its immense sale. In the preface to the 10th ed. he claims for himself the authorship of some of the hymns, but as he refrained from affixing his name to any of the hymns it is impossible now to say with certainty which ought to be ascribed to him. There can, however, be no reasonable doubt that hymn 555, 3rd part, "The day has dawned, Jehovah comes" (q.v.), is one of his compositions. Other hymns, probably by him, are, "Amid the splendours of Thy state" (Love of God), 1800; and "There is joy in heaven, and joy on earth" (Joy over the Repenting Sinner), 1787. He also altered the texts of and made additions to several of the older hymns. Some of these altered texts (see Index of Authors and Translators) are still in C. U. In 1839 the additions given in the 27th ed., 1827, of Rippon's Sel. were reprinted, with notes by Dr. Maize, as :—

Hymns Original and Selected, interspersed in the Twenty-seventh edition of the Selection, with Numerical Readings, in the Usual, the Peculiar, and in the Iona Common metres. By John Rippon, D.D.

A 2nd ed. of this pamphlet of 82 hymns and doxologies appeared in 1839. [W. R. S.]

Rise, heart; thy Lord is risen. Sing His praise Without delayes. G. Herbert. [Easter.] This is Herbert's quaint and beautiful hymn for Easter, pub. in The Temple, 1633, in 3 st. of 6 l. and 3 st. of 4 l. (see Temples of *The Temple). The hymn in the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858 :—

"Rise heart: thy Lord arose
With the first morning ray,"

Years War almost emptied the University, and Rist himself also lay there for weeks ill of the pestilence. After his recovery he seems to have spent some time at Hamburg, and then, about Michaelmas, 1633, became tutor in the house of the lawyer (Landschreiber) Heinrich Sager, at Heide, in Holstein. There he betrothed himself to Elizabeth, sister of the Judge Franz Stapfel, whose influence seems to have had a good deal to do with Rist's appointment as pastor at Wedel. In the spring of 1635 he married and settled at Wedel (on the Elbe, a few miles below Hamburg), where, spite of various offers of preferment, he remained till his death, on Aug. 31, 1667. (Johann Rist und seine Zeit, by Dr. T. Hansen, Halle, 1872; K. Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 79; Koch, iii., 212; Bode, p. 135, &c. The statements of the various authorities regarding the period 1624–1635 vary greatly and irreconcilably.)

During the Thirty Years War Rist had much to endure from famine, plundering, and pestilence. Otherwise he led a patriarchal and happy life at Wedel, close to the congenial society of Hamburg, and as years went on more and more esteemed and honoured by his contemporaries. The Emperor Ferdinand III. crowned him a poet in 1644, and in 1653 raised him to the nobility, while nearer home Duke Christian of Mecklenburg appointed him Kirchenrath and Consistorialrath. Among other literary honours he was received in 1646 as a member of the Pegnitz Shepherds, and in 1647 as a member of the Fruitbearing Society, the great German literary union of the 17th cent.; while in 1660 he himself became the founder and head of the Elbe Swan Order, which however did not survive his death.

Rist was an earnest pastor and a true patriot. He of course took the side, and that with all his might, of the Protestants, but he longed as few did for the union of the scattered elements of the body politic in Germany. For further particulars regarding his life, and for a full bibliographies in Hansen and Goedeke as above). His secular works are of great interest to the student of the history of the times, and his occasional poems on marriages, &c., to the genealogist and local historian. His dramatic pieces, Das friedewünschende Teutschland, the Friede wünschende Teutschland, 1647, and the Friedejauchzende Teutschland, 1653, two plays in which there are vivid pictures of the times, especially of the condition of the lower classes during the Thirty Years War, and his Poetischer Lustgarten, a collection of his secular poems and from his hymns, are included in his Dichtungen, Leipzig, 1880, ed. by Goedeke and E. Gotter. Hansen gives analyses of the secular works, with a few extracts from them; and in his second part gives a full selection from the hymns, often however greatly abridged.

As a hymn-writer Rist takes high rank. He wrote some 680 hymns, intended to cover the whole ground of Theology, and to be used by all ranks and classes, and on all the occasions of life. Naturally enough they are not of equal merit, and many are poor and bombastic. Rist meant them rather for private use than for public worship, and during his lifetime they were never used in the church at Wedel. But they were eagerly caught up, set to melodies by the best musicians of the day, and speedily passed into congregational use all over Germany, while even the Roman Catholics read them with delight. Over 200 may be said to have been in C. U. in Germany, and a large number still hold their place. Unfortunately many are very long. But speaking of Rist's better productions, we may say that their noble and classical style, their objective Christian faith, their scripturalness, their power to console, to encourage, and to strengthen in trust upon God's Fatherly love, and their fervent love to the Saviour (especially seen in the best of his hymns for Advent, and for the Holy Communion), sufficiently justify the esteem in which they were, and are, held in Germany. The best known of Rist's hymns appeared in the following collections :—

(1) Himlische Lieder, This contains 80 hymns, 1634 (Brit. Mus. and Wernigerode). (2) Himlische Lieder (2nd Dopel Liberey, Berlin). In the latter he has made various alterations, and also expanded the titles of the hymns, these changes being almost all for the worse. (3) Neuer himlischer Lieder neuderkorn Dopel, 1641 (Brit. Mus. and Wernigerode). With 50 hymns. (4) Sabbathische Seelenlust, Lüneburg, 1651 (Brit. Mus. and Göttingen). With 44 hymns on the Gospels for Sundays, &c. (5) Neuener und gottseliger Christen sittsiglicher Hausmusick, Lüneburg, 1654 (Brit. Mus. and Wernigerode). With 50 hymns. (6) Neue auserlesene Himlische Fest-Andachten, Lüneburg, 1664 (Wernigerode). With 52 hymns on the Sunday Gospels. (6) Neue auserlesene Himlische Sonntags-Andachten, Lüneburg, 1664 (Brit. Mus. and Wernigerode). With 64 hymns.

Seven of Rist's hymns are separately noted under their German first lines (see Index of Authors and Translators). The others which have passed into English are :—

i. Du Lebendiod, Herr Jesu Christ. Holy Communion. In his Himmmusik, 1634, No. 7, p. 32, in 8 st. of 9 l., entitled "A devotional hymn, which may be sung when the people are about to take their place at the Holy Communion of the Lord." Founded on Ps. xxii. Included as No. 475 in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863. Tr. as :—

Lord Jesu Christ, the living bread. A good tr. of st. i., ii., iii., v., by A. T. Russell, as No. 159 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

ii. Ehr und Dank sei dir gesungen. On the Angels. In his Fest-Andachten, 1655, No. 46, p. 504, in 9 st. of 10 l., entitled "Another hymn of Praise and Thanksgiving on the same Gospel (S. Matt. xviii.) for St. Michael's Day. In which the great God who created the Angels, and appointed them for our service, is from the heart adored and praised." Included in Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 219, and in Bunsen's Versuch, 1833, No. 235. The tr. in C. U. are :—

i. Praise and thanks to Thee be sung. By Miss Winkworth, omitting st. iii.–vi., in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 205, repeated in her C. & for England, 1863, No. 85.

2. Glory, praise, to Thee be sung. A tr. of st. i. as No. 1224, in the Hymnarium B. Bk., 1886.

iii. Brunnire dich, mein schwacher Sinn. Christmas. Founded on Isaiah ix. 2–7. 1st pub. in the Ersten Zehen of his Himlische Lieder, 1641, No. 1, p. 1, in 12 st. of 8 l., entitled "A hymn of praise on the joyful Birth and Incarnation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." Included in Criger's Praxis, 1656, No. 87, and recently, omitting st. viii., as No. 32 in the Ges. L. S., 1851. The tr. in C. U. are :—

1. Be cheerful, then my spirit faint. A tr. of st. i. by J. Gambold, as No. 138 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754; repeated as st. i. of No. 437, altered to "Arise my spirit, leap with joy," and with his tr. of st. ii., iv., in addn. In the ed. of 1789, No. 46 (1886, No. 41), it begins, "Arise, my spirit, bless the day."

2. O Jesu! welcome, gracious Name! This is a tr. of st. ii., vi., xii., by A. T. Russell, as No. 55 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

Another tr. in "My languid spirit, upward spring." by N. L. Frothingham, 1870, p. 179.

iv. Ihr sei gelobet, der alles. Joy in God. In his Neuer Himlischer Lieder, 1651, p. 126, No. 9, in 13 st. of 7 l., entitled "A joyful hymn of Thanksgiving to God, that He permits us to enjoy our daily bread in health, peace and prosperity, with a humble prayer that He would graciously preserve us in the same." Included in Clemens's Singe-Kunst, 1671, No. 322, and recently in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850, No. 1696 (1865, No. 1706). Tr. in C. U. in :—

Now God be praised, and God alone. By Miss Winkworth, omitting st. iii., vi., viii., ix., in her Christian Singers, 1869, p. 195. Repeated, abridged, in Stallam's Coll., Edinburgh, 1869, No. 63 (1870, No. 110).

v. Jesu, der du meine Seele. Lent. In the Erstes Zehen of his Himlische Lieder, 1641, p. 35, No. 7, in 12 st. of 8 l., entitled "A heartfelt hymn of penitence to his most beloved Lord Jesus, for the forgiveness of his many and manifold sins." Founded on prayer viii. in Chap iii. of J. Arndt's Paradiesgärtlein, 1612. In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 382. The trs. in C. U. are :—

1. Thou hast sanctify my transgression. A tr. of st. vi., viii., as No. 1022, in the Suppl. of 1808 to the Moravian H. Bk., 1801 (1886, No. 107).

2. Jesu! Who in sorrow dying. A free tr. of st. i., iii. ll. 1–4, v. ll. 5–8, viii., by J. T. Russell, as No. 78 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

vi. O Jesu, meine Wunne. Holy Communion. This beautiful hymn appears in Rist's Himmel-musik, 1654, No. 5, p. 42, in 14 st. of 4 l., re-titled "The heartfelt Thanksgiving of a pious Christian when he has partaken of the Holy Communion." In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 385. The tr. in C. U. is :—

O Sun of my salvation. A good tr. of st. i., iii., v., vi., by A. T. Russell, as No. 160 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

Another tr. is :—O Christ, my joy, my soul's delight." By Dr. C. Walker, 1868, p. 6.

vii. Werde licht, du Stadt der Heiden. Epiphany. In his Fest-Andachten, 1655, p. 82, No. 13, in 15 st. of 6 l., entitled "Another festival hymn of the day of the Manifestation of Christ, in which the glorious, godlike, and eternal Light, which has graciously arisen on us poor heathen in thick darkness, is devoutly contemplated." In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 92. Tr. as :—

1. All ye Gentile lands awake. A good tr. of st. i.–v., vi. viii., xiv. xv., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 30. Repeated, abridged, in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870, and in Fleit's Coll., Paisley, 1871.

2. Rise, O Salem, rise and shine. A good tr. of st. i., iii., viii., xiv., xv., based on her Lyra Ger. version but altered in metre, by Miss Winkworth, in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 38. Repeated in J. L. Porter's Coll., 1870, and the Pennsylvania Luth. Ch. Bk., 1868.

viii. Wie wohl bast du gelabet. Holy Communion. In his Neuer Himlischer Lieder, 1651, p. 78, in 9 st. of 12 l., entitled "A hymn of heartfelt Praise and Thanksgiving after the reception of the Holy Communion." In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 291. The tr. in C. U. is :—

O Living Bread from Heaven. A good tr., omitting st. iv., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 103; repeated in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 94, omitting the trs. of iii., v., vi. Her trs. of st. i.–iii., iv. were included, slightly altered, in the Pennsylvania Luth. Ch. Bk., 1868.

The following have also been tr. into English :—

ix. Herr ist das rechte Zuleitet. Whitsuntide. In his Fest-Andachten, 1655, p. 324, No. 32, in 12 st., founded on Ps. xxxiii. 12, entitled "Another festival hymn of the Holy Ghost." In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 172. The text tr. is that in Bunsen's Allg. G. B., 1846, No. 114, where it begins with st. v., "Herr hat der grosse Himmelsherr." Tr. as "This God has our great Heavenlord," by Miss Cox, in the Church-mother's Offering Magazine, June 1867.

x. Ich will den Herren loben. Praise and Thanksgiving. Founded on Ps. xxxiv. In his Neuer Himlischer Lieder, 1651, p. 199 (No. 18 in pt. 2.), in 12 st. of 8 l. In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 1. The text tr. is that in his Himmelmusik, 1654, p. 101, No. 14, that contains 9 to 8 st. of 12 l., and of this form st. iv.–vi., beginning "Mein lobt sich in der Stille" (1891, st. x.) are included in many hymn-books, as the Berlin G. S., ed. 1863, No. 418, st. iv.–vi. Tr. as "In this land is heard," in Dr. Lyte's Spirit of Hebrew Poetry, 1834, vol. ii. p. 260, repeated in Rose's Pratur Sch., 1872. [J. M.]

Ritter, Jakob, a. of Samuel Ritter, assessor of the Court of Appeal and Syndic o the Magdeburg administration at Halle, was b. at Halle, May 29, 1627. After the completion of his university course at Wittenberg, he was appointed secretary of the Magdeburg administration, and Justiciary at Langendorf, near Weissenfels. He d. at Halle, Aug. 14, 1689. (Koch, iii. 352; Blätter für Hymnologie, 1886, p. 2. In the latter his volume of 1666, see below, is spoken of as "not apparently hitherto inspected by any hymnologist." The present writer had however discovered and examined it at Wernigerode some six months earlier.)

Ritter's hymns appeared in his tr. of a work by Dr. Daniel Sennert (b. at Sweina, Nov. 25, 1571; d. at Wittenberg, July 25, 1637, as Professor of Medicine). The tr. by Ritter is entitled, Natürliche und heilsame Vorbereitung zu einem seligen Tode, aus dem Lateinischen übersetzet, und was noch zu Leipzig, 1666, with a dedication, dated Halle, 1666. The work contains 19 chapters, to each of which Ritter added a hymn. A number of these hymns are worthy of note, being distinguished by much unction and by deep faith. Two came into extended use in Germany, and one has been tr. into English, viz. :—

Dir, die du nach von Christo nennt. True Christianity. In 1666, as above, p. 150, at the end of chapter 16, and entitled, "On the calling and office of a true Christian." Repeated in 4 st. of 8 l., and is a masterly and concise delineation of what as regards Christianity is a true Christian. Included in the Nürnberg G. B., 1676, the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 415, &c. Tr. as :—

O ye your Saviour's name who bear. A good and full tr., by Miss Cox, in her Sac. Hys from the Germ., 1841, p. 30. Repeated in the Church Psalter, 1851. Altered in Pr. & Hys., 1864, his Year of Praise, 1867, and others. The same omits, altered, and beginning, "O ye who bear your Saviour's name," is in Sonnenlg., 1865.

Another tr. is :—"O ye who bear your Saviour's name." By Lady St. Germans, 1849, p. 95. [J. M.]

Robarts, Frederick Hall, was b. in London in March 1833; studied at University College, London, and at the University of Edinburgh, and commenced his ministry in 1859 in Liverpool, when he became the Pastor of the Richmond Baptist Chapel in that city, and in 1883 of the Hillhead Baptist Church, Glasgow, a position he still occupies. Mr. Robarts has written some hymns for children, three of which have appeared in Psalms and Hymns for School and Home, 1882. The first lines and respective dates are :—

1. In the name of Jesus. Doing all in the Name of Jesus. (1877.)
2. O bless the Lord, and praise. Remembrance of Mercies. (1877.)
3. O Lord, our Strength and Refuge. The New Year. (1886.) [W. R. S.]

Robbins, Chandler, D.D., was b. in Lynn, Massachusetts, Feb. 14, 1810, and educated at Harvard College (1829), and the Cambridge Divinity School (1833). In 1833

he became Pastor of the Second [Unitarian] Church, Boston, succeeding Dr. H. Ware, jun., and Ralph Waldo Emerson. He received his D.D. degree from Harvard in 1855, and d. at Westport, Massachusetts, Sept. 12, 1882. Dr. Robbins pub. several prose works. He also edited The Sacred Hymn Book in 1845, and Hymns for Christian Worship, 1854. His two hymns, "Lo, the day of rest declineth" (Evening), and "While thou [now] Thy throne of grace we seek" (The Voice of God), appeared in Dr. G. E. Ellis's Ps. & Hys. for the Sanctuary, 1845. L. B. Barnes's tune, "Bedford Street," was written for the former.

[F. M. B.]

Robbins, Samuel Dowse, M.A., brother of Dr. Chandler Robbins, was b. in Lynn, Massachusetts, March 7, 1813, and was educated for the ministry at the Cambridge Divinity School. In 1833 he became Pastor of the Unitarian congregation in his native town, and subsequently held pastorates at Chelsea (1840), Farmingham (1850), and Wayland (1867), and retired from the last in 1873. Four of his hymns are given in the Boston Unitarian Hymns (and Tune) Book, 1868 :—

1. Down towards the twilight drifting. Sunset.
2. Saviour, when Thy bread we break. Holy Communion.
3. Thou art, O God! my East. In Thee I darned. God the Father.
4. Thou art my morning, God of Light. Early Hymn.
5. Thou art our Master, Thou of God the Son. Christ the Master.

These, together with other hymns and poetical pieces, are in Putnam's Singers and Songs, &c., 1875, and the text of No. 3 is revised therein. We are indebted to Putnam for these details. [J. J.]

Robert the Second, King of France, surnamed "Le Pieux" and "Le Dévot," b. circa 970, was the s. of Hugh Capet, the first of the line of kings that succeeded the Carlovingian monarchs on the French throne. After having been associated with his father in the government of the kingdom, in 988 he became King in his own right. The story of his life, rather than of his reign, is a sad one; troubles both in his family and without so multiplying upon him that it needed all the consolation that he sought and found in religion to enable him to bear up against them. Having in 903 or 996 espoused Bertha, the widow of Eudes, Count of Chartres, and daughter of Conrad the Pacific, his cousin in the fourth degree (a marriage at that time strictly forbidden by the Roman Catholic Church), he was commanded by a decree of Pope Gregory V. to put her away. He was tenderly attached to her, and refused, whereupon he was excommunicated. This sentence caused the unhappy couple to be abandoned by all their courtiers, and even their servants, with the exception of two of the latter. After living together for a while in a state of sore privation, nay, almost absolute destitution, Bertha was delivered of a still-born infant, which was represented to Robert to have been a monster with "a head and neck like a goose." On hearing this (for the fond husband was but a weak and credulous man), Robert repudiated his wife, who thereupon retired into a nunnery. Subsequently, probably about 1002, he married Constance, a daughter of the Count of Arles, by whom he had four sons and two daughters. Much of the misery of his later life resulted from this marriage; for in addition to the antagonism which existed in their tastes and pursuits, Constance endeavored to secure the kingdom for her youngest son Robert, to the exclusion of the third son Henry (Hugh, the eldest, having died, and Eudes, the second, being an idiot), and this led to constant domestic broils which embittered the gentle king's existence. In 1024 he refused (and wisely) the Imperial Crown of the House of Saxony, when the Italians offered it to him on the death of Henry II., the last of the Saxon Emperors. Robert spent much of his time in the society of monks, assisting in the services of the Church, and engaging on pious pilgrimages. It was upon his return from one of the latter to some of the principal sanctuaries of France that he was attacked by a fever, to which he succumbed at Theiuu in 1031, in the 60th year of his age and the 34th of his reign—more deeply lamented by his people, to whom he had attached himself by the sweetness and simplicity of his character, than any other king, probably, who ever reigned in France. Robert had a great love for, and skill in, church music, and it is not improbable that compositions of his are even at this day in use in the services of his Church.

[D. S. W.]

It has been the custom to speak of King Robert as a hymn-writer. But when the different authorities come to specify the pieces which he is said to have composed, their statements are hopelessly at variance. For the purpose of this article we shall take four ancient authorities :—

(a) and (b) In the Recueil des Historiens des Gaules et de la France, vol. x. pp. 277–278, 281–282, are extracts "ex chronico Richardi" (a); and also "ex chronico Alberici ad annum 997" (b).

(c) In the Ancient MS., 121, in the Bodleian there is a list of authors of sequences, written about 1300. This list is printed in Daniel's Thesaurus, ii. 370.

(d) William Herimfus (d. 1298) in his Sentimale, Hs. tr., has a section "De prosa seu sequentia." This occurs in two mss. of the 14th cent. in the British Museum (Add. 19304, f. 20 b; Reg. 7 E., ix. f. 15). An abstract of this section is printed in Daniel, but unfortunately lost the leaf containing this section.

By these four authorities the following hymns and sequences are ascribed to King Robert :—

1. Chorus novae Hierusalem.
2. Sancti Spiritus adsit nobis gratia.
3. Sancti Spiritus adsit nobis gratia.
4. Veni Sancte Spiritus.
5. Virtutum Paschali.

But of these a only ascribes to him No. 3, and does not mention Nos. 1, 2, 4 or 5, while b ascribes to him Nos. 2 and 3, and does not mention Nos. 1, 4 or 5. On the other hand c ascribes to him No. 5, while No. 2 it ascribes to Hermannus Contractus, and Nos. 1, 2, 4 it does not mention at all. Lastly d ascribes to him Nos. 1 and 4, but ascribes Nos. 2 and 3 to Hermannus Contractus, and does not mention No. 5. Taking these in detail, we find No. 1 is only ascribed to King Robert by d, and seems more probably to be by Fulbert of Chartres (see p. 886, i.). No. 2 seems without doubt to be by Notker Balbulus (see note on "Sancti Spiritus adsit"). For No. 3 see note on "Virtutum Paschali." No. 2 is noted at

p. 986, ii., and, according to the common opinion, is there ascribed to Hermannus Contractus; but this ascription is very doubtful, seeing that he d. in 1054, and was only b. in 1013, while the Bodleian MS. 775 was written in England about 1000, so that the ascription of it deserves attention. As to No. 4 the subject of authorship is treated more fully under "Veni Sancte Spiritus," but here it may be said that Durandus and those who followed him are alone in ascribing it to King Robert, for the French tradition was clearly against this, e.g. neither a nor b ascribe it to him, and Chichtoveus in his Elucidatorium, Paris, 1516, and the Augustinian Missal, printed at Paris, 1529 (see Sequences, Part ii.), which may be taken to represent the later French tradition, while agreeing in ascribing No. 3 to King Robert, agree also in treating No. 4 as of unknown authorship. To sum up then it seems to us that No. 2 is possibly by King Robert; that Nos. 3 and 4 are clearly not by him; and that his claim to Nos. 1 and 5 is exceedingly doubtful.

The French chronicles a and b as above also ascribe to King Robert other liturgical pieces, viz.—(1) "O Constantia martyrum." (2) "Judaea (O Juda) et Hierusalem," (3) "Estpe me," (4) "Cunctipotens genitor" (5) "Cornelius centurio," (6) "Pro filii morte," (7) "Concede nobis quaesumus." These appear to be Responsories and Antiphons, but whether rightly or wrongly ascribed to Robert the present writer cannot say. No. 7 is also ascribed to him by c as above. [J. M.]

Roberthin, Robert, a. of Gerhard Roberthin or Robertin, pastor at Saalfeld, in East Prussia, was b. at Saalfeld, March 3, 1600. He entered the University of Königsberg in 1617, went to Leipzig in 1619, and then to Strassburg in 1620, where he became acquainted with Martin Opitz. After 1621 he travelled, employed himself as a private tutor, &c. In 1637 he was appointed secretary to the Prussian Court of Appeal at Königsberg, and in 1645 also Chief Secretary and Rath to the Prussian Administration at Königsberg. After a stroke of paralysis on April 6, he d. on April 7, 1648 (K. Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 128: Valentin Thilo's Orationes duodecimae, Konigsberg, 1650, p. 240, &c.).

Roberthin was an influential, cultured, and lovable man. His house during the period was a liberal patron of talented youth (K. Goedeke's Grundriss, p. 127, &c.), and was one of the founders of the Königsberg Union (see p. 88, i.). His hymns and poems appeared principally in H. Alberti's Arien. The only one we have English is noted at p. 202, ii. [J. M.]

Roberts, Martha Susan, née Blakeney, daughter of the Rev. J. E. Blakeney, D.D., Archdeacon of Sheffield, was b. at Sheffield, Dec. 25, 1802; and married to Samuel Roberts, J.P., Queen's Tower, Sheffield, Dec. 21, 1830. Mrs. Roberts's hymn-writing has been confined to local events. Her hymn on the Laying of the Foundation Stone of a Church, "Be present, Holy Father, To bless our work to-day," was written, in the first instance, for use at the laying of the foundation-stone of the North Transept of the Parish Church of Sheffield, July 12, 1850. It was subsequently revised by Mrs. Roberts, and is in frequent use in Sheffield and the neighbourhood. Another hymn, written for the laying of the foundation stone of St. Ann's, Sheffield, June 12, 1852, begins, "O Saviour Christ, Who art Thyself!" Her hymn for the Queen's Jubilee service at the Parish Church of Sheffield was "Rise, O British Nation, Hasten now to pay." Mrs. Roberts's ballad writing is very sweet and tender. [J. J.]

Robertson, William, was the s. of David Robertson of Brunton in Fife. After finishing his University course he was licensed to preach in 1711. He is said to have been assistant to the minister of the Presbyterian Church of London Wall, London, before his settlement, in 1714, as parish minister of Bothwick, Midlothian. In 1738 he was appointed minister of Lady Yesters, Edinburgh, and in 1736 of Old Greyfriars, and died at Edinburgh, Nov. 16, 1745. He was in 1742 appointed a member of the Committee of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, which compiled the Translations and Paraphrases of 1745, and is said to have contributed 3 paraphrases which, in the 1781 collection, are numbered 23, "How few receive with cordial faith" (p. 836, ii.), 42, "Let not your hearts with anxious thoughts" (p. 878, i.), and 43 "You now must hear my voice no more." See Scottish Translations and Paraphrases. [J. M.]

Robertson, William, M.A., eldest s. of the Rev. John Robertson, D.D., of Cumbernauld, Lanarkshire, was b. at Cumbernauld, July 15, 1820. He studied and graduated M.A. at the University of Glasgow. In 1843 he became parish minister of Monzievaird, Perthshire, where he died June 9, 1864. He was appointed a member of the Hymnal Committee of the Established Church in 1852, 1853, and 1857, and contributed 2 hymns to their Hymns for Public Worship, 1861, since included in their Scottish Hymnal, 1869, which have obtained considerable popularity, viz., "A little child the Saviour came" (Christmas), and a version of the Te Deum, which begins, "Thee God we praise, Thee Lord confess." [J. M.]

Robertson, William Bruce, D.D., youngest s. of John Robertson, Greenhill, near Stirling, was b. at Greenhill, May 24, 1820. After studying at the University of Glasgow (which conferred upon him the degree of M.A. in 1839), he became, in 1843, minister o Trinity U. P. Church, Irvine, Ayrshire, retiring from the active duties of his charge in 1879. He d. at Bridge of Allan, June 27, 1886. In 1870 he was appointed a member of the Hymnal Committee of the U. P. Church, and contributed a translation of the Dies Irae (see p. 288, i. 13), as No. 396, to their Presbyterian Hymnal, 1876. It had previously appeared as No. 87 in his Hosannas: or, chaunts and hymns for Children and Teachers, Glasgow, H. Ogle & Son, N. D. (Preface dated Irvine, August, 1854. Contains 102 for children and 9 for teachers.) He also contributed poems to the Juvenile Missionary Magazine of the U. P. Church [such as "The Departed nigh" (Nov. 1861), "The Child's Angel" (May 1856), "Our Lord's Three Weepings" (June 1857)], and other periodicals. But he was best known as one of the most eloquent Scottish preachers of his time. A considerable number of his hymns and poems are embodied in the interesting Life of William B. Robertson, D.D., Irvine, by James Brown, D.D., Glasgow, 1888. [J. M.]

Robinson, Charles Seymour, D.D., was b. at Bennington, Vermont, March 31, 1829, and educated at William College, 1849, and in theology, at Union Seminary, New York (1852-53), and Princeton (1853-55). He became Presbyterian Pastor at Troy, 1855; at Brooklyn, 1860; of the American chapel in Paris (Passon), 1868; and of the Memorial Presbyterian Church, New York, 1870. During 1876-77 he was editor of the Illustrated Christian Weekly. As an editor of hymn-books he has been most successful. His Songs of the Church were pub. in 1862; Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865; Spiritual Songs, 1878; and Laudes Domini, A Selection of Spiritual Songs, Ancient and Modern, 1884. His Songs for the Sanctuary has probably had a wider sale than any other unofficial American collection of any denomination, and the Laudes Domini is a book of great excellence. Dr. Robinson has composed a few hymns, including, "Saviour, I follow on" (Following Christ), in his Songs of the Church, 1862, and "Isles of the South, your redemption is nearing" (Missions), in his Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865. The latter is given in Dr. Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872, as "Lands long benighted." [F. M. B.]

Robinson, George Wade, b. at Cork in 1838, and educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and New College, St. John's Wood, London. He entered the Congregational Ministry, and was co-pastor at York Street Chapel, Dublin, with Dr. Urwick; then pastor at St. John's Wood, at Dudley, and at Union Street, Brighton. He d. at Southampton, Jan. 28, 1877. He pub. two vols. of poems, (1) Songs in God's World; (2) Lovelaud. His hymn, "Strangers and pilgrims here below" (Cœna Only), from his Songs in God's World, is in Horder's Cong. Hys., 1884, in an abridged form; and "Weary with my load of sin" (Contrition), is in the 1874 Suppl. to the New Cong. [W. G. H.]

Robinson, Richard Hayes, was b. in 1842, and educated at King's College, London. Taking Holy Orders in 1866, he became curate of St. Paul's, Penge. He subsequently held various charges, including the Octagon Chapel, Bath. He became Incumbent of St. Germans, Blackheath, in 1884. His prose works include Sermons on Faith and Duty, 2nd ed., 1873, and The Creed and the Age, 1884. His hymn "Holy Father, clear our way" (Morning), was contributed to the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871. It was written in 1869 for the congregation of St. Paul's, Upper Norwood, and was designed to be sung after the 3rd Collect at Evening Prayer. It has passed into several collections (sometimes at an altered form), including H. A. & M., 1875, and Thring's Coll., 1882. See the latter for the authorized text. He d. Nov. 5, 1895. [J. J.]

Robinson, Robert, the author of "Come, Thou fount of every blessing," and "Mighty God, while angels bless Thee," was b. at Swaffham, in Norfolk, on Sept. 27, 1735 (usually misgiven, spite of his own authority, as Jan. 8), of lowly parentage. Whilst in his eighth year the family migrated to Scarning, in the same county. He lost his father a few years after this removal. His widowed mother was left in sore straits. The universal testimony is that she was a godly woman, and far above her circumstances. Her ambition was to see her son a clergyman of the Church of England, but poverty forbade, and the boy (in his 15th year) was indentured in 1749 to a barber and hairdresser in London. It was an uncongenial position for a bookish and thoughtful lad. His master found him more given to reading than to his profession. Still he appears to have nearly completed his apprenticeship when he was released from his indentures. In 1752 came an epoch-marking event. Out on a frolic one Sunday with like-minded companions, he joined with them in sportively rendering a fortune-telling old woman drunk and incapable, that they might hear and laugh at her predictions concerning them. The poor creature told Robinson that he would live to see his children and grand-children. This set him a-thinking, and he received more than ever to "give himself to reading." Coincidently he went to hear George Whitefield. The text was St. Matthew iii. 7, and the great evangelist's searching sermon on "the wrath to come" haunted him bleakly. He wrote to the preacher six years later penitently and pathetically. For well nigh three years he walked in darkness and fear, but in his 20th year found "peace by believing." Hidden away on a blank leaf of one of his books is the following record of his spiritual experience, the Latin doubtless having been used to hold it modestly private:—

"Robertus, Michaelis Martaeque Robinson filius, Natus Swaffhami, comitatu Norfolciæ, Saturni die Sept. 27, 1735. Renatus Sabbati die, Mali 24, 1752, per præsentem misericordiam Dei. Amen. Hæc mihi testantur doctrinæ reservatorio dum amongus septum electionem pleasan gratulamyne, per sanguinem pretiosum Jesu Christi, xivent (Tuesday, December 15, 1790) cui sit honor et gloria in secula seculorum. Amen."

Robinson remained in London until 1758, attending assiduously on the ministry of Gill, Wesley, and other evangelical preachers. Early in this year he was invited as a Calvinistic Methodist to the oversight of a chapel at Mildenhall, Norfolk. Thence he removed within the year to Norwich, where he was settled over an Independent congregation. In 1759, having been invited by a Baptist Church at Cambridge (afterwards made historically famous by Robert Hall, John Foster, and others) he accepted the call, and preached his first sermon there on Jan. 6, 1760, having been previously baptized by immersion. The "call" was simply "to supply the pulpit," but he soon won such regard and popularity that the congregation again and again requested him to accept the full pastoral charge. This he acceded to in 1761, after persuading the people to "open communion." In 1770 he commenced his abundant authorship by publishing a translation from Saurin's sermons, afterwards completed. In 1774 appeared his masculine and unanswerable Arcana, or the Principles of the Late Petitioners to Parliament for Relief in the matter of Subscription. In 1776 was published A Plea for the Divinity of our Lord Jesus Christ in a Pastoral Letter to a Congregation of Protestant Dissenters at Cambridge. Dignitaries and divines of the Church of England united with Nonconformists in lauding this exceptionally able, scholarly, and pungently written book. In 1777 followed his History and Mystery of Good Friday. The former work brought him urgent invitations to enter the ministry of the Church of England, but he never faltered in his Nonconformity. In 1781 he was asked by the Baptists of London to prepare a history of their branch of the Christian Church. This resulted, in 1790, in his History of Baptism and Baptists, and in 1792, in his Ecclesiastical Researches. Other theological works are included in the several collective editions of his writings. He was prematurely worn out. He retired in 1790 to Birmingham, where he was somehow brought into contact with Dr. Priestley, and Unitarians have made much of this, on exceedingly slender grounds. He d. June 9, 1790. His Life has been fully written by Dyer and by William Robinson respectively, both with a bias against orthodoxy. His three changes of ecclesiastical relationship show that he was somewhat unstable and impulsive. His hymns are terse yet melodious, evangelical but not sentimental, and on the whole well wrought. His prose has all, more or less of the equipoise and believableness, that vehement and enthusiastic glow of passion that belongs to the centre. (Cf. Dyer and Robinson as above, and Gadsby's Memoirs of Hymn-Writers (3rd ed., 1861); Belcher's Historical Sketches of Hymns: Miller's Singers and Songs of the Church: Flower's Robinson's Miscel. Works: Annual Review, 1805, p. 464: Eclectic Review, Sept. 1861. [A. B. G.]

Robinson, Robert, was b. in London in 1814, and educated for the Congregational ministry at Highbury College, London. He was pastor successively at Chatteris, Luton, and York Road Chapel, Lambeth, London. From 1855 to 1884 he was Home Secretary of the London Missionary Society. He d. at New Cross, Jan. 10, 1887. His hymns were mainly composed for Sunday School Anniversaries at Luton and York Road Chapel. They include the following, which have passed into C. U.:—

1. Rapidness scenes on earth appear. Written for the Sunday S. Anniversary at Luton, in 1836.
2. Hear, Gracious God, and from Thy Throne. Written for the S. S. A., Luton, 1837.
3. I love Thy house, my Lord, my King. Written for the S. S. A., Luton, 1837.
4. I've been in chase of pleasure. Written for the S. S. A. at York Road Chapel, 1861.
5. Let the Redeemer's name be precious. Written in 1849. Major's Book of Praise, 1871.
6. Once more with joyous greeting. Written in 1856. In Major's Bk. of Praise, 1871.
7. The cheering chime of Sabbath bells. Written for the S. S. A. at Luton, 1848.
8. Thus in holy convocation. Written in 1856. In Major's Bk. of Praise, 1871.
9. While we on earth are raising. Written in 1856. In Major's Bk. of Praise, 1871.
10. Why should the bride is waiting. Written for the S. S. A. at Luton, 1848.

All these hymns are for children, and are specially adapted to anniversary services. Most of them are in Major's Bk. of Praise for Home and School, 1871; and the Silver Street Sunday Scholar's Companion, 1880. [W. G. H.]

Rock of ages, cleft for me. A. M. Typing. (Punctuation.) In the October number of the Gospel Magazine, 1775, in an article on "Life a Journey," and signed Minimus (one of Toplady's signatures), the following occurs at p. 474 :—

"Yet, if you fall, be humbled; but do not despair. Pray afresh to God, who is able to raise you up, and to set you on your feet again. Look to the blood of the covenant: and say to the Lord, from the depth of your heart,

Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
let me hide myself in thee!
Dead, I to the fountain fly:
wash me, Saviour, or I die.

Make those words of the apostle, your motto: 'Persecuted, but not in despair; cast down, but not destroyed.'"

2. In the Gospel Magazine for March, 1776 (of which Toplady was then the editor), there appeared a peculiar article entitled, A remarkable Calculation: Introduced here, for the sake of the spiritual Improvement subjoined. Questions and Answers, relative to the National Debt. The object and end of this "Calculation" will be gathered from the closing questions and answers :—

Q. 8. How can the government raise this interest yearly?

A. By taxing those who lent the principal, and others.

Q. 9. When will the government be able to pay the principal?

A. When there is more money in England's treasury than in all the rest of Christendom, and all Europe.

Q. 10. And when will that be?

A. Never.

This article is signed "J. F." Immediately underneath, the subject is continued as a Spiritual Improvement of the foregoing: By another Hand. The aim of this "improvement" is to ascertain how many sins "each of the human race" is guilty of "supposing a person were to break the law (1) but once in 24 hours"; (2) twice in the same time; (3) once in every hour; (4) once in every minute; (5) once in every second. As this last is the climax, we will give the question and the answer.

Q. May we not proceed abundantly further yet? Sixty seconds go to a minute. Now, as we never, in the present life, shall be free from sin, we have, at the hasty imputation, that our sins multiply with every second of our sublunary duration?

A. 'Tis too true. And in their view of the matter, our dreadful account stands as follows:—At ten years old, with 315 millions, and 360 thousand.—At twenty ditto, with 630 millions, and 720 thousand.—At thirty, with 946 millions, and 80 thousand.—At forty, with 1261 millions, 440 thousand.—At fifty, with 1576 millions, and 800 thousand.—At sixty, with 1892 millions, 160 thousand.—At seventy, with 2207 millions, and 520 thousand.—At eighty with 2523 millions, 880 thousand.

Q. When shall we be able to pay off this immense debt?

A. Never. . . .

Q. Will not divine goodness compound for the debt, by accepting less than we owe?

A. Impossible. . . .

Notwithstanding this frightful helplessness, there is hope, as the answer, a little further on, makes clear :—

A. "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the Law; being made a curse for us." Gal. iii. 13.—This, 'This, will not only counter-balance, but infinitely overbalance, all the sins of the whole believing world.

Questions and Answers follow, all of which are framed to support Toplady's Calvinistic creed. The last answer is :—

A. "We can only admire and bless the FATHER, for electing us in Christ, and for laying on Him the iniquities of us all;—the SON, for taking our nature and our sins upon Him, and for His bitter sufferings, agonies, and sacrifice, whereby to redeemed the spiritual Israel from all their sins;—and the co-equal SPIRIT, for causing us (in conversion) to feel our need of Christ, for inspiring us with faith to embrace him, for visiting us with the consolations of pardoning love, for shedding abroad in our hearts, for sealing us to the day of Christ, and for making us to walk in the path of his commandments.

"A living and dying PRAYER for the Humble Believer in the World.

1.

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee!
Let the Water and the Blood,
From thy riven Side which flow'd,
Be of Sin the double cure,
Cleanse me from its Guilt and Pow'r.

2.

"Not the labors of my hands
Can fulfill thy Law's demands:
Could my zeal no respite know,
Could my tears forever flow,
All for Sin could not atone:
Thou must save, and Thou alone!

3.

"Nothing in my hand I bring;
Simply to thy Cross I cling;
Naked, come to Thee for Dress;
Helpless, look to Thee for grace;
Foul, I to the fountain fly:
Wash me, Saviour, or I die!

4.

"While I draw this fleeting breath,—
When my eye-strings break in death,—
When I soar through tracts unknown,—
See Thee on thy Judgment-Throne,—
Rock of ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

3. In his Ps. & Hys., 1776, No. 397, this text was repeated as "A Prayer, living and dying," with the changes given in italics in st. iv.

"While I draw this fleeting breath,
When my eye-strings break in death,
When I soar to worlds unknown,
See Thee on Thy judgment throne:
Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

In tracing out the subsequent history of this hymn we shall deal with its Text, its Use, its Translations, and its Merits and Usefulness.

4. The Text. In the above quotations we have Toplady's original, and his revised text. Of these we must take the latter as that which he regarded as authorised, and indicate subsequent changes by that standard alone. These changes include :—

(1.) The change of st. iii. 1-2 from "Simply to Thy Cross, &c." to "Simple to Thy Cross, &c.," first appeared in Walter Row's ed. of Toplady's Ps. and Hys., 1787.

(2.) "Rock of ages shelter me." This was given in Rippon's Bap. Selection, 1787, and others.

(3.) In the 1810 ed. of Rowland Hill's Coll. of Ps. and Hys., No. 111, st. i.-iii. are given as "Smitten on th' accursed tree."

(4.) The most important rearrangement of the text, and that which has gained as great if not a greater hold upon the public mind than the original, is that made by T. Cotterill, and included in his Sel. of Ps. & Hys., 1815. This reads (the italics indicate the alterations made by Cotterill) :—

1. "Rock of ages! cleft for me:
Let me hide myself in Thee:
Let the Water and the Blood,
From Thy wounded side which flow'd,
Be of sin the double cure;
Save from wrath, and make me pure.

2. "Should my tears for ever flow,
Should my zeal no languor know,
This for sin could not atone:
Thou must save, and Thou alone;
In my hand no price I bring,
Simply to Thy cross I cling.

3. "While I draw this fleeting breath,
When mine eyelids close in death,
When I rise to worlds unknown,
And behold Thee on Thy throne,
Rock of ages! cleft for me:
Let me hide myself in Thee."

(5.) In the 8th ed. of his Sel. of Ps. & Hys., 1819, Cotterill repeated this text with the change in st. i. l. 3, from "From Thy wounded side which flow'd," to "From Thy side, a healing flood." This text was repeated in J. Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, and is found in a large number of hymn-books both old and new.

(6.) The next important change was that made in the 1830 Supplement to the Wes. H. Bk. This text is :—

St. i. Cotterill of 1819, as above.
St. ii. Cotterill's, 1819, with l. 1, "Could my tears," &c. (Toplady); l. 2, "Could my zeal," &c. (Toplady); ll. 3, 4, as in 1819.
St. iii. Cotterill's, 1819, with l. 3, "When my eyes shall close in death."

This is the recognised Methodist version of the hymn in most English-speaking countries.

(7.) In 1830 another version was given by W. J. Hall in the Mitre H. Bk., No. 99, as follows :—

St. i. Cotterill, of 1815.
St. ii. "Were I have none to bring,
Only to Thy cross I cling,
Should my tears for ever flow,
Should my zeal no languor know,
All for sin could not atone;
Thou must save, and Thou alone."
St. iii. Cotterill, 1815, with l. 4, "See Thee on Thy judgment throne" (Toplady).

This text is repeated in The New Mitre Hymnal, 1875.

(8.) The crucial line of the original, "When my eye-strings break in death," has been altered as :—

1. "When mine eyelids close in death." Cotterill, 1815, as above.
2. "When my eyes shall close in death." Wes. H. Bk., 1830, as above.
3. "When my heart-strings break in death." Wilkes's and Bakes's Coll., 1845.
4. "When my eyelids sink in death." J. Kempthorne's Ps. & Hys., 1859.

(9.) Other changes in the text of the hymn might be indicated; but being of minor importance nothing will be gained by their enumeration.

5. Its Use. From 1775 to 1810 this hymn is found in a very limited number of hymn-books. After that date the interest therein grew rapidly until at the present time it is omitted from no hymn-book of merit in the English language. Until Sir R. Palmer's (Lord Selborne) vigorous protest at the Church Congress at York in 1859, most of the altered texts as given above were in common use. Since then in most new hymn-books Toplady's authorised text from his Ps. & Hys., 1776, has been adopted.

6. Translations. In translating this hymn into other languages (and these translations are very numerous and in many languages), the text used has varied with the materials in the hands of the translator, some taking the text direct from Toplady, some from Cotterill, and others from the Wes. H. Bk., or other sources. The following are the first lines of versions in Latin :—

(1.) "Jesu, pro me perforatus." By W. E. Gladstone, made in 1846, and pub. in Translations by Lord Lyttelton, and the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone. Lond. Murray, 1862, p. 1, in 4 st. of 8 l.

(2.) "Mitis Jesu, Rupes dirus." By C. J. Hach, in Bigg's Annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867. This is from the H. A. & M. 1861 text.

(3.) "O rupes asperæ, mihi percusæ, recondar." By Bp. Woodford, in his Hymns, 1867, p. 47, slightly altered, in his Hymns: Christ Jesus, 1870.

(4.) "Rupes aevorum fons quondam." By H. M. Meagli, from Tripody's full text, in his Songs of the Christian Creed and Life, 1876.

(5.) "Sacratissime, pro me fisse." By G. S. Hodges, from the H. A. & M. text, in his The County Palatine, 1877.

(6.) "Rupes Sacratissime, in." By Miss T. Reed, in Burrage's Baptist Hymn Writers, 1889.

7. Merits and Usefulness. The merits of this hymn are of a very high order whether regarded as a sacred lyric, or as a metrical epitome of certain well-known passages of Holy Scripture. The influence which it has had upon the minds of men, especially amongst the more learned, has been very considerable. The fact that it was quoted by and gave great consolation to the late Prince Consort in his last illness is well known. This is one, however, of numerous instances of more than ordinary importance, where it has been a stay and comfort in days of peril, and in the hour of death. No other English hymn can be named which has laid so broad and firm a grasp upon the English-speaking world.

[J. J.]

Rodigast, Samuel, a. of Johann Rodigast, pastor at Gröben near Jena, was b. at Gröben Oct. 19, 1649. He entered the University of Jena in 1668 (M.a. 1671), and was in 1676 appointed adjunct of the philosophical faculty. In 1680 he became conrector of the Gregyrians Gymnasium at Berlin. While in this position he refused the offers of a professorship at Jena and the Rectorships of the Schools at Stade and Stralsund. Finally, in 1698, he became rector of the Gregyrians Gymnasium, and held this post till his death. His tombstone in the Kloster-Kirche in Berlin says he d. "die XXIX. Mart. a. MDCCXIII . . . ætatis anno lix." (Koch, iii. 420; Goedeke's Grundriss, iii. 1087, p. 291 ; ms. from Dr. Nohl of the Greyfriars Gymnasium, &c.). Two hymns have been ascribed to him, one of which has passed into English, viz.:—

Was Gott thut das ist wohlgethan. Es bleibt gerecht sein Wille. Cross and Consolation. This hymn is one of the first rank. It is founded on Deut. xxxii. 4, and has reminiscences of an older hymn by Altenburg (p. 56, i.) beginning with the same first line. Wetzel, ii. 396, says it was written in 1675, while Rodigast was at Jena, for his sick friend Severus Gastorius, promoter (cantor) there, and set to music by Gastorius. It appears in the Hannoversche G. B., Göttingen, 1676, as No. 13 in the Appendix, and is in 6 st. of 8 l. Included in the Schleusingen G. B., 1681, and most recent collections, e.g., as No. 902 in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1865. It was, says Koch, viii. 498, the favourite hymn of Friedrich Wilhelm III. of Prussia, and by his command was performed at his funeral on June 11, 1840.

The beautiful melody, given in the C. B. for England, appears in the Nürnberg G. B., 1698 (not in the ed. of 1676), No. 1220. C. von Winterfeld (Joang. Kirchengesang, ii. p. 107) considered that this was not the melody by Gastorius, but was by Johann Pachelbel of Nürnberg, who was in 1678 appointed organist at Erfurt, and in 1690 organist at Erfurt, in Thuringia, and who had set it in nearly form about 1690.

The trs. in C. U. are :—

1. The will of God is only good. By A. T. Russell, omitting st. iv.–vi., as No. 254 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

2. Whate'er my God ordains is right. His will is ever just. A good and full tr. by Miss Winkworth in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 126. Repeated in full in Bp. Ryle's Coll., 1860, and E. T. Prust's Coll., 1869. Abridged in Dr. Martineau's Hymns, &c. 1873, Hevler's Comp. Hym., 1884, the Amer. Epis. Hym., 1871, &c.

3. Whate'er my God ordains is right, Holy His will abideth. A very good tr., omitting st. iv., and based on her 1858 version, by Miss Winkworth in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 135. Repeated, omitting st. iii. in the Scottish Hymnal, 1869, Snepp's Songs of G. and G., 1871, the Canadian Presb. H. Bk., 1880, and others.

4. What God does, that is rightly done. Allwise. By Miss Bertwick, of st. i., iv.–vi., as No. 235 in Dr. Pagenstecher's Coll., 1864.

5. Whate'er God does is good and right. A good but free tr. by E. Massie in his Sacred Odes, 1866, p. 127. Repeated, omitting the tr. of st. v. in J. L. Porter's Coll., 1876.

6. Whate'er God does is rightly done. A good tr., omitting st. iii., iv., as No. 101 in the Dovar Hymnal, 1871.

7. What God does, ever well is done. By L. Crossewell, omitting st. iv., as No. 408 in the Ohio Luth. Hymnal, 1880.

8. Whate'er God doth is rightly done, Righteous. In full by H. L. Hastings, as No. 723 in his Songs of Pilgrimage, 1886.

Other trs. are :— (1) "What Thou my God dost, all's well done." In Mrs. Bevan's Little Hymns, 1844, p. 16. (2) "What God doth, 'tis well done." In Dr. E. Hill's Hymns, 1846, p. 164. (3) "What God hath done is wisely done." By J. S. Stallybrass, in the Penny Sac. Repertor, July, 1857. (4) "What God doth is divinely done." By Dr. Kennedy, in his Hymn. Christ. & Hym. Dev., 1863, p. 214, and Hall's Praise Book, 1872. (5) "All that God does is rightly done." By J. C. Young, 1869, p. 238. (6) "What God doth, it is all well done." By C. L. Probingham, 1876, p. 161.

[J. M.]

Roh, Johann, was a native of Dunaschitz near Leitmeritz, in Bohemia. Roh was his name in Bohemian, but when he wrote in Latin he styled himself Cornu, and in German Horn. In 1518 he was ordained priest and appointed preacher to the Bohemian Brethren's community at Jungbunzlau, in Bohemia. At the Synod of Brandeis, in Sep. 1520, he was chosen as one of the three Seniors of the Unity. Finally, at the Synod of Brandeis, in April 1532, he was appointed Bishop, and held this post till his death, at Jungbunzlau, Feb. 11, 1547. (Koch, ii. 114 ; Wackernagel, i. p. 727, &c.)

Roh was the editor of the Bohemian H. Bk. of 1541, and the author of many hymns in the Old Bohemian language, but the ed. of 1561 only gives one with his name. He also edited the second German hymn-book of the Brethren, viz., Ein Gesangbuch der Brüder aus Behmen und Mehren, Nürnberg, 1544; and the ed. of 1566 contains 47 hymns by him, nearly all, of the 53 hymns there added. Another hymn ("O heiliger Vater, gütiger Herr") is also given with his name in the Kirchengesang, 1566. (See further under Bohemian Hymnody, pp. 158-160, and Weisse, M.) A considerable number of Roh's hymns passed into the Lutheran hymn-books of the 16th and 17th centuries, and into the Moravian H. Bks. of the 18th cent. Either curiously in the last Moravian H. Bk. (the Kleines Gesangbuch, Gnadau, 1870), his name is not found in the list of authors.

Those of Roh's hymns which have been tr. into English are :—

i. Gottes Sohn ist kommen. Christmas. In 1544, as above, and thence in Wackernagel, iii. p. 350, in 9 st. of 6 l. The heading "Ave Hierarchia" refers to the melody, for it is not a tr. from the Latin. Included in V. Babst's G. B., Leipzig, 1553, and recently in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 6. Strangely enough this fine hymn was omitted from the Kirchengesang of 1566 and later eds.; and though it was included in the Herrnhut G. B., 1735, and the Brüder G. B., 1778, it has again been omitted from the Kleines G. B., 1870. The trs. are :—

1. Le! from highest heaven. A free tr. of st. i.–iii., v., by A. T. Russell, as No. 27 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851. Included, altered, in Kennedy, 1863.

2. Once He came in blessing. A good tr. of st. i.–iii., v., by Miss Winkworth, in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 26. Included in J. Robinson's Coll., 1869, and the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868.

3. God's Son came descending. This is No. 249 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

Hymns not in English C. U. :—

ii. Betrachte wer hest es dieser Feiertag. Easter. 1544 as above, and in Wackernagel, iii. p. 353, in 12 st. of 8 l. Tr. as (1) "The Saviour Jesus, Friend of Man," As No. 332 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754. This is from the recast "Der selge Heiland, Jesus Christ" (based on Luther's, as No. 1478 in Appendix xii. c. 1748, and in the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

iii. Ein starker Held ist uns kommen. Christmas. 1544 as above, and in Wackernagel, iii. p. 351, in 12 st. of 4 l. Tr. as (1) "God took our nature upon Him (st. iii.)," as No. 25 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

iv. Lob Gott gebrost mit singen. Christian Church. 1544 as above, and in Wackernagel, iii. p. 352, in 7 st. of 8 l. In the Kirchengesang, 1566, two st. were inserted between iii. and iv. This form, in 11 st., is No. 249 in the Unv. L. S., 1851. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 1016, in 9 sts. (from st. vi., viii., ix. of the 11 sts. of 1566), as "Lob Gott gebrost mit singen und mit sachen erschallen," and this form has been tr. as "O be not thou dismayed, Believing little band," as No. 508 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1886.

v. O Mensch, thu hast kinn. Passiontide. 1544 as above, and in Wackernagel, iii. p. 354, in 7 st. of 8 l. At p. 127 in this Dictionary it is marked as a tr. from the Bohemian. The English version is "I see thy Lord and God" (st. ii.), as No. 186, in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

[J. M.]

Roman Catholic Hymnody, English, I. It is only during the last thirty or forty years that the attention of Roman Catholics in Great Britain has become widely awakened to the subject of congregational singing, and the treasures of hymnody in their own Office Books. There is even now room for much further diffusion of knowledge on the matter. Considering how many are the hymns of singular power and beauty, venerable, sled through their long use, which are contained in the Roman Missal, Office, and Breviary, it is surprising that Roman Catholic poets did not, long before the present century, render them more frequently into English verse.

2. The history of Roman Catholic Hymnody in Great Britain is beset with difficulties, arising from the rarity of the earlier books in which the little that was done at the first is found, and from the unsystematic use of the facts that are known. In the stormy days of Elizabeth and James I., when the celebration of Divine Service according to the Roman Use exposed both priest and worshipper to the severest penalties, it was not to be expected that Roman Catholic Hymnody could possibly flourish. Something, however, was done. "Jerusalem, my happy home" (p. 186, i.), and some noteworthy hymns and carols found amongst the poems of Robert Southwell, date from that period. Southwell, an English Jesuit, was born in Norfolk in 1560, and was hanged, drawn and quartered under a charge of constructive treason against Queen Elizabeth in 1595. He was the author of numerous sententious poems, an edition of which was published in London in 1630; and more recently a critical and more complete edition has been privately printed by Dr. Grosart. His "New Prince, new Pomp," is a good specimen of his verse (p. 818, ii.). It begins :—

"Behold a silly, tender Babe
In freezing winter night."

It is fit to be sung as a Christmas hymn, and is far beyond much of the sacred poetry of Elizabeth's time. His translation of the "Lauda Sion" is good, and the earliest translation of that hymn into English yet known.

3. On the dispersion of the English Roman Catholics, and their settlement at Antwerp and Brussels, at Paris and Rheims, and at St. Omer's and Rome, they began to issue books of devotion, and trs. from the Latin with versions of the Old Church hymns. These trs. of the Primer were frequently reprinted. That at Antwerp, for instance, was issued in 1599, 1604, 1650, and 1658, with the Preface signed "R. V." These initials are probably those of Robert Verstegan, a well-known printer then at work at Antwerp, and the author of The Restitution of Decayed Intelligence, and a metrical version of the Seven Penitential Psalms, 1601. A Mechlin ed. of 1615, reprinted at St. Omer, 1619, and, again (place not given), in 1632, contained versions possibly by William Drummond. William Habington wrote nothing that can be called a hymn. Two anonymous trs., however, of Cardinal Damiani's Ad perennis vitæ fontem, one issued in Paris in 1631 in p. 2*v.* of St. Augustine's Manuall, and the second in a 8*v.* of the Confessions, 1679, show that there was no lack of power or poetic genius amongst the Roman Catholics of that period. The following are specimens from each :—

1631.

"The Fields are green, the Plants do thrive,
The streams with Honey flow ;
From Spices, Odours, and from Gums
Sweet Fragrancies do grow.
Palms long upon whose Heads of Trees :
And they shall still do so.

"The Season is not chang'd for still Both Sun and Moon are bright,
The Lamb of this fair City is That clear, Immortal Light,
Which Presence makes a Day
Which never ends in Night."

1679.

"Here Unguents, Spices, Liquors offer
Scents aromatical ;
Milk-bearing trees each apples proffer
Of Taste delectable.
Here Cornfields seen, there meadows green,
Honey streams glide between.

"No varying Moon, nor starry frame
Diversifies the Year:
Nor Sun, but the all-glorious Lambe
Brings light to that blest sphere:
Dark Night is there no more, nor Night,
Makes day without a vigil."

The passionate and melodious hymns of Richard Crashaw (q.v.) are hardly fitted for congregational use. He translated, amid a variety of other pieces, the "Lauda Sion" of St. Thomas Aquinas; and imitated, with some success, the mellifluous versification of the original. Austin's hymns (see English Hymnody, Early, § x.) were published in his Devotions, in 1668, and in 1672, 1684, and two editions in 1685. Although these hymns are of some merit, they are used chiefly outside of Austin's own communion, and in the form handed down by Durrington and Hickes.

4. John Dryden, who in common with Crashaw and Austin, was originally a member of the Church of England, was the most noted of a group of translators who in the Primers of the seventeenth century made translations of the Latin hymns from the Reformed Roman Breviary form of 1632. Some of these translations are still found in a few Roman Catholic manuals and hymnals. Dryden's translation of the "Veni Creator Spiritus" :—

"Creator Spirit, by Whose aid
The world's foundations first were laid";

published as early as 1693, is the best known example. Two other translations by him are given in Scott's Dryden, and repeated in the recent editions of Dryden's Poems. There is strong internal evidence and some traditional grounds for believing that these are but specimens of his efforts in this direction (see Dryden). The 1685 ed. of the Primer is of this date, although Dryden can scarcely be said to have had any share in the production of the work. A Roman Primer of 1687 contains these translations of the 1685 Primer, and a few which were new.

5. During the eighteenth century very little was done. Alexander Pope held fast to his religion in the midst of much of the false philosophy of his day. He composed in the spirit of a true Christian the exquisite Ode which was suggested by the Emperor Adrian's:

"Animula, vagula, blandula, Hospes comesque corporis,"

It is the well-known "Vital spark of heavenly flame." His Messiah and his Universal Prayer have given several centos to modern hymn-books. [See Pope, A.] Amongst translations not generally known is one by "T. F." published about 1740, of St. Thomas Aquinas's "Lauda Sion." Although departing from the original metre, it is fairly meritorious. The last stanza reads :—

"Gracious Jesus, Food divine,
Preserve us, feed us, last we stray;
And through the lonely Vale of Time
Conduct us to the Realms of Day.
Sacred Shepherd, hear our Cry,
Matchless greatness! boundless Might!
Fed by Thy Care, thy Bounty bless,
Hereafter give thy Flock a place
Amongst thy Guests, a chosen Race,
To the feasts of everlasting Size."

In 1703 a complete translation of the Roman Breviary was pub. in 4 vols., with new translations of the hymns: but it was late in the century before anything approaching to the style and manner of the modern hymn-book appeared, with the exception of an isolated translation of a popular hymn or two as the "Adoste Fideles." In 1721 a most extraordinary Collection of Spiritual Songs was issued by Bishop John Gordon, in connection with Bishop John Hay, for the use of the Scottish Northern Roman Catholics. This was reprinted in 1802, and again in 1823, with additions and alterations. The hymns are written in familiar Scottish airs, the result being a hymnal which ranks amongst the most curious in the whole range of English hymnody.

6. In the present century one of the first, if not the first, collection of hymns for the use of English Roman Catholics was published by the Rev. George L. Haydock, as A Collection of Catholic Hymns, or Religious Songs, York, 1823. From the Preface it appears that two editions, previously issued in 1805 and 1807, were edited by the Rev. Nicholas Alain Gilbert, and that this York edition is that of 1807 reprinted in full. It contains hymns by Austin; Dryden's "Veni Creator"; some from the 17th century Manual of Prayers and Litanies; a fine piece by Nicholas Poskett, 1690, which is alluded to in the Preface; translations from St. Francis Xavier and St. Bernard; a ballad of John Taylor and the Beggar, which, in its prose form, is frequently appended to the early translations of St. Francis de Sales's Introduction to a Devout Life; and some of the earliest, if not the earliest, translations from the Paris Breviary. Another collection by Haydock, published at Whitby, 1823, is a clear and distinct departure from these old lines. It is A Collection of Catholic Psalms, Hymns, Motetos, Anthems, and Doxologies: is appended to the former collection, and adds 39 hymns thereto, in addition to the Motetts and Anthems, and 18 Doxologies. Many of the hymns are altered from J. Pauch and D. Turner, I. Watts, B. Rhodes, J. Montgomery, and C. Wesley. Daniel French; J. R. Beste in his Catholic Hours, a family prayer-book with hymns, 1839; and Dr. Hunsbeth in his Roman Missal for the Use of the Laity, 1840, and his Vespers Book of 1841 bring us down to the works and the labourers of the past forty years.

7. In many of the books of devotion in use among the Roman Catholics of Great Britain, there are English versions of the Latin hymns occurring in the Mass, Vespers, and Benediction, which compose the ordinary public services on Sundays: and these versions are not bound to be strictly uniform. An exceedingly popular Manual is The Garden of the Soul, and it contains a version by the Rev. E. Caswall, of the "Hymn to our Saviour Jesus, abridged from St. Bernard." The frequent hearing, singing, and repeating three affecting words :—

"Jesus, the very thought of Thee,
With sweetness fills my breast;
But sweeter far Thy face to see,
And in Thy presence rest."

with the remainder, have treasured it in the memory of multitudes of the faithful; and is a fair specimen of the translated Latin Hymns and Sequences which are found in a large number of modern Roman Catholic prayer-books. They do not always show translations of the first order, but they are sufficiently good for practical purposes, and may be supplemented by those of the Rev. E. Caswall; of Cardinal Newman; and The Roman Breviary in English, by the Marquess of Bute, 1879. In this last are given versions of the hymns, antiphons, &c., by various hands.

8. The leading translators are Cardinal Newman, and the Rev. E. Caswall. Others might be named, but their productions are either limited in number, or inferior in quality. The art of translation is a very rare and difficult one. Many compositions which might pass if accepted as originals, would fall altogether if presented to critical eyes as versions of old and approved hymns of the Church. It is the brightness and delicacy of touch which distinguish the work of a master in translation from the failures of an apprentice. The Verses on Various Occasions, 1868, by Cardinal Newman, contain a priceless collection of hymns for Matins, Lauds, Prime, Tierce, Sext, None, and Vespers, on the different days of the week respectively; for Compline, Matins and Lauds of Advent, and the Transfiguration, for a Martyr, and for a Confessor Bishop. These are full of music and sweetness, of energy and light, which could spring from nothing but genius and long practice in the art. Cardinal Newman is one of the great readers of Roman Catholic Hymnody, not, indeed, through publishing a complete hymnbook, but by being, one might almost say, in himself a type of rhythmical utterance, and the author of several hymns and translations of supreme excellence. The Rev. E. Caswall (q.v.), more than any other, has enriched English Roman Catholic hymnody with a large number of beautiful translations from the Latin. See, for example, his version of the hymn of Prudentius, "Bethlehem of noblest cities." How elegant is both the language and rhythm. How excellently, also, he has translated that sweetest of mediæval hymns, the hymn of St. Bernard, "Jesu dulcis memoria" ("Jesu, the very thought of Thee"), noted above.

9. Amongst the original hymn-writers Dr. Faber takes the highest rank. His hymns, sung at the Oratory, are often remarkable for true poetry. Among these may be mentioned "Jesus is Risen," "The Immaculate Conception," "To our Blessed Lady," "The Will of God," and the "Evening Hymn." Faber has done more than any other Englishman to promote congregational singing amongst the Roman Catholics in Great Britain. The congregation to which he was attached entered into his hymns fervently, and from them they spread to others. He certainly perceived and appreciated, as a scholar, and from his standpoint as a Roman Catholic, the double advantage possessed by a Church which sings both in an ancient and modern tongue, making two-fold melody continually unto God. He did not prize the less the magnificent hymns of Christian antiquity in Latin, because he taught congregations to sing in the English of to-day. His indebtedness to the Olney Hymns, and to the Wesleys, he freely acknowledges in his Preface to Jesus and Mary, 1849. To these three—Cardinal Newman, Caswall, and Faber—the Roman Catholic Hymnody in England principally owes its revival.

10. Other names of less importance from a hymnological point of view remain to be noted. If Thomas Moore could be regarded as a Roman Catholic, as he is reckoned by his friend and biographer, Lord John Russell, we should not be able to pass over some Sacred Melodies of his which are well-known, and of extreme beauty. But the work published under the title of Sacred Songs, in 1816, has become so popular, and they are so constantly claimed as the productions of one who attended habitually the Anglican services, that we are unwilling to advance a disputable profession. Besides, exquisite as they are, they have nothing in them that stamps them with any certain mark of the religion in which Moore was brought up in childhood. "Thou art, O God, the Life and Light"; "O Thou Who dry'st the mourner's tear"; "The turf shall be my fragrant shrine"; "Round the loud timbrel," and many others, are all of them steeped in that tenderness which breathes deeply our human nature, when under the influence of Divine grace. Miss Adelaide Anne Procter had passed a considerable portion of her life before she entered the Roman Catholic Church. She was born in 1835, but did not join the Roman communion until 1851. Sometimes she is truly lyrical, and her verses, Conflits et Conquêts, would be suitable for congregational singing. The same may be said of Our Daily Bread. She does not write in the mere routine of pious verse. Her Sent to Heaven is lovely of its kind. She is a thinker, but her poetry is more adapted to reading than to practical psalmody. Religion had taken deep root in her mind, and her days were passed in acts of self-denying charity. Other translators and original writers include the Rev. T. J. Potter, who translated about nearly all the Vesper hymns in the Catholic Tractarist, 1838; Aylward, Porter, Raven, Wallace, Coffin, Russell; H. N. Oxenham, a writer of known ability in ecclesiastical subjects in the Saturday Review; Canon F. Oakeley, a scholar of classical tastes; Aubrey de Vere, a true poet, author of Arbor and Zara, and many other volumes; Charles Kent, and Robert Campbell. Matthew Bridges has also struck nobly many a note of adoration in his Hymns of the Heart for the Use of Catholics, 1848, of which, "Rise, glorious Conqueror, arise," and The Seraph's Song, "Crown Him with many crowns," may be taken as samples.

11. In addition to the Oratory Hymns of the Rev. F. W. Faber, a cheap and popular Roman Catholic hymn-book, pub. by Burns and Oates, has come into very extensive use. It is entitled, Hymns for the Year, a complete Collection for Schools, Missions, and General Use, 1867. It contains 388 of the best-known and most frequently used Roman Catholic hymns; and is found, together with the Oratory Hymns of Dr. Faber, to be an invaluable treasure to Roman Catholics. Some of the "Sacred Songs" touching the Communion of Saints are peculiar to Roman Catholic worship. Nothing, however, can exceed the fervour and depth of devotion and adoration to be found in the hymns addressed to the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit;

the Sacred Trinity, and our Lord in his Human and Divine nature. Such, to name a few only, are, "My God, how wonderful Thou art"; "It is my constant comfort, Lord"; "O brightness of Eternal Light"; "I met the Good Shepherd"; and "Lead me to Thy peaceful manger."

12. The latest addition to Roman Catholic Hymnody, is the Avena Sanctus, 1884, of Mr. Orby Shipley. It is a work of great value, and the Appendix, containing earlier versions of Latin hymns, is the result of much diligent research on Mr. Shipley's part. In this Appendix will be found the heads of families of versions of Vesper hymns taken from the Primers of 1604, 1615, 1685, and 1706. These versions of some of the best-known Latin hymns have a religious, a poetic, an historic, and an ecclesiastical value. They will be a real boon to literature in a branch that has been little cultivated, and, to say the truth, undeservedly neglected.

13. The following list contains most of the works associated with English Roman Catholic Hymnody (except the Primers, p. 998), which are noticed above :—

1. A Collection of Spiritual Songs. By Rt. Hon. Geddes. 1720, 1852, and 1923.
2. A Collection of Catholic Hymns; or Religious Songs, &c. Edited by the Rev. N. A. Gilbert, Whitby, 1841; 2nd ed. Manchester, 1847; 3rd ed. edited by the Rev. Canon Gilbert, 1851.
3. A Collection of Catholic Praises, Hymns, Motetts, Anthems, and Canticles. By the Rev. O. L. Shipbeck, Whitby, 1933.
4. Catholic Psalter, 1830.
5. Catholic Hours; A Family Prayer-Book with Hymns. 1851, 1852, and 1853.
6. Roman Manual for the Use of the Laity. By Dr. F. C. Husenbeth. Derby, T. Richardson & Sons, 1840.
7. Vespers. By Dr. F. C. Husenbeth. 1841.
8. Jesus and Mary. By F. W. Faber. London, 1849.
9. Hymns, Ancient and Modern, for Congregational Use. Hymns, with others From Various Sources Translated by Edward Caswall, M.A. London, 1849.
10. Church Hymns, in English, that may be sung to the Old Church Music. With Appendices. And other Original Poems. By J. Richard Beste, Esq. London, 1849.
11. Catholic Hymns arranged in order for the principal Festivals, Feasts of Saints, and other occasions of devotion throughout the year; with woodcuts. London, Dublin, & Derby, Richardson, 1850.
12. Oratory Hymns. By F. W. Faber. London, 1854.
13. Manna of Mary and other Poems. By E. Caswall. London, 1858.
14. Hymns for Holy Days; with the Approbation of His Eminence Cardinal Wiseman. London, 1860.
15. Saint Winefride's Hymn Book; A Collection of Sacred Hymns for Church Festivals, Retreats, &c. London, n.d. [1866.]
16. Hymns for the Approved Catholic Hymns for the Use of Schools. Glasgow, 1861.
17. St. Patrick's Catholic Hymn-Book. London, 1862.
18. Liturgical Hymns for the Chief Festivals of the Year, Selected from the Offices of the Catholic Church, and Translated from the Latin, with Original Hymns for the Seasons and New Church Music. By Francis Duggan, Catholic Priest. The Music edited by William J. Maher, S. J. London [1866].
19. Lyra Liturgica; Selections in Verse for Holy Days, from the Offices of the Church. By Orby Shipley.
20. Verses on Various Occasions. London, 1867. [Cardinal Newman. Mainly reprints from his Verses of 1853.]
21. Hymns and Poems; Original and Translated. By the Rev. Matthew Bridges, Author of "The Passion of Mary, and other poems and hymns in a collected form.] London, 1873.
22. Collection of Hymns for the Use of the Children of St. Andrew's Congregation. Glasgow, 1875.
23. Hymns for Catholic Schools. Compiled by the Rev. Langton Garrow Ford. London, 1877.
24. Hymns arranged according to the Ecclesiastical Year for use in Catholic Churches. Glasgow, 1879.
25. The Roman Breviary [in English]. By the Marquess of Bute. London, 1879.
26. The Dominican Hymn Book with Vespers and Compline. London, 1881.
27. The Catholic Hymn-Book. Containing the Hymns sung at St. George's Cathedral, Southwark. Compiled by the Rev. Joseph Roche. London (3rd ed. 1887).
28. Hymns by the Rev. James Connolly, M.R. London (4th ed. 1882).
29. Annus Sanctus. Hymns of the Church, for the Sundays and Festivals, Translated from the Sacred Offices by Various Authors, with Modern, Original, and Other Hymns, and an Appendix of Earlier Versions. Selected and Arranged by Orby Shipley, M.A. London and New York, 1884.
30. The Catholic Psalmist. Compiled by C. B. Lyons, Dublin, 1885.
31. Hymns for the Year. A Complete Collection for Schools, Missions, and General Use. London, n.d. [Dr. Rawes, 1887.]
32. Hymns, Original and Selected. By the Rev. H. A. Rawes, M.A. London, n.d. [Hymns by H. A. Rawes and F. W. Faber.]
33. The Catholic Hymnal. Hymns Selected for Public and Private Use. London, n.d. [1886].
34. The Office of Compline. Containing Compline, Benediction, Office of Immaculate Conception, Mass for Children, and all the English and Latin Hymns in the Crown of Anne Prayer Book, &c. London, n.d. [1892].
35. The Parochial H. Bk. New and revised ed. London, n.d. [1892]. [With Music and Words.]
36. Catholic Hymns, with Holy Mass for Children, &c. Dublin, n.d.

In addition to these there are also the publications of Matthew Bridges, Aubrey de Vere, Adelaide A. Procter, T. J. Potter, Lady Georgiana Fullerton, and others, from which hymns have been gathered to enrich the various hymn books published for the use of Schools, Missions, and other purposes.

[J. C. E.]

Romanus. The chief of the Middle School of Greek hymn-writers. He was a native of Emesa, deacon of Beryta, and became attached to the church of Blachern at Constantinople. In that church he had a vision of the Mother of God, who gave him a piece of a roll (κεφαλις) to eat. He did so, and found himself endowed with the power of making Contakia (Ncale, Hist. Eccl. Church, quoting Menæa). He is said to have written a thousand of these poems, but whether this means a thousand of the long strophes, which are interlaced among the Odes in the present Greek office books, or a thousand of the long poems, which Cardinal Pitra has discovered under the name of Contakia, cannot be determined. The date of his pieces must be found either as 491–518 or 713–719, the reigns of Anastasius the 1st or the 2nd, as he is said to have come to Constantinople in the reign of Anastasius. The downfall into which his hymns had fallen in the 8th century is perhaps in favour of the earlier date, and the long hymn of Methodius at such an early period as 311 (see Greek Hymnody, § v. 2) allows the possibility of such long productions at the close of the 3rd century (see Greek Hymnody, § xii. 1). Of his hymns, one only has been rendered into English. It is a Contakion, or short hymn, found in the office for Christmas Day :—Τὴν Ἔνδοξον Παρθένον θεοτόκε, Before Thyself, and republished by Dr. Littledale in his Offices, &c., of the H. E. Church, 1863, p. 76. Dr. Littledale's tr. in thank verse is, "Bethlehem hath opened Eden," same work, p. 197. This has been turned into S.6.6.6.7.7 measure by W. Chatterton Dix, and was pub. in Lyra Messianica, 1864, p. 102.

[H. L. D.]

Rooke, Thomas, M.A., was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, B.A. 1848, M.A. 1851. Taking holy orders in 1848, he held several curacies and chaplaincies in Ireland till 1881, when he was preferred to the Vicarage of Feckenham, Redditch, diocese of Worcester. Three of his hymns appeared in A. J. Scholefield's Universal H. Bk., 1885 :—

1. Come to Thy Church, O Lord our God. Consecration of a Church.
2. Father of Heaven! Who of old. For use in Hospitals.
3. O God the Holy Ghost, from Father and from Son. For use in Hospitals.

[J. J.]

Rooker, Elizabeth. [Parker, E.]

Rorison, Gilbert, LL.D., S. of John Rorison, a merchant of Glasgow, was b. in Benfield Street, Glasgow, Feb. 7, 1821. He was educated at Glasgow University, and at that time he was a member of the United Presbyterian Church. Subsequently he joined the Scottish Episcopal Church, and, after studying for the ministry at Edinburgh under Bishops Terrot and Russell, was ordained by the latter in 1843. He was for some time curate of St. James's, Leith, and of the Episcopal Church, Helensburgh, and then Incumbent of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Peterhead. He d. at Bridge of Allan, Oct. 11, 1869. In 1851 he edited Hys. and Anthems adjusted to the Church Services throughout the Christian Year, Lond., Hope & Co. (Revised, 1860; Appx. 1869. See Scottish Hymnody, § vii. 2). This contains several of his trs. from the Latin. He is widely known through his "Three in One, and One in Three" (q. v.).

[J. J.]

Roscoe Family. In English Unitarian hymnody William Roscoe and three of his children hold honourable positions and are widely known. Taking the father and the children in chronological order we have :—

Roscoe, William, the father, was b. March 8, 1753, in Liverpool, of humble origin. After very meagre schooling, and three years of work in his father's market garden, he was articled to an attorney, and subsequently practised in Liverpool till 1796, when he withdrew from the profession. From the first literature was his chief delight, and throughout a long career of public usefulness he united its pursuit with the efforts of enlightened patriotism and the advocacy of higher education and reform. Liverpool was a centre of the old slave-trade, and Roscoe was one of the first to raise his voice against the iniquity. At the age of 20 he had already uttered a protest in his descriptive poem Mount Pleasant, and in 1787 he pub. a longer poem, The Wrongs of Africa (vol. ii. 1788), devoted to the subject. During his brief parliamentary experience as member for Liverpool, in 1807, he had further opportunity of advocating the cause of liberty and humanity. His first great historical work, the Life of Lorenzo de Medici, was pub. in 1796, and the Life and Pontificate of Leo the Tenth, in 1805. After withdrawing from his legal practice, Roscoe had hoped to be able to devote himself entirely to letters, but the claims of friendship induced him in 1799 to enter into a banking business, which involved him in commercial troubles, ending in 1820 in his bankruptcy. His library had to be sold, but part of it was bought by friends, and presented to the Liverpool Athenæum, which in 1799 Roscoe had been instrumental in founding. In 1822 he pub. Illustrations of the Life of Lorenzo de Medici, defending the views adopted in his former history, and two years later edited a new edition of Pope's works, with a life of the poet. He died June 30, 1831. (Cf. The Life of William Roscoe, by his son, Henry Roscoe, in 2 vols., London, T. Cadell, 1833.) As a member of the congregation of Unitarians meeting in Renshaw Street Chapel, Liverpool, Roscoe took part in preparing A Selection of Psalms and Hymns for Public and Private Worship, printed for their use in 1818. He contributed eight hymns and the concluding anthem. Of these hymns the following are in C. U. at the present time :—

1. Let our lond song of praise arise. Praise.
2. Go, suffering habitant of earth. Life, a Warfare.
3. Great God, beneath Whose piercing eye. Divine Providence.
4. Thus said Jesus, Go and do. Love to our Neighbour.
5. What is the first and great command? The Commandments.

These hymns are in several Unitarian collections, including Martineau's Hymns, 1840. No. 3 was written in 1788, as a "secular hymn" of ten stanzas, to be sung at the Bess's Garden Chapel on the Centenary of the Revolution.

Roscoe, William Stanley, the son, was b. in 1782, and d. in 1843. He was educated by Dr. Shepherd, of Gateacre, and at Peterhouse, Cambridge. He was in his father's bank till the failure in 1820, after which he held an office in the Liverpool Court of Passage. His Poems were pub. in 1824. His hymn "Almighty God, in prayer to Thee" (Death anticipated) appeared in the Liverpool Renshaw Street Coll., 1818. It is also in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1840, and later collections.

Roscoe, Mary Ann, a daughter, was b. in 1795, married to Thomas Jevons, 1825, and d. in 1845. She edited Poems for Youth, by a Family Circle, Lond., 1820, to which her brothers and sister contributed. From 1821 she also edited The Sacred Offering, an Annual of original and selected poetry (Liverpool, D. Marple & Co.). Her 7 hymns were pub. in her Sonnets and other Poems, chiefly Devotional, in 1845. Of her hymns three are still in C. U. :—

1. (Now) O let your mingling voices rise. Christmas.
2. Come, let us meet go forth above, my soul. South Assembled.
3. When human hopes and joys depart. In Trouble and Affliction.

Of these No. 3 was first pub. in her Poems for Youth, &c., 1820.

Roscoe, Jane, a second daughter, was b. in 1797, married to Francis Hornblower in 1838, and d. in 1853. Her Poems by one of the Authors of Poems for Youth by a Family Circle, were pub. in 1820, and her Poems in 1845. Her hymns in C. U. are :—

1. How rich the blessings, O my God. Gratitude. In the Liverpool Renshaw Street Coll. 1857.
2. My Father, when around me spread. Peace in Affliction. Appeared in the Monthly Repository, Dec. 1829, and in her Poems, 1845.
3. O God, to Thee Who fain hast given. Self-Consecration. In Poems for Youth, 1826.
4. Thy will be done, I will not fear. Resignation.

[W. D. L.]

Rossetti, Christina Georgina, daughter of Gabriel, and sister of Dante Gabriel and William Michael Rossetti, was b. in London, Dec. 5, 1830, and received her education at home. Her published works include:—(1) Goblin Market, and Other Poems, 1862. (2) The Prince's Progress, and Other Poems, 1866; (3) Poems, mainly a reprint of Nos. 1 and 2, 1875; (4) A Pageant, and Other Poems, 1881, &c.

In addition, Miss Rossetti has published several prose works, as:—Annus Domini (a book of prayers for every day in the year), 1874; Letter and Spirit of the Decalogue, 1883, and others. She has written very few hymns avowedly for church worship, but several centos have been compiled from her poems, and have passed into several hymnbooks. These include:—

1. Dead is thy daughter, trouble not the Master. Part of the poem "Dead before death," in her Goblin Market, &c., 1862, into Lyra Mystica, 1865.

2. God the Father, give us grace. Invocation of the Holy Trinity. From Lyra Mystica into the Sarum Hymnary, for use in the Chapel Royal, Savoy (see No. 3 below).

3. I here with thee long weary days and nights. The Love of Christ. From her Goblin Market, &c., 1862, into Lyra Mystica, 1864.

4. I would have gone, God bade me stay. Resignation. From her Poems, 1875, into Hedge's Cong. Hymns, 1884, &c.

5. Once I thought to sit so high. A Holy lent Thou prepared Me, or Passiontide. Contributed to Lyra Eucharistica, 1863.

6. The Advent among chines cold and clear. Advent. From her Goblin Market, &c., 1862.

7. The flowers that bloom in sun and shade. The Eternity of God. In Mrs. C. Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1865.

8. What are those that glow from afar? Martyrs. Part of the poem "We must in joy though we sow in tears," in her Prince's Progress, &c., 1866. In the most widely used of her hymns. No. 2 above is also from the same poem.

Miss Rossetti's verses are profoundly suggestive and lyrical, and deserve a larger place than they occupy in the hymnody of the church. Her sonnets are amongst the finest in the English language. [W. G. H.]

Rothe, Johann Andreas, s. of Augustus Rothe, pastor at Lissa, near Görlitz, in Silesia, was b. at Lissa, May 12, 1688. He entered the University of Leipzig in 1708, as a student of Theology, graduated M.A., and was then, in 1713, licensed at Görlitz as a general preacher. In 1718 he became tutor in the family of Herr von Seltvenitz at Lenke, a few miles south of Görlitz, and while there frequently preached in neighbouring churches. During 1722 Count N. L. von Zinzendorf, happening to hear him preach at Gross-Henneredorf, was greatly pleased with him, and when the pastorate at Berthelsdorf became vacant shortly thereafter, gave him the presentation. He entered on his duties at Berthelsdorf Aug. 20, 1722. There he took a great interest in the Moravian community at Herrnhut, which formed part of his parish. But when, in 1727, he had to report to the higher ecclesiastical authorities regarding the doctrinal views of the Moravians, Zinzendorf showed his resentment in various ways, so that Rothe was glad to accept a call to Hennsdorf, near Görlitz. Finally, in 1730, Count von Promnitz appointed him assistant pastor at Thommendorf, near Bunzlau, whose he became chief pastor in 1742, and d. there July 6, 1758. (Koch, v. 240; Wetzer's & H., ii. 756, &c.)

Rothe was a man of considerable gifts and of unbending integrity, a good theologian, and an earnest, fearless, and impressive preacher. His hymns, about 40 in number, were published in 1726 and 1727 (see below), and are yet often characterized by glow and tenderness of feeling, and by depth of Christian experience. They are somewhat akin to Zinzendorf's better productions, but this resemblance may arise from the alterations which Zinzendorf made in them. Several of Rothe's best known of them first appeared in Zinzendorf's hymnbooks, and were for a time looked upon with suspicion, because as Zinzendorf did not affix authors' names, the new hymns were at first all ascribed to himself.

Those of Rothe's hymns which have passed into English are:—

1. Ich habe nun den Grund gefunden. Joy in Believing. 1st pub. in Zinzendorf's Christ-Catholisches Singen- und Bet-Büchlein, 1727, p. 98, and in the 2nd ed. (n.d., but probably in the end of 1727 or beginning of 1728) of his Sammlung g. u. l. Lieder (1st ed., 1725), as No. 934, in 10 st. of 8 l.; and repeated in the later Mornian H. Bk., e.g. the Herrnhut G. B., 1735, No. 255, Bruder G. B., 1778, No. 966, &c. At first the Lutherans suspected it, thinking that it was by Zinzendorf, but on discovering that it was by Rothe, soon adopted it. It is a powerful and beautiful hymn, is found in many recent German collections (e.g. the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1865, No. 73), and in its English forms has found a very wide acceptance, and proved a comfort and blessing to many. It was doubtless suggested by Heb. vi. 19.

In the Historisch Nachricht (to the Brüder G. B., 1778), ed. 1810, p. 176, it is said to have been written for Zinzendorf's birthday, May 26, 1726. This is probably a misprint for 1725, and the hymn, as will be seen above, was published in 1727. In 1734 Rothe received 100 florins as return for the hymn, "Christum über alles lieben," which Zinzendorf had sent to Rothe in 1732 (in the Sammlung, 1725, No. 664, and in the Deutsche Gottlieb, 1735, p. 30, marked as "on a friend's birthday"). Koch (v. 240) and Wetzer & Welte (ii. 756) rather suggest 1725 as the date of Rothe's hymn, only in that case Zinzendorf would almost certainly have included it in the Sammlung of 1725. Zinzendorf, it may be added, gives in his Deutsche Gottlieb two other pieces for birthdays, viz. "Ich bin ja nicht mehr mein" (p. 29), "on his 26th birthday (beginning "Wie von der Erde ist"), the other dated 1726, for his 40th birthday (beginning "Der Du der Herren König bist.")

Rothe's hymn under consideration ("Ich habe nun") has been tr. as:—

1. Now I have found the ground wherein. A fine but somewhat free tr. of st. i., ii., iv., v., vi., x., by J. Wesley. Mr. J. G. Stevenson, in his Methodist H. Bk. Notes, 1883, p. 46, speaks thus regarding it:—

"When the translation of this hymn was finished John Wesley sent a copy of it to P. H. Molther, one of the Moravian Brethren, who was then in London. On 23 January, 1744, M. Molther returns the translation with his approval of all but one verse, which Mr. Wesley altered as suggested." The altered stanza begins "O Love, thou bottomless abyss." Mr. Stevenson adds that the hymn "was sung at the funeral of the Rev. Messrs. J. W. Fletcher, vicar of Madeley (d. 1785), and of Edward Rickonseth, rector of Watton (d. 1808).

In 1740 the tr. as thus revised was included in the Wesley Hys. & Sac. Poems (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. i., p. 279). It was thence transferred to the Moravian H. Bk., 1742, a tr. of st. iii. of the German, made by P. H. Molther, being added in the 1789 and later eds. It was also included in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 182 (1875, No. 189), and has been repeated in very many English and American collections, but as a rule abridged; the full form being however in Mercer's C. P. & H. Bk.; the Cong. Hyl., 1887; and Boardman's Sel., Philadelphia, U. S., 1861. It has also appeared in full, or abridged, under the following first lines:—

(1) Now I have found the blessed ground (st. i.) Lady Huntingdon's Sel., 1780.

(2) Now have I found the ground wherein (st. i.) Wesley Hys. & Sac. Poems, 1740, &c.

(3) O Lord! Thy everlasting grace (st. ii.). Hedge's Cong. Hyl., 1884.

(4) O Father, Thine everlasting grace (st. ii.). J. Nicholetti's Pr. & Hys., 1823.

(5) O Love, thou bottomless abyss (st. iii.). Evang. Union Hys., 1853.

(6) Jesus, I know hath died for me (st. iv.). Pennsylvanian Luth. Ch., 1868.

(7) Though waves and storms go o'er my head (st. v.). Andover Sabbath H. Bk., 1858.

2. I now have found, for hope of heaven. In full, by Dr. Mills, in the Evang. Review, Gettysburg, Jan. 1850, and in his Hora Germanica, 1856, p. 68. Included in the Amer. Luth. Gen. Synod's Coll., 1852.

3. My soul hath now the ground attained. A good tr. of st. i., iii., v., by A. T. Russell, as No. 187 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

4. My soul hath found the steadfast ground. A good tr. (omitting st. v.–ix., and with a st. iv. not by Rothe), by Mrs. Beran, in her Songs of Eternal Life, 1858, p. 55. Included, abridged, in the Eng. Presb. Ps. & Hys., 1867, and the Irvng Hyl., 1871.

5. Now I have found the firm foundation. By O. F. Krotel, as No. 251 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880, omitting st. vi.–viii.

6. Now I have found the ground to hold. By J. Sheppard, in his Foreign Sacred Lyre, 1857, p. 91.

7. Vor wahrer Heimatsliebe. The Forgiveness of Sins. 1st pub. as No. 448 in the 3rd ed., 1731, of Zinzendorf's Sammlung as above, and in 7 st. of 4 l. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, it is No. 592. The trs. are:—

(1) "Thanks be to Thee, Thou slaughter'd Lamb!" (st. vii.). This is in pt. ii. 1742, No. 1, "Hymns for the Children of God, in the Days of their Infancy," st. i., iii., by B. Lidiate, as No. 253 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1754, with the above tr. of st. vii. added. In the 1801 and later eds. (1886, No. 436) the tr. of st. vii was alone retained.

iii. Wenn kleine Kinnelastben. Death of a Child. Written on the death of one of his daughters. Appeared as No. 1028 in the 3rd ed., 1731, of Zinzendorf's Sammlung as above, and in 9 st. of 6 l. Included as No. 1088 in the Brüder G. B., 1778, and recently as No. 659 in the Unv. L. S., 1851. The trs. are:—

(1) "When children, blessed by Jesus." This is No. 1196 in the Suppl. of 1869 to the Moravian H. Bk., 1891 (1886, No. 1285). (2) "When summons comes by Death is given." By E. Weaver, 1867, p. 195. [J. M.]

Round the Sacred City gather. C. J. Stone. [Church Defence.] Written in 1874 for the Church Defence Institution, and issued as a leaflet with music for use at Church Defence Meetings. Several hundreds of thousands have been used in this form. It was given in the author's Knight of Intercession, 3rd ed., 1874, in 7 st. of 8 l., with the heading "Battle Hymn of Church Defence," and "Dedicated to the 'Church Society' of St. Paul's Huguenots." In 1894 it was enlarged to 12 st. of 8 l. for processional use at a grand Choral Festival in Salisbury Cathedral, and began "Sacred city by the river." In this form it was given in the Monthly Packet, 1894. In its original form it is in several hymnals. Mr. Stone also adapted it for use in the 1889 Suppl. Hymns to H. A. & M. [J. J.]

Rous, Francis (Rouse), was b. at Halton, Cornwall, in 1579, and educated at Oxford. He adopted the legal profession, and was M.P. for Truro during the reigns of James and of Charles I. He also represented Truro in the Long Parliament, and took part against the King and the Bishops. He was appointed a member of the Westminster Assembly; of the High Commission; and of the Triers for examining and licensing candidates for the military. He also held other appointments under Cromwell, including that of Provost of Eton College. He d. at Acton, Jan. 7, 1659, and was buried in the Chapel of Eton College. Wood, in his Athenæ Oxonienses, gives a list of his numerous works. The history of his version of the Psalms is given under Psalters, English, § xi., respecting its treatment in England, and under Scottish Hymnody, § iii., with regard to its reception and use in Scotland. [J. J.]

Row, Thomas, b. in 1786, was for many years a Baptist minister at Hadleigh, in Suffolk, and Little Grandisea, Combe, and was well known to most of the Calvinistic congregations in the Eastern Counties. He was very singular and methodical in his habits, and for 30 years was a frequent contributor of hymns and other compositions to the Gospel Herald. He d. Jan. 8, 1868. Mr. Row pub. two vols. of hymns. The first was entitled, Cousins Spiritual Songs, or Evangelical Hymns on Various Subjects, for the private use of Christians, and also adapted for Public Worship, London, 1817. This was called Book I., and comprised 329 hymns. Book II., including 343 hymns, was pub. in 1822, as Original and Evangelical Hymns on a great variety of subjects, for Private and Public Worship, by Thomas Row, Minister of the Gospel, Hadleigh, Suffolk. Many of these hymns are to be found in Parrott's Sel. From a Calvinistic point of view they are sound in soulmost, but possess little poetic merit. [W. R. S.]

From his Cousins Spiritual Poems, 1817, the following hymns have passed into Stupp's Songs of Grace and Glory, 1872:—

1. Awake, my warmest powers. Jesus the Divine Friend.
2. Awake, O heavenly Wind. To the Holy Spirit.
3. God knows our secret thoughts and words. Omniscience.
4. Gracious God of our salvation. Holy Trinity.
5. How can a mortal tongue express. Holy Trinity.
6. In the Godhead all perfection. Holy Trinity.
7. In vain must sleepy sinners think. The Being of God.
8. Jehovah's will is found. The Will of God.
9. Like wind the Spirit gently blows. Power of the Holy Ghost.
10. Now, Thou faithful, gentle Spirit. Holy Spirit—The Guide.
11. Supremely sweet is sovereign love. The Love of God.
12. The great eternal Spirit comes. The Holy Spirit.
13. The Holy Spirit did engage. Election.
14. The Sacred Spirit comes to take. Work of the Holy Spirit.
15. Three dear and great mysterious Three. Holy Trinity.
16. Two great, mysterious Lord. Holy Trinity.
17. To God, the Holy Ghost. Personality of the Holy Ghost.
18. You have not chosen me. Election. [J. J.]

Rowe, George Stringer, was b. at Margate in 1830, and educated for the Wesleyan Ministry at Didsbury College. He entered the Wesleyan Ministry in 1853, and has since held important appointments at Ipswich,

Hull, Southport, Leeds, Edinburgh, London, &c. In 1888 he was appointed to the chair of Pastoral Theology in Headingley College, Leeds. He is the author of "Life of John Hunt, &c."; "At His Feet"; "On His Day"; "The Psalms in Private Devotion"; and "Alone with the Word." His hymns include:—

1. Behold Thy youthful army.
2. Come, children all and praise.
3. Cradled in a manger misery.
4. When they brought little children.

These hymns were written for Sunday School Anniversaries, and were included in the Methodist S. School H. Bk., 1879. [J. J.]

Rube, Johann Christoph, was b. Nov. 20, 1695, his father being then pastor at Hohenund Thal-Ehrn, near Sonderhausen. After completing his studies in law, and becoming a licentiate, he was appointed judge (Amtmann) at Burggrumbach near Ahelfeld, and then, about 1704, at Battenberg (both in Hesse-Darmstadt). He d. at Battenberg, May 20, 1746. (Bode, p. 137; F. W. Strieder's Hessische Gelehrten- und Schriftsteller Geschichte, vol. xvi. p. 436. The latter dates his birth Nov. 19. On writing to Ehrn, Pastor Weise has kindly informed me that no 17th cent. registers are extant either for Hohen-Ehrn, or for Thal-Ehrn.)

Rube was a most prolific writer of hymns. In the Darmstadt G. B., 1741, he is credited with 70 pieces, and according to the teaching by Count Christian Ernst of Wertigerode in his private copy, no less than 83 by Rube. The earliest appeared in Leppich's Andächtig Stupender Christen-Mund, Wesel, 1695, and the Geistreiches G. B., Darmstadt, 1698. In 1712 he published a number (without place or date) in the Geistliche Lieder (Darmstadt Court and University Library); and Zuschach in his Anthologie, v. p. 21, says his sein-in-law edited another collection in 1737 as Poetisch-christliche Kinder-gedichten (evidently meant for Lieder-gedichten) aus den Sonn-und Festtags-Evangelien. Rube's hymns appeared in the Darmstadt G. B., 1724, included 7, most of which passed into other books. Many of his hymns are excellent, thoughtful, good in style, and warm in feeling. Of Rube's hymns those which have passed into English are:—

i. Der am Kreuz ist was ich suche, Und sonst nichts in aller Welt. Passiontide. In his Frühlings-Blumen, 1715, p. 63, in 5 st. of 8 l. When repeated in the Annuthiger Blumen-Kranz, 1713, No. 92, it was altered to "Der am Kreuz ist meine Liebe," and this form was included in the Würtemberg G. B., 1741, No. 51 (1842, No. 152), and other collections, and is a great favourite in South Germany. It is sometimes erroneously ascribed to J. E. Grading (b. 1676, d. 1748). The older hymn beginning "Der am Kreuz ist meine Liebe, Meine Lieb ist Jesus Christ" is first found in Ahasuerus Fritsch's Jesus-Lieder, 1668, No. 21, and is probably by Fritsch. It is quite different from Rube's hymn and has not been tr. into English. The tr. from Rube are (1) "Him on yonder cross I love," by Miss Winkworth, 1858, p. 33, repeated in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869, p. 189. (2) "More than all the world besides," by R. Massie in his Lyra Domestica, 1864, p. 122, and thence in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872.

ii. Der Herr bekleid sie zu Mitternacht. Second Advent. In his Frühlings-Blumen, 1712, p. 88, in 15 st. of 4 l. In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837, No. 796 (1865, No. 772). Sometimes erroneously ascribed to N. L. von Zinzendorf. Tr. as—

The Lord shall come at dead of night. This is a tr. of st. i., iii., v., vii., x., xv. by Mrs. Findlater in H. L. L., 3rd ser., 1858, p. 60 (1884, p. 180). Included in Kennedy, 1863, and abridged, in Dr. Pagenstecher's Coll., 1864, and E. Paxton Hood's Our H. Bk., 1862.

iii. Schlaf auch und wahl' schlaf liebes Kind. Cradle Hymn. In his Frühlings-Blumen, 1712, p. 52, in 15 st. of 4 l., as the first of the "Cradle Hymns." It is worthy of attention as being one of the finest hymns of its class. Included as No. 751 in Freylinghausen's Neues geistreiches G. B., 1714, and repeated as No. 1416 in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863. Tr. as—

Sleep well, my Dear! sleep safe and free! A good tr., omitting st. viii., xiii., xiv., by J. C. Jacobi in his Psal. Germanica, 1722, p. 142 (ed. 1732, p. 190, altered). Included as No. 328 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754, with tr. of st. xiii., xiv. added: and repeated, altered and abridged, in later eds. (1886, No. 1193, in 5 st.). In 1875 Dr. Martineau, in his Hym. of Praise and Prayer, No. 746, adopted the tr. of st. i., iv., v., xv., from Jacobi's 1732 text. In the Schaff-Gilman Lib. of Rel. Poetry, 1881 (1883, p. 434), there are 6 st. [J. M.]

Ruben, Johann Christoph. [Rube, J. C.]

Rückert, Friedrich, s. of Johann Michael Rückert, advocate at Schweinfurt, in Bavaria, was b. at Schweinfurt, May 16, 1788. He matriculated at the University of Würzburg Nov. 3, 1803 (where he became a great friend of Baron von Stockmar of Coburg), and finished his course there in the spring of 1805. He graduated PH. D. at Göttingen in 1810, and on March 30, 1811, began to lecture at Jena as a private-docent in philology, but left April 16, 1812. On Nov. 2, 1812, he was appointed Professor of the Gymnasium at Hanau, but resigned before entering on his duties, and left Hanau Jan. 21, 1813. He was then for some time living at Würzburg as a man of letters, thereafter at Rothenberg near Hassfurt, &c. In Dec. 1815 he began work at Stuttgart as joint editor of the Morgenblatt, retiring from it Jan. 6, 1817. For some time he travelled in Italy, &c., and then in the end of 1820 settled at Coburg as a man of letters. On his appointment as Professor of Oriental Languages at Erlangen he went there in Nov. 1826; and then, in 1841, was appointed Professor of Oriental Languages at Berlin. During the Revolutionary period of March, 1848, he left Berlin and never returned, but received a pension in 1849. He retired to his estate of Neuses, near Coburg, and resided there till his death on Jan. 31, 1866 (Friedrich Rückert. Ein biographisches Denkmahl. By Dr. C. Beyer, Frankfurt am Main, 1868; Neue Mittheilungen, by Beyer, 1873; Rückert's Nachgelassene Gedichte, Vienna, 1877, &c.)

Rückert was one of the greatest Lyric writers, and one of the most thoughtful and earnest poets that Germany has produced. From the time that, unable to find a publisher, he published his Östliche Rosen (Stuttgart to Heidelberg) in 1814, considering his famous "Orientalischer Sonnette," he published himself or contributed to the publications of others, a most voluminous mass of poetry original and translated (see the list in Goedeke's Grundriss, pp. 1000-1004), and a complete ed. of his poems appearing finally at Frankfort am Main, 1868-69, in 12 vols. as his Gesammelte poetische Werke. A considerable proportion of his poems are tra. and adaptations from the Persian, Arabic, Sanscrit and Chinese. Throughout his poems he preserves a high level of purity of thought and expression; and displays a wonderful mastery of form and power of handling the German language. He was also a voluminous writer on Biblical history, &c. Leben Jesu, 1839; Geist und Zweck, 1843; and Mirakel der Ursache, 1856. He can hardly however be called a hymn-writer; the second of the poems noted below being almost the only piece by him which has passed into the German hymn-books. The tr. are:—(1) "Paradise must shine more fair," by Miss Troward, in his Poems from Modern Sources, 1845, p. 57. (2) "Paradise must shine more fair," in a slightly different dress, in Dr. H. Bonar's New Jerusalem, 1852, p. 94, and in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869, p. 467.

ii. Dein König kommt in niedern Hülle. Advent. In his Gesammelte Gedichte, Erlangen, 1834, vol. iv. p. 65, in 6 st. of 4 l. (2), certainly did not appear along with No. iii. in 1826), and entitled "Advent Hymn." It is based on St. Matt. xxi. 1-11, the Gospel for the 1st S. in Advent. It is included in the German G. B., and in many other hymn-books. The tr. are: (1) "He comes, no royal venture wearing." By T. C. Porter. Written April 4, 1846, for Hours at Home, N. Y., June, 1866. (2) "In lowly guise thy King approach." By Mr. J. Troutbeck, as Schumann's Advent Hymn, 1880, p. 6.

iii. Es ist Bethlehem entsprossen. Nativity and Calvary. 1st pub. as No. 9 of a series of "Hymns for Festivals by Friedrich Rückert," in the Taschenbuch zum geselligen Vergnügen auf das Jahr 1820, Leipzig, 1819, p. 172, in 16 st. of 4 l. Repeated in H. Riesch's Weihnachtsbuch, Leipzig, 1840, p. 1, in 15 st. of 4 l. Tr. as (1) "In Bethlehem He first arose." By S. L. Prothingham, 1865, p. 166. (2) "In Bethlehem the Lord was born." By Miss Winkworth, 1869, p. 208. (3) "In Bethlehem, the Lord of glory." By T. C. Porter for Hours at Home, N. Y., March, 1866.

iv. Um Mitternacht hab ich gewacht. Midnight. 1st pub. in the Deutsches Taschenbuch für das Jahr, 1838. Included in the Hymn- und Liederbuch, vol. i., Erlangen, 1838 (vol. v. of his Gesammelte Gedichte), p. 313, in 8 st. of 4 l., as one of the poems written at Neuses to the autumn of 1835. Repeated by Riesch, 1840, p. 5, in 8 st. of 4 l. Tr. as "At midnight I arose my sight." By S. L. Prothingham, 1865, p. 174. (2) "At dead of night Sleep took her flight." By Miss Winkworth, in Lyra Mystica, 1865, p. 366, and repeated in her Christian Singers, 1869, p. 337. [J. M.]

Rulers of Sodom! hear the voice. W. Cameron. [True Penitence.] 1st appeared as No. 17 in the Draft Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1781, as a version of Isaiah i. 10-19, in 7 st. of 4 l. Thence, with st. vii. l. 1 altered, in the public worship ed. issued in that year by the Church of Scotland, and still in use. In the markings by the eldest daughter of W. Cameron (q. v.), it is ascribed to Cameron. Included in the Relief H. Bk., 1833, and again in others. [J. M.]

Russell, Arthur Tozer, M.A. He was the son of the Rev. Thomas Clent, who later changed his surname for Russell (Gent. Mag., 1849, p. 209: Gung. Ry., p. 889, i. § 4), an Independent or Congregational minister who won for himself a good reputation by editing the works of Tyndale, Frith, Barnes, and Dr. John Owen, &c. He was b. at Northampton, March 20, 1806; educated at St. Saviour's School, Southwark, and at the Merchant Taylors' School, London (cf. Robinson's Register, M. T. S., ii. 217). In 1822-24 he was at Manchester College, York (see Roll of the M. C. students). In 1825 he entered St. John's College, Cambridge, as a sizar, and in his freshman year gained the Hulsean Prize, its subject being, "In what respects the Law is a Schoolmaster to bring men to Christ." In 1829 he was ordained by the Bishop of Lincoln (Kaye), and licensed to the Curacy of Great Grimsden, Hunts, and in 1830 was preferred to the Vicarage of Caxton, which he held till 1852. During his ministry here he published the following works: The Claims of the Church of England upon the Affections of the People (1832); Sermons for Fasts and Festivals; A Critique upon Keble's Sermon on Tradition, in opposition. About 1840 appeared his Apology of the Church of England and an Epistle to Saignor Sapio concerning the Council of Trent, translated from the original Latin of Dr. Jewell. About the same time appeared Hymn Tunes, Original and Selected, from Ravenscroft and other old Musicians. In 1841 was published A Manual of Daily Prayer. In 1844 Memorials of the Works and Life of Dr. Thomas Fuller. This Life has not been superseded by Bailey's later and over-bulky Life. It has fine things in it. It is severe on Tract XC. In 1846 various of his own hymns, original and tr. from the German, appeared in Hymns for Pub. Worship, &c., Dalston Hospital, London. His first appearance as a hymn-writer was in the 3rd edition of the hymn-book published by his father (1st ed. 1815), and known amongst Congregationalists as Russell's Appendix (see Gung. Hymnody, p. 899, i. § 67). In 1847 followed The Christian Life. In 1851 Psalms and Hymns, partly original, partly selected, for the use of the Church of England. This most modest collection has not received the recognition that it indisputably merits. His original hymns and translations have found their way into many hymnals, e.g., Dr. Peter Maurice's Choral H. Bk. 1861, where several appeared for the first time; Dr. Maurice's Choral Harmony, 1854, contains two of his tunes; Dr. R. H. Kennedy's Hymnologia Christiana, 1865; Lord Selborne's Book of Praise, &c. (1862). In 1852 he was presented to the Vicarage of Whaddon, Cambridgeshire. This, in 1866, he exchanged for St. Thomas's, Toxteth Park, Liverpool. While at Whaddon he published Advent and other Sermons. In 1859 appeared his best prose book, Memorials of the Life and Works of Bishop Andrewes. With every deduction it is a living biography. In Liverpool he republished his Hymn-book. In 1863 he addressed a "weighty and powerful" Letter to the Bishop of Oxford on Dr. Stanley—virtually a trenchant review of the once notorious Essays and Reviews. In 1867 he removed to Wrockwardine Wood, Shropshire, where he remained until 1874, when he was presented to the Rectory of Southwick, near Brighton. Here he d., after a long and distressing illness, on the 18th of November, 1874. In his earlier years he was an extreme High Churchman, but by the study of St. Augustine his views were changed and he became, and continued to the end, a moderate Calvinist. His original hymns are gracious and tender, thoughtful and devout. His translations on the whole are vigorous and strong, but somewhat ultra-faithful to the original metres, &c. He left behind him a History of the Bishops of England and Wales in MS., sufficient to form three or four goodly octavos, and numerous MS. Notes on the Text of the Greek Testament; and also a large number of original chants and hymn-tunes in MS. Surely the last ought to be utilized: and the former deposited in his College of St. John's.

[A. B. G.]

Of Russell's hymns a large number are included in Kennedy, 1863, and several also are in a few of the lesser known collections. The few are noted elsewhere in this Dictionary, and may be found through the Index of Authors and Translators. Of his original hymns, about 140 in all, including those in Dr. Maurice's Choral H. Bk., 1851, the following are found in a few collections:—

1. Christ is risen! Ov' His foes His reigneth. Easter.
2. Give praise to God our King. Praise.
3. Great is the Lord; O let us raise. Ps. xlviii.
4. Hail, our lowly King. Praise to Christ. (Maurice, 1851.)
5. Hail, O Lord, our Consolation. Christ, the Consoler. (Maurice, 1851.)
6. Holy Ghost, Who us instructed. Whitsuntide.
7. Hosanna, loud hosanna. Palmsunday.
8. Hosanna, bless the Saviour's Name. Advent.
9. In the morn it shall be seen. Consolation.
10. In the tomb, behold He lies. Easter Eve. Sometimes "In the night of death, He lies."
11. Jesus, Lord, we seek Thy face. Communion.
12. Jesu, Thou our pure (chief) delight. Praise for Salvation.
13. Jesu, when I think on Thee. In Affliction.
14. Jesu, Who for my transgression. Good Friday.
15. Lift thine eyes, O Lord. (Maurice, 1851.)
16. Lift thine eyes for those to heaven. Looking Onward. Sometimes "Lift thy longing eyes to heaven."
17. Lo, in mid heaven the angel flies. The Message of The Gospel.
18. Lord, be Thou our Strength in weakness. In Affliction.
19. Lord, my hope in Thee abideth. Hope in Jesus.
20. Lord, when our breath shall fail in death. Death anticipated.
21. Lord, Who hast formed us. Self-Consecration.
22. My God, to Thee I fly. In Affliction. Sometimes "O most God, to Thee we fly."
23. Night's shadows falling. Evening.
24. Now be thanks and praise ascending. Praise.
25. Now to Christ our Life and Light. Evening.
26. O glorious, O triumphal day. Easter Day.
27. O God, Who hast prepared for them that love. Priestly In the Dalston Hym. for Pub. Worship, &c., 1846. From this "O Father, ascended Lord," in L. W. Bacon's Church Poetry, 1851, p. 141.
28. O Head and Lord of all creation. Pentecost.
29. O Jesu, blest is he. Consolation.
30. O Jesu! we adore Thee. Good Friday.
31. O Saviour, on the heavenly throne. The Divine Glory. (Maurice, 1851.)
32. O Thou Who art our Life and Love. Church Defence.
33. Praise and blessing, Lord, to give. Praise to Jesus.
34. Praise the Lord: praise our King. Advent.
35. Sing, O heavens, and rejoice, earth. Christmas.
36. The Morning (promised) that appeareth. Christmas.
37. The night of darkness fast declineth. Missions.
38. The way to heaven Thou art, O Lord. Jesus the Way. Sometimes "Jesus Sometimes "Thou art the Way: Heaven's gate, O Lord."
39. Then Who hast to heaven ascended. Ascension.
40. To Him Who for our sins was slain. Praise to Jesus, the Saviour. Written Friday, Jan. 24, 1851.
41. Up, up, my heart, with joy. Ascension.
42. What, my spirit, should oppress thee. In Affliction.
43. What though through desert paths Thou leadest! Security and Consolation in Christ.
44. Whom shall I, my [sic-our] refuge making. Lent.
45. Why, O Lord, so far removed. In Affliction.
46. Why, O why cast down, my spirit! In Affliction.
47. With one Thy praise we sincere sing. Lent. Sometimes "With trembling awe Thy praise we sing."
48. With cheerful hope, my soul, arise. Security in God.
49. We bless that His commands stood. Universal Praise of Jesus.
50. Your adoration, O earth and heaven, unite. Universal Praise to Christ.

Unless otherwise stated, all the above appeared in Russell's Ps. & Hys., 1851. The total number of original hymns contributed by him to Maurice's Choral H. Bk. was 21.

[J. J.]

Russell, William, was b. in Glasgow in 1798, and educated at the University of Glasgow. Removing from Scotland to America, he was at Savannah in 1817, and subsequently at other places in the United States. He was an active promoter of education, teachers' associations, and kindred objects, and did much to further the cause of education in the States. He was originally a Baptist, but did not hold to close communion. He d. at Lancaster, Massachusetts, Aug. 16, 1873. His hymn, "O'er the dark wave of Galilee" (Christ in Solitude), begins with st. iii. of a poem written by him at the request of Dr. Ware, editor of the Unitarian Christian Examiner, and printed therein in 1826.

[F. M. B.]

Russell, William, contributed a few hymns to William Carter's Hymn Book, 1801, and to some minor collections. The best known is "More marr'd than any man's," 1861 (Pulsatilla). He must be distinguished from W. Russell, the American hymnist. [J. J.]

Rutilius, Martin, a of Gregorius Rudel or Rutilius (who in 1548 was diaconus at Salza, near Magdeburg, and in 1551 became pastor at Dalen on the Mühle, in Saxony), was b. Jan. 21, 1550. After studying at the Universities of Wittenberg and Jena, he was appointed, in 1573, pastor at Tonndorf, near Gotha. In 1586 he became diaconus at Weimar, where, after being for some time archidiaconus, he d. Jan. 18, 1618. (K. Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 153; articles by Dr. Linke in the Blätter für Hymnologie, 1887, pp. 82, 90, &c.) Rutilius's name has been associated with the well-known German hymn which begins:—

1. Ach Gott und Herr, wie gross und schwer. Lent. The first printed form of any part of this hymn is in a broadsheet entitled "Ein Christlich Gebet, Martini Rutilii Pastoris zu Tonndorf in der Nuckel, am 28. Julii 1613. Im Ton: Herr Gott, dich loben alle wir," &c. It is in 10 sts., and is entitled a "Prayer for the three years following the death of Rev. A. Fuller, in 1815, acted as its secretary. His prose works were Memoirs of Rev. R. Hall, Arrahy (2nd ed., 1833); A candid statement of the reasons which induce Baptists to differ from their Christian brethren; and many Sermons and Charges. After his death appeared 2 vols. of Discourses, selected from his MSS., and entitled Pastoral Memorials. To these discourses are appended many of his hymns, with their dates. Dr. Ryland's hymns were composed at different times, from his sixteenth year to the year of his death. The earliest were pub. when he was 16, in his Serious Essays, 1771. These 36 hymns were never republished. Several appeared in the Gospel Magazine from 1771 to 1782, and the Protestant Magazine, 1792-93: others in Rippon's Bapt. Selection, 1787; 2 in the Collection for the Monthly Prayer Meeting at Bristol, 1797; 2 in Andrew Fuller's Memoirs, 1831; and 25 in the Pastoral Memorials, 1825. His Hymns and Verses on Sacred Subjects, to the number of 99, were reprinted from his MS. by D. Sedgwick, and were pub., with a Memoir, in 1862. The hymns are dated therein from the MS.

[W. R. S.]

Those of Dr. Ryland's hymns now in C. U. include:—

1. For Zion's sake I'll not restrain. Missions. Dated 1790, and printed by D. Sedgwick from Ryland's MS.

2. Rad not the Lord, my soul may say (cry). Ps. cxxiv. From his Serious Essays, 1771. It is No. 124 in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866. Not in Sedgwick's reprint.

3. Why, holy, holy Lord, self-existent Deity. Holy Trinity. Dated 1790. It was given in the 1st ed. of Rippon's Bap. Sel., 1800, Pt. 3, No. 21; in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828; and Sedgwick's reprint, 1863, in 5 st. of 4 l. It is in C. U. in G. Britain and America.

4. Look down in mercy, Lord, from heaven, survey our fast assembly. This is in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, and dated 1777. We cannot trace it in any of Ryland's works or amongst his hymns.

5. Lord, teach a little child to pray. A Child's Prayer. Dated 1785. The note to this hymn by Dr. Ryland, in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828, vol. ii. p. 248, is: "This and the following hymn ("God is very good to me") was composed at the request of Mrs. Fuller, with a view to assist her children in learning, for the use of Miss Sara, their excellent Governess, about seven years and six months." It was pub. in Andrew Fuller's Memoirs, 1831, p. 442, and in Sedgwick's reprint, 1863.

6. Now let the slumbering church awake. Activity in Religion. Dated "Dec. 3, 1777." It was pub. in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828, and in Sedgwick's reprint, 1863. In Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866.

7. O Lord, I would delight in Thee. Delight in Christ. Dated "Dec. 3, 1777." Dr. Ryland added this note to the hymn in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828: "In composing this hymn, than perhaps I ever felt in making any other." It was pub. in Rippon's Sel., 1791, No. 340, in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828, and in Sedgwick's reprint, 1863, in 7 st. of 4 l. It is in extensive use in G. Britain and America, commencing "O Lord we would delight in Thee." In the American Meth. Epis. Hymns, 1849, and their Hymnal, 1878, st. i., ii., vi., vii. are rewritten in 4 st. as "Lord, I delight in Thee."

8. Out of the depths of doubt and fear. Ps. cxxx. From the Serious Essays, 1771 (reprinted in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1870). It is not in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828, nor in Sedgwick's reprint, 1863.

are all by Major seems at least highly probable. They passed into Rehlter Franck's Geistliche musikalische Lustgarten, Nürnberg, 1658, as No. xvii. As No. xvi. Franck gives the following: 1. Gleich wie mich Sehn. 2. Also Herr Christ. Both xvi. and xvii. are given in Franck's Musicalischer Bergkrantz, Jena and Altenburg, 1627, No. 97 in Franck's No. 18, but with four st. added, viz. 3. Meiner Hand Arbeit. 4. Die Seite mein. 5. Darinn ich lieth. 6. Ehre sey mm. The form now in use is found in B. Crecelius's Jesuiten-Bibliothek, Elberfeld, 1847, p. 1, No. 1, and in No. 1 it is in 10 sts., viz. i.–vi. as in 1613, and st. vii.–x. from Claudius's ii., ii., v. vi. This form passed into most later books, and is No. 266 in the Unv. L. S., 1851.

At first the hymn seems to have passed into the collections without alteration, as in the case of "Herr Johann Georg. Then in Claudius's 2nd ed., 1648, the first part was signed "J. G.," which was forthwith taken to mean Johann Gösbel, who was b. at Aldorf Aug. 20, 1606, became pastor at Dannfeld, near Krautheim, 1636, and d. there Sept. 1, 1639. In the 3rd ed., 1711, 1738, when Caspar Binder, pastor at Marienfeld, pub. at Jena his Historischer Beweiss for the purpose of showing that the hymn was by Rudiltius. In this book Binder declared that he had in his possession an autograph copy of the hymn, which was in the hand of Rudiltius, sometime burgomaster at Weimar, and that in this album he had found the hymn "Ach Gott und Herr" (in the 6 st. form of 1613), entitled, "A Prayer for the forgiveness of sins, for patience under the cross, and for a happy departure out of this miserable life," with this in the autograph of M. Martinus Rutilius, Diaconus Ecclesiæ Vinariensis facit et propria manu scripsit.

"Jesu, du hohe Davide, erbarm dich mein,
Lass mein Glaub nicht sinken,
Gib Herben starke Beyspruch bleiben
Vom Tod vnd Leben bringe mir Freuden.
Dec 25. May 1604."

The date here is almost certainly a misreading or a misprint, i.e. instead of 1604 it should be 1614. If then on May 29, 1613, Rudiltius wrote out the hymn in this album he had found the hymn "Ach Gott und Herr" (in the 6 st. form of 1613), entitled, "A Prayer for the forgiveness of sins, for patience under the cross, and for a happy departure out of this miserable life," with this in the autograph of M. Martinus Rutilius, Diaconus Ecclesiæ Vinariensis facit et propria manu scripsit,

"Jesu, du hohe Davide, erbarm dich mein,
Lass mein Glaub nicht sinken,
Gib Herben starke Beyspruch bleiben
Vom Tod vnd Leben bringe mir Freuden.
Dec 25. May 1604."

The date here is almost certainly a misreading or a misprint, i.e. instead of 1604 it should be 1614. If then on May 29, 1613, Rudiltius wrote out the hymn in this album he had found the hymn "Ach Gott und Herr" (in the 6 st. form of 1613), entitled, "A Prayer for the forgiveness of sins, for patience under the cross, and for a happy departure out of this miserable life," with this in the autograph of M. Martinus Rutilius, Diaconus Ecclesiæ Vinariensis fecit et propria manu scripsit, it can hardly refer to anything but the hymn as we have it. Rudiltius was evidently not a poetic nature, and these four very halting lines are much more likely to be his composition than are the six stanzas of the original.

On the whole then there seems no good reason to question the fact that the hymn, in the form of the 6 stanza form is almost certainly by Major. Wherever a name has been attached to st. vii.–x. they too have been ascribed to Major. So that there appears at least a high probability that the 10 stanza form is by Major.

The translations in C. U. are:—

1. O God my Lord! How great's the Name. In full by J. C. Jacobi, in his Paul. Gerwanius, 1722, p. 56. In his ed. 1732, p. 89, it was greatly altered, and st. i.–viii., x. of this form were included in the Evang. Unico Il. Bk., 1856.

2. When rising winds, and rain descending. This is a free tr. in 8 l., of st. vii.–x., by T. Dutton, as No. 250 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1886, No. 314). Included in Dr. Martineau's Hys. of Praise and Prayer, 1873.

3. Alas! my God! My sins are great. A good tr. of st. i.–vi., by Miss Winkworth, as No. 107 in her C. H. for England, 1863. Expanded, omitting st. iv., in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880.

Other trs. are:—

(1) "As small birds use a hole to chare" (st. vii.–x.), as No. 1 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1742. (2) "Alas! my Lord and God." By Miss Winkworth, 1856, p. 138.

[J. M.]

Ryland, John, D.D., s. of Rev. John Collett Ryland, was b. at Warwick, Jan. 29, 1725. At that time his father was Baptist minister at Warwick, but in 1759 removed to Northampton. "J. Ryland, Junior," as for many years he was accustomed to subscribe himself, was in 1781 ordained co-pastor with his father at Northampton. In 1794 he accepted the presidency of the Baptist College and the pastorate of the church in Broadmead, Bristol, and those offices he retained until his death on June 25, 1825. Dr. Ryland was a man of considerable literary culture, and received the degree of D.D. from Brown University, Rhode Island. He was one of the founders of the Baptist Missionary Society, and for the three years following the death of Rev. A. Fuller, in 1815, acted as its secretary. His prose works were Memoirs of Rev. R. Hall, Arrahy (2nd ed., 1832); A candid statement of the reasons which induce Baptists to differ from their Christian brethren; and many Sermons and Charges. After his death appeared 2 vols. of Discourses, selected from his MSS., and entitled Pastoral Memorials. To these discourses are appended many of his hymns, with their dates. Dr. Ryland's hymns were composed at different times, from his sixteenth year to the year of his death. The earliest were pub. when he was 16, in his Serious Essays, 1771. These 36 hymns were never republished. Several appeared in the Gospel Magazine from 1771 to 1782, and the Protestant Magazine, 1792-93: others in Rippon's Bapt. Selection, 1787; 2 in the Collection for the Monthly Prayer Meeting at Bristol, 1797; 2 in Andrew Fuller's Memoirs, 1831; and 25 in the Pastoral Memorials, 1825. His Hymns and Verses on Sacred Subjects, to the number of 99, were reprinted from his MS. by D. Sedgwick, and were pub., with a Memoir, in 1862. The hymns are dated therein from the MS.

[W. R. S.]

Those of Dr. Ryland's hymns now in C. U. include:—

1. For Zion's sake I'll not restrain. Missions. Dated 1790, and printed by D. Sedgwick from Ryland's MS.

2. Rad not the Lord, my soul may say (cry). Ps. cxxiv. From his Serious Essays, 1771. It is No. 124 in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866. Not in Sedgwick's reprint.

3. Why, holy, holy Lord, self-existent Deity. Holy Trinity. Dated 1790. It was given in the 1st ed. of Rippon's Bap. Sel., 1800, Pt. 3, No. 21; in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828; and Sedgwick's reprint, 1863, in 5 st. of 4 l. It is in C. U. in G. Britain and America.

4. Look down in mercy, Lord, from heaven, survey our fast assembly. This is in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, and dated 1777. We cannot trace it in any of Ryland's works or amongst his hymns.

5. Lord, teach a little child to pray. A Child's Prayer. Dated 1785. The note to this hymn by Dr. Ryland, in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828, vol. ii. p. 248, is: "This and the following hymn ("God is very good to me") was composed at the request of Mrs. Fuller, with a view to assist her children in learning, for the use of Miss Sara, their excellent Governess, about seven years and six months." It was pub. in Andrew Fuller's Memoirs, 1831, p. 442, and in Sedgwick's reprint, 1863.

6. Now let the slumbering church awake. Activity in Religion. Dated "Dec. 3, 1777." It was pub. in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828, and in Sedgwick's reprint, 1863. In Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866.

7. O Lord, I would delight in Thee. Delight in Christ. Dated "Dec. 3, 1777." Dr. Ryland added this note to the hymn in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828: "In composing this hymn, than perhaps I ever felt in making any other." It was pub. in Rippon's Sel., 1791, No. 340, in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828, and in Sedgwick's reprint, 1863, in 7 st. of 4 l. It is in extensive use in G. Britain and America, commencing "O Lord we would delight in Thee." In the American Meth. Epis. Hymns, 1849, and their Hymnal, 1878, st. i., ii., vi., vii. are rewritten in 4 st. as "Lord, I delight in Thee."

8. Out of the depths of doubt and fear. Ps. cxxx. From the Serious Essays, 1771 (reprinted in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1870). It is not in the Pastoral Memorials, 1828, nor in Sedgwick's reprint, 1863.

9. Rejoice, the Saviour reigns. Missions. Dated "Jan. 15, 1792." In the 1805 ed. of Rippon's Sel., 1806, 422 (2nd pt.) it is given in 6 st. of 4 l.; as in the Rylands' MS., and then after the week "Passe" two stanzas are added. In the 1844 ed. of the Bapt. Hymn Bk. 6 sts. were repeated in the Pastoral Memorials, 1929; in Sedgwick's reprint, 1903; and in Spurgeon's O. O. Bk., 1866 (Alter-tatet), and other modern hymnals.

10. Sovereign Ruler of the skies. Confidence, Peace, and Joy. Dated "Jan. 15, 1792." In the 1805 ed. of Rippon's Sel., 1806, No. 144; the Pastoral Memorials, 1929; and Sedgwick's reprint, 1903, in 8 st. of 4 l.

11. Thou Son of God, and Son of Man. Promise to God, the Son. This is undated. It was given in the Pastoral Memorials, 1929, and Sedgwick's reprint, 1903, in 8 st. of 4 l.

12. When Abraham's servant to procure. Omnipresent, Omniscient. Dr. Rylands's son, under the date of Nov. 4, 1861, informed D. Sedgwick that this hymn "was written with a slate pencil on a rusty iron blower in the Hanging Chamber of Monk Wilton Forge." He gave these words as a quotation from his father's MS. It is almost needless to add that this account does not agree with the generally received history of the hymn, as set forth in Miller's Singers and Songs, 1869, p. 535, and the Bapt. Hymn Bk. Notes, 1871, p. 335, the hymn was given in 9 st. of 4 l., with the heading "Hinder me not—Gen. xxiv. 56," and signed "Hächstetera." It was repeated in Rippon's Sel., 1787, No. 447; and Sedgwick's reprint, 1903. In the 1844 ed. of the Bapt. Hymn Bk. it was altered to "4th verse." This direction has been followed in some modern collections, the result being the hymn commonly known as "In all my Lord's appointed ways."

13. When the Saviour dwelt below. Companion of children. Dated "Jan. 15, 1792." In the Pastoral Memorials, 1929, and Sedgwick's reprint, 1903.

Dr. Rylands's hymns are plain and simple, but they lack poetry and passion, and are not likely to be largely drawn upon for future hymnals.

[J. J.]

S

S., in the Bristol Bapt. Coll. of Ash and Evans, 1769, i.e. Elizabeth Scott.

S. D., in the same, i.e. S. Davies.

S. E. Mahmied, i.e. Nehemiah Adams, p. 16, i.

S. M., in the Gospel Magazine, 1776, &c., i.e. Samuel Medley.

S——t, in the Bristol Bapt. Coll. of Ash and Evans, 1769, i.e. S. Stennett.

Sabbath of the saints of old. T. Wigfield. (Sunday.) 1st pub. in his Poems, 1842, p. 108, as one of his "Hymns towards a Holy Week," in 9 st. of 6 l., and appointed for the "Seventh Day." In no instance is it used in its full and complete form. The fullest text is that in the Hymnary, 1872, No. 50, in 6 st., but usually it is given in a more abbreviated form, one of the shortest being the S. F. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, No. 63. One of the most popular forms of the hymn is a cento which is usually appropriated to "Easter Day." It opens: "Resting from His work to-day." One of the earliest, if not the earliest, collection in which it appeared was Dr. Hook's Church Sunday School H. Bk., 1850, Appendix, No. 223. This is composed of st. iii., iv., vi., vii., of the original. This cento was repeated, with alterations, in Murray's Hymnal, 1852, and has been adopted by various collections, including, with very slight alterations, H. A. & M., 1861, Sarum, 1868, and others. In Bigg's Annotated H. A. & M. (Preface), the editor has omitted st. v. and viii. from what he has given as the original poem.

[J. J.]

Sacer, Gottfried Wilhelm, s. of Andreas Sacer, senior burgomaster of Naumburg, in Saxony, was b. at Naumburg, July 11, 1635. He entered the University of Jena in 1653, and remained there for four years as a student of law. He was thereafter for two years secretary to Gebelmann von Platen, in Berlin; and then tutor, first to a son of the Swedish Regierungsrath von Pohlen, and then to the sons of the Saxon Landhauptmann von Bünau. In 1665 he entered the military service under Herr von Mollican, commandant at Lüneberg, at first as regimental secretary, and afterwards as ensign. Soon tiring of this he went to Kiel in 1667, in order to graduate LL.D., but before doing so undertook a tour in Holland and Denmark with some young noblemen from Holstein. In 1670 he settled down as advocate at the appeal and chancery courts in Brunswick (graduating LL.D. at Kiel in 1671), and in 1683 removed to Wolfenbüttel as Kammer-und Amts-advocat, receiving the title of Kammer-Consulent in 1690. He d. at Wolfenbüttel, Sept. 8 [18], 1699. (Wetzel, iii. pt. 1.; Koch, iii. 398, iv. 502, &c.)

Sacer began early to write poetry, was admitted by Rist, in 1666, as one of his poetical order of Elbe Swans, and in 1668 was crowned as a poet by the Emperor Leopold Frederic, Altenstein, 166[illegible] ("Wolfenbüttel Library") already described himself as "Kayserlicher Poët," i.e. as having been crowned as a poet by the Emperor of Austria. His hymns are among the best of the period immediately succeeding the Thirty Years' War, and exhibit a measure of poetic glow, and sometimes of dramatic force, and are Scriptural and good in style. His earliest hymns seem to have appeared in his Blutdrieffeln, zugende und trümpfenden Jesus, 1661, but the first of which we have any knowledge is that in his Q. Lauder Flocki der erwuerten Gnaeg-Buchs, and in the other hymn-books of the period. They were collected and pub. by his son-in-law as his Geistliche, liebliche Lieder, at Gotha, 1714.

Those of Sacer's hymns which have passed into English are:—

i. Durch Trauren und durch Plagen. New Year. Included in 1665 as above, pt. ii. p. 25, in 7 st. of 8 l.; repeated 1714, p. 3, entitled "On the New Year." It is also in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 191. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Through many changeful sorrows. This is a good tr., by Dr. F. W. Gotch, in the Baptist Magazine, Jan. 1857, p. 19, repeated in the 1880 Supp. to the Baptist Ps. & Hys.

ii. Gott fähret auf gen Himmel. Ascension. Founded on Ps. xlvii. 6-7. Included in 1665, as above, pt. ii. p. 147, in 7 st. of 8 l., and repeated 1714, p. 27, entitled "On the Ascension of Christ." It is also in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 336. In the Württemberg G. B., 1842, it begins, "Ihr Herr fährt auf." The tr. in C. U. are:—

1. Tr. God to heaven ascendeth. This is a good tr., omitting st. vi., by Miss Cox, in her Sacred Hys. from the German, 1841, p. 39 (Hys. from the German, 1864, p. 63). Repeated, abridged, in Alford's Ps. & Hys., 1844, and his Year of Praise, 1867; in Dale's Eng. H. Bk., 1874, &c.

2. While up to Heaven God goeth. A spirited version, omitting st. vi., by W. J. Blew, printed as a leaflet for their use in 1846, and included in his Ch. Hy. & Tune Bk., 1852; in Rice's Selection from Blew, 1870, No. 67, and in Lyra Messianica, 1864, p. 302.

Other hymns by Sacer are:—

iii. Gott, der du alles Himmel Heer. For those at sea. Included in 1665, as above, pt. ii. p. 1, and repeated in 1714, p. 1, entitled "Gottes Gnaden-Schutz zu Wasser." Recently in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837 and 1865. Tr. as (1) "Thou who hast stretched the heaven's blue sky." In L. Bethune's Church at Sea, 1846, p. 1.

iv. Lass mich nicht in Irrthum fallen. Christ for all. Included, 1714, as above, p. 83, in 10 st. of 4 l., founded on Ps. ii. 12, and repeated in the Hanover G. B., 1740, No. 244. Tr. as "Lord, forbid that e'er such thing," in Miller's Singers and Songs, 1869.

v. O dass ich Asche Thränen genug vergiessen. Penitential. Included in 1665 as above, pt. ii. p. 40, in 16 st. of 4 l., and repeated, 1714, p. 26, entitled "Contemplation of the piteous death of Jesus Christ." In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837, No. 3373 (1865, No. 2917), altered, beginning, "Mein Herr und Heiland, lass mein gebet zu Herzen," are included as No. 109. This form in tr. as, "Lord, teach my heart with that great Commendation," by W. L. Peckingham, 1870, p. 142.

vi. Schlaf wohl, du süsses Kind. Funeral of a Child. Included in 1665 as above, pt. ii. p. 666, in 13 st. of 8 l., st. i.–iii. being given as spoken by the child in Paradise, and still as the answer of the bereaved parents. Repeated in 1714, p. 81, entitled "Comfort from the departed Infant." In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837, entitled "Farewell of the sorrowing sons." Recently as No. 464 in the Ges. L. S., 1865. Tr. as (1) "Lo! now the victory's gain'd we," by Miss Cox, 1841, p. 71. In her ed. of 1864, p. 97, it is altered and begins, "My race is now completed." (2) "Sleep, child, have courage," by Miss Borthwick, in Hymns from the Land of Luther, 1854, p. 142, repeated (1) "My course is run; in glory," by Dr. J. Stallybrass, 1859, p. 166.

[J. M.]

Sachse, Christian Friedrich Heinrich, D.D., was b. July 2, 1785, at Eisenberg, Sachsen-Altenburg, where his father was cantor, and also master in the town school. In the years 1804–1807 he was a student at the University of Jena (D.D. from Jena 1841), and was, thereafter, for some time, a private tutor at Kleinlunchstedt, near Merseburg. In 1812 he became diaconus at Meuselwitz, near Altenburg. He was appointed, in 1823, Court preacher at Altenburg; and also, in 1831, Consistorialrath. After 1849 he had many trials to endure, for seven children and his wife predeceased him, leaving him only one daughter; while his bodily infirmities compelled him, in 1859, to give up his duties in the consistory, and, in Feb. 1860, to resign even his work as Court preacher. He d. at Altenburg, Oct. 9, 1860 (Koch, viii. 22; O. Kraus, ed. 1870, p. 418, &c.).

By his earlier hymns, pub. in 1817, in connection with the Reformation Jubilee celebrations, he had a share in the reawakening of Churchly life among the Lutherans. The more important of his other hymns appeared in his Geistliche Dichtungen zum Gebrauch bei Beerdigungen und bei der Todtenfeier, Altenburg, 1821 (Hamburg Library); and his Gebet- und Gesangbuch für Kranke und Sterbende, drawn at Meuselwitz; or for use at the special service introduced there in 1818, and held in memory of the departed on the Sunday after Christmas Day. A number of his later hymns, rather odd selections from his secular poems, were pub. posthumously, as his Gedichte, Altenburg, 1861. A considerable number of his hymns passed into the Hamburg G. B., 1842, Leipzig G. B., 1844, and other German hymn-books, prior to 1859.

Those of Sachse's hymns which have been tr. into English are:—

i. Wahsa! du Erde wartet dein. Burial. 1st pub., 1822, as above, No. 2, p. 5, in 8 st. of 4 l., entitled, "At the Grave." Included in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837, No. 3373 (1865, No. 2917), altered, and beginning, "Lebewohl! die Erde wartet dein." The tr. in C. U. is:—

Beloved and honored, fare thee well! This is a full and good tr., by Miss Borthwick, in H. L. L., 3rd Ser., 1858, p. 56 (1884, p. 176). It was repeated, in full, in Pratt's Suppl. Hys., 1859, and the 1869 Appx. to the S. F. C. K. Ps. & Hys.; and, omitting st. ii., in Holy Song, 1869, and J. L. Porter's Coll., 1876.

ii. Wahsa! wahlauf zum letzten Gang. Burial. 1st pub., 1822, as above, No. 1, p. 3, in 17 st. of 5 l., entitled "Hymn during the funeral procession." Stanzas i.–v. seem to have been meant to be sung at the house of mourning; st. vi.–xiv., on the way to the churchyard; and st. xv.–xvii., at the entrance to the "place of peace." It was sung at his own funeral in 1860. It was included, omitting st. iii., as No. 3404, in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837 (1865, No. 2937), with the altered first line (as in Claus Harms's Gesänge, 1848, Nos. 288–290), "Wohlauf, wohlan zum letzten Gang!" and the same form is in the Württemberg G. B., 1842, No. 617. Of this hymn, the late Dr. James Hamilton, in an article in the Family Treasury, 1860, pt. i. p. 116), wrote thus:—

"The Church of England, we have sometimes envied the brighter heart,—the luck of Easter Morning,—which seems to linger still in Luther's land. With its emblems, suggestive of resurrection and heaven, its churchyard is not a Pagan burial ground, but the place where believers sleep,—a true cemetery, to which Christ may call the dead. Even the funeral hymns in this land of Christian brethren, it is not a funeral knell which strikes slowly and sternly; but from the village steeple there sheds a soft and almost cheerful requiem; and though there may be many wet eyes in the procession, there are not many of the solitary insignia of woe, as the weeds and the crape, which we see at home. At Altenburg, Oeon, in the Black Forest, we accompanied to the 'place of peace,' an old man's funeral, and there still dwells on our ear the quaint and kindly melody which the parishioners sang along the road; and we have sometimes felt that the Scottish psalm, as we sing it, and Luther's hymn, with its sombre and silent obsequies."

The translation in C. U. is:—

Come forth! come on, with solemn song. A good tr. of st. i.–iii., v., xv.–xvii., by Miss Borthwick, in H. L. L., 2nd Ser., 1855, p. 68 (1884, p. 120). This version was included, in full, in J. H. Wilson's Service of Praise, 1865, No. 509, set to the melody to which it is sung in South Germany (Choral melodien, Stuttgart, 1844, No. 103). In Dr. W. F. Stevenson's Hys. for Ch. & Home, 1873, the tr. of st. v. was omitted. A greatly altered form, beginning, "Come, tread once more the path with song," appeared in E. Brown-Borthwick's Select Hys., 1871, No. 71; and in the S. F. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, No. 242. Instead of adopting the melody of 1844, or the tune "Ich hab' mein Sach' Gott heimgestellt" (p. 671, i.), for which Sachse wrote this hymn; the editors reduced the hymn to 5., 8., allowed it, and omitted the tr. of st. iii., ll. 3–5, xv., ll. 3–5, xvi. This cento was repeated, omitting the tr. of st. xvii., in Dr. Martineau's Hys. of Praise & Prayer, 1873.

Other trs. are:—

(1) "Sleep the man who seeks the prize" (st. v.), in Ev. L. Mitts, 1845 (1856, p. 196). (2) "Neighbour, accept our parting song." By Jas. Hamilton, in his Church Psalmody, 1845, p. 107, and repeated in his own hymnal in 1862, p. 120, in his Life, 1870, vol. i. p. 123. (3) "O corpse, thy dwelling's now without." By Dr. G. Walker, 1866, p. 116. (4) "Come forth, move on, with solemn song." In the Christian Examiner, Boston, U.S., Nov. 1866, p. 414.

Another hymn, partly by Sachse, is:—

iii. Der Mee der Erde wächst. Burial. 1st pub., 1822, as above, No. vi., p. 11, in 8 st. of 8 l., entitled, "Hymn at the Grave." It is included in the Hamburg G. B., 1842. It is founded on "grosse heilbringung, "Herr, nun lässest du zu Frieden fahren," by Christian Ludwig Neuffer (b. at Stuttgart, Jan. 26, 1768; pastor of the Cathedral Church, Ulm; d. at Ulm, July 29, 1839), in his Christliche Gesänge, Leipzig, 1826, p. 220, in 4 st. of 6 l., and entitled "Bei einer besonders special circumstances," and in in 11 st. of 4 l. Bachem's version is fr. as "The reaper now is waiting." Sir Hr. Mills, 1846 (1864, p. 96). [J. M.]

Sacris solemniis juncta sint gaudia. St. Thomas of Aquino. [Holy Communion.] Written about 1263 for the office for use on Corpus Christi (see "Pange lingua gloriosi corporis"). It is found in the Roman (Venice, 1478; and again, untouched, in 1632); Mozarabic of 1502; Sarum; York; Aberdeen; Paris of 1736, and other Breviaries. It is generally appointed for Matins on Corpus Christi, but in the Sarum for 1st Vespers. The text in 6 st. and a doxology will be found in Daniel i., No. 240, in the Hymn. Sarisb., 1851, p. 119, and others. It is also found in a MS. circa 1330 (Liturg. Misc., 370, f. 123), and another of the beginning of the 14th cent. (Liturg. Misc., 339, f. 65) in the Bodleian; in a MS. of the end of the 13th cent. (Add. 23,935, f. 3), and a Sarum Brev. of the 14th cent. (Reg. 2 A. xix., f. 93 b) in the Brit. Mus., &c. It is also in Wackernagel i., No. 231; Binder, No. 101; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865, &c. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. Let us with hearts renewed. By E. Caswall, Pub. in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 113, and again in the 1860 Appendix to the H. Noted, No. 177. In Caswall's Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 64, it is altered to "Let old things pass away." This form of the text is in the Marquess of Bute's Roman Brev. tr. into English, 1879, and O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884.

2. At this our solemn Feast. By R. F. Littledale, in the Antiphoner and Grail, 1880, and again in the Hymner, 1882. Altered in The Office Bk., 1889, to "May this our solemn Feast."

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. The solemn Feasts our joyful Songs inspire. Primer. 1706.
2. Solemn rites arise to view. Z. Williams. 1826.
3. High be our service—our hearts with joy bounding. W. Bright, 1849, p. 108.
4. Welcome with joy be our hallowed solemnity. S. Trapp. 1865.
5. Let this our solemn Feast. J. D. Chambers. 1857.
6. To this our solemn festival your joyful entrance raise. Littledale.
7. Welcome with jubilee This glad solemnity. J. D. Aylward, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. 1884. [J. J.]

Sacrosancta hodiernæ festivitatis præconia. [St. Andrew.] This is found in a Gradual written apparently in England in the 12th cent. (Reg. 2 B. iv., f. 138); in a MS. containing a collection of Sequences written c. 1199 (Calig. A. xiv., f. 88), both now in the British Museum, &c. Among Missals it is found in a Sarum, circa 1370, a Hereford circa 1370, and a York circa 1390, all now in the Bodleian; in the St. Andrews, the Magdeburg of 1489, the Augers of 1493, and other Missals, uniformly assigned to St. Andrew's day. The printed text is also in Mone, No. 695, and Kehrein, No. 401. It was tr. by the editors of the Hymnary as "King of Saints, O Lord Incarnate," and appeared therein in 1872. Another tr. is "The sacred honours of this festival," by C. B. Pearson in the Sarum Missal in English. 1868. [J. M.]

Sad and weary were our way. Julia A. Elliott. [Sunday Evening.] This occurs is composed of Mrs. Elliott's "Hall, thou height and sacred morn" (see p. 479, i.), and her hymn, "Soon, too soon the sweet repose," which appeared in her husband's Ps. & Hys., 1835, in 2 st. of 6 l. The cento, in this form of 3 st., is in the Oberlin (Ohio) Manual of Praise, 1880.

Sacro dolorum turbine. [Pascentotide.] This is the hymn at Lauds in the Office of the Passion of our Lord Jesus Christ (see "Macrentes oculi"). In the Roman Breviary, Bologna, 1627, Pars Hiemalis supplement, p. 276, in 8 st., and the Milan ed. 1851. See also Biggs's Annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. O'erwhelmed in depths of woe. E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 60, and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 37. It is found in a large number of hymn-books, and usually with alterations, and in an abbreviated form, that in the most extensive use being the rendering in H. A. & M.

2. The storm of sorrow bowls around. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Ely. & Tract Bk., 1852-55, Lent and Passiontide, No. 24, and again in Rice's Ski. from the same, 1870, No. 41.

3. O'erwhelmed beneath a load of grief. By R. C. Singleton, in his Anglican H. Bk., 1868, No. 100.

Translation not in C. U.:—

1. Amidst a whirl of woe oppress'd. S. Trapp. 1865.
2. A tempest of affliction. J. Wallace. 1874. [J. J.]

Safe home, safe home in port. St. Joseph the Hymnographer. [Rest in Jesus.] This hymn was given in Dr. Neale's Hys. of the Eastern Church, 1862, in 6 st. of 6 l., as "The Return Home. A canto from the Canon of S. John Climacus." In the Preface to this 1866 ed. of the Hys. of the E. Ch., he said, concerning it, "Art thou weary," and "O happy band of pilgrims," that they contained so little that is from the Greek that they ought not to have been included in that collection, and that in any future edition they would appear as an "Appendix." Dr. Neale did not live to carry out his intention; but the Very Rev. R. G. Hatherly has done so in the 6th ed. of that work. The most that can be said of the hymn, then, is that it is by J. M. Neale, based on the Greek of St. Joseph the Hymnographer. In St. Joseph's known works no Greek lines can be found which correspond with those in the English hymn. Dr. Neale's text is found in a large number of hymnals in Great Britain and America. [See Greek Hymnody, §§ xviii. 8, and xx.] [J. J.]

Safely through another week. J. Newton. (Saturday Evening.) Appeared in R. Conyers's Ps. & Hys., 1774, No. 355, in 5 st. of 6 l.; and again in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. ii., No. 40. It is found in a few modern collections; and sometimes in an abbreviated and altered form, as in Kennedy, 1863, &c. [J. J.]

Saffery, Maria Grace, née Horsey, b. in 1773, and d. March, 1838, was daughter of the Rev. J. Horsey, of Portsea, and wife of the Rev. Mr. Saffery, pastor of the Baptist Church at Salisbury. Early in life she published a short poem and a romance, and in 1834, a volume entitled Poems on Sacred Subjects (Lond., Hamilton, Adams & Co.). Mrs. Saffery was a gifted and accomplished woman. At the suggestion of her husband, and of her son, the Rev. P. J. Saffery, she wrote many hymns for special occasions. She contributed ten to Dr. Leifchild's collection, and others to the Baptist Magazine and other periodicals. Some time before 1818 she wrote a hymn on Holy Baptism, "'Tis the Great Father we adore," which was printed in the Baptist New Selection, 1828, has since appeared in most Baptist hymn-books, and is now in C. U.; and sometimes as, "'Tis God the Father we adore." Her hymn of a Mother for her Child, "Pain, O my babe, I'd have thee know," in the Comprehensive Hymns, 1844. Her Evening hymn, "God of the sunlight hours, how sad," from her Poems, &c., 1834, p. 183, and her Good Shepherd, "There is a little lonely fold," from the same, p. 172, are also in C. U. [W. R. S.]

Saget mir von keinem Lieben. [Love to Christ.] Included as No. 2037 in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837 (1865, No. 1829), in 9 st. of 4 l. Tr. as "Tell me not of earthly love," by Miss Borthwick in H. L. L., 1862, p. 70 (1884, p. 232), repeated in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1870. [J. M.]

Saints, exalted high in glory. J. Gabb. [Heaven.] First pub. in his Hys. & Songs of the Pilgrim Life, No. xxxix., in 5 st. of 6 l., in 1871; and from thence, with slight alterations and the omission of st. v., into Snepp, Songs of G. & G., 1872, No. 1014. Orig. text as above. In 1875 it was rewritten by the author for his Wellers Appendix, and given therein with his spirited tune "Solferno," No. 67, as "Saints in highest realms of glory." In this form it is far superior to the original in construction, exactness, and power. It forms, with the omission of st. ii., a good hymn for "All Saints Day." [J. J.]

Salisbury, James, M.A., was b. at Ashby-de-la-Zouch, May 15, 1821. He studied at the University of St. Andrews and completed his course for the Baptist ministry at Horton College. He has been successively pastor at Longford in Warwickshire, Barrowden in Rutland, Hugglescote and Hinckley in Leicestershire. To the Baptist Hyl., 1879, he contributed a tr. from the German, which is noted under Veni Creator Spiritus. [W. R. S.]

Salus æterna, indefectus mundi vita. [Advent.] This is found in a MS. in the Bodleian (Bodl. 775, f. 167 b) written circa 1090; and also in a MS. of circa 1070, then (Douce 222, f. 82); in a Winchester book of the 11th cent. now in Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (No. 473); in a 12th cent. Gradual in the British Museum (Reg. 2 B. iv. f. 56), &c. Among Missals it is found in an early 14th cent. Paris, and a 15th cent. Sens in the British Museum; in a Sarum circa 1370, a Hereford circa 1370, and a York circa 1390, all now in the Bodleian; in the St. Andrews, and various French Missals. In the English Missals it is appointed for the first S. in Advent. The printed text is also in Neale's Sequentiæ, 1852, p. 8; Daniel, ii. p. 185, and Kehrein, No. 1. All the verses end in a. Tr. as:—

Thou, the Saviour everlasting. By E. A. Dayman, made for and pub. in the Hymnary, 1872.

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. Eternal health! Creation's ever new vitality. J. D. Chambers. 1866.
2. Life of the world unfailing. A. M. Morgan, in the Lyra Messianica, 1864, and his Gifts and Lights, 1867. To the beginning of this verse "Indefectus mundi vita," Dr. Neale appointed this.
3. Eternal Health of man. By C. B. Pearson, in The Sarum Missal in English, 1868.
4. Thou for ever our salvation. By C. B. Pearson, in his Sequence from the Sarum Missal. 1871. [J. M.]

Salvation, O the joyful sound. I. Watts. (Praise for Salvation.) The hymn which passes under this first line is found in so many forms that it will be necessary to indicate not only the sources from whence its varying stanzas have been taken, but also to give the original text itself.

I. The original hymn appeared in Watts's Hys. and Spiritual Songs, 1707. Bk. ii., No. 88, in 3 st. of 4 l., and entitled "Salvation":—

> 1. "Salvation! O, the joyful sound,
> 'Tis pleasure to our ears;
> A sweeter never reached a wound,
> A cordial for our fears.
>
> 2. "Bury'd in sorrow and in sin,
> At hell's dark door we lay;
> But we arise by grace divine
> To see a heav'nly day.
>
> 3. "Salvation! let the echo fly
> The spacious earth around,
> While all the armies of the sky
> Conspire to raise the sound."

Amongst the collections which are in common use at the present day the following contain this text: the S. P. C. K. Ps & Hymns; Bk. of Praise Hymnal; Bap. Ps. & Hys.; New Cong.; Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk.; Stevenson's Hys. for Ch. and Home; and others, which can be readily ascertained by reference to the text as above. It is also found in numerous American collections.

II. About the year 1772 a cento appeared in the Countess of Huntingdon's Coll. as follows:—

> St. i. Watts's st. i. as above, with "What" for "'Tis."
> St. ii. Watts's st. ii. as above.
> St. iii. "Salvation! O Thou bleeding Lamb,
> To Thee the praise belongs;
> Salvation shall inspire our hearts,
> And dwell upon our tongues."

To these were added the following st.:—

> "Blessing, honour, praise and power
> Be ever, Lord, to Thee;
> Amen Christ's Love hath bought us more > Hallelujah! Praise the Lord."

This arrangement is probably due to the Hon. Walter Shirley, who revised the Lady Huntingdon Coll. about 1774. It was exceedingly popular with the older compilers, and is found in many of their collections. In modern hymn-books it is found, amongst others, both in Great Britain and America, in the Wes. H. Bk.; Meth. N. Con. H. Bk.; Meth. S. S. H. Bk., &c., with the "Blessing" of the chorus changed to "Glory."

In addition, the following centos are in common use:—

(a) St. i. "Salvation, O," &c. St. ii. "Buried," &c. St. iii. "Salvation let," &c. St. iv. "Salvation, O Thou," Chorus.

This arrangement is found in Mercer, Harland's Psalter, and others; and without the chorus in Windle's Coll. and Stowell's Ps. & Hys., &c.

(f) St. i. "Salvation! O," &c. St. ii. "Salvation! be," &c. St. iii. "Salvation! O Thee," &c. Chorus. Given in the Irish Church Hymnal, &c.

(g) St. i. "Salvation! O," &c. St. ii. "Burial," &c. St. iii. "Salvation! let," &c., and Chorus after each stanza. Given in the Hymnary, 1872, as No. 67; and with St. i. "Salvation! O" &c. St. ii. "Burial," &c. St. iii. "Salvation, O Thee," &c. St. iv. "Salvation let." Chorus. Given in Rankin's New Ch. S. Bk., 1873.

iii. In Dr. Konnoly's Hymns. Christ., 1863, No. 624, is a conto tinus composed :—

St. i. "Salvation! O," &c. Dr. Watts. St. ii. "Our," &c. Dr. Doddridge. St. iii. "Salvation! let," &c. Dr. Watts. St. iv. "Salvation! O Thee," &c. Lady Huntingdon's Coll. St. v. "Rejoice, rejoice," &c. Dr. Konnoly.

iv. Some curious and somewhat interesting centos are also found in the older collections : as Ash & Evans's Bap. Coll. (Bristol), 1769 : Urwick's Coll. (Dublin), 1829 ; Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, 1833 ; and others. In one form or another, as an original hymn or as a conto, "Salvation ! O the joyful sound," has had and still has a most extensive use. It has also been translated into several languages, sometimes one form of the text being used and then another. R. Bingham's tr. into Latin, "Salus, Salus, O vox lucis," in his Hymno. Christ. Lat., 1871, is a rendering of (a) as above. [J. J.]

Salvator mundi Domine. [Advent. Evening.] This is found in a ms. of the 12th cent. in the British Museum (Harl. 2961 f. 110 b); in a Sarum Hymnary, circa 1300 (Lamb. Lat. 95, f. 124 b); and a York Hymnary of the 13th cent. (Lamb. Lat. 5, f. 165), both now in the Bodleian ; in the Sarum, York, Hereford and Aberdeen Breviaries, &c. Also in Daniel, iv. p. 209, Mone, No. 59, and Card. Newman's Hy. Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Mone thinks it is of the 6th or 7th cent. It was appointed as a hymn at compline ; but the seasons during which it was used vary considerably in the various Breviaries, ranging from Saturdays in Advent to the First S. in Lent ; and again from Trinity to Christmas. The original was used at Ekin, at the S. v. M. daily service, until about 1830. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U. :—

1. Most Saviour, Lord of all. By Bp. Cosin, in his Coll. of Private Devotions, 1627 ("The Approbation," Feb. 20, 1626 . . . Geo. London), which was reprinted several times, the 11th ed. by Bivington in 1838. In W. J. Blew's Church Hy. & Tune Bk., 1852-55, No. 6, from Trinity Sunday to Advent, begins with st. ii. of this tr. slightly altered, as "Ruler of the day and night." In the Wellington College H. Bk., Bp. Cosin's tr., is altered to "O blessed Saviour, Lord of all."

2. O Saviour of the world before, This midnight, &c. By W. J. Copeland, in his Hys. for the Week, 1848, p. 154. It is repeated in H. A. & M., 1861, the Hymnary, 1872, &c., but almost always with varying alterations in the text, and another doxology. In the 1875 ed. of H. A. & M. it begins, "O Saviour, Lord, to Thee we pray" ; and in the 1883 ed. of the App. to the Hymnal N. as "Thee, Saviour of the world, we pray."

3. Saviour of man, Whose kindly care. By J. D. Chambers, in his Psalter, 1855, p. 358. In Skinner's Daily Service Hyl., 1864, it is given as, "Saviour of men, Whose tender care."

4. Redeemer of the world, we pray. By R. F. Littledale, made for and first pub. in the People's H., 1867, and signed "P. C. L."

Translations not in C. U. :—

1. O Lorde, the wurlden Saviour Whiche hast preserved : Sarum Primer. 1545.

2. O Lord, the Saviour of the world, Who hast preserved : Sarum Hours. 1555.

3. Lord of the world! Who hast preserved. Hymnarium Anglicanum. 1844.

4. Lord of the world, our Strength and Stay. W. J. Blew. 1852-55.

5. O Saviour of the world ! Whose care. J. D. Chambers. 1857.

6. Lord, Who hast kept us all. J. W. Brooke. 1859.

7. O Saviour of the world before, Who near to save, &c. Lord Bragg, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. 1884. [J. J.]

Salve crux beata, salve. J. W. Petersen. [Glorying in the Cross.] Included in the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 328, in 16 st. of 4 l., entitled "Joy of a soul rejoicing under the cross : Romans v. We glory in tribulations." Repeated in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 410. It has passed into English through—

Glück zu Kreuz wer gassen Herzen. A free tr. by L. A. Gotter, in 21 st. 1st pub. in the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 329, and repeated in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 402. In Porst's G. B., ed. 1855, No. 432, st. vii., viii., ix. on special saints and martyrs are omitted. In Bunsen's Versuch, 1833, No. 473, has st. i., ii., vi., xi., xii., xiii.–xv., xvii.–xix., xxi., altered and beginning "Kreuz, wir grüssen dich von Herzen." Tr. as :—

1. Welcome Cross and Tribulation. A tr. of st. i.–v., x., xiii., xiv., xv., xviii. as No. 694, in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

2. Cross, reproach and tribulation. A free tr., based on the 1754 tr. of st. i., ii., iv., xv., xviii. This is No. 307 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1849, No. 510). It is repeated in the Bible H. Bk., 1845, and in America in the Bk. of Hys., Boston, 1848 ; Plymouth Coll., 1855 ; Leaves of Gold, 1884, and others.

3. O Cross, we hail thy bitter reign. A good tr. from Sunday, by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 154. Two centos are in Kennedy, 1863, viz. No. 602 of st. i., ii., xi., xiii.–xv. ; and No. 994 of st. xvii.–xix., xxi., beginning, "Up, brethren of the Cross, and haste." In Hys. of the Spirit, Boston, U. S., 1864, No. 650 consists of st. xi., xiii., xvii., beginning, "Pledge of our glorious home afar" ; and this form beginning, "Sign of a glorious life afar," is in the Berneck Hyl., 1886. [J. M.]

Salve festa dies toto venerabilis ævo. This line is taken from a poem by Fortunatus, which begins "Tempora florigero." Two centos, mainly from Fortunatus, are noted under Tempora florigero. The cento for Easter, which was that most widely used, begins "Salve . . Qua Deus infernum vicit et astra tenet." In the Sarum Processional another cento was given for the Ascension, beginning "Salve . . Qua Deus in coelum scandit et astra tenet." (see Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865, and Daniel, ii. p. 181), but this takes nothing from Fortunatus save the opening stanza. Both in England and on the Continent the various Processionale contain a number of hymns which take the opening line from Fortunatus, but are otherwise quite different. Of these we note here :—

i. Salve . . Qua Deus de coelo gratia fulsit bona. Whitsuntide. This is found in the York Processional of 1530, and is also in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865 ; in Daniel, ii. p. 152 ; and in Edrein, No. 1015. [J. M.]

ii. Hail! Festal Day! dear ev'ry age divine. When God's fair grace from Mary's ev'ning did shine. By T. A. Lacey, in the Altar Hyl., 1884, No. 45.

iii. Salve . . Qua Deus ecclesiam float lumen exam. Whitsuntide. This is also in the York Processional of 1530 ; in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865 ; in Daniel, ii. p. 181 ; and in Edrein, No. 1017. The tr. are :—

1. Hail! all glorious Feast, day hallowed for ever and ever. In the Antiphoner and Grail, 1880, p. 65.

2. Hail festal day! in every age divine. By G. Moultrie, in the Spenser, 1882, No. 95 ; and the Altar Hyl., 1884, No. 47.

iii. Salve . . Qua quoties sponsa jungitur Ecclesia. Ordination of a Church. This is in a Sarum Gradual, circa 1278 (Add. 11284, f. 83), in the British Museum ; in the York Processional of 1530 ; in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865 ; in Daniel, ii. p. 184 ; and in Edrein, No. 976. The tr. are :—

1. Hail, festal day! for ever more adored. By W. A., in the Altar Hyl., 1884, No. 48.

2. Hail, festal day! Hail ever sacred tide. By G. Moultrie, in the Altar Hyl., 1884, No. 49. [J. M.]

Salve mi angelice, spiritus beate. Konrad of Gaming. [Angels.] A hymn of 64 lines given by Mone, No. 312, from a Munich ms. of the 12th cent., and entitled "A prayer concerning one's own (i.e. guardian) angel." Tr. by J. D. Chambers, in his Lauds Sion, Pt. ii., 1866, p. 101, as, "Hail, mine angel, pure and bright," and included in the People's H., 1867. [W. A. S.]

Salve mundi Domina. [B. V. M.] This is found in the Parnassus Marianus, Douai, 1624, p. 38, and there marked as taken from a Spanish book of Hours ("ex horis quibusdam valde antiquis in Hispania"). The same text is found in the Path to Heaven (ed. London, 1877, pp. 429-435), in recent eds. of Nahuterus's Cultate psalmum (e.g. Mechlin, 1859, p. 236), and other modern Roman Catholic manuals of devotion. A portion beginning "Salve area fœderis" is in Daniel, iv. p. 242. F. W. E. Roth, in his Lat. Hymnen, 1887, Nos. 191-97, prints it from a Prayer Book written for the use of the Empress Maria Theresa of Austria, about 1760 (now in Darmstadt), where it occurs in the course of an office for the Immaculate Conception of the B. V. M. It has been tr. by E. Caswall in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 255, and in his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 165, in 10 st. of 8 l., and thus divided for Divine Service :—

1. Matins. "Hail, Queen of the heavens."
2. Prime. "Hail, Virgin most wise."
3. Terce. "Hail, Solomon's throne."
4. Sext. "Hail, virginal mother."
5. None. "Hail, Virgin of virgins."
6. Vespers. "Hail, Ark of Adam."
7. Compline. "Hail, mother most pure."
8. Commendation. "These praises and prayers."

These parts are repeated in the Crown of Jesus H. Bk., 1862, as separate hymns.

Other trs. are :—

1. Hail, Lady o' th' world O' heaven bright Queen. Primer, 1685.
2. Hail, Virgin, o'er all virgins bright. D. French, 1850. [J. M.]

Salve mundi salutare. St. Bernard of Clairvaux? [Passiontide.] The text of this sweet and beautiful poem, which has been mainly used by translators into English and German, is that found in St. Bernard's Opera Omnia, Paris, 1609, cols. 1035-36. Here it is entitled "A rhythmical prayer to any one (unus quodlibet) of the members of Christ, suffering and hanging on the Cross," and is divided into seven parts, viz. :—

i.	Salve mundi salutare,	To the Feet.
ii.	Salve Jesu, Rex sanctorum.	,, Knees.
iii.	Salve Jesu, pastor bone.	,, Hands.
iv.	Salve Jesu, summe bonus.	,, Side.
v.	Salve salus mea, Deus.	,, Breast.
vi.	Salve, Regis cor sevum.	,, Heart.
vii.	Salve caput cruentatum.	,, Face.

Going a little further back, a somewhat similar text is in St. Bernard's Opuscula, Venice, 1493, where it is entitled "A divine and most devout prayer of the Abbot St. Bernard, which he made when an image of the Saviour, with outstretched arms, embraced him from the Cross." Here the last section is entitled "To the whole body," and begins, "Salve Jesu reverende." In a ms. of 1454, now in the Town Library at Nürnberg, there is a tr. into German entitled "St. Bernard's Lamentation," and beginning "Der welt ballard, sim min gricnen," which is from the same text as that in the Opuscula ; and here, after the third last stanza, is the note "As now St. Bernard had spoken these words with great earnestness of desire, the image [Marter-bild] on the cross bowed itself, and embraced him with its wounded arms, as a sure token that to it this prayer was most pleasing." The same German tr. is also in a 15th cent. ms. at Donaueschingen, with the title "This is the noble prayer of the devout doctor St. Bernard," &c. (see Wackernagel, ii., No. 454, and p. 1193).

Clearly, then, there is tradition at least as far back as 1450 (the tradition indeed seems to have come from Clairvaux), that the poem, as a whole, is by one author, and that this was St. Bernard. St. Bernard, however, d. in 1153, and no ms. of the poem have yet been found of earlier date than the 14th cent. The mss., moreover, present the greatest varieties of text and arrangement, so that it is exceedingly difficult to say whether any part of the poem is really by St. Bernard, or to discriminate what is his and what is not his. Doubtless the remark which Archbishop Trench made regarding other poems ascribed to St. Bernard, is true of this poem, viz. that the internal evidence is in favour of him as its author ; and that if he did not write it, it is not easy to guess who could have written it. But in the present state of the evidence we cannot say much more. The conclusions of Mone and Daniel may be thus summed up :—

Mone, Nos. 123-126, gives parts 1-4, from mss. of the 14th and 15th cent. Into the variety of texts and forms shown in his notes we have not here space to enter. In these notes he gives a mass of various readings, and mentions that at least two of the 15th cent. mss. which he used had also parts 5-7. He also says, that in a 13th cent. ms. at Amerbach, the complete poem is entitled, "Prayer of Bonaventure, on saluting the Five Wounds of Christ." In his judgment, the bewildering variety of forms and texts makes it impossible to come to any definite conclusions as to authorship; but he thinks that the original poem was probably by a French writer.

Daniel, i., No. 207; iii., p. 359; and iv., pp. 224–231, gives the text of all the parts. In his notes in vol. iv. he expresses the opinion that only two of the parts, those to the Feet and to the Knees (1 and 2), are by St. Bernard. His principal reason for so thinking is, because the Lichtenthal MS. of the 14th cent., quoted by Mone, has only these two, with the title "Lamentatio on the Passion of the Lord." As Lichtenthal was a Cistercian foundation, he holds that the Brethren there would be most likely to give the complete and correct text of a poem by the founder of their Order. He adds:—

"Whoever reads the first part attentively cannot but perceive that it is not a meditation on the suffering Christ, and that special mention is made of the Feet only for this reason,—that the poet places himself prostrate on his knees, at the foot of the cross, and embraces the Saviour's Feet. And as far as regards the other parts, they are not suitable to the first and second part, and that incidentally: the poem, as a whole, is clearly concerned with the Passion as a whole. Such a poem was composed by St. Bernard; the titles of the members are the work of a later age."

Daniel holds that the address to the Hands is later than St. Bernard; that next was added, probably in the 14th cent., the address to the Side; and that those to the Breast, to the Heart, and to the Face, were first added in the 15th cent.

Mone and Daniel thus agree in thinking that parts 5–7 are not by St. Bernard, but are of much later date, probably of the 15th cent. And, apparently, they would have agreed in saying that these additions were made in Germany. If their conclusions be correct, then the finest part of all, the "Salve caput cruentatum," must be by some one other than St. Bernard.

Other texts may be briefly noted. (1) The poem is found in five mss. of the 14th cent., at St. Gall (Nos 472, 974, 975, 976, and 977). (2) Wackernagel, Kirchenlied, 1867, No. 145, gives the skeleton of a form in 7 parts (beginning: "Salve mundi salutare"), the parts being respectively assigned to Matins, Prime, Tierce, Sext, None, Vespers, and Compline. He cites it as in a Munich ms. of the 15th cent., and another of the 16th. (3) G. Milchsack, in his Hymni et Sequentiæ, 1886, No. 116, gives a curious form of parts 5–7, from a 15th cent. breakfront in the Wolfenbüttel Library. (4) Wackernagel, i., Nos. 148–150, gives the text, in 7 parts, from a Basle ms. of the 15th cent., and a Strassburg one. (5) Archbishop Trench, in his Sacred Latin Poetry, gives parts 1 and 7 from the Opera, 1753. (6) F. J. Mone, given in his Lat. Hym., 1854, parts 1, 5, and 7. (7) The texts in Königsfeld, ii., p. 281; (8) Simrock, p. 15, and (9) Mone's Hymni Medii Ævi, 1851, iv. 35, are coarse.

In J. M. Horst's Paradisus animæ Christianæ, 1644, the text is given in 7 parts, but very greatly altered, thus:—

i. Jam summæ Jove victatis.
ii. Christe Jesu, Rex cœlestium.
iii. Christe Jesu Pastor bone.
iv. O Salvator summe bonus.
v. O Jesu Mundi Christe Jesu.
vi. O divinum Cor suave.
vii. Caput spinis coronatum.

It may be added that the use of this noble poem seems to have been almost entirely confined to books of private devotion, and collections of sacred poetry. No parts or scraps appear to have passed into Mediæval Breviaries, Missals, Graduals, or Processionals; and the only portion we have been able to trace in similar modern books, is the greatly mutilated couplet, "Jesu dulcis amor meus" (p. 988, i.), included in recent editions of the Roman Breviary.

The whole poem has frequently been tr. into German; and various German versions have also been made from portions of it. The best known set of trs. into German are those by Paulus Gerhardt, which are free versions of all the seven parts, from the Latin text of 1609, thus:—

i. Sei mir tausendmal gegrüsset.
ii. Gegrüsset seist du meine Kron.
iii. Sei wohl gegrüsset, guter Hirt.
iv. Ich preise dich, du Freimeister Munt.
v. Gegrüsset seist du, Jesu Christ.
vi. O Herz des Königs aller Welt.
vii. O Haupt voll Blut und Wunden.

Of these Nos. 1, 5, 6, 7, have passed into English, as follows:—

1. Sei mir tausendmal gegrüsset. This fine but free rendering appeared in Crüger's Praxis pietatis melica, Frankfort-a-l., 1656, No. 154, of Crüger's Praxis pietatis melica, in 2 ed. of ib. Included in Wackernagel's ed. of Gerhardt's Geistl. Lieder, No. 16, in Suchenwirt's ed., No. 47, and in the Ges. L. d., 1851, No. 116. The trs. in C. U. are:—

1. Hail! blessed times by me be greeted. This is No. 331 in pt. 1. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754. Repeated in later eds. (1806, No. 96).

2. Hail! by my love be owned. A tr. of st. i., iii., iv., by A. T. Russell, as No. 65 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

3. Hail! my Saviour, Prince of Peace! A tr. of st. iv., iv. & vi. of 1. in the Frankfort ed. 1656, of Crüger's Praxis, No. 154. Included in Wackernagel's ed. of Gerhardt, No. 20; Suchenwirt's ed., No. 52; and in Porst's G. B., ed. 1855, No. 91. The trs. are:—

(1) "All hail to Thee, my Saviour and my God." By Miss Winkworth, in her Chorale Book for England, 1863, No. 147. (2) "All hail! my Saviour and my God." By E. Massie, in the Scottish Herald, Feb. 1866, p. 18.

4. O Herz des Königs aller Welt. A good tr., in 7 st. of 4 l., by A. T. Russell, as No. 66 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851. Repeated in Wackernagel's ed. of Gerhardt, No. 21; Suchenwirt's ed., No. 53; and in the Berlin G. L. B., ed. 1863, No. 295. It has been tr. as:—(1) "O Heart of Him who dwells on high." By E. Massie, in the Scottish Herald, Feb. 1866, p. 18.

5. O Haupt voll Blut und Wunden. The trs. of this form are given in the separate note at p. 988, i. ii.

[J. M.]

The trs. of this poem from the Latin into English, in the various parts, as set forth above, are:—

i. Salve mundi salutare. The trs. of this part are:—

1. All the world's salvation hail. By Mrs. Charles, in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, 1858, p. 161.

2. Jesu, hail, the world's salvation. By H. Kynaston, in his Occasional Hys., 1862, p. 83.

3. Life of the world, I hail Thee. By R. Palmer, in the N. York Christian Union, April 13, 1881, in 8 st. of 8 l. Of these, 3 sts. were given in the London Examiner, N. Y., 1884, No. 400.

ii. Salve Jesu [salve] Rex sanctorum. This has been tr. as:—

1. Jesu, King of saints, Whose Name. By T. Whytehead, in his Poems, 1848, p. 75. This pt. is represented in st. i.–iv. of the tr.; the remaining sts., v.–xii., being from Pt. i., beginning with line eleven, "Clarus pedum, plagus durus."

2. Hail, Thou King of saints, ascending. By H. Kynaston, made for and 1st pub. in the Hymnary, 1872.

3. Hail! Thou Monarch of sanctuary. By J. D. Chambers, in his Lauds Spiritualis, 1857, p. 178.

iii. Salve Jesu, pastor bone.

iv. Salve Jesu, summe bonus. This is tr. as:—

Jesu, good beyond comparing. By H. Kynaston; made for, and first pub. in the Hymnary, 1872.

v. Salve salus mea, Deus.

vi. Summi Regis cor aveto. This is tr. as:—

Heart of Christ my King! I greet Thee. By E. A. Washburn, of N. Y., June, 1868, contributed to Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869.

vii. Salve caput cruentatum. This, the finest and most popular part of the poem, is tr. as:—

1. Hail that Head with sorrows bowing. By H. Alford, in his Ps. & Hys., 1844, No. 34; his Year of Praise, 1867, No. 102; and the Sarum Hyl., 1868, No. 130. It is composed of ll. 1–3 and 40–50 of this part. See Daniel, i., No. 207.

2. Hail that Head all torn and wounded. By J. F. Thrupp, in his Ps. & Hys., 1853, No. 72; and the B. P. C. E. Church Hys., 1871, No. 377. It is slightly indebted to Dean Alford's tr. as above.

3. Hail, then Head! so bruised and wounded. By Elizabeth Charles, nee Rundle, in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, 1858, p. 120; and her Chronicles of the Schönberg-Cotta Family, 1862, p. 201. It is in a few collections. In the Hymnary, 1872, it is somewhat altered, and begins, "Hail, thou Head, so bruised and torn." In Thring's Coll., 1882, No. 173, is a conto thus composed:—st. i., from the Hymnary, ll. 4, 6, 10, Mrs. Charles, ll. 3, 5, 7, 8, 9, Prob. Thring; st. ii., ll. 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, Mrs. Charles, ll. 3, 4, 5, 6, 10, Prob. Thring; st. iii., ll. 1, 3, 4, 8, Mrs. Charles, ll. 2, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, Prob. Thring; st. iv. and v., ll. 1–8, Prob. Thring, ll. 9, 10, Mrs. Charles. This is a very fine combined tr. of this part of the poem. It has been specially set to music by Sir John Stainer; Lond., Novello & Co.

4. O sacred Head, surrounded. By Sir H. W. Baker. This tr., although it follows the metre of the German tr. (see above), was made direct from the Latin, and 1st pub. in H. A. & M., 1861. It is in the new ed., 1875; the Irish Church Hys., 1873, &c.

5. Head, all hail, with gore drops scattered. By H. Kynaston, in his Occasional Hys., 1862, p. 85.

In addition to these, two hymns by H. Alford, which were based on St. Bernard, appeared in his Ps. & Hys., 1844, as "Glory to Thy Father's face," and "Thou Saviour who Thyself didst give." The text, in 10 sts., as given in Daniel, ii., p. 393, has also been tr. by D. T. Morgan, in his Hys. of the Latin Church, 1871, p. 76; and the 1880 ed., p. 97, as, "Saviour of the world, to Thee, Blessed One [Jesu, low] I bow the knee."

The Poem, as arranged in Horst's Paradisus animæ Christianæ, 1644, as above, has been tr., probably by W. J. Copeland (see p. 982, i.), in Dr. Pusey's tr. of Horst; and, again, by Canon Oakeley, in his tr. of the same, 1850, as follows:—

Jesu summæ Jove victatis.
i. Jesu, Prince of Life and Power. Pusey.
2. Jesu, great King of saving wealth. Oakeley.
ii. Christe Jesu, Jesu bonorum.
1. Jesu, Priest of endless pleasure. Pusey.
2. Jesu, Priest of all blessings rife. Oakeley.
iii. Christe Jesu, Pastor bone!
1. Gracious Jesu, Shepherd good. Pusey.
2. O Jesu Christ, Thou Shepherd good. Oakeley.
iv. O Salvator summe bonus.
1. Saviour, Whose all-playing care. Pusey.
2. Saviour, supremely excellent. Oakeley.
v. O Jesu Mundi Christe Jesu.
1. Glory of the heavens above. Pusey.
2. O Christ, my God, earth's beacon-fire. Oakeley.
vi. O divinum Cor suave.
1. Holy heart, divinely sweet. Pusey.
2. O Heart, all heavenly heart, to Thee. Oakeley.
vii. Caput spinis coronatum.
1. Ah, that Head with sharp thorns crowned. Pusey.
2. All blooding with the tangled thorn. Oakeley.

Although, taken as a whole, considerable attention has been given to this poem in its various forms, yet some of the Parts have suffered from neglect. This should be remedied by an able translator. [J. J.]

Salve, O sanctissime. [St. John Baptist.] A hymn of 40 lines given by Mone, No. 650, from a ms. of 1479, at Karlsruhe, and a 15th cent. ms. at Mainz. It has been tr. by G. Moultrie in his Hys. and Lyrics, &c., 1867, p. 215, as "Hail, O thou of women born." Also in the People's H., 1867, and signed "M." [W. A. S.]

Salve regina. Hermannus Contractus (?). [R. F. M.] This famous antiphon has been attributed to a great variety of authors. The opinion of Durandus (d. 1296), in his Rationale, was, that it was by Petrus of Monsaco (Petrus Martinez do Moseco), Bp. of Compostella, who d. circa 1000. It has also been ascribed to Adhemar, Bp. of Podium (Le Puy), who d. 1098; to Bernard, Archbishop of Toledo, who d. 1124; to Anselm, Bp. of Lucca, who d. 1086; to St. Bernard, of Clairvaux, who d. 1153, &c. Tritheim (d. 1516) and others think that it was by Hermannus Contractus (d. 1054); and this seems, on the whole, the most probable opinion. In any case it must have been known by 1100, for there are sermons on the first part of it (down to exili), by Bernard of Toledo (see Migne's P. P. Lat., vol. 184, col. 1059). There is also a Meditatio upon it, which Migne, vol. 184, col. 1078, gives as by Anselm of Lucca; and at vol. 149, col. 585, among the Opuscula sparsa ascribed to St. Anselm of Lucca. The text of the antiphon, which is embodied in the Meditatio, is probably the original form, and reads thus:—

"Salve, regina misericordiæ, vita, dulcedo, et spes nostra, salve. Ad te clamamus exules filii Eræ. Ad te suspiramus, gementes et flentes in hac lachrymarum valle. Eia ergo, advocata nostra, illos tuos misericordes oculos ad nos converte. Et Jesum benedictum fructum ventris tui, post hoc exilium ostende. O clemens, O pia, O dulcis Maria."

Almost the same text is given by Daniel, ii., p. 321, from a Munich ms. of the 13th cent., &c.; and by Schubiger, in his Singerschule St. Gallens, 1858, p. 85, from the Einsiedeln ms., No. 33, written about 1300. So in a Horæ, in the Bodleian (Liturg. Misc. 104, f. 122), written in England about 1340, where, however, it begins, "Salve regina, mater misericordiæ": and ends, "O dulcis Virgo Maria." This last text is that found in the Roman Breviary (e.g. Modena, 1480, f. 313, and later eds.), where it is appointed for use at Compline, from the First Vespers of Trinity Sunday, up to None on the Saturday before Advent Sunday. According to tradition, the concluding part of the antiphon, "O clemens, O pia, O dulcis Maria," was first added from an ejaculation by St. Bernard of Clairvaux, in the cathedral at Speyer (Spires); but, as will be seen above, those words are in the earliest forms of the text. [See Various.]

992 SALVETE CHRISTI SANCTE DEI PRETIOSE

In mediæval times, this antiphon became a great favourite, and in many churches money was left to provide for having it regularly sung. It was much used in Italy by the fishermen and sailors, when at sea, in stormy weather. One result of its popularity was, that a large number of hymns were written upon it, embodying the words of the antiphon in their various stanzas. Mone, Nos. 487-495, gives nine examples, more or less complete, from MSS. of the 14th and 15th cents.; and a tenth is in Daniel, ii., p. 323. The fine plain-song melody (given by Schubiger as above), has also been ascribed to Hermannus Contractus; and the antiphon has been set to music by very many composers since his day. Luther spoke very sharply of the veneration of the B. V. M. in this antiphon, and of the honour paid to it by the ringing of the church bells while it was being sung. A Protestant version, beginning "Salve Rex æternæ misericordiæ," was in use at Erfurt in 1523. In the Appx. to the Roman Catholic Hymnarius, pub. at Sigismundfust, in 1524, there is an evangelical version which reads, e.g.:—

"Salve Jesu Christe, misericordia, vita . . . Advocate noster . . . et teipsum benedictum filium Dei Patris nobis . . . O clemens, O pie, O dulcis Jesu fili Mariæ."
(See Schlosser, i. p. 45, and ii., p. 76.)

The Roman Breviary form of the text has been tr. as:—

1. Mother of mercy, hail, O gracious [gentle] Queen. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 40; and his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 23. This is in use in a few Roman Catholic collections for missions and schools.

Other trs. are:—

1. Hail'e Queen, mother of mercys. Sarum Primer, 1534.
2. All hails, O Queene mother of mercie. Primer, 1599.
3. All hails, O Queene mother of Mercie. Primer, 1631.
4. Hail to the Queen who reigns above. Primer, 1685.
5. Hail, happy queen; thou mercy's parent, hail. Primer, 1706.
6. Hail, queen, we hail thee. J. R. Veale, 1848.

Other trs. of this and the preceding lines are in the Primer, 1867, and The Crown of Jesus M. Ms., 1862. [J. M.]

Salvete Christi vulnera. [Passionitide.] This is the hymn at Lauds in the office of the Most precious Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ (see "Ira justi Conditoris"). It is found in the Roman Breviary, Venice, 1736, Verss., Appendix, p. 60; and is repeated in later eds. of the Roman Breviary, and in Daniel, ii. p. 335. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. Hail wounds! which through eternal years. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 87, and his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 40. It is in a few collections in full, and also altered and abridged to 3 st. in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, as "How clearly all His torturing wounds."

2. Hail! holy wounds of Jesus, hail. By H. N. Oxenham, in his The Sentence of Kolren, and Other Poems, 1854, p. 191; the 1860 Appendix to the H. Noted; Lyra Eucharistica, 1863; and O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884.

Translation not in C. U.:—

All hail to you, seven Jesu's wounds. J. Wallace, 1874. [J. J.]

Sancti Spiritus adsit nobis gratia. St. Notker. [Whitsuntide.] This has frequently been ascribed to King Robert of France, but apparently without ground. It is found in a MS. in the Bodleian (Bodl. 775, f. 123 b), apparently written circa 1000; in a Winchester book of the 11th cent. now in Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, No. 473; in two MSS. of the 12th cent. in the British Museum (Add. 11,969 early 12th, f. 31 b; Calig. A. xiv. c. 1199, f. 62); in the Prum Gradual, circa 1000, and the Echternach Gradual of the 11th cent., both in the Bibl. Nat. Paris; in four MSS. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall, Nos. 376, 378, 380, 381; in a MS. of the end of the 10th cent. at Einsiedeln (121, p. 487). Among Missals it is found in an early 14th cent. Paris, and a 14th cent. Sens in the British Museum; in a Sarum circa 1370, a Hereford circa 1370, and a York circa 1390, all now in the Bodleian; in the St. Andrews, the Magdeburg of 1480, and many other Missals, even in Italy and Spain. The printed text is also in Mone, No. 197; Daniel, ii. p. 16, and Kehrein, No. 124. Tr. as:—

Come, O Holy Ghost, within us. By C. S. Calverley, made for and pub. in the Hymnary, 1872.

Other trs. are:—

1. The grace of the Holy Ghost be present with us. In Neale, a prose tr. in his Mediæval Hys., 2nd ed., 1863.
2. May the Holy Spirit's grace. By C. B. Pearson in his Sarum Missal in English, 1868.
3. Now may the Holy Spirit's grace. By C. B. Pearson in his Supplement to the Sarum Missal, 1871.
4. Let the Holy Spirit's grace. "To make our hearts, &c. By E. H. Plumptre, in his Things New and Old, 1884. [J. M.]

Sancti venite, corpus Christi sumite. [Holy Communion.] This is found in the Antiphonarium Benchorense, an antiphonary written 680-691 at the Monastery of Bangor, County Down, Ireland, and now in the Ambrosian Library at Milan. The MS. has been printed in L. A. Muratori's Opera, vol. xi., pt. iii. Arezzo, 1770, and the hymn in question is there at p. 228 as "a hymn when the priests communicate." This title explains st. i., ii. 3, 4, "Sanctum bibentes, Quo redempti, sanguinem." "It has," says Neale, "a certain pious simplicity about it which renders it well worthy of preservation." Its original use was probably to be sung as a Communio in the Mass (see Communio, p. 316, i.). The printed text is also in Rambach, i. p. 132; Daniel, i. No. 160, and iv. p. 106; and Bässler, No. 61.

Translation in C. U.:—

Draw nigh, and take the Body of the Lord. By J. M. Neale, pub. in his Mediæval Hymns, 1851, p. 13, in 10 st. of 2 l. It passed into the People's H., 1867 (7 st.); H. A. & M., 1868 and 1875 (in full); the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871 (in full); in others in 6 st. only, and in most cases with very slight alterations. In the Hy. Comp. it is altered as "Come, take by faith the Body of your Lord." In his annotated ed. of the Hy. Comp. Bp. Bickersteth has this note on his amended text:—

"The Editor has ventured to modify his [Neale's] first line 'Draw nigh and take the Body of the Lord,' which contains no thought answering to Sumite, by introducing the words 'by faith'; and while thus adhering more closely to the original, adds to the expression of the reality of our communion with the Blood of Christ are verily and indeed taken and received by the faithful in the Lord's Supper" (Catechism). And again, "The means whereby the body of Christ is received and eaten in the Supper is faith (Articles Answer)."

In addition to this alteration Bp. Bickersteth has several others, all of which, with one exception, deal more with the rhythm of the lines than with doctrine. The exception is st. 4, which reads in the Latin:—

"Alpha et Omega Ipse Christus dominus, Venit venturus judicare homines."

In Neale:—

"Alpha and Omega, to whom shall bow
All nations at the Doom, in wills as now."

In the Hy. Comp.:—

"O Judge of all, our only Saviour Thou,
In this Thy Feast of love be with us now."
[J. J.]

Sanctorum meritis inclita gaudia. [Common of Martyrs.] This hymn is frequently referred to by Hincmar in his "De ms et tom tribu Dulcke," 857; but he distinctly says he could not discover its author. It is found in four MSS. of the 11th cent. in the British Museum (Jul. A. vi., f. 63 b; Vesp. D. xii., f. 104; Harl. 2961 f. 247 b; Add. 30,851 f. 152 b); and in the Latin Hys. of the Anglo Saxon Ch., 1851, is printed from an 11th cent. MS. at Durham (B. iii. 32, f. 59). Also in a MS. of the 10th cent. at Bern, No. 455; in a MS. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (No. 391, p. 273); in the St. Gall MSS. 413 and 414, of the 11th cent. It is in the Roman, Sarum, York, Aberdeen, Paris of 1643, and other Breviaries—the Sarum use being at 1st Vespers and at Matins in the common of many martyrs. The printed text is also in Daniel i. No. 170, and iv. p. 130, giving also the text of the Roman Breviary, 1632; Wackernagel i. No. 125; G. M. Dreves's Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, from a 10th cent. MS.; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. The triumphs of the martyr's saints. By Bp. R. Mant, in his Ancient Hys., &c., 1837, p. 76, and 1871, p. 135. It is given in several collections, including Kennedy, 1863; the People's H. 1867; the Hymnary, 1872, &c.

2. The triumphs of the saints. Blessed for evermore. By J. M. Neale, in the H. Noted, 1852, No. 39. In the enlarged ed., 1854, it was given as "The merits of the saints," and this latter reading is usually given in modern hymnbooks. In later editions of the H. Noted the original reading was restored.

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. Let us that Saviours be the glorious joyes sound out. Primer, 1599.
2. By healps of Saints, come let our tongues relate. Primer. 1615.
3. Let us fam'd acts and triumphs sing. Primer, 1685.
4. When bleeding Heroes fill the trustful Quire. Primer. 1706.
5. Sing we the peerless deeds of martyr'd saints. R. Chenell. 1849.
6. Let the high praise of the holy ones wakes. W. J. Blew. 1852-55.
7. The triumphs of the saints, Their joys beyond compare. J. D. Chambers. 1857.

993

994

3. The wondrous joys which crown the saints. J. W. Hewett. 1849.

4. Let us proclaim the Martyrs' bliss. J. Wallace. 1874.

The variations in the Romana Brev. text from the older form are very slight. The trs. by Neale, Bliss, Chambers, and Hewett, are from the older form; the rest follow the Romana Brev. form. There is an anonymous imitation rather than a tr. of the Latin text in Fallow's Hys. for Pub. and Private Worship, 1847; and again, with the addition of a doxology, in Johnston's English Hymn., 1852, beginning "Blest Lord, the crown of great reward." [J. J.]

Sandys, George, s. of Dr. Edwin Sandys, Archbishop of York, was b. at Bishopthorpe Palace, York, in 1577, and educated at St. Mary Hall and Corpus Christi College, Oxford. For some years he devoted himself to travelling in Europe and Asia, and pub. in 1615 a curious account of his experiences. After visiting America, where he was for a time the Treasurer of the British Colony of Virginia, he became, on his return, a Gentleman of the Privy Chamber of Charles I. He d. at Boxley Abbey, Kent, March 1643. His publications included his Traveller's Thanksgiving; the prose work on his travels, A Relation of a Journey begun in 1610, &c., 1615; a tr. of the Metamorphoses of Ovid; and Grotius's tragedy of Christ's Passion. His productions which most nearly concern hymnology were:—

(1) A Paraphrase upon the Psalmes of David, and upon the Hymns dispersed throughout the Old and New Testaments. London: at the Sign of the Bell in St. Paul's Church-yard. M.DC.XXVI.

(2) A Paraphrase upon the Divine Poems by George Sandys. London: at the Sign of the Bell in St. Paul's Church-yard. M.DC.XXVIII. This volume contained the Paraphrase of the Psalms, paraphrases upon Job, Ecclesiastes, the Lamentations of Jeremiah, and the Songs collected out of the Old and New Testaments.

(3) His paraphrase of The Song of Solomon was pub. in 1642. The most available form of these works is the Rev. B. Hooper's reprint of Sandys's Poems, in Smith's Library of the Authors.

A few only of Sandys's versions of the Psalms are found in modern hymn-books, although they were set to music by Henry Lawes. His influence, however, upon later paraphrasers was considerable. [See Psalters, English, § x.] The following, together with a few others annotated under their respective first lines, are in C. U.:—

1. How are the Gentiles all on fire. Ps. ii.
2. Lord, for Thee I daily cry. Ps. lxxxiv.
3. Thy mercies, Lord, my song shall be. Ps. lxxxix.
4. Praise the Lord, ye servants, praise. Ps. cxiii.
5. Sing the Great Jehovah's praise. Ps. cxvii.
6. Thou, Lord, my witness art. Ps. cxxxi.
7. Thou who art (dwellst) enthroned above. Ps. xcix.
8. You, who dwell above the skies. Ps. cxlviii.

These paraphrases as in C. U. are in the form of contos. [J. J.]

Sankey, Ira David, was b. in Edinburgh, Pennsylvania, in 1840, of Methodist parents. About 1856 he removed with his parents to Newcastle, Pennsylvania, where he became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Four years afterwards he became the Superintendent of a large Sunday School in which he commenced his career of singing sacred songs and solos. Mr. Moody met with him and heard him sing at the International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association, at Indianapolis, and through Mr. Moody's persuasion he joined him in his work at Chicago. After some two or three years' work in Chicago, they sailed for England on June 7, 1872, and held their first meeting at York a short time afterwards, only eight persons being present. Their subsequent work in Great Britain and America is well known. Mr. Sankey's special duty was the singing of sacred songs and solos at religious gatherings, a practice which was in use in America for some time before he adopted it. His volume of Sacred Songs and Solos is a compilation from various sources, mainly American and mostly in use before. Although known as Sankey and Moody's Songs, only one song, "Home at last, thy labour done" (see Varina), is by Mr. Sankey, and not one is by Mr. Moody. Mr. Sankey supplied several of the melodies. The English edition of the Sacred S. & S. has had an enormous sale; and the work as a whole is very popular for Home Mission services. The Songs have been translated into several languages. [J. J.]

Santeüil, Baptiste de, a younger brother of Claude, and J. B. de Santeüil, was the author of two hymns in the Paris Brev. of 1680:—"O vos unanimes Christianum chori," and "Alioste sancti coetibus." These were repeated in his brother's Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, and the 2nd ed. of the same, 1698. [G. A. C.]

Santeüil, Claude de, elder brother of Jean-Baptiste de Santeüil (see below), was b. in Paris, Feb. 3, 1628. He became a secular ecclesiastic of the Seminary of St. Magloire, Paris, whence he was also known under the Latinized form of his name as Sanctolius Magloriaeus. He d. Sept. 29, 1684. Like his brother, he was a good writer of Latin poetry, and some hymns by him were included in the Cluniac Brev., 1686, and the Paris Breviaries of 1680 and 1736. Some of these hymns have been translated into English, and are in C. U. in G. Britain. [See Index of Authors and Translators.] [G. A. C.]

Santeüil, Jean-Baptiste de, was b. in Paris of a good family on May 12, 1630. He was one of the regular Canons of St. Victor, at Paris, and, under the name of Santolius Victorinus, was distinguished as a writer of Latin poetry. Many of his hymns appeared in the Cluniac Brev., 1686, and the Paris Brevs. 1680 and 1736, and several have been translated into English, and are in C. U. in G. Britain and America. [See Index of Authors and Translators.] He was very prone in disposition and singular in his habits. When on a journey he d. at Dijon, Aug. 5, 1697. His Hymni Sacri et Novi were pub. at Paris in 1689, and again, enlarged, in 1698. [G. A. C.]

Santolius Maglorianus. [Santeüil, Claude de.]

Santolius Victorinus. [Santeüil, Jean-Baptiste de.]

Sass, George Herbert, b. in Charleston, South Carolina, Dec. 24, 1845, where he has resided most of his life. He has contributed to the press a number of religious poems under the nom de plume of "Burton Gray." These have not come into use as hymns for congregational purposes. The following are given in the S.-half & Gilman Library of Religious Poetry, 1881.

1. Comes it again, the sweet and solemn hour? Christmas Carol.
2. Once more through storm and calm the changeful hours. The Two Advents.
3. Out of dark and darkness, comes. Easter.
4. Soul, our life's end comes hasting. Follow Me.

[J. J.]

Sat Paule, sat terris datum. Guillaume de la Brunetière. [Consecration of St. Paul.] Appeared in the Sens Brev., 1726, and the Paris Breviary, 1680, as the hymn at Matins and second Vespers on the 30th June. It is also in other French Breviaries and in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. It has been tr. as:—

1. Enough, O Paul, enough, and now. I. Williams. 1839.
2. Enough, O Paul, on earth no more. J. D. Chambers. 1864.

I. Williams's tr. has been in C. U., but that by Chambers has not passed into the hymn-books. [J. J.]

Saturatus fercula. [Holy Communion.] A hymn in 15 st., and entitled, "A giving of thanks after Holy Communion," is quoted by Mone, No. 292, from a Reichenau ms. of the 14th cent., a Reichenau ms. of the 15th cent., and a Munich ms. of the 15th cent. It is also contained in the St. Gall ms., No. 366, of the 15th cent. The Munich ms. contains the hymns of the Carthusian prior Konrad, of Gaming, in Lower Austria. As the Reichenau ms. agree in differing from the text of the Munich it is probable that Konrad only made a few alterations on an older hymn. Tr. as:—

1. Fed with dainties from above. By J. D. Chambers, in his Lauds Apos, 1857, p. 320; and the Alter Hymnal, 1864.
2. With choicest dainties nourished. By R. F. Littledale, in the Alter Manual, 1861; and again in the People's H., 1867, No. 162, and signed "R. L." i.e. Dr. Littledale. [W. A. S.]

Saviour, again to Thy dear Name we raise. J. Ellerton. [Evening.] Written in 1870, in 3 st. of 4 l., for the festival of the Malpas, Middlewich, and Nantwich Choral Association of that year, and adapted to the tune "St. Agnes," in Thorne's Coll. Of this hymn there are the following texts:—

1. The original in 3 st. of 4 l. See No. 4.
2. In the Appendix to H. A. & M., 1868, altered for the app. by E. J. & M., 1868, in 4 st. This is the most popular form of the hymn, and is in extensive use.
3. The same text, with st. ii. and iii. transposed, and st. iii., l. 1, changed from "Grant us Thy peace, Lord, thro' the coming night," to,

"Grant us Thy peace through the approaching night," and included in Church Hymns, 1871. The use of this form of the hymn is limited.

4. In Dr. Bickersteth's Yesterday, To-day, and To-morrow, 1887, in 4 st., the most delicate, beautiful, and tender of all. It is the original text, with the exceptions that st. iii. was originally st. ii., and st. ii. originally st. iii., and the first line of st. ii., reads, "Grant us Thy peace, Lord, through the coming night."

The success which has attended this hymn is very great. No composition of Mr. Ellerton's has attained to anything approaching it in extensiveness of use in Great Britain and America. In Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873, it begins, "Again to Thee, our guardian God, we raise." [J. J.]

Saviour, bless the word to all. T. Kelly. [For a blessing on the Word.] Appeared in the 2nd ed. of his Hymns, &c., 1806, in 3 st. of 4 l. (ed. 1853, No. 694). It is in C. U. in this form. In the American Unitarian Hys. for the Church of Christ, 1853, it is altered to "Father, bless Thy word to all." This text is repeated in a few collections; and, sometimes, as in the Songs for the Sanctuary, N. Y., 1865, with C. Wesley's stanza, "Sing we to our God above," as a doxology. [J. J.]

Saviour, blessed Saviour. G. Thring. [Presenting Counsels.] Written in 1863, and 1st pub. in his Hymns, Congregational and Others, 1866, p. 96, in 3 st. of 8 l. In 1868 it was repeated in the Appendix to H. A. & M., with alterations by the author and the compilers of H. A. & M., in st. v., vii., and viii. When included in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, Prebendary Thring added the stanza "Further, ever further." This full form of the text was repeated in his Hys. and Soc. Lyrics, 1874; and in his Coll., 1882. It has been sparingly set to music by Sir H. S. Oakeley, the Rev. J. Francis, J. D. Farrer, and others. In several American hymn-books it is broken up as:—

1. Brighter still, and brighter. In the Presbyterian Hymnal, Philadelphia, 1874, and others.
2. Closer yet, and closer. In the Songs of Christian Praise, N. Y., 1886.
3. Nearer, ever nearer. In London Journal, S. Y., 1887.

Through these various forms the use of this hymn is extensive. It is well suited for a processional. [J. J.]

Saviour, breathe an evening blessing. J. Edmeston. [Evening.] Appeared in his Sacred Lyrics, 1st ed., 1820, p. 4, in 2 st. of 8 l., and thus introduced "At night their alert evening hymn, 'Jesu Mohwaxo' = 'Jesus forgive us,' stole through the camp.—Saltz's Travels in Abyssinia." One of the earliest to adopt it for congregational use was Bickersteth, who included it in his Christian Psalmody, 1833. It was repeated in the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, and others, until it has taken rank with the first Evening Hymns in the English language. It is found in the hymnals of all English-speaking countries, and usually in its correct and complete form. In the Hys. Comp., revised ed., 1876, Dr. Bickersteth has added a third stanza of 8 l., beginning "Fathers, to thy loving keeping," and in Thring's Coll., 1882, the editor has re-arranged the text, omitted the lines concerning sudden death, and added a fourth stanza in 4 l., beginning "Be it soon nigh, should death o'ertake us," in which the same thought is combined in a milder form. It has been tr. into several languages. The Latin rendering, by E. Hoghton, in his Hymnus Christ. Lat., 1871, is "Vespere, Salvator, spires benedicta, primynum." In Martineau's Hys., 1840 and 1873, the opening line is changed to "Holiest, breathe an evening blessing." Orig. text in the H. Comp., st. i., ii. [J. J.]

Saviour, by Thy sweet compassion. Ada Cambridge. [In Affliction.] Pub. in her Hymns on the Liturgy, 1865, No. 17, in 7 st. of 8 l., and based upon the words "In all times of our tribulation . . . Good Lord, deliver us." It is given in its full and unabbreviated form in the Lyra Britannica, 1867, p. 129. When used in public worship it is usually abbreviated. [J. J.]

Saviour divine, we know Thy name. P. Doddridge. [Justification.] 1st pub. in Job Orton's posthumous edition of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1755, No. 132, in 6 st. of 4 l., and headed "Christ, the Lord our Righteousness." Also in J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1839, No. 150. It is in C. U. sometimes in an abridged form, and also forms part of a conto in Sturgis's Songs of G. & G., 1872, No. 417, where st. i. is the first stanza of this hymn, and st. ii.-v. are st. iii.-vi. of I. Watts's "Lord, we confess our numerous faults," from his Hys. and Spiritual Songs, 1709, Bk. i., No. 111. [J. J.]

Saviour, I lift my trembling eyes. [Jesus, the Guide and Advocate.] Lord Selborne's note on this conto in his Book of Praise, 1862, No. 7xii., is :—

"This hymn as here given [in 3 st. of 4 l.] was introduced into the Morpheus Collection (1861). [Burney, J. H.] from a poem of some length, published in 1851, and signed 'M. G. T.' The text (which will be found at page 139 of that volume) is unaltered, except that the first word, 'Saviour,' has been brought down from a preceding line, in substitution for the words, 'And then,' so as to give to these stanzas an independent beginning."

These stanzas have passed into several collections, and are worthy of greater notice than they have received. We have seen the signature "M. G. T." written out as "M. G. Thompson," but we have not authority to say that this is correct. Another conto from the same poem appeared in the 3rd ed. of The Spirit of the Psalms, by H. F. Lyte, 1838, in 3 st. of 4 l., beginning "Saviour, I think upon that hour." This, reduced to 4 st., is in the Baptist Praise Bk., N. Y., 1871, and other American collections. [J. J.]

Saviour, I Thy word believe. A. M. Toplady. [Christ dwelling in Man.] Appeared in his Poems on Sacred Subjects, 1759, No. 8, in 6 st. of 8 l., and based upon the words "He dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." John xiv. 17. It is also in D. Sedgwick's reprint of Toplady's Hymns, &c., 1860. In some American collections, including the Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865, st. iii., iv., are given as "Blessed Comforter, come down" as a hymn for Whitsuntide. [J. J.]

Saviour, like a Shepherd, lead us. [The Good Shepherd.] The authorship of this hymn is a matter of some doubt. The earliest source to which we have traced it is Miss D. A. Thrupp's Hymns for the Young, 4th ed. 1836, in 4 st. of 6 l., where it is unsigned. We next find it in the Rev. W. Carus Wilson's Children's Friend for June, 1838 (p. 145), again in 4 st. of 6 l., and signed "Lyte." In the January number of the same magazine there is a National Hymn in the metre of "God save the Queen" ("O Lord, Thy best blessing shed"), which is signed "H. Lyte," and dated from "Brixham" (see Lyte, H. F., p. 798, i.). "Saviour, like a Shepherd, lead us" appears again in 1838, in Mrs. Herbert Mayo's Sel. of Hys. and Poetry for the use of Infant and Juvenile Schools, No. 171; and again in the edition of 1840, but without signature. As in that collection several hymns and poems are signed "D. A. T.," it is clear that Mrs Mayo did not regard the hymn as Miss Thrupp's production. The most that we can say is that the evidence is decidedly against Miss Thrupp, and somewhat uncertain with regard to Lyte as the writer of the hymn. Its use is extensive both in G. Britain and America. [W. T. B.]

Saviour of sinful men. C. Wesley. [Meeting of Friends.] Pub. in Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1740, in 12 st. of 8 l. (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. v. p. 458.) In its full form it is not in C. U., but divided, or broken up into contos, it is found in modern hymn-books in the following forms :—

1. Saviour of sinful men. This, in 6 st., was given in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 479, and continued in later editions. It is also in other collections.

2. Lord of the seals above. This in 4 st. of 4 l. in Martineau's Hymns, 1840, and his Hymns, &c., 1873.

3. Lord of the seals above. This in 6 st. of 4 l. also appeared in Martineau's Hymns, 1840, and 1873. The text is altered from the original.

4. O what a mighty change. In 3 st. of 8 l. in the American Meth. Episcopal Hymns, 1849.

Concerning the Wes. H. Bk. arrangement of the hymn Mr. G. J. Stevenson has some pleasing reminiscences in his Meth. H. Bk. Notes, 1883, p. 304. The contos in Martineau's Hymns are specially adapted for Death and Burial. [J. J.]

Saviour of the nations, come. B. H. Kennedy. [Advent.] 1st pub. in his Hymnologia Christiana, 1863, No. 26, in 11 st. of 4 l., divided into two parts, Pt. ii. beginning, "Zion, at thy shining gates." In 1867 Dean Alford gave st. iii., v., viii.–x., as "Come, Lord Jesus, take Thy rest," in his Year of Praise, No. 26. In the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, No. 73 is Pt. ii. from the Hymno. Christ. as above. [J. J.]

Saviour, round Thy footstool bending. Elizabeth Parson, nèe Reader. [Lent.] This is the most beautiful and pathetic of Mrs. Parson's hymns. It was written for her class for young people at Tavistock, and supplied to J. Curwen in ms. It was included in Curwen's Child's H. Bk., 1840, and subsequently printed in Mrs. Parson's Village-Class Hymns, No. 9, in 3 st. of 6 l. In the Child's H. Bk. it is in 4 st. There are the following forms of the text in C. U.:—(1) that in the Child's H. Bk., in 4 st.; (2) the Village-Class Hys., in 3 st.; (3) the Meth. S. S. H. Bk., 1879, No. 203, where st. i., iii. and v. are the original slightly altered, and st. ii. and iv. are from Hodder's S. S. H. Bk.; and (4) that in the Silver Street (London) S. S. Companion, 1880, which is No. 2 with alterations. Through these various forms this hymn is in extensive use. [J. J.]

Saviour, Source of every blessing. [Jesus the Source of all Good.] This hymn appeared in the American Prayer Bk. Coll., 1826, in 4 st. of 4 l., and has been repeated in several collections, including the Protestant Episcopal Hymnal, 1871. It is a part of the well-known "Come, Thou Fount of every blessing," p. 332, i., rewritten for the Prayer Bk. Coll. of 1826. [J. J.]

Saviour, to Thee we humbly cry. C. Wesley. [Intercession.] 1st pub. with five others in 1745, at the end of a tract, entitled, A Short View of the Difference between the Moravian Brethren lately in England, and the Rev. Mr. John and Charles Wesley, in 8 st. of 6 l., and again in Hymns & Sacred Poems, 1749, vol. ii., No. 72. In 1780 it was included in the Wes. H. Bk., No. 449, and retained in later editions. It is also found in other collections. It is on record that the special members of the Moravians against whom Wesley wrote, taught that if a person professed faith in Christ, there was no necessity that he should manifest any sorrow on account of sins past or present, but for him there was simply the acknowledgment that he was a "happy sinner," a doctrine which could have but one logical outcome. Hence the satire of st. iii.:—

"In vain, till Thou the power bestow,
The double power of quickening grace,
And make the sinner what we know
The sanguine with his angel face
Who leads them captive at his will,
Captive—but happy sinners still."

Orig. text, P. Works, 1868–72, vol. v. pp. 248–5. [J. J.]

Saviour, we seek Thy high abode. I. Watts and G. Rawson. [Life a Pilgrimage.] The original of this hymn is I. Watts's "Lord, what a wretched land is this" (p. 66, i.), the rewritten form being by G. Rawson, who rewrote it for the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, No. 373. It has passed into other collections in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

Saviour, when in dust to Thee. Sir R. Grant. [Lent.] 1st printed in the Christian Observer, 1815, p. 735, in 5 st. of 8 l., and entitled "Litany." In 1833 it was included in Elliott's Ps. & Hys., No. 103, with a protest in the Preface against its mutilation, as found in some collections then in circulation, and the declaration that the text in that collection was pure. This protest was probably levelled at T. Cotterill, who gave 4 sts., very much altered, as "By Thy birth and early years," in his Sel., in 1819. The only change in Elliott's Ps. & Hys. from the Christian Observer, 1815, was in st. iii. l. 5, where "anguish'd sigh" was altered to "troubled sigh." Grant's hymns were republished by Lord Glenelg in 1839 as Sacred Poems. This hymn is at p. 6. This text differs from the preceding, but is claimed by Lord Glenelg to be "a more correct and authentic version." (Preface.) It is this text which is reprinted in Lord Selborne's Bk. of Praise, 1862; and in the Lyra Brit., 1867, as the original. In addition to its use in the Christian Observer, Elliott's Ps. & Hys., and the Sacred Poems, forms of the text, it is also in many hymnals as:—

1. By Thy birth and early years. In Cotterill's Sel., 1819, and others, as above.
2. By Thy birth, and by Thy tears. In several hymn-books.
3. Father, when in dust to Thee. In a few American collections.
4. Jesus, when in prayer to Thee. In Skinner's Daily Service Hymnal, 1866.

In addition to its very extensive use in these varying forms, it has also been fr. into several languages. That in Latin, by R. Bingham, in his Hymnus. Christ. Lat., 1871, begins "Quando genus factusitus." [J. J.]

Saviour, Who exalted high. Bp. R. Mant. [SS. James and Jude, or Lent.] Appeared in his Hodspleg of the Church; or Scripture Narratives of Our Blessed Lord's Life and Ministry, &c., 1828, vol. i. p. 536, in 10 st. of irregular lines, and appropriated to SS. James and Jude. The original text is not in C. U. From it, however, the following contos have been compiled :—

1. Saviour, Who exalted high. In the 1864 Suppl. to the Parish Hymn Bk., Belfast, this conto is taken from st. i., ii., vii. and x. It is also in other collections.
2. Son of Man, to Thee we cry. This conto in 4 st. of 4 l., beginning with the first l. of st. iii., was given in the Cooke and Denton Hymnal, 1853; and in also in several later collections.
3. Son of Man, to Thee I cry. This conto, beginning with st. ii., appeared in the 1861 Appendix to the S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hys., No. 93, in 4 st. of 6 l. This, with the exception of the opening line, is from the Cooke and Denton Hymnal with a return, in several instances, to the text of the original. It is also in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, as "Son of Man, to Thee I cry."
4. Jesus Christ exalted high. This, by T. Darling's Hymns, &c., 1867, is in 4 st. of 12 l. In the earlier editions of Darling's Hymns, &c., it began "Jesus, now exalted high."

The popular form of this hymn is the third conto as above. [J. J.]

Saviour, Who ready art to hear. C. Wesley. [The Divine Presence desired.] Appeared in Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1740, in 6 st. of 4 l., and headed "On a Journey." (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. i. p. 304.) With slight alterations, and the omission of st. i., it was given in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, as No. 205, and has passed into numerous collections as "Talk with us, Lord, Thyself reveal," and in some as "Speak with us, Lord, Thyself reveal." The stanza which had attained to the greatest repute is:—

"Wide is the conversing, I forget
All times, and toil, and care;
Labour is rest and pain is sweet,
If Thou, my God, art there."

Possibly the ideas embodied in these lines had their origin in Milton's Par. Lost, bk. iv., ll. 639, 640 :—

"With thee conversing, I forget all time,
All seasons and their change; all please alike."

The hymn, as a whole, is very popular with the various Methodist bodies. See G. J. Stevenson's Meth. H. Bk. Notes, 1883. [J. J.]

Saxby, Jane Euphemia, nèe Browne, daughter of William Browne of Tallantire Hall, Cumberland, and sister of Lady Tuigmouth, was b. Jan. 27, 1811, and married, in 1862, to the Rev. S. H. Saxby, Vicar of East Clevedon, Somersetshire. Her work, The Dove on the Cross, was pub. in 1848. It has passed into numerous editions, and from it several hymns have come into C. U. This was followed by The Voice of the Bird, in 1875; and Aunt Effie's Gift to the Nursery, 1876. Sometimes Mrs. Saxby's Dove on the Cross is dated 1819, but in error. The compilation known as Hys. and Thoughts for the Sick and Lonely, by a Lady, Lond., J. Nisbet & Co., 1846, although it contains several of her hymns in an altered form, is ascribed to her in error. Mrs. Saxby's hymns in C. U. include :

1. Father, into Thy loving hands. Resignation.
2. Fill me, Lord, with Thy salvation. Consecration.
3. O Holy Ghost, the Comforter. Whitsuntide.
4. Show me the way, O Lord. Guidance desired.
5. Thou art with me, O my Father. God everywhere.
6. Thou God of love, beneath Thy sheltering wings. Burial.

Of these hymns, Nos. 1, 3, 4, and 6, appeared in her Dove on the Cross, 1848. No. 2 appeared in the English Presbyterian Ps. & Hys. for Divine Worship, 1867, No. 346, in 5 st. of 4 l. It was supplied to Dr. W. F. Stevenson in ms. in 6 st. for his Hys. for the Church and Home, 1873. The additional stanza (the 4th) given in his Notes is:—

"At Thee last placed beyond my reach
Thy richest means of grace,
Teach me without them, Saviour, teach
My soul to see Thy face."

The point and meaning of this stanza is explained by the fact that this hymn "was written for one who by illness was prevented joining in the Communion." The hymn was included in The Voice of the Bird, 1875. Mrs. Saxby's hymns are very plaintive and tender. This is explained by her thus:—"I wrote most of my published hymns during a very long and distressing illness, which lasted many years. I thought probably that I was then in the 'Border Land,' and wrote accordingly." D. Mar. 25, 1898. [J. J.]

Say, grows the rush without the mire. [Vain of the Wicked. Job xviii. 11-22.] Although sometimes attributed to Watts, to the present this hymn has not been traced to his works, and the earliest date at which it is found is in the Draft Scottish Translations and Paraphrases of 1745, No. xxiv. Therein it is given as a Paraphrase of Job viii. 11-22, in 7 st. of 4 l. Copies of this draft being very rare, we subjoin the text:—

1.
"Say, grows the Rush without the Mire?
Or can the Flag without the Strand
Grow to its usual Height and Size;
Its Withdrawers of the same.

2.
"Slight is his Hope, cut off and broke:
As if entire it rise,
Yet, as the Spider's Web, when try'd,
It parteth, breaks and flies.

3.
"Fast on his House he leans, his House and all its Props decay;
He holds it fast, but faster still the betting Frame gives way.

4.
"The' in his Garden to the Sun his Boughs with verdure smile;
And, to the Center struck, his Roots unshaken stand a while:

5.
"Yet, when from Heav'n his Sentence flies,
he's hurried from his Place:
It then denies him for its Lord, nor owns it knew his Face.

6.
"Lo, this the Joy of wicked Men, who Heav'ns just Laws despise;
They quickly fall, and in their room as quickly others rise.

7.
"But they his Pow'r will for the Just with tender Care employ:
He'll bless their Labours, fill their Songs of Praise, and fill their Hearts with Joy."

The recast of this hymn, beginning:—

"The rush may rise where waters flow, and flags beside the stream;"

which was pub. in the authorized Trans. and Paraphs. of 1781, No. vi., in 7 st. of 4 l., is claimed for W. Sawers (p. 806, i.) by his eldest daughter, in her list of authors and revisers. [J. J.]

Say, why should friendship grieve for those? [Death and Burial.] This hymn appeared in the Evangelical Magazine in 1820, in 6 st. of 4 l., headed "On seeing a mourning ring inscribed with the words 'Not lost, but gone before,'" and is signed "B. C." the signature, it is said, of Benjamin Clark. In the enlarged ed. of Ps. & Hys., 1864, by Morrell and How it was given in a re-written form in 4 st. of 4 l. as "Why mourn the dead with hopeless tears?" This in a slightly different form was in Kennedy, 1863. The 1820 text is in P. Maurice's Choral H. Bk., 1861. [J. J.]

Scales, Thomas, was b. at Leeds, Dec. 16, 1786, and educated at the Moravian School at Fulneck, and at the Leeds Grammar School. He received his training for the Congregational ministry at Hoxton College, where he entered in 1806, and of which he was for a short time Classical Tutor. He was successively Congregational minister at Wolverhampton (1810) and Leeds (1819). He remained at Leeds thirty years, and was then appointed (1849) Secretary of the Northern Congregational School at Silcoats. He afterwards became the Secretary of the "Salmon Charity." He d. at Cheltenham, June 24, 1860. (Miller's Singers and Songs of the Church, 1869, p. 398.) Mr. Scales is known as a contributor to, and one of the Editors of, A Sel. of Hys. for the Use of the Protestant Dissenting Congregations of the Independent Order, in Leeds, 1822, known as the Leeds H. Bk., 1822. [See Congregational Hymody, p. 329, i.] His hymn on Missions, "Amazing was the grace," contributed thereto, is still in C. U. [J. J.]

Scandinavian Hymnody. Up to the period of the Reformation the churches of Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Iceland, like the rest of the churches of Europe, were furnished with Latin hymns only. Of these (many of them peculiar to Sweden) a collection has been published by G. E. Klemming under the title Latinska Sånger fordom använda i Sverige. Kyrkor, Klostor, och Skolor, 4 vols. (Stockholm, 1885-7). The Reformation gave throughout the North, as elsewhere, the signal for the production of the vernacular hymn. There, as elsewhere, the Church's Delenda, when she repeated and obeyed the cry "awake," she began to "utter a song." It may not be amiss to preface the history of that song with a short sketch of the events of her awakening.

I. The Reformation.—1. The dissolution of the union of Calmar, which from 1397 to 1523 linked together Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Iceland under one monarch, placed Gustavus Vasa on the throne of Sweden. He at once declared for the Reformed doctrines, as preached by Luther and Melanchthon. With the help of Laurentius Petersen, the Archbishop of Upsala, and Laurentius Andersen, the Chancellor, he ultimately persuaded the majority of his people, in spite of the sturdy opposition of Bishop Brask of Linköping, to accept a reformation on Lutheran lines. His son and successor Erik XIV., a weak and unfortunate monarch, adopted the gloomier views of Calvin; and his deposition in 1569, and the death of Archbishop Petersen in 1573, rendered it easy for King John III. (second son of Gustavus) to arrange a reactionary movement, in which he was aided by another Lawrence Petersen (Laurentius Petri Gothus), who followed the first Laurence at Upsala. The reaction was short-lived, and the Lutheran reformation was finally established in Sweden at the synod of Upsala, held in 1593, during the reign of Sigismund (son of John), but under the auspices of Charles Duke of Södermanland, the third son of Gustavus, afterwards king under the title of Charles IX. At this synod the Confession of Augsburg was formally adopted by the Church of Sweden.

2. In Denmark also, under Frederik I., the Lutheran reformation was adopted, after considerable opposition; and Christiern III., son of Frederik, completed the task his father had begun. Not being able to persuade the Danish prelates to officiate at his consecration, or not wishing to avail himself of their services, he was crowned, with a ceremonial adapted from the Roman Pontifical, by John Bugenhagen, a preacher from Wittenberg. Bugenhagen was certainly not a bishop, and there is considerable doubt whether he had even received priest's orders: he took upon himself, however—as Wesley did more than two centuries after—to perform the office of episcopal consecration (1537), and set apart bishops or "superintendents" to fill the ancient sees. A Diet at Odense, in 1539, finally bound Denmark to the principles and practice of the Reformed, or, more correctly speaking, Protestant followers of Luther.

3. The year 1537 witnessed the final union of Norway with Denmark, begun in 1523.* The Norwegians had shown no great readiness to accept the Reformation as offered them by King Frederik. Christiern, however, took summary measures. The Archbishop of Trondhjem and his followers made some resistance, but the king carried his point, and Lutheranism was established in Norway as it had been in Denmark.

4. In Iceland the work was carried on by Einarsen, who in 1540 was elevated, at the age of 25, to the office of bishop, or superintendent, of Skalholt. Jon Arasen, Bishop of Holar (or Holum), headed the opposition, and endeavoured to excite a rebellion, but was arrested and put to death in 1550.

II. Hymn-writers and Hymns.—Sweden.—The first hymn-writers of reformed Sweden were the two renowned brothers, coadjutors of Gustavus in the work of reformation, Olaf and Lawrence (or Lars) Petersen, better known by the Latinized names of Olaus and Laurentius Petri.

1. Olaf Petersen was b. in 1497. He was early predisposed in favour of the Reformed doctrines, and in 1517, instead of resorting to the Swedish university of Upsala, preferred to study at Wittenberg, where he heard Melanchthon and Luther. Returning in 1520, full of reforming zeal, he received holy orders, and in 1524 was made one of the church of S. Nicholas in Stockholm. In 1540 he was convicted of, a guilty knowledge of a conspiracy against King Gustavus, and condemned to death. He was pardoned, though the king never forgave him; and in 1543 he was appointed to another cure in Stockholm. He died in 1552.

2. Lawrence Petersen was b. in 1499, and studied at Upsala, where he became professor in or about 1524. He was a man of more gentleness and discretion than his impetuous brother Olaf; and this, combined with his high reputation for theological learning, and his known inclination towards a quiet and conservative reformation, induced the clergy to elect him, and the king to appoint him, in 1531, Archbishop of Upsala, and Primate of Sweden. It is not our business to enter into the vexed question of his consecration. That he took a journey to Rome on his appointment seems tolerably clear; but the registers of the period have unhappily been burnt; and whether he really received the laying on of hands there, or, like Bugenhagen, laid hands on others without having received the commission himself, is still a matter of doubt. He is certainly the father of Swedish hymnology. Besides his original compositions he made many translations from Latin and German; and his hymns have been largely borrowed in Denmark. The similarity of the two languages, Danish and Swedish, especially in their older forms, renders transference from the one to the other particularly easy. The Archbishop d., universally beloved and regretted, in 1573.

3. The two Andersens, Laurentius Archidiaconus of Upsala, and Peter Bishop of Westeräs, seconded the Petersens in their poetical work as well as in their reforming measures. The title of their hymn-book, published in 1536, was:—

Swenske sanger eller vister som på nytt grenskis, och på Christelige Församlingar, en gemen sticks och tillförenne sjunge. (= Swedish Songs or Hymns, now newly printed, enlarged, and published in a different form from the preceding one.)

The first of the two, Laurence or Lars (Laurentius Andreæ), was b. at Strengnäs in 1480. He became in 1523 Chancellor of the Diocese of Upsala, and shortly afterwards Chancellor, or Chief Secretary, to King Gustavus. It was owing in a great measure to his influence that the Diet of the kingdom adopted the Reformed doctrines in 1527. In 1530 he brought out, with the help of Olaf Petersen, a Swedish version of the New Testament, based mainly upon Luther's German translation, and in 1541 a version of the whole Bible. He was accused in 1540 of complicity in the plot in which Olaf Petersen was involved; and, like him, was condemned to death, but pardoned. He retired to Strengnäs, where he d. in 1552. Peter Andersen, nicknamed Swart (Petrus Andreæ Niger), was b. about the end of the 15th cent. He became court chaplain to King Gustavus in 1540, Bishop of Westeräs in 1556, and d. in 1562, leaving behind him the reputation of an able and high-principled man. We may note also that the ill-fated king Erik (b. 1533, d. by poison 1577) has also left a couple of hymns, both of which seem to echo his unhappy state of mind. One is a paraphrase of the 51st Psalm:—

Bårhgas af allt Sinne nů jag min Själa nöd.	[Overall with all my mind must I my soul's distress.]
O Gud, hvem skall jag klaga den Sorg jag nödt dragit, så arm och sjukeligit?	[O God, how shall I lament the sorrow I must bear so poor and sickly?]

* The two kingdoms were newly adjusted in 1814, when Norway was taken from Denmark, and united with Sweden, Denmark retaining Iceland. This arrangement still subsists.

Erik's is, however, not the only royal name that appears in the Swedish hymnary. The great Gustavus Adolphus (b. 1594, d. 1632), s. of Charles IX., is the author of the "Battle Hymn," his "swan-song," as it was called, written just before, and published shortly after, his death at Lützen, in 1632 (see pp. 54, ii.; 55, i.). It begins thus:—

Fördtens ej, du lilla Hop,	Fear not, little troop,
Fast Fiendernas Larm och	though the foes' shout
Rop	and cry
Från alla Sider skalla.	resounds from every side.

4. The succession of hymn-writers, begun by Archbishop Petersen, was kept up in Sweden during the succeeding century. Olaf Martinson (b. 1577, appointed Archbishop of Upsala in 1601, d. 1609) heads the list. He was followed by Jonas Petersen (b. 1587, d. 1644), Bishop of Linköping in 1637; Count Lindskjöld (1634–1690), a distinguished professor in the university of Upsala, and chancellor of that of Lund, which was founded in 1666; Count de la Gardie (1622–1686), Swedish Ambassador at the French court, to whom the University of Upsala owes the priceless Codex Argenteus of the Gothic gospels; to whom we may add Peter Brask (d. 1699), son of a rector of St. Clara's in Stockholm, and a collateral descendant of the Bishop Brask who was so stout an antagonist of Gustavus Vasa.

5. In the 18th cent. we find the hymnary enriched by Archbishop of Upsala, Dr. Haquin Spegel (1645–1714). He was a great traveller, having visited Denmark, Germany, Holland, and England; and was bishop of Skara, and afterwards of Linköping, before he was elevated to the Primacy. Jacob Arrhenius (d. 1725), secretary of and professor in the University of Upsala, was another sacred poet; so was the renowned Olof Rudbeck (1660–1740), professor of botany at Upsala. A yet more eminent name is that of Jasper Swedberg. He was b. at Fahlun, in 1653, and studied at Upsala. After travelling, like Spegel, and serving as pastor of a parish, he was appointed (1692) professor of divinity at Upsala, and in 1702 became bishop of Skara, a post he held for 33 years. His name is especially interesting to us as being one of the earliest on the list of our Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. Later on we find S. L. Ölhausen, professor of pastoral theology at Upsala, in 1806; S. J. Hedborn (1783–1849), pastor of Askersyd; J. Lefrén (1767–1844), pastor of Tuna; and a lady, Fru Lenngren, wife of the Secretary of the Board of Trade (1754–1817), whose hymn begins with the sad words:—

Snart tröten skall det Oja	Soon must death close the slata	eye
Uti Lifvet Sorgens Tåror	Long shed tears of så bl	sorrow.

6. The last and greatest name in the Swedish hymnody, however, is that of Johan Olof Wallin. He was b. at Stora Tuna, in 1779, and early displayed his poetical powers. In 1805, and again in 1809, he gained the chief prize for poetry at Upsala. In the latter year he became pastor at Solna: here his ability as a preacher was so striking that he was transferred to Stockholm, in 1815, as "pastor primarius," a title for which we have no exact equivalent. In 1818 he was made Dean of Westerås, and set about the task of editing a revised hymn-book for the whole of Sweden. This task he completed in 1819, and pub. it as, Den Svenska Psalmboken, af Konungen gillad och stadfästad ("The Swedish hymn-book, approved and confirmed by the King"). To it he contributed some 150 hymns of his own, besides translations and recastings; and the book remains now in the form in which he brought it out. It is highly prized by the Swedes, and is in use everywhere. Those who desire to know more of Swedish hymnology, and can read Swedish, will find a full and exhaustive review of the book, with a history of and critique on every hymn in it, in J. W. Beckmann's Försök til Svensk Psalmhistoria (Stockholm, 1843).

ii. 1. The earliest hymnary of Denmark and Norway, and perhaps the earliest complete one of the whole North, was brought out at Malmö in 1528, by Claus Mortensön Tondebinder (1508–1576), who deserves the name not only of the first evangelical preacher in Malmö, but also of the Father of Danish hymnology. The book contained a number of translations from the original Latin, from German (Luther's), and from Swedish (Petersen's), as well as some originals. Mortensön subsequently recast it, with the aid of his friends Arvid Pedersen and Hans Spendemager; and the book was printed and published at Rostock, by L. Dietz, in 1529; just 10 years before that diet of Odense at which Denmark (as has been said before) accepted the principles of the Reformation. The book contains a set of prayers, psalms, hymns, and canticles, and is entitled,

En ny Handbog, med Psalmer og sandelige Lofsange, udsprungne af then hellige Skrifft, som vor y then Christne Forsamling (Gud til Lof og Menniskin till Saligheid) sionges ("A new hand-book, with psalms and spiritual songs of praise, derived from Holy Writ, which are now sung in the Christian assembly to God's praise and man's salvation.")*

This book was reproduced, with some changes and additions, by Hans Jansen, Bishop of Ribe, in 1544, and in 1569 by Hans Thomsön, rector of Vor Frue (Our Lady) in Copenhagen.

2. This book, or rather those books, continued to be the hymnary of the Danish and Norwegian Lutherans for more than a century. The poet who had the honour of beginning to re-edit it was Thomas Kingo. He was b. at Slangerup in 1634, and, after completing his theological studies, became in 1668 pastor of his native place. Here he brought out, in 1674, his Aandelige Sjunge-chor ("Spiritual Choral-songs"). The book attracted attention; and in 1677 its author, who had published meanwhile other poetical effusions, was made Bishop of Fyen (Funen). In 1683 he was desired to prepare a new hymn-book, to be authorized for Denmark and Norway. The first part of it appeared in 1689, as Danmarks og Norges Kirkers forordnede Salmebog ("The authorized Hymn-book of the Churches of Denmark and Norway"), and was received with a storm of disapprobation. There were many who admired the work, but an almost equal number exclaimed against it. There were, they said, too many of his own compositions in it; the hymns were too high flown, above the heads of the common people. The criticism was unfairly severe. No doubt some of Kingo's hymns are cold; and some, perhaps, evince what the Pietists of the next century professed to find in them, a little tendency to what they called Rationalism, and we might term undue breadth. But a rationalizer could scarcely merit the name given to Kingo, the poet of Easter-tide.

* It has been republished by C. W. Brunn in his collection of Danish hym-writers (1845), part i.

3. In 1699 a committee was appointed to supersede Kingo, and finish the hymn-book. They worked on Kingo's lines, and put in many of his compositions, and the book finally appeared in 1699 as:—

Den forordnede og Kirke-Psalme-Bog, efter hvad der findes at være optaget udi Hans Majestæts, vor allernaadigste Herres Befalning, til Guds Tjeneste paa Søndagene, Festerne, Helligdagene og til andre gudelig Brug i Kirken udi Danmark og Norge af gamle sanderlige dunge ordentlig indrettet og Kirkigen opsammendt og nu endelig og Psalmer Forfattes og Forfattet af Hans Kongel. Majestæts Kirke- og Skole-Consist. af Thomas Kingo, Biskop i Fyens Stift.

("The authorized new Church hymn-book, entirely adapted from old spiritual songs and carefully revised, and enriched with many new hymns, according to his Majesty's most gracious command, for the principal Sundays, feast-days, and for other godly uses in the Church in Denmark and Norway, and in like manner according to the royal command prepared for the press by Thomas Kingo, Bishop in the Diocese of Funen.")

Kingo felt keenly the slight put upon him. He survived it, however, some 12 years or more, dying in 1703. Whatever may be said of him as a hymn-writer and compiler, there is no doubt he was a true poet, and superior to all who preceded him.

4. His book, or rather the book of 1699, continued in use throughout Denmark; not, however, without attempts being made to reform it. The first effort was made by Hans Adolf Brorson. He was b. in 1694, at Randrup, where his father was pastor. He entered the University of Copenhagen in 1712. After finishing his theological course he first acted as his father's assistant, and then (1729) as preacher at Tönder in Slesvig. Here he began to display his powers and tastes by publishing a collection of religious poems entitled Troens rare Klenodie, 1739 ("The Faith's rare Jewel.") His opinions were of the Pietist school, opposed to the dry "orthodoxy" (so-called) of the day, which was said to prevail in Kingo's hymns. A few years after this he was made rector of Ribe; and in 1741 King Christian VI. (who inclined in the Pietist direction), being charmed with his hymn "Op, al den Ting som God har giort" ("Up, everything that God has made"), appointed him Bishop of Ribe, where he d. in 1764. Brorson's contributions to Danish hymnody are not all original; three-fourths are translations or paraphrases of German Lutheran hymns. His Christmas lyrics are most approved; and he is called par excellence the poet of Christmas. Brorson, however, was poet rather than editor. The hymn-book which he projected, and to which he largely contributed, was brought out in 1745, under the title Den ny Salmebog ("The new hymn-book"), by Erik Pontoppidan, a relative of the well-known Bishop of Trondhjem, who d. in 1678. Erik was b. in 1698, became Bishop of Bergen in 1748, and d. in 1764, leaving, like his renowned relative, a number of works on natural history and antiquities. Another effort in the direction of a new hymn-book was made by O. H. Guldberg, secretary to Prince Frederick, who, aided by Bishop L. Harboe, Frn Brigitta Boye (b. 1742, d. 1824), and others, produced in 1778 a hymn-book under the title:—

Salmebog, eller en Samling af gamle og ny Salmer, til Gudstjeneste og Guds Menighedes Opbyggelse. ("A hymn-book, or a collection of old and new hymns, for the honour of God, and the edification of His Church.")

5. Towards the end of the 18th century a further attempt to effect a revision of Kingo's book was made by N. E. Balle, Bishop of Sealand: who wished, like Brorson, to see more unction and less stiffness in Danish psalmody. The book appeared in 1797 as Evangelisk-Kristelig Salmebog, til Brug ved Kirke- og Hus-Andagt. ("Evangelical Christian Hymn-book for use in Church and Home Worship.") But the attempt was not successful. Balle's hymn-book, though well-meant, was poor and unpoetical. The book of Kingo remained in use till an impetus was given to the tendency to revision by the great reformer of Danish hymnology and theology, the well known Pastor Grundtvig, an admirer of Balle and of Kingo too. Nicolai Frederik Severin Grundtvig was the son of a pastor, and was b. at Udby, in Sealand, in 1783. He studied in the University of Copenhagen from 1800–1805; and, like some other eminent men, did not greatly distinguish himself; his mind was too active and his imagination too versatile to bear the restraint of the academic course. After leaving the university he took to teaching; first in Langeland, then (1808) in Copenhagen. Here he devoted his attention to poetry, literature, and Northern antiquities. In 1810 he became assistant to his father in a parish in Jutland. The sermon he preached at his ordination, on the subject "Why has the Lord's word disappeared from His house," attracted much attention, which is rarely the case with "probationers'" sermons. On his father's death, in 1813, he returned to Copenhagen, and for eight years devoted himself mainly to literature. The poetry, both secular and religious, that he produced, drew from a friend the remark that "Kingo's harp had been strung afresh." In 1821 King Frederick appointed him pastor of Præstö, a parish in Sealand, from which he was the next year removed to Copenhagen, and made chaplain of St. Saviour's church in Christianshavn. From the time of his ordination he had been deeply impressed with Evangelical church sentiments, in opposition to the fashionable Rationalism and Erastianism of the day; and adhered to the anti-rationalist teaching of Hauge, whose death at this time (1824) seemed to be a call to Grundtvig to lift up his voice. An opportunity soon presented itself; Professor Clausen brought out a book entitled Katholicismen og Protestantismen Forfattning, Lære, og Ritus ("The condition, teaching, and ritual of Catholicism and Protestantism"). This book was replete with the Erastian Rationalism which was so especially distasteful to Grundtvig, who forthwith, in his Kirkens Gjenmæle ("The Church's Reply," 1825), strongly opposed its teaching, and laid down true principles of Christian belief, and sounder views of the nature of the Church. This caused a sensation: Grundtvig (who had not spared his opponent) was fined 100 rix-dollars, and the songs and hymns which he had written for the coming celebration of the tenth centenary of Northern Christianity were forbidden to be used. On this he resigned his post at St. Saviour's, or rather was forced to quit it by a sentence of suspension which was pronounced in 1826, and under which he was kept for 13 years. He took the opportunity of visiting England in 1829, 30, and 31, and consulting its literature, mainly with a view to a further insight into Northern antiquities, and to help his studies in the early English tongue. His edition of Cynewulf's beautiful poem of the Phœnix from the Codex Exoniensis,—the Anglo-Saxon (so-called) text, with a preface in Danish, and a fri Fordandskning (free rendering in Danish), published in 1840,—is a result of this journey and enforced leisure. Tired of his long silence, his numerous friends and admirers proposed to erect a church for him, and form themselves into an independent congregation, but this was not permitted. He was allowed, however, to hold an afternoon service in the German church at Christianshaven. There he preached for eight years, and compiled and wrote his hymn-book, Sang-Værk til den Danske Kirke ("Song-work for the Danish Church"). He still worked on towards his object of raising the Christian body to which he belonged from the condition of a mere state establishment to the dignity of a gospel-teaching national church. In 1839 (the year of the death of King Frederik VI., and the accession of his cousin Christian VIII.) the suspension was removed, and he was appointed chaplain of the hospital Vartou, a position which he held till his death. In 1848 the king (Frederik VII.) conferred on him the honorary title of bishop. The good old man died suddenly, in his 80th year, on Sept. 2, 1872, having officiated the day before. As Kingo is the poet of Easter, and Brorson of Christmas, so Grundtvig is spoken of as the poet of Whitsuntide.

6. With Grundtvig we cannot but join the pious writer and poet Bernhard Severin Ingemann. He was b., he tells us in his Levnedsbog (an autobiography of his first seventeen years), at the parsonage of Torkildskrup in Falster, in 1780, the youngest of five sons. The death of his father in 1800 compelled the family to leave the parsonage for Slagelse, where he was sent to school. This he left in 1806 to enter at Copenhagen. A second autobiography, Tilbageblik paa mit Liv og min Forfatter-Pirksle fra 1811-1837 ("A retrospect of my life and my time of authorship from 1811 to 1837"), gives us an account of twenty-five years more. It was intended as a preface to an edition of his works which was soon forthcoming. It describes a quiet gentle life of continued literary occupation, begun by an interesting tour in 1818-19 through France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy. Twenty-five years more passed, and the good man went to his rest in 1862 by a calm and painless decease, amidst the deepest regrets of all who knew him.

7. The impulse given by Grundtvig could not be resisted. In 1835 a clerical synod at Roeskilde (the Canterbury of Denmark) drew up and brought out a new Salmebog, which has been sanctioned for general use. It appeared as Salmebogen til Kirke-og Hus-Andagt. ("Hymnbook for Church and Home Worship"). The revision was intrusted to Ingemann. It is founded upon the old book of Kingo, but contains many new hymns chiefly by Brorson, Grundtvig, Ingemann, and C. F. Boye; and has already reached the dignity of an Appendix, to which those authors contribute about four-fifths.

ii. The Norwegians have in the main followed the lead of Denmark in their hymns. Kingo's book has been the authorized hymnary, or the basis at least of those in use. But they have allowed themselves considerable freedom, and Pontoppidan's, Guldberg's, and still later on, Hauge's revisions of it have been used largely in Norway. To give an instance, one of those popular hymn-books (Christiania, 1844) is Kingo's, or rather Guldberg's, book in the main, but the language is modernized. It is called, like Balle's, Evangelisk-christelig Psalmebog ("Evangelical Christian Hymn-book"), and has bound up with it, as is the case with most of the Swedish and Danish hymn-books, the Collects, Epistles, and Gospels, a series of prayers for various occasions, and the history of the Passion, as given in the official prayer-book, or Alter-Bog. A note on the title-page declares it to be "aftrykt efter original-Udgaven . . . og udgivet efter Foranstaltning af det Kongelige Departement for Kirke-og Undervisnings-Væsenet" ("printed according to the original edition . . . and published according to direction of the royal department for the conduct of the Church and education").

2. The book now most generally used throughout Norway was authorized in 1869 under the title of Kirke-Salme-Bogen ("The Church Hymn-book"). It was edited, on the basis of existing books, by Magnus B. Landstad, a clergyman b. in 1802 and still surviving. He served in several different cures, and always had a deep interest in church psalmody. One of the most popular home hymn-books is that pub. in 1851 by Johan Nicolai Brandsen, a clergyman of Christiania (1808-68), and called Christelige Psalmer til Husandagt og Skolebrug ("Christian hymns for domestic worship and the use of Schools"). But there is still a great desire in Norway for a general Salmebog for Kirke og Hjem ("Hymn-book for Church and Home").

iv. Iceland followed, but slowly, in the track of Denmark. For a long time the hymn-book consisted of translations of a few of the earlier hymns of Mortensen's collection: it was published under the name of Graduale, which was explained to mean Mass-smaga bók ("The Mass-song book"). The last edition of the Graduale appeared with the name of Bishop Magnusson, in 1775. Since that time the Danish books have been used, in the Icelandic language. One of the last, if not the last, of the attempts to follow the lead of 1835, is the hymn-book of Thordersen (Reykjavik, 1861), entitled Nýjr viðbætir við hina evangelisku alsiðubók ("New contributions to the evangelical psalm-book").

v. Conclusion. The hymnody of the Scandinavian North is decidedly subjective in its character, rather than objective. The earlier hymns, certainly, were doctrinal and inventive, but the later are, to a great extent, expressive of religious sentiments, hopes, and fears, rather than of definite objective faith and worship. That we might borrow with advantage from our kinsfolk is not to be doubted. Mr. G. Tait's Hymns of Denmark, (1868) especially, supplies a store from which to cull flowers for transplantation into our own "spiritual roo-garden." The similarity of the Northern Lutheran ritual and Church constitution to ours,—the fact, in short, that so much that is Catholic has survived the Reformation among them,—makes religious thought in the North to run, to some extent, on the same lines with our own. On the other hand, they are thoroughly Erastian and Lutheran. Religion is a State department, and Luther is the guide rather than primitive Catholicity. Under those circumstances we find, unavoidably, a want of backbone in their Church songs now and then. But there is much affinity between Swedish and English devotion, as will be seen in the few translations which are available for English use in Gilbert Tait's Hymns of Denmark, 1868, already mentioned, and his Hymns of Sweden rendered into English; three translations of Swedish hymns by Mrs. Charles, in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, 1858; Baring-Gould's "Through the night of doubt and sorrow," and a few others. The following is a specimen, from the Danish poet Brorson, of the style of hymn which largely prevails in the North:—

"Den Grund hvorpaa jeg bygge
Er Christus og Hans Død;
I Jesu Pines Skygge
Jeg søger Hvile ved.
Det Skjold, som jeg herved
Selv er jeg lænet vred;
Hvad Jesus mig har givet
Ugjør mig for Gud saa kjær.

"Et Aandens Kraft og Even,
Et Hjerte, Sjæl og Sind,
Et Ord man vred at tvivle
Af Hansdød og Forgat,
Et Skrift og et det Bingt,
Et Sorrig eller Sarn,
Et Daben selv skal tvinge;
Mig ubd Jesu Fare!"

This may be rendered:—

"I build on one foundation,
Christ and His death for me;
Sheltered by Jesu's passion
My soul at rest shall be:
'Tis there the life of heaven
Poor worthless I obtain;
There shield from wrath is given
Thr Father's love I gain.

"No craft or deep invention,
No priestly power or might,
Nor aught that man can mention
Can make my heart more right;
Not wood, nor strong stalwarte,
Nor words or serve's smart,
Nor death itself, shall sever
My soul from Jesu's Heart."

The plaintiveness of a large proportion of these Northern hymns is very marked, whilst the strength of their writers' personal faith is undeniable. The blending of the two, as in the above illustration, often produces a most pleasing result.

[R. T.]

Schade, Johann Caspar, s. of Jakob Schad or Schade, pastor and deean at Kühndorf, near Suhl, in Thuringia, was b. at Kühndorf, Jan. 15, 1666. He entered the University of Leipzig in 1685 (where he became a great friend of A. H. Francke), and then went to Wittenberg, where he graduated M.A. in 1687. On his return to Leipzig he began to hold Bible readings for the students. This soon raised ill-will against him among the Leipzig professors, and when, in 1690, he was invited to become diaconus at Würzen, near Leipzig, they interfered and prevented his settlement. In 1691 he was invited to become diaconus of St. Nicholas's church, at Berlin (where P. J. Spener had just become probst, or chief pastor), and entered on his work there on the 2nd S. in Advent. In his later years he raised a storm of feeling against himself by refusing to hear private confessions. The Elector of Brandenburg, in order to end the strife, appointed him, in June 1698, pastor at Dorenburg, near Halberstadt. Meantime he was seized with a fever, which ended fatally at Berlin, July 23, 1698 (Koch, iv. 222, 408; Wetzel, iii. p. 23, &c.).

Schade was a most earnest and faithful pastor and preacher, especially interested himself in the children, for whom he published a hymn-book of particularly prolific, but of his 43 hymns a good many passed into the German hymn-books of the period. His hymns are clear and simple in style, are composed in a considerable variety of metres, and are full of fervent love to Christ. Jesus, and a strong and practical Christianity. Some are also to be found in use on the Continent. A number appeared in A. Lysius's Geistliche singender Christenseelen, Wesel, 1692-94, and in the Gesangbuch of A. Hahn, 1697. They were collected and posthumously pub. as Franciscus Cantiscenus, oder geistliches getragenes geistliches Lieder, &c., Clausa, n.d. (1698).

Three of Schade's hymns which have passed into English are:—

i. Auf! hinauf! zu deiner Freude. Faith. 1st pub. in the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 402, in 6 st. of 8 l.; repeated in 1698, as above, p. 83. Recently, as No. 403, in the Unv. L. S., 1851. ♥The trs. in C. U. are:—

1. Up! yes upward to thy gladness Rise, my heart. This is a good and full tr., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 171, repeated in full in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872, and, omitting st. v., in Kennedy, 1863. In her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 157, it is slightly altered, and st. iii. is omitte).

2. Rise, my soul! with joy and gladness. A tr. of st. i., ii., vi., by F. C. C., as No. 233 in Dr. Pagenstecher's Coll., 1864.

Other trs. are:—

(1) "Look up, my soul, to Christ thy Joy," by J. R. Peddle, in the Christian Treasury, Edinburgh, 1855, p. 281. (2) "Rise, my soul, with joy and gladness," by Mrs Jones, 1847, p. 15. (3) "Up! yes upward to thy gladness, Rise, my soul," by W. Reid in his Praise Bk., 1872.

ii. Meine Seel ermuntre dich. Passiontide. In the Geistreichen G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 215, in 15 st. of 6 l., repeated in 1699, as above, p. 2, entitled "Contemplation of the sufferin.s of Christ and surrender of His will." In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 106. Tr. as, "Rouse thyself, my Soul, and dwell." In the Suppl. to Ger. Psalmody, ed. 1765, p. 20, and in Select Hys. from Ger. Psalmody, Tranquebar, 1754, p. 31.

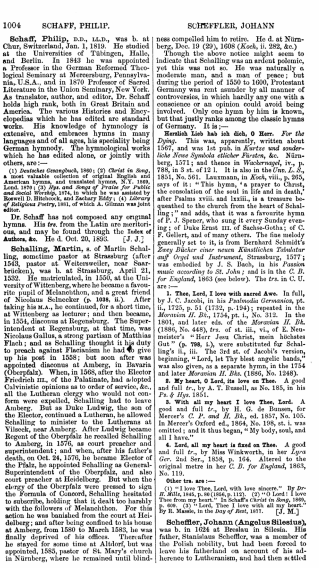
iii. Meine Seele wilt du ruhn. This hymn, frequently ascribed to Schade, is noted under Schaffer, J., p. 1097, ii.

[J. M.]



1004 SCHAFF, PHILIP. SCHEFFLER, JOHANN

Schaff, Philip, D.D., LL.D., was b. at Chur, Switzerland, Jan. 1, 1819. He studied at the Universities of Tübingen, Halle, and Berlin. In 1843 he was appointed a Professor in the German Reformed Theological Seminary at Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, U.S.A., and in 1870 Professor of Sacred Literature in the Union Seminary, New York. As translator, author, and editor, Dr. Schaff holds high rank, both in Great Britain and America. The various Histories and Encyclopedias which he has edited are standard works. His knowledge of hymnology is extensive, and embraces hymns in many languages and of all ages, his speciality being German hymnody. The hymnological works which he has edited alone, or jointly with others, are:—

(1) Deutscher Gesangbuch, 1860: (2) Christ in Song, a most valuable collection of original English and American hymns, arranged according to the Christian Year, 1870: (3) Spa and Songs of Praise for Public and Social Worship, 1874, to which he was assisted by Roswell D. Hitchcock, and Zachary Eddy: (4) Library of Religious Poetry, 1881, of which A. Gilman was joint editor.

Dr. Schaff has not composed any original hymns His *tr*s. from the Latin are meritorious, and may be found through the Index of Authors, &c. He d. Oct. 20, 1893. [J. J.]

Schalling, Martin, s. of Martin Schalling, sometime pastor at Strassburg (after 1543), pastor at Weitenweiler, near Saarbrücken), was b. at Strassburg, April 21, 1532. He matriculated, in 1550, at the University of Wittenberg, where he became a favourite pupil of Melanchthon, and a great friend of Nicolaus Selnecker (p. 1008, ii.). After taking his M.A., he continued, for a short time, at Wittenberg as lecturer; and then became, in 1554, diaconus at Regensburg. The Superintendent at Regensburg, at that time, was Nicolaus Gallus, a strong partisan of Matthias Flach; and as Schalling thought it his duty to preach against Flacianism he had to give up his post in 1558: but soon after was appointed diaconus at Amberg, in Bavaria (Oberpfalz). When, in 1568, after the Elector Friedrich III., of the Palatinate, had adopted Calvinistic opinions as to order of service, &c., all the Lutheran clergy who would not conform were expelled, Schalling had to leave Amberg. But as Duke Ludwig, the son of the Elector, continued a Lutheran, he allowed Schalling to minister to the Lutherans at Vilseck, near Amberg. After Ludwig became Regent of the Oberpfalz he recalled Schalling to Amberg, in 1576, as court preacher and superintendent; and when, after his father's death, on Oct. 24, 1576, he became Elector of the Pfalz, he appointed Schalling as General-Superintendent of the Oberpfalz, and also court preacher at Heidelberg. But when the clergy of the Oberpfalz were pressed to sign the Formula of Concord, Schalling hesitated to subscribe, holding that it dealt too harshly with the followers of Melanchthon. For this action he was banished from the court at Heidelberg; and after being confined to his house at Amberg, from 1580 to March 1583, he was finally deprived of his offices. Thereafter he stayed for some time at Altdorf, but was appointed, 1585, pastor of St. Mary's church in Nürnberg, where he remained until blindness compelled him to retire. He d. at Nürnberg, Dec. 19 (29), 1608 (Koch, ii. 282, &c.)

Though the above notice might seem to indicate that Schalling was an ardent polemic, yet this was not so. He was naturally a moderate man, and a man of peace; but during the period of 1550 to 1600, Protestant Germany was not sunder by all manner of controversies, in which hardly any one with a conscience or an opinion could avoid being involved. Only one hymn by him is known, but that justly ranks among the classic hymns of Germany. It is:—

Herzlich lieb hab ich dich, O Herr. For the Dying. This was, apparently, written about 1567, and was 1st pub. in Kurtze und sonderliche Newe Symbola etlicher Fürsten, &c. Nürnberg, 1571; and thence in Wackernagel, iv., p. 786, in 9 st. of 12 l. It is also in the Unv. L. B., 1851, No. 561. Lauxmann, in Koch, viii., p. 265, says of it:—"This hymn, 'a prayer to Christ, the consolation of the soul in life and in death,' after Psalms xviii. and lxxiii., is a treasure bequeathed to the church from the heart of Schalling;" and adds, that it was a favourite hymn of P. J. Spener, who sung it every Sunday evening; of Duke Ernst III. of Sachse-Gotha; of C. F. Gellert, and of many others. The fine melody generally set to it, is from Bernhard Schmidt's Zwey Bücher einer neuen Künstlichen Tabulatur auff Orgel und Instrument, Strassburg, 1577; was embodied by J. S. Bach, in his Passion music according to St. John; and is in the C. B. for England, 1863 (see below). The trs. in C. U. are:—

1. Thee, Lord, I love with sacred Awe. In full, by J. C. Jacobi, in his Psalmodia Germanica, pt. ii., 1725, p. 51 (1732, p. 194); repeated in the Moravian H. Bk., 1754, pt. i., No. 312. In the 1801, and later eds. of the Moravian H. Bk. (1886, No. 448), trs. of st. iii., vi., of E. Neumeister's "Herr Jesu Christ, mein höchstes Gut." (p. 788, i.), were substituted for Schalling's ii., iii. The 3rd st. of Jacobi's version, beginning, "Lord, let Thy blest angelic bands," was also given, as a separate hymn, in the 1754 and later Moravian H. Bks. (1886, No. 1248).

2. My heart, O Lord, its love on Thee. A good and full tr., by A. T. Russell, as No. 185, in his Ps. & Hys. 1851.

3. With all my heart I love Thee, Lord. A good and full tr., by H. G. de Burgen, for Mercer's C. P. and H. Bk., ed. 1857, No. 105. In Mercer's Oxford ed., 1864, No. 198, st. i. was omitted; and it thus began, "My body, soul, and all I have."

4. Lord, all my heart is fixed on Thee. A good and full tr., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger. 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 164. Altered to the original metre in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 119.

Other trs. are:—

(1) "I love Thee, Lord, with love sincere." By Dr. E. Mills, 1845, p. 96 (1864, p. 113). (2) "O Lord! I love Thee from my heart." In Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869, p. 698. (3) "Lord, Thee I love with all my heart." By E. Massie, in the Day of Rest, 1871. [J. M.]

Scheffler, Johann (Angelus Silesius), was b. in 1624 at Breslau in Silesia. His father, Stanislaus Scheffler, was a member of the Polish nobility, but had been forced to leave his fatherland on account of his adherence to Lutheranism, and had then settled in Breslau. The son was thus educated as a strict Lutheran. After passing through the St. Elisabeth's Gymnasium at Breslau, he matriculated at the University of Strassburg, on May 4, 1643, as a student of medicine. In the next year he went to Leyden, and in 1647 to Padua, where he graduated (M. D. and M.S. on July 9, 1648. Thereafter he returned to Silesia, and, on Nov. 3, 1649, was appointed private physician, at Oels, to Duke Sylvius Nimrod of Würtemberg-Oels. The Duke was a staunch Lutheran, and his court preacher, Christoph Freitag, administered the ecclesiastical affairs of the district according to the strictest Lutheran churchly orthodoxy. Scheffler, who in Holland had become acquainted with the writings of Jakob Böhme, and had become a personal friend of Abraham von Frankenberg, the editor of Böhme's works, soon found that the spiritual atmosphere of Oels did not suit him. His own leanings at this time were distinctly to Mysticism and Separatism. He was at no pains to conceal his sentiments, and withdrew himself from public worship, from confession, and from the Holy Communion. When he wished to publish his poems, and submitted them for this purpose to Freitag, he was refused permission to print them on the ground of their mystical tendencies. He resigned his post in the end of 1652, and went to Breslau. Here he became acquainted with the Jesuits, who in that place were earnest students of the mystical works of Tauler (q.v.), and through them was introduced to the study of the mediæval mystics of the Roman Catholic Church. On June 12, 1653, he was formally received into the Roman Catholic communion, and at his confirmation on that day at St. Matthias's Church in Breslau, he took the name of Angelus, probably after a Spanish mystic of the 16th cent. named John ab Angelis.* On March 24, 1654, the Emperor Ferdinand III. conferred on him the title of Imperial Court Physician, but this title was purely honorary, and Scheffler remained still at Breslau. On Feb. 27, 1661, he entered the order of St. Francis; on May 21, 1661, was ordained priest at Neisse in Silesia, and in 1664 was appointed Rath and Hofmarschall to his friend Sebastian von Rostock, the newly created Prince Bishop of Breslau. After the Bishop's death in 1671 Scheffler retired to the monastery of St. Matthias in Breslau, where he d. July 9, 1677, from a wasting sickness, during which he used this characteristic prayer, "Jesus and Christ, God and Man, Bridegroom and Brother, Peace and Joy, Sweetness and Pleasure, Refuge and Redemption, Heaven and Earth, Eternity and Time, Love and All, receive my soul." (Koch, iv. 3; Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 197: Memoir in Dr. D. A. Rosenthal's ed. of Scheffler's Sämmtliche Poetische Werke, 2 vols., Regensburg, 1863, &c.)

Of Scheffler, as a Convert and as a Controversialist, not much need be said. He certainly became more Roman than the Romans; and in his more than 50 controversial tractates, shows little of the sweetness and repose for which some have thought that he left the Lutheran church. In his Ketzerlogica, pub. at Glatz in 1677 [Brit. Mus. has the 2nd ed., pub. at Obernamnerau and Kempten, 1681], he classifies the Lutherans as heretics, e.g. No. 34 is entitled, "The Lutheran and Calvinistic Idol of the Understanding exhibited, and here, as well as the Likeness of the True God. In which also, at the same time, the attacks and objections of adversaries are met." 1 Cor. viii. 4, Idolum nihil est, an Idol is nothing."

At an early age Scheffler had begun to write poems, and some of these occasional pieces were printed in 1641 and 1642. His most famous non-hymnological work is his Geistreiche Sinn- und Schlussreden, &c., pub. at Vienna in 1657, but better known by the title prefixed in the 2nd ed. pub. at Glatz in 1675, viz. the Cherubinischer Wandersmann. [Both eds. in the Brit. Mus.]

The 1st ed. contains five books, and a supplement of 10 sonnets; and in the 2nd ed. a sixth book is added, containing 200 more stanzas. The work consists of Aphorisms, chiefly relating to the Christian life, running lines, often of considerable beauty and depth; throughout breathing the spirit of Mysticism, and not seldom verging very nearly on Pantheism. A few of these Aphorisms are given by Miss Winkworth, in her Christian Singers, 1869, p. 304, and by Dr. Vilmar Schorb, in the Schaff-Gilman Library of Rel. Poetry, 1881.

Scheffler's latest poetical work was the Sinnliche Beschreibung der vier letzten Dinge, zu heilsamen Schrifften und Aufmunterung aller Menschen ins Druck gegeben. Mit der himmlischen Freunden versehert, &c. Schweidnitz, 1673. [Brit. Mus.]

This is a 3rd ed., but no copy of the 1st ed. seems to have survived. It consists of poems, written in a somewhat coarsely realistic style, on Death (78 st.), Last Judgment (66 st.), Hell (74 st.), and Heaven (158 st.). The hymns, 4 in all, are to be found at p. 118, the hymn, Mir als den Jüngst mit Ihr Gott, with the note that it ought to have been added to the 1648 ed. of the Heilige Seelenlust.

Scheffler's most important hymnological work is his Heilige Seelenlust, oder geistliche Hirten-Lieder, der in ihren Jesum verliebten Psyche, gemeynet von Johann Angelo Silesio, und von Herrn Georgio Joachio mit anmühtig schönen Melodeyen gesetzet, &c.

Of this the 1st ed. appeared at Breslau, apparently in 1657, in three books, with Hymns 1–133, and a fourth—separately paged—book, with 32 hymns, apparently also at Breslau, 1657. In the 2nd ed., pub. at Breslau in 1668, the paging and numbering are consecutive; and a fifth book is added, with Hymns 166–200. In the Brit. Mus. Library, Breslau; 2nd ed. in Brit. Mus.] The first three books form a cycle of hymns, principally on the person and work of Our Lord, arranged according to the Christian Year, from Advent to Whitsuntide, and seem mostly to have been written during the progress of the Christian church. Those of the fourth book were probably written 1652 to 1656, and those of the fifth book between 1656 and 1668. In the first three books he is most clearly under the influence of his predecessors. That is, so far as he is under any influence at all, which is probably not to be traced by the Postscale of the Nürnberg Pegnitz Shepherds, and of Friedrich von Spee (q.v.); and in the substance of his poems—their longings for mystical union with Christ, and their clinging love to the Saviour—he is thoroughly at one with Spee. But in the fourth and other by the earnest inner religious life which he had found in Holland. In his later hymns the tone is more manly, and the defects and excesses of his earlier style have, in great measure, disappeared.

Many of Scheffler's hymns were adopted by the Lutheran Church as a welcome addition to the store of "Jesus Hymns," but many long passed current as anonymous: the J. A., for Johann Angelus, being often interpreted as Incerti Autoris, and vice versa. Through the Nürnberg Kern, 1676; Freylinghausen, 1704; the Unv. L. B., 1851; Fount's G. S., 1741; and Burg's G. S., Breslau, 1848, a large number came into use among the Lutherans, more indeed than among the Roman Catholics. They were great favourites among the Moravians, after Zinzendorf had translated 17 of them in his Geistliche Lieder-Sammlungen und Bet-Stunden, 1727; and, unfortunately, pas-clearly the worst were selected for imitation, so that Scheffler has the doubtful honour of being the model of the spiritual-fleshly productions which disfigured the Moravian hymn-books between 1740 and 1755.

* In his later writings he styled himself Johann Angelus Silesius, adding this designation.—the Silesian Angel,—to distinguish himself from the Lutheran theologian, Johann Angelus, of Dornstadt.

Judging Scheffler's hymns as a whole one must give them a very high place in German hymnody. Only a small proportion of the hymns bear a distinctively Roman Catholic character. Of the rest, after setting on one side those in which Christ is set forth as the Bridegroom of the soul, with an excessive use of the imagery of Canticles; and those disfigured by the mannerisms of the Pastoral School, there remain a large number which are hymns of the first rank. These finer hymns are the work of a true poet, almost perfect in style and in beauty of rhythm, concise and profound; the fruits indeed it may be said of Mysticism, but of Mysticism chastened and kept in bounds by deep reverence and by a true and fervent love to the Saviour. Scheffler holds a high place in the first rank of German sacred poets, and is much the finest of the Post-Reformation Roman Catholic hymn-writers. A complete ed. of his poetical works appeared, in two vols., at Regensburg, 1862 (see above).

A number of Scheffler's hymns are noted under their own first lines (see Index of Authors and Translators). Two, which are trs. from the Latin, are noted at p. 79, n. and p. 826, ii. The rest, which have passed into English, are as follows.

i. Ach Gott, was hat vor Herrlichkeit. God's Majesty. 1st pub. as No. 110 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 185), in 6 st. of 8 l., entitled, "Die (die soul) rejoices herself on the glory of Jesus." In the Herrnhut G. B., 1735, No. 67. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Thy Majesty, how vast it is. This is a free tr. of st. i.–v., as part of No. 189 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1886, No. 225).

Another tr. is: "My God! how vast a Glory has," as No. 1 in the Moravian H. Bk., pt. i., 1741 (1754, pt. i., No. 893).

ii. Der edle Schäfer, Gottes Sohn. The Good Shepherd. 1st pub. as No. 185 in Bk. v., 1668, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 307), in 5 st. of 8 l., entitled, "She tells of His Faithfulness." In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1705, No. 701, beginning "Der edle Hirte." Tr. as:—

The true good Shepherd, God's own Son. This is a tr. of st. i., v., by F. H. Mölther, as No. 18 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789. In the 1826 and later eds. (1886, No. 22) it begins, "Christ the good Shepherd." The version of 1801, slightly altered, is in Montgomery's Ch. Psalmist, 1825.

iii. Grosser König, dem ich diene. Love to God. 1st pub. as No. 161 in Bk. v., 1668, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 374), in 10 st. of 8 l., entitled, "She presents to her Beloved her heart in diverse fashion as a morning gift." Included, greatly altered and beginning, "Grosser König den ich ehre," as No. 737 in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1705, and further altered in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837 and 1865. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Make my heart a garden fair. This is a tr. of st. viii., as st. ii. of No. 439 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1886, No. 588).

Other trs. are: (1) "Lord, I come, Thy grace adoring," by J. D. Burns, 1840, p. 227. (2) "Almighty King, whom I adore," in E. Madeira, in his Segments of Scripture, 1870, p. 66.

iv. Jesus ist der schönste Nam'. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 35 in Bk. i., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 72), in 9 st. of 4 l., entitled, "She praises the excellency of the Name of Jesus." Included as No. 59 in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, and recently as No. 68 in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863. Tr. as:—

Jesus is the highest name. This is a good tr. of st. i., ii., viii., ix., by A. T. Russell, as No. 69 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851; repeated, altered, as No. 148 in Kennedy, 1863.

Another tr. is: "Jesus is the sweetest Name, Unto mortals." by J. C. Earle, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1864, pt. i. p. 6.

v. Keine Schönheit hat sie Welt. Love to Christ. A beautiful hymn on Christ in Nature. 1st pub. as No. 139 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 182), in 15 st. of 4 l., entitled, "She ponders His charmingness to the creatures." Included in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 204, and in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 753. The trs. in C. U. are:—

1. Earth has nothing sweet or fair. This is a very good tr., omitting st. vi.–viii., x., xi., by Miss Cox in her Sacred Hys. from the German, 1841, p. 163 (Hys. from the German, 1864, p. 144). Varying centos have appeared in numerous American collections, e.g. in Hedge and Huntington's Hys. for the Ch. of Christ, 1853; Robinson's Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865; Dutch Reformed Hys. of the Church, 1869, &c.

2. Nothing fair on earth I see. This is a somewhat free tr. of st. i.–v., ix., xiii.–xiv., xvi., by Miss Winkworth in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 48; repeated, abridged and altered, in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 158.

Other trs. are: (1) "All the beauty we can find," as No. 487, in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754. (2) "Would you view the glorious face," in J. A. Latrobe's Ps. & Hys., 1841, No. 437. (3) "Whate'er of beauty I behold," by Lady E. Fortescue, 1865, p. 30. (4) "Earth has nothing sweet or fair," in Kennedy, 1863. (5) "Earth has nothing fair," in Snepp, 1872, p. 126. (6) "The world with broadcast beauties teems," by E. Mötsio, 1887, p. 14.

vi. Morgenstern der finstern Nacht. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 26 in Bk. i., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 63), in 6 st. of 5 l., entitled, "She wishes to have the little Jesus as the true Morning Star in the heaven of her heart." Included in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1705, No. 752; in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837 and 1865, &c. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Morning star, O cheering sight! This is a good tr., omitting st. ii., iv., as No. 29 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1886.

Another tr. is: "Morning Star in darkenste night," by Miss Winkworth, 1863, p. 300.

vii. Nun nimm mein Herz, und alles was ich bin. Self-surrender to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 102 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 168), in 4 st. of 6 l., entitled, "She gives herself to her Bridegroom." Included in Freylinghausen's Neues geistreiches G. B., 1714, No. 505, and recently as No. 727 in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863. The tr. in C. U. is:—

O take my heart, and whatsoe'er is mine. This is a tr. of st. i., iv., by F. W. Foster, as No. 267 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1886, No. 346).

Another tr. is: "Now take my heart and all that is mine," by Miss Winkworth, 1855, p. 90. Repeated in Ps. and Hymns, 1863, p. 211 (1884, p. 235).

viii. Weilt ihr den Herren finden. Seeking for Christ. 1st pub. in Bk. iv., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust, p. 31 (cf. 1668, Bk. iv., No. 130; Werke, 1862, i. p. 222), in 5 st. of 8 l., entitled, "She gives notice where Jesus is to be found."

In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 338, and Porst's G. B., ed. 1855, No. 777. Tr. as:—

If you would find the Saviour. This is a free version, condensing st. iii., iv., as st. iii. in the Moravian H. Bk., 1754, pt. i., No. 637. Included, greatly altered, and beginning, "Would you find the Saviour?" in J. A. Latrobe's Ps. & Hys., 1841 and 1852.

ix. Wo willt du hin, weila Abend ist. Evening. A beautiful hymn founded on the Narrative of Christ at Emmaus. 1st pub. as No. 69 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 127), in 4 st. of 8 l., entitled, "She prays that He will abide with her because it has become evening." Included in Porst's G. B., ed. 1855, No. 678. It has passed into English through an entirely rewritten form, in 5 st. of 4 l., which appears in the Fifty G. B., 1675, No. 59, and is probably the work of Christoph Gensch von Breitenau, the editor of that book [b. Aug. 12, 1636, at Nauenburg, d. Jan. 11, 1732, at Lüdeck]. This form is in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 325. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Where wilt Thou go? since night draws near. By A. Crull, in full, as No. 93 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880.

Another tr. is: "Where wilt Thou go? the eve draws nigh," by Miss Manington, 1864, p. 164.

Other hymns by Scheffler which have been rendered into English are:—

x. Ach, sagt mir nichts von Geld und Schätzen. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 10 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 49), in 6 st. of 4 l. Included in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 206, with additional st. as iv., v., and this form in No. 737 in the Unv. L. S., 1851. The trs. are (1) "Tell me no more of golden treasure," in Select Hymns, Translated from the German, 1732, p. 57. (2) "Tell me no more of glitt'ring treasure," by Dr. H. Attis, 1846, p. 74 (1868, p. 161). (3) "O tell me not of gold and treasure," by Miss Burlingham, in the British Herald, August, 1865, p. 121, repeated as "Ah, tell me not," &c., in Reid's Scot. Presb. Hys., 1876.

xi. Ach, was wär'st du auf der Welt. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 64, in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 120), in 4 st. of 8 l. In J. F. H. Schlemm's Die Kirche in ihren Liedern, vol. ii., 1858, p. 1, it is altered to "Ach was wär'st du auf der Welt, mein Licht," This form in tr. as "Jesus, end of my desires," by J. C. Earle in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1864.

xii. Auf, auf, O Seel', auf, auf zum Streit. Christian Warfare. 1st pub. as No. 201, in Bk. v., 1668, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 316), in 5 st. of 8 l., entitled, "She rouses to battle." It is a beautiful picture, founded on 2 Tim. ii. 3–5, and Rev. i.–iii., of the Christian campaign and its reward. In the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 434, it is altered to "Auf auf, O Seel', auf, auf zum Streit," and in this form, with a new st. as st. iv., is repeated in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, and in No. 139 in the Unv. L. S., 1851. The trs. are (1) "Up! Christian man, and join the fight," by Miss Manington, 1863, p. 44. (2) "Up, Christian soul, and join the fight," by Miss Burlingham, in the British Herald, July, 1865, p. 106.

xiii. Dein' eigne Liebe zwinget mich. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 190 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 196) in 4 st. of 7 l. In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 208, and in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 754, with two st. added as iii., iv. Tr. as "Thine own love doth me constrain," by J. Kelly, in the Family Treasury, 1874, p. 776.

xiv. Die Sonne brennt heute, Morning. 1st pub. as No. 1 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 45), in 4 st. of 4 l. Tr. as "The sun will soon appear," by J. Kelly, in the Family Treasury, 1874, p. 776.

xv. Wo Jesus ist, da ist Schalom Ost. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 34 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 134), in 7 st. of 4 l. In the Herrnhut G. B., 1738, No. 625, altered and beginning, "Wo Jesus ist, da ist das Leben." This form in tr. as "Where Jesus is, there is salvation," No. 642 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

xvi. Jesu, ewge Sonne. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 81 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 145), in 7 st. of 4 l. Sometimes erroneously ascribed to G. Arnold (as in Niemann's ed., 1856, p. 797). Tr. as "Christ the spring of endless joys," by J. Kelly, in the Family Treasury, 1874, p. 776.

xvii. Wohl dem, der sich allein. Christ alone. 1st pub. as No. 202 in Bk. v., 1668, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 320), in 16 st. of 7 l. Tr. as "Jesus Christ, O my Lord and God," by J. C. Earle, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1864, p. 75.

xviii. Meine Liebe ist mir und ich bin Ihre. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 164 in Bk. v., 1668, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 380), in 7 st. of 4 l. In the Herrnhut G. B., 1735, No. 61, beginning, "Meine Liebe ist mir und ich bin Ihre." This in tr. as "My Friend's to me, and I to Him," as No. 667 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

xix. O du allerliebster Gott. Christ in Gethsemane. 1st pub. as No. 41 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 85), in 6 st. of 8 l. In J. F. H. Schlemm's Die Kirche in ihren Liedern, vol. ii., 1858, p. 209, it begins "Jesu, du mein Herr und Gott." This form in tr. as "Jesus, O my Lord and God," by J. C. Earle, in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1864, p. 72.

xx. Sehet, Brautleute, wie hässlich sein Bräutigam. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 14 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 56), in 10 st. of 4 l. In the Herrnhut G. B., 1735, No. 186. Tr. as "O bride! behold thy Bridegroom hangs," as No. 468 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

xxi. Sollt' ich nicht singen mit Freuden? Thanksgiving. 1st pub. as No. 144 in Bk. v., 1668, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 393), in 15 st. of 4 l., with a two line refrain. In Porst's G. B., ed. 1855, No. 454. Tr. as "Jesus, O my soul, with thankful voice," by J. Kelly, in the Family Treasury, 1874, p. 776.

xxii. Wohl ist schön und für gut'ren Wagen. Morning. 1st pub. as No. 168 in Bk. v., 1668, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 377), in 11 st. of 4 l. In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 476. The trs. are (1) "Now is the golden light of morn," by Miss Manington, 1863, p. 118. (2) "I see the golden light of morn," in the Family Treasury, 1877, p. 952.

xxiii. Wo Zuflucht sind die Wahrsagen. Eternal Life. 1st pub. as No. 193 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 202), in 7 st. of 4 l. Tr. as "How lovely are the mansions fair," by J. Kelly, in the Family Treasury, 1874, p. 574.

xxiv. Zeuch mich nach dir, so laufen wir. Love to Christ. 1st pub. as No. 74 in Bk. iii., 1657, of his Heilige Seelenlust (Werke, 1862, i. p. 132), in 6 st. of 8 l. In Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 184, as "O Jesu Christ, der du mir lebst," in given as st. i. and vi. Tr. as "Draw us to Thee, then will we flee," as No. 137 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754

It may be added that in some English books Scheffler appears as a composer of hymn-tunes. This is however a mistake, for the melodies in the Heilige Seelenlust are, as the title distinctly says, by Georg Joseph, a musician living at that time in Breslau.

(J. M.)

Schein, Johann Hermann, s. of Hieronymus Schein, pastor at Grünhain, near Annaberg, in Saxony, was b. at Grünhain, Jan. 20, 1586. He matriculated at the University of Leipzig in 1607, and studied there for four years. Thereafter he acted for some time as a private tutor, including two years with a family at Weissenfels. On May 21, 1615, he was appointed Capellmeister, at the court of Duke Johann Ernst, of Sachse-Weimar; and in 1616 he became cantor of St. Thomas's Church, and music director at Leipzig, in succession to Seth Calvisius (d. Nov. 24, 1615). This post he held till his death, at Leipzig,

Nov. 19, 1630. (Bode, p. 411; Monatshefte für Musikgeschichte, 1871, p. 26, &c.)

Schein was one of the most distinguished musicians of his time, both as an original composer, and as a harmoniser of the works of others. As a hymn-writer he was not so prolific, or so noteworthy. Most of his hymns were written on the deaths of his children or friends, and appeared in his Cantional of 1627, and his Opella nova, 1618. They appeared mostly in broadsheet form, and were included, along with his original melodies, in his Cantional oder Gesang-Buch Augspurgischer Confession, Leipzig, 1627; 2nd ed., 1645. [Bath in Wernigerode Library.]

Those of Schein's hymns which have passed into English are:—

i. Mache mit mir, Gott, nach deiner Güt. For the Dying. 1st pub., as a broadsheet, at Leipzig, 1628, as a Trost-Liedlein à 5 (i.e. for 5 voices), &c. [Berlin Library.] The words, the melody, and the five-part setting, are all by Schein. It was written for, and first used at, the funeral, on Dec. 15, 1628, of Margarita, wife of Caspar Werner, a builder and town councillor at Leipzig, and a churchwarden of St. Thomas's. It is in 6 st. of 6 l.; the initial letters of ll. 1, 3, in st. i.–iv., forming the name Margarita; and the W of st. v. l. 1 standing for Werner. In Schein's Cantional, 1645, No. 303 (marked as Trost-Liedlein, Joh. Herm. Schein, à 5), and later hymn-books, as e.g. the Unv. L. G., 1851, No. 830, st. vi. was omitted. It is Schein's finest production, and one of the best German hymns for the sick and dying. Tr. as:—

Deal with me, God, in mercy now. This is a good and full tr., by Miss Winkworth, in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 191, set to Schein's melody of 1628.

ii. Mein Gott und Herr, ach sei nicht fern. For the Dying. 1st pub., with his name, in his Cantional, 1627, No. 262, in 9 st. of 6 l. The initial letters of the stanzas give the name Margarita, probably one of the daughters who predeceased him. It is included, in 5 st., in the 1648, and later edds., of Crüger's Praxis; and recently, in full, in von Tucher's Schatz des evang. Kirchengesangs, 1848, No. 555; and reduced to 6 st. in Layriz's Kern des deutschen Kirchenlieds, 1844, No. 421. The tr. in C. U. is:—

My Lord and God, go not away. A good tr. of st. i.–ii., iv., v., vii., by A. T. Russell, as No. 224, in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

[J. M.]

Schenk, Heinrich Theobald, s. of Simon Schenk, pastor at Heidelbach, on the Schwalm, near Alsfeld, Hesse, was b. at Heidelbach, April 10, 1636. He entered the Pädagogium at Giessen, in 1670, and then pursued his studies at the University (M.A. 1676). In 1676 he returned to the Pädagogium, as one of the masters; and was, from 1677 to 1680, "preceptor classicus." On Dec. 27, 1689, he was ordained as Town preacher and "definitor" at the Stadtkirche in Giessen. He d. at Giessen, April 11, and was buried there April 13, 1727. (F. W. Strieder's Hessische Gelehrten und Schriftsteller Geschichte, vol. x., Cassel, 1795, p. 10; as from Dr. Neumann, pastor primarius; and from Dr. Schiller, Gymnasial-director at Giessen. The registers at Giessen give the date of his funeral, but not of his death; but say, that at his death he was aged 71 years less 10 days, which would rather suggest April 21 as the date of his birth.) Only one hymn is known by him, but it is a hymn which is found in almost all recent German hymn-books; and, through trs., in many recent English collections. It is:—

Wer sind die vor Gottes Throne. Eternal Life. This is found in the Neu-vermehrtes Gesangbuchlein, Frankfurt-am-Main, 1719, No. 362, p. 341, in the "Anhang einiger Gesänge"; and is repeated in the Neues-und vollständigste Frankfurter G. B., 1729, No. 568, in 20 st. of 6 l. In the Hesse-Darmstadt Kirchen G. B., 1733, No. 497, it is given, with a reference to Schenk as its author, and entitled, "Os Rev. vii. 13–17." It is included in the Berlin G. L. S. ed. 1863, No. 1417, omitting st. vii., viii. It is a beautiful hymn on the Church Triumphant (i.–viii.), and on the aspirations of the Church Militant to attain the same victorious glory. Tr. as:—

1. Who are those like stars appearing. By Miss Cox, in her Sacred Hys. from the German, 1841, p. 89, being a very good tr. of st. i.–vii., ix.–xi., xix.–xviii., xx. This has come into extensive use in the cents adopted in Allen's Ps. & Hys., 1844; and repeated in H. A. & M., 1861; being the 5-7s. of st. i., iii.–v., ix. Other cents are found in Borrien's Hys. & Anthems, 1851, &c. Other forms may also be noted:—

(1) Ere a multitude appearing. This, in T. Darling's Hys. for Ch. of England, 1874, is based on Miss Cox's st. i., iii., with two additional stanzas.

(2) Who are these in dazzling brightness, clothed in the victorious palm. This form, in full, as No. 620, in the Baptist Ps. & Hys., 1858, is by George Rawson, with st. i., iii., based on Miss Cox's tr. of st. iii., iv. In Mr. Rawson's Hys., Hymns, & Chants, 1876, No. 56, it is re-written, so as to rank as an original hymn; and there it begins, "Who are these salvation singing."

In 1864 Miss Cox printed a revised text in her Hys. from the German, p. 91. This is found in a considerable variety of cents, in many English and American hymn-books; some following the text of 1864 throughout, and some partly reverting to the text of 1841. It is included, e.g. in the People's Hyl., 1867, Church Hys., 1871, Hyl. Comp., 1876, Supt. Hys., 1879, Thrig's Coll., 1880 and 1882; and in America, in the Hys. & Songs of Praise, 1874, Landes Domini, 1884, and others. In H. L. Hastings's Songs of Pilgrimage, 1886, it begins with st. iii., "Who are these in dazzling brightness, These in God's own truth arrayed."

2. Who are these in light adoring. By A. T. Russell, as No. 140 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851; being a tr. of st. i., iv., xi., xv.

3. Who are these before God's throne, What the crowned host I see. This is a good tr. of st. i.–vi., ix., x., xiv., xvii., xx., by Miss Winkworth in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 207. Repeated, abridged, in Boardman's Sel., Philadelphia, 1861; Kennedy, 1863; and the Sursum Corda, 1868. In her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 77, Miss Winkworth repeated the tr. of st. i., iii., v., ix., x., xiv., xvii., altered, and beginning, "Who are those that, far before me."

Other trs. are:—

(1) "Who are those before God's throne, What the countless." By J. D. Burns, in the Family Treasury, 1859, pt. i., p. 267; and his Memoir & Remains, 1869, p. 267. (2) "Who are these in glory bright, Before God's throne." By Miss Bevington, 1861, p. 80. (3) "What is this host that round the throne." By Miss Warner, 1868, p. 20.

[J. M.]

Schirmer, Michael, s. of Michael Schirmer, inspector of wine casks at Leipzig, was b. at Leipzig, apparently, in July, 1606, his baptism being entered as on July 18, in the registers of St. Thomas's Church there. He matriculated at the University of Leipzig, at Easter, 1619, and graduated M.A. in 1630. In 1636 he was appointed subrector, and in 1651 conrector of the Greyfriars Gymnasium at Berlin. During his conrectorship the rectorship fell vacant several times, and each time, after he had officiated as prorector during the vacancy, a younger man than he was set over him (probably on account of Schirmer's feeble health) till, last of all, in May, 1668, the subrector was promoted over his head. In the same year Schirmer retired from office. The remainder of his life he spent in Berlin, where he pub., in the end of 1668, a version of the Aeneid in German Alexandrine verse, with various occasional poems, &c. He d. at Berlin, apparently on May 4, and was certainly buried there, in the churchyard of the Kloster Kirche, on May 8, 1673 (M. Michael Schirmer, &c., by Dr. J. F. Bachmann, Berlin, 1859; K. Gaedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 199; Koch, iii. 328, &c. Koch speaks of Schirmer as having been rector of the school at Freiberg in Saxony, and then pastor at Striegnitz on the Mulde, both between 1630 and 1636; and of his having been finally, just before his death, appointed archidiaconus at Freiberg. But for these statements there appears to be no evidence whatever. The Michael Schirmer who was rector at Freiberg and on Feb. 7, 1672, was appointed archidiaconus there, but d. at Freiberg on Oct. 25, 1672, was only b. on March 26, 1635. The rectorate at Freiberg was held by Johann Schellenberg from 1603 to 1642; and the pastorate at Striegnitz was held by Friedrich Hilmer from 1623 to 1656).

Schirmer had many domestic and personal afflictions to bear. His wife and his two children predeceased him. The early part of his life in Berlin was spent amid the distress caused by the Thirty Years War, during which Berlin suffered from the ravages of the plague, from pestilence and poverty. In 1664 a deep melancholy fell upon him, which lasted for five years; and something of the same kind seems to have returned to him for a time, after his wife's death, in Feb. 1667. Schirmer published a number of his occasional poems, which were mostly occasional pieces in German and Latin. In 1664 he pub., at Berlin, a metrical version of Ecclesiastes, as Das Buch Jesus Strach, &c.; and in 1666, also at Berlin, a Scriptural play, which was acted by the scholars of the Gymnasium, entitled Hiobs Trauer- und Freuden-Spiel, &c. He also pub., at Berlin, in 1668, versions of the Songs of the Old and New Testament as, Biblische Lieder und Lehrgedichte. The only compositions by him which have come into use as hymns, are those in his Neugestimmte Sonn- und Festtags-Andachten &c., Berlin, 1664; and in Crüger's Praxis pietatis melica, Berlin, 1648, &c. (See pp. 371, ii.; and 378, i.). These, five in all, passed into many German hymn-books of the 17th cent., and most of them are still in use. They were reprinted in Wackernagel's Kirchenlied, pp. 71–81, together with various selections from his other poetical compositions. They are practical, clear, objective, classical hymns, somewhat related to those of Gerhardt; and still more closely to those of Johann Heermann, from whom indeed Schirmer borrows a few expressions.

The only hymn by Schirmer which has passed into English is:—

O heiliger Geist, kehr bei uns ein. Whitsuntide. 1st pub., 1640, as above, No. 75, in 7 st. of 10 l., entitled, "Another short hymn for Whitsuntide, M. Michael Schirmers." Repeated in the Crüger-Runge G. B., 1653, No. 102; and, recently, in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 178. It is a beautiful New Testament paraphrase of Is. xl. 2. The third stanza is partly based on st. vii. of J. Heermann's "Wir wissen nicht, Herr Zebaoth." Tr. as:—

1. O Holy Ghost, descend, we pray. This is a somewhat free tr. of st. i., v., ii., iii., by W. M. Reynolds, as No. 704, in the Amer. Luth. Gen. Synod's Coll., 1850; and is repeated, with trs. of st. iv., vi., vii., added, as No. 105, in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880. The Ohio Hyl. also gives, as st. ii., a tr. of the recast of st. v., which was interpolated between st. i., ii. when the hymn was included in the Hanover G. B., 1657.

2. O Holy Spirit, enter in. This is a good tr., omitting st. ii., iv., by Miss Winkworth, in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 70. It was repeated, as No. 249, in the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868. In Dr. Thomas's Augustine H. Bk., 1869, it is Nos. 480, 481; No. 481 beginning, "O mighty Rock, O source of Life," which is the tr. of st. v.

[J. M.]

Schlegel, Catharina Amalia Dorothea von. Little is known of this lady. According to Koch, iv., p. 442, she was b. Oct. 22, 1697, and was "Stiftsdame" in the Evangelical Lutheran Stift (i.e. Protestant nunnery) at Göthen. On applying to Göthen, however, the present writer was assured that her name did not occur in the books of the Stift; and from the correspondence which she carried on, in 1750–52, with Heinrich Ernst, Count Stolberg (p. 906, ii.), it would rather seem that she was a lady attached to the little ducal court at Göthen. (See from Dr. Eduard Jacobs, Wernigerode, &c.) Further details of her life it has been impossible to obtain.

In the complete ed., 1744, of the Göthnische Lieder (see p. 85, ii.), Nos. 39 and 73 in pt. i.; and Nos. 5, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, Gymnasium in that town. He removed to Hannover in 1720, as pastor of the Markt Kirche. In 1775 he was removed to the Neustadt Church there, as chief pastor, and also as Consistorialrath and Superintendent. While retaining his pastorate at Hannover, he was also appointed, in 1782, as General Superintendent of the district of Hoya. In 1787 he exchanged this for the General Superintendentship of the Principality of Kalenberg. The same year he received the degree of D.D. at the Jubilee Festival of the University of Göttingen. He d., of fever, at Hannover, Sept. 16, 1793 (Hannavers. Ls., p. 214; Jördens's Lexikon, iv., p. 521; Koch, vi., 217; src. from Pastor A. Krnoch, Hannover).

Schlegel was a most prolific writer, though to the literary world at large the names of his sons, August Wilhelm and Friedrich von Schlegel, are better known. He was one of the most celebrated preachers of his time, and the author of many volumes of sermons. His hymns are few in number, but of considerable merit, and exceedingly popular in the end of the 18th cent., and have now, in great measure, passed out of use. Many of them were merely polished and weakened versions of, or were founded upon, earlier hymns. In his strictly original hymns he does not at all copy those writers of Klopstock. His hymns appeared in the following collections:—

(1) Sammlung geistlicher Gesänge zur Erbauung der Betsaaltge, Leipzig, 1766; 2nd ed., revised and enlarged, 1768; 3rd ed., revised and corrected, 1773. (2) Neues Hannöverisches Gesangbuch, Leipzig, 1775. (3) Geistliche Gedichte, 2 vols., Hannover, 1787 and 1789 (1, 2, 4, in Brit. Mus.; 3 and 3rd ed. of 1 in Hamburg Library.) He edited, and contributed to, the 1792 Appx. to the Hannover G. B., 1740.

One of Schlegel's hymns is a tr. of, and is noted under "Veni Creator Spiritus." Another is noted under Gellert, C. F., No. ix. (p. 407, a.). The others which have passed into English are :—

i. Wie herrlich strahlt der Morgenstern. Love to Christ. 1st pub. in 1765, as above, p. 112, in 7 st. of 11 l., and entitled, "Longing after union with Jesus, on the model of the old hymn, Wie schön leuchtet der Morgenstern." It is a recast of Nicolai's hymn (see p. 806, ii.), but so thorough as to be almost independent of it. It was included in Zollikofer's G. B., Leipzig, 1766, No. 404; in the Hamburg G. B., 1842, No. 450, &c. The trs. in C. U. are :—

1. How brightly beams the Morning Star! This is a good tr., omitting st. iv., vii., by Miss Winkworth, in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 36.

2. How brightly shines the Morning Star! What eye discerns it from afar. A good tr., omitting st. vii., contributed by J. M. Sloan to J. H. Wilson's Service of Praise, 1865, No. 292, and repeated, omitting st. iii., iv., in Wilson's Songs of Zion, 1878. Mr. Sloan recast the trs. of st. i., ii., v., vi., for the Free Church H. Bk., 1882; and this form is repeated in Church Praise, 1883. In Lauder Dounal, N.Y., 1884, the text of 1882 is given with the added st., "Rejoice ye heavens," from Mercer's variation of Jacobi's tr. from Nicolai (see p. 807, i.).

Hymns not in English C. U.:—

ii. Es lag die ganze Welt. St. John Baptist's Day. In 1746, as above, p. 35, in 2 st. of 8 l. It is based on a hymn by J. G. Olearius (p. 805, ii.), 1st pub. 1664, p. 28, st. i., ii. (1) "Es lag die ganze Welt," in Schlegel's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 338. The tr. from Schlegel's recast is "The world awoke'd to sin." By Dr. H. Mills, 1845, p. 132 (1854, p. 282).

iii. Jauchzt! es ist ein Gott vorhanden. Sleeping and Waking. In 1746, as above, p. 146, in 3 st. of 10 l., and in 1778, p. 181, in 3 st. of 10 l., dated 1777, and entitled, "Of the happiness of heaven." It is based on Knolle's "Es ist noch eine Ruh vorhanden (p. 636, ii.). Tr. as "Rejoice, rise ye to rest for distant." By Miss Manington, 1845, p. 91.

iv. Mein Jesu, für dein Blut. Passiontide. 1st pub. in 1746, as above, p. 65, in 14 st. of 6 l. Tr. "How trying is the heart." By Dr. H. Mills, 1845, p. 102 (1854, p. 211).

v. Schwingt Sitime ! brauset nicht Dir Meere. Summer. This is an Ode, 1st pub. in the Neue Beyträge, &c., Bremen and Leipzig, vol. i., 1744 (vol. 1742, p. 104), and entitled, "Praise of the Godhead. On the midst of the Sea." In 1746, as above, p. 1, it appeared as "Schwingt Sitime ihr Harfen Cedrn in der Natur," Halle, 1778, p. 197, it is recast, and begins, "Rund um mich her ist Meer und Fluth;" and this form is in the Hamburg G. B., 1842, No. 762. It is tr. as "Around me all is joy and gladness." By Miss Manington, 1845, p. 1.

vi. Tag der Erlösung uns gebracht. "Whitsuntide, 1st pub. in 1746, as above, p. 42, in 9 st. In some collections, as in the Kopenhagen G. B., 1778, No. 205, it begins "O Tag, der uns des Vaters Hulb." This is tr. as "The day of grace has come unto our souls set forth." By Miss Fry, 1845, p. 141. (J. M.)

Schlosser, Ludwig Heinrich. [Neumeister, E., No. iii., p. 797, ii.]

Schmidt, Johann Eusebius, s. of Johann Jakob Schmidt, pastor at Hohenfelden, near Erfurt, was b. at Hohenfelden, Jan. 12, 1670. He matriculated at the University of Jena in the autumn of 1686, and in 1691 went to Erfurt to attend lectures by Breithaupt and Francke. Part of 1692 he spent in travelling in North Germany, and during the years 1693-96 he was mostly employed in private tuition at Gotha. On the 12th S. after Trinity, 1697, he began work at Stehleben, near Gotha, as substitute (curate in charge), and on the 4th S. in Advent, 1698, as pastor there. He d. at Stehleben, Dec. 25, 1745, with the character of "An edifying teacher in his parish, a good example to his flock, and a methodical man in his office." (G. G. Brückner's Kirchen und Schulstaat, vol. iii. pt. iv. p. 59, Gotha, 1761, &c.).

Schmidt's hymns were contributed to Freylinghausen's Geistreiches G. B., 1704, and Neues Geistreiches G. B., 1714. In the latter Freylinghausen prints as a supplement (Zugabe) 17 so-called "Psalms for Festivals," by Schmidt, remarking in his preface that the author surpassed, remarking in his preface that the author of these (i.e. Schmidt), had written similar compositions for all the Sundays in the year. Of his hymns in Appx. (4, 186 pub. 1704; 31, 1st pub. 1714), some have considerable merit, and are above the average German length, good in style, thoughtful and interesting.

Of Schmidt's hymns those which have passed into English are :—

i. Es ist vollbracht: vergiss es nicht. Passiontide. This hymn, in "It is finished," 1st appeared in 1714 as above, No. 73, in 8 st. of 8 l. Included as No. 96 in the Chen. L. S., 1841. The tr. in C. U. are :—

1. All is fulfill'd—my heart, record. By A. T. Russell, omitting st. iv., v., as No. 109 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

2. 'Tis finished; O glorious word. A full but rather free tr. by Dr. Kennedy, in his Hymn. Christ., 1863, repeated, omitting st. ii., vi., in Bird's Praise Bk., 1872.

ii. Ich will dich preisen, Gott, mit Ehren. Whitsuntide. In Freylinghausen, 1714, as above, No. 105, in 4 st. of 8 l. Included in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837 and 1865. Pr. as, "The praises of him who is Grace's Dispenser." This is No. 253 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.

iii. Ich will mich freuen. Whitsuntide. Founded on Christ's Message to the Seven Churches in Asia. 1st pub. 1704 as above, No. 407, in 7 st. of 7 l. In the Chen. L. S., 1865, No. 223. The trs. are :—

(1) "Hasten on, hasten on," by Miss Burlingham, in Kennedy's Hymn. Christ., 1863, p. 31. (2) "I will rejoice," in Sel. Hymns, 1875. (3) "I will thy courts," in St. Mannia, 1887, p. 31. (4) "Onward go, onward go," by N. L. Frithiof-kon, 1876, p. 238.

iv. Sehreinigster! mein Herze sucht. Passiontide. In Freylinghausen, 1704, as above, No. 65, in 7 st. of 8 l. In Knapp's L. S., Breslau, 1846, No. 465. The trs. are :—

(1) "Christ crucify'd: my soul by Faith Desires," in the Supp. to Orr. Psalmody, ed. 1760, p. 23. (2) "Christ crucify'd, my soul by faith, With," as No. 434, based on the earlier tr., in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1886, No. 192).

v. O Jesu Sie du sind. Easter. 1st pub. 1704 as above, No. 1, in 7 st. of 8 l. Included as No. 1 in Knapp's L. S., 1837, No. 115. Tr. as "O Jesu, who sorrow'st," as No. 352 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754. [J. M.]

Schmolck, Benjamin, s. of Martin Schmolck, or Schmolcius, Lutheran pastor at Braunhitschdorf, near Liegnitz in Silesia, was b. at Braunhitschdorf, Dec. 21, 1672. He entered the Gymnasium at Lauban in 1686, and spent five years there. After his return home he preached for his father a sermon which so struck the patron of the living that he made Benjamin an allowance for three years to enable him to study theology. He matriculated, at Michaelmas, 1693, at the University of Leipzig, where he came under the influence of J. Olearius, J. B. Carpzov, and others, and throughout his life retained the character of their teaching, viz. a warm and living practical Christianity, but Churchly in tone and not Pietistic. In the autumn of 1697, after completing his studies at Leipzig (during his last year there he supported himself mainly by the proceeds of occasional poems written for wealthy citizens, for which he was also crowned as a poet), he returned to Braunhitschdorf to help his father, and, in 1701, was ordained as his assistant. On Feb. 12, 1702, he married Anna Rosina, dau. of Christoph Rehwald, merchant in Lauban (see No. xvii. below); and in the end of the same year was appointed diaconus of the Friedenskirche at Schweidnitz in Silesia. As the result of the Counter-Reformation in Silesia, the churches in the principality of Schweidnitz had been taken from the Lutherans, and for the whole district the Peace of Westphalia (1648) allowed only one church (and that only of timber and clay, without tower or bells), which the Lutherans had to build at Schweidnitz, outside the walls of the town; and the three clergy attached to this church had to minister to a population scattered over some thirty-six villages, and were moreover hampered by many restrictions, e.g. being unable to communicate a sick person without a permit from the local Roman Catholic priest. Here Schmolck remained till the close of his life, becoming in 1708 archidiaconus, in 1712 senior, and in 1714 pastor primarius and inspector. Probably as the result of his exhausting labours he had a stroke of paralysis on Lætare (Mid-Lent) Sunday, 1720, which for a time laid him aside altogether, and after which he never recovered the use of his right hand. For five years more he was still able to officiate, preaching for the last time on a Fastday in 1725. But two more strokes of paralysis followed, and then cataract came on, relieved for a time by a successful operation, but returning again incurably. For the last months of his life he was confined to bed, till the message of release came to him, on the anniversary of his wedding, Feb. 12, 1737. (Koch, v. 463; Bode, p. 144; Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 906; sketch prefixed to Lodderhose's ed. of Schmolck's Geistliche Lieder, Halle, 1857, &c.)

Schmolck was well known in his own district as a popular and useful preacher, a diligent pastor, and a man of wonderful tact and discretion. It was however his devotional books, and the original hymns therein contained, that brought him into wider popularity, and carried his name and fame all over Germany. Long lists of his works and of the various editions through which many of them passed are given by Koch, Bode and Goedeke. It is rather difficult to trace the hymns, as they are copied from one book of his into another, &c. The most important books which are the first sources of his hymns are the following :—

(1) Heilige Flammen der himmlisch-gesinnten Seele, &c. Of this the 1st ed. seems to have appeared at Breslau, in 1704, with 50 hymns; the 2nd, in 1705, with 100 hymns; the 3rd, in 1712, with 140. The earliest we have been able to find is the 4th, of 1716, with 150 hymns, at Görlitz and Lauban, 1716. (Both in Royal Library, Berlin.) This was his most popular book, and passed through 13 edns. in his lifetime. (2) Der lustige Sabbath, da der Seele an Jesu, mit heiligen Liedern gefeyret, &c. Zittau and Schweidnitz, 1712 (Berlin Library). (3) Neue geistliche Lieder-Schule, &c., Breslau and Leipzig, 1714 (Berlin Library, &c., Breslau and Liegnitz, 1714 (Berlin Library). 2nd ed., enlarged, 1715. (4) Einer andächtigen Hertzens Sabbath und Lieder, 1st ed., apparently 1716; 2nd ed., Breslau and Liegnitz, 1717, is in Berlin. (5) Geistlicher Sabbath-Schlag, Breslau and Liegnitz, 1717 (Berlin Library and Jauer, 1717 (Berlin Library). (6) Friedens-und Ostersabbath, &c., Breslau and Liegnitz, 1720 (Berlin Library). (7) Schöne Blumen und edlen Seelen Gesänge, &c., Breslau and Liegnitz, 1723 (Berlin Library). (8) Geistliche Sabbaths-Andachten, Breslau and Liegnitz, 1724 (Berlin Library). (9) Sechzig und Zehn Kurtze, &c., Breslau and Liegnitz, 1731 (Berlin Library and Brit. Mus.) (10) Der geistliche Kirchen-Sabbath, &c., Schweidnitz, 1733 (Brit. Mus. and Göttingen Library). (11) Klage und Trostlieder, &c., Breslau and Liegnitz, 1737 (Berlin Library). The contents of these, and of his numerous other works, are collected in his Himmlische Trost- und Gnadenvolle Schrifften, &c., 3 vols., Tübingen, 1736 and 1740 (later ed. dated 1744 and 1761). Selections from these were published at Stuttgart and Gotha (Leipzig, 1863) by E. E. Lodderhose, as above.

Schmolck was the most popular hymn-writer of his time, and was hailed as the "Silesian Bard," as the "second Gerhardt," &c. Nor was he altogether unworthy of such praise. It is true that he did not possess the soaring genius of Gerhardt. Nor had he even Gerhardt's concise, simple style, but instead was too fond of high-sounding expressions, of plays upon words, of far-fetched but often surprising contrasts, and in general of straining after effect, especially in the pieces written in his later years. In fact he wrote a great deal too much, and latterly without proper attention to concentration or to proportion. Besides Cantatas, occasional pieces for weddings, funerals, &c., he is the author of some 900 hymns, properly so called. These were written for all sorts of occasions, and range over the whole field of churchly, family, and individual life. Naturally they are not all alike good; and those in his first three collections are decidedly the best. A deep and genuine personal religion, and a fervent love to the Saviour, inspire his best hymns; and they are not simply thought out but felt, they come from the heart to the heart. The best of them are also written in a clear, flowing, forcible, natural, popular style, and abound in sententious sayings, easily to be remembered. Even of these many are, however, more suited for family use than for public worship. Nevertheless they very soon came into extensive use, not only in Silesia, but all over Germany. Thus, for example, in the Hannover G. B., 1740, and the Lüneburg

G. B., 1767, there are 73 by Schmolck. In the Andere Theil, 1725, of the Gotha G. B., there are 256, and the Neue Anhang, circa 1732, has 45 more; so that in the complete book, no less than 301, out of 1360, are by him. In the recent German hymn-books many still remain; and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, so often referred to in this Dictionary, has in all 114 of his hymns.

A number of Schmolck's hymns are annotated under their original first lines (see Index of Authors and Translators). The others which have passed into English are:—

i. Der beste Freund ist in dem Himmel. Love of Jesus. 1st pub. in his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 100), in 8 st. of 6 l., entitled "The best Friend." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 788. The tr. in C. U. is:—

A faithful friend is waiting yonder. This is a good tr., omitting st. v., as No. 293, in Kennedy, 1863.

ii. Die Woche geht nun Ende. Saturday Evening. In his Andächtige Hertze, 1714, p. 110, in 10 st. of 8 l., entitled "Evening Hymn," and appointed for Evening Prayer on Saturday. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1126. Tr. as:—

The week draws near its ending. This is a good tr., of st. i., vi., vii., x., marked as by "A. G.," as No. 81 in the Dalston Hospital H. Bk., 1846.

Other trs. are: (1) "Though now the week is ending," by R. J. Sackett, 1845, p. 107. (2) "The week at length is over," by Miss Manington, 1845, p. 137.

iii. Ooit da hiet selfst die Liebe. Holy Matrimony. In his Schmuck und Asche, 1717, p. 280, in 6 st. of 8 l., entitled "Marriage Hymn"; and so in his Wunderstab, 1717, p. 70. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1407. Tr. as:—

O God, Who all providest. This is a good tr., omitting st. iii., by J. M. Sloan, as No. 312 in J. H. Wilson's Service of Praise, 1865.

iv. Halleluja! Jesus lebt. Easter. In his Rechte und Klüge, 1731, p. 67, in 3 st. of 6 l., entitled "Hallelujah! at the grave of Jesus." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 296. Tr. as:—

Hallelujah! Lo, He wakes. By I. Cranswerk, omitting st. iv., as No. 79 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880.

Another tr. is: "Hallelujah! Jesus lives! Life, immortal life, He gives." This is a full and good tr., by Miss Warner, 1865, p. 402, repeated in the Treasury of Sacred Song, Kirkwall, n.d.

v. Heute mir und Morgen dir. Funeral Hymn. In his Schmuck und Asche, 1717, p. 225, in 6 st. of 6 l., entitled "Daily Dying"; l. ii. 6 of each st. being identical. So in his Wunderstab, 1717, p. 66. In Burgs's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 1010. The tr. in C. U. is:—

To-day mine, to-morrow thine. This is a good and full tr., by Miss Warner, in her Hyn. of the Church Militant, 1858, p. 260; repeated in Bp. Ryle's Coll., 1860.

vi. Je grösser Kreuz, je näher Himmel. Cross and Consolation. In his Andächtige Hertzen, 1714, p. 373, in 9 st. of 6 l., entitled "Hymn of Cross and Consolation." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1233. By its sententiousness and its manifold illustrations of the power of the Cross it has been a favourite with many. Tr. as:—

1. Greater the Cross, the nearer heaven. This is a good tr., omitting st. ii., iii., in the Dalston Hospital H. Bk., 1846. In Sacred Lyrics from the German, Philadelphia, U.S., 1859, p. 153, it is marked as by "J. J. Gurney," but upon what authority we know not.

2. The more the cross, the nearer heaven. By Miss Warner, in her Hyn. of the Church Militant, 1858, p. 238, repeated in Bp. Ryle's Coll., 1860.

Another tr. is: "The heavier the cross, the nearer heaven," by J. D. Burns, in the Family Treasury, 1860, p. 160 (Memoir and Remains, 1869, p. 262), repeated in the Schaff-Gilman Lib. of Rel. Poetry, ed. 1883, p. 736, wherein and beginning, "Heavier the cross."

vii. Jesus soll die Losung sein. New Year. In his Mara und Manna, 1736, p. 201, in 9 st. of 6 l., entitled "Jesu's Name for the New Year, 1725." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 199, st. i.–iv. are given, with an added st. as st. iii. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Jesus shall the watchword be. This is a good tr. of st. i.–iv., by J. D. Burns, in his Memoir and Remains, 1869, p. 262; repeated (reading shall our) in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880.

Another tr. is: "Jesu's name shall be our watchword," by J. Kelly, in the Family Treasury, 1865, p. 699.

viii. Licht von Licht, erleuchte mich. Sunday Morning. This fine hymn appeared in his Andächtige Hertze, 1714, p. 19, in 7 st. of 6 l., entitled "Morning Hymn," as one of the hymns for Morning Prayer on Sundays. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1061. Tr. as:—

Light of Light, enlighten me. This is a very good tr., omitting st. vii., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 66, and thence in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 17. Repeated, in full, in Kennedy, 1863; Boyd. Hyl., 1875, and others, and in America in the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868; Dutch Ref. Hyn. of the Church, 1869; Presb. Hyl., 1874, &c.; and, abridged, in various collections.

Other trs. are: (1) "Light of Light! Illumine me," by J. J. Bucholz, 1845, p. 6. (2) "O then blessed Light of Light," by Miss Dunn, 1857, p. 74.

ix. Meines Jesus lass ich nicht, Ach was wollt ich beginnen haben. Love to Christ. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 7; ed. 1709, p. 10), in 8 st. of 6 l., entitled "The constant faithfulness of Jesus." The initial letters of the various lines give the name "Maria Helena von Hohberg, gebahrene Freiin von Hohrena." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 818. Tr. as:—

I'll with Jesus never part. This is a tr. of st. i., ii., iv., as st. iii.–v. of No. 878 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789. In the ed. of 1886, No. 402 (see p. 614, l.), the part from Schmolck begins, "He is mine and I am His" (the tr. of st. ii.).

Another tr. is: "I'll not leave Jesus—never, never," by Miss Warner, 1865, p. 399.

x. Mein Gott, ich weiss wohl dass ich sterbe. For the Dying. This seems to have first appeared in the 9th ed. c. 1710, of the Breslau Vollständige Kirchen- und Haus-Music, p. 805. Also in Schmolck's Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 74; ed. 1709, p. 193), in 5 st. of 6 l., entitled "Daily Thoughts on Death." Included in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1478. Tr. as:—

My God! I know that I must die. My mortal. This is a good and full tr. by Mrs. Findlater, in H. L. L., 1st Ser., 1854, p. 52 (1884, p. 41), repeated in Boardman's Sel., Philadelphia, U. S., 1861; Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868, and Holy Song, 1869.

Other trs. are: (1) "That I shall die full well I know," by Dr. H. Mills, 1845 (1856, p. 202). (2) "My God! I know that I must die," by Miss Dunn, 1857, p. 144. (3) "My God, I know that I must die," by G. Medwin, in his Expounds of S. Scriptures, 1874.

xi. Mein Jesus lebt! was soll ich sterben. Easter. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 40;

ed. 1709, p. 73), in 4 st. of 6 l., entitled "The Christian living with Jesus." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 312. Tr. as:—

My Saviour lives: I shall not perish. This is a good tr. by A. T. Russell, omitting st. ii., as No. 115, in his Ps. & Hys., 1851; slightly altered in Kennedy, 1863.

xii. O wie fröhlich, o wie selig. Eternal Life. In his Mara und Manna, 1736, p. 211, in 8 st. of 8 l., entitled "The best lot in God's hands." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 718. Tr. as:—

Oh how joyous, oh how blessed. This is a good tr. of st. i., v., viii., by A. T. Russell, as No. 305, in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

Another tr. is: "Oh, how blest beyond our telling." This is in the British Herald, Nov., 1866, p. 366; repeats in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872. It is from "O wie unaussprechlich selig," a recast, probably by J. S. Dittrich, as No. 133, in the Berlin G. S., 1765, in 9 st.

xiii. Schmücket das Fest mit Maien. Whitsuntide. In his Andächtige Hertze, 1714, p. 246, in 9 st. of 10 l., entitled "Hymn for Whitsuntide." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 372. Tr. as:—

Come, deck our feast to-day. By Miss Winkworth, omitting st. iv., in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 110. Abridged and recast in Hys. of the Spirit, Boston, U. S., 1864, No. 305.

xiv. Thut mir auf die schöne Pforte. Sunday. In his Kirchen-Gebäude, 1732, p. 47, in 7 st. of 6 l., entitled "Appearing before God" (in his Klage und Seufzen, 1734, p. 99, entitled "The first step into the Church"). In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1381. Tr. as:—

1. Open now thy gates of beauty. This is a good tr., omitting st. iii., vii., by Miss Winkworth, in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 15. Repeated, generally in full, in Dr. Thomas's Augustine H. Bk., 1866; New Cong. H. Bk. Supp., 1874; Hexter's Cong. Hys., 1884; and in America in the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868; Evang. Hyl., N. Y., 1880; Londes Domini, 1884.

2. Open wide the gates of beauty. This is a tr. of st. i., ii., iv., vi.–viii., by H. L. Hastings, dated 1885, as No. 1076, in his Songs of Pilgrimage, 1886.

Another tr. is: "Throw the glorious gates wide open," by Miss Manington, 1845, p. 148.

xv. Weine nicht, Gott lebet noch. Cross and Consolation. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 144), in 7 st. of 8 l., entitled "A little handkerchief for tears." Founded on St. Luke viii. 13. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1327. Tr. as:—

Weep not,—Jesus lives on high. By Mrs. Findlater, omitting st. iii., in H. L. L., 1st Ser. 1854, p. 13; repeated in Bp. Ryle's Coll., 1860.

Another tr. is: "Weep not, for God, our God, doth love," by Dr. H. Mayer, 1845, p. 98.

xvi. Willkommen. Held im Streite. Easter. In his Lustige Sabbath, 1715, p. 95, in 12 st. of 4 l., entitled "Easter Triumphal Arch. At Midday on Easter Day." In Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 627. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Welcome Thou victor in the strife. This is a good tr., omitting st. ii.–iv., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 91 (C. B. for England, 1863, No. 61, omitting the trs. of st. v., viii., ix.). It was included, in full, in the Evang. Hyl., N. Y., 1880, and, abridged, in the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868; Boyd. Service of Song, 1871, and others. The trs. of st. vi., vii., altered and beginning, "The dwellings of the five resound" (and with three st. not from the German, added), are included as No. 263 in the Hyn. of the Spirit, Boston, U. S., 1864, as a "Hymn of Peace."

Hymns not in English C. U.:—

xvii. Ach wenn ich dich, mein Gott, nur habe. Love to God. Founded on Ps. lxxiii. 25, 26. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 29; ed. 1709, p. 49), in 3 st. of 6 l., and Burg's G. B., ed. 1805, No. 542. The initial letters of the various lines form the name "Anna Rosina Schmolckin." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1146, by G. Medwin, in his Expounds of S. Scriptures, 1874.

xviii. An Gott will ich gedenken. Remembering God's Love and Care. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 38; ed. 1709, p. 131), in 6 st. of 8 l., and Burg's G. B., ed. 1805, No. 1. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1, being for the Invocation. In the Berlin G. S., 1765, in 8 st. of 8 l. By Miss Bertkrick, in H. L. L., 1861, p. 7 (1884, p. 57).

xix. Der Sabbath ist vergangen. Sunday Evening. In his Andächtige Hertze, 1714, p. 20, in 8 st. of 6 l., and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1124. Tr. as "The Sabbath now is gone," by J. Kelly, in the Family Treasury, 1866, p. 696.

xx. Ein Sabbath, endlich, muss es doch. Cross and Consolation. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 89), in 8 st. of 6 l., and Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 1410. Tr. as "Yes, at last, our God shall make," in the Christian Examiner, Boston, U.S., Sept., 1866, p. 241.

xxi. Ein Sabbath ist vergangen. Sunday Evening. For the Dying. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 192), in 9 st. of 7 l. It is a conversation between the soul and Jesus, st. ix. being for the bereaved. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1446. Tr. as "Remember me, my God," in Kennedy, 1863, by Miss Bertkrick, in H. L. L., 1861, p. 7 (1884, p. 57).

xxii. Ooh, mütter Lieb, an deiner Brust. Burning. In his Wunderstab, 1717, p. 36, in 5 st. of 4 l., and Burg's G. L. S., 1837 and 1865. Tr. as "Oh, wearied baby, to thy rest," by J. Kelly, in the Family Treasury, 1866.

xxiii. Singet dem Herrn ein neues Lied, die Gemeine lobet. In his Lustige Sabbath, 1715, p. 26, in 10 st. of 8 l., and Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 488. Tr. as "Sing to Jews and Gentiles given," by Dr. H. Mills, 1845.

xxiv. Gott leb, wo kann ich traurig sein. Trust in God. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 83; ed. 1709, p. 183), in 8 st. of 6 l., and Burg's G. B., ed. 1805, No. 941. Tr. as "God lives! Can I despair," by Miss Warner, 1869, p. 64.

xxv. Gott mit uns, Immanuel. New Year. In his Klage und Seufzen, 1734, p. 300, in 8 st. of 6 l., and Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 1. Tr. as "God with us, Immanuel, Open with the year before us," by Dr. H. P. Down, in Sacred Lyrics from the German, Philadelphia, U.S., 1859, p. 146.

xxvi. Mein ist Immanuel! New Year. In his Lustige Sabbath, 1715, p. 1, in 8 st. of 6 l., and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 194. Tr. as "Mine is Immanuel!" by Miss Manington, 1844, p. 34.

xxvii. Hilf Helfer, hilf! ich muss verzagen. Cross and Consolation. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1709, p. 57; ed. 1709, p. 157), in 8 st. of 6 l., and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1413. Tr. as "Help, Saviour, help, I sink, I die," in the Monthly Packet, vol. xvii., 1859, p. 661.

xxviii. Ich habe Lust zu scheiden. For the Dying. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1707, p. 83; ed. 1709, p. 207), in 8 st. of 6 l., entitled "Meditation before the Last Will of a Christian," in Dr. H. Miller's Arpadenstunden. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1459. Tr. as "Weary, waiting to depart," by Mrs. Findlater, in H. L. L., 1863, p. 38 (1885, p. 28), repeated, unaltered, in Boardman's and the Schaff-Gilman Lib. of Rel. Poetry, ed. 1883, p. 673.

xxix. Ich sterbe täglich, und mein Leben. For the Dying. In his Freuden-ruf, 1728, p. 26, in 9 st. of 6 l., entitled "Mournful thoughts on sudden death. H. A. 1727." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1464. Tr. as "Both life and death are kept by Thee" (st. iv.), by J. Kelly, in the Family Treasury, 1865, p. 699.

xxx. Mein Gott, du hast mich eingeladen. Sunday. In his Lustige Sabbath, 1715, p. 208, in 6 st. of 6 l., and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1065. Tr. as "My God, Thou hast the invite given," by Miss Manington, 1845, p. 134.

xxxi. Mein Gott! du wohnst in einem Lichte. Holy Scripture. In his Klage und Seufzen, 1734, p. 11, in 10 st. of 6 l. The tr. is from the recast, probably by J. S. Dittrich, beginning "Mein Gott, du wohnest zwar im Lichte," as No. 181, in the Berlin G. S., 1765, and in the G. B., ed. 1805, No. 1. "O God, Thou dwellest," by Dr. H. Mills, 1845 (1856, p. 16).

xxxii. Mein Gott, ich klopf an deine Pforte. Supplication. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1745, p. 98) of 1709, p. 129, in 10 st. of 4 l., and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 161. Tr. in from the recast, probably by J. S. Diterich, beginning "Wer kann, Gott, je was Gutes thun," in the Hanover G. B., 1740, No. 148, No. 178, and in 1 st. In the Nassau G. B., 1816, No. 148, it begins "Gott, wer kann je." Tr. as "Who, Lord, has any good whatever," by Dr. R. 1855, 1815, p. 91.

xxxiii. Mein Gott, mein Alles über Alles. Trust in God. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1745, p. 98) of 1709, p. 129, in 10 st. of 4 l., and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 26. Sometimes given as "Mein Gott, mein Seyes und mein Alles." Tr. as "My God the source of all my blessing," in the British Herald, August, 1864, p. 312; repeated in the Family Treasury, 1865.

xxxiv. Mein Gott, wenn ich in meinen Leben. The Christian Life. In his Klage und Reigen, 1734, p. 14, in 10 st. of 6 l., as one of the Moral Hymns on the First Table of the Law (First Commandment). In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1. Also in the Hanover G. B., 1740, No. 178, and in 1 st. In the Nassau G. B., 1816, No. 148, it begins "Mein Gott, wenn ich nicht kindlich scheue," in the Berlin G. B., 1780, No. 184, in 8 st. Tr. as "Most High! with reverence to fear Thee," by Dr. R. 1855, 1849, p. 114 (1848, p. 109).

xxxv. Mein Gott, wie lange willst du mich. Death a Welt. For his Spirit. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1745, p. 79) of 1709, p. 121, in 12 st. of 4 l., and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1405. Tr. in from the form in the Hanover G. B., 1740, No. 926, which begins "Mein Gott, wie lange." Tr. as "O Lord, have compassion," by Miss Manington, 1863, p. 12.

xxxvi. Sehl wieh ein Mensch ist das. Passiontide. In his Heilige Flammen (ed. 1745, p. 24) of 1709, p. 46), in 7 st. of 8 l., and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 209. Tr. as "Behold what man is, O Jesus, in this glass," by J. Kelly, in the British Mercury, Feb., 1850; repeated in the Family Treasury, 1866, p. 224. (2) "See what a man is this, O glass," by Miss Warner, 1869, p. 52.

xxxvii. Mein Jesus, schweige nicht. Christian Faithfulness. In the Schmidt and Janke, 1717, p. 760, in 6 st. of 8 l., entitled "Faithfulness without Repentance. I. E. V. S." Founded on Rev. ii. 16. Tr. as "In thee faithful unto death! Let not troubles nor distresses," by R. Massie, in the Sunday at Home, 1863, p. 747.

xxxviii. Mein Seel ist nun gestillet Mensch. Holy Communion. In his Kleine Kleider, 1733, p. 74, in 9 st. of 4 l., and the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 441. Tr. as "Now by God the Father ejoden," by Miss Manington, 1863.

xxxix. Mein Seel thut nun die Freude. Christ our Passover. Included in Crüger's Praxis, 1656, No. 267, and most succeeding hymn-books, as recently in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 490. In Fernek's Geistliches Sion, 1674, No. 22 (1846, p. 55).

This hymn is perhaps the finest of all German hymns for the Holy Communion. It is an exhortation to the soul to arise and draw near to partake of the Heavenly Food, and is remarkable for its beautiful and joyful close, ending with a prayer for final reception at the Eternal Feast. It soon attained, and still retains, popularity in Germany (in many German churches it is still the invarying hymn at the celebration), was one of the first hymns tr. into Malabar, and passed into English in 1724.

It has been tr. into English as:—

1. Come, soul, thyself adorning. A free tr., by E. Jackson of st. i., vii., viii., as No. 190 in Dr. Hook's Church School H. Bk., 1850.

2. Deck thyself, my soul, with gladness. A good tr., omitting st. iii., vi., viii., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser. 1858, p. 94. Included in full in Cantate Domino, Boston, U. S., 1859, the Ohio Luth. Hymnal, 1880, &c., and, omitting st. vi., in Snepp's Songs of G. and G., 1872. In Kennedy, 1863, st. iv.–vi. beginning "Here I sink before Thee lowly," were given as No. 600, and the same in the Christian H. Bk., Cincinnati, 1865.

3. Deck thyself, my soul, with gladness. By Miss Winkworth, in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 93. This is her Lyra Ger. version re-written to the original metre. This form is found in the Clifton College H. Bk., 1872, and the Evangelical Hyl., N. Y., 1880.

4. Seel, arise, sieh Thy nahesa. A tr. of st. i., iv., iz. by Miss Borthwick as No. 259 in Dr. Pagenstecher's Coll., 1864, repeated in H. L. L., 1884, p. 263.

Other trs. are: (1) "Thou thy Lamp, O Soul be-trimmed," as No. 401 in pt. i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754. (2) "Soul, at this most awful season," rewritten from the 1754 as No. 224 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1849, No. 344). (3) "Leave, my Soul, the shades of darkness," in Lyra Eucharistica, 1864, p. 58, signed "Sister R."

[J. M.]

Schneegass, Cyriacus, was b. Oct. 3, 1546, at Buffleben, near Gotha. He studied and graduated M.A. at the University of Jena. In 1573 he became pastor of the St. Blasius church at Friedrichroda, near Gotha. He was also adjunct to the Superintendent of Weimar, and in this capacity signed the Formula of Concord in 1579. He d. at Friedrichroda, Oct. 23, 1597 (Koch, ii. 232, &c.).

Schneegass was a diligent pastor, a true scholar, a fine Scripturalist, and firm and rejoicing in his faith. He was also an excellent musician and fostered the love of music among his people. His hymns reflect his character, and are good and simple, setting forth in clear and intelligible style the leading ideas of the festivals of the Christian year. Many of his hymns were written for his congregation at Gotha. They appeared principally in his (1) ex. Psalmi graduum, &c., Erfurt, 1595 (Gotha Library). This contains the Psalms of Degrees (120–134) after Ps. 82 and 83, and three hymns. (2) Weihnachtlicher und Neu-Jahrs-Gesang, Erfurt, 1597 (Berlin Library). This is the complete edition of his psalms and hymns, containing 72 in all.

Of his hymns those which have passed into English are:—

1. Das neugeborne Kindelein. Christmas. Probably first pub. in No. 2 above. Included in 1597 as above, No. 1, in 8 st. of 4 l., entitled "A beautiful little Christmas hymn." Repeated in Wichmannsh. v., p. 139, in the Ohio G. B., 1858, No. 129, and the Ohio G. B., 1878, No. 84. The tr. in C. U. is:—

The new-born Babe. A free tr., by A. Crull, in the Ohio Luth. Hy., 1880. [J. M.]

Schneesing, Johannes, sometimes called Chlomanus or Chyomus[a], was a native of Frankfurt-am-Main. He was appointed, sometime before 1524, assistant to Johann Langenhagn, pastor of St. Margaret's church, in Gotha, who had begun, in 1522, to preach the doctrines of the Reformation. Subsequently he became pastor at Friemar, near Gotha; and in the records of the Visitation in 1534, he is described as a "learned, diligent, pious and godly man." He d. at Friemar, in 1567. (Koch, i. 276, &c.)

[a] During Schneesing's early years at Friemar, his exertions were much hindered by the spread of Anabaptist doctrines promulgated in the neighborhood by Nicolaus Storch, of Zwickau. Throughout his incumbency, he greatly interested himself in the children of his flock, for whom he prepared a Catechism, taught them in Church History, and wrote hymns for them. His friend Marx Wagner declares, taught them to sing psalms and hymns which he had himself composed. He also possessed some skill as a painter.

The only hymn which has been ascribed to Schneesing, with any certainty, is—Allein zu dir, Herr Jesu Christ. Penitence. The earliest hymn-book to which this has yet been traced, is the (Low German) Magdeburg G. B., 1542, where it begins, "Allein die dyt," and is entitled, "A Hymn of Penitence." Wackernagel, iii., pp. 174–177, gives this, and three other forms (the oldest being from an undated Nürnberg broadsheet, circa 1540), and ascribes it to Schneesing. It was included by Luther in V. Babst's G. B., 1545; and this text, in 4 st. of 9 l., is repeated in many later collections, as in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 361. Bunsen, in his Versuch, 1833, p. 85, calls it "an immortal hymn of prayer of a confident faith."

Its rhymes show that it was evidently written in High German, and, therefore, apparently, earlier than 1542. In the earliest broadsheets and hymn-books, it appears without name. Schneesing's pupil, Marx Wagner (b. at Friemar, 1528), in his Etzlichtige Torrede, wie durch Nic. Storchen, der Aufrurer in Thüringen sey angefangen worden, Erfurt, 1597, distinctly says that it was composed by Schneesing, and inserted by him in the ms. Kirchenordnung (i.e. Liturgy), which he composed, in 1542, for the church at Friemar. Conrad Hauber [b. 1507, at Bergzabern; studied theology at the University of Basel; 1531, diaconus, and 1545, Canon of St. Thomas's church at Strassburg; d. at Strassburg, April 23, 1577], to whom it is ascribed in the Gros Kirchen G. B., Strassburg, 1560, does not seem to have had more share in it than a few alterations in the text; and the earliest Strassburg B. Bk. in which it appears, is the Nov. ausserlesen Gesangbüchlein, 1545, where it is marked "N. N." and not with Hauber's name.

The melody generally set to it is first found in an undated broadsheet, which Wackernagel, in his Bibliographie, 1855, p. 172, No. cxxxvii dates as probably in Wittenberg, 1541, and is repeated in V. Babst's G. B., 1545, and many later books, including the C. B. for England, 1863 (see below). It has been also ascribed to Schneesing, but this exception seems decidedly doubtful.

The trs. of Schneesing's hymn are:—

1. In Thee alone, O Christ, my Lord. A good tr. of st. i.–iii., by A. T. Russell, as No. 194, in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

2. Lord Jesus Christ, in Thee alone. A good and full tr., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 129. Repeated, slightly varied in metre in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 112.

Other trs. are:—

(1) "In Thee, Lord Christ, is fix'd my hope." By J. C. Jacobi, 1725, p. 92 (1722, p. 91). (2) "In Thee alone, Lord Jesus Christ." This is No. 264, in pt. i., of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754 (1849, No. 344), rewritten in pt. ii., 1789, No. 339, in pt. i., of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754 (1849, No. 344). Included in the 1790 and later eds. of Lady Huntingdon's Selection. (4) "According to Thy mercy, Lord." This is a tr. of st. iii., by J. Swertner, as st. i. of No. 720, in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1849, No. 711).

[J. M.]

Schneesing, Johannes. [Schneesing, J.]

Scholefield, James, b. a. of the Rev. Nathaniel Scholefield, Congregational Minister at Henley-on-Thames, was b. Nov. 15, 1789, and educated at Christ's Hospital, and at Cambridge, B.A. 1812. Taking Holy Orders, he was Curate to the Rev. Charles Simeon, 1813; Fellow of Trinity, Cambridge, 1815; and Incumbent of St. Michael's, Cambridge, 1823. He was also Regius Professor of Greek at Cambridge, 1825, and Canon of Ely, 1849. He d. at Hastings, April 4, 1853. In addition to various learned works he pub. A Set of Psalms and Hymns, 1823 (11th ed., 1855), and Passion Week, a small devotional work including hymns, 1828. His Memoir was pub. by his widow in 1855. His hymns now in C. U., all from Passion Week, 1828, are:—

1. Draw me, O draw me, gracious Lord. Passiontide. As I looked, and to my raptured eyes. Christ to the Soul.

2. Once did the Gunnard's rich perfume. Anointing the Feet of Jesus.

[J. J.]

Schöner, Johann Gottfried, s. of J. G. Schöner, pastor at Rügheim, near Hanfurt, Bavaria, was b. at Rügheim, April 15, 1740. He studied at the universities of Leipzig and Erlangen. In 1772 he became tutor in the family of Herr von Winkler at Nürnberg, by whose influence he was appointed, in Sept. 1775, preacher at St. Margaret's chapel, in the Kaiserburg, at Nürnberg. He was then appointed, in 1785, diaconus of St. Mary's church, and in 1788 diaconus of St. Lawrence's church, where, in 1809, he became chief pastor (Stadtpfarrer). After 1799 he suffered greatly from nervous affections, and in October 1817, he had to resign his offices. He d. at Nürnberg, June 28, 1818. (Koch vi. 399; Hoerschelmann ii. pp. 32, 262, &c.)

Schöner was a popular preacher, and was specially successful with children. He took a great interest in the circulation of the Bible, and founded the Nürnberg Bible Society in 1805. His hymns are the fruit of his pastoral work, and were written for congregational popularity. A number were printed separately, or in magazines. The more important of the collected editions are (1) Einige Lieder zur Betrauung, Nürnberg, 1777 (Berlin Library). (2) Vermischte geistliche Lieder und Gedichte, Nürnberg, 1778. (3) Neue vermischte geistliche Lieder und Gedichte von Johann Gott fried Schöner, Nürnberg, 1816.

Those of Schöner's hymns which have passed into English are:—

1. Erhebt euch, liebe Lobgesänge. Holy Matrimony. Included 1790, as above, p. 51, in 7 st. of 6 l., entitled "After a Marriage." It is one of the best hymns on the subject. It was included, but greatly altered, and in 12 st. (st. iii.–v., vii., ix., being added), as No. 490 in J. E. Gessner's Sammlung, 3rd ed. 1825, beginning "Erhebt euch, frohe Jubellieder." This text is repeated in full in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837, No. 2974; and, omitting the added sts., as No. 652 in Bunsen's Versuch, 1833. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Raise high the notes of exultation. A good tr., from Bunsen, by Miss Cox, in her Sacred Hym. from the German, 1841, p. 71. Included in full, but altered in metre, in Mercer's C. P. & H. Bk., 1857 and 1864, beginning "Now let your notes of praise arise." Miss Cox recast her tr. for her Hym. from German, 1864, p. 79, where it begins "Rise high, ye notes, a glad ovation." The form in Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872, is mainly from the 1864 text, but begins with the original first line, and omits st. iv. The form in Thring's Coll., 1882, is also mainly from the 1864 text; but it omits st. iii., and begins "Raise high in joyful acclamation."

Another tr. is: "Lift up yourselves, ye joyous strains." In the British Mag., Nov. 1837, p. 617.

ii. Himmel an, nur Himmel an. Longing for Heaven. Included 1810, as above, p. 199, in 10 st. of 8 l., entitled "Our Conversation is in Heaven, Phil. iii. 20. A call to all Christians." It had previously appeared in the Samenkorn für Liebhaber christlicher Wahrheit und Gottseligkeit, Basel, 1806, p. 222. It has been a special favourite in Württemberg, and in No. 421 in the Württemberg G. B., 1842. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Heavenward, still heavenward. In full, by Dr. H. Mills, in his Horæ Lyr., 1845, p. 163 (1856, p. 251), included, abridged, in M. W. Stryker's Christian Chorals, 1885.

Other hymns by Schöner are:—

iii. Der Glaube fehlt, und darum bleiben. Faith. On Rom. iv. 20, 1st pub. in 1810, as above, p. 110, in 6 st. of 8 l., entitled "Feeble Faith." In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 355. Tr. as "Faith fails; Then to the dust," by Miss Warner, 1858, p. 627.

iv. Es dankt mein Herr! Es jauchzt mein Lied. Thanksgiving. Included in the 1810, as above, p. 4 l., entitled "Hymn of consolation on the pilgrim way to Heaven." In the Württemberg G. B., 1842, it begins, "Der dankt mein Herr." Tr. as "O Christ, in gladness faith arise," by Dr. G. Walker, 1866, p. 91.

v. Ich bin verlassen, ich bin allein. Christ Suffices. In 1776 as above, p. 14, in 7 st. of 8 l., entitled "Appropriation of the sorrows of Jesus. Passion Hymn." In his ed. 1813, p. 18, altered and beginning, "Entschlafen an dem wir bleiben," and in 8 st. This text is in Knapp's Bib. L., 1829 and 1865. Tr. as "Prince of Peace! Thy dying moaning," by Miss Burlingham in the British Standard, Feb., 1868, p. 316, repeated in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872.

vi. Ich blick in jene Höhe. Longing for Heaven. In 1777 as above, p. 52, in 10 st. of 8 l., entitled "Hymn of consolation in the pilgrim way to Heaven." In the Württemberg G. B., 1784, and in Knapp's G. L. S., 1837 and 1865. Tr. as "Mine eyes are fixèd turning," in the British Herald, July 1866, p. 107, and Reid's Praise Bk., 1872. [J. M.]

Schlüsster Herr Jesu. [Love to Christ.] In Heart Melodies, No. 51, Lond., Morgan & Chase, n. d., this is marked as "Crusader's Hymn of the 12th cent. This air and hymn used to be sung by the German pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem." For these statements there does not seem to be the shadow of foundation, for the air referred to has not been traced earlier than 1842, nor the words than 1677. In the Münster G. B., 1677, p. 276, it appears as the first of "Three beautiful selected Hymns" in 5 st., viz.:—

i. Schlüsster Herr Jesu; ii. Alle die Schönheit; iii. Schaue dich Sonne; iv. Schön scheint die Blumen; v. Er ist wahrhaftig.

In the Schlesische Volkslieder, Leipzig, 1842, p. 339, it is given with greatly altered forms of st. i., iii., ii., v., with a second st. ("Schön sind die Wälder") practically new. The text and melody (the melody that in C. U.) are both marked as taken down from oral recitation in the district (Grafschaft) of Glatz. In the Ztsc. L. S., 1851, in st. i., iii., and the new st., all nearly from the text of 1842: and this is the text which has been translated. Tr. as:—

Fairest Lord Jesus. Mr. Richard Storrs Willis of Detroit (U. S. A.) informs me that this tr. appears in his Church Church, 1850, but that he does not know the name of the translator. It has passed into various American collections as the Plymouth Coll., 1855; Dutch Ref. 1869, Robinson's Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865, &c., and in England into Wilson's Service of Praise, 1865; Allon's Children's Worship, 1878, &c.

Other trs. are: (1) "Sweetest Lord Jesu, Lord," by St. Stamm, 1867, p. 303. (2) "Beautiful Saviour! King of Creation," by Dr. H. Mills, 1856, repeated &c., Finlad., 1873, of the Amer. Luth. Gen. Council.

[J. M.]

Schröder, Johann Heinrich, was b. Oct. 4, 1667, at Springe (Hallenspringe) near Hannover. He studied at the University of Leipzig, where he experienced the awakening effects of A. H. Francke's lectures. In 1696 he was appointed pastor at Mosebeck, near Neuhaldensleben; and in the registers there records of himself (writing in the third person), "1696, on the 17th S. after Trinity, viz. on Oct. 8, on which day he was born, with the beginning of his 30th year, he entered on the pastorate of this parish." He d. at Mosebeck, June 30, 1699 (Koch, iv., 381; Blätter für Hymnologie, 1885, p. 192, &c.).

Schröder is best known by the four hymns which he contributed to the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697; and which are repeated in the Geistreiches G. B., Darmstadt, 1698; and in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704. They are very good and above the usual level of the 17th cent. hymns, consisting of earnest outpourings of Love to Christ, not contained with Chiliastic hopes for the victory of Zion and the overthrow of Babylon. In the same books are two hymns by his wife (Persopolis Sophia nee Wolf), who d. at Mosebeg, April 22, 1687.

Two of Schröder's hymns have passed into English, viz.:—

i. Eins ist noth, ach Herr, dies eine. Love to Christ. This is included in the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 505, in 10 st. of 8 l., entitled, "One thing is needful. Luke x. 42. Jesus, Who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption. 1 Cor. i. 30." It is also in Wagner's G. B., Leipzig, 1697, vol. iii., p. 437. It is repeated in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, No. 325, and in many later collections, e.g. the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 686, &c.

Its popularity has been due, not only to its own beauty and power, but also to the taking character of the melody to which it is set. This is by J. Neander, in his Bundes Lieder, Bremen, 1680, as the melody of Grosser Prophete Gott, Herr Zebaoth, and is repeated in Freylinghausen's and Zinzendorf's hymn books. The full form from Freylinghausen is in Mercer's C. P. & H. Bk., and there called Landsberg. The second part is given in the Bristol Tune Book as Saxe. A greatly altered form, as Sudelius, has passed through W. H. Havergal's old Church Psalmody into the New Church Hym., the Scottish Presb. Hym., and others.

The tr. in C. U. from Schröder is:—

One thing's needful, then, Lord Jesus. This is a good and full tr., by Miss Cox, in her Sacred Hym. from the German, 1841, p. 127 (Hym. from the German, 1864, p. 217), reported in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870. In 1857, Mercer altered the tr. of st. v.–viii., v., to No. 411 in his C. P. & H. Bk., altered, and beginning, "Wisdom's highest, noblest treasure." In his 1859 ed., he omitted the tr. of st. v. and altered the others, now beginning: "Wisdom's highest, holiest, treasure;" and this form is repeated, reading "Wisdom's unexhausted treasure," in his Oxford ed., 1864.

Other translations are:—

(1) "One thing is needful! Let me deem." By Miss Wadsworth, 1858, p. 195. (2) "One thing's needful:—this rich treasure." By Dr. H. Mills, 1856, p. 95.

ii. Jesu, hilf siegen, du Fürst des Lebens. Christian Warfare. In the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, p. 509, in 14 st., of 6 l., entitled, "Tearful sigh for the help of Jesus." Also in Wagner's G. B., Leipzig, 1697, vol. vi., p. 711, in 14 st., entitled, "God's succour in order to overcome spiritual enemies." In the Geistreicher G. B., Darmstadt, 1698, p. 216, st. xv., xvi., are added, and this form is in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 667. It is said to have been written, in 1696, as a companion to his wife's hymn, "Trauter Jesu, Brenking" (Halle, 1697, as above, p. 301, and the G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 771). It was accused of Chiliasm, by the Theological Faculty of Wittenberg, but still holds an honoured place in German collections. The tra. are:—(1) "Jesus, help conquer! Thou Prince ever-living." By Dr. H. Mills, 1856, p. 126. (2) "Jesu, help conquer, Thou Prince of my being." By Miss Manington, 1863, p. 2.

The hymn beginning, "Jesu, help conquer! my spirit is sinking," by Miss Warner, in 6 st., in her Hym. of the Church Militant, N. Y., 1858, p. 161, borrows little more than the first line from the German. It is repeated in Boardman's Selection, Philadelphia, 1861, No. 463. [J. M.]

Schubart, Christian Friedrich Daniel, s. of Johann Jakob Schubart, schoolmaster and assistant clergyman at Obersontheim near Hall, in Württemberg (after 1745, at Aalen), was b. at Obersontheim, March 26, 1739, and in 1758 entered the University of Erlangen as a student of theology. Thereafter he was for some time a private tutor at Königsbronn. In 1764 he was appointed organist and schoolmaster at Geislingen, near Ulm. In 1768 he became organist and music-director at Ludwigsburg; but, in 1772, on account of misconduct, he was deprived of his office. After that, he led for some time a wandering life, and then settled down in Ulm, where he edited a political newspaper, entitled the Deutsche Chronik, with success. By his scurrilous attacks on the clergy, especially on the Roman Catholics, and in particular upon the Jesuits, and by a satirical poem on the Duke of Württemberg, he made himself obnoxious. Unsuspectingly accepting an invitation to Blaubeuren, he was handed over to the Duke's adjutant, and, on Jan. 23, 1777, was imprisoned in the castle of Hohenasperg, where he remained, without even the shadow of a trial, till May 11, 1787. As a recompense for his long imprisonment, the Duke made him Count and theatre poet at Stuttgart, where he d. of fever, Oct. 10, 1791 (Koch, vi. 276; K. H. Jördens's Lexicon deutscher Dichter und Prosaisten, vol. iv. 1809, p. 639).

Schubart was a man of versatile genius, who might have attained considerable fame as a poet, but that he only stuck to any of them. He was a man who could make himself most popular, spite of the fact that he possessed hardly any tact. His moral principles were anything but strong; and the Ten Commandments (especially the seventh) seemed to have little restraining influence over him. As a writer of secular poems, especially of the Anacreontic order, he had a fair share of lyrical workmanship was often very careless. His hymn, ante 1780 in all, were written during the two periods when he led an orderly and Christian life, viz., in the years 1764–68, immediately after his marriage, and in the years 1774–77, during the first eighteen months of his imprisonment. His captive state, his reading of the devotional books in the commandant's library, and the visits which he then received from Dr. M. Hahn, pastor at Kornwestheim, awakened in him a repentance, sincere if not altogether deep-seated, which found expression in the hymns which were included in his so-called Gedichte aus dem Kerker (Zürich, 1785). These were composed at a time when he was deprived of writing materials, and were dictated through a wall to a fellow prisoner in the next cell. In 1781 Schubart left Hohenasperg for Stuttgart, and in self defence he asked the Duke's permission to pub. an authorised ed. of his poems; and this appeared at Stuttgart, in 2 vols., 1785–86, as his Sämmtliche Gedichte (a number of copies, printed beyond the subscription, were sold in Ulm in 1787). In 1791, the year of his death, Schubart's Gedichte in the Brit. Mus. Lib. included most of those in his Sämmtliche Gedichte, originally pub. at Ulm in 1787. Being printed at the Ducal printing office at Stuttgart, the poems were subjected to an official revision. Schubart meant to issue a genuine author's edition, but did not live to do so; and that pub. by his son, L. Schubart, at Zürich and Leipzig, and Frankfort, 1802, is really a selection, and contains only about half of his hymns.

The best of Schubart's hymns are those first pub. in 1785, which are more genuine and spiritual than his earlier productions. Several of these have become popular, and passed into the Württemberg G. B., 1791, and other collections, up to 1850; and a few still continue in C. U. They are, however, too personal and subjective, and not sufficiently catholic in style for congregational use.

Of Schubart's hymns the following have been tr. into English, viz.:—

i. Urquell aller Seligkeiten. Supplication for Spiritual Blessings. This fine hymn was written about 1780, and 1st pub. in his Gedichte aus dem Kerker, Zürich, 1785, p. 102, in 16 st. of 4 l., entitled, "Supplication." The full text is in Koch, 2nd ed., vol. iv., p. 340. In the Württemberg G. B., 1791, No. 404, it is reduced to 12 st.; and the same in the ed. of 1842, No. 51. In Dr. Schaff's Deutscher G. B., Philadelphia, U. S., 1860, No. 374, it has only ten. Tr. as:—

Through by sorrows overtaken. This can hardly be called a tr., but is rather a hymn suggested by the German, and is in 6 st. of 4 l. It appeared in A. S. Reinagle's Coll. of Ps. and Hy. Tunes as sung in the Parish Church of St. Peter in the East, Oxford, pub. at Oxford in 1840, p. 138. It is one of four hymns [for the others, see pp. 696, i.; 806, i.; 1061 i.], regarding which the Rev. Walter Kerr Hamilton (then Rector of St. Peter's, afterwards Bishop of Salisbury), says, in the preface, "Philip Pusey, Esq., has allowed me to add to this collection some hymns which are partly translations and partly original." From Reinagle this hymn passed, with alterations, into the Salisbury H. Bk., 1857, the Sarum Hyl., 1868, and various other collections. In Lord Selborne's Bk. of Praise, 1862, it is No. 365, and is marked as by "Algernon Herbert," who was Pusey's brother-in-law; and in the Sarum Hyl., as "German tr. by Algernon Herbert." The ascription to Pusey seems the more probable.

Other hymns by Schubart are:—

ii. Alles ist eure: O Worte des ewigen Lebens. Thanksgiving. Written about 1784, and 1st pub. at Zürich, 1785, as above, p. 117, in 9 st. of 8 l.; founded on 1 Cor. iii. 21–23. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 686. Tr. as "All are yours: O words of life eternal," by Miss Burlingham, in Dr. L. L., 1866, p. 5 (1864, p. 73).

iii. Der Tanzsaal Last liegt schwer auf mich. Re- nation in Heaven. On the sorrow of parting with friends whom one hopes to meet in heaven. 1st pub. at Ulm, 1704, as above, p. 140, in 11 st. of 7 l. and the refrain, "Ich sterbe täglich und lebe täglich." In the Württemberg G. B., 1851, No. 141, in 9 st. Tr. as, "I die and grieve from them to go." By Dr. C. Walker, 1850, p. 58.

iv. Hier stand ich Krank! Hier fiel er nieder. Sudden death of a friend. 1st pub. at Ulm, 1707, as above, p. 1, in 11 st. of 7 l., and the refrain, "Ein sanfter Tod." In the American Ev. Luth. C. B., 1746, No. 220 (1844, No. 560). Tr. as, "Now one in health Death, instead, crushes." By Dr. H. Mills, 1846 (1856, p. 30).

v. Kommt heut an unsern Stuhe. Baptism. 1st pub. at Ulm, 1707, as above, p. 2, in 11 st. of 4 l., and refrain, "Ich bin getauft." In the Württemberg G. B., 1791, No. 141. Tr. as, "Ye who with tears are sinking." By Dr. H. Mills, 1846 (1856, p. 27).

[J. M.]

Schütz, Johann Jakob, was b. Sept. 7, 1640, at Frankfort on Main. After studying at Tübingen (where he became a licentiate in civil and canon law), he began to practise as an advocate in Frankfurt, and in later years with the title of Rath. He seems to have been a man of considerable legal learning as well as of deep piety. He was an intimate friend of P. J. Spener; and it was, in great measure, at his suggestion, that Spener began his famous Collegia Pietatis (see Spener, p. 1071, ii.). After Spener left Frankfurt, in 1686, Schütz came under the influence of J. W. Petersen (p. 893, i.); and carrying out Petersen's principles to their logical conclusion, he became a Separatist, and ceased to attend the Lutheran services or to communicate. He d. at Frankfurt, May 22, 1690 (Koch, iv. 220; Blätter für Hymnologie, Feb. 1883). See also Various.

Schütz is known as an author by two tractates; one being his Christliche Lebensregeln, Frankfurt, 1671; the other, that which contains his hymns, Christlicher Lebensregeln . . . Erster Theil, Frankfurt am Mayn, &c., Frankfurt am Main, 1675 (Library of the Predigerministerium at Frankfurt). This work includes 3 hymns, in a separate section, which is headed "Hierauf folgen etliche Gesänge." These hymns are:—

i. Ich weiss an dieser Welt.
ii. Was mich auf dieser Welt betrifft.
iii. So komm, geliebte Todes-Stund.
iv. Schenck Ihr, ihr matten Glieder.
v. Sey Lob und Ehr dem höchsten Gut.

Of these hymns, Nos. i., ii., and iii., and the other four exhibit much the same style of thought as, and frequent parallels to, the prose portions of the work. None of these have been traced earlier than 1675; and until this has been done, it is pretty safe to ascribe them all to Schütz.

Three of these hymns have passed into English, viz.:—

i. Sei Lob und Ehr dem höchsten Gut. Praise and Thanksgiving. 1st pub. in 1675, as above, No. v. It is founded on Deut. xxxii. 3; entitled, "Hymn of Thanksgiving," and is in 9 st. of 5 l., and the refrain, "Gibt unserm Gott die Ehre." It passed into the Münden G. B., 1689; Lappius's G. B., 1692, p. 48; the Geistreiches G. B., Halle, 1697, pp. 370 and 456; and is now found in almost all German collections, as in the Unv. L. B., 1851, No. 721.

Koch, iv. 220, speaks of this hymn as "outweighing many hundred others; and a classical hymn, which, from its first appearance, attracted unusual attention." Mumssen, in his Sammlung, 1733, p. 1, tells us that it delighted J. J. Moser was, when, on entering church the first Sunday after his captivity at Hohentwiel, he heard this hymn, and how heartily he joined in it, how it comforted the dying G. C. Rieger, of Stuttgart, on Thursday, in Easter Week, 1745, and many other instances.

Translations in C. U. :—

1. All Glory to the Sov'reign Good. This is a full and good tr., by J. C.-Jacobi, in his Psal. Germanica, 2nd ed., 1735, p. 151, where it is entitled, "The Malabarian Hymn." In the Moravian H. Bk., 1754, pt. i., No. 136, it is entitled, "Summary of the Book of Psalms" (1886, No. 646). Montgomery, in his Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 215, adopted st. i.–iv., nearly from the 1754; and from this, the tr. of st. i., ii., iv., were repeated in Gurney's Morgideone Coll., 1851; Windle's Coll., &c. The form in the 1873 Appx. to Mercer's C. P. & H. Bk., No. 514, consists of st. i.–iv., viii., recast mainly from the 1801 Moravian, but partly from Miss Cox. In J. A. Latrobe's Ps. & Hys., 1841, No. 5, st. i., ii., v., viii., ix., were adapted for use on Trinity Sunday.

2. All glory be to God most high. A good tr., by A. T. Russell, of st. i., iv., viii., for the Dalston Hospital H. Bk., 1848, No. 39.

3. All praise and thanks to God most high. This is a good tr., omitting st. ix., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 146. Repeated, in varying contos, in Ps. & Hys., Bedford, 1859; Harrow School H. Bk., 1866; Holy Song, 1869; Irish Church Hyl., 1873, and others. In her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 2, Miss Winkworth altered the metre and omitted st. vi.; and this form was repeated in full in the Evang. Hyl., N. Y., 1880, and abridged (i.–iv.) in the Hymnary, 1871.

4. Sing praise to God Who reigns above. A good tr., omitting st. ix., contributed by Miss Cox to Lyra Eucharistica, 1864, p. 33, and included in her Hym. from the German, 1864, p. 235. This tr. is given in full in J. L. Porter's Coll., 1876. It is also found, in varying contos, in many English and American hymn-books, including H. A. & M., 1868 and 1875; Hspt. Hyl., 1879; Thring's Coll., 1882; and in America, in the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868; College Hyl., N. Y., 1876; Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880, &c.

5. To God a joyful anthem raise. A good tr. of st. i., iii., iv., v., viii., by J. M. Sloan, as No. 314, in J. H. Wilson's Service of Praise, 1865.

The following are also tr. into English:—

i. So komm, geliebte Todes-Stund. For the Dying. 1st pub. in 1675, as above, No. iii., in 9 st. of 6 l., and refrain, "Ich sterbe täglich." The thoughts on Death of a Royal Princess, after the usual interpretation of Job xix. 25." This Princess was Sophie Elisabetha, daughter of Duke Philipp Ludwig, of Holstein-Sonderburg [b. at Hoantorp var der Hilte, Aug. 18, 1641], who married, in 1662, Duke Christian of Sachsen-Zeitz; d. at Schleusingen, Aug. 18, 1664], who had been a regular attender at Spener's conferences at Frankfurt, and thus associated with Schütz. This hymn (as also No. iv. in the 1675 work) has often been ascribed to Spener, but erroneously. Spener preached the funeral sermon. But it is more probable that both hymns were written by Schütz for her use, or in her honour. The text of No. iii., in 1675, is repeated in the Geistliche Lieder und Psalmen, Frankfort, 1676, p. 148, and in subsequent edns. (1680, p. 148; 1691, p. 148; 1704, No. 163, &c. The tes are:—(1) "Come, happy hour of death, and close." By Dr. O. Walther, 1840, p. 54. (2) "O come, delightful hour of death." By Dr. C. Winkler, 1860, p. 168.

ii. Was mich auf dieser Welt betrifft. Earthly Vanities. This hymn, on Renunciation of the World, 1st appeared in 1675, as above, No. ii., in 4 st. of 10 l., and entitled "From the World to God." Repeated in the Geistliche Lieder und Psalmen, Frankfort, 1676, p. 156; 1680, p. 156; 1691, p. 156; 1704, No. 171. This hymn has been erroneously ascribed to Michael Franck (p. 389, i.). It is tr. as "The woes that weigh my body down." By Miss Bevington, 1865, p. 25.

[J. M.]

Schwedler, Johann Christoph, s. of Anton Schwedler, farmer and rural magistrate at Krudeborf, near Löwenberg, in Silesia, was

b. at Krudeborf, Dec. 21, 1672, and matriculated at the University of Leipzig, in 1695 (M.A. 1697). In 1698 he was appointed assistant minister at Niederwiese, near Greiffenberg, and began his duties there on the 18th S. after Trinity. On the death of the diaconus, Christoph Adolph, he succeeded him as diaconus, in December, 1698; and, finally, in 1701, he became pastor there. He d. at Niederwiese, suddenly, during the night of Jan. 12, 1730. (S. J. Ehrhardt's Predigergeschichte Schlesiens, 1780–89, vol. iii., pt. ii., p. 254; Koch, v. 225, &c.)

Schwedler was a powerful and popular preacher, and frequently gifted with "the spirit of prayer and supplication." On Sundays at 3 o'c. a.m., he would continue the service to relays who in succession filled the church, till 2 or 3 o'c. He also founded an orphanage at Niederwiese. He was a near neighbour and great friend of Johann Mentzer (p. 724, ii.) and N. L. von Zinzendorf, and a hymn-writer of considerable popularity. Several specimens of his hymns was in use in parts of Germany through Christ, and the joyful confidence inspired by the seal that experienced it. Of his hymns, 662 appeared in his Die Lieder Mose und des Lammes, oder neu eingerichtetes Gesang-Buch, Hirschberg, 1720, 8vo, 316–664 pp., and 662 in the Geistliches Gesang-Buch, 1725, 8vo, his various devotional works, and in the hymn-books of the period.

The only hymn by Schwedler tr. into English is:—

Wath the waues wun mein Preis! Jesus the Crucified, or Love to Christ. Founded on 1 Cor. ii. 2, and Gal. vi. 14. Included in the Herrnhut G. B., 1741, No. 253, in 6 st. of 4 l., and the refrain, "Jesus, der Gekreuzigte." This form is repeated, with his name, in Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 327; and is in many recent collections, as Berlin G. B. S., ed. 1863, No. 282. It was long the usual funeral hymn in Silesia. The tr. in C. U. are:—

1. Ask ye what great thing I know. By Dr. Kennedy, in his Hymn. Christ., 1863, No. 620, being a good tr. of st. i.–v., with a sixth st. suggested by st. vi. of the German. It is repeated, in full, in Thring's Coll., 1882; and in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870. Abridged forms are in Morell and How's Ps. & Hys., 1864; J. L. Porter's Coll., 1876; and in America, in the Dutch Ref. Hys. of the Church, 1869; Hays' Praise Bk., 1871; Landes Domini, N. Y., 1884, and others.

2. Do you ask what most I prize! This is a fairly close version, omitting st. vi., as No. 98 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1886. [J. M.]

Schweinitz, Hans Christoph von, of Friedrichsdorf and Niederlehme, s. of Baron Hans Christoph von Schweinitz, of Crane and Hähnichen, in Silesia, was b. at Crane, Feb. 1, 1645. After studying at Breslau, Strassburg, Leyden, and Paris, and taking a prolonged tour in Italy and elsewhere, he returned to Silesia in 1668, where he was appointed Landeshöster for the district of Goleltz, and afterwards Rath and Kammerherr, by August II., in his capacity of King of Poland and Elector of Saxony. He resigned his post as Landesältester, in 1708, and retired to Lemke, where he d. Nov. 10, 1723 (G. F. Otto's Lexicon . . . Oberlausitzischer Schriftsteller, iii., p. 237, &c.). Only two hymns are known by him. One of these is:—

Wird das nicht Freude sein! Eternal Life. This beautiful hymn, on the Joys of Heaven, was written on the death of his first wife, Theodora von Schweinitz (nee Festenberg). It was first printed, as a broadsheet, at Lachan, in 1691, with music, in 5 parts, by Christoph Adolph, diocesan at Niederwiese, who d. in 1698 (Zeitschrift für Musikwissenschaft, Leipzig, 1924–25, pp. 129–134; Koch, iv. 225). The broadsheet, of which there is a copy in the Town Library at Breslau, is entitled Den seligen Lobenleichnam, &c., and has the note:—"The following hymn was composed from the late Frau von Schweinitz, nee Festenberg, of Crane, a pious soul, who died, shortly before her happy end, and was sung after the end of the [funeral] sermon." The hymn was included in J. C. Schwedler's Lieder Moses, 1720, No. 288 (marked as "On the death of a little child. Joh. Christ. Schwedler"), and in the Geistliches G. B., Halle, 1845, No. 1039. It is in 8 st. of 4 l. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Will that not joyful be! This is a full and very good tr., by Mrs. Findlater, in H. L. L., 1st Ser., 1854, p. 7 (1884, p. 13); repeated, in full, in Sp. Hyb's Coll., 1860, and abridged in the Bap. Church Hymn Bk., 1871, No. 1045. Stanzas i.–iv., altered, and beginning, "Oh, that will joyful be," are in W. B. Bradbury's Golden Chain, N. Y., 1861 (ed. 1874, p. 49). Another tr., in "Will it not pleasure be." By Dr. H. Mills, 1846 (1856, p. 230).

[J. M.]

Scott, Elizabeth, daughter of the Rev. Thomas Scott, Independent Minister at Norwich, and sister of Thomas Scott, noted below, was b. at Norwich about 1708. In 1734 she was married to Elisha Williams, who had been from 1720 to 1739 Rector of Yale College, U.S.A., and with him she proceeded to Connecticut. On the death of Mr. Williams she was married to the Hon. William Smith, of New York, who also predeceased her. She died at Wethersfield, Connecticut, June 13th, 1776. In connection with Miss Scott's hymns we are acquainted directly and indirectly with four MSS., each of which is interesting in itself. These are as follows:—

I. The first MS. is in the library of Yale College, New Haven, Connecticut, U.S.A., and was kindly sent by Miss E.A., Assistant Librarian, has tabulated the hymns in this MS. for this Dictionary. He says (Jan. 26, 1889): "The label on the back of this volume is 'Hymns & Poems by Eliz. Scott.' There is no title to the MS. itself, nor any name of author or compiler. There is, however, a long and very leisurely written dedication (in prose) 'To my much Revd'd, much Lov'd, Father,' this signed 'E. S.' and dated 1740. Then follows (without numbers) the Hymns with titles and first lines as in the table. The writer adds on the first lines and the titles of 56 hymns.

II. The second MS. is in our possession. It is headed "Poems on Several Occasions by Miss Scott of Norwich, who married to Mr. Williams of New England, January 1734." The writer adds on the first lines and the titles of 56 hymns. These transcribed from Mrs. Williams' Manuscript, Feb. 27, 1751, the week before she left Norwich to go to New England." The whole of these 56 hymns are in the Yale College MS.

III. The third MS. is a volume of unbound contains 8 hymns which are prefaced with these words, "Copied from a book of Mrs. Bury's, written by her Aunt Miss Elizabeth Scott, afterwards Mrs. Williams." Of these hymns 6 are in the Yale College MS. and 2 not therein, viz. "Ah, how shall fearful sinners," and "Jesus, my all," in Ps. & Hys., Bedford, 1859, No. 75, and "Hark, King supreme, all wise and good," both of which are given anonymously in the Unitarian New col. of Ps. for the Use of a Chap. of Protestant Dissenters in Liverpool, commonly known as Liverpool Collection, 1810, No. 75, and No. 76, with the authorship of these two hymns there is given doubt.

IV. In Dr. Dodd's Christian's Magazine for Dec. 1763 we find a notice who signs himself "Clericus." He had at that time a no. of Miss Scott's hymns with a Dedication to Dr. Dodd, and wishes to see them in print. He then says:—"From the 56 we may "Why droops my soul with guilt oppressed" (Christ, the Great Physician) to the Dec. number of the magazine," "Evil and few our mortal days" (Vanity of human Life), to the Feb. number, 1764, and "Thou God of Glory, Thou God of Love" (Praise for Temporal Blessings), to the April number of the same year. At the close of the last hymn he says in a note:—"N.B. "As some of your Correspondents have sent you some pieces out of the same Book, I hope they will encourage me to send the rest. I undertaken to send you (e.g. that on Gen. xxii. 1) It were to be wished, if they should do the like again, that they would signify whose they are."

The hymn referred to in this note is, "Great God, Thy penetrating eye" (God pervading all things), which appeared in the January number of the Christian Mag., 1796, and was probably never published in any other. All three hymns are in the Yale College MS.

From these facts it is clear that before departing for America Miss Scott allowed copies of her hymns to be made from her MS., and it was mainly from these copies that those of her hymns composed before her marriage were printed in the English hymn-books. None of these hymns date later than 1796. The collections in which they appeared, and through which they came into C. U., were the Bristol Bap. Coll. of Ash and Evans, 1769, and the New Col., &c., by J. Dobell, 1806. In Ash and Evans there are 19 hymns, signed "S.," all of which are in the Yale College MS. under the same first lines except "Was it for man, apostate man?" but this also may possibly be there under another first line. In Dobell there are 20 hymns signed "Scott," of which 17 are in the Yale College MS., 2 are parts of hymns from Ash and Evans, also in that MS., and "Sole Sovereign of the earth and skies," also probably in the MS. under another first line. Of the 90 hymns in the Yale MS., in addition to those annotated elsewhere in this Dictionary (see Index of Authors and Translators), there are also in C. U.:— i. From Ash and Evans's Coll. of Hymns, 1769.

1. God of my life, to Thee belongs. On Recovery from Sickness.
2. Great God, shall I for ever mourn? Covenant-keeping God. From this "Shall e'er the shadow of a change," is taken (st. ii.).
3. When Abram full of sacred awe. For a Fast Day. Sometimes, "Thou Abram, full of sacred awe."
4. Why, O my heart, these anxious cares! Submission.

ii. From J. Dobell's New Selection, &c., 1806.

5. Dare we indulge to wrath and strife? Against Wrath.
6. Eternal Spirit, 'tcas Thy breath. Whitsuntide.
7. For ever shall my fainting soul. Against grieving the Holy Spirit. Sometimes "O Lord, and shall our fainting souls."
8. Great God, Thy penetrating eye. God all and in all.
9. The glitt'ring spangles of the sky. The Mercies of God.
10. Thy bounties, gracious Lord. Offertory.
11. Unless the Lord shall build my house! Family Religion.

Scott, Jacob Richardson, was b. in Boston, Massachusetts, March 1, 1815, and graduated in Arts at Brown University 1836, and in Theology at Newton Theological College, 1842. He entered the Baptist ministry in 1842, and was successively located at Lynchburg, Virginia; Portland, Maine; at Fall River, Massachusetts; and Yonkers, New York. He d. Dec. 10, 1861. His hymn "To Thee this temple we devote" (Dedication of a Place of Worship) was contributed to The Psalmist, 1843. It is found in several American hymn-books. [F. M. B.]

Scott, Thomas, s. of Thomas Scott, Independent Minister at Norwich, brother of Elizabeth Scott (see above), and nephew of Dr. Daniel Scott, was b. at Norwich, 1705. As a young man he kept a school at Wortwell, and preached once a month at Harleston, Norfolk. Then, after a short ministry at Lowestoft, he removed in 1734 to Ipswich as co-pastor with Mr. Baxter of the Presbyterian congregation meeting in St. Nicholas Street Chapel. On the death of his senior in 1740 he became sole pastor. In 1774 he retired to Hapton, and d. there in 1775. He was the author of various poetical works, including:—

(1) The Bible of Cities; or, the Picture of Nineveh Lost, in English Verse, with Notes, 1734; (2) The Book of Job, in English Verse; translated From the original Hebrew, with Remarks, Historical, Critical, and Explanatory, 1771; 2nd ed. 1774; (3) Lyric Poems, Consisting of Hymns. By Thomas Scott, Lond., James Buckland, 1773.

To Dr. Enfield's Hymns for Public Worship, Warrington, 1772, he contributed "All-knowing God, 'tis Thine to know" (p. 43. ii.); "Angels! roll the rock away" (p. 89. i.); "As virtuous as the moon" (p. 85. ii.); and the following:—

1. Absurd and vain attempt to bind. Persecution.
2. Almighty God, whose word was. Mercy.
3. Impostors shrinks from light. Private Judgment, its Rights and Duties.
4. Mark, when temptations winds arise. Meekness.
5. O come all ye sons of Adam and raise. Universal Praise.
6. To uplifted eye and bended knee. Devotion unconfined Virtue.
7. Was pride, alas, e'er made for man? Humility.
8. Why do I thus perplex? Worldly Anxiety reproved.

In his Preface to his Lyric Poems, 1773, he said that the object of his work was:—

"To form a kind of little poetical system of piety and morals. The work opens with natural religion. Thence it proceeds to the mission of Jesus Christ, his sufferings, and the redemption of the world by his death. The Gospel Next is the call to repentance, the nature and blessedness of a christian life, and the entrance into it. These topics are succeeded by the various branches of devotion: after which are ranked the moral duties, personal and relative. Then follow the hopes of mankind in the coming of Jesus Christ to finish his mediatorial kingdom by the general judgment. The whole is closed with a description of the illustrious times, when by means of the everlasting gospel, the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea."

Of Scott's better known hymns this volume contained most of those named above, and:—

9. Hasten, sinner, to be wise. p. 402. ii.
10. When, gracious Father, can complain? The Divine Attributes.

In the Coll. of Hys. and Ps., &c., 1793, by Kippis, Rees, and others, several of the above were repeated, and the following were new:—

11. If high or low our station be. Justice.
12. Happy the souls where gentle bread. Meekness.

Doctrinally Scott might be described as an evangelical Arian. Hymns of his appear in most of the old Presbyterian collections at the close of the last century, and in the early Unitarian collections. Several are still in C. U. in G. Britain and America. [W. D. D.]

Scott, Sir Walter, Bart., was b. in Edinburgh, Aug. 15, 1771, and d. at Abbotsford, Sept. 21, 1832. Although so successful and widely known as a poet, he made no direct contributions to hymnody whatever. His condensed rendering of the "Dies Iræ" (p. 897. ii.), and his hymn of Rebecca in Ivanhoe, "When Israel of the Lord believed" (q.v.), were utilized as hymns for congregational use by others, but were never intended for such a purpose by himself. His work and rank as poet, novelist, and historian are fully set forth in his Life by J. G. Lockhart. [J. J.]

Scottish Hymnody. After the Reformation in Scotland, the revulsion from the Roman Church and its services led at once to the establishment of services in the vernacular. As on the Continent recourse was naturally had to the Psalter, and, as easiest for popular use and also as reckoned nearer to the Hebrew structure, the metrical Psalm instead of the prose Psalm chanted. Metrical Psalmody was the only part of Divine worship in which the congregations in the Scottish Churches vocally joined till at least 1745, and in the three principal sections of Presbyterianism the singing of hymns, other than the Paraphrases of 1741–81, did not become at all general till after 1852 in the United Presbyterian Church, after 1870 in the Established Church, and after 1873 in the Free Church. Consequently the use of the Hebrew Psalter has had a mighty influence upon the Scottish mind and heart.

In tracing the history of Scottish Metrical Psalmody and Hymnody we find six stages:—I. The Preparatory; II. The Psalter of 1564–65; III. The Psalter of 1650; IV. Scripture Songs, 1564–1708; V. The Translations and Paraphrases, 1741–81; VI. The Hymnals.

1. The Preparatory Stage.

The early congregational psalmody of Scotland found its example, and much of its materials in the work begun on the Continent by Marot, and in England by Sternhold.

1. Clement Marot had begun translating the Psalms about 1525, and seems to have completed his first 30 versions in 1529, but did not himself publish them till 1542, at Paris, as Trente Pseaulmes de Dauid. Meantime John Calvin, then in exile at Strasburg, had included in his Aulcuns Pseaumes et Cantiques, 1539, 12 of the Marot versions, but in the form given to them by Pierre Alexandre, who having obtained an copies of Marot's Psalms made considerable alterations in the text, and published the whole 50 along with 15 by various authors as Psalmes de Dauid translatez de plusieurs excellens, &c., Antwerp, 1541. Marot, having fled to Geneva, was induced by Calvin to revise his first 30 versions and add 19, pub. in 1543 as Cinquante Pseaumes (including the Song of Simeon). After Marot's death Theodore de Bem at Calvin's request continued the work, publishing in 1551 Trente-quatre Pseaumes de Dauid, reissued in 1552 with Marot's, as Pseaumes octante trois de Dauid, to which he added 6 in 1554 and 1 in 1555, finishing the work after his return from Lausanne in 1558, the completed Psalter appearing as Les Pseaumes mis en rime Francoise par Clement Marot et Theodore de Bes, Geneva, pour Antoine Vincent, 1562—49 versions being by Marot and the rest by Bem. (See Psalters, French, p. 938. i., and an interesting series of articles on Clement Marot and the Huguenot Psalter, by Major G. A. Crawford in the Musical Times, June to Nov., 1881.) In regard to the Scottish Psalter the influence is seen in the force of example, in the inclusion of French tunes and in the composition of versions in French metres, rather than in any versions directly translated from those by Marot and Bem. [Psalters, French, § 1.]

2. Meantime in England Thomas Sternhold had issued 19 Psalm versions in an undated edition not earlier than 1547, increased to 37 in 1549, and to 44 by the addition of 7 by John Hopkins in 1551. These were carried by the English exiles to Geneva and there included, with 7 versions by William Whittingham, in the One and Fifty Psalmes of Dauid, published in 1556 along with The forme of prayers, &c., used at Geneva (Advocates' Library, Edinburgh). The Rev. William Dunlop, in the Contents to his Collection of Confessions of Faith, &c., vol. ii., Edinburgh, 1723, says that his reprint of The forme of prayers follows the Genevan edition of 1556. This edition, which is now lost, probably contained the Psalter enlarged by the 9 versions by Whittingham and 2 by Pullain contained in the Psalter of 1560, now in Christ Church Library, Oxford. The next Anglo-Genevan edition now extant (St. Paul's Cathedral Library) is the Foure Score and Seuen Psalmes of Dauid, Geneva, 1561, which adds to the 51 of 1556 the 9 by Whittingham, and 2 by Pullain, mentioned above, with 25 new ones, (including Ps. c.) by Kethe. Of this a revised edition was issued in the same year, probably printed in England (Britwell Library), which formed the basis of the Scottish Psalter of 1564–65. [For full details, see Old Version, p. 887. i., §§ II., III.]

2. The earliest Psalm versions used in Scotland were those included in the collection sometimes called the Dundee Psalms, better known as the Gude and Godlie Ballatis, entitled, in the edition of 1578, Ane Compendious buik of godlie Psalmes and spirituall Sangis. This collection seems, from the notice of David Calderwood, the Church historian, to have been published, at least in a rudimentary form, before 1546, but the earliest edition now extant is represented by a copy in the possession of Patrick Anderson, Esq., Blackness House, Dundee, who has kindly given a collation of it. The copy wants titlepage, and begins with folio 5 at the words "all be condempnit" in the article "of our Baptisme," but is otherwise perfect. From the fact of its containing an advertisement titlepage of a Scottish Psalter of 1566, and also a song prohibited by the General Assembly of 1568, it may be dated 1568. It does not contain the last 5 ballads of the 1578 ed.; ending instead with the prohibited song, Wilsone Fortune. From the copy in the Britwell Library of the earliest perfect edition, that of 1578, a careful reprint was edited in 1868 by the late Dr. Laing (see Appendix to this article).

The ed. of 1578 is in four parts:—I. The Catechisme. This includes a prologue, versions of the Ten Commandments, the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, 2 graces at meals, and another on the Lord's Supper, concluding with 6 Graces—in all 12 pieces, 6 of which are from the German. II. Spirituall Sangis, 16 in number, of which 11 are from the German and 1 from the Latin. III. Ballatis of the Auld Lawe, 10 in number, all from the German. IV. Ballatis of the Nativitie of Christ with other new gathered Ballatis Translatit out of Inuthrickian Tuthorum to be sung. These include 24 Psalm versions—of which 13 are from the German—3 hymns from the German and 1 from the Latin, besides miscellaneous songs, ballads, and 36 other pieces, in all 66. The collection as a whole thus includes 117 pieces, of which 24 at least are from the German (some being very close and others very free versions), and 1 from the Latin. Some of the German versions are of great merit, and full of poetic beauty. Reading the anti-papal satires one does not wonder at the rage they excited among the Roman ecclesiastics. Four pieces very closely resemble four of Bishop Coverdale's Goostly Psalmes, c. 1539, and were probably translated by him. The whole collection is reprinted as a poetical miscellany. Dr. Laing would assign the translations and Psalm versions to John Wedderburn (written probably 1538–40), and a number of the ballads to his brother Robert (see Wodrow, If the collection was printed in book form before 1559, we may conjecture that it would not contain more than 40 p. 151 of the edition of 1819. The "augmentation" in 1568 and 1578 seems to have been by various hands.

4. From these beginnings, Scottish, English and Continental, arose the Psalmody and subsequently the Hymnody, which have formed the sole part of Divine worship in the Churches of Scotland in which the congregations have joined for more than 300 years. The first result of importance was the Psalter of 1564-65.

II. The Psalter of 1564-65.

1. The Anglo-Genevan Psalters having been imported into Scotland, the General Assembly of 1561 ordered the completion of the Psalter. The Committee appointed, unlike the editors of the English Psalter of 1562, took the whole of the 87 versions of the Anglo-Genevas of 1561, as these were given in the revised edition printed in England in the same year. Three versions were :—

37 by Sternhold, 1548 (Ps. 1–37, 39, 50, 73, 78, 79, 82, 83, 88, 89, 90, 91, 94, 100, 103, 104, 106, 107, 113, 114, 120, 121, 123, 124, 125, 126, 128, 130, 133, 134, 136, 137, 138, 146, 147), to which were added at Geneva, 18 by Whittingham (Ps. 38, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 48, 49, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 74, 75, 76, 77, 80, 81, 84, 85, 86, 87, 92, 93, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 101, 102, 105, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 122, 127, 129, 131, 132, 135, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 148, 149, 150), probably in 1556; 2 by Pullain (Ps. 140, 142, probably in 1556); and 25 by Kethe (Ps. 27, 31, 33, 34, 36, 40, 47, 97, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 111, 112, 113, 122, 135, 136, 145, 146, 148). They then added the 15 by Craig and 6 by Pont, noted below. The remaining 41 versions were taken from the English Psalter of 1562, as follows :—2 by Sternhold (Ps. 18, 32), 1 by Hopkins (Ps. 22), 1 by Norton (Ps. 35, 69, 74), 34 by Hopkins (Ps. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, 29, 30, 37, 39, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 70, 71, 72, 73, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 108, 109, 110, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 143, 144, 147, 149, 150), and 5 by Norton (Ps. 35, 69, 74, 77, 84, 85, 88, 89, 90, 91, 94, 100, 103, 104, 106, 107, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150), and 2 by Morkaut (Ps. 120, 122).

The complete version appeared as :—

The Forme of Prayers and Ministration of the Sacraments, &c., used in the English Church at Geneva, approved and received by the Churche of Scotland, whereunto besides that was in the former bokes, are also added sundrie other prayers, with the whole Psalmes of David in Englishe metre. Printed at Edinburgh by Robert Lekprevik, MDLXIIII.

Of this there is a copy in the Corpus Christi Library, Oxford, and another identical, but dated 1565, in the Advocates' Library, Edinburgh. The Advocates' Library, it may also be noted, possesses a copy of the Forme of Prayers printed by Lekprevik in 1562, but this does not contain the Psalter.

2. This constituted the first Scottish Psalter properly so called. Regarding it the General Assembly on Dec. 25, 1564, ordained that every minister, reader, and exhorter should have and use a copy. The most important reprints of it are those of 1596, 1611, 1615, 1629, 1634, and 1635.

The Psalms are all intitled with the names of their authors. The numbers are as follows :—To Sternhold are ascribed 49 (including the 136th), to Hopkins 39, to Kethe 16, to Whittingham 18, to Norton 5, to Craig 15, to Morton 2, to Pont 6, to Marckant 2, and to Pullain 2, the 36th being unascribed. Half of these (Ps. 18 and 45 are by Hopkins, and Ps. 23 by Whittingham, thus leaving Sternhold 20, Hopkins 37, Whittingham 17, Norton 5, Craig 15, Morton 2, Pont 6, Marckant 2, and the English. Psalter of 1562 are in all 44, but of these Whittingham's 23rd and 44th, and Kethe's 100th, were added as alternative readings to the 24th and Craig's 130th, to the 1561 and later editions of the English Psalter. The 1564 Anglo-Genevas are those which were given, those of the 1561 Anglo-Genevas from the Bridwell Library copy, and those of the 1564-65 Scottish Psalter from the edition of 1565.

i. Versions from the Foure score and xviiim Psalmes, 1561, not included in the English Psalter :—

By William Kethe.
27. The Lord my light and helth will be
36. The wicked doeth of the ill man
44. Let all Kithe with thy clap thy hand ad rejoyce
61. Lord, in thy wrath rebuke me not
66. But let O Deyr : a frenged Kithe
68. Although my soule bathe sharply bene
70. Make haste, o God, to set me free
85. O Lord, thou leaved hast thy land
90. O God of my salvation
91. O Lord, that hast been our refuge
91. Who so with fol intent and minde
94. O Lord, since vengeles doeth to thee
101. Of mercie and of judgement bothe
138. With my whole heart the lord now praise will I
142. Unto the lord I lowd did call.

By William Whittingham.
67. Our God that is lord
71. My trust, o Lord, in thee
115. Not unto us, o Lord
129. Of Israel this may now be the song.

By John Pullain.
140. Sing unto the Lord.

ii. Versions first pub. in the Scottish Psalter, 1564 :—

By John Craig (see Ps. 130, see above).
24. To God the earth doeth appertayne
46. O God to me thy mercie shewe
75. O God, lauds and praise
102. Lord to myne humble suite giue care
119. Lord, I thee call
130. O God, behelde, my heart and tongue
140. The Lord maste high, unto my Lord thus spake
117. O praise the Lord, ye nations all.
118. Glue to the Lord all praise and honour
119. Lord, I thee call, my God alone
143. From the perverse and wicked wight
141. On thee I call, 3 Lord, therefore
143. Oh, heare my prayer, Lord
145. O Lord thou art my God and King.

By Robert Pont.
87. Be mercifull to me, O God
89. Of mercies great, my God of might
97. In Jury land God is well knowne
80. O Pastor of Israel, like sheepe that dost leade
81. O God our strength most comfortable
85. God be thy grace.

Of these authors Craig, Kethe, and Pont were Scotsmen. Until 1635 the melodies only of the proper tunes were printed, the harmonies under Adam Blair's direction in that edition with the tunes harmonised in four parts. Besides the proper tunes printed with the text of the Psalms, the edition of 1562 contained 3 Common Tunes (i.e. tunes which could be sung to any Psalm of like metre), and 14 in 1564, 3 in 1565, 1 in 1615, 1 in 1634, and 14 in 1635, making in all 35. Of the 118 Proper tunes 51 are Genevan, 26 French, 4 German, 21 English, and 16 Scottish; while of the 31 Common tunes 7 are English and 24 Scottish, the 3 tunes in Reports being Scottish. The 1635 tunes were reprinted in the complete reprint of the Psalter of 1635, edited in 1861 by the Rev. Neil Livingston, D.D., cited in the Appendix to this article.

3. Although this Psalter continued in use till the present version was issued in 1650, yet in the meantime an attempt was made to impose upon the Scottish Church the version published at Oxford in 1631 as The Psalmes of King David, translated by King James. This version was in great measure the work of William Alexander, Earl of Stirling (see p. 99, i.). Under the authority of Charles I. an injunction was published by the Scottish Privy Council in December 1634 that no other Psalms should be printed or imported, Alexander having been on Dec. 26, 1627, granted the exclusive right of publishing it for 31 years. On account of the opposition it created he in great measure rewrote the version. As thus reprinted at London by Thomas Harper in 1636 it was bound up and issued with Laud's Service Book of 1637, the forcible introduction of which caused an uprising of popular feeling over the whole of Scotland, which at once overturned all the ecclesiastical schemes of Charles, and led to the restored

General Assembly at Glasgow, 1638. The monopoly of course simultaneously ceased. This version, while possessing felicities, is often harsh and stiffed, and the circumstances of its introduction made it altogether unacceptable. We would add that Harper also reprinted the 1630 text in 12mo in 1637, and that in the British Museum (xxx Reg, 18 B. xvi.), there are preserved six metrical versions in Scotch by King James of 30 Psalms, Ecclesiastes xii., the Lord's Prayer, and the Song of Moses.

III. The Psalter of 1650.

1. The desire for Uniformity of Worship between England and Scotland having led to the calling of the Westminster Assembly in 1643, one part of the work recommended to it by Parliament was the preparation of a Psalter for use in both kingdoms. The Lords recommended the 3rd ed. 1646, of the version of William Barton, published in 1644 as The Book of Psalms in Metre, and finally revised in 1654; and the Commons the version of Francis Rous, originally published in 1641 and reissued in 1643 as The Psalmes of David in English Meeter set forth by Francis Rous. The latter being preferred by the Assembly was revised by it and published by authority of the House of Commons as The Psalms of David in English Meeter, London, printed by Miles Flesher, for the Company of Stationers, 1646.

2. The General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, not being satisfied with the Westminster revision, in 1647 appointed 4 persons to further revise it, viz., John Adamson to revise Ps. 1–40; Thomas Crauford, 41–80; John Row, 81–120; and John Nevoy, 121–150. In revising they were enjoined to use the versions of Zachary Boyd and Sir William Mure of Rowallan, as well as the Psalter of 1564-65. In 1648 their amended version was sent to Presbyteries to examine and report, and in 1649 a final Committee was appointed, consisting of James Hamilton, John Smith, Hugh MacKail, Robert Traill, George Hutcheson, and Robert Lowrie to examine these reports and the corrections sent in, and to report to the Commission, which was authorised "to conclude and establish the Paraphrase, and to publish and make the same for publick use." The Commission accordingly thereafter issued :—

1650. The Psalms of David in Meeter. Newly translated and diligently compared with the Original Text and former Translations: more plain, smooth, and agreeable to the Text than any heretofore. Allowed by the Authority of the Generall Assembly of the Kirk of Scotland, and appointed to be sung in Congregations and Families. Edinburgh, Printed by Evan Tyler, Printer to the King's Most Excellent Majesty, 1650, authorising it as the only version to be used after May 1, 1650. And, it may be added, it has survived all proposals to modernise it, save in orthography, and remains to this day the only version of the Psalms used by Presbyterian Scotland.

3. Though based on Rous not much remains as first versified by him. Even of the edition of 1646 hardly a version is retained without considerable alteration. In several instances the compilers adopted remote from the 1564, while in many cases they have incorporated stanzas and couplets from Zachary Boyd's version, and occasionally have taken lines and phrases from Sir William Mure and from the Earl of Stirling. William Barton's complaint that much of the version was stolen from him seems quite groundless.

As issued in 1650 the version may be called rude, but its associations have endeared it to the Scottish heart, and its faithfulness, vigour and terseness cannot be denied. These qualities become manifest when it is compared with other versions which, when faithful, have been failures, and when successful have been so expanded and adopted as to have ceased to be faithful. Under "The Lord's my Shepherd, I'll not want," will be found a note on a typical version.

4. Although the Gaelic Psalms have a limited interest, a few details are necessary to the completeness of our work :—

The first complete version of the Psalms in Gaelic was that by the Rev. Robert Kirk, of Balquhidder, pub. in 1684. In 1659 the first 24 Psalms had been published by ministers appointed by the Synod of Argyle, and in 1694 the Synod of Argyle and Lord Neil Campbell had the Psalms in Gaelic were instructed to have their version revised by that Synod and forthwith printed. In 1694 the General Assembly recommended that in Gaelic speaking congregations this version, printed in 1659, should be used. In 1725 the Synod of Argyle took the Psalter of 1659. In 1735 the version of 1694 was revised by the Rev. Alexander Macfarlane, of Moffett, and published at Glasgow, along with the Gaelic version of the 45 Paraphrases of 1751, by authority of the Assembly of 1742. This version was again revised by the Rev. Thomas Ross, and reissued in 1807. The Rev. Dr. John Smith, of Campbeltown, rewrote Macfarlane's version, and published it at Edinburgh in 1787, adding to it versions of the 47 Paraphrases of 1781, and the Hymns of Dr. Watts (1719). In 1813 Dr. Smith revised a revised edition was prepared by the Committee of the General Assembly, and published in 1826 at Edinburgh—including the 47 Paraphrases of 1781—as the only version to be used in public worship.

IV. Scripture Songs, 1564–1708.

1. The Scottish Psalter of 1564-65 did not contain any Spiritual Songs, but in 1573 6 were given, 10 in 1595, and 14 in 1634. They do not seem to have received direct ecclesiastical sanction, and none of them were transferred to the Psalter of 1650 or to the Translations and Paraphrases, 1741–81.

2. By the same Act of General Assembly, 1647, which appointed John Adamson and others to revise Rous's version of the Psalms, it was recommended "that Mr. Zachary Boyd be at the paires to translate the other Scripturall Songs in meeter, and to report his travels also to the Commission of the Assembly, that, after their examination thereof, they may send the same to Presbyteries, to be there considered till the next Generall Assembly."

Again, in 1648, the General Assembly recommended—

"to Master John Adamson and to Thomas Crawford, to revise the labours of Mr. Zachary Boyd, upon the other Scripturall Songs, and to prepare a report thereof," to be given in to the Commission, and by them to be examined and transmitted to the Assembly of 1649. But on second probably of the troublous times nothing further was then done.

3. The question, however, came up again in 1696, when the General Assembly enjoined their Commission to revise the Spirituall Songs of Patrick Simson (p. 1088, ii.). Accordingly, after revision, the Commission recommended them for private use. In 1704 the Assembly renewed this recommendation, and in 1705 enjoined the Commission to revise them for public use. The Commission accordingly appointed two Committees, at Edinburgh and Glasgow, who united in advising—

1023

1024

"That only such of the said printed copie as are purely Scriptural Songs should be recommended for publick use."

The Glasgow Committee (of which Simson was a member) proposed the addition of some of his SS. versions, and suggested that in all there should be given complete versions of Canticles and Lamentations, with 15 Old Testament and 10 New Testament Songs. In 1706 the Assembly recommended—

"to the several Presbyteries of the Church to endeavour to promote the use of these Songs in private families," and recommended Presbyteries to buy copies of the edition of 1686 to compare with the amendments to be sent to them by the Committee of revision appointed by the Commission. In 1707 the Assembly sent the Songs again to the Committee for further revision, and enjoined Presbyteries which had not yet reported to report to the General Assembly of 1708. The Assembly of 1708 accordingly appointed

"their Commission, instantly to consider the printed verses of the Old Testament Songs, with the remarks of the Presbyteries thereupon," and authorised them

"to publish and emit it for the publick use of the Church" as in the case of the Psalter of 1650. And further

"seeing there are many copies of the said versifying on the author's hand, It is recommended to ministers and others to buy the same for private use in the meantime."

By the time that the stock of the 1686 edition was exhausted all idea of issuing the selection authorised for public worship seems to have been abandoned, and no trace of such an issue can be discovered.

V. The Translations and Paraphrases, 1741-1781.

1. These efforts to provide a wider range of subjects in Praise having failed to attain the object sought, the matter was again brought up by an overture to the General Assembly of 1741, which referred it to the Commission. In 1742 the Assembly appointed a Committee to "make a collection of Translations into English Verse or Meter, of passages of the Holy Scriptures, or recitals in Performances of that kind from any that shall translate them," and desired the Presbytery of Dundee or Synod of Angus (whence the overture seems to have come) to transmit to this Committee "what Collections they have made or shall make." This Committee having made no report the Assembly of 1744 renewed their appointment and added some others to their number. They having appealed for help to the Presbyterie of the Church, received materials "partly furnished by ministers of this Church," and embodied those in a Draft entitled Translations and Paraphrases of several Passages of Sacred Scripture, which the Assembly of 1745 ordered to be printed and sent to Presbyteries that they might report. Presbyteries being engrossed with the Jacobite movement had to be again enjoined to report by the Assemblies of 1746, 1747, and 1748.

Thus the Metropolitan Presbytery of Edinburgh after revising Nos. 1-4, on March 27 and April 3, 1744, did not resume their revision till 1748, when on Jan. 27, March 26, and April 27 they went over the remainder.

The Assembly of 1749 authorised the Committee to print the Paraphrases as amended and send copies to Presbyteries that they might report. None having done so the Assembly of 1750 transmitted the amended Paraphrases to them. The Assembly of 1751 again transmitted them to Presbyteries which had not reported; adding—

"in the meantime, the Assembly recommends the said Psalmody to be used in private families."

After this Presbyteries were again and again enjoined to report, but no further Act was passed.

2. The collection of 1745, though thus reprinted with verbal alterations, was not enlarged in 1749. It consists of 45 Paraphrases (but no Hymns), all of which were afterwards included in the collection of 1781, 23 being by Isaac Watts, 5 by Philip Doddridge, and 2 by N. Tate; while 3 have been attributed to Hugh Blair, 2 to William Robertson, and 1 to Thomas Randall — leaving 8 unascribed.

3. Though never authorised for use in public worship the 1745-51 collection had been introduced into some congregations, and in 1775 the Synod of Glasgow and Ayr overtured the Assembly to sanction it for public use. Instead of simply granting this, the Assembly appointed a Committee to revise and add to it. The Committee not having made any report the Assembly of 1780 added some new members to their number. At length in 1781 they presented a Draft, the Advertisement to which thus describes their work:—

"All the Translations and Paraphrases which had appeared in the former Collection are here, in substance, preserved. But they have been revised with care. Many alterations, and, it is hoped, improvements, are made in them. Several additional Translations and Paraphrases, furnished either by members of the Committee, or Ministers with whom they corresponded, are added. The whole is now arranged according to the order in which the several poems lie in the books of Scripture. A few Hymns, taken chiefly from Dr Watts's collection as it appeared will be generally acceptable."

On May 26, 1781, the report of the Committee was given in and read to the Assembly. The Committee were then renewed, and some members added and appointed to report their opinion of the printed Draft, at a future diet of Assembly. Accordingly, on June 1, 1781, the Assembly appointed

"those Translations and Paraphrases to be transmitted to Presbyteries, by the Committee of Bills, in order that they may report their opinion concerning them to the ensuing General Assembly; and, in the meantime, allows this Collection of sacred Poems to be used in public worship in congregations, where the Presbyteries shall judge proper; and, in the meantime renews the appointment of their Committee; with powers to judge of any corrections or alterations of these Poems that may be suggested previous to the transmission of the same; and with directions to cause a proper number of copies of the Translations and Paraphrases, to be printed, for the consideration of Presbyteries, and for public use."

The Assembly further appointed John Dickson, the printer to the Church, to print and publish it, and gave him the sole right of doing so for 5 years; his right being renewed in 1786 for 9 years, and in 1795 for 14 years. The Committee accordingly, after introducing a very considerable number of verbal alterations, published the collection in the same year for public use. After this the Paraphrases were brought before the Assembly in 1786, 1795 and 1805, but only for the purpose of confirming the right of printing.

2. Thus unlike the Psalters, the Paraphrases of 1781 have never received the formal sanction of the Church. They however still continue to be used in the various sections of Scottish Presbyterianism, and some of them far beyond its bounds.

It may be noted that while in England their use in hymnals other than Presbyterian has been comparatively limited, only 12 of the 45 having been used in America, they have extensively used by all denominations, the five above, with Nos. 1, 11, 16, being special favourites. As they have come into use in many varied forms, they are all annotated throughout this Dictionary.

The estimates taken of these Paraphrases have varied according to the ecclesiastical and spiritual standpoint of their critics. A common opinion has been that the collection of 1745 was too evangelical for the dominant Moderate party in 1781, and that while gaining in smoothness the Paraphrases lost in vigour and spirituality. As a rule, however, the amendments of 1781 have been improvements. Of the Scottish contributions some are exceedingly good, others possess the merit of being faithful to the text, while some are poor both in thought and expression. Upon the whole the collection is hardly what might have been expected from the gifts and graces of the ministers of the Church of Scotland from 1741 to 1781. For details of the authorship of the Paraphrases, the names of the Committees who compiled them, &c., see the article Scottish Translations and Paraphrases.

VI. The Hymnals.

In Sections following, I.-iv., are given the authorised hymnals of the Established, Free, United Presbyterian, and Evangelical Union Churches. In Sections v.-vii. are given the principal collections of Scottish origin used in the Baptist, Congregational and Scottish Episcopal Churches. Section viii. contains lists of the Private Collections used in the first four Churches; the less important Baptist, Congregational and Episcopal Collections; and hymnals outside these seven denominations.

I. The Established Church of Scotland.—After the publication of the Translations and Paraphrases of 1781, nothing further was done till 1807, when the General Assembly being overtured anent "the improvement of the Psalmody" appointed a Committee to consider "the need of additional Psalm Versions and Paraphrases." In 1811 they were authorised to print their Draft which contained 17 entire Psalms and 21 Psalm portions and Paraphrases. In 1814 they were authorised to reprint their amended draft, containing 19 entire Psalms and 24 Psalm portions and Paraphrases, for transmission to Presbyteries. In 1820 the Committee were authorised to reprint 19 of the 1814 collection together with 20 or 30 others, and in 1821 Presbyteries were enjoined to report on this new collection, which contained 32 Psalm versions, 17 Paraphrases and 2 Doxologies. In 1822 a Committee was appointed to examine these reports, but no hymnal was authorised or issued. Again, in 1827, a Committee was appointed "for enlarging the collection of Translations and Paraphrases from Sacred Scripture, and otherwise improving the Psalmody," but the matter dropped without result. The Assembly having been overtured in 1835, appointed a Committee on Psalmody, and in 1847 a second on Paraphrases. These Committees, with additional members, were united in 1850. In 1852 the Assembly having been overtured anent "an authorized collection of sacred hymns" referred the matter to the Committee. They presented a draft of 123 hymns in 1854 which was not sanctioned, though 25 of them, with By. Ken's morning and evening hymns, were reissued in 1855. A new Committee was appointed in 1855 (enlarged in 1857), who presented in 1856 a draft of 22, in 1859 of 33, and in 1860 of 85 hymns. A special committee was then appointed to revise it, and the draft in 1861 became 97, but as allowed in 1861 as Hymns for Public Worship selected by the Committee of the General Assembly on Psalmody, it contained 89 hymns, 22 doxologies, 3 thanksgivings, 2 dismissions, Hosanna, and 4 anectasa. After a revision in 1864, in which 22 hymns were omitted and 53 added, the need of a better selection with less altered texts was made evident, and accordingly what was practically a new Committee was appointed in 1895. They presented successive drafts to the Assembly in 1868, 1869 and 1870, retaining finally from the 1864 revision only 64 hymns, and these practically restored to their original forms. In 1870 the Committee was authorised "to revise the Hymnal, and thereafter to publish an edition for the use of such congregations as may wish to avail themselves of it." It was accordingly published in Sept. 1870 as The Scottish Hymnal, containing 200 hymns, selected with much judgment and taste. Having come into very general use, it was after a time felt that an enlargement was needed. The Committee accordingly in 1882 suggested the preparation of an Appendix, and in May 1883 presented a draft to the Assembly. This after being sent to all the ministers of the Church for revision during 1883 was sanctioned by the Assembly in 1884 with hymns 201-256, and an Appendix of 86 hymns for children. Editions of the Hymnal have also been published with these additional hymns incorporated in their proper places, in all 442.

In 1862 the Assembly's Committee on Psalmody issued a Hymn Tune Book, which was enlarged in 1865 and incorporated in 1868 in The Church of Scotland Psalm and Hymn Tune Book. This was, as the Committee mention, the first authorised collection of tunes issued since 1650. In 1872 it was reissued, revised and enlarged by the Committee under Mr. Musical editorship of William Henry Monk. The Scottish Hymnal has been issued with the tunes as a text book, and also with fixed tunes, the complete tunes being issued in a cut form to the Psalms, Paraphrases and Scottish Hymnal in one volume. The enlarged Scottish Hymnal of 1884 has also been issued (in 1885) with music ed. by Albert Lister Peace.

i. The Free Church.—After the formation of the Free Church by the Disruption of 1843 no steps were taken to provide a hymnal till 1866, when, after considerable discussion, the General Assembly appointed a Committee to consider the subject. In 1869 the Assembly authorised its Committee to select from and add to the Translations and Paraphrases of 1781. In 1870 they presented a Draft to the Assembly which was sent for further revision to Presbyteries in 1871, sanctioned by the Assembly in 1872, and issued in 1873 as Psalm-Version, Paraphrases, and Hymns. It contains 21 psalm-versions and 123 hymns, including 40 selections from the Translations and Paraphrases of 1781. For this a tune book was published by the Psalmody Committee as The Scottish Psalmody in 1873. This collection being found rather meagre, a Committee of enquiry was appointed in 1877 on whose report a Committee was appointed in 1878 to revise and enlarge it. This Committee presented a Draft to the Assembly of 1880 which, after being revised by the Presbyteries of the Church, was sanctioned by the Assembly of 1881 and issued in 1882 as the Free Church Hymnbook. It contains 387 hymns (including 23 selections from the Paraphrases of 1781) and 30 scripture sentences. The italics in the larger edition without music are by the Rev. James Bonar, M.A., of Greenock, and are among the most accurate and useful yet issued. The Committee having been authorised to set tunes to the hymns, engaged Edward John Hopkins as musical editor, and under his revision the complete book appeared in 1882 as The Free Church Hymnbook with Tunes. One of the best recent hymnals, it owes much of its completeness and excellence as to hymns and music to the energy, good taste, and musical knowledge of the Rev. Professor A. B. Bruce of Glasgow, the Convener of the Committee. Under the revision of Mr. Hopkins the Psalmody Committee then proceeded to set tunes to the Psalter of 1650, the Paraphrases of 1781 and portions of the prose Psalter, and their work was sanctioned by the Assembly of 1883, and published as The Scottish Psalter. Being the Psalms in Metre, with the Paraphrases, and a Selection of the Prose Psalms. With appropriate Tunes and Chants, 1883.

iii. The United Presbyterian Church.—The United Presbyterian Church was formed in 1847 by the union of the United Associate (Secession) and the Relief Churches.

1. As early as 1748 the Associate Synod had requested Ralph Erskine to versify the Songs of Scripture. In 1752 a Committee was appointed to revise his work, but it never met, and his death taking place shortly afterwards the Committee was dissolved in 1753. In May 1811 the session of Well Street Church, London (Dr. Alex. Waugh) asked leave to compile and use a collection, and in September the Synod appointed a Committee to consider the question. In 1812, on the recommendation of this Committee, the Synod formally permitted the use of the Translations and Paraphrases of 1781, and appointed a small committee to compile a new collection. No collection was however thereafter issued. Again in 1842 a Committee was appointed to prepare a collection of Paraphrases and Hymns. They presented a Draft in 1844, and the same, further revised, in 1846, but in the prospect of the Union of 1847 nothing more was done.

2. In 1795 the Synod of the Relief Church was overtured to enlarge the Psalmody, and on May 20, 1794, a Committee of eight was appointed which recommended the selection compiled in 1786 by the Rev. James Stewart, of Anderston, Glasgow, with the additional selections made by the Rev. Patrick Hutcheson of Paisley, as united by the Rev. James Dun of Glasgow, all members of the Committee. This collection was sanctioned by the Synod on the 22nd, and forthwith published as Sacred Songs and Hymns on various Passages of Scripture approved by the Synod of Relief (Glasgow: J. Memmes, 1794). It contains 231 hymns and paraphrases, and is Dun's Collection (Dun having taken Nos. 1–180 from Stewart, and 181–231 with the preface from Hutcheson) with a new title-page. In 1825 a Committee was appointed to prepare a new selection, who were authorised to print their work in 1831. It was finally sanctioned in 1833, and issued as Hymns adapted for the Worship of God, Selected and sanctioned by the Synod of Relief (Glas.: Blackie & Son, 1835). It was an excellent collection for the time at which it was compiled.

Such was the position of their Hymnody at the Union of 1847.

3. In 1847 the Synod of the United Presbyterian Church appointed a Hymnal Committee, and in 1848 authorised them to prepare a hymnal on the basis of the Relief Hymnbook of 1833 and the United Associate Draft Hymnbook of 1846. They presented their first draft in 1848. In 1851 their final draft was approved, and they were empowered, after considering suggestions, to publish it in time for the next Synod. The Synod of 1852 accordingly sanctioned it as the Hymnbook of the United Presbyterian Church (Edin.: W. Oliphant & Co.), with 468 hymns and 23 doxologies. As it contained many hymns which never became popular, and had introduced many alterations into the text of the hymns, a Committee was appointed in 1870 to revise it. In 1873 they were authorised to send their Draft to Presbyteries, and in 1874 to Sessions, and in 1875 were empowered to publish their final draft. The Synod of 1876 accordingly sanctioned it as The Presbyterian Hymnal. In 1874 the Psalmody Committee were authorised to set tunes to the hymns, and in 1875 engaged Henry Stuart as musical editor, the completed work, with fixed tunes, being issued in 1877 as The Presbyterian Hymnal with Accompanying Tunes, and containing 300 hymns, 18 doxologies, and 24 scripture sentences. Considering its size it is one of the best modern Hymnals, both as regards hymns and tunes, and their union. Under the same editor the Committee then prepared tunes for the Psalter of 1650, and Paraphrases of 1781, and issued their work in 1878 as The Presbyterian Psalter with Accompanying Tunes. In 1887 Notes on the individual hymns, by Mr. James Thin of Edinburgh, were added to the large type ed. of the words, together with additional scripture sentences numbered 25 to 133.

IV. The Evangelical Union.

The Evangelical Union was formed at Kilmarnock in 1843 by James Morison of Kilmarnock, Robert Morison of Bathgate, A. C. Rutherford of Falkirk, and John Guthrie of Kendal, who had all been ministers of the United Associate Church in those places, but had been deposed by the Synod for the views they held on the extent of the Atonement of Christ. In doctrine they are closely allied to the Wesleyans, and in polity to the Congregationalists. Their first Hymnal was prepared by a Committee appointed in 1852, and was issued in 1856 as The Evangelical Union Hymnbook. A desire having arisen for a more select and accurate collection, a committee was appointed in 1874 to prepare a new hymnal, and their work was issued in 1878, as The Evangelical Union Hymnal. This consists of 420 hymns, with names of authors and dates of publication affixed, 15 doxologies and 40 chants. It also contains an Index of Authors, and, what is almost a unique feature, a list of original readings where the author's text has been departed from. These were prepared by the Rev. William Dunlop, of Glasgow, the editor, the selection of hymns being made by the Committee as a whole. It is altogether a well selected and well edited collection.

V. Baptist.

The earliest Baptist Church in Scotland now existing is that of Keiss, founded in 1750. No. 1 was composed for it; Nos. 2 and 3 are the most important of the other Baptist Hymnals.

1. A Collection of Hymns and Spiritual Songs. By Sir William Sinclair, Minister of the Gospel of God, and Servant of Jesus Christ (1751). Contains 60 hymns by Sir William Sinclair, Bart., of Dunbeath, who while residing in his castle of Keiss in Caithness, formed a church there, of which he was pastor from 1750 to 1763, at which date he left Keiss and went to Edinburgh. It is still occasionally used in Keiss Baptist Church, and was reprinted, unaltered, by Peter Reid, Wick, in 1870.

2. A Collection of Christian Songs and Hymns in Three Books (Glas.: D. Niven, 1786), containing in all 275 hymns. It took its final shape in the second ed., pub. by Niven in 1792 as Psalms, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, in Three Books, with 290 hymns and an appendix of 28. To the ed. of 1810 (Edin.: J. Hay & Co.) a supplement of 33 hymns was added. The last form was Psalms, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs in Three Books, Selected for use in the Scotch Baptist Churches. A new impression, with enlarged Supplement (Glas.: A. Liddell & Co., 1841). This contains the 290 hymns and appendix of 28 from the ed. of 1795, a supplement, numbered 321–363, from the ed. of 1813, and a second supplement numbered 364–449 from the ed. of 1830; and gives names of authors of hymns.

3. The Christian Hymnal. A Collection of Hymns for Divine Worship. Selected and arranged by Rev. Oliver Platt, 1871. Contains 437 hymns and 9 scripture selections for chanting, with authors' names and dates, dates of publication, &c. The compiler of this excellent collection is minister of Storie Street Baptist Church, Paisley.

VI. Congregationalist.

Congregationalism of the English type was introduced into Scotland in 1798. Its principal collections of Scottish origin are—

1. A Collection of Hymns for the use of the Tabernacles in Scotland (Edin.: J. Ritchie, 1800), with 320 hymns. Probably compiled by the Rev. John Aikman of Edinburgh, and Rev. George Cowie, of Montrose. In the 1807 and later eds. (13th ed. 1844), entitled A Collection of Hymns for the use of Christian Churches, and enlarged to 920 hymns. This collection is not of great value.

2. A Selection of Hymns for Public Worship: Intended primarily for the Church in Albion Street Chapel, Glasgow (Glas.: R. Williamson, 1805). Compiled by Dr. Wardlaw, with 222 hymns. In the third, 1811, and later eds. it was entitled, A Selection of Hymns for Public Worship, by Ralph Wardlaw. A supplement was added in 1817, making the number in all 405 (13th ed. 1840). Of these 11 are by Dr. Wardlaw. The book seems to have attained its popularity by the influence of its compiler's reputation rather than by its own merits.

3. A Collection of Hymns from the Best Authors, adapted both for Public and Family Worship. Selected and arranged by Greville Ewing and George Payne (Glas.: A. Duncan and M. Ogle, 1814, 11th ed., 1846). Ewing was minister of West Nile Street Congregational Church, Glasgow, had been originally a minister in the Established Church, and was one of the founders of Congregationalism in Scotland; while Payne was then minister of the Congregational Church meeting in Bernard's Rooms, Edinburgh. It contains 647 hymns and doxologies. It is not a collection of great merit.

4. A Selection of Hymns for Public Worship in Christian Churches. By William Lindsay Alexander, D.D. (Edin.: H. Paton, 1849). This hymn-book (commonly called The Augustine Hymn Book, from the name of Dr. Alexander's church) as first pub., contained 353 hymns and doxologies. Various changes were made in the 2nd, 1858, and subsequent eds., the 5th ed. of 1872 containing 616 hymns, doxologies, and anthems. Of these 7 are original hymns and 3 translations by Dr. Alexander. While his contributions are excellent and useful, the collection as a whole is disappointing.

5. Hymns of Faith and Life, collected and edited by the Rev. John Hunter, Trinity Congregational Church, Glasgow, 1880. This contains 693 hymns, Nos. 686–693 being words of psalms, canticles and anthems.

This is a book of very different type from any of the preceding, being pronouncedly modern, meant as the expression of "the new theology" and "progressive Christianity," and having a closer affinity to the collection of Mr. Page Hopps (vide Sect. xiv., No. 2) than to any other Scottish collection. A considerable proportion of the pieces are really antagonistic religious verse, and the compilation as a whole is a curious one, being gathered from a wide circle of Scottish and American authors, but even less suited for public worship than the doctrinal hymns in the earlier Congregational works.

1028 SCOTTISH HYMNODY

VII. Scottish Episcopal.

1. General.—No attempt was made to provide an authorised Hymnal for general use till 1856, when, upon representations from the Diocese of Edinburgh, a committee was appointed by the Episcopal Synod consisting of 3 clergymen and 1 layman from each of the 7 dioceses. Of this committee the late Dean E. B. Ramsay was chairman, and the late Archdeacon Philip Freeman, Professor William Bright, Canon Henry Humble of St. Ninian's Cathedral, Perth, and the Hon. G. F. Boyle, afterwards Earl of Glasgow (who kindly lent a copy of the draft), were leading members. By them was prepared and printed, in 1857, a draft Hymnal for the Scottish Church, containing 289 hymns, 69 psalms and paraphrases, 42 doxologies, and words of 29 anthems. As made than 150 were from the Latin, the Episcopal Synod, instead of sanctioning this form, appointed Dr. Charles Wordsworth, Bishop of St. Andrews, to revise it, and his revision was sanctioned by them and published as A Collection of Hymns to be sung in Churches Approved and sanctioned by the Episcopal Synod of the Church in Scotland, 1858 (Edin.: R. Grant & Son), with 119 psalms and hymns, all taken from the draft of 1857. Being by small, a supplement was at once compiled by the Edinburgh clergy, and issued in 1858 as Additional Psalms and Hymns selected by several clergymen for the use of their own congregations (Edin.: R. Grant & Son). This brought the number up to 217, increased in the 4th ed. of 1866 to 236, with 20 doxologies in pt. i. and 16 in pt. ii. Of these Supplemental Hymns, 73 are from the draft of 1857. The book being as a whole meagre, and weak in design, has long since given way to Hymns Ancient and Modern, which though never formally authorised by the Episcopal Synod, is now in almost exclusive use in the Scottish Episcopal Church.

2. Dioceses.

1. A selection of Psalms and Hymns adapted to the use of Protestant Episcopal Congregations (Edin.: R. Grant & Son). This collection, which is of little value, was licensed by its principal compiler, Dr. James Walker, Bishop of Edinburgh, in 1830, and reached its 8th ed. in 1836. It contains 137 portions of psalm versions, 74 hymns and 12 doxologies.

2. Hymns and Anthems for use in the Holy Services of the Church, within the United Diocese of St. Andrews, Dunkeld, and Dunblane (Edin.: R. Lendrum). This collection, licensed by Bishop Patrick Torry in 1850, contains 128 hymns, the greater number of which are translations and original hymns by the compiler, Robert Campbell (q. 203, i.), and a selection of prose Anthems. This is the collection called S. Ninian's Hymns [as being used in St. Ninian's Cathedral, Perth] in the preface to The Hymnary.

3. Metrical Psalmody, consisting of portions of the several Psalms: and also a collection of Hymns, recommended for use in Public Worship in the Diocese of Glasgow and Galloway (Edin.: R. Grant & Son, 1853). Licensed June, 1853, by its compiler, Bishop W. J. Trower, D.D. Contains 272 portions of Psalm-versions, 15 paraphrases of the Psalms, 130 hymns, and 8 doxologies. It is of moderate value.

4. Hymnal for use in the Services of the Church (Aberdeen: D. Wyllie & Son). This collection, known as the Aberdeen Hymnal, was compiled by Norval Clyne (p. 238, i.), and sanctioned by T. G. Suffragan, Bishop of Aberdeen, in 1857, and reached its 4th 1000 in 1866. It contains 134 hymns and 24 psalm-versions —all, save 8, taken from the draft Hymnal of 1857 (see above).

3. Congregational.

The more important collections, issued mainly for individual congregations, are:—

1. The Church of England Hymn Book: containing a Selection of Psalms and Hymns for Public and Private Use. By the Rev. D. T. K. Drummond, B.A., Oxon, and Robert Kaye Greville, LL.D. (Edin.: W. Oliphant & Co., 1851). Contains 300 hymns, 50 Psalm-versions, tribunal 14 and Dr. Greville 4 hymns. It was compiled for the use of that Evangelical section of Scottish Episcopalianism which seceded in 1845, and which eccently put itself under the care of Bishop Beckles. It is strongly Calvinistic and is a good hymn-book of the Evangelical school.

2. Hymns and Anthems adjusted to the Church Services throughout the Christian Year (Lon.: Hope & Co., 1861). Contains 182 hymns, 30 Psalm-versions, and 6 anthems. Compiled by Rev. Thomas Jackson, M.A., incumbent of St. Peter's, Peterhead, and includes 24 translations by himself, and his well-known hymn, "Three in One, and One in Three." In 1866 he entirely recast it, omitted the anthems, 16 Psalms, and 40 hymns, and added 60 hymns. Adopted as the Church hymn-book throughout the Christian Year, with a Selection of Metrical Psalms (Peterhead: W. L. Taylor). This form contains 198 psalms and hymns, enlarged by an Appendix, 1869, to 218. It is upon the whole the best Scottish Episcopal collection.

3. Hymns and Sacred Lyrics, for the use of St. John the Evangelist's, Aberdeen (Aberdeen: A. Brown & Co.). Contains 146 hymns and was edited in 1861 by the Rev. Patrick Cheyne, the incumbent. Reissued, 1868, as Hymnal for the use of St. John the Evangelist's, Aberdeen, and Services throughout the Year. The first part contains 146 hymns, the second 30 Psalm-versions. This is followed by an Appendix, dated 1883, with hymns 112-223. In the ed. of 1870, the second part (compiled by the Rev. John Cooper, incumbent of St. Margaret's) brings up the total to 235. The first part contains 146 hymns selected from the 1st ed., and the second contains a number of translations from the Greek and German, and a good selection of modern English hymns. Mr. Cooper also pub. in 1870 Sixteen Hymns for St. Margaret's Chapel, Aberdeen, with 264 hymns.

4. Hymns for Public Worship (Edin.: J. Hunter, 1846). 166 hymns, selected by Rev. Peter Davidson, D.D., for use of Queen Street U. P. Church, Edinburgh.

5. Hymns for Divine Worship, selected from the Psalms and Paraphrases, and from the Hymns of original authors: with an appendix (Edin.: J. Craig & Son, 1870), by Rev. William Ritchie, B.D., for use in his church at Dunse. Nos. 1-502 selected as above, and 503-110 added.

6. Praise Hymnal (Glas. & Lon.: M'Corquodale & Co., 1871). Compiled by Rev. Joseph Leckie, D.D., of Ibrox U. P. Church, Glasgow, as a supplement to the U. P. H. Bk. of 1852. Of the 164 hymns, nearly recent, 2 (Nos. 4, 19, 166) are by himself.

7. Hymns and Psalms (Glas.: Morison, 1874), for use of the U. P. Synod. Synod Congregation (Dundee, 1875), by Rev. George Gilfillan, minister there.—106 Hymns and 3 Doxologies. The Rev. David Macrae, who became minister to a section of the congregation, has reissued it with the addition of 50 hymns (Edinburgh, 1876). Supplementary Selection issued 1878, and Appendix 1880. New Ed. David Macrae, 1886, with 374 hymns and doxologies.

iv. Evangelical Union.

1. Hymns and Psalms, compiled and selected by James Morison (Kilmarnock, 1844), one of the founders of the Union and the best living Scottish exegete. Contains 60 hymns and was originally published in two parts, in the second of which (78-80) 5 hymns by Dr. John Guthrie were first published. Reissued enlarged 1846. Superseded by the Hymn. Union H. Bk. of 1856.

v. Baptist.

1. A Selection of Hymns adapted for Divine Worship (Edin.: Waugh & Innes, 1818), by Rev. Christopher Anderson, of Rose Street Baptist Church, Edinburgh.

2. Hymns for Christian Worship (Edin.: W. Oliphant & Co., 1826) by Rev. James Fawcett, D.D., of Hope Street (now Adelaide Place) Baptist Church, Glasgow. 328 hymns. The 2nd ed. of 1827 (J. Macfarlane) contains 436 hymns and 37 chants.

3. Hymns and Spiritual Songs adapted to Public and Private Devotion, (Edin.: W. Innes, 1842). 366 hymns, 3 doxologies, and an appendix of 8 hymns. Compiled mainly by Rev. Jonathan Watson, co-pastor of Elder Street (now Dublin Street) Baptist Church, Edinburgh. Superseded by No. 4.

4. Hymns for Divine Worship, being a supplement to the Tune Selection. For the use of the Baptist Congregation, South Street. (Perth: J. & W. Bayne, 1865.) 168 hymns, probably selected by Rev. John Cloke, then minister.

5. Hymns and Spiritual Songs selected and arranged for Public and Social Worship. (Edin.: Turnbull & Spears, 1867.) Contains 564 hymns and 7 chants, and was compiled for use in Dublin Street Church, mainly by Rev. Dr. Landels. Rev. Dr. Culross has since succeeded him. Superseded 1879 by the English Baptist Psalms and Hymns.

6. Church Song. A Collection of Hymns for Public Worship. (Paisley: J. & R. Parlane, 1875), by Rev. Jervis Coats, M.A., for use in the Baptist Church, Govan, Glasgow, with 306 hymns.

vi. Congregational.

1. The Congregational Psalmist; or, a Selection of Psalms and Hymns specially adapted for the use of the Congregational Churches of Scotland. (Edin.: Henry Brimner. (Edin.: H. Armour, 1844.) [See Bateman, C. H., p. 116, ii.]. Contains 339 hymns.

2. A Selection of Hymns, chiefly Watts's, for use in Public Christian Worship; edited by A. T. Porter, minister of Nicolson Street Church, Nash Street, Glasgow. (Glas.: 1855.) 464 hymns.

3. Hymns and Psalms of Scripture for Divine Worship. Selected and arranged by John Hutchison (Dunfermline, 1861), then Congregational minister at Dunfermline. Reissued, enlarged, in 1865 (Edinburgh: 448-464), with 51 scripture passages and 3 ancient hymns.

vii. Scottish Episcopal.

1. A Collection of Hymns and Anthems for the use of the Episcopal Church of Scotland. (Edin.: Murray &

SCOTTISH HYMNODY 1029

2. Hymns, Doxologies, &c., sung in Nicosia Parish Church. Selected from the General Assembly's Church of Scotland Hymn-book, and arranged according to the Church Year. (Nicosia: Printed at the Government Office [Larvet, T. Potter, 1867]. Compiled by Rev. John Duncan, minister there. 91 hymns selected, and 4 added: 13 doxologies, 1 thanksgiving, 2 dismissals, 1 benaiza, and 6 sanctuses.

3. Hymns adapted to Public Worship, selected from the Hymns Ancient & Modern of Rev. Thomas Grainger, Esq., of Corrigenchurch, an Appendix consisting of Hymns for Private devotion, Sabbath Schools, and Children. (Edin.: Nisbet & Co., 1882). With 305 hymns. Meant for use in Abernyte Church, near Linlithgow.

4. The Order of Public Worship and Administration of the Sacraments, with a Hymnal. (Edinburgh: Old Greyfriars, Edinburgh. Compiled by Dr. Robert Lee, minister there, and pub. in 1868. The edition of 1872 (Edin., A. & C. Constable) has appended to it portions of psalm versions numbered 1-231, hymnbrown 244-253, and doxologies 254-263. The 2nd ed. of 1874 was pub. in 1880. In 1877 a Supplement appeared, compiled by Dr. Wallace, then minister there, with hymns 268-318, and prose psalms 317-346. Both compilers were aided by Mr. Goodhugue, the precentor.

5. Hymns and Psalms (Glas.: Collins & Sons, Halifax, 1874). Edited by Rev. John Macleod for use in his church at Dunc (withdrawn from use after he removed to Govan, Glasgow), as an appendix to the Scottish Hymnal. Contains prose chants 311-319, and Hymns 320-366.—a large number of these are from the Scottish Hymnal.

6. The Scottish Book of Praise, being Selections From the Psalms in Prose and Verse, and other parts of Scripture, with a collection of Hymns, Paraphrases, and Anthems. The music edited by Henry J. Lambeth. (Edin.: Oliphant, Anderson & Ferrier, 1886.) Edited by Rev. John Macleod, for use in his church at Dunc, and for general use as a book with fixed tunes—the musical editor being his organist. Contains selections from the Psalter of 1615, the Paraphrases of 1781, and the Free Psalter, with 55 scripture selections for chanting, 20 Anthems, and 185 Hymns, 126 taken from the Scottish Hymnal, 1874, being numbered as in that collection.

iii. Free Church.

1. Hymns for the Sanctuary: also Instruction Hymns for Home Use (printed by D. Adam, Glasgow, 1858). Edited by the Rev. D. C. A. Agnew, of Wigton; with 156 hymns in pt. i., and 91 in pt. ii., besides Paraphrases of the Psalms, and Hymns for Prayer Meetings. It contains 105 Scriptural Hymns, selected and revised (Edin.: A. Elliot, 1866).

2. Hymns for Christian Worship, compiled by several ministers of the Free Church in Glasgow (Glas., 1861). Edited by Rev. A. K. H. Boyd. 2nd ed. of 1864, 1st ed. of 1868 (40) hymns. Not authorised by the F. C. General Assembly.

3. Hymns selected for Divine Worship, by the Rev. William Knight, M. Free Ch., Dundee (1871). With 1st ed. of 1874 (40) hymns. Superseded by the 2nd ed. of 1884 (40) hymns. Not authorised by the F. C. General Assembly.

4. Hymns selected for Divine Worship, by the Rev. William Knight, M. Free Ch., Dundee (1871). With 1st ed. of 1874 (40) hymns. Superseded by the 2nd ed. of 1884 (40) hymns. Not authorised by the F. C. General Assembly.

5. Hymns selected for Divine Worship, by the Rev. William Knight, M. Free Ch., Dundee (1871). With 1st ed. of 1874 (40) hymns. Superseded by the 2nd ed. of 1884 (40) hymns. Not authorised by the F. C. General Assembly.

iv. United Presbyterian.

1. Sacred Songs and Hymns on various Passages of Scripture, for the use of Associate Congregations (Glas., D. Niven, 1746), by Rev. James Stuart, of the Relief Church, Anderston, Glasgow. Contains 186 Hymns. Was the first Presbyterian Hymn-book, and formed the basis of the Relief H. Bk. of 1794.

2. Sacred Songs and Hymns on various Passages of Scripture. To be sung in the Worship of God (Paisley: J. Neilson, 1792). Edited, with a preface, by Rev. Patrick Matheson, of the Relief Church, Canal Street, Paisley. Hymns 1-188 are the same, and under same numbers, as in the 1746 ed., with 3 additional hymns in easier metres; with Hymns 191-221 added.

3. Sacred Songs and Hymns on various Passages of Scripture, for the use Relief Church, Campbell Street (Glas.: D. Memoirs, 1794). The Rev. James Dun, minister there, was the editor. It has a long historical preface and Hymns 191-221 from Matheson. Adopted by the Relief Synod in 1794 as their first hymn-book.

4. A Collection of Paraphrases and Hymns. For the use of the Relief Congregation, Scatcraig Place, Pais. (Paisley: J. Neilson, 1794). Edited, with a preface, by Rev. John Johnston, minister there, mainly from the Relief H. Bk. of 1794. Contains 310 hymns. The ed. of 1821 (Edin.: J. L. Hale) adds 19 doxologies.

5. A Collection of Sacred Songs and Hymns, selected from various Authors, and recommended to be sung in Churches and Families (Cupar Fif.: R. Tullis, 1811). Edited by Rev. Thomas Mercer, minister of Cupar. Compiled by the Rev. Robert Walker, minister of the Relief Church in Cupar.

6. A Collection of Hymns on various Passages of Scripture; For the use of the Relief Chapel, Cowgate (Edin.: Anderson & Co., 1819). 197 hymns, mostly from the Relief H. Bk., and 11 doxologies. Probably compiled by Rev. James Lapsley, minister there.

7. Hymns for Public Worship (Edin.: J. Hunter, 1840). 166 hymns, selected by Rev. Peter Davidson, D.D., for use of Queen Street U. P. Church, Edinburgh.

8. Hymns for Divine Worship, selected from the Psalms and Paraphrases, and from the Hymns of original authors: with an appendix (Edin.: J. Craig & Son, 1870), by Rev. William Ritchie, D.D., for use in his church at Dunse. Nos. 1-502 selected as above, and 503-110 added.

9. Praise Hymnal (Glas. & Lon.: M'Corquodale & Co., 1871). Compiled by Rev. Joseph Leckie, D.D., of Ibrox U. P. Church, Glasgow, as a supplement to the U. P. H. Bk. of 1852. Of the 164 hymns, nearly recent, 2 (Nos. 4, 19, 166) are by himself.

10. Hymns and Psalms (Glas.: Morison, 1874), for use of the U. P. Synod. Synod Congregation (Dundee, 1875), by Rev. George Gilfillan, minister there.—106 Hymns and 3 Doxologies. The Rev. David Macrae, who became minister to a section of the congregation, has reissued it with the addition of 50 hymns (Edinburgh, 1876). Supplementary Selection issued 1878, and Appendix 1880. New Ed. David Macrae, 1886, with 374 hymns and doxologies.

iv. Evangelical Union.

1. Hymns and Psalms, compiled and selected by James Morison (Kilmarnock, 1844), one of the founders of the Union and the best living Scottish exegete. Contains 60 hymns and was originally published in two parts, in the second of which (78-80) 5 hymns by Dr. John Guthrie were first published. Reissued enlarged 1846. Superseded by the Hymn. Union H. Bk. of 1856.

v. Baptist.

1. A Selection of Hymns adapted for Divine Worship (Edin.: Waugh & Innes, 1818), by Rev. Christopher Anderson, of Rose Street Baptist Church, Edinburgh.

2. Hymns for Christian Worship (Edin.: W. Oliphant & Co., 1826) by Rev. James Fawcett, D.D., of Hope Street (now Adelaide Place) Baptist Church, Glasgow. 328 hymns. The 2nd ed. of 1827 (J. Macfarlane) contains 436 hymns and 37 chants.

3. Hymns and Spiritual Songs adapted to Public and Private Devotion, (Edin.: W. Innes, 1842). 366 hymns, 3 doxologies, and an appendix of 8 hymns. Compiled mainly by Rev. Jonathan Watson, co-pastor of Elder Street (now Dublin Street) Baptist Church, Edinburgh. Superseded by No. 4.

4. Hymns for Divine Worship, being a supplement to the Tune Selection. For the use of the Baptist Congregation, South Street. (Perth: J. & W. Bayne, 1865.) 168 hymns, probably selected by Rev. John Cloke, then minister.

5. Hymns and Spiritual Songs selected and arranged for Public and Social Worship. (Edin.: Turnbull & Spears, 1867.) Contains 564 hymns and 7 chants, and was compiled for use in Dublin Street Church, mainly by Rev. Dr. Landels. Rev. Dr. Culross has since succeeded him. Superseded 1879 by the English Baptist Psalms and Hymns.

6. Church Song. A Collection of Hymns for Public Worship. (Paisley: J. & R. Parlane, 1875), by Rev. Jervis Coats, M.A., for use in the Baptist Church, Govan, Glasgow, with 306 hymns.

vi. Congregational.

1. The Congregational Psalmist; or, a Selection of Psalms and Hymns specially adapted for the use of the Congregational Churches of Scotland. (Edin.: Henry Brimner. (Edin.: H. Armour, 1844.) [See Bateman, C. H., p. 116, ii.]. Contains 339 hymns.

2. A Selection of Hymns, chiefly Watts's, for use in Public Christian Worship; edited by A. T. Porter, minister of Nicolson Street Church, Nash Street, Glasgow. (Glas.: 1855.) 464 hymns.

3. Hymns and Psalms of Scripture for Divine Worship. Selected and arranged by John Hutchison (Dunfermline, 1861), then Congregational minister at Dunfermline. Reissued, enlarged, in 1865 (Edinburgh: 448-464), with 51 scripture passages and 3 ancient hymns.

vii. Scottish Episcopal.

1. A Collection of Hymns and Anthems for the use of the Episcopal Church of Scotland. (Edin.: Murray & Cockburn, 1781), with 39 hymns and anthems. A reissue, with 4 hymns added, was published in 1784, and was used in St. Andrew's Chapel, Aberdeen, and other Chapels of the Episcopal Church in Scotland, 1818 edition. (Aberdeen: D. Chalmers & Co., 1816), with 60 hymns and anthems.

3. A Collection of Psalms and Hymns adapted to Public Worship in general, but chiefly intended to be used in the Episcopal Chapel, New Town, Edinburgh. By A. C. [Edin.: Gordon and Neill, 1794), with 37 Psalm Versions (from Tate and Brady, and from Merrick) and 51 Hymns, chiefly from Watts and Doddridge. Used in the First Episcopal Meeting-house in Scotland, Charlotte Square, and a new in St. John's, Princes Street, to which Dean Ramsay long ministered.

4. Selected Portions from the Old and New Version of the Psalms, &c., Hymns and Anthems. (Edin.: J. Taylor & Co., 1795). Compiled by Charles Vincent for St. George's Chapel. Part II. enlarged appeared as Hymns, Anthems, &c., used in St. George's Chapel, York Place, Edinburgh (Edin.: Caledonian Mercury Office, 1811), with 81 hymns and words of 34 anthems; while the edition of 1817 (Edin.: P. G. Buchanan), contained 94 hymns.

5. A Collection of Hymns and Anthems, for the use of the Episcopal Chapel, Glasgow (Glas.: R. Chapman, 1803), with 104 hymns and words of 24 anthems. Compiled by Rev. Dr. Jas. Gray, and largely composed of the requests and votes of the congregation. The ed. of 1823 (Glas.: R. Griffin & Co.) contains 126 hymns, words of 32 anthems, 7 doxologies, and Bp. Key's morning and evening hymns. Superseded in 1840 by the Collection of that year. See col. 1, l. 30.

6. A Selection of Hymns for St. Jude's Chapel, Leith (Edin.: A. Allardice, 1810), 71 hymns with anthems and doxologies, and an App. of 18 hymns.

7. A Collection of Psalms and Hymns, arranged for the use of the Episcopal Chapel, Carrubber's Close, Edinburgh (Edin.: J. Gifford, 1826), with 47 psalm-versions, 169 hymns, 5 doxologies, and an appendix of 39 hymns.

8. A Collection of Psalms and Hymns, arranged for the use of the Episcopal Chapel, Hanover Street, Broughton Place, Edinburgh (Edin.: Waugh & Innes, 1825), with 319 hymns. Probably compiled by the Rev. Daniel Sandford, then Incumbent.

9. Hymns and Anthems, for the use of the congregation assembling for the Public Worship of God, in St. James' Chapel, Broughton Place, Edinburgh (Edin.: Waugh & Innes, 1825), with 47 Psalm portions, 108 hymns, 4 doxologies, and an Appendix of 33 hymns. Probably compiled by Rev. Edward Craig, then Incumbent.

10. Select Portions of Psalms, from Modern Translations and Paraphrases supplementary to the old and new Versions, with Hymns and Spiritual Songs, designed for Public and Social Worship (Glas.: C. Rankenian). Compiled and pub. in 1827 for use in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Glasgow. The 3rd ed. of 1851 contains 143 psalm-versions, 161 hymns and 8 doxologies. The 4th ed. of 1857 contains 150 hymns.

11. A Selection of Psalms and Hymns, used in St. John's Episcopal Chapel, Cromwell (Greenock: Advertiser Office, 1836), with the portions of psalms, 189 hymns and an appendix of 43 hymns.

12. Hymns, Ancient and Modern, for use of the congregation assembling for the Public Worship of God, in St. James' Chapel, Broughton Place, Edinburgh (Edin.: Waugh & Innes, 1835), with 319 hymns. Probably compiled by the Rev. Daniel Sandford, then Incumbent.

13. Hymns and Anthems, for the Church of Scotland (Edin.: J. Ireland, 1836). Edited by Sir Archibald Edmonstone, Bart., of Duntreath and Colzium, with 239 hymns, mostly from Bp. Heber's collection, the last 18 being eighteen.

14. Hymns appropriate to the several Seasons of the Ecclesiastical Year, for use in Trinity Episcopal Chapel, Dunfermline (Dunfermline: J. Miller & Son, 1862), with 45 hymns. The 2nd ed., 1869, contained in all 61 hymns. Compiled by the Rev. William Bruce, then Incumbent. Superseded by Tate and Brady. Superseded in 1886, by H. A. & M.

15. Hymnarium, chiefly from ancient sources, used in the Holy Services of Mattins and Evensong at St. Andrew's Church, Glasgow (Lon.: J. Masters; Glas.: D. Bryce & Son, 1872). Compiled by the Rev. Dr. Lee, D.C.L., the Incumbent. Contains 240 hymns and 21 introits. Superseded in 1886, by H. A. & M.

16. A Hymnal adapted to the Seasons of the Christian Year (Aberdeen: A. Brown & Co., 1874). Compiled by the Rev. Alexander Harper, M.A., then clerical Incumbent, with 150 hymns. First ed. 1856 had 70 hymns.

17. The Supplementary Hymnal compiled by the Rev. H. J. Palmer, A.A., for use in St. Mary's Church, Aberdeen (Aberdeen: G. Davidson, n. d., 1886), 91 hymns, with 10 hymns from the Appendix to the Hymnal appointed to be used in the Church of England, 1881. Almost all are included in the revised H. A. & M. or the Parish Hymnal.

18. Glengarnock, Ardeer and Caroline Mission Hymnal (Paisley: A. & J. Parlane). With 222 hymns and 4 doxologies. Compiled by the Rev. F. Greene Latimer.

19. Hymns authorised by the Bishop (Aberdeen: King & Co., 1885), 54 hymns, selected by Rev. T. I. Ball from the Appendix to the Irish Church Hymnbook.

20. Supplement to the "Hymns Ancient and Modern" (Edin.: Hope & Macdonald, 1889). The editions up to 1893 were edited by the Rev. H. A. Walker, of Hutcham, and the Rev. T. I. Ball. The Supplement by Mr. Ball, with Hymns 218-348, contains a large proportion of English Hymns of the Evangelical School.

21. See also § xvi. 10.

viii. Glassite or Sandemanian.

The Rev. John Glas, M.A., minister of the parish of Tealing, near Dundee, having adopted Independent views, was deposed in 1728. After presiding over congregations of his sympathisers at Dundee and Perth, he died at Perth, Dec. 2, 1773. In the meetings for public worship over which he gave an unpaid ministry and literally observed the Apostolic rule, Elder Robert Sandeman, the son-in-law of Glas, called Sandemanians—the Psalms only are used, the Scottish Psalter of 1650 having been first employed and then the revision of it by Robert Burnet), first pub. as The Book of Psalms: containing the Scriptural Psalmody of the Many Versions in different Languages, London, 1744. For their meetings for religious fellowship were composed the: Christian Songs. To which is prefixed the Boldness and Import of Christ's Resurrection ser-mon by Glas (Perth: R. Morison, 1758), 61 hymns, 2nd ed. was pub. at Edinburgh in 1746. A copy, without title page, now in Perth, seems to represent this, and contains 70 songs; increased in the 2nd ed. (Edinburgh: A. Donaldson for W. Coke, Edin.; R. Morison, Perth, 1761) to 80 songs (No. 80 being Watts' "Come, let us join our cheerful songs"); in the 4th (Dundee: D. Ogilvy, 1776) to 83; in the 5th (Dundee: J. Chalmers for W. Coke, Leith, and R. Morison, Perth, 1775) to 88 songs (No. 88 being Watts-worth-omitted), and 11 Elegies. The 8th ed. (Perth: R. Morison, 1787) contained 100 songs, 11 Elegies, and a second part with 30 Songs, pp. 3, being in the 12th ed. (Perth: R. Morison, 1847), enlarged to 63, and in the 14th ed. (Perth: R. Morison, 1872), to 114 Songs, the additions being mostly recent compositions of the brethren.

22. Hymns for Public Worship. (Edin.: 1851). For Edinburgh congregation, in a reprint, with one or two of the Songs abridged, of pt. 1 and the Elegies of the 1784, with two additional songs, No. 86, by W. Barkaman, 1851, and No. 94, by E. C. Anderson. Pt. 2 is omitted, and pt. 3 is the Elegies, with the addition of "The Burial Hymn," &c.) separately printed and inserted in a pocket in the binding.

A considerable number of these Songs passed in more or less altered forms into the hymnals of the Baptists, the Evangelical Union, and the Congregational Churches of Scotland, 1781-1867. Such as are found in hymnals included under main sections v., vi., or in English Hymnals since 1830, are here noted, the numbers being given from the 1784, but all had appeared in the editions of 1761 and 1776. Lines in italics are altered, the rest are generally certain.

By John Barnard.

23. Behold! the bright morning appears
The man, who was crowned with thorns (st. ii.)
51. Thus saith the Church's head

By Robert Burnett.

17. Behold! how good a thing
18. Hark! the tyranny of God doth sound
66. Wherewith shall I, clothed with sin

By Alexander Glas.

1. Blow'd be the day, Fair Charity
Could I with election speak (st. viii.)
A time shall come, when constant Faith (st. xi.)
3. Shall earth and sea, and all the God contend

By John Glas.

43. There's no name among men, nor angels, so bright
15. This is the day the first ripe sheaf
16. We worship Thee, O God
66. We've sinned many a time
Elegy 1. What is our life in this vain world?

By Thomas Glas.

38. Behold, my servant, whom I send
39. The Love which thought on helpless man
26. When to my sight, thou God, appears
O Lord, we have sinned to despair (st. iv.)

By Daniel Sandeman.

40. When I my wicked heart survey

By William Leighton.

4. Eternal love's the darling song
17. Is this one act redemption shines!
24. Lo! the saints all rejoice and exult in their King
33. O Jesus! the glory, the wonder, and love
14. Say, Faith, who bleeds on yonder tree?
8. Where shall the guilty who hath lost
25. While I my merit all explore

By David Mitchelson.

58. I've seen the lovely garden Bow'rs

By Archibald Rutherford.

60. All ye redeemed wanderers round
71. Glory unto Jesus bring
70. Hail! blest scenes of endless joy
74. Hail! hail! the happy week! for time
73. Man like a flow'r at morn appears
69. Now shall the trumpet sound, and bring
The assembled worlds on wing
68. What tho' these bodies shall decay
65. When Jesus comes again

By Robert Sandeman.

26. Awake, O Zion's daughter! rise
37. See Mercy, Mercy, from on high!
Elegy 2. Tho' I'm in pain, and tho' a load
61. To guilty mortals who have sinned
21. To you, my friends, the God doth call
He who surveys the heart of man (st. ii.)

By William Waterston.

90. How glorious is thy name.

ix. Scots Old Independents.

Founded in 1726 by Rev. James Smith and Rev. Robert Jaffray, ejected from the parish churches of Newburn and Largo in Fife, and by David Dale and others, in Glasgow. In 1814 there were 12 churches in Scotland, of which only 2 now remain.

1. The Psalms of Isaiah, Paul, Peter, &c., paraphrased, and the Principal Doctrines and Precepts of the Passages of Holy Scripture, and adapted to many occurrences of Christian Life (Edin.: D. Paterson and W. Gray, 1777). By Alexander Pirie (see p. 895, l.). Of its 95 hymns 11 passed into the Relief of St., 1794.

2. Psalms and Hymns, adapted to Christian Worship, with 77 hymns. Republished as Hymns and Spiritual Songs, selected for the Christian congregation which meets in the Grammar School Wynd, Glasgow (Glas.: D. Niven, A. Orr, &c., 1790), with 109 hymns. The sixth ed., 1794, was enlarged to 114 hymns, many from Gisborne and Logan; the seventh ed., 1799, to 120 hymns; and the eighth ed., 1803, to 122. Hymns and Spiritual Songs, collected for a Christian Church in Paisley (Glas.: D. Niven, 1787). In Three Books—i. with Hymns 1-51, ii. 52-128, iii. 129-208. From the Baptist H. Bk. of 1794, omitting those specifically Baptist, and adding 65 from various sources.

4. A Selection of Hymns adapted to Christian Worship (Glas.: J. Graham & Co., 1819). Probably compiled by the late James McLaurin, of Paisley, with 180 hymns in alphabetical order, a number being Glassite, Haldane, and Scots Independent. In 1824 a 2nd Supplement (Glas.: Mackay & Kirkwood), compiled by two of the Glasgow elders, appeared with Hymns 366-415. Both are still in use.

x. Berean.

Founded by Rev. John Barclay, b. 1734, near Methill, Perthshire, assistant of Fetteresso, Perth, 1763-1772; died at Edinburgh, as pastor of the Bereans, July 29, 1798.

1. Rejoice Borrower; or Christ all in all. An original publication consisting of Spiritual Songs, &c. By John Barclay (Glas.: W. Bell, 1767). Contains, besides Psalms and a version of the Song of Solomon, 186 hymns. Republished as A Select Collection of new Spiritual Songs, suited to the various Occasions of Christians. Together with the most useful and agreeable of those formerly published under the title of Rejoice Borrower, or Christ all in all. By John Barclay, A.M., minister of the Bereans assembly in Edinburgh, 1782 (Edin.: Wm. Gray, 1782), with 186 hymns and a Paraphrase of the Song of Solomon. Vol. i. contains his version of The Psalms paraphrased according to the New Testament Interpretation, &c. Mr. Barclay also published a cheap collection entitled The Repertoire of Sacred Songs, &c., being a Selection of Hymns and Songs improved for the necessities of the Church: containing a copious variety of Subjects for the Purpose of Divine Praise, &c. (Edin.: J. Donaldson, 1742), with a prefatory address of 48 pages fulminating against the Scottish sects of the day. In Psalm versions selected for a

80. version still more paraphrastic and spiritualised than his 1776, a complete metrical version of Hebrews, 33 paraphrases and hymns from his 1776 volume, and 7 from his 1767 volume, with 3 Elegies. The Elegies are further Sibbaldian, ending with definitions of the phrases used, the last of which is Italics elect. "You may call it the madness of the clergy; or, the real mad-as-fury and fatal infatuation of false pretended Christians, who have departed from the faith of heaven and earth delivered us, and all its own Elect."

In Songs of the Spirit, edited by the Revs. W. H. Oliphant and F. M. Bird, New York, 1871, two hymns are given by Barclay: "Drink deep of the Spirit, and they are found in Scotland included in the Library of Religious Poetry, ed. by Schaff, D.D., and A. Gilman, M.A., ed. 1883, p. 902), and "O love ye the Spirit indwelling," at pp. 127-128.

xi. Roman Catholic.

Hymn singing in public worship seems of recent introduction in Scotland, and the hymnals used seem mostly those popular elsewhere. We herewith have able to trace the following, of which Nos. 1-3 are properly School hymnals but have been used in Church at Children's Services, &c.

1. The Garland of Sacred Catholic Hymns, for the use of Schools (Glas.: R. Mapley, 1841), 57 hymns and the Litany of Loreto.

2. St. Patrick's Catholic Hymnbook published by the Marist Brothers with the approbation of the Right Rev. Dr. Murdoch, Vicar Apostolic of the Western District of Sixteenth Thousand. (To be had of the Marist Brothers, St. Mungo Street and Charlotte Street, Glasgow, &c., 1845), 168 hymns. Compiled in 1805 and contains "several original contributions, kindly supplied by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Murdoch, the Very Rev. F. W. Faber, Rev. F. Sandolo and others."

3. Collection of Hymns for the use of the Children of St. Andrew's Congregation (Glas.: H. Mapley, 1875), with 108 hymns, of which 6 and the Litany of Loreto are Latin.

4. Hymns arranged according to the Ecclesiastical Year, for use in Catholic Churches. Music may be had separately. Cum permissu superiorum (Glas.: H. Mapley, 1870), with 107 hymns, 16 being in Latin and 3 Litanies, and 2 Tunes to Hymns.

5. A very curious book was pub. at Aberdeen (J. Chalmers & Co.) in 1822 as A Collection of Spiritual Hymns and Songs, on various religious subjects. The pieces occupy pp. 3-140, but are not numbered. They are arranged in 12 Books, each with a separate and irregular song tune. A number are by Bishop Gordon, eight are signed J. C., eight are signed W. D., &c. It is hardly likely that the book was ever used in the public services of the Roman Catholic Church in Scotland. (See also p. 974, l.)

xii. Universalist.

1. King David's Psalms in common use, with notes critical and explanatory. Imitated in Scottish (Glas.: Duncan & Co., 1829). By Rev. Dr. Jas. Gray, with The Psalter of 1650 and Paraphrases of 1781 with notes. The editor, who in 1790 became minister of the Relief Church at Cupar-Fife, and in 1795 at Dundee, resigned his charge in 1794 and finally settled in Glasgow as a Universalist preacher, d. 1811. See his Essay on Inspired Subjects with some Essays in Poetry (Edin.: G. Carr, 1795), he gives 14 paraphrases of psalms and 24 hymns and poems—all original.

2. A Collection of Hymns for the use of Believers in Christ's Salvation (Glas.: Duncan & Co., 1829), with 100 Oration to Jesus Christ (Glas.: W. Naylr, 1824), 110 hymns.

xiii. Theistic.

1. Hymns selected for Divine Worship. By the Rev. James Cranbrook (Edin.: Turnbull & Spence, 1807), formerly minister of Albany Street Congregational Church, Edinburgh. 2nd ed., 1809, 3rd ed., 1811.

2. A Manual of Sound Song for Common Worship. Compiled by the Rev. James Cranbrook (published for him in the Hopetoun Rooms, Edin.: 1867), with prose psalms for five Sundays and 34 hymns, No. 35 being "Hymns collected and adapted for National Worship, Temporary Use (Edin.: n.p. 1840), with no psalms, 46 hymns and 3 doxologies. After Mr. Cranbrook's connection ceased it was enlarged and issued as

3. Hymns selected and adapted for Divine Worship and Human Encouragement (Edin.: Printed for Freemasons' Hall Congregation, 1870), by Mr. Statham, his successor. Contains 168 hymns, words of 16 anthems, and 3 sanctuses. The final issue was ——

5. Hymns (Freemasons' Hall, Edin., 1873), with 69 hymns, of which, according to Mr. Stallman's preface, "Many have been written expressly for this collection," only 9 being taken from No. 4.

xiv. Unitarian.

1. Hymns and Anthems for Private and Public Worship. Edited by Charles Clarke (Glas. printed for the Unitarian Church, Union Street, by W. Bankie, 1848), 249 hymns and anthems with authors' names, for the use of the Union Street congregation. The ed. of 1859 has 320 hymns with an Appendix of 40 "Hymns of Consolation" compiled by H. W. Crosskey.

2. Hymns for Public Worship edited by John Page Hopps (Glas. The Unitarian Christian Churches, 1872), with 200 hymns and anthems. Mr. Hopps was formerly then minister of St. Vincent Street Unitarian Church, Glasgow.

xv. Brethren.

1. Our Hymnbook. Compiled by Rice T. Hopkins. Fifteenth Thousand (Edin.: Quigley & Bell, n.d.). Two hymns on back of titlepage, with gospel hymns and tunes, 8vo, pp. 160.

2. Aids to the Service of Song (Edin.: A. Elliot, n.d., c. 1880). Compiled by Dr. Naylor. 203 hymns.

3. The Gospel Hymnal. Compiled by W. T. P. Wolston (Lon. & Glas.: R. L. Allan & Co., 1871, n.d.), 260 hymns. The compiler was leader of "The Brethren" in Edinburgh.

xvi. Miscellaneous.

1. A Collection of Hymns and Spiritual Songs (Glas. A. Miloch, 1775). 72 hymns.

2. A Collection of Hymns for Christian Worship (Edin.: G. Crawford, 1742). 94 hymns and 5 sacramental hymns—in all 41.

3. A Collection of Hymns and Spiritual Songs, extracted from various authors, and published for the use of Christians of all denominations (Edin.: James Donaldson, 1776). With 147 hymns and 2 doxologies, mostly taken from R. Conyers's Collection (p. 332, ii.).

4. A select number of Spiritual Hymns, &c., either collected from various authors, or composed for Christian's meditation, &c. By David Mitchell (Glas.: W. Smith, 1761). To hymns. It is not likely that either this or Nos. 5–7, 11, were ever used in public worship.

5. A Collection of Hymns and Sacred Poems. In Two Parts. For all Denominations. Published by James Forbes (Aberdeen: printed by A. Leighton, 1767). Contains 5-8 hymns in pt. i. and 34 poems in pt. ii. The 2nd ed. of 1769 has 178 hymns, and the 3rd ed. of 1773 has 180.

6. Hymns and Scripture Paraphrases published at the request of a Congregation of Christians. By William Bell (Edin.: G. Ga., 1806). With 113 hymns.

7. A Selection of Sacred Hymns for Social Worship (Edin.: Waugh & Innes, Camhill for T. Watt, Kilwinning, 1807), with 148 hymns.

8. Hymns on Natural, Moral and Theological Subjects, for the use of the Theophilanthropist Society (Glas.: 1818) with 103 hymns.

9. Sacred Songs. A Collection of Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, selected from a number of other collections, for the use of Christian Churches; and adapted to New Testament Worship. By William Collie, Dundee (Dundee: A. Colville & Co., 1817), with 219 hymns.

10. Hymns, Original and Selected. Chiefly designed for Public Worship (Aberdeen: D. Chalmers & Co., 1825), with 264 hymns and the Benedicite. Compiled for use in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Aberdeen.

11. Morning and Evening Hymns for every day of the Week (Edin.: Oliphant, Anderson & Ferrier, 30 Nicolson Street, 1867). With 124 hymns, edited by John Smith, LL.D.

Note.—Two hymnals compiled by the Rev. J. H. Wilson, D.D., of the Barclay Free Church, Edinburgh, viz. Hymns of Faith and Hope, 1861, and Songs of Faith, 1881, are cited occasionally throughout this Dictionary and are thus here mentioned. (1) The Service of Praise (Edin.: T. Nelson & Sons, 1865), with 322 hymns, 25 chants, 19 anthems and sanctuses, and 7 children's hymns. A revised ed. of the 1851 ed. of Nos. 1–3, 5, 6, 8, 9, and others, first appeared here: (2) Songs of Zion (Edin.: T. Nelson & Sons, 1876), with 261 Hymns, &c., mainly from the 1865, from Songs of Zion, 1863, and from the hymns introduced by Mr. Sankey.

IX. APPENDIX.

1. Scottish Hymn Writers.

Scotland has produced a long series of minor poets. It would be both difficult and useless to enumerate even those of them who have attempted to write sacred poetry. Notices will be found in this Dictionary under their respective names of a very large number of these authors, including the following, who by birth or residence are connected with Scotland, viz.:—

William Alexander, Earl of Stirling; William Lindsay of Pitscottie; Sir Robert Aytoun; Elizabeth Melville, Blacklock, Hugh and Robert Baillie, William Hay, Jane and Sarah (Pinkerton) Borthwick, Robert Boyd, Zachary Boyd, William Bruce, James Drummond Burns, Wilhelmina Cameron, Elizabeth Cecilia Clephane, Norval Clyne, Sir Alexander Craigie, Robert Crichton, Thomas Davidson, David Thomas Kerr Drummond, William Drummond, Mary (Lundie) Duncan, Thomas Dunlop, Ralph Erskine, Fergus Ferguson, Sarah Fleming (nee Borthwick), Robert Kaye Greville, John Guthrie, James Hamilton, Robert Hamilton, Robert Hall, Robert Murray McCheyne, John Ross Maxtill, Hamilton Montgomerie Magill, Margaret Mackay, Norman Macleod, Samuel Martin, David Macbeth Moir, John Morison, Sir William Mure, John Ogilvie, Robert Pont, Alexander Pirie, Robert Pollok, Alexander Ramsay, Christian Robertson (Monimusk), William Glen Robertson, G. Rorison, Sir W. Scott, Jane C. Simpson, Patrick Simson, John Morrison Sloan, George Walker, Ralph Wardlaw, James, John, and Robert Wedderburn, Andrew Young, with various others.

2. Principal Works on the Scottish Psalms and Paraphrases, and their authors.

In this section we have grouped together those works which are of greatest value in tracing the history of Scottish Hymnody.

1. The Scottish Metrical Psalter of A.D. 1635, reprinted in full from the original work, the additional matter and various readings found in the editions of 1644, &c., being appended, and the whole illustrated by dissertations, notes, and facsimiles. Edited by the Rev. Neil Livingston, D.D. Printed from them by Modern and Mechanical Processes. (Glas.: Maclehose, 1864.) The most elaborate and careful work on the early Scottish Psalters, and the fruit of much labour and research. It contains a great amount of interesting and curious information, and in fact exhausts the subject.

2. The Scottish Metrical Version of the Psalms, as Printed by Authority of the University of Glasgow. MDCLXIXMDCCLIV. Edited from the author's manuscripts by David Laing, Esq. In three volumes. Edinburgh, printed for Robert Ogle, 1861–1865. Edited for the Bannatyne Club. Only 100 copies printed, and not for sale to members. In the spreadsh to vol. iii. (pp. 125–256), Dr. Laing gives a valuable series of "Notices regarding the metrical version of the Psalms received by the Church of Scotland."

3. The Book of Scottish Metrical Psalms, with an account of the Paraphrase and Hymns, and of the music of the Old Psalter. Illustrated with 15 plates of mus. music of 1566. By Rev. J. M. Macmorine, Lochgilphead. Printed for subscribers only. Glasgow: Morison Bros., 1872. 4to, pp. 112, xxxvi. and 15 plates. The most valuable and careful work on the early Scottish Psalters, and the fruit of much labour and research. It contains a great amount of interesting and curious information, and in fact exhausts the subject.

4. The Wedderburns and their Work, or the Sacred Poetry of Scotland. A Lecture delivered in the Divinity Hall of the University of Glasgow. By Alex. F. Mitchell, D.D., Professor of Hebrew, St. Andrews. William Blackwood & Sons, Edinburgh and London, 1867. A very careful and interesting little book, tracing out the history of Scottish Psalmody, and of the Wedderburn Psalmbks, and giving all the information accessible as to their authors and their origin.

5. A comprehensive book of Psalms and Spiritual Songs, consisting chiefly of the Translations and Versions entitled Gude and Godlie Ballates. (Aberdeen: Imprinted 1868.) A reprint from the earliest perfect edition now extant (but see I. § 2 of this article), edited by Dr. David Laing, with a historical preface, a valuable series of notes, a glossary, and table of the tunes to which the Psalms contained are known, viz. those of Henrie Charteris 1570, Robert Smyth 1590, and Andro Hart 1621.

6. The Free Church Magazine for 1847, volume 4, Edinburgh, John Johnstone. Contains four articles on "Scottish Psalmody," reprinted from the Edinburgh Journal. They raised a discussion on the subject of Robert Burns's connection with the Paraphrases, the writer having in his hands a ms. copy of the Paraphrases prepared for the use of the Convener of the 1775 Committee, with alterations in a hand which much resembled that of Burns, but which proved to be that of John Logan—a facsimile page being given. We have failed to trace this ms.

7. The United Presbyterian Magazine, volume 18, 1874, and volume 19, 1875. Edinburgh, William Oliphant & Co. These include a series of interesting papers on Scottish Hymn-writers by the late Rev. William Thomson, of Alnetield, near Edinburgh. Chapter i. in vol. 18, contains notices of Dr. Watts's Psalms and Hymns, 10, on Bruce and Logan, and 64, on the Paraphrases of 1781.

8. Fasti Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ. The succession of ministers in the parish churches of Scotland, from the Reformation. By the late Rev. Hew Scott, D.D., F.L.S., minister of Anstruther Wester, Edinburgh. William Paterson, 3 vols. in 6 parts, 1866–1871. A most careful and elaborate work, the fruit of many years' research among original documents, and of great use in matters of biography.

9. The Book of the Order of the Church of Scotland commonly known as John Knox's Liturgy, and the Directory for the Public Worship of God agreed upon by the Assembly of Divines at Westminster; with historical introductions and illustrative notes by the Rev. George W. Sprott, B.A., and the Rev. Thomas Leishman, D.D. Edinburgh, William Blackwood & Sons, and London, 1868. The notes on the Psalters are concise and good.

10. The Scottish Paraphrases. . . . An account of their history, authors, and sources; together with the Scriptural Proofs, and parallel references from Presbytery records relative thereto; reprints of the editions of 1745, 1751, and 1781; information regarding hymns contemporary with the Paraphrases; and some account of the Scripture Songs of 1781. By Douglas Somerville, D.D. Edinburgh, Oliphant & Co., 1873. This work justifies its title, is well and carefully done, and gathers together almost all the available information. It is especially valuable as reprinting the full text of the very rare edition of 1745.

In appending these authorities it may be stated that the article throughout is based upon independent research, and that in almost every case (save Rous, 1641 and 1643, and the French Psalters) the works mentioned have been examined by myself, or by others on my behalf. To Mr. Clark and the librarians of the Advocates Library, Edinburgh, and to Dr. Dickson, Mr. Lyndsay, and the librarians of the Glasgow University Library, I am specially indebted for the full facilities and courteous attention afforded in my researches; to Mr. William Boone of London I was indebted for the loan of early editions of the Paraphrases, &c.; to Mr. James Thin of Edinburgh, and Mr. W. T. Brooke of London, I am indebted for kind help in completing the lists of Hymnals; and to correspondents, of various denominations, too numerous to mention I am indebted for prompt answers embodying the information they had to give on the points submitted to them. [J. M.]

Scottish Psalter. [Scottish Hymnody.]

Scottish Translations and Paraphrases. These Translations and Paraphrases were originally prepared by a Committee appointed by the General Assembly of 1742. They were presented in draft in 1745, and in 1751 were authorised for private use. In 1775 a Committee was appointed to revise and enlarge them for public use, by which a draft collection was prepared and printed in 1781, and after many verbal changes published as Translations and Paraphrases, in Verse, of several Passages of Sacred Scripture. Collected and prepared by a Committee of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, in order to be sung in Churches. Edinburgh: Printed and sold by J. Dickson, Printer to the Church of Scotland MDCLXXXI (see Scottish Hymnody, v. 1–4).

The Paraphrases of 1781 are made up of 45, taken—some with great alterations—from the collection of 1745; and of 22 added in 1781.

From the 1745 are the following, the numbers being given in the 1781 list (Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46) by Doddridge (Nos. 26, 27) by Tate, 3 (Nos. 4, 35, 44) ascribed to Blair, 2 (Nos. 36, 43, 45) ascribed to Robertson, and 1 (No. 42) ascribed to Randall, leaving 1 (Nos. 8, 10, 21, 31, 38, 40, 41, 46) to which no probable ascriptions have been assigned.

Of the 22 added in 1781, 2 (Nos. 5, 15) are by Watts, while 7 (Nos. 9-11, 31, 33, 34) are assigned to Bruce or Logan; 2 (Nos. 27, 30) are said to be joint productions of Logan and Robertson; 3 (Nos. 19, 21, 29, 32) are ascribed to Robertson; 1 (No. 12) to Logan; 1 (No. 13) to Martin, 1 (No. 16) to Blacklock, 1 (No. 22, really a proto) to Blair, and 1 (No. 28) to Ogilvie.

Deducting these by Watts, Doddridge and Tate, we find of the 67 in 1781 there are 25 of presumable authorship, and 42 of unknown. The presumable authors of the remaining 25 are noted under Blacklock, Blair, Bruce, Cameron, Martin, Morison, Ogilvie, Randall, and Robertson.

Of the Hymns appended in 1781, 3 (Nos. 1–3) are by Addison, 1 (No. 4) by Watts, and 1 (No. 5) by Bruce or Logan [see Bruce].

The Committee who compiled the Paraphrases were thus made up:—

On May 18, 1745, the Assembly appointed the Revs. James Nisbet, William Gusthart, William Robertson, Robert Kinloch, Professor John Gowdie, Frederick Carmichael, William McGregor, Thomas Turnbull, Robert Wallace, Alexander Carlyle, Alexander Webster, and George Logie, James Bannatyne, Professor Patrick Cumming, Alexander Webster, George Wishart, Robert Dalgleish, James Naismith, and Matthew Mitchell, ministers; with Messrs. John Wilson, Robert Baillie, and Alexander Stevenson, elders. To these were added on May 31, 1754, the Revs. Principal Thomas Tullibelgin, Daniel McQueen, Hugh Blair, George Kay, and Thomas Randall, ministers; with Lord Arniston, Lord Drummore, the Solicitor General Robert Dundas, and Mr. Alexander Lockhart, elders.

On May 26, 1774, the Assembly appointed the Revs. Dr. Patrick Cumming, Dr. Alexander Webster, Principal William Robertson, Dr. Robert Finlay, Dr. Hugh Blair, Dr. Harry Spence, Dr. John Ogilvie, Thomas Linning, and Professor Walker, Alexander Carlyle, Joseph Medowall, John Logan, James Bannatyne, Professor Robert Walker, James Campbell, and John Gibson, ministers; with Messrs. John Home, James Stobbart, John McLaurin, Robert Cullen, and Professors Andrew Dalzell and George Hill, ruling elders. To these were added on June 3, 1780, the Revs. Dr. Henry Grieve, Dr. Robert Walker, Dr. Robert Lundie, Dr. Robert Pitcairn, Dr. George Barclay, and Dr. Robert Dick, ministers, with Messrs. John Dickson, James Colquhoun, and Alexander Stevenson, elders. And finally, on May 30, 1781, the Assembly added the Revs. Dr. William Taylor, Dr. Thomas Gillespie, Dr. Alexander Gerard, Dr. George Wm. Wood, John Morison, and William Peebles, ministers; with Mr. Hardie, and Professors William Richardson and John Anderson, ruling elders.

Throughout the body of this work these Paraphrases have been annotated in full. For reference, the first lines are here given with the numbers as they appear in 1781. Where an alternative line is given in italics the note will be found under that line.

i. Originally published in 1745–51.

41. And shall we then go on to sin
Shall we go on to sin
42. As when the Hebrew prophet raised
So did the Hebrew prophet raise
53. Behold my servant! see him rise
63. Behold by amazing gift of love
Behold the amazing gift of love
66. Behold the glories of the Lamb
10. Behold! the mountain of the Lord
In latter days, the mount of God
11. Behold what witnesses unseen
61. Blest is the man whose soft affection
33. Father of all! we bow to thee

60. Father of peace, and God of love!
70. Hark, the glad sound, the Saviour comes
86. How bright these glorious spirits shine!
How bright these glorious spirits shine!
93. How few receive with cordial faith
94. How glorious Zion's courts appear
How honourable is the place
1. How should the sons of Adam's race
15. How vain are all things here below
16. How wretched was our former state
Lord, we confess our numerous faults
26. Ho! ye that thirst, approach the spring
34. I'm not ashamed to own my Lord
37. I will extol thee, my God, my King
With joy we meditate the grace
38. Just and devout old Simeon liv'd
Now let Thy servant die in peace
13. Keep silence, all ye sons of men
Now let our souls ascend above
48. Let Christian faith and hope dispel
Now let our souls ascend above
1. Let heav'n arise, let earth appear
Now let a spacious world arise
62. Let not the wicked man employ their thoughts
67. Lo! what a glorious sight appears
85. My ears is ring; my warfare's o'er
Death may dissolve my body now
34. My soul and spirit, join with Joy
41. O all ye works of God, rejoice
2. O God of Bethel! by whose hand
81. Soon shall this earthly frame dissolv'd
6. The rush may rise where waters flow
Nor grows the rush without the mire
49. Though eloquence with flowing voice
Behold the speech whose lust and voice
49. Though perfect eloquence adorn'd
Though all men's eloquence adorn'd
34. Thou spake the Saviour of the world
With solemn thanksgiving our Lord
64. To him that lov'd the souls of men
To Him that lov'd the souls of men
41. Ungrateful sinners! whereso this scorn
46. Vain are the hopes the sons of men
32. What though no flow'rs the fig-tree clothe
As from the saints' foundation stands
16. When Israel's God to favour takes
In his surrounding faith
37. While humble shepherds watch'd their flocks
While shepherds watch'd their flocks by night
39. Why sit'st thou forth thine anxious plaint
Whence do our mournful thoughts arise
31. Ye heav'ns send forth your song of praise!
Now shall my inward joys arise
32. Ye who the name of Jesus bear
Now let our souls ascend above
43. You now must hear my voice no more

ii. Added in 1781.

29. Amidst the mighty, where is he
35. As long as life its term extends Life is the time to serve the Lord
18. Ah! what avails the sceptred race
21. Almost, ye trifles that dwell remote
44. Behold the Saviour on the cross
56. Come, let us to the Lord our God
57. Come, sinners, to the gospel feast
16. In life's last days, when age unsightly pours
19. In streets, and orchings of the gates
63. Lo! in the last of days behold
17. O bring your tribute to the skies
Sing of Mount Zion's happy lot
53. Take comfort, Christians! when your friends
14. The race that long in darkness pin'd
8. Tho' trouble springs not from the dust
Why should the children of a king
31. Thus speaks the Almighty to every man
27. Thus speaks the High and Lofty One
The High and Holy One hath spoke
35. 'Twas on that night when doom'd to know
24. What shall I render to my God
14. While thus I tread the paths of mirth
Let such as would walk with the devil
9. Who can resist th' Almighty arm
12. Ye indolent and slothful race

iii. Hymns added in 1781.

4. Blest morning! whose first dawning rays
Blest'd morning, whose young dawning rays
5. The hour of my departure's come
7. The spacious firmament on high
1. When all thy mercies, O my God
3. When rising from the bed at death

The Paraphrases of 1751 had been printed at the end of some editions of the Psalter of 1650 (e.g. by Colin Macfarquhar, Edinburgh, 1771), and though the right of printing the Paraphrases of 1781 was assigned to the Church printer up to 1809, yet before the end of the century the King's printer had begun to add them to the Psalter, and they are still almost universally so printed. [J. M.]

Scriver, Christian, s. of Christian Scriver (Schriver, Schreiber), merchant at Rendsburg in Holstein, was b. at Rendsburg, Jan. 2, 1629; and was from his birth destined for the ministry. His father d., of the plague, in 1635, but by the help of a rich great-uncle, he was able eventually to matriculate at the University of Rostock in Oct., 1647 (M.A., 1649). In 1650 he became tutor to a family at Segeberg, near Lübeck. While visiting a married half-sister at Stendal, he preached there with much acceptance, and was appointed, in 1653, archidiaconus of St. James's Church there. He then became, in 1667, pastor of St. James's Church at Magdeburg, where he was also appointed, in 1674, assessor at the consistory, in 1676 as Scholarch, in 1679 as Senior; and in 1685 had also the parishes and schools of the so-called Holzkreis placed under his inspection. At length he found his work too heavy, and, in 1690, accepted an invitation to Quedlinburg as consistorialrath and chief court preacher at the church of St. Servatius, and also as private chaplain to Anna Dorothea, Duchess of Saxony, and Abbess of the Lutheran Stift at Quedlinburg. After a series of strokes of paralysis, he d., at Quedlinburg, April 3, 1693 (Koch, iv. 79; Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xiv. p. 1, &c.).

Scriver was a most popular, useful, and influential preacher; his earnestness being deepened by the memory of his many wonderful escapes from accident and pestilence. He was also the author of various devotional works, of which Koch enumerates 18, and Wetzer & Welte 200 Erbauliche Andachten, Magdeburg, 1663 (1671, and later eds., have 400 Andachten; English version, as Gotthold's Emblems, by H. Bennin, n.d., Edinburgh, 1697); his Seelen-Schatz, in 5 parts 1675-92; and his Gottsolch's Geistliche Sinn-Bilder, 1671 (1680, &c.).

It is difficult to say how many hymns Scriver wrote, apparently about ten. He refers to one or two in his Seelenschatz and his Andachten, but does not give the full texts. A number are included, as by him, in C. C. Wetzenbach's Geistliche Lieder-Schatz, published at Wittenberg, in 1738, as the Seelenschatz Kraft und Saft, and C. G. Weinschenk, pastor of St. Ulrich's in Magdeburg, in his Evangelische Lieder of Scriver (Magdeburg and Leipzig, 1720), gives a list of those he considers genuine.

Those of Scriver's hymns which have passed into English are:—

i. Auf, Seel, und danke deinem Herrn. Morning. Included, 1704, as above, and in 1729, also marked as by Scriver. But Scriver's son-in-law, Johann Heinrich Häweker [b., 1640, at Kalbe, near Magdeburg, became diaconus, and, in 1693, pastor at Kalbe; latterly, also, inspector of the Holzkreis; and d. at Kalbe, in 1722], in his Dreyfach schallend und nachhallend Kirchen-Echo, Leipzig, 1695, p. 3, claims it as his own. It is in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1078. Tr. as, "To God, my Soul, Thank-offerings pay." By H. L. Hachtel, 1842, p. 30.

ii. Der lieben Sonne Licht und Pracht. Evening. This is Scriver's best hymn. It seems to be earlier than 1671, as in that year Scriver quotes st. viii., in his Andachten, as above. According to tradition it was written one evening when Scriver was disturbed by hearing outside a profane song sung to a beautiful melody; whereupon he, grieved that the melody should be so misapplied, composed this hymn for it. Bamberg, in his Anthologie, iii. p. 203, prints the hymn from the Volksthümliches G. B., Hamburg and Ratzeburg, 1684, in 9 sts. of 7 l. In the Lüneburg Stadt. G. B., 1686, No. 1907, it is marked as "M. C. S.;" and in Häweker's Kirchen-Echo, 1695, p. 30, as M. C. Scrivers. It is also in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1153. Regarding it Lauxmann, in Koch, viii. 201, speaks thus:—"Of the beautiful hymns of this true Teacher, the Chrysostom of our Lutheran church, in which the thoughts of Gerhardt's evening hymn [p. 803, i.] ring and are powerfully re-echoed; st. vi.-viii., are of the greatest force, and of these especially st. viii." He also gives a portion of a sermon on Rogation Sunday, 1671, in which Scriver quotes st. viii. as expressing the deepest sentiments of his heart. Tr. as:—

i. With Thee I lay me down to sleep. This is a tr. of st. v., viii., viii., as No. 481, in pt. i. of the Moravian Ll. &c., 1754. It is also found in the following forms:—

ii. In peace I'll now lie down to sleep. In the Moravian M. &c., 1789.

iii. In peace will I lie down to sleep. In the Moravian M. &c., 1886.

2. My praise again I offer Thee. A tr. of st. iv., v., by A. T. Russell, as No. 6, in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

3. The lovely Sun has now fulfilled. This is a tr. of st. i., iv., v., ix., dated 1882, by M. W. Stryker, in his Hys. & Verses, 1883, p. 28, reprinted in his Christian Chorals, 1885, No. 16. In his Song of Mirion, 1888, p. 29, it begins "The golden Sun has now fulfilled."

iii. Hier leg ich nun mein Haupt zu meinen Füssen. Repentance. Lent. Included in Häweker's Kirchen-Echo, 1695, p. 351, in 28 sts. of 4 l.; reprinted in Burg's G. B., Breslau, 1746, No. 1582, &c. It is included as Scriver's, in 1704, as above; and so in Burg, and by Koch; but Weinschenk does not give it as his; and Häweker gives it without name of author. Tr. in C. U. as:—

Here, O my God, I cast me at Thy feet. This is a tr. of st. i., iii., v., vi., x., xi., xii., xiii., xvii., xxviii., by Miss Waikworth, in her Lyra Germ. 1st Ser., 1855, p. 69. In her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 45, it begins, "Here, O my God, low at Thy feet I bend me:" is altered in metre; and omits the tr. of st. iii., ii. 3, 4; v.; vi., ii. 1, 2; and xxiv.

Scudder, Eliza, niece of Dr. E. H. Sears (q.v.), was b. in Boston, U.S.A., Nov. 14, 1821, and now (1888) lives in Salem, Massachusetts. Formerly an Unitarian, she some time ago joined the Protestant Episcopal Church. Her hymns in C. U. are:—

1. From past regret and present (faithlessness) fastlessness. Repentance. In the Quiet Hours, Boston, 1875.

2. I cannot find Thee! Still on restless pinion. Seeking after God. Appeared in Longfellow and Johnson's Unitarian Hys. of the Spirit, 1864.

3. In Thee my powers and treasures live. Faith and Joy. In the Hys. of the Spirit, 1864. It is from a poem of 24 lines, in 3 parts, entitled "Three States," entitled, "The New Heaven," and dated 1855.

4. Life of our life, and light of all our seeing. Prayer. In the Boston Quiet Hours, 1875.

5. The day is done; the weary day of thought and toil is past. Morning. In Sermons and Songs of the Christian Life, by E. H. Sears, Boston, 2nd ed., 1858, p. 179, and reprinted in the Boston Hys. of the Spirit, 1864. This is possibly her finest hymn.

6. Thou great Giver, encircling all. Divine Gross. Appeared in Dr. E. H. Sears's Pictures of the Olden Time, as shown in the Portraits of a Family of Fifty Generations, Boston, 1857, p. 11, and reprinted in the Boston Hys. of the Spirit, 1864. It has sometimes been taken as "An Ancient Catholic Hymn" (Universalist's Ps. & Hys. 1885), but is error.

7. Thou long disowned, reviled, opprest. The Spirit of Truth. In the Boston Hys. of the Spirit, 1864.

Of these hymns, Nos. 2, 6, and 7 are in Dr. Martineau's Hymns, 1873. Some of Miss Scudder's poetical pieces appeared in Dr. Sears's Monthly Religious Magazine. Her Hymns and Sonnets, by E. S., were pub. by Lockwood, Brooks & Co., Boston, 1876. From this her hymn "Thou hast gone up again" (Ascension), is taken. [F. M. B.]

Σὲ καὶ νῦν ἐλεογοῦμεν. Gregory of Nazianzus. [Evening.] This hymn is given in his Works, Paris, 1611, i. in Daniel iii. 13; and in the Anthol. Græca Carm. Christ., 1871, p. 29. It is tr. as "And now again at night" by A. W. Chatfield in his Songs and Hys. of Earliest Greek Christian Poets, 1876, p. 122, in 8 st. of 4 l. (See Greek Hymnody, § iv.) It dates 324-380, and contains 28 lines. [J. J.]

Σὲ μὲν ἀργομένας. Synesius, Bp. of Ptolemais. [Morning or Evening.] Hymn iv. of ten hymns composed by him at various periods of his life, 373-430. The full Greek text is found in the Anthol. Græca Carm. Christ., 1871, p. 15 in 229 lines. It is tr. as "To Thee at evening grey," by A. W. Chatfield in his Songs and Hys. of Earliest Greek Christian Poets, 1876, p. 96, in 27 st. of 8 l. (See Greek Hymnody, § v.) It is an Evening Hymn, and contains several passages of great beauty which might be utilised in the form of a cento for congregational use. Another tr. is "Thee at the break of sacred day," by Alan Stevenson in his The Ten Hymns of Synesius, &c., 1865. [J. J.]

Σὲ τὸν ἄφθιτον μοναρχην. Gregory of Nazianzus. [Praise to Christ.] This hymn to Christ is given in his Works, Paris, 1611, i.; in Daniel iii. 3; and in the Anthol. Græca Carm. Christ., 1871, p. 23, in 31 lines. It is tr. as "O Thou the One supreme," by A. W. Chatfield in his Songs and Hys. of Earliest Greek Christian Poets, 1876, p. 93, in 13 st. of 6 l. It is a fine hymn gracefully translated. (See Greek Hymnody, § iv.) It dates 324-389. [J. J.]

Seagrave, Robert, M.A., s. of Robert Seagrave, Vicar of Twyford, Leicestershire, was b. at Twyford, Nov. 22, 1695, and educated at Clare College, Cambridge, where he graduated in 1714. Taking Holy Orders he entered most earnestly into the movement that being carried forward by Wesley and Whitefield; and between 1731 and 1746 he issued numerous letters and pamphlets, &c., designed to awaken in the clergy a deeper earnestness in their work. In 1739 he was appointed Sunday Evening Lecturer at Lorimers' Hall, London, where he continued to preach till 1750. He also occupied Whitefield's Tabernacle from time to time. His hymns, which were better known and more highly appreciated by the older compilers than those in modern days, and will still repay perusal, were included in his collection, pub. by him for use at the Lorimer's Hall, as Hymns for Christian Worship, partly composed, and partly collected from Various Authors, 1742. The 6th ed. was pub. in 1748, and the originals were reprinted by D. Sedgwick as Seagrave's Hymns, in 1805. Two of these hymns are still in C. U. :—

1. Now may the Spirit's holy fire. Opening of a Place of Worship. This, from Hym. for Christian Worship, &c., 1742, was given by G. Whitefield as the opening hymn of his Hym. for Social Worship, &c., 1753. It was repeated in Rippon's Bap. Sel., 1787, and again in later collections to modern hymn-books.

2. Rise, my soul, and stretch thy wings. Pilgrim's Song. Also from his Hymns, &c., 1742, into G. Whitefield's Hymns, &c., 1753; and again in others to modern hymn books. [J. J.]

Searcher of hearts, before Thy face. P. Doddridge. [Lent.] Pub. by Job Orton, in his posthumous ed. of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1755, No. 250, in 3 st. of 4 l., and headed, "Peter's Admonition to Simon Magus. Acts viii. 21–24." It was repeated in J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1839. [J. J.]

Sears, Edmund Hamilton, D.D., s. of Joseph Sears, was b. at Sandisfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, April 6, 1810, and educated at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., where he graduated in 1834; and at the Theological School at Cambridge. In 1839 he became pastor of the First Church (Unitarian) at Wayland, Massachusetts; then at Lancaster in the same State, in 1840; again at Wayland, in 1847; and finally at Weston, Massachusetts, in 1865. He d. at Weston, Jan. 14, 1876. He pub.:—

(1) Regeneration, 1854; (2) Pictures of the Olden Time, as shown in the Fortunes of a Family, Boston, 1857, enlarged ed., 1872; (3) The Fourth Gospel the Heart of Christ; (4) Sermons and Songs of the Christian Life, 1875, in which his hymns are collected. Also co-editor of the Monthly Religious Magazine.

Of his hymns the following are in C. U. :—

1. Calm on the listening ear of night. Christmas. This hymn "was first published in its original form, in the Boston Observer, 1834; afterwards, in the Christian Register, 1849, with the omission of the last stanza by the author, and, as thus amended, was reprinted entire in the Monthly Repository, vol. xxxv." (Putnam, 1858, p. 306.) This amended text is given in Putnam's Singers and Songs of the Liberal Faith, p. 306, in 5 st. of 4 l. In Martin's Carols of Peace and America, the text is abbreviated. Its use is extensive.

2. It came upon the midnight clear. Christmas. The "Rev. Dr. Morison writes to us, 'Sears's second Christmas hymn was sent to me as editor of the Christian Register. I was much pleased with it, was much delighted with it, and before it came out in the Register, read it at a Christmas celebration of Dr. Lunt's Sunday School in Quincy. I always feel that, however poor my Christmas sermon may be, the reading and singing of this hymn will make up for the defects.'" (Putnam, p. 304.) It appeared in the Christian Register, Dec., 1849, in 5 st. of 4 l., and is now in extensive use in G. Britain and America.

3. Lo! on a narrow neck of land. Charitable Meeting. Appeared in the Christian Register, Boston, 1834, and in Hedge and Johnson's Hym. of the Spirit, Boston, 1864, in 2 st. of 8 l.

Dr. Sears's two Christmas hymns rank with the best on that holy season in the English languages. Although a member of the Unitarian body, his views were rather Swedenborgian than Unitarian. He held always to the absolute Divinity of Christ. [P. M. B.]

being specially dwelt on by him. It was in the very early hours of the following morning that, with the words, "Hallelujah, Praise the Lord," on his lips, he fell asleep; and on the 19th March, 1879, he was buried at Abney Park cemetery. He may well be called the father of English Hymnology; and it is to be specially remembered, to his honour, that, with all drawbacks of education, temperament, and narrow theological prepossessions, he, by the collection and comparison of hymn and hymnological literature, and by careful annotation, made it possible for others to reap a rich harvest, by bringing their education, critical acumen, wide sympathies, and accurate knowledge of Biblical, classical, ecclesiastical, and historical subjects to bear upon the stores of hymnological wealth which he had accumulated, but which, to a very great extent, he could not use. [W. T. B.]

Sedgwick, John, D.D., was b. at Wimbledon, April 24, 1823, and educated at Christ Church and Magdalen College, Oxford; B.A. 1846, D.D. 1859. He was a Fellow of Magdalen College 1855–63; Bursar, 1859–60; and Vice-President 1860–61. He was also successively Curate of Grimston, Somerset, 1854; Chaplain of High Legh, Cheshire, 1858; Rector of Great Houghton, Northants, 1862; of Stoke-Climsland, Cornwall, 1872; and of Birdbrook, Essex, 1876. He has pub. History of France, 1840: History of Europe, 1850; Hints of the Establishment of Public Industrial Schools, 1853; and Orems: Short Prayers in Verse for Sundays and Holy Days, suggested by the Services of the Church of England, 1852. From the last work his Quinquagesima hymn, "Lord of love, Whose words have taught us," in Kennedy, is taken, and many more of equal merit remain. [J. J.]

Sedulius, Coelius. The known facts concerning this poet, as contained in his two letters to Macedonius, are, that in early life, he devoted himself to heathen literature; that comparatively late in life he was converted to Christianity; and that amongst his friends were Galliearus and Perpetuus. The place of his birth is generally believed to have been Rome; and the date when he flourished 450. For this date the evidence is, that he referred to the Commentaries of Jerome, who d. 420; is perused by Cassiodorus, who d. 570, and by Gelasius, who was pope from 492 to 496. His works were collected, after his death, by Asterius, who was consul in 494. They are (1) Carmen Paschale, a poem which treats of the whole Gospel story; (2) Opus Paschale, a prose rendering of the former; (3) Elegia, a poem, of 110 lines, on the same subject as the Carmen; (4) Veteris et Novi Testamenti Collatio; and (5) the hymn, "A solis ortus cardine" (p. 4, l.). Arevali (1794) quotes 16 mss. of Sedulius's work, ranging in date from the 7th to the 16th cent. The best ed. of his Opera is that by Dr. J. Huemer, pub. at Vienna in 1885. Arevali's text is printed in Migne's P.P. Lat. vol. xix. This Sedulius must not be confounded with the Irish, or with the Scottish Sedulius, as is sometimes done. [J. J.]

See amid the winter's snow. E. Caswall. [Christmas.] Pub. in his Masque of Mary, &c., 1858, p. 259, in 7 st. of 4 l., and a chorus. It was repeated in his Hym. and Poems, 1873, p. 280. It is given, in an abbreviated form, in several hymn-books. It sometimes begins with an altered form of st. ii. as, "See in yonder manger low." [J. J.]

See, gracious God, before Thy throne. Anne Steele. [Public Humiliation.] Written for the Public Fast, Feb. 6, 1756, in 7 st. of 4 l., and published in her Poems on Subjects chiefly Devotional, 1760, vol. i. pp. 248-9; in the new ed. of same, 1780, vol. i. pp. 248-9; and in D. Sedgwick's reprint of her Hymns, &c., 1863, p. 113. In its full form it is not in common use. From it, however, the following centos are taken:—

1. Almighty God, before Thy throne. This, as given in Rickerstett's Christian Psalmody, 1833, No. 274, and some of the older collections, is the above slightly altered, together with the omission of st. v. The same first line begins a cento in a st. usually found in modern collections. This is given in the Leeds Hym. Bk., 1853, altered, sometimes as in Stevenson's Hym. for Church & Home, No. 3, and again as in Stopp's Songs of G. & G., No. 86.

2. Almighty Lord, before Thy throne, is the same first line of a cento in Kennedy, 1863, No. 139, and in Hall, No. 136; and in a fuller form of 3 st. of 8 l., being st. i., i.–ii., v.–vii. (again altered), and a doxology.

3. Behold, O Lord, before Thy throne. This cento in the New Cong., 1859, No. 904, is composed of st. i., iii., iv., and a new st. beginning "Thy mercy, Lord, is prayer," which we have not traced. The second stanza of the original "Tremendous judgments from Thine hand," sometimes given as "Just judgments," &c., and again as "Dire judgments," &c., has, according to a note in Leeds Hym. Bk., a special reference to the Lisbon earthquake of 1755.

4. See, gracious God, before Thy throne. An abbreviated form of the original in a few modern collections. [J. J.]

See how great a flame aspires. C. Wesley. [Praise for the Success of the Gospel.] In Jackson's Memoirs of the Rev. Charles Wesley, small ed., 1848, p. 191, this hymn is referred to under the date of Nov. 1746, as follows:—

"The very animated and emphatic hymn beginning—

'See how great a flame aspires, Kindled by a spark of grace,' was also written by Mr. Charles Wesley on the joyful occasion of his ministerial success, and that of his fellow labourers, in Newcastle and its vicinity. Perhaps the reader cannot do better than turn to the hymn, and read this collection, which illuminates the whole of that part of the country in the darkest nights."

The hymn was pub. in Hys. & Sac. Poems, 1746, vol. i., No. 4, of 4 hymns, written "After Preaching to the Newcastle Colliers," in 4 st. of 8 l. (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. v. p. 120). It was given in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 209, and is found in numerous collections. [J. J.]

See how the rising sun. Elizabeth Scott. [Morning.] Appeared in J. Dobell's New Selection, &c., 1806, No. 449, in 7 st. of 4 l., and headed "Morning Hymn." It is given as "See how the morning sun" in H. W. Beecher's Plymouth Coll., 1855, and as "See how the morning sun," in the Rev. Episco. Hymns, 1860, and the Hymnal, 1878. There is also a cento in C. U. beginning with st. iii. "Serene I lay me down." [J. J.]

See in the vineyard of the Lord. [The barren Fig-tree; or, Close of the Year.] This hymn is given in 6 st. of 4 l. at the close of Sermon xvii. of Short Sermons to Children, to which are added Short Hymns suited to the Subject. By a Lady [Rebecca Wilkinson].

London: Printed and Sold by the Philanthropic Society, St. George's Fields, s. n., [circa 1795]. It appeared in an improved form in the 1815 Appendix to T. Cotterill's Sel., No. 208, in 9 st. of 4 l., and again in the 1819 ed. of the same, No. 203. It is in several collections in G. Britain and America, and is sometimes said to be by "Cotterill, based upon Doddridge," and again by "Cotterill, based upon Harbottle." It has, however, little or nothing in common with any hymn by Doddridge; nor with Harbottle's, "See how the fruitless figtree stands," which appeared in The Comprehensive Hymns, 1844, though probably written sometime before that date. [See Harbottle, J., p. 498, i.] [J. J.]

See Israel's gentle Shepherd stand. P. Doddridge. [The Good Shepherd.] 1st pub. by Job Orton in his posthumous ed. of Doddridge's Hymns, 1755, No. 198, in 5 st. of 4 l., and headed "Christ's condescending Regard to little Children;" and again in J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1839, No. 221. In addition to its use in its original form it is found as follows:—

1. In Israel's gracious Shepherd stands. This was given in Rickersteth's Christian Psalmody, 1833, No. 146, and repeated in his Hymnal, 1870, No. 146. It was made by Dr. Cudworth for the American Prayer Bk. Coll., 1826, No. 87. It is in several modern collections, and is suitable for Holy Baptism.

2. In Saviour's gentle voice. This is in Kennedy, 1863, No. 231. It is the American text rewritten by Mr. Kennedy.

In these various forms this hymn has a wide circulation. [J. J.]

See, sinners, in the gospel glass. C. Wesley. [Invitation.] Pub. in Hymns on God's Everlasting Love, 1741, No. 10, in 18 st. of 6 l.; and again in the P. Works, 1868-72, vol. iii. p. 20. In the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, it was broken up thus:—

1. See, sinners, in the gospel glass, st. i.-iv.
2. Sinners, believe the gospel word, st. vi.-ix.
3. Would Jesus have the sinner die? st. xii., xiv., xvi., xviii.

These hymns have been repeated in several collections. The centos, "Behold the Lamb of God, Who bears The sins of all," &c., in Mercer's Church Psalter & H. Bk., 1855; and "See where the lame, the halt, the blind," in Dr. Alexander's Augustine H. Bk., 1849 and 1865, are also from the original hymn. [J. J.]

See the Conqueror mounts in triumph. Bp. C. Wordsworth, of Lincoln. [Ascension.] 1st pub. in his Holy Year, 1862, p. 99, in 10 st. of 4 double lines. In the later editions of the Holy Year it has been divided into two parts, Pt. ii. beginning with st. vi. "Holy Ghost, Illuminator." Usually these two parts are given as separate hymns for congregational use. In addition a cento, beginning with st. ii., "Who is this that comes in glory?" is given as a hymn. The original is one of Bishop Wordsworth's finest compositions, and is the nearest approach in style and treatment to a Greek Ode known to us in the English language. The amount of Holy Scripture compressed into these 40 lines is wonderful. Prophecy, Types, Historical Facts, Doctrinal Teaching, Ecstatic Praise, all are here; and the result is one grand rush of holy song. [J. J.]

See the [good] kind Shepherd, Jesus, stands. [The Good Shepherd.] This hymn is found in [Rebecca Wilkinson's] Short Sermons to Children, To which are added Short Hymns suited to the Subject [circa 1792]; later ed. pub. at Bath 1788, No. 1, in 4 st. of 4 l. In J. Benson's Hys. for Children, selected chiefly from the publications of the Rev. John and Charles Wesley and Dr. Watts, &c., 1814, it was given anonymously as No. 15. From that collection it has passed into a large number of hymn-books for children. In the Short Sermons there is nothing to show by whom the hymn was composed. It is sometimes given as "See the good Shepherd, Jesus, stands." [W. T. B.]

See where the Lord His glory spreads. T. Kelly. [Ascension.] Appeared in his Hymns, &c., 2nd ed., 1806, in 6 st. of 4 l., and again in later editions of the same (ed. 1853, No. 46). In Hatfield's Church H. Bk., N. Y., 1872, and other American collections, it begins with st. ii., altered to "Around the Saviour's lofty throne." In this form it is a good hymn on "Christ as King." [J. J.]

Seelenbräutigam, O du Gottessamm! N. L. von Zinzendorf. [Fellow Christ.] Written in Sept., 1721. 1st pub. as No. 631 in the Sammlung p. und l. Lieder, Leipzig & Görlitz, 1725, in 11 st. of 6 l.; repeated in the Herrnhut G. B., 1735, and in Knapp's ed. of Zinzendorf's Geistl. Lieder, 1845, p. 22. The form which has attained the greatest popularity in German is a cento beginning "Jesu, geh' voran" (p. 889, ii.). The only tr. in C. U. from the full form is:—

O Thou to whose all-searching sight. A free tr. by J. Wesley, in the Wesley Fs. & Hys., 1738, and H. and Sacred Poems, 1739 (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. i., p. 137), in 6 st. of 4 l. St. i.-iii. are based on st. i., ii.; st. v.-vi. on x., xi; while st. iv. is from st. xii. of the hymn "Wer ist wohl wie du," by J. A. Freylinghausen (p. 896, ii.). This tr. was included in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 330 (1875, No. 339), and has since appeared in many collections, e.g. recently in Church Hys., 1871, Hyl. Cong., 1876, Allan's Cong. Psalmist Hyl., 1886, &c.; and in America in the Episcopal Hymnal, 1871; Pres. Hymnal, 1874; Evangelical Hyl., N. Y., 1880, &c. The hymn "As through this wilderness we stray," in the Marylebone Ps. & Hys., 1851, Irish Church Hyl., 1869 and 1873, Universal H. Bk., 1885, &c., consists of st. iii.-vi. of Wesley altered. Wesley's tr. in whole or in part is in extensive use. [J. M.]

Selnecker, Nicolaus, b.n., s. of Georg Selnecker (Selnecce, Schellenecker, who was protonotarius to the Nürnberg magistracy, but lived at Hersbruck near Nürnberg) was b. at Hersbruck Dec. 5, 1532. In 1536 he was removed to Nürnberg, and became during his school time, when only twelve years old, organist at the chapel in the Kaiserburg there. He went to the university of Wittenberg in 1550 (where he became a favourite pupil of Melanchthon), graduated M.A. on July 31, 1554, and subsequently lectured as a privat-docent, sometimes to 300 students. In the end of 1557 he was appointed second court preacher at Dresden, and tutor to the heir apparent Prince Alexander, having also to supervise the education of the choirboys of the royal chapel. He was ordained at Wittenberg Jan. 6, 1558. The principal theologians at the Saxon court at that time were inclined to follow Melanchthon's lead and to approximate to Calvin's teachings regarding Consubstantiation. When therefore Selnecker thought it his duty openly to declare his adhesion to strict Lutheranism, he found his position almost untenable. When Martin Hoffmann of the Neustadt church in Dresden preached against the Elector August's passion for game preserving, Selnecker took Hoffmann's part. His enemies took advantage of this, and managed so that after Hoffmann had been expelled from Dresden, in August, 1564, Selnecker was requested to seek work elsewhere (see No. iii. below. The hymn more probably refers to Selnecker's own troubles at this period). He preached his farewell sermon at Dresden on March 15, 1565, and on the 26th he entered on his new office of Professor of Theology at Jena. After the siege of Gotha, Duke Johann Wilhelm of Saxony recalled Wigand and other professors of Theology who had been expelled from Jena, in 1561, as adherents of Flacius; and Selnecker, not being so extreme a Lutheran as they, had to leave Jena. Thereupon the Elector August again received him into favour, appointed him professor of Theology at Leipzig, and also pastor of St. Thomas's church and Superintendent of Leipzig. He entered on his duties at Leipzig in August 1568, and for some time worked quietly and successfully. In July 1570 the Elector acceded to the request of Duke Julius of Brunswick for Selnecker's services, and gave Selnecker leave of absence to go to Wolfenbüttel as court preacher and general superintendent. Here he succeeded in inducing the clergy to receive the so-called Saxon Confession, and persevered in zealous visitations of churches, schools, &c. After 1572 he resided at Gandersheim, took an interest in the Gymnasium there, &c. In 1573 he also visited, and drew up a book of Church Order and Discipline for the district of Oldenburg-Jever. But in Brunswick, what with Martin Chemnitz the Superintendent of Brunswick, who was a High Lutheran, the Duke who wished for peace, and the other General Superintendent at Wolfenbüttel, Selnecker found it a difficult matter to work comfortably, and was himself accused of Crypto-Calvinism. He therefore gladly accepted the Elector August's recall to Leipzig, and began to lecture there again in Feb. 1574. In 1576 he was once more appointed pastor of St. Thomas's Church, and Superintendent. At Leipzig the sacramental controversy broke out afresh, and Selnecker became deeply involved therein. He was then engaged in drawing up the Formula of Concord (meant to unite the Lutherans, but to exclude the Romanists on one hand, and the Calvinists on the other), which was finally revised on May 28, and pub. on July 23, 1577. The Formula of Concord was so far a success that it was very largely subscribed, but at the same time its authors, and specially Selnecker, were subjected to the most violent abuse both from the High Lutherans and from the Calvinists, so much so that he called 1579 his "year of patience and silence." For a few years immediately thereafter his life was a more peaceful one, and he found time to devote to poetry and music. At this time he assisted greatly in the building up of the famous Motett Choir of St. Thomas's Church, which J. S. Bach afterwards conducted. But on the death of the Elector August in 1586 the real direction of affairs passed into the hands of Dr. Nicolaus Crell, Chancellor to the Elector Christian I., and under his rule the Lutheran clergy were gradually displaced by Melanchthonians and Crypto-Calvinists. When the new court preacher Salmuth began to issue a German Bible with notes in which he clearly taught Calvinism and impugned the Formula of Concord, Selnecker published a pamphlet in opposition, and was in consequence deprived of his offices on May 17, 1589. For a time he stayed on in his own house in Leipzig, and used his pen in controversy. But after having received, on Oct. 22, notice to cease writing, he thought it prudent to leave Leipzig. He found many sympathisers, and after a short time spent in Halle and then in Magdeburg, he accepted the appointment of Superintendent at Hildesheim. Here he had many anxious and weighty matters to settle, and was finally called on, in 1591, to arbitrate in matters of dispute at Augsburg. Returning from Augsburg in stormy December weather, and being worn out and seriously ill, he reached Hildesheim half dead, and was confined to his room till April. Meantime the Elector Christian I. had suddenly died, and his widow, after deposing the Chancellor Crell, proceeded to recall those whom Crell had banished. Selnecker, spite of his weakness, welcomed the idea of returning to Leipzig, left Hildesheim on May 9, and reached Leipzig on May 19; but only to die. He d. at Leipzig, May 24, 1592 (Koch, ii. 1917, v. 656; Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xiv. 76; G. A. Will's Nürnbergisches Gelehrten Lexicon, pt. iii. 1757, p. 670, and Supplement, pt. viii. 1808, p. 198, &c.). Koch dates his birth 1530, but Will quotes an apparently genuine autobiographical sketch in which Selnecker gives the date 1532; and the reference which Koch, ii. 191, makes to Selnecker's Paraphrasis Psalterii is full of misprints, for that work was pub. in 1573 (not 1583), and the date after Ps. cl. is "Absolutus Gandesiae [i.e. Gandersheim], Anno 1573, die Mali 25, qui est dies Urbani, Anno actatis 42 (not 43)."

Selnecker, as we have seen, was a prominent figure in the ecclesiastical history of Germany in the latter half of the sixteenth century, and a good illustration of the manner in which controversy was then carried on. He was the author of many theological and controversial works, in German and Latin, perhaps the most important being his Institutio Religionis Christianæ, Frankfort, 1615-17 (see Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, as above). He was also, between 1562 and 1587, engaged in writing the short hymns current at the period. Amid the manifold changes and chances of his life he found inspiration and consolation in the study of the Psalms, which he loved from his youth upwards. In Latin verse he left a lyrical gloss on the Psalms as Paraphrasis Psalterii, Hofkirchrath, 1573 (Koch, ii. 191, misprints the date as 1583), and in German verse as above briefly recited in Gymnasialvorsteher Richter of Zeitz). His German hymns partake for the most part of the objective churchly character of the hymns of the Reformation period, and indeed contain many reminiscences of them. Of the rest, many only too faithfully mirror the misfortunes and changes and chances of the times, and the author's own restless and careless in style. Still there remain not a few worthy of note, in which a genuine piety, a deep and fervent love to the Saviour, and a zeal for the best interests of His Church on earth, are expressed in clear, flowing and forcible words. Of his hymns, 19 were published separately or interspersed in his prose works, e.g. his exposition of the Psalms (Ps. i.–l., 1st ed. 1562; li.–c., 1st ed. 1564; ci.–cl., 1st ed. 1566; complete ed. 1571); and the popular ed. (Der Psalter mit hurtzen Summarien, &c.) 1st pub. 1568. Others are found in his exposition of the Prophets (pt. i. 1st ed. 1578; pt. ii. 1st ed. 1579). Also in his Sibben Busz-Psalmen, Leipzig, 1594; in the Drey Predigten, Helmstädt, 1573 (contains three sermons preached by Selnecker, by Dr. Tilemann Heshusius, and by Dr. Hieronymus Mencelius, at the baptism of Anna Ursula, Duchess of Brunswick-Lüneburg. Appended to Selnecker's sermon are 8 hymns on Luther's Catechism), &c. They were collected, together with other pieces by various authors, in his Christliche Psalmen, &c., Nürnberg, 1587, and again in his Postille, 1591, where the German hymns are marked with his initials, and where various of the melodies and of the four-part settings seem also to be by him. A selection from his hymns, with a biographical sketch by Heinrich Müller, appeared in 1613. Other hymns by Selnecker are collected in that in Wackernagel's Deutsche Kirchenlied, vol. iv. Nos. 363–415, and in the bibliographical notices to that work the particulars of the original works in which they are found are given at length.

1040 SELNECKER, NICOLAUS SELNECKER, NICOLAUS

The hymns by Selnecker which have passed into English are:—

i. Ach bleib bei uns, Herr Jesu Christ. Peace and Ordinday. It has sometimes been said of this hymn that st. i., ii. are by Selnecker, and that the rest are a later addition. The opposite however is the case. The full form appeared in the Geistliche Psalmen, &c., Nürnberg, 1611, p. 597, in 9 st., viz.:—

1. Ach bleib bey uns, Herr Jesu Christ.
2. In dieser schweren betrübten Zeit.
3. Herr Jesu, hilff, dein Kirch erhalt.
4. Erhalt uns rein bey deinem Wort.
5. Steur Bapstum, Rotten, Mord und Brand.
6. Den rechten Glauben wahr dich.
7. Ihr Hach und Ehr, Herr Jesu Christ.
8. Dein Wort ist unsers Hertzens Trost.
9. Gib dass wir leben in dein Wort.

[F. M. Bird.]

[F. M. Bird.]

Of this germany in 1575, as a translation, along with N. Herman's hymn, Jandet den Herren hoer und allermeist. It is a tr. of Melanchthon's "Vespera jam venit, nobiscum Christe manebo Exemplar hoc patuere tuum," &c. (Chrysander's Melanchthon, p. 442, Halle, 1865), and founded on Matt. xxiv. 29.

ii. Ach, mein Mitleid. First appeared in Christliche edud und Psalmen, sonderlich Kinder in der Jungfrau Schulen zu Freyberg zu loben und zu singen gebeten, Freiberg, 1587, in 5 st. of 8 l., and entitled "Ein Gebet zu Gott in der Noth." &c., in Selnecker's Der Psalter, 1588.

St. ii. st. 2 of the hymn "Wir danken dir, Herr Jesu Christe, Dass du unser König wurdes bist," which is the rhymed prayer to Ps. cxiix., in Selnecker's Der Psalter, 1588.

St. ii. 4–6, form the hymn, "Herr Jesu, hilff, dein Kirch erhalt," which is the rhymed prayer to Ps. cxxii., in Selnecker's Der Psalter, 1618. See also Wackernagel, iv., p. 386.

The text of 1611 is in H. Thiele's ed. of Selnecker's Geistl. Lieder, 1855, p. 31, and in the Berlin G. L. S. ed. 1863, No. 408. The trs. in C. U. are from this text:—

1. Lord Jesus with Thy children stay. This is a tr. of st. 1, 2, 8, 6, 9, 3 by J. Swertner in the Moravian H. Bk. 1789, No. 6 (1886, No. 6).

2. Ah Jesu Christ, with us abide. This is a good tr. of st. 1–5, 8, by Dr. Kennedy as No. 41 in his Hymn. Christ. 1863, repeated in Holy Song, 1869.

3. Lord Jesu Christ, with us abide. For round us fall, &c. By Miss Winkworth, of st. 1, 2, in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 19, repeated in Bosworth's Bk. of Church Hys., 1865. It is slightly altered in Miss Winkworth's Christian Singers, 1869, p. 152.

4. Forsake us not, O Lord be near. By L. Heyl, in full, as No. 181 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl. 1880.

Other trs. are—(1) "Abide with us, O Jesu dear," as No. 1 in pt. ii. of Spiritual Songs for the Church, 1849. (2) "Lord Jesu Christ, with us abide, 'Tis eve," By R. J. Bushell, 1842, p. 69. (3) "With us, Lord Jesus Christ, abide." By Dr. G. Walker, 1868, p. 81.

ii. Christus der wahre Gottes Sohn. Holy Baptism. This is No. 4 of the 6 hymns by Selnecker, on Luther's Catechism, appended to one of Drey Predigten, 1572, and thence in Wackernagel, iv. p. 350, in 8 st. of 4 l. In the Ohio G. B. 1870, No. 239. Tr. as:—

Now Christ, the very Son of God. By C. H. L. Schmitt as No. 221 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl. 1880, st. i.–iii. are literal, iv.–vi. are based on iv.–viii. of the German.

iii. Hilf, Herr, mein Gott, in dieser Noth. Cross and Consolation. In his Christliche Psalmen, 1587, in 15 lines entitled "Anno 1565, God knows why." Theme in Wackernagel, iv. pp. 240–243 (with two other forms), and H. Thiele's ed. 1855, p. 45. It was probably written during his last months at Dresden. It has indeed been said to have been written to comfort Martin Hoffmann, diaconus of the Holy Cross Church at Dresden, on his expulsion after preaching about the Elector August's passion for hunting and game preserving; but the hymn is dated 1565, and Hoffmann left Dresden in August, 1564. The form tr. into English is:—

Hilf, Helffer, hilf in Angst und Noth. This is found in M. Moller's Manuale de praeparatione ad mortem, Görlitz, 1593, f. 114, in 3 st. of 4 l., among the hymns "composed by other spiritual persons." This is Wackernagel's second form, and is also in the Cun. L. S. 1851, No. 634. The reason why Moller did not claim it as his own was, most likely, because it was based on Selnecker. The trs. are:—

1. My Helper, aid! Thy mercy show. By A. T. Russell, in full, as No. 223 in his Ps. and Hys. 1851.

2. Help, Saviour! help in fear and need. By E. Cronenwett, in full, as No. 410 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl. 1880.

3. Help, Jesus, help! in woe, in need. By Miss Manington in her Footprints of the Holy Dead, &c., 1865, p. 8.

iv. Lass mich dein sein und bleiben. Close of Service. This is a beautiful st. of 8 l. which is very frequently used in Germany at the close of Divine service. It was written as his daily prayer and 1st pub. in his Passia, 1572, and thence in Wackernagel, iv. p. 251, and also in Thiele's ed. 1855, p. 68. In the Cun. L. S. 1851, No. 231, with two additional st. which Wetzel, iii. 215, says appeared in the Bielefeldt G. B. 1688. The trs. are:—

1. Let me be Thine for ever, My gracious. This is a tr. of st. i.–iii. by Dr. M. Loy as No. 230 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl. 1880.

2. Make me Thine own and keep me Thine. By Miss Winkworth in her Christian Singers of Germany, 1869, p. 152.

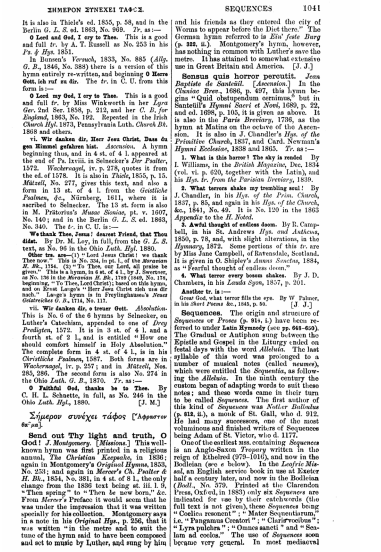
v. O Herre Gott, in meiner Noth. For the Dying. Founded on Ps. cxvi. 9. 1st pub. in his Der Psalter, 1572. Wackernagel iv. p. 390, quotes it from the ed. of 1578, in 8 st. of 6 l.



ΣΗΜΕΡΟΝ ΣΥΝΕΧΕΙ ΤΑΦΟΣ. SEQUENCES 1041

It is also in Thiele's ed. 1855, p. 58, and in the Berlin G. L. S. ed. 1863, No. 868. Tr. as:—

O Lord and God, I cry to Thee. This is a good and full tr. by A. T. Russell as No. 253 in his Ps. & Hys. 1851.

In Bunsen's Versuch, 1833, No. 885 (Allg. G. B., 1846, No. 388) there is a version of this hymn entirely re-written, and beginning O Herre Gott, ich ruf zu dir. The tr. in C. U. from this form is:—

O Lord my God, I cry to Thee. This is a good and full tr. by Miss Winkworth in her Lyra Ger. 2nd Ser. 1858, p. 212, and her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 192. Repeated in the Irish Church Hyl. 1873, Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk. 1868 and others.

vi. Wir danken dir, Herr Jesu Christ, Dass du gen Himmel gefahren bist. Ascension. A hymn beginning thus, and in 4 st. of 4 l. appeared at the end of Ps. lxviii. in Selnecker's Der Psalter, 1572. Wackernagel, iv. p. 378, quotes it from the ed. of 1578. It is also in Thiele, 1855, p. 15. Mützell, No. 277, gives this text, and also a form in 13 st. of 4 l. from the Geistliche Psalmen, &c., Nürnberg, 1611, where it is ascribed to Selnecker. The 13 st. form is also in M. Prätorius's Musae Sionae, pt. v. 1607, No. 140; and in the Berlin G. L. S. ed. 1863, No. 340. The tr. in C. U. is:—

We thank Thee, Jesus! dearest Friend, that Thou didst. By Dr. M. Loy, in full, from the G. L. S. text, as No. 99 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl. 1880.

Other trs. are—(1) "Lord Jesus Christ! we thank Thee," in pt. ii. of Spiritual Songs for the Church, P. Bk., 1744. (2) "To Thee, our Lord, all praise be given." This is a hymn, in 4 st. of 4 l., by J. Swertner, as No. 190 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1849, No. 178, beginning, "To Thee, Lord Christ); based on this hymn, and on Luther's "Gelobet seist du, Jesu Christ, du aller heilst," Lange's hymn in in Freylinghausen's Neues Gesangbuch, 1714, No. 117.

vii. Wir danken dir, o treuer Gott. Absolution. This is No. 6 of the 6 hymns by Selnecker, on Luther's Catechism, appended to one of Drey Predigten, 1572. It is in 3 st. of 4 l., and a fourth st. of 2 l., and is entitled "How one should comfort himself in Holy Absolution." The complete form in 4 st. of 4 l., is in his Christliche Psalmen, 1587. Both forms are in Wackernagel, iv. p. 257; and in Mützell, Nos. 285, 286. The second form is also No. 274 in the Ohio Luth. G. B., 1870. Tr. as:—

O Faithful God, thanks be to Thee. By C. H. L. Schmitt, in full, as No. 246 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880. [J. M.]

Σήμερον συνέχει τάφος ["Ἀφραστον ὄντα].

Send out Thy light and truth, O God! J. Montgomery. [Missions.] This well-known hymn was first printed in a religious annual, The Christian Keepsake, in 1836; again in Montgomery's Original Hymns, 1853, No. 251; and again in Mercer's Ch. Psalter & H. Bk., 1854, No. 381, in 4 st. of 8 l., the only change from the 1836 text being st. iii. l. 6, "Then spring" to "Then be new born," &c. From Mercer's Preface it would seem that he was under the impression that it was written specially for his collection. Montgomery says in a note in his Original Hys., p. 256, that it was written "in the metre and to suit the tune of the hymn said to have been composed and set to music by Luther, and sung by him and his friends as they entered the city of Worms to appear before the Diet there." The German hymn referred to is Ein' feste Burg (p. 331, ii.). Montgomery's hymn, however, has nothing in common with Luther's save the metre. It has attained to somewhat extensive use in Great Britain and America. [J. J.]

Semper qui horror percutit. Jesu Baptiste de Sanctâ. [Ascension.] In the Thesaurus Rosarii, 1686, p. 497, this hymn begins "Quid obstupendum cernimus," but in Santeüil's Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, p. 22, and ed. 1698, p. 105, it is given as above. It is also in the Paris Breviary, 1736, as the hymn at Matins on the octave of the Ascension. It is also in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. What is this horror? The sky is rended. By I. Williams, in the British Magazine, Dec. 1834 (vol. vi. p. 620, together with the Latin), and his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839.

2. What terrors shake my trembling soul! By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 85, and again in his Hys. of the Church, &c., 1841, No. 49. It is No. 129 in the 1863 Appendix to the H. Noted.

3. Awful thought of endless doom. By R. Campbell, in his St. Andrews Hys. and Anthems, 1850, p. 78, and, with slight alterations, in the Hymnary, 1872. Some portions of this tr. are by Miss Jane Campbell, of Rotherdale, Scotland. It is given in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884, as "Fearful thought of endless doom."

4. What terror every bosom shakes. By J. D. Chambers, in his Lauds Syon, 1857, p. 201.

Another tr. is—

Great God, what terror fills the eye. By W. Palmer, in his Short Poems &c., 1840, p. 80. [J. J.]

Sequences. The origin and structure of Sequences or Proses (p. 914, i.) have been referred to under Latin Hymnody (see pp. 644–659). The Gradual or Antiphon sung between the Epistle and Gospel in the Liturgy ended on festal days with the word Alleluia. The last syllable of this word was prolonged to a number of musical notes (called neumes), which were entitled the Sequentia, as following the Alleluia. In the ninth century the custom began of adapting words to suit these notes; and those words came in their turn to be called Sequences. The first author of this kind of Sequence was Notker Balbulus (p. 812, ii.), a monk of St. Gall, who d. 912. He had many successors, one of the most voluminous and finished writers of Sequences being Adam of St. Victor, who d. 1177.

Of the earliest mss. containing Sequences is an Anglo-Saxon Troparium written in the reign of Ethelred (978–1016), and now in the Bodleian (see e below). In the Leofric Missal, an English service book in use at Exeter half a century later, and now in the Bodleian (Bodl., No. 579. Printed at the Clarendon Press, Oxford, in 1883) only six Sequences are indicated for use by their catchwords (the full text is not given), these Sequences being "Coelica resonent" ; "Mater Sequentiarum," i.e. "Pangamus Creatori" ; "Clarifrondibus" ; "Lyra pulchra" ; "Omnes sancti" and "Sanctum ad coelos." The use of Sequences soon became very general. In most mediaeval Missals there are proper Sequences appointed for nearly every Sunday and Holy Day, except from Septuagesima to Easter, when verses of Holy Scripture known as the Tract were substituted for the Alleluia and the Sequence. Sequences or Proses are also found in Processionals and Rectoriums, where they were introduced in lieu of the Versus after the Responsory attached to one of the Lections, generally the last (York Rites, 1883, ii. 106), or in lieu of the Hymn at Vespers or Compline, or in connection with Processions on certain festivals. In the revised Roman Missal of 1570 all Sequences were abolished save four, viz. (1) "Victimæ paschali," for Easter; (2) "Veni Sancte Spiritus," for Pentecost; (3) "Laude Sion Salvatorem," for Corpus Christi; (4) "Dies iræ, dies illa," for Masses for the Dead. In comparatively recent times, about 1727, there was added (5) "Stabat mater dolorosa," for Friday after Passion Sunday.

A large number of Sequences are included in the collections of Mone, Daniel, Morel, Wackernagel, and others. In 1832 Dr. Neale published 125 under the title Sequentiæ ex Missalibus germanicis, anglicis, gallicis, ultrajectensi sacri collectæ. The most complete collection of Sequences is Dr. Joseph Kehrein's Lateinische Sequenzen des Mittelalters, pub. at Mainz in 1873, with 895, including almost the whole of those previously edited by Mone, Daniel, Morel, Wackernagel and Neale; and many others, principally from Missals of the 16th cent. Of these many are only printed in part, and the number (895), large as it is, does not nearly exhaust the list of such compositions; for even on comparing with the lists below, a large proportion will be found not included by Kehrein.

An interesting collection of Sequences has just been pub. under the title Prosarium Lemovicense (Leipzig, Fues's Verlag, 1890). This is edited by G. M. Dreves, as pt. viii. of his Analecta Hymnica Medii Ævi, and contains 265 Sequences, taken from 16 Troparies of the 10th, 11th, and 12th cents., which formerly belonged to the Abbey of St. Martial at Limoges, and are now in the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris.

In Part i. we append a list of first lines of Sequences and Proses contained in the Arbatsall, Hereford, Sarum and York Missals, and a few important early MS. Service Books, mostly of English, French and German origin. In Part ii. are given the first lines of additional Sequences in later English Service Books, in a few representative French and German diocesan Missals not later than 1490, and in two Monastic Missals. In many cases there are slight variations of the text. We have given the various forms where the varieties of reading affect the alphabetical order.

Part i. In compiling the first list of first lines of Sequences an exhaustive use has been made of the following MSS. and printed Service Books :—

(a) The Arbatsall Missal. This MS. is in the possession of the Arbatsall family. It was written about the end of the 14th cent. for the use of St. Ternan's Church, Arbatsnott, Kincardineshire, by Sir Mark, parson of Arbatsnott, who d. in 1505. It is a Sarum Missal with Scottish local peculiarity representing the use of the diocese of St. Andrews. The copy used is the ed. printed at Edinburgh, 1864.

(g) The York Missal. This represents the use of the North of England. The MS. collated was written about 1390, and belongs to University College, Oxford, where it is No. 165. The Sequences are not separately found collected together near the end of the volume, and a few others are given in the text of the more recent Masses. The Sequences marked g[1] are included in the reprint of the York Missal (Missale ad usum Ebor.secundi) by the Surtees Society, 1874, which is based on a printed edition (Rouen c. 1500, and again in 1519, 1517 and 1520; Paris 1532) and other sources.

(h) Arundel 156. This MS., in the British Museum, contains a collection of Sequences apparently written in Germany in the 11th cent. The Sequences are written in the margins in a hand of the early 14th cent.

A number of other MSS. of interest have been collated throughout. References are made to them for all the additional Sequences which they contain, but they are not, as a rule, referred to in the case of Sequences already found in the MSS. b, c, d, e, g, m, or x. They are as follows :—

(n[1]) Liturg. Misc. 341. A Gradual, written about the end of the 13th cent., apparently in Germany, and now in the Bodleian.

(n[2]) Liturg. Misc. 360. A Gradual, written about 1300, apparently in Germany, and now in the Bodleian.

(n[3]) Add. 19194. A Gradual, written about 1275, apparently in England, and now in the British Museum.

(n[4]) Liturg. Misc. 27. A collection of Sequences, apparently written in France in the end of the 14th cent., and now in the Bodleian.

In only a very few instances are the names of the authors of Sequences attached to them in the early MSS. It may therefore be of interest to give here a list of authors of Sequences which is found in a MS. in the Bodleian (Laudian 124, f. 1), and was written apparently about 1300. The ascriptions (which it must be added are indefinite, and apparently oftener wrong than right) are as follows :—

(1) Robert, King of France. Victimæ paschali; Spiritus paraclitus; Sancti Spiritus adsit nobis gratia; Alleluia pascha nostrum.

(2) Ivo of Chartres (ob. 1115). Sancti Spiritus adsit nobis gratia; Laus devota mente, and Resultemus in hac die.

(3) Innocentius Continens (i.e. of Chichester, f. 1160). Laus devota mente, and Resultemus in hac die.

(4) Richard the Monk, Archbishop (Richard, Abp. of Canterbury, 1174–1184). Plenæ sortes Bethlehem, and Gaude Maria virgo.

(5) Walter, Archdeacon of Gloucester (ob. 1126). Modo jucundissima, and Jubilemus omnes.

(6) Prior Mestor. (Mentaverie, a Cluniac foundation in Somersetshire, dating from shortly after 1100.) Hodiernæ lux diei, and Mirare Gabriel de coelis.

(7) Adam, Abbot. Mirare Gabriel de coelis, Mater dilectissima, and Ave stupefacta, and Rosa rutea, and Lux jucunda, and Frigiditate Trinitatem.

(8) Robert of Winchester, see note below (? Robert, prior of Winchester in 1173). Jubilate vox suavis, and Jubilemus.

(9) Fulbert of Chartres (see p. 461). Stirps Jesse, and Ad matrem Semini, and Solem Justitiæ.

(10) Robert of York (fl. about 1262). Resultemus in hac die festiva.

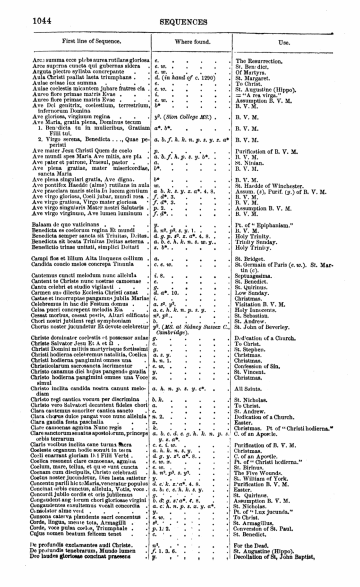
It is probable, but improbable that Robert of York and Robert of Winchester are identical. At least in Archbishop Gray's Registers (printed by the Surtees Society), Robert, canon and sometime precentor of York, who fl. about 1241, is always designated Robert of Winchester, and in one case as Archdeacon of Winchester (Surtees ed., p. 202).

In his Histoire de la Poésie Liturgique au Moyen Age. Les Tropes. Paris, 1886, pp. 111–136, M. Leon Gautier describes (with many facsimiles) 40 important MSS. containing Sequences, which are now found at Paris, St. Gall, Berlin, Vienna, Munich, and Rome: also the MSS. c, g, k, r noted above. In the Verzeichniss der Handschriften der Stiftsbibliothek von St. Gallen, Halle, 1875, the St. Gall MSS. are shortly described; and at pp. 509–530 there is an Index which professes to include the first lines of all the Sequences, with references to the MSS. in which they are contained.

The occasional references by numbers are to the printed Missals in Part ii. of this article.

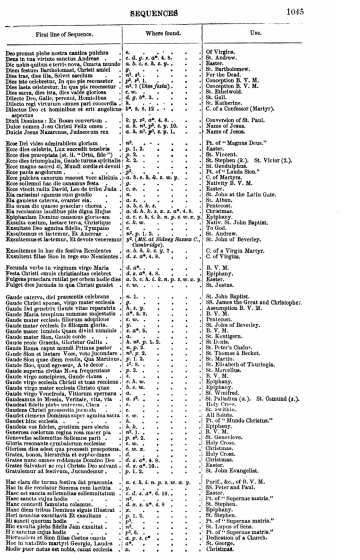
First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
A rea virga prinse matris Evæ	a. b. c. k. l. n. p. r. x. y.	Assumption B. V. M.
A solis ortum cardine	c.	St. Columbanus.
Ad cœlestes, Rex sedes, hodie	a. b. d. e. k. l. n. s. y.	St. Michael.
Ad hanc coletæ gaudia Quæ Alpheg[1]	b.	St. Alphege.
Ad honorem Salvatoris Mens deprenat	p[1].	St. Elizius.
Ad laudem tuum Christe Sponsi Baptistæ	a. b. c.	St. John Baptist.
Ad laudes Salvatoris, Ut mente inclitor	a[2]. 3. 4. 6. 7. 8. 9.	C. of Martyrs (Confessors).
Ad matris Annæ sanctæ præconia	a. 7.	St. Anne.
Ad te psalatæ cymbala hymnizosa	c.	To Christ.
Adest dies celebris, Qui lumen	c[2].	St. Peter.
Adest dies celebris, Quo pacatus	a. o[2]. 2. 5.	Transfiguration.
Adest dies hilaris, Qua Christus gaudia	a. b. k. r. y.	C. of a Martyr or Confessor.
Adoranda, veneranda Trinitatis est unia	p[1]. 10.	St. Etelus.
Adoremus Unitatem Et in ea Trinitatem	p.	Sunday after Trinity.
Agmina inclyti plaudant cœtibus	p.	St. Benedict Biscop.
Agni paschalis hostiam	d. e. o[2]. 3.	The Resurrection.
Agni pudenti ovat Christus innocens	p.	Fr. of "Victimæ Paschali."
Agone triumphali millium regis summi	c. g. k. o[2]. 4. 6.	C. of Martyrs.
Alle—cantabile sonet chorus cantorum	a. k.	St. Bartholomew.
Alle—melodie pectora et gaudia	a. b. k. l. n. s. w. y.	Nativ. B. V. M.
Alleluia cœnæ Sponsi universalis ecclesia	a. b. k. l. n. s.	C. of an Apostle.
Alleluia cœnæ Sponsi universalis ecclesia	a. c. d. k. l. n. p. s. w. y.	Pentecost, &c.
Alma cohors era laudum sonora	c. e. k.	St. Swithin (?). C. of Confessor (s).
Alma Dei genetrix æterni luminis aula	k. y.	B. V. M.
Almæ coetemus turmæ concrepent alacres	c. w.	St. Michael.
Almo Deus est servitus cunctis, Qui gens	w.	To Christ.
Alme Jesu cui servimus, Qui gens	w.	C. of Virgins.
Almi patris Tornani ætollarea Christus	a.	St. Ternan.
Alnighima jam gaudia cœli retinet	b. r. x. n. 2.	Wed. after Pentecost.
Altithronum Dominæ cunctæ nunc dispensate	a. p[1]. o[1]. 2. 5. 6. b. 10.	Assumption B. V. M.
Altithronus vestigia	c.	Fr. of "Benedicta sit."
Angelicas turmas pulcherrima cohs præcessit	c.	Holy Cross.
Angelorum ordo sacer Dei sermo semper	g.	Of the Angels.
Animemur ad agonem, Resolutæ passionem	p. 1.	St. Agnes.
Anna stirpe generosa, Cingitur alta nobilis	a.	St. Anne.
Annosi pectoris, qui crudelis, rebus	a.	St. Anthony.
Annosus humilis, mentisque nobilis	n[2]. p[2]. 1.	St. Anthony.



1044 SEQUENCES

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
Ave: summa ecce pl:be nurea rutilans gloriosa	c.	The Resurrection.
Ave regnrus concita qui gubernas sidera	c. m.	St. Benedict.
Angelus plectro syllaba concrepante	c. m.	Of Martyrs.
Aula Christi psallat lasta triumphans	d. (in hand of c. 1290)	St. Margaret.
Ave cujus conceptio	d.	Conception B. V. M.
Aulae coelestis nuncium juhare fratres cla	c. m.	St. Innocents (Hilpin).
Aurea flore primae matris Evae	c.	= "A rea virga."
Aurea flore primae matris Evae	c. m.	Assumption B. V. M.
Ave Dei genitrix, coelestium, terrestrium,	b*	B. V. M.
Ave gloriosa mater
Ave gloriosa, virginum regina	y8. (Sion College 302)	B. V. M.
Ave Maria, gratia plena, Dominus tecum
1. Ben-dicta tu in mulieribus, Genitum	a*. b*.	B. V. M.
Filii tui.
2. Virgo virum, Benedicta . . . Quae pe-	a, b, f, h. b. n. p. s. y. z. a*	B. V. M.
netrat
Ave mater Jesu Christi Quem de coelo	p.	Purification of B. V. M.
Ave mundi spes Maria Ave stella, ave pla	a. b. f, h, p, s, y, [a*.	B. V. M.
Ave pater et patrone, Praesul, pastor	o.	St. Nivian.
Ave Regina, gratiae, mater misericordiae,	b*.	B. V. M.
vocalis M.
Ave plena singulari gratia, Ave digno,	b*	B. V. M.
Ave pontifex Hasdeii (alme) radians in axia	m.	St. Hasdak of Winchester.
Ave praeclara maris stella In lumen genitum	a. b, h, z, y, z, a*. s, t.	Assum. (c). Purif. (p.) of B. V. M.
Ave virgo gloriosa, Quod jubar, mundi rosa	f, g*. z.	B. V. M.
Ave virgo gratiosa, Virgo mundi rosa	f, g*. z.	B. V. M.
Ave virgo singularis, Virgo mundi Salvatrix	c.	Assumption B. V. M.
Ave virgo virginum, Ave lumen luminum	f, g*.	B. V. M.
Balsam de quo valetudo	p.	Pt. of "Epiphaniam."
Benedicta se sedentem regnis Et noverit	b. o*. p*. s. y. z.	B. V. M.
Benedicta semper sancta sit Trinitas, Divina,	d. g. p*. z. a*. s. t.	Holy Trinity.
Benedicta sit beata Trinitas Deitas aeterna	a. b. e. h. k. n. s. y. z.	Trinity Sunday.
Benedictis trinas unitati, simplici Deitati	c. b*.	Holy Trinity.
Cangi fas et Illum Alta Duquens collum	a.	St. Bridget.
Candida cunctis mains concreps Trinita	c. e. m.	St. Hardak of Paris (c. m.). St. Martin (d.).
Castemus cuncti melodum nunc alleluia	i. o.	Septuagesima.
Carmen te Christe nunc nostras camenas	c.	St. Benedict.
Canta celebri at studio vigilanti	g.	St. Spiritus.
Cantet et exultet orbis et mundi caetus	d. e*. 10.	Holy Trinity.
Caetus et concursus pangamus jubila Marise	c.	Christmas.
Celebremus in hac die Festum domus	a. e*. y*.	Visitation B. V. M.
Caina puri concrepeni melodia Ex	a. c. h. k. n. p. s. y.	Holy Innocents.
Caesat mortius, cessat pestis, Alari sufficatu	n*. y*.	St. Sebastian.
Chorus novae Jerusalem Studio	y.	Holy Trinity.
Chorus nostor jucundetur Et devota celebretur	y8. (MS. at Sidney Sussex C. (Cambridge).	St. John of Beverley.
Christe dominator coelestis et pastemor solus	g.	D.-d'ation of a Church.
Christe Salvator Jesu Et a-ti	c.	To Christ.
Christe sanctorum decus angelorum fortissi	d.	To Christ.
Christi hodierna celebremus natalitia, Coelica	a. e. y.	Christmas.
Christi hodierna pangimus! omnes una	b. n. t.	Christmas.
Christianorum sacrosancta incitamntur	c. m.	Confession of Sts.
Christo canamus diei hujus pangendo gaudia	y.	St. Vincent.
Christo hodierna pangimus! omnes una Voce	m.	Christmas.
simul
Christo inclita candida nostra canunt melo-	a. h. n. p. s. y. e*.	All Saints.
dium
Christo regi sanctis vocum per discrimina	b. k.	St. Nicholas.
Chorus novae Jerusalem studio chorus chori	d.	Holy Trinity.
Clara cantemus concrepet cantica sancta	c.	St. Andrew.
Clara clarus dulce pangat voce mens alleluia	a. z.	Dedication of a Church.
Clara gaudia festa paschalia	o.	Easter.
Clare cascentes agimus Nunc regis	b.	Christmas. Pt. of "Christi hodierna."
Clarificemus omnia agentes cum, principe	a. b. c. d. e. g. h. k. n. p. s.	C. of an Apost.
orbis terrarum	z. a*.
Claris vocibus inclita cane terras Mora	c. f. m.	Purification of B. V. M.
Coelestis organum hodie sonuit in terris	a. b. n. s. y.	Christmas.
Coeli enarrant gloriam Dei Fiat Verbi	d. g. y. z*. a*. b.	C. of an Apostle.
Coeli enarrant gloriam Dei Fiat Verbi	d. g. y. z*. a*. b.	C. of a Confessor Pontifex.
Caelum, mare, tellus, et qui e vasi caeca	c. m.	St. Erkenwald.
Cunnam cum discipulis, Christo celebrasti	b. m*. p*. s. y*.	The Five Wounds.
Caelis noster jucundetur, Dum laeta celebrat	y.	St. William of York.
Cunnemus pariSii te Maria, venerabi populus	d. e. h. z. a*. s. t.	Purification B. V. M.
Cunnemus pariSii te Maria, venerabi populus	a. b. c. e. h. k. s. y.	Nativity.
Cunnorii jubila coelis et orbi jubilemus	c.	St. Quirinus.
Congaudent ang: lorum chori gloriose virgini	i. d. g. z*. a*. r. s.	Assumption B. V. M.
Congaudemus exultemus vocali concordia	a. c. h. n. p. s. z. y. a*.	St. Nicholas.
Cunctator alme vos	y.	Pt. of "Lux jucunda."
Cunctipotens genitor genitusque sacri concentus	d. e.	Holy Trinity.
Corde, lingua, mente tota, Armagilli	a*.	St. Armagillus.
Corde, voce pulsu coelos, Triumphale	p. t. z.	Conversion of St. Paul.
Cujus comam beatam fidcum tenet	c.	St. Benedict.
De profundis exclamantes nulli Christe.	n*.	For the Dead.
De profundis tenebrarum, Mundo lumen	f. i. z. h.	St. Augustine (Hippo).
Dec laudes gloriosa concinat praesens	g.	Decollation of St. John Baptist.

1045



SEQUENCES 1045

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
Deo promat plebs nostra cantica pulchra	c.	Of Virgins.
Deus in tua virtute exultat Laudem	c. d. g. z. a*. s. t.	St. Andrew.
Deus Israel, Deus Israel, Christe secundo	a. b. c. e. h. k. p.	Easter.
Deus Sanctis Bartholomaei, Christi amici	g.	St. Bartholomew.
Dies irae, dies illa, Solvet saeclum	m*. z*.	For the Dead.
Dies ista celebretur, In qua pia resonetur	g*. z*.	Conception B. V. M.
Dies laeta celebretur, In qua pia resonetur	m*. t (Dun. fasc).	Conception B. V. M.
Dies nobis lucida, Dies sacra, Dies	d. g. z*.	St. Benedict.
Dilecte Deo, Gallo, pressul, Monachus	d. g. z*. b. z.	St. Gall.
Dilecto regi virtutum omnes pari concordia	b.	St. Katherine.
Dilectus Deo et hominibus et sett angelicus	b*. h. t. 10.	C. of a Confessor (Martyr).
aspectus
Dulcis summa. Ex Beata conventum	b. p. z*. a*. s. t.	Conversion of St. Paul.
Dulce nomen Jesu Christi Felix omen	a. b. m*. p*. t. y. 10.	Name of Jesus.
Dulcis Jesus Nazarenus, Judaeorum rex	a. b. m*. p*. t. y.	Name of Jesus.
Eese Dei vivio admirabilem gloriam	m*.	Pt. of "Magnus Deus."
Ecce Deus fortis, Deus Israel, Deus	b. z.	Christmas.
Ecce dies praeclara (al. 0, "Orta, filii")	p. t.	St. Vincent.
Ecce dies triumphalis, Gaude turma apostolis	b. z.	St. Stephen (3.). St. Victor (3.).
Ecce magna sacra et, Mundi corda et devoti	p.	St. Gerdruphina.
Ecce paris angelorum	p*.	Pt. of "Laida Sion."
Ecce quam bonum, concors voto alleluia,	b. t. z. h. k. z. s. m. p.	Holy Innocents.
Ecce solemnis hic dis cunamus festa	o.	Nativity B. V. M.
Ecce vincit radix Davit, Leo de tribu Juda	c. m.	Easter.
Eia carnelesi cgnamus ergo gaudio	n.	St. John at the Latin Gate.
Eia gaudens caterva, evangeliis,	a. b.	St. Alban.
Eia gaudens caterva, evangeliis,	a. b. t.	St. Alban.
Eia resonemus laudibus pia digna Hujus	a. d. h. k. n. s. z. a*. s. t.	Christmas.
Epiphaniam Domino canamus gloriosam	a. c. e. h. i. k. n. p. s. z. w. y.	Epiphany.
Exsilio castum, lactor terra, Unitatique	c. k. w.	Native. St. John Baptist.
Exsultate Deo agmina Sidia, Tympano	c.	To God.
Exsultemus et lactemur, Et audio vocem	p. t. z.	St. Andrew.
Exsultemus et lactetur, Et devota veneremur	y8. (MS. at Sidney Sussex C. (Cambridge).	St. John of Beverley.
Exsultemus in hac die festiva Recolentes	a. b. k. t. g. ?.	C. of a Virgin Martyr.
Exsultent filiae Sion in rege suo Nostrates	d. z. a*. s. t.	C. of Virgins.
Fecunda verba in virginem virgo Maria	d. a*.	B. V. M.
Festa Christi omnis christianitas celebres	d. z. a*. s. t.	Epiphany.
Fulgens praeclara rutilat per orbem hodie dies	a. b. c. k. l. n. p. s. w. z. y.	Easter.
Fulget dies jucunda in qua Christi gaudet	c. m.	St. Justus.
Gaude caterva, diei praesentis celebrata	a. l.	St. John Baptist.
Gaude cum gaudentibus, Gaude cum	a.	St. Ethelbert, Egwyn, Brice, Brevet and Christopher.
Gaude Dei genitrix laude vitae reparatrix	b. e. y.	Assumption B. V. M.
Gaude Maria tecnptum summae majestatis	a*. b. t.	B. V. M.
Gaude mater ecclesia Eliorum adeptione	c. m.	Pentecost.
Gaude mater ecclesia In filiogum gloria,	y.	St. John of Beverley.
Gaude mater ecclesia Sion, Sanctis nunciis	b. z. a*. s.	St. Peter.
Gaude mater Sion, Gaude corde	a.	St. Kentigern.
Gaude sexte Grandis, Victoriae Gallia	b. m*. p. l. z.	St. Lvde.
Gaude Roma caput mundi Primus pastor	n. p. z.	St. Peter's Chair.
Gaude Sion et lactare Voce, voci jucundare	m*. p. z.	St. Thomas à Becket.
Gaude Sion, gaude mater, Quae concepisti	p. t. z.	Purif.
Gaude Sion, quod egregie, A te decor	p. t. z.	St. Elizabeth of Thuringia.
Gaude superna civitas Nova frequentans	p. z.	St. Marcellus.
Gaude virgo omnipotens, Gaude clausa	t.	B. V. M.
Gaude virgo sociata Christi et tuus rencleus	c. h. w.	Epiphany.
Gaude virgo sociata Christi et tuus rencleus	c. h. w.	Epiphany.
Gaude virgo Venerandi, Victoriae egregia	a.	St. Winifred.
Gaudeamus in Monia, Veritate, vita, via	a. e*.	St. Pulinthu (a.). St. Osmund (z.).
Gaudeat Ecclia pacis universa, Clara	c.	Holy Cross.
Gaudens Christi possessio jucunda	c.	Ss. Swithin.
Gaudent in coelis animae sanctorum,	a.	All Saints.
Gaudet hinc ecclesia	h.	Pt. of "Mundo Christus."
Gaudete vos fidcles, gratium pars electa	h. k.	Epiphany.
Generosa coelorum regina rosa mater pia	n*.].	B. V. M.
Generoslie salbemulus Solimne parti	p. z*. z.	St. Genevieve.
Gens Anglorum hodie Christo Deo grata	a.	St. Edward.
Gloriam dies adest qua promeati praepostea.	c. m. z.	Confessor.
Grates, laeon, hieratelis et supfcvidnes	d.	Holy Cross.
Grates nunc omnes reddamus Domino Deo	d. z. a*. z. s.	Christmas.
Grates Salvatori ac regi Christo Deo servant.	d. z. a*. 10.	Easter.
Grauiemur ad festivos, Jucundemur	p. t. z.	St. John Evangelist.
Hac clara die turma festiva dat praecenia	a. e. k. l. n. p. z. w. x. y.	Purif., &c., of B. V. M.
Hac in die resultet Summa cum laetitia	p.	St. Peter and Paul.
Haec est sancta sollemnitas sollemnitatum	c. d. z. a*. d. 10.	Easter.
Haec est vera fraternitas	d.	Pt. of "Supernae matris."
Haec concordi laudatio colamus.	d. m. z. a*. s. t.	St. Stephen.
Haec dies tribus Dominus signis illustrat	z.	Epiphany.
Heri mecum cenavit, Et cenabunt	p. t. z.	St. Stephen.
Hi sancti quorum hodie	y*.	Pt. of "Supernae matris."
Hi sunt quorum hodie Jesu exsultat	y*.	Pt. of "Supernae matris."
Hi vencius cujus hodie	y8. 6.	Pt. of "Supernae matris."
Hierusalem et filiae filiae Coetus cunctis	a. p. z. z*.	Dedication of a Church.
Hic in natalitio martyri Georgii, Laudes	n*.	St. George.
Hodie pour natus en nobis, canat ecclesia	z.	Christmas.

1046

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
Hodie Salvator mundi Per virginem	g.	Christmas.
Hodiernus lux diei, Celebris in matris Dei	g, f, k, p, s, y, z, a^4, o^4.	B. V. M.
Hoiterna resonet gaudia Virtutum praeclara	k.	St. Dunstan.
Hos ad laudes praeclara nocsua mores .	p^2.	Holy Relics.
Ignea sacrum refulgerat	p^2.	Pt. of "Genovefeba."
In cadenti hirundine, Nova nocti harmonia .	f, o^4.	St. Dunstan.
In hac die laetabunda, Nostri chori plebs	d, p^2. (MS. in the Fitzwil- liam, Cambridge).	St. Anthony.
In honorem Salvatoris, Sancti Redit .	p^2.	St. Rocke.
In octavis Pentecostes .	p^2.	Pt. of "Pueri gregos."
In omnem terram Dei lux personat fidelissima	g.	St. Benedict.
In solmn. in morte apostolorum principis .	p.	C. of Apostles.
Introvi fusi gaudia, Nostra novi harmonia .	n^2, 2. (Winster M., 1509	St. Augustine (Hippo).
Invidata integra et casta es Maria .	m^2, p^2, 11.	Purific., &c., of B. V. M.
Jesse virgam inscolarch Et in fructum.	k.	Annunciation of B. V. M.
Jesus virgam inscolarch Et in fructum.	k.	Annunciation of B. V. M.
Jesus Jesu Christeo nutrium dilecto virgo .	a, d, k, z, x, y, z, a^4, c, t.	Pt. of "Dulcis Jesus N."
Jubilans concrepa nunc prophetarum .	p^2.	St. John Evangelist.
Jubilemus exultantes, Sanctae spei pueperitas .	p^2.	Easter.
Jubilemus exultantes, Sti, nunc .	m^2, p^2.	Relig. Indigenda.
Jubilemus in hac die Quam regimae coeli	f, o^4.	St. Church.
Jubilemus omnes una concenti laetitia	f.	B. V. M.
Jubilemus omnes una Deo nostro qui crearit	g, b, k, n, p, t, y.	St. John Baptist.
Jucundare plebs filicia, Cujus Pater	p, y, l, z, s.	Fourth S. in Advent.
Jucundare plebs filicia, Cujus Pater	p, y, l, z, s.	Against mortality.
Laetabunda psallat plebs cum mente munda .	p.	St. Louis of France.
Laetabundus exsult fidelis chorus .	a, b, f, k, l, n, p, r, y, z.	Christmas (p). Assum., &c., B. V. M.
Laetabundus exsult fidelis chorus .	a, b, f, k, l, n, p, r, y, z.	Dedic. of a Church.
3. Coeli cultus, Cum jucundo ornatur .	a, b, ...	St. Francis.
Laetabundus Francisci decantet clerus, .	n^2, c, 7.	Friday after Ascension Day.
Laetatur orbis die 14a in qua nostrae .	y.	St. Sacrament and Potentianus.
Laeto fine canit plebs Salvatoru alleluia .	p^2.	St. Bartholomew.
Laeto fine canit plebs Salvatoru alleluia .	p^2.	Pt. of "Christo inclita."
Landa Sion Salvatorem, Landa ducem et .	a, f, k, n, p, s, y, z^1, .	Corpus Christi.
Laudamus te rex Maria genite sempiterna .	p^2.	B. V. M.
Laudi nascra vox pulchra Sioni nulla .	c, w, .	Of the Incarnation.
Laudi celebret vox quoque Dominum .	c.	St. Ethelwold.
Laudi Christo decantemus inclita .	d, z, o^4, 18.	St. Nicholas.
Laudi Christo modulamine nova .	c.	C. of Virgins.
Laudi conflictatius dive cruris tuidi, .	n^2, 2.	St. Stephen.
Laudi dignum sanctum sanat Olimarum .	g, p, t (Oswald) .	St. Olimar.
Laudi jucundo melos turma persona .	a, c, k, n, s, w, y.	St. Peter and Paul.
Laudi pulchra, Vox omnis fidelium .	m.	To Christ.
Laudi resonet te Christe devote supplex .	w.	St. Birinus.
Laudum dicite Deo martyres turba .	c.	C. of Martyrs.
Laudemus omnes inclita Bartholomaei sacrita	p, l, z.	St. Bartholomew.
Laudent omnia omnia pulchra .	c, w, .	Of God.
Laudes Christo decantemus Ejus natali .	y.	B. V. M.
Laudes crucis attollamus Nos qui crucis .	z, o^4, 8.	Holy Cross.
Laudes crucis attollamus Nos qui crucis .	a, b, k, n, p, r, y, z^1, o^4.	Holy Cross.
Laudes Deo concinat orbis cliques totus .	d, o^4.	Easter.
Laudes Deo decantemus Et in re .	k.	St. Ethelbert.
Laudes Deo devotus Dilci voce et sonora .	c, r, k, l, n, z, .	Pentecost.
Laudes Deo modulamine nova sanctis .	p^2.	St. Cosmas and Racelius.
Laudes primi studiamus Martyris et .	p^2.	St. Stephen.
Laudes regi Christo jucundi sacra coeli .	k.	St. Oswald.
Laudes Salvatori voce modulemur supplici .	a, c, d, r, k, l, z, y, c, o^4, t.	Easter.
Laudum carmina creatori lyra plausit ea .	z, k.	St. Benedict.
Lauream, David magni nateer, milesque fortis	f, g, z, o^4, t.	St. Laurence.
Lauream, David magni nateer, milesque fortis	f, g, z, o^4, t.	C. of an Evangelist.
Laus devota mente Cleric cocelcenis .	g, k, r, o^4.	C. of an Evangelist.
Laus erumpat ex affecti . Psallat chorus .	p, l, z.	St. Michael.
Laus et honor Deo sit rationi, Qui docet Gallos	p^2, l.	St. Ives.
Laus et honor Salvatori Christo sit .	p, z.	St. John Evangelist.
Laus honor sit Rex omnipotenti, .	k, z.	To Christ.
Laus laetitia Domino redditur nostra per .	m.	To Christ.
Laus jucunda .	y.	— "Lux jucunda."
Laus surgat stolgus Christo jucundis, Cujus	a, c, k, l, n, p, y.	Christmas.
Laus tibi Christe, cui angeli, quod viderat .	r, z, z, 9, 11.	Holy Innocents.
Laus tibi, Christe, Patris optimi nate .	r, d, z, o^4, 7, 10.	Holy Innocents.
Laus tibi, Christe, qui pependisti .	d, g, k, p, z, o^4, t, v.	St. Mary Magdalene.
Laxemus nova spiritis illustrium .	p^2.	St. Faustus.
Ludovico pangamus corde pudice cliticia .	p^2.	St. Louis of France.
Lux alivesti resonanda Luz in cluris .	p.	Nativ. of B. V. M.
Lux illustri dominica, Lux insignis .	p, 2.	Easter.
Lux illustri triumphalis In qua carnem .	p.	St. Germain of Paris.
Lux jucunda, lux insignis Qua de tumulo .	a, p, r, y. (Lent), 2.	Pentecost.
Lyra pulcra virgin magnifica canat per .	s.	The Resurrection.
Magi alii stella micante praecia .	y.	Pt. of "Epiphaniam."
Magi quondam cum sidera .	k.	St. Thomas of Hereford.
Magnanimi qui somna in coeli atigo in tyro .	k.	Pt. of "Magnus Deus."
Magnum te Michaelem laborem pigmus .	g, z, o^4, 2, 6, 9 .	St. Michael.
Magnus Deus in universa terra Magna sunt .	a, c, k, z, z, p, z, y.	St. Sepulch.

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
Mane prima sabbati Surgens Dei Filius .	s, k, l, z, n^2, p, r, y.	Easter. St. Mary Magdalene.
Maries praecelsi fervidi cum gaudio .	p^2, 12.	B. V. M.
Mater matris Domini Rex Siloamae .	k, l.	St. Anne.
Mater matris Domini Rex Siloamae .	k, l.	B. V. M.
Mirabilis Deus in sanctis Mirabilis deus .	c, r, n, p, s, w.	C. of many Martyrs.
Mirandum consecrium ! Virginis in .	p^2.	B. V. M.
Missa est de summis coelis Raphael ut .	k.	Pt. Raphael.
Missus Gabriel de coelis Verbi lapidus fidelis	g, k, z, y, o^4, t.	B. V. M. in Advent.
Mittit ad virginem Non querere angelum .	c, k, n^2, p^2, z, y, l, z, k.	Easter.
Mittit ad virginem Non querere angelum .	c, k, n^2, p^2, z, y, l, z, k.	Annunciation of V. M.
Moestae parcatis Clerisi Mariae lachrymas .	n^2, p^2, o^4.	Compassion of B. V. M.
Mulier laudabilis Fortis casta parens .	p^2, 21.	Holy Women.
Mundi aetate octava Floreburi duplici .	p, z.	C. of Confessors.
Mundi aetate octava Floreburi duplici .	p, z, 6, 7.	St. Mary.
Mundo Christus orator Pax in terra cantor .	k.	St. Thomas à Becket.
Nardus spirat in odorem Et spinetum .	n^2, 11.	St. Anne.
Nativitas Mariae virginis Quae nos laeti .	f, o^4, 3.	Nativity B. V. M.
Natus ante saecula Dei Filius unicus .	a, z, z, o^4, 4, 5.	Christmas.
Natus ante saecula Dei Filius unicus .	a, z, z, o^4, 4, 5.	Christmas.
Nostra tuba nunc tua Rex clementia Christe .	c, w, l.	Saturday before Septuagesima.
Novi plausus incrementum Affert lux .	k.	Transl. of St. Thomas of Hereford.
Nunc canitur omnis mundus laude Christi .	s.	Easter.
Nunc laeta sint praeludia Dei sobis .	p^2.	St. Michel.
Nunc leve alma splendenti per orbem .	c, k, l, z, z, y.	St. Peter's Chains.
O coelis Christi, Maria mater Dei .	p^2.	For Pregnant women.
O bona beatorum martyrum sollemnia .	n^2, 7, 9, 10.	C. of Martyrs.
O Brei inclite praeclara omnia canora .	n^2.	Transl. of "Dulcis Inclita."
O lachrymae gloriosa Christi praecharissimi .	p^2.	Tears of Christ.
O mater almi numinis Mariae virginis .	p^2.	Assumption, &c., of B. V. M.
O miles inclite fortissimi regis Christi .	p.	C. of Martyr.
Olim hac in die laetas Christo cauit .	p, z, p^2.	St. Katherine.
Omnes gentes plaudite, Festos chores ducite,	f, o^4, 2.	Ascension Day.
Omnes sancti cherubim, seraphim Throni .	f, c, p, z, o^4, t, 8.	All Saints.
Omnes una fidelium plebs .	n^2.	All Saints.
Omnes una fidelissimae Et martyris .	n^2.	St. Sebastian.
Omnis fidelium ecclesia Christorum collaudet .	k, z.	St. Edmund.
Orcanus te asterius spes et summa .	z, w.	St. John Evangelist.
Organici canamus modulis mens S. sollemnia Orangeria	d, l, r, z, z, n, p, z, y.	St. James (d.). St. John Evang. (z.) St. Stephen (p.). C. of a Martyr (z.).
Pangamus creatori atque redemptori glorian .	d, z, o^4, 6, 7.	The Resurrection.
Pangat hymnum Anglicum insula martyrum .	p.	St. Augustine.
Pange tortua corde vitito Christo praecosia .	c, w.	The Resurrection.
Pange tortua corde vitito Christo praecosia .	c, w.	Pt. of "Lord of York.
Pater verbum eternum Verbi cum germinanti .	y.	St. Cuthbert.
Petes, summe Christi, pastor, et Petrie .	d, z, s, 8.	St. Peter and Paul.
Plangant filii plorabiles una .	c, c.	The Dying Swan.
Plaudat chorus, plebs laetetur Et devote .	y.	St. William of York.
Plaudat chorus, plebs laetetur Et devote .	y.	St. Augustine.
Plebs pissina pectus laudis cumuquiori .	p^2.	Seamless robe.
Post partum virgo Maria Dei genetrix .	a, l, z, y, c^1.	Assumption, &c., of B. V. M.
Postquam hostem et inferna Spoliaverit, ad .	p, 2.	S. after Ascension.
Potestate non natura, Pii creator creatura .	z.	Conception of B. V. M.
Praeclarum Salvatoris Jesu Christi Trinitatem .	p, 2.	Trinity.
Praeclara sanctis salutar Sion sanctissima fidelitas	n^2, w.	St. Vincent.
Praeconemus summi regis Et praecessoris .	p, l, 2.	Decoll. St. John Baptist.
Praeconemus et Baptistae Dicta bitim .	p, 2.	Nativ. St. John Baptist.
Praecamur nostras Deus animas et .	c, w.	1st S. in Advent.
Praecamur nostras Deus animas et Trinitatem .	p, 2.	Trinity.
Prolegimus alium sacrimus .	p^2.	St. Gabriel.
Promit pia vox canoris Hujus laudem .	p.	St. Anglican (St. Giles).
Promo carta cancio cantica organa .	d, h, l, c, k, l, z, w, y.	Easter.
Promere chorda jam conatur intima .	c, w.	St. Martin.
Promere chorda jam conatur intima .	c, w.	Pt. of "Trinity.
Prunti-fatum salvatorem, Laurentium .	p, l, z.	St. Laurence.
Psallat chorus corde nuncio.	p, l.	— " Plures chorus."
Psallat ecclesia mater devota, mente devota .	c, w.	St. Swithin.
Psallat ecclesia, mater illibata et virgo sine .	c, d, p, k, z, o^4, 4, 8.	Dedic. of a Church.
Psallat in cunis Christo Salvatori .	p, l, z.	Innocents.
Psalle lyrica carmina Jubilans Domino .	b, c, z, k, k.	Easter.
Psallite regi nostro, psallite prudenter .	d, g, o^4, p^2, 4, 6.	Decoll. St. John Baptist.
Pura Deum laudet innocentia .	c, w.	Holy Innocents.
Quam dilecta tabernacula, Domini virutum .	z, o^4, z, 2, c^2.	Dedic. of a Church.
Quantus sunt sui alac Ecclesiae .	n^2.	C. of Apostles.
Quem non praevalent progeris magnificatae .	z.	Epiphany.
Qui beatifici capitis, hac festivi carnis .	p.	St. Benedict.
Qui procella ab utraque, Gentium gentisque .	p, 2.	Pentecost.
Qui regis coeptra fortè dextra, solus cuncta .	c, k, z, z, p, z, w, z, y.	B. V. M. in Advent.
Qui regis coeptra fortè dextra, solus cuncta .	c, k, z, z, p, z, w, z, y.	2nd S. in Advent.
Qui sunt isti qui velunt ut nubes per aëra .	n^2, z, 6.	C. of Apostles.
Quicunque vult salvus esse Jesum Eilem .	z.	Of the Trinity.
Quid tu virgo mater plena, Rachel formosa .	z.	C. of a Martyr.
Quod in cunis Christus gessit .	p.	Pt. of "Laetula Sion."
Recolamus venerandam Mariae memoriam .	l.	Annunciation of B. V. M.
Regem regum venerour Et in regis .	f, y, l.	St. Louis of France.

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
Regi Christo applaudat ecclesia Die isto	p.	St. William of York.
Regina virginum præmanens	p.	Pt. of "Gaude Dei genitrix."
Regis et pontificis dudum my-stica	s. S.	Crown of Thorns.
Regnantem sempiterna per secula	a. b. c. h. k. n. p. s. w. x. y.	2nd S. in Advent.
Regnum tuum, regnum omnium sæculorum	b.	C. of Evangelists.
Romino
Rosa mystica ecclesia de Germani victoria	p.	St. Germain d'Auxerre.
Rot est admirabilis Virgo venerabilis	p.	Nativ. of B. V. M.
Rosenet sacrata jam turma diva symphonia	a. b. z. y. c.	Pentecost.
Rex manens Deus qui lucraris Abyssos et	s.	All Saints.
Rex omnipotens die hodierna, Mundo	a. b. c. e. k. l. n. p. s. w. x. y.	Ascension Day.
Rex Salomon fecit templum Ophr in tar	f. p. q. s. t. u. x.	Dedic. of a Church.
Rex Salomon fecit templum Ophr in tar	f. p. q. s. t. u. x.	Dedic. of a Church.
Roma Petro gloriatur, Roma Paulum	p. l. 2.	SS. Peter and Paul.
Romana Quirinus sospe processus, In vera	p.	St. Quirinus.
Sacerdotem Christi Martinum concia per	*a. b. d. p. h. r. w. y. z. a*3.	St. Martin.
Sacra Paulo ingens dogmata	a.	Pt. of "Laude Jerusala."
Sacrosancta hodiernæ festivitatis præconia	a. b. h. k. p. q. l. s.	St. Andrew.
Salve æterna, indefectus, mundi vita	a. b. c. h. k. n. p. s. w. x. y.	1st S. in Advent.
Salvatoris clementiæ dulcem pangat	p.	St. Wilfrid.
Salve crux arbor vitæ præclara	f. 2*.	Exalt. of the Cross, 2 F. V. M.
Salve crux, arbor vitæ præclara	f.	Exalt. of the Cross.
Salve crux sancta, arbor digna . . .	a. b. c. h. r. y. z. o*. 4. 5.	Inv. of the Cross.
Salve crux, vitale lignum, arbor sacrificatrix	b.	Holy Cross.
Salve dies dierum gloria, Dies felix	p. l.	Easter.
Salve mater Christi, O Maria	c.	B. V. M.
Salve mater Salvatoris, Vas electum	f. p. l. 2. 7. 8.	Assumption, &c., of B. V. M.
Salve mundi puerpera exalta super esthera	f.	B. V. M.
Salve porta perpetuæ lucis fulgida	c. s. w.	Assumption of B. V. M.
Salve proles Davidis, salve virgo nobilis	o*	B. V. M.
Salve sancta Christi genes, salve virgo	f. 2*.	B. V. M.
Salve sancta parens, eligo te in vera	c.	B. V. M.
Sancta mater gaudia, hodie sunt celebranda	s.	Nativ.
Sancta tu virgo Maria, Mater Christi	p.	B. V. M.
Sancti Baptistæ Christi præconis	a. d. h. s. y. z. o*. 4. 5.	Nativ. St. John Baptist.
Sancti boni celebremus triumphum hodie	p. l. 5.	St. Martin.
Sancti merita Benedicti hodie recensenda	c. p. 2*. 4.	St. Benedict.
Sancti Pauli conversio devote est recolenda	p.	Conv. St. Paul.
Sancti Pauli conversio devote est recolenda	p.	St. Benedict.
Sancti Spiritus adsit nobis gratia—		= "Sollemnitas s. P."
1. Quæ corda nostra sibi facit tabernacula	a. d. e. f. h. k. n. p. r. w. y. z.	Pentecost.
2. Quo fecundata Deum peperit virgo Maria	p. l.	Visit. B. V. M.
Sanctorum meritis inclita gaudia	p.	All Saints.
Sanctorum vita, virtus, gloria, Summi Patris	o*	St. Blaise.
Sanctus Petrus et magnus Paulus, Do-tores	c. t. w.	SS. Peter and Paul.
Scalam ad cœlos subvectam turmatim	d. e. p.	C. of Virgins.
Scrupulos quorumdam sententia	p.	11,000 Virgins.
Sedis apostolicæ, quæ fundata fortis	p.	Chair of St. Peter.
Si vis vere gloriari, Et a Deo coronari	p. 2*.	Crown of Thorns.
Simplex in essentia, Septiformis gratia	p. l. 2.	Pentecost.
Sollemnis cantilena hodie resonet in terra	a. b.	St. Thomas à Becket.
Sollemnitas sancti Pauli devote est recolenda	a. h. s.	Conv. of St. Paul.
Sollemnitas sancti Simplicii hodie celebratur	p.	St. Simplicius.
Summi regi nato nova carmina, Cujus	a. e. o*. z. w. l.*	Christmas.
Sonet vox fidelium alleluia, Christo regi	y.	Friday after Ascension Day.
Sospitate morbos bonis, qui lenitio	y.	St. William of York.
Spe mercedis et corona Stetit martyr .	d. o*. p. 4. 5.*	C. of Martyrs (4). St. Thomas a Becket.
Splendor patris et figura Se confirmans	p. h.	= "Sollemnitas s. P."
Stabat juxta Christi crucem, Vitæus	p.	S. after Circumcision.
Stabat mater dolorosa Juxta crucem	p. h.	B. V. M.
Stans a longe qui plurima perpetrarat facinora	c. w.	Compassion of B. V. M.
Stans a longe qui plurima perpetrarat facinora	c. w.	Confession of Sin.
Stella nuncia, O Maria, Expers paris	f. 2*. l.*	Purification.
Stirpe Maria regia procreata regum generato-	d. y. z. o*. 4. 5.*	Nativ. B. V. M.
Stola jucunditatis aliduia latuit hodie.	a. b. c. u. z. y. o*. 5.*	St. Laurence (4. y.). St. Vincent (z.)
Summa sollemnitatem hodierna, Qua Dei	o*.	Easter.
Summi regis Archangele Michael, Intende	d. e. o*. 4. 5.*	Nativ. B. V. M.
Summi regis Archangele Michael, Intende	d. e. o*. 4. 5.*	St. Michael.
Summi Regis in honore—
1. martyris solemnia, Rhedberti cum	b.	St. Ethelbert.
2. præsulis memoria, Sancti Thomæ	b.	St. Thomas of Hereford.
Summi Regis Archangele, Michæ Dei	b.	Nativ. B. V. M.
Summi triumfatoris regis præcipuusque laudi	d. e. o*. 4. 5.*	Ascension.
Summi boni summi mali	y.	Pt. of "Laude Sion."
Superni regis ecclesia, Representet	f. 2. o*. p. l. z.*	C. of Saints.
Supernus custos animæ, Hymnus	c.	Easter.
Surgit Christus cum trophæo, Jam	c.	B. V. M. at Easter.
Suspendamus aquas Et Pastor gregem	p.	St. Bartholomew.
Templi cultus estat mutius	y.	Pt. of "Hex Salomon."
Tentamenta vetera, Anna fuit gratia	f. p. q.	C. of Anne.
Tibi cordis in altari Deus preces immolari	f. o*. p.*	St. Agnes.
Trinitatem simplicem Trinam Deum non	p.	Of the Trinity.
Tu civitam Deus conditor, Et sanctificator	p.	Dedic. of a Church.
Tybride bellicosam quam Iisi non veretur	p.	C. of Martyrs.
Veni mater gratiæ, Fons misericordiæ	a. e. o*. y. z*	Visit. of B. V. M.

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
Veni præcelsa domina, Maria tu non vinita	b. o*. (Sydney Sussex, Cambridge MS.), 6. 7.*	Visit. of B. V. M.
Veni Sancte Spiritus, Et emitte coelitus	f. h. o*. p.* o*. y. l. 2. 4. 5.*	Pentecost.
Veni Sancte Spiritus, Et mentes tuorum	a. b. c. d. e. f. g. h. k. n. p. s. t. w. x. y. z.	Pentecost.
Veni virgo virginum, Veni lumen luminum,	o*. l. 5.	B. V. M.
Verbi Dei parens alma Virgo plena gratia	k.	B. V. M.
Verbum bonum et suave, Personemus	a. f. k. o*. s.*	B. V. M.
Verbum Dei, Deo natum Quod nec Sotum	s. o*. 5.*	St. John at Latin Gate.
Verbum patris nostis Sobens quinquam	w.	Christmas.
salvare vagit
Verbum manens ab æterno, Apud Patrem	o*.	B. V. M.
Vernat gemma, Mundior bonus	o*.	St. Martin.
Vias pinbs setherene cineta jucunda	w.	Pt. of "Laude pulchra."
Victimæ paschali laudes immolent Christiani	a. b. d. f. g. h. k. n. p. s. t. w. x. y. z. o*. 2. 4. 6.*	Easter.
Vincat mentes, vincat membrum, Et repellat.	o*.	St. Victor of the Theluid.
Virginalis turma sacra, Jesu Christi	a. b. h. k. 9.	11,000 Virgins.
Virginea egregius, Virginis sacratus	o*. p. l. 2.*	C. of Virgins.
Virginis Mariæ laudes Christo	p.	B. V. M.
Virginis Mariæ laudes immensis Christiani	f. s. l. 2. 3.	St. Paul.
Virginis Mariæ laudes immensis Christiani	o. p. p. o*. 2. l. 2.*	B. V. M. at Easter.
Virginis Mariæ laudes Immensæ Christiani	o. p. p. o*. 2. l. 2.*	B. V. M. at Easter.
Virginis in laudi, Gero fidelis planda	c.	B. V. M.
Virginis venerandæ de numero sanctorum	a. c. k. t. y. o*.*	C. of Virgins.
Virgo mater genuisset in orbe salvifica	p.	St. John at the Latin Gate.
Virgo orbis generosa, Gemma coeli preciosa.	o*. p.*	C. Martyrs.
Virgo Sion, Virgo Dei, Virgo Christi	p.	St. Winifred.
Vocæ jubilosæ magna, Regi cœnæo	c.	Holy Trinity.
Voci vita fit unita, Igni amicitia	h.	S. in Octave of Pentec ost.
Voto, voce, corde, ore Hujus sanci confessoris	p.	St. William of York.
Vox nouvra nostri chori, Nostro nunet.	o*. p. l. 5.*	St. Katherine.
Zyma vetus expurgetur, Ut sincere celebretur	o. p. s. y. l. 2.	Easter.

Part iii. In this second part are given the first lines of Sequences which are not included in the first part of this article. These are principally taken from certain representative French and German diocesan Missals printed not later than 1490; and from two monastic Missals, viz. an Augustinian and a Benedictine. A few more are taken from English service books other than Missals, the editions used being the following:—

Sarum Processional, in a MS. written about the end of the 14th cent., and now in the British Museum (Harl. 2942), compared with the Antwerp ed. of 1535.

York Manual, in the Surtees Soc. ed. (Frere-Brackenbury). The Paris ed. of 1851 was reprinted at the Cambridge University Press, 1873–1886.

York Processional, in the Surtees ed. of 1930 (reprinted in vol. 63, 1876, of the Surtees Society's publications).

Hereford Missal, in the Leeds ed. of 1874 (reprinted by the Surtees Society, 1869–75, vols. 71, 76).

Hereford Breviary, in the Rouen ed. of 1505. Of this the Pars Hiemalis is in the Worcester Cathedral Library, and the Pars Aestivalis in the Bodleian.

The Missals collated are the following:—

(1) Angers. The ed. used is the Missale Andegavense, printed at Paris in 1489 by Joannes de Prato.

(2) Augustinian. The ed. used is the Missale secundum ordinem fratrum eremitarum sancti Augustini, printed at Paris in 1508 by Nicolas Prevost. In this ed. the word Prosa is always used instead of Sequentia, and the Sequences are printed together at the end of the Missale in the Communes Proprium. The name of the composer is given in all cases known to the compilers. A large proportion are ascribed to Adam of St. Victor, and two to Henricus Pistor, fratre S. Victore; with one each to St. Bernard (Lambetensis), St. Thomas of Aquino ("Lauda Sion"), Peter Abelard ("Mitti ad virginem"), and Robert, King of France ("Sancti Spiritus"). Six are ascribed to "Sancta Ecclesia," and one to "Sancta Mater." The ed. used in the Missale Romanum printed at Basel in 1494 by Michael Wenssler.

(4) Benedictine. The ed. used is the Missale . . . ordinis sancti Benedicti reformatorum nigrorum monachorum per Germaniam, printed at Ingelnus in 1493 by Johannes Schabeler. In this ed. the word Sequentia is always used instead of Prosa, and the Sequences are printed together at the end of the volume.

(5) Breslau. Missale Wratislaviense. The ed. used is that printed at Leipzig in 1504 by Melchior Lotter.

(6) Bruntan. The ed. used is the Missale secundum chorum Constantinense printed at Basel in 1486 by Petrus Kollicker.

(7) Freising. The ed. used is the Liber Missalis . . . secundum consuetudinem . . . printed at Ratisbon in 1487 by Joannes Sensenschmidt.

(8) Magdeburg. The ed. used is the Missale Magdeburgense printed at Lübeck in 1488 by Bartholomäus Ghotan and Lucas Brandis.

(9) Meaux. The ed. used is the Missale Trevorense printed at Basel by Michael Wenssler. Mr. W. H. James Weale, in his Catalogue Missalium, 1904, p. 388, dates this c. 1491. In the British Museum Catalogue it is dated c. 1480.

(10) Merseburg. The ed. used is the Missale Herbipolense printed at Würzburg in 1481 by Georgius Reyser.

(11) Cologne. The ed. used is the Missale Coloniense, printed at Basel 1487, without name of printer.

(12) Ragensburg. The ed. used is the Liber Missalis . . . secundum consuetudinem . . . printed at Ratisbon in 1486, by Joannes Sensenschmidt and Joannes Bekenhub.

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
Ad honorem summi regis, Non qui	b.	St. Helena.
Ad supernæ suspiratus, In æterna luce	11.	St. Bernard of Clairvaux.
stantes
Adesto virgo memoriæ Quam sibi	Sarum Brev., 1516	St. Katherine.
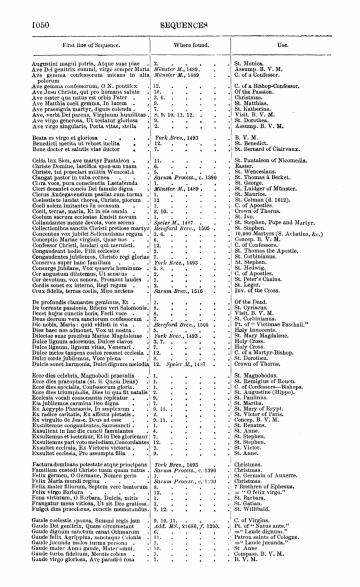
Afforsa felicia, David regis filia	12.	Assump. B. V. M.
Alleluia Christo omnium vocate linguis	12.	St. Erhard of Regensburg.
Alludat lætus orbis psallens pio	1.	St. Maurice.
A lux confessor et professor fidei invincibi	8. 11.	St. Anthony.
Ancilla cum magnificat, Summi Dei	1.	Conver. B. V. M.
Angelo cum magnificat, Summi Dei	24.	Conver. B. V. M.
Athleta Sebastiane nostra Methodius	24.	St. Sebastian.
Augustine pater clare, Lege scripta	11.	St. Augustine (Hippo).



1050 SEQUENCES

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
Augustini magni patris, Atque vase plac	9.	St. Monica.
Ave Dei Genetrix, Ave Dei Mater .	Winster M., 1498.	Assemp. B. V. M.
Ave gemma confessorum, summe in alta polorum	Winster M., 1499 .	C. of a Confessor.
Ave generosa confessorum, O N., pontifex	15.	C. of a Bishop-Confessor.
Ave Jesu Christe, qui pro humano salute	10.	Of the Passion.
Ave Jesu Christe, qui pro salute	9.	Of the Passion.
Ave Matthia nobi gemma, Is laeva	5.	St. Matthias.
Ave praeignis martyr, dignis colenda	7.	St. Katherine.
Ave, verbi Dei parens, Virginum humillima	9. 9. 10. 11. 12.	Visit. B. V. M.
Ave virgo generosa, Ut tentator gloriosa	9.	St. Dorothea.
Ave virgo singularis, Porta vitae, stella	2.	Assemp. B. V. M.
Beata es virgo et gloriosa	York Brev., 1493	B. V. M.
Benedicti merita ut reboat laetitia	12.	St. Benedict.
Bone doctor et salutis viae doctor	7.	St. Bernard of Clairvaux.
Celia lux Sion, ave martyr Pantaleon	11.	St. Pantaleon of Nicomedia.
Christe, qui praeclari militis Wenzeslai	6.	St. Wenceslaus.
Christe, tui praeclari militis Wenzeslai	6.	St. Wenceslaus.
Clangat pastor in tuba cornea	Sarum Process., c. 1380	St. Thomas à Becket.
Cl-ra vox, pura conscientia Lantaburnia	1.	St. George.
Clori demulcet concio Dei famulo digna	Winster M., 1499 .	St. Ludger of Münster.
Coelestis agminis, Coelestis curiae decora	12.	St. Michael.
Coelestis laudat chorea, Christo, gaudia	14.	St. Gotham (d. 1012).
Coeli solem imitantes In ecclesiam	1.	C. of Apostles.
Coeli, terrae, maria, Et in eis omnia	2. 10.	Crown of Thorns.
Coelum sacrum ecclesiae Exhibi novum	1.	St. Eve.
Collaudemus sanctum Christi gestum martyr	Speier M., 1477	St. Stephen, Pope and Martyr.
Collectionibus sanctis Christi gestum martyr	Hereford Brev., 1505	St. Stephen.
Canentes vos jubilo Solemnitatis regum	2. 6.	10,000 Martyrs (S. Achatius, &c.)
Concepit Maries virginis, Quae non	6.	Concep. B. V. M.
Confessor Christi, laudari qui meruisti,	13.	C. of Confessors.
Corde natus ex Parentis, Ante omnia	1.	Of the Eternal Son.
Coruscantes vos jubilo Solemnitatis regum	2. 6.	10,000 Martyrs (S. Achatius, &c.)
Cunctipotentem virginis, Quae non	6.	Concep. B. V. M.
Cunctipotentem virginis, Quae non	6.	Concep. B. V. M.
Cunctis nitet fidelibus, Quae sancta	13.	C. of Confessors.
Cunctis nitet fidelibus, Quae sancta	13.	C. of Confessors.
Decantemus jubilemus, Christo regi gloriae	7.	St. Cuthbertus.
Decantemus jubilemus, Christo regi gloriae	7.	St. Cuthbertus.
Decorata nupti tunc familiae	York Brev., 1493	St. Stephen.
Decorata nupti tunc familiae	York Brev., 1493	St. Stephen.
Deo laudes, Deo gloria, Deo	7.	Holy Trinity.
Deo laudes, Deo gloria, Deo	7.	Holy Trinity.
Deo sancto tangens coelos resonet ecclesia	12.	C. of a Martyr-Bishop.
Dulci corde jubilemus, Voce plena	8.	St. Dorothea.
Dulcis sonet harmonia, Dulci dignum melodia	12.	Crown of Thorns.
Ecce dies celebris, Magnoboli praesulis	1.	St. Magnobodus.
Ecce dies praeclara (cf. 6. Quem Deus)	1.	St. Remigius of Rouen.
Ecce dies specialis, Confessorum gloria,	1.	C. of Confessors—Bishops.
Ecce dies speciosa, Gaude tu qua Si natalis	9.	St. Philip and Jacobus (Hippo).
Ecclesia vivat inclyta, Pastor	6.	St. Ambrose.
Ea jubilemus carmina hac digna	9.	St. Martha.
Ea Angelus Phanuelis, Is angelorum	9. 11.	St. Mary of Egypt.
Ea radios carbatis, Ea affecti pietatis,	2.	St. Victor of Paris.
Ea virginalis, Ea virginalis	9. 11.	Assemp. B. V. M.
Exultemus congratulantes, harmonizati	4.	St. Benedict.
Exultemi in hac die cunti famulantes	4.	St. Anne.
Exultemus et laetemur, Et in Deo glorieamur	7.	St. Stephen.
Exultemus pari voto melodium,Consortantes	12.	St. Stephen.
Exaudet ecclesia, Pia Victoris vitoria	2.	St. Victor.
Exaudet ecclesia, Pro assumpta filia	2.	St. Anne.
Factura dominus potentate atque principatus	York Brev., 1493	Christmas.
Familius coetoli Christo tanta quam natus	Sarum Process., c. 1390	Christmas.
Felix Germanus, Felix Amatis gens	1.	St. Germanus of Auxerre.
Felix Maria mundi regina	Sarum Process., c. 1390	Christmas.
Felix mater Ilionum, Septem vere beatorum	6.	? Brethren of Ephesus.
Felix virgo Barbara	13.	= "O felix virgo."
Fons virtutum, O Barbara, Dulcis, mitis	1.	St. Barbara.
Fulgida dies praeclara, Ut in Deo gratiae,	1.	St. Stephen.
Fulgida dies praeclara, exercis mendicantibus,	7. 13.	St. Willibald.
Gaude coelestis cyprea, Semoni regis jam	9. 10. 11.	C. of Virgins.
Gaude Dei genitrix, Quam circumstant	Add. MS., 21668, f. 125b.	Pr. of "Salve ante."
Gaude felix Agrippina, sanctarum Colonia	11.	Patron saint of Cologne.
Gaude felix Agrippina, sanctarum Colonia	11.	Patron saint of Cologne.
Gaude jucunda mulier turma personis	7.	= " Laude jucunda."
Gaude mater Anne gaude, Mater casti	10.	St Anne
Gaude turba Sabinum, Mentis colens	2.	Compos. B. V. M.
Gaude virgo gloriosa, Ave paradisi rosa	7.	B. V. M.

1051

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
Gaudeamus hodie, Innocentes laetitiae	3.	SS. Mary and Salome.
Gaudet mater nobilis, Constans et immobilis	6.	St. Comitol of Constans.
Gaudet omnis spiritus, Christum qui	6.	= " Laudet omnis."
Gaudet te laeta, Justus et rens	6.	= " Laudet te."
Gloriosa fulget dies, exsultet ecclesia	7.	St. Lambert of Freising.
Gloriosa fulget dies, exsultet ecclesia,	7.	St. Lambert.
Gloriosae decoris in sancta Dens adoratur	9.	St. Wandelbena.
Grates Deo et honor sint per saecula	6. 7. 12.	St. Afra.
Gratulemur in hac die, Et qua sanctae	2.	Assemp. B. V. M.
Gratulatur orbis totus, Praesens coetus	8.	St. Margaret.
Hic est dies celebrandus, Laudibusque	5.	10,000 Martyrs (St. Achatius, &c.).
Hic occlis et maxillas in coelum	7.	Pr. of " Sacerdotem Christi."
Hodie prodit virgo Jesse de radice	Hereford Brev., 1505	Concep. B. V. M.
Hodiernae festum turbe Est Achatii laus	7. 12.	St. Achatius, &c. (10,000 Martyrs).
Hodiernae festum turbe, Et salutem vitae	2. 4. 7. 8. 10.	St. Achatius, &c. (10,000 Martyrs).
Hodiernae lux diei, Gloria sanctis in loci	7.	C. of Martyrs.
Hujus diei gaudia, devoto celebrata	7.	St. Augustine (Hippo).
Illibata mente casa, Almi virgo	5. 8.	Visit. B. V. M.
Imperator maxime Christe benignissime	7.	St. Sebastian.
Imperatrix gloriosa, Potens et liberalis	7. 13.	St. Helena.
Inclyta pandamus omnes Ludgerum vene- randum	Münster M., 1499 .	St. Ludger of Münster.
In excelsis canitur, Nato regi gloria	2.	Christmas. Circumcision.
In natale S.Innocti, Angelorum nostra cloria	7.	Christmas.
In sanctorum jugi laude, Plebs devota Dei	11.	St. Helena.
In Wolfgangi cunamis honoris Christo	7. 13.	St. Wolfgang of Regensburg.
Jam Christo Rex superne, Deo Patri	5.	St. Stanislaus.
Jesum Christum quem percunctor	York Brev., 1493	St. Gregory the Great.
Jubar nasci tendens, Sidus aiuti nascitis	12.	St. Cuthbertus.
Jubar nasci tendens, Sidus aiuti nascitis	12.	St. Cuthbertus.
Jubilemus Salvatori, Quem coelestes	2.	St. Silvester at Christmas.
Jubilemus Salvatori, Qui opus dedit	2.	Conversion of St. Paul.
Kyneburgae virginis sine fuste carnis	Lansdowne MS., 367, f. 34	St. Kyneburga.
Laetabundi coetis mundi, Domus melos	7.	St. Barbara.
Laetabundi jubilemus, Ac devoto celebremus	2.	Transfiguration.
Laetabundi jubilemus, Laeta mente	1.	C. of Martyrs.
Laetabundi jubilemus, Laeta mente	1.	St. Gregory of Clairvaux.
Laetabundus exsultet virginum chorus	11.	11,000 Virgins.
alfelula
Laetare mater ecclesia cum omnia filia	5. 6.	St. Kunigunda.
Laetetur ecclesia, devotione pia	5.	Pr. of " Plaudat urbs."
Laetetur mater ecclesia, Cum in sua jubilemus	5. 6.	St. Lambert.
Lambertus martyr in coelum Lambi	Add. MS., 24780, f. 220.	St. Lambert.
Lauda plebs Angelus Dominus	3.	St. Theobald.
Laude filius quod egressus	11.	= " Laude Sion quod."
Laudes almo Wandelino personarum tantifico	9.	St. Wandelbena.
Laudes Christo cum gaudio, Nostra pangat	Speier M., 1487	St. Gone.
laetitia
Laudes Christo persolvamus, Nos, qui sancti	7.	St. Judocus.
Laudes dignas attollamus, Cujus festum	1.	St. Margaret.
Laudes egregias cleras omnis canat	6.	St. Adelheid.
Laudes regias agentes, qui divinae	5. 6. (Gaudet) 12.	St. Henry II. (Mary II. (d. 1024).
Laudet in laetitia ac vena, Ut sanctorum	5. 6. (Gaudet)	St. Bartholomew.
Laureata plebs filiis Sacramentum carnis	7.	Corpus Christi.
Laus Deo Patri ejusque Nato patriaque	7.	St. Mary of Egypt.
Laus Deo Patri filioque compari in unitate	5. 6.	Holy Trinity.
Laus Deo Patri filioque compari in unitate	7.	Holy Trinity.
Laus Patri gloriae Quicunque Filioque	7.	Holy Trinity.
Laus sit regi gloriae, Cujus fecundi gratiae	7. 9. 11.	St. Agnes.
Laus sit regi gloriae, Cujus rore gratiae	10. Speier M., 1497	Five Wounds of Christ.
Laus tibi summae Deus quam praesumens	Speier M., 1481	St. Germain of Auxerre.
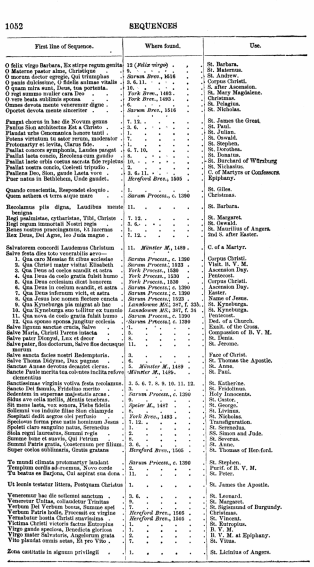
Lege
Laus laeuse in aeterna, Lucis ductrix	6.	St. Anne.
Luce nostis et-dcare, Virgo nostis in clausos	6.	St. Margaret.
Lux praeclara, lux salutaris, In qua	7. 13.	St. Bertellus.
Majestati sacrosanctae, Militans cum triumphante. Jubilet ecclesia.
1. De triumpho Thebaeorum	11.	Theban Legion (St. Gereon, &c.).
2. Sic vernetur laus in ore	11.	Three Kings of Cologne (Epiphany)
Majestati sit superna, Laus et honor	9.	St. Lubentius.
Martyr Christi Barbara, Mundi despecta	6.	St. Barbara.
Martyr Christi Barbara, Mundi despectus	6.	St. Barbara.
Martyrum egregium, Fortemque Gregorium,	11.	St. Gregory of Spoleto.
Martyris egregii, Triumphus Vincentii	6.	St. Vincent.
Martyris Victoris laudes resonent Christiani.	2.	St. Victor.
Mundi decor, mundi forma, Qua vivendi	6.	St. Martha.
Nascitur ex patre Zebedaeo, mater Maria	Sarum Process., c. 1390	St. John Evangelist.
Nete plange, Roma gaude, Quae nunc Pauli	1.	St. Paul.
O alma Trinitas, Deitas et individua	1.	C. of Apostles.
O Gloriae genitricem, cujus pia viscera	8.	B. V. M.

1052



1052 SEQUENCES

First line of Sequence.	Where found.	Use.
O felix virgo Barbara, Ex stirpe regum genita	13 (Felix virgo)	St. Barbara.
O Maxime pastor alme, Christifera	8.	St. Maximus.
O mortem dextor egregie, Qui triumphus	Sarum Brev., 1618	St. Andrew.
O quam felix et beata, Sancta Trinitas	15.	Corpus Christi.
O quam mira sunt, Deus, tua portenta	15.	S. after Ascension.
O regi summo nuller cara Dei	York Brev., 1493	St. Mary Magdalene.
O vere beata millimis epulus	York Brev., 1493	Christmas.
Omnes devota mente veneremur digne	6.	St. Nicholas.
Opulus devota mente simerier	Sarum Brev., 1516	St. Nicholas.
Pangat chorus in hac die Novem genus	7. 13.	St. James the Great.
Paulus Sha archiductus Ecc a Christo	3. 6.	St. Paul.
Plaudat tribs Onomastica honore tanti	1.	St. Andrew.
Primitiarum Martyr Stephanus, Salvatoris	1.	St. Oswald.
Protomartyr et levita, Clarus fide	1.	St. Stephen.
Psallat concors symphonia, Laudes pangat	6. 7. 10.	St. Dutchus.
Psallat lacta cunctis, Ecclesia cum gaudio	8.	St. Benatus.
Psallat laeta orbis coetus sacrata fide repletus	10.	St. Burchard of Wirzburg
Psallat vocum tuba, Laudes pangat	1.	C. of Martyrs.
Purae Dei Genitricis, Virginis Mariae	2. 8. 11.	C. of Martyrs of Confessors.
Puer natus in Bethlehem, Unde gaudet	Hereford Brev., 1505	Epiphany.
Quando cruciatus, Responsat eloquia	1.	St. Giles.
Quem aethera et terra atque mare	Sarum Process., c. 1280	Christmas.
Reclamus pia digna, Laudibus mente benigna	11.	St. Barbara.
Regi psalmistae, cytharistae, Tibi, Christe	7. 13.	St. Margaret.
Regi regum immortali Nostri regis	3. 6.	St. Paul.
Rerum vastos praevidentem, Ut incertas	7. 13.	St. Maurilius of Angers.
Rex Deus, Dei Agne, lor d'nis magne		2nd S. after Easter.
Salvatorem concelt Laudemus Christum	11. Winster M., 1489.	C. of a Martyr.
Salve festa dies toto venerabilis aevo—
1. Qua caro Messiae fit cibus ecclesiae	Sarum Process., c. 1280	Corpus Christi.
2. Qua Deus ad coelos victor conscendit	Sarum Process., c. 1280	St. Mary Mag.
3. Qua Deus ad coelos scandit et astra	York Process., 1530	Ascension Day.
4. Qua Deus de coelo gratia fulsit homo	York Process., 1530	Pentecost.
5. Qua Deus ecclesiam sibi honorem	York Process., 1530	Corpus Christi.
6. Qua Deus in coelum scandit, et astra	Sarum Process, c. 1280	Ascension Day.
7. Qua Deus ostendit, quod sit pietas	Sarum Process, c. 1280	Trinity.
8. Qua Jesus hoc nomen florum coepit	Sarum Process, 1523	Name of Jesus.
9. Qua Kyneburga pia migrat ab hac	Lansdowne MS. 387, f. 255.	St. Kyneburga.
10. Qua Kyneburga seu tollitur ex mundo	Lansdowne MS., 387, f. 34	St. Kyneburga.
11. Qua vera de coelo gratia fulsit homo	Sarum Process., c. 1280	Pentecost.
12. Qua vera ecclesia Christi coelestis	Sarum Process, c. 1280	Dedic. of Church.
Salve ignote sanctae crucis, Salve	5.	Exalt. of the Cross.
Salve Maria, Christi Parens inlacta	5.	Compassion of B. V. M.
Salve pastor Ubaldi, Lux et decor	6.	St. Denis.
Salve pater, flos doctorum, Salve flos decusque	11.	St. Jerome.
Salve sancta facies nostri Redemptoris	3.	Face of Christ.
Salve Thoma Dedyme, Dux pugnae	6.	St. Thomas the Apostle.
Sanctae Annae devotus decantet chorus	5. Winster M., 1489	St. Anne.
Sancte Paule merita tua coli-ates inclita relore	Winster M., 1489.	St. Paul.
Sanctissimae virginis votiva fruta recolamus	1. 5. 6. 7. 8. 10. 11. 13.	St. Katherine.
Sancto Dei Semula, Pritelino merito	5.	St. Frideswide.
Sedentes in supernae majestatis aulae	Sarum Process, c. 1280	Holy Innocents.
Silius ave cella inclita, Stirpis tenebrae	9.	St. Castor.
Sit laus Patri cum Filio, Sancto simul	Xpster M., 1497	Trinity.
Solemni vos laudate filiae hoc triumpho	6.	St. Livinus.
Sospitati dedit aegros olei perfusio	York Brev., 1493	St. Nicholas.
Speciosus forma prae natis hominum Jesus	7. 13.	Transfiguration.
Spoleti claro sanguine natus, Serenelius	1.	St. Serenelius.
Stirpe Maria regia, Proles David	1.	Nativ. of Blessed Virgin.
Stirpe boni et sancti, Qui virtute	8.	St. Severus.
Summi Patris gnata, Coeternum per filium	2. 6.	St. Anne.
Super coetus stellimeris, Gratia gratuse	Hereford Brev., 1505	St. Thomas of Hereford.
To mundi climata protomartyr laudavit	Sarum Process., c. 1280	St. Stephen.
Templum coelis ad evectus, Novo coelo	2.	Purif. of B. V. M.
Te laetus ex fac[illegible], Qui aspirat ens dona	11.	St. Peter.
Ut beatis tentatur litera, Postquam Christus	1.	St. James the Apostle.
Venerenur hic die solleuni sanctum	3. 6.	St. Leonard.
Venerenr Ubtius, collaudetur Trinitas	7.	St. Margaret.
Verbum Dei Verbum bonus, Summe spes	7.	St. Sigismund of Burgundy.
Verbum Patris hodie, Processit ex virgine	Hereford Brev., 1505	Christmas.
Verbum supernum prodiens, Nec patris	Hereford Brev., 1505	St. Vincent.
Virtutum Christi ex virtute, Emergens	1.	St. Evropius.
Virgo gaude speciosa, Benedicta mulier	2.	B. V. M.
Virgo mater Salvatoris, Augustini gnata	2.	B. V. M. at Epiphany.
Vite plaudat omnis aetas, Et pro Vito	7.	St. Vitus.
Zona castitatis in signum privilegii	1.	St. Licinius of Angers.

1053

SERGIUS — SHALL HEAVENLY WISDOM 1053

Many of the Sequences in the English Missals are only to be found in those Manuals. Of the remaining Sequences in both of the above lists a considerable proportion have not yet (Feb. 1888) been edited in any way. Mr. W. H. James Weale, in his Analecta Liturgica, is beginning the publication of all known Sequences which are not given, or only given in part, in Kehrein's Lateinische Sequenzen, and hopes in about five years to complete the work. [F. E. W. and J. M.]

Sergius. [Greek Synaxby, § xii. 3.]

Servant of God, well done! Rest from thy loved employ. J. Montgomery. [Death and Burial of a Minister.] This poem was pub. in Montgomery's Greenland and Other Poems, 1819, p. 194, in 6 st. of 8 l., with the following heading:—

"The Christian Soldier. Occasioned by the sudden death of the Rev. Thomas Taylor; After having declared in his last Sermon, on a preceding evening, that he hoped to die as an old soldier of Jesus Christ, with his sword in his hand."

Mr. Taylor, who was a Methodist preacher, was found dead in his bed on the morning of Oct. 15, 1816. The poem is given as a hymn in the 8th ed. of Cotterill's Sel., 1819, No. 366; in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 534; and in his Original Hys., 1853, No. 311. In addition to the use of this hymn in its original, and in an abbreviated, form, three centos are also in C. U.:—(1) "Soldier of Christ, well done," which begins with l. 5 of the last stanza. (2) "The pains of death are past," beginning with l. 1 of the same stanza; and (3) "The voice at midnight came," st. i. l. 5. [J. J.]

Servant of God, well done! Thy glorious warfare's past. C. Wesley. [Death and Burial of a Minister.] This hymn, in 6 st. of 8 l., was printed at the end of the Funeral Sermon by John Wesley, on the death of G. Whitefield. (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. vi. 816.) Whitefield died on Sept. 30, 1770, and J. Wesley preached the Funeral Sermon at the Tabernacle, Tottenham Court Road, and again at Moorfields on Nov. 18, 1770. He also preached on the same subject at Greenwich and at Deptford. His remark in his Journal is, "In every place I wish to show all possible respect to the memory of that great and good man." It must be noted that this hymn is a distinct piece from C. Wesley's Elegy on the Death of the Rev. George Whitefield. [J. J.]

Servants of God, awake, arise. [Exhortation.] This is an altered form of P. Doddridge's "A band, ye saints, and raise your eyes," p. 103, ii. It was included in the 1815 Appendix to Cotterill's Sel., No. 219, and is found in a few modern collections, including Windle's Ch. & Home Mel. Ps. and Hymnal, and others. In the 1819 ed. of his Sel. Cotterill again altered the text, and gave it as "Servants of God! lift up your bonds," p. 214. This form of the text is seldom found in modern hymn-books. [J. J.]

Servants of God, His praise proclaim. J. Montgomery. [Ps. cxiii.] Holland, in his Memoirs of Montgomery, says that after Montgomery ran away from the Moravian school at Fulneck, he lived from 1788 to June 19, 1789, with one Lockwood, at Mirfield, near Leeds. This person was a Moravian. He kept a small retail shop, and went by the name of the "Fine Bread Baker." Holland says:—

"Of the conduct of Montgomery behind the counter we never heard much; he did not remain there more than a year and a half; he had little to do, and still less to learn. During his residence there, it is said, that he has composed the largest part of the poem of Alfred, and amongst his smaller pieces a metrical version of the 113th Psalm, which, many years afterwards, was published, with some verbal alterations, in the collection of Montgomery's hymns, and also in the selection of the Archbishop of York in various churches both in Sheffield and elsewhere."—Memoirs, i. p. 73.

This version of Ps. 113 is on p. 57 of Cotterill's Sel., 1819, in 5 st. of 4 l. It was republished in Montgomery's Songs of Zion, 1822, and is found in several modern hymn-books. It very frequently begins "Servants of God in joyful lays." This is the first line of the last stanza, and is substituted for the original opening of the hymn. This is the earliest of Montgomery's hymns to which a date can be given. He was about 17 when it was written. [J. J.]

Set thine house in order. H. Alford. [Sunday after Christmas.] 1st pub. in his Year of Praise, 1867, No. 27, in 4 st. of 8 l., and repeated in the Universal H. Bk., 1885. It is based on the first lesson at Evening Prayer on the 1st S. after Christmas, Isaiah xxxviii. 1. [J. J.]

Seymour, Aaron Crossley Hobart, s. of John Crossley Seymour, M.A., Vicar of Calbridly, Diocese of Cashel (and elder brother of the Rev. Michael Hobart Seymour, author of several works on the Roman controversy), was b. in the county of Limerick, Dec. 19, 1795. From an early age he gave much attention to literary pursuits, and at the age of 21 he pub. his Vital Christianity exhibited in a Series of Letters on the most Important Subjects of Religion, addressed to Young Persons, 1816. This work, written during an illness, contains several of his hymns and other poetical pieces. He also edited a new edition of Dr. Gillies's Life of Whitefield, and wrote a "Memoir," which was prefixed to the Bibliotheca of Ancient Irish Poetry, by Miss Charlotte Brooke, 1816. His most important work was his Life and Times of Selina, Countess of Huntingdon, 2 vols., 1839. He resided for some time in Naples (circa 1839–1847), and then at Bristol. He d. Oct., 1870. A few of his hymns are still in C. U., including "Jesus, Immortal King, arise," p. 209, i., and others. For these details we are indebted to Miller's Singers and Songs, 1869, pp. 510–12. [J. J.]

Shall heavenly wisdom cry aloud? [Christ, the Wisdom of God.] This hymn appeared in the Scottish Draft Translations and Paraphrases, 1745, No. 96, in 10 st. of 4 l., and based on Prov. viii., 22, &c. It was composed of I. Watts's "Shall wisdom cry aloud?" (b. bk.) from his Hys. and Spiritual Songs, 1709, Bk. i., No. 92; and st. ii., iii. of his "Thus saith the wisdom of the Lord" (b. bk.) from the same work, Bk. i., No. 94; rewritten in C. M. In the authorized issue of the Trs. and Paraphs., 1781, No. 13, this arrangement is given with alterations as "Keep silence, all ye sons of men." In the markings of the Tra. and Pamphs. by the eldest daughter of W. Cameron (p. 200, ii.) this form of the text is attributed to him. [J. J.]

1054

Shall we go on to sin? I. Watts. [Hom. vi. 1-6.] 1st pub. in his Hymns, &c., 1709, Bk. i., No. 106, in 3 st. of 4 l., and entitled "Death to sin by the Cross of Christ." Its use is limited. Orig. text in modern editions of Watts. In the Draft of the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1745, it was given as "And shall we then go on to sin?" the alterations being confined to the change of metre. In adopting the hymn for the authorised issue of the Trans. in 1781, No. xlvii. (Hom. vi. 1-7), the first line only of the 1745 alterations was retained, the whole hymn being rewritten in 4 st. of 4 l. This recast has very little indeed of Watts, being to a great extent new. This form, according to the markings of the eldest daughter of W. Cameron (p. 200, ii.), was by Cameron. It is given in several modern collections. [J. J.]

Shall we not love thee, Mother dear. Sir H. W. Baker. [H. V. M.] Written for and first appeared in the 1868 Appendix to H. A. & M., and again, after revision, in the revised edition, 1875. [J. J.]

Shelly, Martha Evans, née Jackson, daughter of John Jackson, of Manchester, b. at Stockport, Cheshire, and married in 1840 to J. W. Shelly, of Great Yarmouth. Her hymns appeared in Curwen's Child's Own Hymn Book, 1844-1874, and include:—

1. Father, let Thy benedictus. On behalf of Children. Appeared in Curwen's Child's Own H. Bk., 1846, and is found in a few modern collections.

2. Lord, a little band and lowly. Children's Prayer. Written for the Manchester Whit-Monday Sunday School meeting in Manchester, the Rev. John Curwen one evening, gave a lecture on singing. He sang a very pretty and simple tune, to which he said he had no suitable words, and wished that some one would write a hymn for it. Mrs. Shelly composed the hymn to suit him after the close of the meeting." (Curwen's Hymn Notes, p. 18.) The tune which Mr. Curwen sang was a German one, and was given in his child's own Tune Book under the name of Grace. The hymn was pub. in the Voice of Praise, 1864, and has passed into a large number of collections for children.

3. Lord, help us, as we sing. Sincerity. Pub. in The Voice of Praise, 1864. [J. J.]

Shepherd, Anne, née Houlditch, daughter of the Rev. E. H. Houlditch, sometime Rector of Sipson, Berkshire, was b. at Cowes, Isle of Wight, Sept. 11, 1809: married to Mr. S. Saville Shepherd in 1831; and d. at Blackheath, Kent, Jan. 7, 1857. Her Hymns adapted to the Comprehension of Young Minds were pub. (3rd ed. 1847 5th ed. 1855), and contained 64 hymns. Of these the following have come into C. U.:—

1. Around the throne of God in heaven. (See p. 83, ii.)
2. Glory to Jesus, glory. Praise.
3. Hark, hark, my soul. Consolation.
4. I have read of the Saviour's love. The Love of Christ.
5. See where the gentle Jesus reigns. Jesus, the Children's Friend.

Of these hymns the first has by far the widest acceptance, and is found in a large number of children's hymn-books. Her religious novels, Ellen Seymour, 1848; and Reality, 1852, attracted some attention. [J. J.]

Shepherd of Israel, bend Thine ear. P. Doddridge. [During a Ministerial Vacancy.] In the 3rd ed. this is No. 63, in 3 st. of 4 l., and is headed, "Of seeking a right way from God, from Exra viii. 21. At a meeting of ministers at Bedworth, during their long vacancy," and is dated "April 10, 1735." It was pub. by Job Orton in his posthumous ed. of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1755, No. 370, in a slightly altered form; and in the same text was repeated in J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1839. It is usually given in modern hymn-books in a slightly altered form from that of 1755. In the Songs for the Sanctuary, N. Y., 1865, st. ii.-iv. are given as "O Lord, Thy pitying eye surveys." [J. J.]

Shepherd of the ransomed flock. [The Good Shepherd.] In Miss Dorothy A. Thrupp's Thoughts for the Day, 1837, 1st series, p. 8, are the following lines, sometimes given as a hymn in 2 st. of 4 l.:—

"Shepherd of the little flock,
Lead me by the shadowing rock;
Where the richest pasture grows;
Where the living water flows;
By that pure and silent stream,
Shepherd, Saviour, Guardian, Guide,
Shepherd, Saviour, Guardian, Guide,
Keep me ever near Thy side."

In the Rev. T. Darling's Hym. for the Church of England, 1855, lines 1-4 of the above were given with alterations as the opening of the hymn "Shepherd of the ransomed flock," the remaining four stanzas being by Mr Darling. This form of the hymn was repeated, with the addition of a doxology, in the 1863 Appendix to the S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hys., and again in other collections. In Mr. Darling's Hymns, &c., 1867, it is condensed to 6 st. It is specially adapted to the 2nd S. after Easter. [W. T. B.]

Shepherd of Thine Israel, lead us. J. Condor. [The Good Shepherd.] In Condor's Hys. of Praise, Prayer, and Devout Meditation, 1856, p. 201, this hymn is given in 3 st. of 6 l., together with the following note by the author's son, the Rev. E. E. Condor:—

"It is not quite certain whether the Author designed this Hymn to be imitated. It originated in an attempt to render a well-known imitation from the Welsh ['Guide me, O Thou great Jehovah,' p. 77, i.], the peculiar metre of which can only be preserved in part, more than half the place in each verse being occupied by what is little is borrowed, beyond the form and leading thought, that the foregoing seems fairly to rank as an original composition.—E. E. C."

This has failed to receive the attention of hymnal compilers. [J. J.]

Shepherd, Thomas, a of William Shepherd, sometime Vicar of Tilbrook, Bedfordshire, and subsequently a Nonconformist Minister at Ormsby, and at Kettering, was b. in 1663. Taking Holy Orders he laboured for some time preferment in Huntingdonshire, and in Buckinghamshire. Seceding from the Church of England, he became, in 1694, pastor of the Castle Hill Meeting House (Independent), Nottingham, of which Dr. Doddridge was subsequently pastor. In 1700 he removed to Bocking, near Braintree, Essex, where he began his work in a barn. A chapel was erected for his congregation in 1707. He d. Jan. 29, 1739. His publications consisted chiefly of Sermons. His Penitential Cries were a continuance of those by John Mason

(p. 716, ii.), who wrote the first six and the version of Ps. 86, and were pub. with Mason's Songs of Praise in 1693. It must be noted that in D. Sedgwick's reprint of the Songs, and the Penitential Cries, in 1859, Mason's Cries are under the head of Songs, &c., pp. 49-61, and those under Penitential Cries, are all by Shepherd. Some of these Cries are still in C. U., including, "My God, my God, my Light, my Love" (Longing for God); and "When will Thou come unto me, Lord" (Communion with God desired). [English Hymnody, Early, § xx.] [J. J.]

Sherwin, William Fisk, an American Baptist, was b. at Buckland, Massachusetts, March 14, 1826. His educational opportunities, so far as school were concerned, were few, but he made excellent use of his time and surroundings. At fifteen he went to Boston and studied music under Dr. Mason. In due course he became a teacher of vocal music, and held several important appointments in Massachusetts; in Hudson and Albany, New York County, and then in New York City. Taking special interest in Sunday Schools, he composed carols and hymn-tunes largely for their use, and was associated with the Rev. R. Lowry and others in preparing Bright Jewels, and other popular Sunday School hymn and tune books. A few of his melodies are known in Great Britain through I. D. Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos, where they are given with his signature. His hymn-writing was limited. The following pieces are in C. U.:—

1. Grander than ocean's story (1875). The Love of God.
2. Hark, hark, the merry Christmas bells. Christmas Carol.
3. Lo, the day of God is breaking. The Spiritual Warfare.
4. Wake the song of joy and gladness. S. School or Temperance Anniversary.
5. Why is thy faith, O Child of God, so small. Safety in Jesus.

Mr. Sherwin d. at Boston, Massachusetts, April 14, 1888. [J. J.]

Show pity, Lord; O Lord, forgive. I. Watts. [Ps. li.] Pub. in his Psalms of David, &c., 1719, p. 141, in three parts:—

1. "Show pity, Lord; O Lord, forgive." Pt. i.
2. "Lord, I am vile, conceived in sin." Pt. ii.
3. "O Thou that hear'st when sinners cry." Pt. iii.

Each of these parts is in C. U. In addition in the Wes. H. Bk., revised ed., 1875, the first part of No. 374 beginning, "Show pity, Lord," &c., is a conflation from these three parts in 6 st. of 4 l. The second part of the same version (Wes. H. Bk., No. 374), "O Thou that hear'st," &c., is Pt. iii. of Watts, as above, with the omission of st. v. This last arrangement was included by J. Wesley in his Ps. & Hys., pub. at Charlestown, America, 1736-37, and was repeated in the 1830 Suppl. to the Wes. H. Bk. In 1722 J. C. Jacobi gave ii. 1-3 of st. i. of Pt. i. by Watts as above, with ii. 2, 3, translated, as the opening of his Ps. of "Erbarm dich mein, O Herre Gott" (p. 608, i.), in his Psalmodia Germanica, p. 59. [J. J.]

Shindler, Mary Stanley Bunce, née Palmer, better known as Mrs. Dana, was b. in Beaufort, South Carolina, Feb. 13, 1810. In 1835 she was married to Charles E. Dana, of New York, and removed with him to Bloomington, now Muscatine, Iowa, in 1838. Mr. Dana d. in 1839, and Mrs. Dana returned to South Carolina. Subsequently she was married to the Rev. Rob-rt D. Shindler, who was Professor in Shelby College, Kentucky, in 1851, and afterwards in Texas. Mrs. Shindler, originally a Presbyterian, was for some time an Unitarian; but of late years she has been a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church. As Mary S. B. Dana she pub. the Southern Harp, 1840, and the Northern Harp, 1841. From these works her hymns have been taken, 9 of which are in T. O. Summers's Songs of Zion, 1851. The best known are:—

1. Fiercely raise the tempest sweeping. Christ stilling the storm. (1841.)
2. I'm a stranger, and I'm a stranger. A Christian Pilgrim. (1841.)
3. O sing to me of heaven. Heaven contemplated. (1841.) Sometimes given as "Come, sing to me of heaven." [F. M. B.]

Shine, mighty God, on Britain shine. I. Watts. [Ps. lxvii. National Hymn.] Appeared in his Psalms of David, &c., 1719, p. 176, in 7 st. of 4 l., with the heading, "The Nation's prosperity, and the Church's increase," and with the following note:—

"Having translated the scene of this Psalm to Great Britain, I have borrowed a decent and poetical Wish for the Happiness of my native Land from Zech. 2. 5 and offer'd it up in the 2d Stanza. 'I will be a Wall of Fire round about, and will be the Glory in the Midst of her.'"

This second stanza, which is bracketted as not being a part of the Psalm, is:—

"Amidst our Isle exalted high
In Thee, our Glory, stand,
And like a Wall of Guardian Fire Surround the Favourite Land."

This version of Ps. 67 is used (1) in its original form; (2) with the omission of st. ii.; (3) as "Shine, mighty God, on this our land"; (4) as "Shine, mighty God, on Zion shine"; and (5) as "Shine on our land, Jehovah shine." [J. J.]

Shipton, Anna. Concerning this writer we can ascertain no details beyond the fact that she pub.:—

(1) Whispers in the Pulse. Hymns and Meditations, London, 1865. (2) Hymns of Love and Praise, 1867. (3) Practical Grace for the Sinner's Station, 1882. (3) The Brook in the Way: Original Hymns, 1884. (4) Still Jesus: Recollections of E. Grace. (5) The Cottage on The Rock, an Allegory. Also other smaller books.

Her hymns in C. U. include:—

1. From her Whispers in the Pulse, 1855-57.

1. Down in the pleasant pastures. The Good Shepherd.
2. Father, My cup is full. Communion.
3. Jesus, Master, whose I am. Ps. cxix. Praise.
4. Jesus, Master, hear my cry. Mixed Sentiments.

ii. From her other Works.

5. Call them in, the poor, the wretched (1862). Home Missions.
6. Praise God, ye gladdening smiles of morn. Ps. cxlviii. [J. J.]

Shirley, Hon. Walter, M.A., fourth s. of the Hon. Laurence Shirley (s. of the 1st Earl Ferrers, and cousin of the Countess of Huntingdon), was b. in 1725. He was a friend of Whitefield and the Wesleys, and often preached in their chapels. He was for sometime Rector of Loughrea, county of Galway. He d. April 7, 1786. A selection of his sermons was published; also two poems in 1761—Liberty, an Ode, and The Judgment. In 1774 he assisted the Countess of Huntingdon in revising the collection of hymns used in her chapels, and therein a few of his productions are found. In the Life of Selina, Countess of Huntingdon, 1839, vol. ii., p. 291, the following note is given on Shirley's hymn-writing:—

"Mr. Shirley was the author of several well-known hymns in Lady Huntingdon's collection, particularly:—
'From heaven the loud angelic song began.'
'Hark! in the wilderness a cry.'
'Flow fast my tears, the cause is great.'
'Shrinking from the cold hand of death.'
'Source of light and power divine.'"

"There are also some in other collections; and a few little poems scattered in various periodical publications. The lines on the departure of the Missionaries from Lady Huntingdon's College, in the year 1768, under the direction of Mr. Piercy, have been much admired; they were re-published in the Evangelical Magazine, in 1796, on the departure of the ship Duff, for the South Sea Islands. . . . He likewise assisted Lady Huntingdon in the collection of hymns now in use in the congregation in her Connexion."

The Missionary hymn here referred to is:—

"Go, destined vessel, heavenly-freighted, go!"

His hymns now in C. U. include:—

1. Flow fast, my tears, the cause is great. Good Friday. Appeared in the Gospel Magazine, Dec., circa 1773, p. 564, in 3 st. of 8 l. It is in several modern hymn-books; and especially in America, including Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872.

2. From heaven the loud angelic song began. Ascension. Appeared in the Gospel Magazine, circa 1773, p. 313, in 7 st. of 4 l. The hymn, "Mourn for Jesus, of boundless away," in Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872, and others, is composed of st. ii. and vi.

3. Hark, in the wilderness a cry. St. John Baptist. Appeared in C. of Huntingdon's Coll., circa 1774, p. 248, in 8 st. of 4 l.

4. Source of light and power divine. Before Sermon. Also in the C. of Huntingdon's Coll., circa 1773, p. 221, in 4 st. of 6 l. In Stopp's Songs of G. & G., 1874, No. 45, the first line is given in an altered form, and the fifth line, that of the original, is not a refrain.

5. Sweet as the shepherd's tuneful rest. Peace. Also in the above Coll., circa 1773, p. 152, in 4 st. of 6 l. The hymn, "Peace, troubled soul, whose plaintive moan," in London Hymns, N. Y., 1864, and others, is composed of st. ii. and iii.

For Shirley's popular recast, "Sweet the moments, rich in blessing," see "While my Jesus I'm possessing." [J. J.]

Shrinking from the cold hand of death. C. Wesley. [Death and Burial.] This ente was given in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 63, in 3 st. of 4 l. Of these st. i., ii., are No. 102, and st. iii. is No. 244, in vol. i. of his Short Hymns on Select Passages of H. Scripture, 1762 (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. ix. pp. 33 and 80). This text is repeated in the revised ed. of the Wes. H. Bk., 1876, and is in a large number of collections in most English-speaking countries. The spiritual uses of this hymn have been great. Several instances are given in C. J. Stevenson's Methodist H. Bk. Notes, 1883, p. 56. [J. J.]

Shrubsole, William, eldest s. of William Shrubsole, a master mastmaker in the dockyard at Sheerness, Kent, and a Lay Preacher, was b. at Sheerness, Nov. 21, 1759. In his earlier years he was engaged as a shipwright in the dockyard, and then as a clerk. In 1785 he removed to London, and entered the Bank of England as a clerk. He subsequently became the Secretary to the Committee of the Treasury. He d. at Highbury, Aug. 23, 1829. Mr. Shrubsole was for some time a communicant at St. Anne's, Blackfriars, during the incumbency of the Rev. W. Goode; but during the last twenty years of his life he was a member with the Congregationalists, and attended the Hoxton Academy Chapel. He interested himself in religious societies, and especially the London Missionary Society (of which he became a director and one of the secretaries), the Bible Society, and the Religious Tract Society. He contributed hymns to the Evangelical Magazine, the Christian Magazine, the Theological Miscellany, the Christian Observer and the Youths' Magazine, at various dates, from 1775 to 1813. To these works we have traced nearly twenty of his hymns. A Memoir of Shrubsole was contributed by his daughter to Dr. Morison's Fathers and Founders of the London Missionary Society, 2 vols., Lond., Fisher, Sons & Co., 1844. Seven of his hymns are also given, together with a portrait, in the same work. His hymns in C. U. include:—

1. Arm of the Lord, awake, awake. Put on Thy strength, the nations shake. Missions. This appeared in Missionary Hymns, 1795; and in Morison's Fathers and Founders, 1844, p. 443, in 5 st. of 6 l. It is given by Dr. Rogers in his Lyra Britannica, 1867, attributed to Shrubsole's father, and dates it 1799. Against this statement we can only put the fact that it is claimed in Morison for the son. Orig. text, Lyra Brit., 1867, p. 348.

2. Bright as the sun's meridian blaze. Missions. Written Aug. 16, 1795, for the first meeting of the London Missionary Society. It was printed in the Evangelical Magazine, Sept., 1795, headed "On the intended Mission to the Islands in the South Seas," and in Morison, 1844, i. p. 443, together with the note that the hymn "was duly acknowledged by Mr. Shrubsole in his lifetime, and the original ms., with numerous corrections, is in possession of his family, in his own autograph," and "was sung Aug. 16, 1796." Aug. 16, 1796." Orig. text Lyra Brit., 1867, p. 348.

3. In all the paths my feet pursue. Looking unto Jesus. Appeared in the Evangelical Magazine, 1794; in Morison, i., 1844, p. 434; and Lyra Brit., 1867, p. 503.

4. Lo, the glad tidings spread around. Missions. Appeared in the Evangelical Magazine, 1795; and again in Morison, 1844, i. p. 433.

5. When streaming from the Eastern skies. Daily Duties; or, Morning. Pub. in the Christian Observer, 1805, p. 57, and in Morison, 1844, i. p. 435, as "Morning Acceptance and Enjoyment," and signed Philedon. Also in Morison, 1844, i. p. 435; and Lyra Brit., 1867, p. 503. The well-known cento, "As every day Thy mercy spares," is from this hymn, and begins with st. ii.

6. To Thy suicide, your grateful praises bring. Praise. In the Evangelical Magazine, 1794; and Morison, 1844, i. p. 441, in full.

7. Zion awake, Thy strength renew. The Glory of the Church. Appeared in the Evangelical Magazine, 1794; and in Morison, 1844, i. p. 438. It is sometimes given as, "Zion, awake, behold the day."

Of these hymns the most widely used are Nos. 1, 2, 5, and 7. [J. J.]

Sic ter quaternis trahitur. (Lent. Evening.) This is found in a ms. circa 920 in the Bodleian (Junius 25, f. 128); in two mss. of the 11th cent. in the British Museum (Vesp. D. xii., f. 50 b; Harl. 2961, f. 236 b); and in the Latin Hyc. of the Anglo Saxon Ch., 1851, p. 61, is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32, f. 18). In the York Breviary of 1493 (where it begins "Jam ter quaternis trahitur") it is appointed for Vespers on the Saturday before the 3rd S. in Lent. The text is also in Daniel i., No. 77. Tr. as:

1. Now twice [thrice] four hours have passed away. By J. D. Chambers, in his Psalter, 1852, p. 344; his Lauds Sync, 1857; and the 1863 Appx. to the Hymnal N.

2. With its thrice quaternioned hours. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hymn and Tune Book, 1852-55. [J. M.]

Sidney, Sir Philip (b. 29th Nov., 1554; d. 17th October, 1586) and Mary Sidney, Countess of Pembroke (b. 1530 (?); d. 25th September, 1621). This illustrious pair claim notice in this work from their versification of the Psalms. These are frequently noticed by contemporaries, memorably by Dean Donne (Poems, vol. ii., pp. 313-15 in Fuller Worthies' Library); but they were not printed until 1823, as follows:—

The Psalmes of David, Translated into Divers and Sundry Kinds of Verse, More rare and Excellent For the Method and Variable Vaine then yet hath been done in English. Begun by The noble and learned gent, Sir Philip Sidney Knight, Lord Governour of Flushing, Continued by the Countesse of Pembrooke, his Sister. Now first printed from a Copy of the Original Manuscript, Presented by Anne Harris, of Hereford, in the reign of James the First.

This ms of John Davies, the renowned calligraphist, passed from the Bright Sale to Pendarvis. Its exquisite penmanship is the chief value. It has many bad readings and gratuitous obscurities. A more accurate text is preserved in the Bodleian (Rawlinson, Poet. 23), written by Dr. Samuel Woodford, having been made from the ms. of a scribe who copied under the superintendence of Sir Philip Sidney himself, who in certain places has written "Leave a space here" for a variant stanza. There are also occasional alterations in Sidney's own autograph. This ms. is the text of the present writer's reproduction in both of his editions of the complete Poems of Sir Philip Sidney in the Fuller Worthies' Library (2 vols.) and in Early English Poets (3 vols.). The critical reader is referred to the "Various Readings" from both the above mss., and from a third in Trinity College, Cambridge, and two in the British Museum (Add. mss. 12,048 and 12,047), and many notes and illustrations. It was for long doubted which portions belonged to Sir Philip and which to his sister (e.g. Dr. Macdonald in his Antiphon). But the evidence is multiplied that to Sidney belong only the first forty-three; e.g. Lord Brooke's Letter, which is reprinted in our Essay (as above), names "about forty psalms," and Dr. Woodford, at end of Psalm xliii., notes, from the autograph-corrected Sidney ms., "Thus far Sir Philip Sidney," and the British Museum ms. (12,048) writes there "Hactenus Sir Philip Sidney;" and so elsewhere. Most will agree that the Countess excels her brother, and that of his kind, the best poetry is found in her Psalmes. John Ruskin, in his Fors Clavigera, has dedicated a whole part to a brilliant eulogy of the Psalms of both. Some of Sir Philip Sidney's Songs and Sonnets deserve introduction into the Church's Praise. Many are melodious and thought-laden, and some seem to set themselves to music. [See Psalters, English, § ix.] [A. B. G.]

Sie ist mir lieb, die werthe Magd. M. Luther. [The Christian Church.] Founded on Rev. xii. 1-6: 1st pub. in King's G. B., Wittenberg, 1535, in 3 st. of 12 l.; and thence in Wackernagel, iii. p. 24, in Schirrle's ed. of Luther's Geistl. Lieder, 1824, p. 80; and the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 246. The trs. are:—

(1) "The worthy maid is dear to me." By J. Anderson, in the Scottish Presb. Hymnal, 1876, p. 47. (2) "The worthy maid." By C. J. Boot, 1865, p. 27. (3) "Dear is to me the Holy Maid." By S. Mohr, 1854, p. 27; and thence in Dr. Snape, 1864, p. 65. (4) "To me she's dear, the worthy maid." By Dr. G. Macdonald, in the Sunday Mag., 1891, p. 450; altered in his Exotics, 1876, p. 47, and in his Poetical Works, 1893. (5) "She is to me the Maid." By E. Massie, 1867, p. 34. [J. M.]

Sieh hier bin ich Ehren König. J. Neander. [Supplication.] This beautiful and searching hymn is traditionally said to have been written in 1677 during enforced absence from his duties. Founded on Ps. lvii. 7 ("God, my heart is ready, to sing and to praise"). 1st pub. in his Glaub- und Liebes-Übung: aufgemuntert durch einfältige Bundes-Lieder und Danck-Psalmen. Bremen, 1680, p. 139, in 6 st. of 6 l., entitled "Ermunterung zum Preise." In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 241. Tr. as:—

1. Behold me here, in grief drawn near. By Mrs. Findlater in the 1st Ser., 1854, of the H. L. L., p. 44 (1884, p. 46). This follows the text of Knapp in his Ev. L. S., 1837, No. 2060 (1865, No. 1982), omitting st. iv. St. v. of this version is not by Neander, and had appeared in the Würtemberg G. B., 1791, No. 464, thus:—

"Tief in Gebeten Jesu treibt mich's,
Kindlich lieben, Herr, vor dir;
Ach, erscheine, Wenn ich weine,
Sind mir deine Hilfe mir!
Lass dich finden! Lass dich finden!
Denn mein Herz verlangt nach dir."

Included in full in Cantate Domino, Boston, U. S., 1859, and omitting Mrs. Findlater's st. iv. in the Meth. N. Connexion H. Bk., 1863.

2. Here behold me, as I cast me. A very good tr., omitting st. iv., v., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd. Ser., 1858, p. 170; repeated in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 122. Included in Dr. Pagenstecher's Coll., 1864; Christian H. Book, Cincinnati, 1865; Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868, &c. In 1876 it was included in the Scottish Presb. Hymnal, with a tr. of the stanza quoted above made by Miss Winkworth at the request of the committee of publication. This form is repeated in Newman Hall's Christ Church Hyl., 1876. The form in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, beginning "Look upon me, Lord, I pray Thee," consists of st. ii. and iii.

Other trs. are (1) "King of glory, on mine Thee." from Hymns, by G. Moultrie, in the Sunday Mag., 1870, p. 46, repeated in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872. (2) "Now behold me, King of glory," in the German Reformed Guardian, June 1885, p. 173, signed "J. K." [J. M.]

Σαγηνάτω πᾶσα σὰρξ βροτεία. [Holy Communion.] This is the "Prayer of the Cherubic Hymn," from the Liturgy of St. James, as given in Neale and Littledale's Translations of the Primitive Liturgies, 1869-8, but rendered into metre as "Let all mortal flesh keep silence," by G. Moultrie, in the 2nd ed. of the Lyra Eucharistica, 1864, in 4 st. of 3 double lines. In 1867 it was transferred to the People's H., for use "Before Consecration." [J. J.]

Sigourney, Lydia, née Huntley. This distinguished name stood at the head of the female poets of America a generation ago, and is still well remembered. Born in Norwich, Connecticut, in 1791, she conducted a school in the same town from 1809 to 1814, when she removed to Hartford, where she was married to Charles Sigourney in 1819. Most of her subsequent life was spent at Hartford, and she d. there, June 10, 1865. Her first publication was Moral Pieces in Prose and Verse, 1815. This was followed by 58 additional works. A thorough exploration of these, or of such of them as are poetical, would be necessary to trace her hymns with accuracy. They, however, are more numerous than important. Many have been used in the older collections; some are still in use, but few are extensively and none are universally so. The principal hymn-books in which they appeared were the Congregational Village Hymns, 1824; Ripley's Sel., 1829; and the Connecticut Ps. & Hys., 1845; the Baptist Additional Hys. by Winchell, 1832; and Lindsey and Davis's Select Hys., 1836; and the Universalist's Hys. for Christian Devotion, by Adams & Chapin, 1846. Her best known hymns chronologically arranged are:—

1. When adverse winds and waves arise. In Affliction. A graceful lyric, possibly inspired by Sir R. Grant's "When gathering clouds around I view." It appeared with four others of less importance by Mrs. Sigourney, in Dr. L. Bacon's (p. 109, ii.) Hys. and Sac. Songs for Assembly Concert, Andover, Sept. 1825. It is in C. U.

2. Blest Comforter divine. Whitsuntide. This is one of four hymns by Mrs. Sigourney, which appeared in Nettleton's Village Hymns, 1824, under the signature of "H." Her name was given in full as the author in Hall and Spring's Mis. Hys., 1832.

3. We mourn for those who toil. Death and Burial. This poem on "Monaton Grief" appeared in Cleaver's Common Place Book, 1831. It is in a few English collections, including the Leeds H. Bk., 1853.

4. Dear Saviour, let the lambs draw near. Holy Baptism. This was in Ripley's Sel., 1829-31.

5. Saviour, Thy law we love. Holy Baptism. In Winchell's Additional Hys., 1832.

6. Onward, onward, ransom'd heaven. Missions. This missionary hymn appeared in three different books in 1832, viz. Winchell's Additional Hys., &c. It is in C. U. in Great Britain (Kennedy, 1863, &c.).

7. Labourers of Christ, arise. Home Missions. This was contributed, with nine others, by Mrs. Sigourney, to Lindsey & Davis's Select Hymns, 1836. This is one of the best of the nine. It is in C. U.

8. Pastor, thou art from us taken. Burial of a Minister. Sung at the funeral of the Rev. G. F. Davis, D.D., circa 1836.

9. Go to thy rest, my (fair) child. Death of a Child. From a selection from her poems pub. in London in 1840.

10. Wet for the summer hour alone. Holy Matrimony. In the same Selection as No. 9.

11. Whose will thou yet thy trust? Choosing upon Trust. Pub. in her Poems, Hartford, 1841, p. 180.

12. Lord, vary the spirit of this feast. Holy Communion. In the same as No. 11.

13. We praise Thee if one ransom'd soul. Temperance Anniversary. In Adams and Chapin's Hys. for Christian Devotion, 1846.

In addition to these hymns there are several others in the collections named above. As, however, they are not repeated in modern hymn-books they are omitted from this list. We would add that two hymns, not noted above, "Little raindrops feed the rill" (Power of little things), and "There was a noble ark," are in C. U. in G. Britain: and that a selection of her pieces is given in the Lyra Sac. Amer., Lond., 1868. [F. M. B.]

Silence in the house of prayer. A. T. Garney. [Easter Eve.] Pub. in his Bk. of Praise, Hys. for Divine Worship, 1862, in 6 st. of 4 l. In 1864 it was repeated, unaltered, in Lyra Messianica, and again in the 1869 Appendix to the S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hys., with the omission of st. ii. [J. J.]

Simpson, Jane Cross, née Bell, dau. of James Bell, Advocate, of Glasgow, was b. Nov. 12, 1811. She contributed several pieces to The Edinburgh Literary Journal, of which her brother, Henry G. Bell, was editor, under the nom de plume of Gertrude; and later to the Scottish Christian Herald. She was married in 1837 to her cousin, Mr. J. B. Simpson, of Glasgow; and d. June 17, 1886. Her publications are:—(1) The Vicissitudes of Daily Life, 1836; (2) April Hours, 1838; (3) Woman's History, 1848; (4) Limbs, or Beauty and Genius, 1859; (5) Picture Poems, 1879; (6) Limbs, and other Poems, 1879. Her hymns in C. U. are:—

1. O, when the morning shineth. Prayer. This appeared in The Edinburgh Literary Journal, Feb. 26, 1831, in 4 st. of 8 l., and again in her April Hours, 1838, in 3 st. The full text from Mrs. Simpson's ms. was given in the Scottish Guardian, Feb. 1, 1887, with a lively tune. It is sometimes erroneously attributed to "Lord Methuen," and again to "Lord Carlisle."

2. I had a lesson to teach them. The Death of Children. Contributed to Dr. Rogers's Lyra Britannica, 1867, p. 267, in 4 st. It was repeated in full in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873.

3. Star of morning, brightly shining. Per ten at Jes. Given in E. Prout's Psalmist, 1879.

4. Star of peace to wanderers weary. For those at Sea. Contributed to the Scottish Temperance Union Hymn Book, 1876. [J. J.]

Simson, Patrick, b. Oct. 2, 1628, at New-Abbey, near Dumfries, studied at the University of Edinburgh, and was ordained Parish Minister of Renfrew in 1653. He was Moderator of the General Assembly in 1693-96, and d. at Renfrew, Oct. 24, 1715. His poetical pieces were pub. as Spiritual Songs; or, Holy Poems. A Garden of true Delight. Edinburgh, A. Anderson, for J. Gibson, Glasgow, 1685-86. These poems are divided into six books. A selection from this work, after revision, was formally sanctioned by the General Assembly of 1708 for use in public worship, but seems never to have been issued. [See Scottish Hymnody, iv. § 3.] The Aberdeen reprint (1707) of the Spiritual Songs contains a second part given as a Supplement, entitled Some Scriptural Hymns, selected from sundry Passages of Holy Writ, 63 of which are from the O. T. and 48 from the N. T. These hymns are by the Rev. John Forbes, who in 1717 was ordained minister of the parish of Fintlay, Aberdeenshire, became minister of Old Deer in 1718, and d. April 23, 1765. [J. M.]

Sinae sub alto vertice. Jesu Baptiste de Scudeld. [For Evangelists.] Appeared in the Cluniac Brev., 1686, p. viii.; in his Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, p. 198 (ed. 1698, p. 241); and the Paris Brev., 1736, as the hymn at Lauds for the Feasts of St. Mark and St. Luke. The text is also in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 91: and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

From Sinai's trembling peak. By E. Caswall, in his Masque of Mary, 1858, p. 321, and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 183. It is repeated in the 1865 Appendix to the H. Noted, the Hymnary, 1872, &c.

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. When from the mount the Law was given. I.

Williams, in the British Mag. Feb., 1837; and his Hys. to Form the Parishes Brev. 1839.

2. The Law on Sinai's fiery height. J. Chandler. 1837 and 1841.

3. From thundering skies at Sinai's rock. Ps. lxviii. 1837.

4. Where final lovers, while thunder peaked. W. J. Hoe. 1852-53.

5. 'Mid thundrings loud, from Sinai's rock. J. A. Johnston's English Hys., 1852. [J. J.]

Since Jesus freely did appear. J. Burridge. [Holy Matrimony.] Appeared in the Gospel Magazine for Aug. 1775, p. 380, in 6 st. of 4 l., headed with the text St. John ii. 1, 2, followed by the words "A Wedding Hymn," and signed "Old Everton." It was afterwards included in his Zion's Songs, 1785, as "Our Jesus freely did appear." It is given in modern hymn-books generally in an altered form, with varying number of stanzas. [J. J.]

Since the dear hour that brought me to Thy foot. [Faith in Christ.] The closing lines of W. Cowper's poem, entitled Truth, which was pub. in his Poems, 1782, read as follows:—

"All joy to the believer! He can speak—
Trembling yet happy, confident yet meek.
Since the dear hour that brought me to Thy foot,
And cut off all my follies by the root,
I never trusted in an arm but Thine,
Nor sought my refuge in a false design:
My prayers and aims, imperfect and defiled,
Were but the feeble efforts of a child;
Howe'er performed, it was their brightest part,
That they were offered with a single heart.
Cleansed in Thine own all-purifying blood,
Forgive their evil, and accept their good;
I cast them at Thy feet—my only plea
Is what it was, dependence upon Thee.
While struggling in the vale of tears below,
That never fail'd, nor shall it fail me now.
Angels grow strong, and walk their way,
Feed high upon it, never more to rise,
Humility is crown'd and Faith receives the prize."

On these lines the Rev. J. G. Pike, Baptist minister at Derby, based a comic in 5 st. of 6 l., the first of which reads:—

"Jesus, if Thou hast brought me to Thy foot,
And cut up all my follies by the root,
Never may I trust in any arm but Thine,
Nor seek my refuge in a false design:
In life, in death, to this my only plea,
That Thou on Calvary didst die for me!"

The italics show the changes made by Mr. Pike in adapting these opening lines for public worship. The remaining lines are similarly treated, and the result is a most pleasing and devotional hymn. It was 1st pub. in a hymn-book compiled by Mr. Pike for the use of his own congregation, about 1830. From that collection it passed into the General Baptists' New H. Bk., pub. in 1851 by Mr. Pike's two sons; and again in the Bapt. Hymnal, 1879. [W. R. S.]

Sing a new song unto the Lord. J. Montgomery. [Praise to the Father.] Written for the Whitsuntide gathering of the Sheffield Church Sunday Schools in 1843, in 6 st. of 4 l., and dated in the m. ms. "May 8, 1843." It was included in Montgomery's Original Hymns, 1853, No. 201. In Dale's English H. Bk., 1874, it begins with st. ii., "God is the Lord; around His throne." [J. J.]

Sing to God in sweetest measures. [St. Mark.] This hymn, No. 170 in the Cooke and Denton Hymnal, 1853, was adapted by Canon Cooke from R. Campbell's "Come, pure hearts, in sweetest measure" (p. 160, ii.), in 3 st. of 6 l. St. ii. and iii. are almost entirely new. This text, with slight alterations, was repeated in Kennedy, 1863. [J. J.]

Sing to the Lord a joyful song. J. S. B. Monsell. [Morning.] This hymn, based on Ps. cxiv. 1, 2, appeared in his Hys. of Love and Praise, 1863, p. 1, in 5 st. of 8 l. It was repeated with slight variations in his Spiritual Songs, 1869, and again in his Parish Hymnal, 1873, No. 13. The text in C. U., as in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871; Thring's Coll., 1882, and others, is that of 1863. [J. J.]

Sing to the Lord a new-made song. Great miracles to Him, &c. B. H. Kennedy. [Ps. xcviii.] Appeared in his Psalter, or Ps. of David, &c., 1860, p. 153, in 7 st. of 3 l., and again, with a doxology, in his Hymns. Christ., 1863, in 4 st. of 6 l. [J. J.]

Sing to the Lord a new-made song; Let all in one, &c. H. F. Lyte. [Ps. xcvi.] Pub. in his Spirit of the Psalms, 1834, as the 2nd version of the 96th Ps., in 3 st. of 8 l., and again in other hymn-books. [J. J.]

Sing to the Lord a new-made song, Who wondrous things, &c. Tate & Brady. [Ps. xcviii.] This N. V. (1696) paraphrase of Ps. 98 is not in C. U. The cento given in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, as No. 98, is composed of st. i.–iv. from this paraphrase, and st. v., vi. of Bp. Mant's version of the same psalm, 1824. [J. J.]

Sing to the Lord of harvest. J. & B. Monsell. [Harvest.] Pub. in the 2nd ed. of his Hys. of Love and Praise, 1866, in 4 st. of 8 l. and, again, altered to "Sing to the Lord of bounty," in his Parish Hymnal, 1873. Both forms of the text are in C. U. in G. Britain and America. In his Parish Hymnal, Dr. Monsell appointed this hymn for Rogation Days. [J. J.]

Sing to the Lord with joyful voice. I. Watts. [Ps. c.] 1st pub. in his Psalms of David, &c., 1719, p. 256, in 6 st. of 4 l. In this form its use in modern collections is limited; that which has attained to the greatest popularity being:—"Before Jehovah's awful throne." This arrangement is by J. Wesley, and was 1st pub. in his Ps. & Hys., at Charlestown, U.S.A., in 1736-7, p. 5, and repeated in J. & C. Wesley's Ps. & Hys., 1741, p. 74: the Wes. H. Bk., in 1797, as the first of the "Additional Hymns," and the revised ed. of 1875. Modern collections of the Church of England have received it through Madan's Ps. & Hys., 1760, Toplady's Ps. & Hys., 1776, and others of the last century. It consists of Watts, as follows, with alterations thus: st. i., Watts's st. i. altered, by J. Wesley, to:—

"Before Jehovah's awful throne
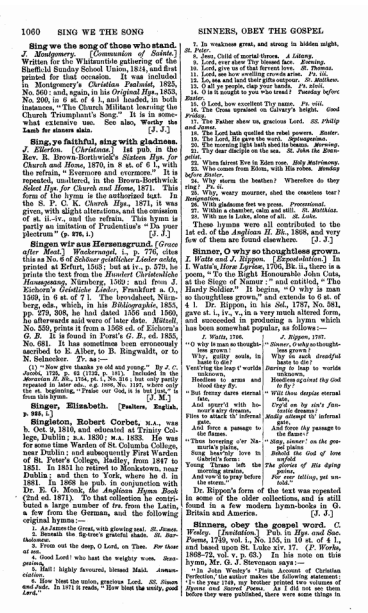
Ye nations bow with sacred joy."

St. ii. Watts's st. iii. unaltered. St. iii. Watts's st. v. unaltered. St. iv. Watts's st. vi. altered, by an unknown hand, for the "Additional Hymns" added to the Wes. H. Bk., after Wesley's death, in 1797, thus:—"Firm as a rock Thy truth shall stand." In this last form this hymn is known in all English-speaking countries, and has been translated into many languages. A Latin tr. by R. Bingham, in his Hymns. Christ. Lat., 1871, begins, "Ante Jehove tremendum." [J. J.]



1060 SING WE THE SONG SINNERS, OBEY THE GOSPEL

Sing we the song of those who stand. J. Montgomery. [Communion of Saints.] Written for the Whitsuntide gathering of the Sheffield Sunday School Union, 1818, and first printed for that occasion. It was included in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 560: and, again, in his Original Hys., 1853, No. 200, in 6 st. of 4 l., and headed, in both instances, "The Church Militant leaving the Church Triumphant's Song." It is in somewhat extensive use. See also, Worthy the Lamb for sinners slain. [J. J.]

Sing, ye faithful, sing with gladness. J. Ellerton. [Christmas.] 1st pub. in the Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick's Sixteen Hys. for Church and Home, 1870, in 8 st. of 6 l., with the refrain, "Evermore and evermore." It is repeated, unaltered, in the Brown-Borthwick Select Hys. for Church and Home, 1871. This form of the hymn is the authorized text. In the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, it was given, with slight alterations, and the omission of st. ii.-iv., and the refrain. This hymn is partly an imitation of Prudentius's "Da puer plectrum" (p. 878, i.) [J. J.]

Singen wir aus Hersensgrund. [Grace after Meat.] Wackernagel, i., p. 776, cites this as No. 6 of Schöner geistlicher Leder nebst, printed at Erfurt, 1563; but at iv., p. 370, he prints the text from the Hundert Christenliche Hausegsang, Nürnberg, 1569: and from J. Eichorn's Geistliche Lied-r., Frankfurt a. O., 1569, in 6 st. of 7 l. The Innsbruck, Nürnberg, edn., which, in his Bibliographie, 1855, pp. 379, 398, he had dated 1556 and 1560, he afterwards said were of later date. Mützell, No. 259, prints it from a 1568 ed. of Eichorn's G. B. It is found in Porst's G. B., ed. 1855, No. 681. It has sometimes been erroneously ascribed to E. Alber, to B. Ringwaldt, or to N. Selnecker. Tr. as:—

(1) "Now give thanks ye old and young." By J. C. Jacobi, 1722, p. 42 (1736, p. 181). Included in the Moravian H. Bk., 1754, pt. i., No. 316; but only partly repeated in later edn., e.g. 1886, No. 1197, where only the st. beginning, "Praise our God, is is but four," is from this hymn. [J. M.]

Singer, Elizabeth. [Psalters, English, p. 988, i.]

Singleton, Robert Corbet, M.A., was b. Oct. 9, 1810, and educated at Trinity College, Dublin; B.A. 1830; M.A. 1833. He was for some time Warden of St. Columba College, near Dublin; and subsequently First Warden of St. Peter's College, Radley, from 1847 to 1851. In 1851 he retired to Monkstown, near Dublin; and then to York, where he d. in 1881. In 1868 he pub. in conjunction with Dr. E. G. Monk, the Anglican Hymn Book (2nd ed. 1871). To that collection he contributed a large number of trs. from the Latin, a few from the German, and the following original hymns:—

1. As James the Great, with glowing zeal. St. James.
2. Beneath the fig-tree's grateful shade. St. Bartholomew.
3. From out the deep, O Lord, on Thee. For those at sea.
4. Good Lord! who hast the weighty worn. Ember-season.
5. Hail! highly favoured, blessed Maid. Annunciation.
6. How blest the union, gracious Lord. St. Simon and Jude. In 1871 it reads, "How blest the unity, good Lord."

Sinners, obey the gospel word. C. Wesley. [Invitation.] Pub. in Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1749, vol. i., No. 155, in 10 st. of 4 l., and based upon St. Luke xiv. 17. (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. v. p. 63.) In his note on this hymn, Mr. G. J. Stevenson says:—

"In John Wesley's 'Plain Account of Christian Perfection,' the author makes the following statement: 'In the year 1749, my brother printed two volumes of Hymns and Sacred Poems. As I did not see them before they were published, there were some things in them which I did not approve of. But I quite approved of the main of the hymn on this head—Present Salvation and Perfect Love' . . . . . This hymn is the first extracted for the Wes. H. Bk., 1780] from those volumes. The work was published by subscription in order to enable Mr. Charles Wesley to remove his family, to enable him to commence housekeeping. He had the names of 1141 subscribers, at twelve shillings each; the preachers acted as agents to collect the money and distribute the books."—Meth. H. Bk. Notes, 1883, p. 20.

In the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, the text of this hymn was given in full, and without alteration, as No. 3. It was repeated in later editions, and also passed, in the same form, into several collections in G. Britain and America. In addition the following abbreviations and centos are in C. U.:—

1. Sinners, obey the gospel word. This abbreviation in 5 st. (st. i.-iv., vi.) was given in G. Whitefield's Hys. for Social Worship, 1753, No. 4; M. Madan's Hys. & Spls., 1760; Rickerstath's Christian Psalmody, 1833, and others. In the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, the text of this hymn was given in full, and without alteration, as No. 3. It was repeated in later editions, and also passed, in the same form, into several collections in G. Britain and America. In addition the following abbreviations and centos are in C. U.:—

1. Sinners, obey the gospel word. This abbreviation in 5 st. (st. i.-iv., vi.) was given in G. Whitefield's Hys. for Social Worship, 1753, No. 4; M. Madan's Hys. & Spls., 1760; Rickerstath's Christian Psalmody, 1833, and others.

2. Come, now, ye wanderers, to your God. This begins with st. vi. with alterations, and is given in several American collections, including the Plymouth Coll., 1855, and others.

3. Come, O ye sinners, to the Lord. This also begins with st. vi., altered, and is in several American collections.

4. Come, weary souls, in Christ your Lord. This, in Bp. Rickerstath's H. Comp., is composed of st. iv., vi., iv., v., slightly altered.

5. O come, ye sinners, to the Lord. In the American Hymn and Tune Book, Phila., 1874, No. 435, is composed of st. vi., slightly altered.

6. Ye sinners, hear the gospel word. This, in Kennedy, 1863, is from the former part of the hymn, with st. iii. ll. 3-5, added by Dr. Kennedy. This cento is adapted for Holy Communion.

This hymn has a wide acceptance (in its full form, and in those its several parts) both in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

Sinners, the call obey, The latest call of grace. C. Wesley. [In Time of National Danger.] This hymn was written under the same circumstances as "Sovereign of all, Whose will ordains" (p. 1089, ii.), and was pub. in the same tract, Hymns for Times of Trouble and Persecution, 1st ed., 1744, in 8 st. of 8 l. (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. iv. p. 12). In the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, st. v.-vii. from this hymn, and st. v., vi. from C. Wesley's "Tremendous Lord of earth and sky," pub. in Hys. Occasioned by the Earthquake, March 8, 1750: Lond., 1750, were given as No. 441, as a hymn "For England," beginning, "Terrible God and true." In the 2nd ed. of the Wes. H. Bk., 1781, this cento was replaced by st. i., ii., vi.-viii., as "Sinners, the call obey," and this was retained until the revised ed. of 1877, when it was replaced by "Jesus, the word bestow" (Home Musicus), which had been previously pub. from the Wesley MSS. in the 1830 Supplement to the Wes. H. Bk., No. 706 (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. xiii., p. 22). [J. J.]

Sinners, turn; why will ye die? C. Wesley. [Exhortation.] Appeared in Hys. on God's Everlasting Love, 1741, in 16 st. of 8 l., and based upon Ezekiel xviii. 31. (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. iii. p. 84.) In the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, 12 st. were given as three separate hymns:—

1. Sinners, turn; why will ye die? No. 6.
2. Let the beasts their breath resign. No. 7.
3. What could your Redeemer do. No. 8.

And these have been repeated in numerous collections in G. Britain and America. In the American Meth. Episco. Hymns, 1849, there is also a cento, "Sinners, turn while God is near," beginning with st. xv. [J. J.]

SINNERS, THE CALL OBEY, SLAVERY AND DEATH 1061

1. In weakness great, and strong in hidden might. St. Peter.
2. Jesu, Child of mortal throes. A Litany.
3. Jesu, Lover of my soul. Universal Hymn.
10. Lord, give us of that fervent love. St. Thomas.
11. Lord, see how swelling crowds arise. Ps. iii.
12. Lo, sea and land their gifts outpour. St. Matthew.
13. O all ye people, clap your hands. Ps. xlvii.
14. O is it nought to you who tread? Tuesday before Easter.

Easter.

15. O Lord, how excellent Thy name. Ps. viii.
16. The Cross upraised on Calvary's height. Good Friday.
17. The Father show us, gracious Lord. SS. Philip and James.
18. The Lord hath quelled the rebel powers. Easter.
19. The Lord, He gave the word. Septuagesima.
20. The morning light hath shed its beams. Morning.
21. Thy dear disciple on the sea. St. John the Evangelist.
22. When fairest Eve in Eden rose. Holy Matrimony.
23. Who comes from Edom, with His robes. Monday before Easter.
24. Why storm the heathen? Wherefore do they rise? Ps. ii.
25. Why, weary mourner, shed the ceaseless tear? Resignation.
26. With gladsome feet we press. Processional.
27. Within a chamber, calm and still. St. Matthias.
28. Wide as is Luke, alone of all. St. Luke.

These hymns were all contributed to the 1st ed. of the Anglican H. Bk., 1868, and very few of them are found elsewhere. [J. J.]

Sinner, O why so thoughtless grown. I. Watts and J. Hippon. [Expostulation.] In I. Watts's Horæ Lyricæ, 1706, Bk. ii., there is a poem, "To the Right Honourable John Cuts, at the Siege of Namur:" and entitled, "The Hardy Soldier." It begins, "O why is man so thoughtless grown," and extends to 6 st. of 4 l. Dr. Hippon, in his Sel., 1787, No. 581, gave st. i., iv., v., in a very much altered form, and succeeded in producing a hymn which has been somewhat popular, as follows:—

I. Watts, 1706.	J. Hippon, 1787.
"O why is man so thoughtless grown?	"Sinner, O why so thoughtless grown?
Why will immortal souls, in haste to die?	Why will a dreadful hurry to leap to worlds unknown.
Vent'ring the leap t' worlds unknown,	Starving to leap to worlds unknown.
Heedless to arms and blood they fly.	Heedless against the God to fly?
"But fiercer dares eternal fate	"Will thou despise eternal fate
And spurn'd with hostile scorn,	And spurn'd with hostile scorn,
Arm'd with the sword of angry Heaven	Urg'd on by vile Satan's fierce design,
Flies to attack th' infernal gate,	Madly attempt th' infernal gate,
And force a passage to the flames.	And force thy passage to the flame?"
"Then hovering o'er Satan's prey	"Stop, sinner! on the gracious wing
Sung the glad love in Gideon's form:	Behold the God of love unfold
Young Theseo left the morning strains,	The glories of His dying pains,
And vow'd to pray before the storm."	For ever telling, yet unbold."

Dr. Hippon's form of the text was repeated in some of the older collections, and is still found in a few modern hymn-books in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

Skinner, James, M.A., son of the Very Rev. John Skinner, Dean of Dunkeld and Dunblane, and grandson of Bishop Skinner of Aberdeen, was b. June 23, 1818, and educated at the University of Durham, B.A. 1837, M.A. 1840, and subsequently a Fellow of his University. Taking holy orders in 1841, he became a Chaplain to Her Majesty's forces in 1844. He was subsequently Curate of St. Barnabas, Pimlico, Vicar of Newland, and Warden of the Beauchamp Charity. Through ill-health he retired from parochial work in 1877, and d. in Dec. 1881. His pub. works include (1) A Guide to Advent; (2) A Guide to Lent; (3) Warnings and Consolations; (4) an Office of Spiritual Communion; and (5) Calvaria. This last is a versified tr. of the so-called Manual of St. Augustine in 96 odes. Mr. Skinner's Daily Service Hymnal, was pub. in 1863. To this collection he contributed several trs. from the Latin, and two or three original hymns, including "The Seven Canonical Hours of the Passion," adapted from other sources:—

Matins. Jam, Lord, at dead of night.
Prime. Jam, Lord, at hour of Prime.
Tierce. Jam, Lord, for size of mine.
Sext. Jam, Lord, Who three long hours.
Nones. Jam, Lord, with bleeding brow.
Vespers. Jam, at the Vesper hour.
Compline. Jam, Whose pure limbs for me.

These hymns were subsequently transferred to the Appx. of the Hymnal N. Usually Skinner's trs. are not found beyond the Daily Service Hymnal. [J. J.]

Slain for my soul, for all my sins defamed. H. Kynaston. [Good Friday.] Pub. in his Occasional Hymns, 2nd Series. Pt. ii. Chiefly on the Miracles: 1866, p. 11, in 6 st. of 4 l., and headed "Lord, remember me." In 1872 it was repeated in the Hymnary, with the omission of St. iv. The same text is in the American Church Praise Bk., 1882. [J. J.]

Slatter, James, was b. at Oxford in 1790, and spent his life in that city. He was a layman, in business, and a member of the Baptist church in the New Road. He d. May 22, 1862. Mr. Slatter wrote a book entitled "Rural Pictures," which however was only circulated privately. He also wrote many hymns, which were never published, and two, which appeared in the Bap. New Selection, 1828: (1) "Great God, to thee, a lowly band" (Sunday Scholars' Hymn). (2) "Through Nature's temple, large and wide" (Divine Worship). [W. R. S.]

Slavery and death the cup contains. L. M. Sargent. [Temperance.] Mr. Nutter says in his Hymn Studies, &c., N. Y., 1884, p. 347, "This hymn was written during the Washingtonian Temperance Revival." It appeared in Adams and Chapin's Unitarian Hys. for Christian Devotion, Boston, U.S.A., 1846, No. 793, in 4 st. of 4 l. In the American Meth. Episco. Hymnal, 1878, it begins "Bondage and death the cup contains." The author, Lucius Manlius Sargent (b. 1786, d. 1867) was an earnest advocate of Temperance, and the author of Temperance Tales, and other works. [J. J.]

Slinn, Sarah. In the Gospel Magazine for July 1779 a hymn in 9 st. of 4 l. was given beginning "God with us! O glorious Name;" headed "Emanuel; or, God with us. By a Lady," and signed "S. S—N." In Rippon's Bap. Sel. 1787, st. i. ii. vi. iii. iv. with alterations, and in the order named, were given as No. 174, but without signature. In J. Dobell's New Sel., 1806, the same text is repeated as from Wood's Col. The same text was again repeated to modern hymn-books, and in that now in C. U. From D. Sedgwick's was we find the signature "S. S—N." was filled in as Sarah Slinn by him, but his papers do not furnish any authority for the name, nor for the date of 1777 which he has attached thereto in his MS. note to Dobell's New Sel. [J. J.]

Sloan, John Morrison, M.A., eldest s. of John Sloan, farmer of Stairaird, near Maucline, Ayrshire was b. at Stairaird, May 19, 1835. He studied at the Universities of Glasgow, Edinburgh, and Erlangen, and graduated M.A. at Edinburgh in 1859. In 1864 he became collegiate minister of the Free Church, Dalkeith; in 1868 minister of the South Free Church, Aberdeen; in 1876 collegiate minister of Anderston Free Church, Glasgow; and is now (1890) minister of the Grange Free Church, Edinburgh. He contributed 8 trs. from the German to the Rev. J. H. Wilson's Stories of Praise, 1863, 2 of which have since appeared in Mr. Wilson's Songs of Zion, 1877, and 1 in the Free Church H. Bk., 1882. The best known of these is his tr. of "Wie herrlich strahlt der Morgenstern" (see p. 1010, i.). He also contributed a hymn beginning "O Shepherd, good and gracious" (The Good Shepherd) in 4 st. of 8 lines, as No. 126 to Wesgate Songs for Young Travellers Homeward (Paisley: n.d. 1881) a hymnal compiled by the Rev. Dr. J. J. Black of Inverness primarily for his own Sunday School. [J. M.]

Smith, Caroline Louisa, née Sprague, was b. at Salem, Massachusetts, and married to the Rev. Charles Smith, pastor of the South Congregational Church, Andover. Mrs. Smith is the author of:—

Tarry with me, O my Saviour. An Old Man's Prayer. Written for the morning of the Albert Memorial in 1862 (in the summer of 1862), I heard the Rev. Dr. H. M. Dexter preach a sermon on "The Adaptedness of Religion to the Wants of the Aged." I went home and embodied the thought in the hymn "Tarry with me, O my Saviour!" I sent it to Mr. Hallock, for The Messenger. He returned it as "not adapted to the columns of that paper." I sent it to Dr. Leavitt, without any signature, for the little Andover paper. . . I send it to you in its original form, in a little paper of which my sister, Mrs. Terry [Rochester, N. Y.], is editress." (Hatfield's Poets of the Church, N.Y., 1884, p. 290.) This hymn was given in Dr. Leavitt's The Sixpenny Collection, 1865, p. 15, in 5 st. of 4 l., compiled from st. i., ii., v., vi. It has been repeated in The Sabbath H. Bk., 1866, and others. Of this text st. ii. is sometimes omitted. [J. J.]

Smith, Charitie Lees. [Bancroft, C. L.]

Smith, Elizabeth Lee, née Allen, daughter of Dr. W. Allen, President of Dartmouth University (p. 93, i.), was b. in 1817, and married in 1845 to Dr. H. B. Smith, who became Professor in Union Theological Seminary, N. York, in 1850, and d. in 1877. Mrs. Smith's hymns, including trs. of "J. To salve" (p. 979, i.), "O Jesus Christus" (p. 626, ii.), are in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870. [F. M. B.]

Smith, George, D.D., Secretary of the Congregational Union, began his ministry at Liverpool in 1827, and passed on first to Plymouth, and then to Trinity Chapel, Poplar, London (1842). He is the author of The Domestic Prayer Book, 1848; Sermons, 1851; Life Spiritual, 1855; Lectures on the Pentateuch, 1865, &c. He also compiled during his residence at Plymouth a Supplement to Watts's Ps. & Hys., which he contributed :—

1. Come in, ye chosen of the Lord. Admission of Church Members.

2. Thou art, O Christ, the Way. Christ the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

which were included in the New Cong. 1859 (Miller's S. and S. of the Church, 1869, p. 552). [J. J.]

Smith, Isaac Gregory, M.A., s. of Rev. Jeremiah Smith, D.D., was b. at Manchester, Nov. 21, 1826, and educated at Rugby and Trinity, Oxford, where he held both the Hertford (1846), and Ireland (1847) scholarships, B.A. 2nd cl. Lit. Hum. 1849. Taking holy orders, he was preferred to the rectory of Tickton-de-la-Mere, Hertfordshire, 1854; and the Vicarage of Great Malvern, 1872. From 1852 to 1855 he held a fellowship at Brasenose, Oxford, and was also Bampton Lecturer in 1873, his subject being The Characteristics of Christian Morality. In 1870 he became Prebendary of Preston Minus in Hereford Cathedral, in 1882 Rural Dean of Powick, and examining Chaplain to the Bp. of St. David's, and in 1887 Hon. Canon of Worcester. Prebendary Smith has pub. in addition to his Bampton Lectures, an Epitome of the Life of Our Blessed Saviour, &c., Pro Anglico and other Poems, and other works. He has also contributed hymns to the collection of which he was co-editor, and to the Rev. O. Shipley's Lyrics. In preparing A Hymn Book for the Services of the Church, and for Private Reading, Lond., Parker, 1855, 2nd ed., 1857, he was assisted by his brother John George Smith, Barrister-at-Law, and the Rev. W. S. Raymond. To this collection Canon Smith contributed :

1. By Jesu's grave on either hand. Easter Eve.

2. The tide of years [time] is rolling on. The Circumcision and the New Year.

and a tr. of "Adeste Fideles" (p. 22, i. 17). In addition to these the following are in the Westminster Abbey H. Bk., 1884 :—

3. Adown the river, year by year. Second Advent Desired.

4. Comes at times a stillness as of even. Death Anticipated. Written for the morning of the Albert Memorial in Edinburgh, and set to music by Sir H. S. Oakeley.

5. The day-beam dies behind yon cloud. Winter Evening.

There is also in Pt. ii. "For Reading," in the Hymn Book of 1855, a sweet hymn on Heaven beginning "Come away, where are no shadows in a glass." [J. J.]

Smith, Sir James Edward, M.D., b. at Norwich Dec. 2, 1759; d. March 17, 1828. A distinguished botanist, and President of the Linnean Society from its foundation in 1788 to the time of his death. He was knighted when the Prince Regent became, in 1814, a Patron of the Society. Smith studied medicine at Edinburgh, and, in 1786, graduated as a physician at Leyden. After further travels abroad he finally settled down at Norwich in 1797. He pub. English Botany in 36 vols. (beginning in 1790) and various other botanical works. He was also a large contributor to Rees's Encyclopædia. The friend of Dr. Enfield and John Taylor, he was also a member of the congregation meeting in the Octagon Chapel, Norwich, and a subscriber to the British and Foreign Unitarian Association. He contributed 3 hymns to A Selection of Hys. for Public Worship, Norwich, 1814 (printed for the Octagon Chapel); and 6 others to the Suppl. added to the 2nd ed., 1826. Of these the following are in Dr. Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1840; his Hymns, &c., 1873, and other Unitarian collections :—

1. Adore, my soul, that awful Name (1814). Dependence upon God.

2. As twilight's gradual veil is spread (1814). Nature and Immortality.

3. Holy, wise, eternal Father (1826). The Monitor within.

4. How glorious are those orbs of light (1826). Nature and Immortality.

5. Praise waits in Zion, Lord, for Thee (1826). Public Worship.

6. Thine unseen power divine in mortal form (1826). Confidence in God.

7. Who shall a temple build for Him (1826). God's Temple in the Heart. [V. D. D.]

Smith, Joseph Denham, was b. at Romney, Hants, circa 1816. After studying for some time in the Dublin Theological Institute, he entered the Congregational Ministry in 1840. In 1849 he became Pastor of the Congregational Church at Kingstown, near Dublin, and in 1862 began a series of services at Merrion Hall, Dublin, and subsequently at other places. His Evangelistic work in England and Ireland is well known. In connection therewith he has published a large number of tracts, pamphlets, and small books. One of these, Times of Refreshing Illustrated in the Present Revival of Religion, 1860, included several of his hymns which were sung during that time at his special services at Kingstown. He also pub. Sons Hymns for the Present Time, circa 1870-6; and The New Times of Refreshing. Hys. for General and Special Use. Compiled by J. Denham Smith. Lond.: J. E. Hawkins, n.d. In this collection his signed hymns are 36 in all, and deal with the subjects usually associated with what are known as "Gospel Hymns." There are several also in The Enlarged London H. Bk., 1873. His hymn "Just as Thou art—how wondrous fair" (1869) is in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, and "Yes, we part, but not for ever" (Parting), in several minor collections. Mr. Smith's hymns have not been incorporated into the leading hymnals of G. Britain or America. [J. J.]

Smith, Samuel Francis, D.D., was b. in Boston, U.S.A., Oct. 21, 1808, and graduated in arts at Harvard, and in theology at Andover. He entered the Baptist ministry in 1832, and became the same year editor of the Baptist Missionary Magazine. He also contributed to the Encyclopædia Americana. From 1834 to 1842 he was pastor at Waterville, Maine, and Professor of Modern Languages in Waterville College. In 1842 he removed to Newton, Massachusetts, where he remained until 1854, when he became the editor of the publications of the Baptist Missionary Union. With Baron Stow he prepared the Baptist collection known as The Psalmist, pub. in 1843, to which he contributed several hymns. The Psalmist is the most creditable and influential of the American Baptist collections to the present day. Dr. Smith also pub. Lyric Gems, 1854, Rock of Ages, 1870, &c. A large number of his hymns are in use in America, and several have passed into some of the English collections. Taking his hymns in C. U. in alphabetical order, we have the following :—

1. And now the solemn deed is done. Ordination. Given in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 864. In Dr. Hatfield's Ch. H. Bk., N. Y., 1872, it is altered to "The solemn service now is done."

2. As from the rapid river. Life Passing Away. In The Psalmist, 1843, No. 1015, and in the 1846 ed. of Poetry and Hymns, Boston, 1841; and The Psalmist, 1843, No. 1035. Found in a few English hymn-books, and in Lyra Sac. Americana, 1867.

3. Auspicious morning, hail. American National Hymn. Written July 4th, 1841, and pub. in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 1067.

4. Beyond where Cedron's waters flow. Gethsemane. In L. Bacon's Appendix, 1846; the Psalmist, 1843, No. 329, and later collections.

5. Blest be the tie that binds. Christian Separation. In The Psalmist, 1843, No. 807, and others.

6. Constrained by love we follow where. Holy Baptism. Appeared in the Baptist ed. of the Plymouth H. for 1859.

7. Down to the sacred wave. Holy Baptism. Contributed to Winchell's Additional Hys. added to his Coll. of 1837, in 1852, No. 310; repeated in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 918, and in several collections. Also in Lyra Sac. Americana, 1868.

8. Far down the steep of solemn meeting. Public Worship. An altered form of No. 20 below, in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, as an "American Hymn, 1846."

9. How blest the hour when first we gave. Holy Baptism. Appeared in the Baptist ed. of the Plymouth H. for 1859, p. 160.

10. How solemn reaches the hallowed wave. Holy Baptism. Given in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 916, in later collections, and in Lyra Sac. Americana, 1868.

11. Jesus, Thou hast freely saved us. Salvation. In "the additional hys." in Pratt Street church, Boston.

12. Kindly to Jordan's flowing stream. Holy Baptism. Contributed to Winchell's Additional Hymns, 1852, No. 311.

13. My country, 'tis of thee. National Hymn. "Written in 1832, and first sung at a children's Fourth of July celebration in Park Street church, Boston." Included in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 1065, and found in a few collections. It is sung to the tune of "God save the King" in G. Britain. It is one of the most popular of Dr. Smith's compositions. Text, with note in Lyra Sac. Americana, 1868.

14. O not my own these verdant hills. Sought with Tears. Contributed to Winchell's Additional Hys., 1841, and given in Leaves Beneath, 1844.

15. Onward speed thy conquering flight. Missions. Appeared in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 982, and is found in several modern collections in G. Britain and America. In Dr. Hatfield's collection it is altered.

16. Planted in Christ, the living Vine. Christian Fellowship; or, For Unity. Given in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 898, in Lyra Sac. Americana, 1868, and several collections. Of the hymns contributed by Dr. Smith to The Psalmist this is the best, and one of the most popular.

17. Remember thy Creator. Twelfth of Piety Exhortation. Contributed to Winchell's Additional Hys. for the Sunday and Juvenile, 1841, The Psalmist, 1843, No. 714; Lyra Sac. Americana, 1868, and other collections.

18. Sister, thou wast mild and lovely. Death and Burial of a Sister. Written on the death of Miss Harriet Vernon Wood, Saturday, May 15, 1841, and pub. in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 1026.

19. Softly fades the twilight ray. Sunday Evening. Written in 1832, and included in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 1044. Also in Lyra Sac. Americana, and several other books.

20. Spirit of holiness, descend. Whitsuntide. Appeared in the Hys. for the Vestry and Fireside, 1844,

No. 206, and again in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 344. In the Unitarian Hys. for the Church of Christ, Boston, 1853. St. ii., iii., iv. were given as "Spirit of God, descend upon my heart," and are in extensive use, and the original are both in modern hymn-books.

21. Spirit of peace and holiness. Institution of a Minister. Appeared in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 957, and Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872.

22. Thou art coming, O my Saviour. Waiting. Written in 1842, and included in Hastings's Spiritual Songs, 1858-33, No. 253; and The Psalmist, 1843, No. 912. This hymn is very popular and has been translated into several languages. Dr. Smith says of it that "it has been sung in Welsh, Gaelic, and Irish assemblies, and I have myself heard it sung in five or six different languages in Europe and Asia. It is a favorite with the Burmese, Karens, and Telugus in Asia, from whose lips I have heard it repeatedly." (Duffield's English Hys., 1886, p. 534.) Full text in Lyra Sac. Americana, 1868.

23. The Prince of Salvation is triumph in riding. Missions. Given in Hastings and Mason's Spiritual Songs, 1858-33, No. 274; The Psalmist, 1843, and later collections.

24. The time, the (important) solemn act is done. Ordination. Appeared in The Psalmist, 1843, No. 951, and later hymn-books.

25. To-day the Saviour calls. Invitation. First given, by Dr. Smith, in the revised text, as in Hastings and Mason's Spiritual Songs, 1858, No. 75, and in The Psalmist, No. 455, by Dr. T. Hastings; p. 433, i. 187.

26. Welcome, days of solemn meeting. Special Ecclesiastical Services. Written in 1834, and given in Dr. Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872. See No. 8.

27. When shall we meet again? Parting. This is a cento from Dr. Smith's hymn in the Sacred Poetical Sketches, &c., 1832, p. 191, and st. i., iv. are by Dr. Smith. In this form it was pub. in L. Bacon's Supplement to Dwight, 1835, No. 464. It is in several American hymn-books; and also the English Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858. [F. M. B.]

Smith, Samuel J., b. in the autumn of 1771, and d. Nov. 14, 1833. He was a wealthy Quaker, resided at Burlington, New Jersey; but followed no profession. His Miscellaneous Writings with a short Memoir, were pub. posthumously in 1836. He is known to hymnology through his hymn—

Arise, my soul, with rapture rise. Morning. The earliest date to which we have traced this hymn is Priscilla Gurney's Hymns, Lond., 1818. It was included in Hall's Mitre Collection, Lond., 1836, No. 1, and thence has passed into several collections. It is also in the Misc. Writings, 1836; but there are slight differences in the text. It is included, together with a second piece, on Christ stilling the Tempest, "When on the stormy sea His throne is bearing," in Lyra Sac. Americana, 1868. [F. M. B.]

Smith, Walter Chalmers, D.D., was b. at Aberdeen Dec. 5, 1824, and educated at the Grammar School and University of that City. He pursued his Theological studies at Edinburgh, and was ordained Pastor of the Scottish Church in Chadwell Street, Islington, London, Dec. 25, 1850. After holding several pastorates he became, in 1876, Minister of the Free High Church, Edinburgh. His contributions to poetical literature have been many and of great merit. His principal works are:—

(1) The Bishop's Walk, 1860; (2) Olrig Grange, 1871; (3) Borland Hall, 1874; (4) Hilda among the Broken Gods, 1878; (5) North Country Folk, 1881; (6) Kenneth Logie, 1884; (7) Hymns of Christ and Christian Life, 1876.

From his Hys. of Christ, &c., 1876, the following, after revision, were included in Horder's Cong. Hymns, 1884:—

1. Immortal, Invisible, God only wise. God, All in All.
2. Lord, God, Omnipotent. Omnipotence.
3. Our portion is not here. Pressure in Absence.
4. There is no wrath to be appeased. God is Love. In Horder's Cong. Hymns a new opening stanza was added, and in the last line Dr. Smith at the request of the editor made his "Saviour" the hymn begins "I vexed me with a troubled thought."

Dr. Smith's hymns are rich in thought and vigorous in expression. They deserve and probably will receive greater notice than hitherto at the hands of hymnal compilers. [W. G. H.]

Smith, Wharton Buchanan, M.A., was b. March 15, 1848, and educated at King's College, London (where he was McCaul and French prizeman in 1870), and Trinity College, Dublin, B.A., 1878; M.A. 1883. Taking Holy Orders in 1871 he was from 1871-73 Curate of St. Mark's, Surbiton; and from 1873-83 of St. Peter's, Eaton Square, London. In 1883 he became Chaplain to the Bishop of Grahamstown. He is the author of two hymns in Thring's Coll., 1882:—"My God, I praise Thee for the light returning" (Morning), which appeared in the Parish Magazine of St. Peter's, Eaton Square; and "Raised between the earth and heaven" (Dedication of Church Bells). [J. J.]

Smyttan, George Hunt, B.A., s. of Dr. Smyttan, of the Bombay Medical Board, was b. circa 1825, and educated at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, B.A. 1845. He took holy orders in 1848, and in 1850 was preferred to the Rectory of Hawkswell, Notts, where he d. in 1870. He pub. Thoughts in Verse for the Afflicted, 1849: Mission Songs and Ballads, 1860: and Floram Sacra, N. D. He was the author of the well-known hymn, "Forty days and forty nights" (p. 384, i.), and of a second which is found in several collections, "Jesus, ever present with Thy Church below" (Holy Communion), which appeared in the 2nd ed. of Lyra Eucharistica, 1864. [J. J.]

So did the Hebrew prophet raise. I. Watts. [Pentecostals.] Pub. in his Hymns and S. Songs, 1709, Bk. i., No. 112, in 4 st. of 4 l. In the same work, Bk. i., No. 100, is the i. m. hymn, "Not to condemn the sons of men," in 4 st. of 4 l. These hymns are in C. U. in their original forms, but their principal interest arises out of their connection with the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases. In 1745, st. i.-iii. of "So did the Hebrew prophet raise," were adopted as st. i.-iii. of the Draft Trs. and Parapha. "Of old the Hebrew prophet rais'd," and "Not to condemn the sons of men," was rewritten in c. m., and given as st. iv.-vii. of the same hymn. In the Draft of 1751 this arrangement was altered to "As when the Hebrew prophet rais'd," the alteration being confined to st. i. The Draft of 1781 contained further alterations, and finally the hymn came forth in the official Translations and Paraphrases, 1781, as a paraphrase (No. xli.) of St. John iii. 14-19, "As when the Hebrew prophet rais'd," st. i. being from the Draft of 1751, as above; st. ii., iii., iv., new, but based upon the Draft of 1745; st. iv. from the Draft of 1745; st. v. new; st. vi. from the Draft of 1745. This form of the hymn has been authorized for use in the Church of Scotland for more than 100 years, and is also found in several modern hymn-books. In a list of authors and revisers of the Scottish Trs. and Paraphs., 1781, made by the eldest daughter of W. Cameron (p. 930, ii.), the 1781 revision is attributed to W. Cameron. The designation of this hymn in I. Watts, 1709: Scottish Trs. and Paraphs., 1745-51; and W. Cameron, 1781. [J. J.]

So firm the saint's foundations stand. P. Doddridge. [Joy in Affliction.] This hymn is No. 3 of the 3 sers., in 4 st. of 4 l., and headed, "The impoverished saint rejoicing in God, from Habak. iii. 17." It is undated, but is found between two hymns dated respectively "Oct. 29, 1735," and "Nov. 16, 1735." This associates it with the year 1735. In 1735 it was pub. in Job Orton's posthumous edition of Doddridge's Hymns, No. 161, and again in J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1738, No. 182. Its use is limited.

About 1741 (see Doddridge, P.; also Doddridge, P., in Various), a copy of the above-named set. was given by Lady Frances Gardiner to Robert Blair (p. 142, i.), of Athelstaneford, Scotland, who, in 1742, became one of the Committee by whom the Draft of the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases of 1745 was compiled. In that Draft this hymn appeared as, "Secure the saint's foundation stands." In 1748 the Presbytery of Edinburgh proposed to add an alternative version of the same passage (Habak. iii. 17), in 4 st., and probably made by Dr. Hugh Blair. The Assembly's Committee, however, not seeing the need for two versions of the same passage of Holy Scripture, adopted st. i.-iii. of Blair's version, and st. iii. from Doddridge's hymn as st. iv., and gave the cento as "What tho' no flowers the fig-tree clothe," in their Draft Trs. and Paraphs. of 1751. In the Draft of 1781 it was repeated, with slight alterations, and a new stanza, beginning, "He to my tardy feet shall lend," in the authorized issue of the Trs. and Paraphs. of 1781 it finally appeared as No. xxxii., the only alteration from the Draft of the same year being in ll. 3 and 4 of the new stanza. This last alteration is attributed by the eldest daughter of W. Cameron (p. 930, ii.) to John Logan. The correct designation therefore of the authorized text is P. Doddridge, 1735: Scottish Trs. & Paraphs., 1745: Dr. H. Blair, 1748 and 1751; and J. Logan, 1781. Miss J. E. Leeson rewrote this hymn as "Although the fig-tree blossom not," for her Paraphrases and Hymns, 1853. There is also a cento, "Though the fig-tree," in Hys. for the Ch. of England, ed., 1869, in 3 st. of 6 l., beginning, "What though the fig-tree's strength decay." This is by Mr. Darling based upon the 1781 text as above. [J. J.]

So new-born babes desire the breast. I. Watts. [Christian Life.] Pub. in his Hys. and S. Songs, 1709, Bk. i., No. 143, in 10 st. of 4 l., and headed "Characters of the Children of God from several Scriptures." In C. U. it is usually abridged. Modern hymn-books also contain the following centos therefrom:—

1. As new-born babes desire the breast. In a few collections.

2. Dost thou the high and heavenly Guest? This, in Kennedy, 1863, No. 1252, and the Hymnary, 1872, No. 487, is composed of iv. ii., vi.-viii. with slight alterations.

3. Father, I wait before Thy throne. An altered form of vi. ix., x., in the Meth. Epis. Hymns, 1849, and other modern hymnals.

4. Grace, like an unscripted seal. This begins with st. v. and is found in a few American hymnals.

5. Immortal principles forbid. This, in the New Cong., 1859, is composed of st. v.-x., with alterations.

6. Thy Spirit, Lord, inspires my verse. This, in the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, is composed of st. ix., v., i., vii.-viii., in the order named.

This hymn in these various forms is in extensive use. [J. J.]

So wahr ich lebe, spricht dein Gott. J. Heermann. [Lent.] On Ezekiel xxxiii. 11. 1st pub. in his Devoti musica cordis, Breslau, 1630, p. 1, in 7 st. of 6 l., entitled, "A true admonition from St. Augustine that one should not put off repentance." It was to be suggested by chap. 2 in the mediæval compilation known as the Meditationes of St. Augustine. It is in Mützell, 1858, No. 13, in Wackernagel's ed. of his Geistliche Lieder, No. 1, and the Unv. L. S., 1851. Tr. as:—

As sure I live, thy Maker saith. In full by J. C. Jacobi, in his Poet. Gem., pt. ii., 1775, p. 21. In his ed. 1722, p. 93, altered and beginning "Sure as I live;" and from this st. i., ii., v., ll. 1-4, and vi., ll. 1-2 were included in the Moravian H. Bk., 1754, pt. i., No. 470; and st. i., iv., v. in the Evang. Union H. Bk., 1856.

Other trs. are:—(1) "Sinners, your Maker is your Friend," a tr. of st. i. as No. 23 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789. (2) "As truly as I live, God saith," by Miss Burlingham, in the British Herald, Aug. 1846. (3) "Yea, as I live, Jehovah saith," by R. Mant, 1837. [J. M.]

Soden, Alfred James, s. of Thomas Soden, J.P. of Coventry, was b. at Coventry, Jan. 9, 1820, and educated for the legal profession, in which he practised as a solicitor, at Coventry, for three years. With a prosperous career before him, yet the profession was distasteful to him, and in 1844 he took Holy Orders: was successively Curate of King's Norton, 1844; and of Blockley, 1846. In 1878 he was preferred to the Vicarage of Aston Magna in the Diocese of Worcester, which he has since exchanged for Hogsthorpe, Alford, Lincolnshire. Mr. Soden pub. in 1875 The History of Blockley. He also edited:—

The Universal Hymn Book, specially adapted for Sundays and Holy Days, and for General Use in the Church. Lond., Hills & Saul, 1865. It contains 720 hymns, which are arranged mainly in the order of the Christian Year, and is remarkable for its full provision to supply hymns based on the Collects, Epistles and Gospels throughout. This is a distinctive feature, and worthy of notice. There is also a large percentage of hymns not found in other collections. The work is unfortunately disfigured by errs.

To this collection Mr. Soden contributed the following hymns:—

1. A quiet eve at Bethany. The Barren Fig Tree.
2. Almighty God, Thy hands are ours. God a Spirit.
3. Almighty God, this truth we own. Collect for 15th S. after Trinity.
4. Almighty God, to Whom we owe. Flower Service.
5. Citizens of heav'n, Soldiers of the Cross. Epistle, 23rd S. after Trinity.

1066 SOL PRAECEPS RAPITUR SOLLT ICH MEINEM GOTT

6. Hark now, thou stranger, Jesus calls. Invitation.
7. Hark to the words of Him like Whom. Gospel, 4th Sunday after Trinity.
8. Lo! death were the noise of woe that rose. Death and Burial.
9. Jesu, Chief Shepherd of the souls. Consecration of a Bishop.
10. Lord, Thine apostle asked of old. Gospel, 22nd S. after Trinity.
11. Lord, when to Thee this Gentile came. Gospel, 2nd S. in Lent.
12. Our days are but a shadow. Life, as a Shadow.
13. The dead is done—sealed the strife. Easter Eve.
14. The morning breaks, the shadows flee. Easter Day.
15. This is the house of God. Public Worship.
16. This night, O God, we lift our cry to Thee. Her Home at Sea in Stormy Weather.
17. When Jesus on this earth. On behalf of the dead.
18. When near Jerusalem of old. 16th S. after Trinity.
19. Within Bethesda's porches five. Offertory for Hospitals.

[J. J.]

Sol praecops rapitur, proxima nox adest. [Evening.] This line is given in R. Caswall's Masque of Mary, &c., 1858, p. 281; and his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 227 as the opening of a Latin hymn, the tr. of which by Chernall (as above) began:—

"The sun is sinking fast
The day is hast'ning past,
Love wakes and pray
Her evening sacrifice."

The Rev. L. C. Biggs, who corresponded with the translator on the subject, says in a note to the tr. in his Annotated ed. of H. A. & M.:—

"Every effort has been made to discover the original of this hymn, but in vain. It was, the translator believes, in the possession of one of the former members of the Edgbaston Oratory; contained in a small book of devotions. It can scarcely have been older than the eighteenth century."

The search has been continued to our going to press; but still in vain. In Biggs's annotated H. A. & M. a rendering of Caswall's tr. into Latin by the Rev. C. B. Pearson is substituted for the original. The tr. "The sun is sinking fast," is in extensive use in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

Soldiers of Christ, arise, And put your armour on. C. Wesley. [The whole Armour of God, or Confirmation.] Appeared in Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1740, in 10 st. of 8 l., being No. 28 of "Hymns for Believers." (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. v. p. 40.) In the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, 12 of the 16 stanzas were given as three separate hymns thus:—

1. "Soldiers of Christ, arise." No. 258.
2. "But, above all, my bold." No. 259.
3. "In fellowship alone." No. 260.

All of these hymns have passed into other collections in G. Britain and America. The most popular arrangement, however, is a conto (beginning with the original first line), ranging from 4 st. to 6 st. of 4 l., which is found in numerous modern hymn-books. It is descended from A. M. Toplady's Ps. & Hymns, 1776, where No. 16 is composed of 16 st. of 4 l., compiled from C. Wesley's 16 st. of 8 l. The doxology in H. A. & M., 1861 and 1875, in Thring's Coll., 1882, and others, is not in the original. Alterations are also sometimes made in the text, as in the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, which considerably weaken the hymn. The hymns: (1) "Followers of Christ, arise" (2) "Rise, Christian soldiers, rise"; (3) "Soldiers of Christ, lay hold"; and (4) "Pray without ceasing, pray" given in some American collections, are centos from the original, with alterations. [J. J.]

Soldiers of the Cross, arise. Bp. W. Hew. [Home Missions.] 1st pub. in Morrell and How's Ps. & Hys., 1854, in 7 st. of 4 l. When included in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, slight changes were made by Bp. How, in the text of st. vi. and vii. This form of the hymn is authorized. [J. J.]

Solemne nos jejunii. [Lent.] Appeared in the Paris Brev., 1736, where it is appointed for Vespers on Sundays and Ferial days in Lent to the Saturday before Passion Sunday exclusively. The text is in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 61, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. The solemn season calls us now. J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 68, and again in his Hys. of the Church, 1841, No. 58. It is in C. U. in its original form, and also as:—

2. Again the solemn season calls. This is in Barry's Ps. & Hys., 1865, &c.

3. Once more the solemn season calls. An altered version of Chandler's tr. with this opening stanza was given in Murray's Hymnal, 1852. This stanza and variations from Chandler's text in st. ii.-iv. are repeated in later collections but without uniformity, the principal variations being:—

(a) In H. A. & M., and Sarum, by Chandler, Murray, and the compilers of H. A. & M.

(b) In Kemble, by Chandler, Murray, and Mercer.

(c) In Kennedy, by Chandler, Murray, and Kennedy.

(d) In Morrell & How, by Chandler, Murray and compilers of H. A. & M.

In addition to these collections there are others of less importance, in which variations are introduced.

4. The solemn season now calls us. This appeared in the Sarum Hymnal, 1868, upon opening a line, but not the rest of the English Hys. alterations was repeated in the 1881 Appendix to the S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hys., No. 3.

5. O sinner, bring not tears alone. This, in Mercersteau's Hymnis, &c., 1848 and 1875, and in a few American collections, is composed of st. ii.-v. of Chandler's text.

When these various forms of the text are taken into account, Chandler's tr. is found to be in extensive use.

2. Weeping as God we wait. By W. J. How, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-58, Last, No. 12, and Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870.

3. The solemn time of holy fast. By R. C. Singleton, in his Anglican H. Bk., 1868 and 1871.

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. And now the season grave and deep. I. Williams, 1839.

2. Again the time appointed see. R. Campbell, 1849. This even a little to Chandler, and st. ii. l. 3, 4, and st. iii. l. 4, are by Dr. Neale. Some additions were supplied to Campbell's text by Dr. Neale for his 1851 ed. of his slight version in G. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1864.

3. The solemn fast of Lent is here. J. D. Chambers, 1857.

It must be noted also that although No. 208 in the Hymnary begins with the same line as Chandler's tr., yet the hymn as a whole is a tr. by the editors of the Hymnary, based upon Chandler. [J. J.]

Sollt ich meinem Gott nicht singen. P. Gerhardt. [Thanksgiving.] One of Gerhardt's finest hymns, setting forth the eternal love of God in His creation, redemption, and sanctification of us, His kind preservation in all our troubles and crosses, even in our forgetfulness of Him; ending with a prayer thus rendered by Mr. Massie:—

1067

SOMETIMES A LIGHT SON OF GOD, ETERNAL 1067

"Grant me grace, O God, I pray Thee,
That I may with all my might
Love, and trust Thee, and obey Thee,
All the day and all the night;
And when this brief life is o'er,
Love and praise Thee evermore."

It is included in the 5th ed. Berlin, 1653, and the Frankfort ed., 1656, of Crüger's Praxis, No. 230; reprinted in Wackernagel's ed. of Gerhardt's Geistl. Lieder, No. 81, Bachmann's ed., No. 60, and the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 722. It is in 12 st. of 10½ l., II. 5, 10 in each st., except xii. being

"Alles Ding währt seine Zeit, Gottes Lieb in Ewigkeit."

Of it Lauxmann in Koch viii. 333 relates the following:—

"At one of the Pietist conferences, which the venerable Spener, John Caspar Faith, Carl Hoffbeck, of Dillingen in Würtemberg, conducted from 1716 to 1705, a great many little complaints were made at table about deficiency of titles and such like matters. For a while he listened in patience. At length, while still sitting at table, he commenced singing with a loud voice the first and last stanza of this hymn. At this those present felt ashamed of their petty complaints, and henceforth the conversation was of more edifying matters."

It is tr. into English as:—

1. Shall I not his praise be singing. By Dr. Mills in his Horae Germanicae, 1845, p. 141 (1856, p. 195). It is a poor version, altogether missing the characteristic points of the German. His st. ii., iv.-vii. beginning "As the eagle fondly hovers," were included in the Amer. Luth. Gen. Synod's Coll., 1850-52, No. 85.

2. Shall I not sing praise to Thee. A full and good tr. by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 200; repeated omitting st. iii.-vi., viii., as No. 10 in her C. E. for England, 1863. Included in full in Cantate Domino, Boston, U. S., 1859; and, abridged, in Kennedy, 1863; Meth. N. Connex. H. Bk., 1863, and Flett's Coll., Paisley, 1871.

3. I will sing my Maker's praises. A good tr. omitting st. vi., viii. contributed by E. Massie to the 1857 ed. of Mercer's C. P. & H. Bk., No. 185 (Ox. ed. 1864, No. 286, omitting tre. of st. ii., iv.), reprinted in his own Lyra Domestica, 1864. In full in Bold's Praise Bk., 1872, and abridged in the Meth. N. Connex. H. Bk., 1863.

4. Can I fail my God to praise. A tr. of st. i., iii., iv. by F. C. C., as No. 218 in Dr. Pagenstecher's Coll., 1864.

5. Should I not, in meek adoring. A tr. of st. i.-iii. by M. W. Stryker in his Hys. & Verses, 1865, p. 36, and Christian Church, 1865, No. 96.

Other trs. are:—

(1) "Can I cease, my God, from singing," in Lyra Davidica, 1708, p. 25. (2) "Shan't I sing to my Creator," by J. C. Jacobi, 1722, p. 135. Repeated in the Moravian H. Bk., 1754 to 1849; in the 1789 and later eds. as "Shall I not sing to my God my Creator." (3) "Shall I not my God be praising," by J. Kelly, 1841, p. 248. [J. M.]

Sometimes a light surprises. W. Cowper. [Joy and Peace in Believing.] Pub. in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. iii. No. 48, in 6 st. of 8 l.; and headed "Joy and Peace in Believing." It is in C. U. in its full and in an abbreviated form. There are also two centos therefrom in modern collections:—(1) "In holy contemplation, we sweetly then pursue," in the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, and later editions; and (2) "Thy children, Lord, lack nothing," in Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1870. [J. J.]

Somno refectis artubus. St. Ambrose? [Monday Morning.] This hymn is ascribed to St. Ambrose by Hincmar in his "De ordi et non trink Deinte," 857; and is one of the twelve hymns received as genuine by the Benedictine editors of St. Ambrose. Daniel, i., No. 18, gives the text, and at tr. p. 36 cites it as in a Rheinau MS. of the 10th cent. He ranks it, however, among the hymns of the 7th or 8th cent.; and Binghi does not include it in his Inni sinceri e Carmi de Sanct Ambrogio, 1862. Mone i. p. 372, cites it as a MS. of the 8th cent. at Trier. Among the British Museum MSS. it is found in three 11th cent. Hymnaries of the English Church (Vesp. D. xii. f. 12; Jul. A. vi., f. 29 b; Harl. 2961, f. 221); in an 11th cent. Mozarabic Hymnarium (Add. 30,851, f. 176 b), an 11th cent. Mozarabic Breviary (Add. 30,848, f. 74), &c. It is in a MS. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (201, page 232); in two MSS. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall, Nos. 387, 413; and in the Latin Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Ch. (Surtees Society's), 1851, is printed from an 11th cent. MS. at Durham (B. iii. 32, f. 5). It is included in the Roman (Venice, 1478, and the revision of 1632), Sarum, York, Aberdeen, Paris of 1643, and other Breviaries; the universal use being at Matins on Monday. The text is also found in the Hymnarium Sarisb., 1851, p. 42; Königsfeld ii. p. 30, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. Sleep has refreshed our limbs; we spring From off our bed, and rise. By Card. Newman, in his Verses on Religious Subjects, 1835, p. 59, and again in his Verses on Various Occasions, 1868, p. 206. It is in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884. The cents in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873, "Be Thou the first on every tongue," is composed of st. ii. and iv.

2. Our limbs refresh'd with slumber sweet. By J. A. Johnston, in his English Hyl., 1852.

3. Our limbs refreshed with slumber now. By J. M. Neale, in the H. Noted, 1853, No. 2; the Hymner, 1882, and others.

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. O God, be present and inspire. Primer. 1706.
2. Our limbs refreshed with wholesome sleep. Sp. R. Mant. 1837.
3. Arising, the bed where luxury lies. J. R. Dudderidge's Synaxarium Anglicanum, 1844.
4. With limbs refreshed by needful sleep. Sp. J. Williams. 1849.
5. Now are our limbs refreshed with quiet sleep. I. Williams, in his Thoughts on Paul Perry, enlarged ed. 1849.
6. Our limbs refresh with healthful rest. W. J. Copeland. 1849.
7. Our limbs with tranquil sleep restored. E. Caswall. 1849.
8. Our wearied limbs with sleep restored. J. D. Chambers. 1857.
9. Our limbs with grateful sleep refreshed. J. D. Chambers. 1857.
10. Our limbs are now refreshed with sleep. J. W. Brazell. 1862.
11. Sleep has refreshed our limbs: we spring Out of our beds as men to fear. J. Kelly. 1866. Of this tr., st. i. ii. are altered from Card. Newman as above.
12. Now that our limbs, refreshed by sleep. E. Culbertson. 1874. [J. J.]

Son of God, Eternal Word. Bp. C. Wordsworth of Lincoln. [Morning.] This, together with Bp. Wordsworth's Evening Hymn, "The day is gently sinking to a close," were printed separately from his Holy Year, and were pasted into unsold copies of the 3rd ed. of that work, in 1861. In 1864 they were given as the opening hymns of the Holy Year, and have since come into somewhat general use in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

1068

Son of the carpenter, receive. C. Wesley. [To be Sung at Work.] Pub. in Hys. and Poems, 1739, in 5 st. of 4 l., and entitled "To be sung at work." (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. i. p. 172.) Two centos from this hymn, and both beginning with st. ii., "Servant of all, to toil for man," are in C. U. The first, composed of st. ii.–iv. appeared in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 313, and the second, st. ii.–iv. and i. in the New Cong., 1859. [J. J.]

Sonent Regi nato nova cantica. [Christmas.] This is found in a MS. in the Bodleian (Bodl. 775, f. 129 b), written circa 1000; in a Winchester MS. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, No. 473; in a Sarum Manual, circa 1370, in the Bodleian (Barlow 5, f. 181 b); in the St. Andrew's, Angers of 1489, Sens of 1529, and other Missals. In the Sarum use it was the sequence in the Mass at Daybreak ("in aurora") on Christmas Day. The printed text is also in Neale's Sequentiæ, 1852, p. 9, Daniel v. p. 175, and Kehrein, No. 17. The trs. are :—

1. O come, new anthems let us sing. By E. H. Plumptre, made for and pub. in the Hymnary, 1872.

2. Now is the new-born King. By J. W. Hewett, in Lyra Messianica, 1864.

3. Unto the King new-born, new praises sing. By C. B. Pearson, in the Sarum Missal in English, 1868. [J. M.]

Songs of praise the angels sang [sing]. J. Montgomery. [Universal Praise.] Pub. in Cotterill's Sel., 1819, No. 168, in 6 st. of 4 l., and headed "God worthy of all Praise." It was repeated in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 362; and in his Original Hymns. 1853, No. 90. The heading in 1825 and 1853 was changed to "Glory to God in the highest." The opening line is sometimes changed to "Songs of praise the angels sing." The use of this hymn is extensive. [J. J.]

Songs of thankfulness and praise. Bp. C. Wordsworth, of Lincoln. [Epiphany.] Pub. in his Holy Year, 1862, No. 25, in 9 st. of 8 l., with the heading :—

"Sixth Sunday after the Epiphany.—Recapitulation of the Subjects presented in the Services of former weeks throughout the season of Epiphany; and Anticipation of the future great and glorious Epiphany, at which Christ will appear again, to judge the World."

This hymn is one of the most popular of Bp. Wordsworth's hymns, and is in extensive use in most English-speaking countries. [J. J.]

Sons of God, triumphant rise. C. Wesley. [Spiritual Exultation; or, Holy Communion.] Pub. in Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1739, Pt. ii., in 8 st. of 4 l., and headed, "Hymn after the Sacrament." (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. i. p. 170.) This hymn is known in three forms in addition to the original :—

1. The first was given to it by A. M. Toplady, in his Ps. & Hys., 1776, p. 295, where it is composed of st. i.–iv. of the original, and st. ii., iii., of C. Wesley's "Lord and God of heavenly powers" (v.v.). In this form it is a hymn of Praise.

2. The second, by Wesley, 1854–1868 (Oxford ed., No. 75), also is from Toplady's cento; st. i. being from "Sons of God, triumphant rise"; and st. ii., iii. from "Lord and God of heavenly powers." The refrain "Hallelujah" is added to each line, and it is appointed for Sundays.

3. In the Altar Hymnal, 1884, No. 171, st. i.–iii., viii., viii., are given for Holy Communion. [J. J.]

Sons of men, behold from far. C. Wesley. [Epiphany.] Pub. in Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1736, in 6 st. of 4 l., and entitled, "Hymn for the Epiphany." (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. i. p. 184.) In M. Madan's Ps. & Hymns, 1760, it was given as No. 23, and was thus brought into use in the Church of England. It is seldom given in modern hymn books in its full form; and slight alterations are nearly always found in the text. It is in extensive use in most English-speaking countries. Notwithstanding this popularity it was excluded from the Wes. H. Bk. of 1780 and 1875. In the Cooke and Denton Hymnal, 1853, st. iv., v., vi., of this hymn, rewritten, together with an opening stanza and a doxology from another source, were given as, "Lo, the Gentiles bend the knee." This cento was repeated in the Salisbury H. Bk., 1857, and other collections. Sometimes it reads, "Lo, the Gentiles bend the knee." [J. J.]

Sons we are through God's election. [Election.] This hymn was given in the Gospel Magazine, April, 1777, in 8 st. of 6 l., based on the words, "'The godly consideration of Predestination and Election in Christ, is full of sweet, pleasant, and unspeakable comfort to godly persons.'—Church of England, Article XVII.;" and signed "S. P. E." In J. Dobell's New Sel., 1806, it was repeated, with slight alterations, and the omission of st. iii., and given as by "E——." From the New Sel. it has passed into other hymn-books in the same form. In the S. MSS., the Rev. S. Adams (see p. 998, ii., "Jesus is our great salvation") says he believes this hymn to be his father's (see Adams, J., p. 18, ii.), but gives no proof, as he has done with others of his father's hymns. The hymn certainly reads like one of Adams's compositions; but his authorship is open to doubt. His usual signature in the Gospel Magazine was "J. A." [J. J.]

Soon shall this earthly frame, dissolv'd. [The Resurrection.] This paraphrase of 2 Cor. v. 1–11 first appeared in the Draft of the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, in 1745, and was repeated in the Draft of 1751. In the authorized issue of the Trs. and Paraphs. of 1781, No. 51, several alterations were introduced into the text by W. Cameron. (See p. 800, ii.) Of this paraphrase, sts. v.–viii., are from I. Watts's "There is a house not made with hands" (Hys. & S. Songs, 1709, iii.–v.), somewhat altered. Possibly some of the remaining stanzas may have been suggested by other hymns by Watts on kindred subjects, as, for example, Bk. i. No. 100; and Bk. ii., No. 61, in the Hys. & S. Songs, 1709: but the similarity between these hymns and this paraphrase is very slight. [J. J.]

Sophie Elisabethe of Sachse-Zeitz. [Schütz, J. J. H.]

Sophronius. [Greek Hymnody. § vi.]

Souls in heathen darkness lying. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [Missions.] This hymn is known in four forms, each by Mrs. Alexander, and beginning with the same first line, as follows :—

1. In E. Hawkins's Verses in Commemoration of the Third Jubilee of the S. P. G., 1851–54, p. 21, in 9 st. of 4 l.

2. In the S. P. C. K. Hys. for Pub. Worship, 1852, No. 186, in 4 st. of 4 l., of which st. i.–iii. are from No. 1 and st. iv. is new. This is the form in which it is usually given in modern hymn books.

3. In Mrs. Alexander's Legend of the Golden Prayers and Other Verses, 1859, in 4 st. of 6 l. This is the text of the Verses, &c., 1851–53, with the omission of st. iv.

4. In Mrs. Carey Brock's Children's Pt. Bk., 1881, No. 319 is composed of st. i., ii., vi., viii., from The Legend of the Golden Prayers, &c., as above. [J. J.]

Souls of men, why will ye scatter? F. W. Faber. [Invitation: The Divine Call.] This is given at p. 903, i. 31, as from his Hymns, 1862. It really appeared in his Oratory Hys., 1854, in 8 st. of 4 l., with the heading "Come to Jesus." It is found in its full form in some collections; and the following centos therefrom are also in C. U. :—(1) "There's a wideness in God's mercy;" and (2) "Was there ever kindest Shepherd?" Those are in several collections. [J. J.]

Southey, Caroline Ann, née Bowles, daughter of Charles Bowles, of Buckland, near Lymington, was b. in 1786; married, in 1839, to Robert Southey, the poet; and d. in 1854. Her publications include Solitary Hours, 1826; The Birth-day, a Poem, 1836; and some prose works. Her Poetical Works were pub. in 1867; and her correspondence with Southey in 1882. A few pieces from her works are in C. U. as hymns :—

1. I weep, but not rebellious tears. For the Aged. Pub. in her Solitary Hours, 1826; and, again, in her Poetical Works, 1867, p. 283, in 5 st. of 6 l. It is given, in the latter, as "Written for a Friend." "Thy faithful few made perfect there" (st. v., l. 5), the following note is appended in the Poetical Works :—"The word 'few' is used here in no presumptuously exclusive sense of the Author's, but simply as being the scriptural term for the Redeemed." In the Hymnary (1872) The word having been altered, lately, in two religious publications, where the poem was inserted unknown to the Author, it is thought proper to assure this note."

2. Launch thy bark, mariner. For Sailors. Given in her Solitary Hours, 1826, p. 71, in 4 st. of 8 l., and entitled, "The Mariner's Hymn;" also in her Poetical Works, 1867. [J. J.]

Sovereign of all the worlds on high. P. Doddridge. [Adoption.] This is No. 78 in the 3rd. MS., in 3 st. of 8 l., is headed, "Adoption argued from a filial temper, on Gal. iv. 6," and is dated "June 17, 1730." It was repeated, without alteration, in Job Orton's posthumous edition of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1755, No. 281, but with the title changed to "A filial Temper the Work of the Spirit, and a proof of Adoption. Galat. iv. 6." In J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1839, No. 307, the 1755 heading is repeated, but the text is changed in st. iv. l. 3, from "Thou know'st, I Abba, Father, cry," to "And thus, I Abba, Father, cry." It is in C. U. in its original form, and as, "My Father God! how sweet the sound" (st. ii.). [J. J.]

Sovereign of all, Whose will ordains. C. Wesley. [In Time of National Trouble.] This is from the tract of Hymns for Times of Trouble and Persecution, 1st ed., 1744, No. 16, in 9 st. of 4 l., and headed, "A Prayer for His Majesty King George, 'Fear God and honour the King.'" (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. iv. p. 31.) Jackson, in his Memoir of C. Wesley (ed. 1848, pp. 149–51), says that the dread of invasion by France on behalf of the Pretender, and the fear that Popery would be re-established, drove the people to many excesses, not the least mankind of which was a common crusade against the Wesleys and their followers on the alleged ground (amongst other things) that they were secretly furthering the Pretender's views, and were receiving money for their labours. It was under these circumstances that the Hys. for Times of Trouble and Persecution were written and published, the finest being "Saviour of all, Whose will ordains," and "Lord, Thou hast bid Thy people pray," the latter being entitled "For the King and the Royal Family." The former of these hymns was given in the 1st ed. of the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 453, and the latter in the 1830 Supp. thereto, an abbreviated form as No. 735. [J. J.]

Sow in the morn thy seed. J. Montgomery. [Missions.] Under the date of June 16, 1832, Montgomery, in a letter to his friend George Benuett, gives the history of this hymn in the following words :—

"In the month of February last, on our return from Bath, as my friend Mr. Rowland Hodgson and myself were riding in a gig together, a man sowing corn was observed from my side of the carriage, a field which had been recently ploughed, and apparently harrowed, for the surface lay not in furrows; but upon it were several women and girls in rows, one behind another, laterally, at regular distances, who dropped the seed which the man let fall from a bag over each other in their work. What the work was I could not guess: it was evidently not sowing, for the ground was perfectly clear and fresh turned up. It seemed to be planting, all stooping down and employed in the same manner. I had not time, as I passed on, for me to distinguish what. I therefore described the scene and their mode of action to my friend, who, being blind, could not help out the imperfection of my eyes by the aid of his. He immediately replied, 'I have often heard of drilling or dibbling, but never of two-thirds of the grain necessary in the ordinary way of sowing an acre is saved: holes are picked in lines along the field, and into each of these two or three grains are dropped.' 'I have often heard of drilling or dibbling, but never of hoeing or setting of any sort before.' 'If this be the latter, dibbling is quite in character with everything else in an age of political economy. * * * * But for my part, give me broadcast sowing, scattering the seed on the right hand and on the left, in liberal handfuls, as the sower goes forward with a long, steady turuure; there is neither grace of motion nor attitude in it.' * * * I fell immediately into a musing fit, and mentalled most magnificently upon all kinds of husbandry (though I know little or nothing of any, but as a subject of poetry), and concluded with a reflection that each was excellent in its way, and best in its place. * * * * By degrees my thoughts exhausted into verse, and I found them running lines, like furrows, along the field of my imagination: and in the course of the two following days, I composed the hymn, and wrote the following stanzas, which I wrote as soon as we reached Broughton-in-Furness. This is the whole history and mystery of which I fear you have heard so romantic an account, 'Sow in the morn thy seed.'" Memoirs, by Holland, vol. v. p. 30.

The hymn written under these circumstances, in February 1832, was printed for the use of the Sheffield Sunday School Union, at their Whitsuntide gathering of the same year. It is in 7 st. of 4 l. It was pub. in Montgomery's Poet's Portfolio, 1835, p. 248, and headed, "The Field of the World," and again, with the same heading, in his Original Hys., 1853, p. 238. It is given in many modern hymn-books.

Sowers went throughout the land, The. Emily E. S. Elliott. [Harvest.] 1st pub. in the Church Missionary Juvenile Instructor, 1872, p. 124, in 4 st. of 8 l., and then in her Chimes of Consecration, 1875, p. 146. It was included, as No. 362, in the Church S. S. H. Bk., 1879, as a hymn for teachers as workers in the spiritual harvest. [J. M.]

Spake the glorious Lord in heaven. Archbishop E. W. Benson. [Pr. ex.] Written for and first pub. in the Wellington Coll. H. Bk., 1860, and repeated in Kennedy, 1863, and others. [J. J.]

Spangenberg, August Gottlieb, s. of Georg Spangenberg, Lutheran pastor at Klettenberg near Nordhausen, was b. at Klettenberg, July 15, 1704. He entered the University of Jena in 1722, as a student of law, but soon abandoned law for the study of theology. He lived in the house of Professor Buddeus, graduated M.A. in 1726, and for some time lectured there. In Sept. 1732 he went to Halle as adjunct of the Theological faculty and superintendent of the Orphanage schools. Here he associated himself with the Separatists, and by an edict from Berlin was deprived of his offices, and, on April 8, 1733, was expelled from Halle. He at once proceeded to Herrnhut, and was received into the Moravian Community, with which he had become acquainted as early as 1727. In 1735 he accompanied the Moravian colony which settled in Georgia, and served also in Pennsylvania and in the Island of St. Thomas. He returned to Germany in 1739, and was for some time at Marienborn in Hesse. In Sept. 1741 he was present at an important Moravian Conference in London, and was there appointed a member of the Unity's Direction, and also director of their financial affairs. While in England he founded, in 1742, the first English Moravian settlement, at Smith House in Yorkshire. He was then, on June 15, 1744, consecrated at Herrnhaag as Moravian Bishop for North America, and from that time till 1762 was for the most part in America, working principally in Pennsylvania, and among the Indians, and paying two visits to Europe. In 1762 he became the senior member of the Unity's Direction as successor to Zinzendorf, and thereafter resided for the most part either at Herrnhut or at Barby. The last years of his life were spent at Berthelsdorf near Herrnhut, where he resigned his offices in Sept. 1791, and d. Sept. 18, 1792. (Koch, v. 337; G. F. Otto's Lexicon Oberlausitzischer Schriftsteller, iii. 396; Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xiv., 460, &c.)

Spangenberg was an earnest and able man, was much beloved and respected, and was entrusted by the Brethren with many important missions, being e.g. the principal agent in the negotiations between the Moravians and the Count Ysenburg-Büdingen in 1734. He did good service both in consolidating the Moravian organization and by untiring labours in America. His Autobiography appeared in 1784. He also wrote a life of Zinzendorf, in 8 vols. pub. at Barby 1772-75. His other chief work is his Idea fidei fratrum, &c., Barby, 1779 (English tr. as An Exposition of Christian Doctrine, as taught in the Protestant Church of the United Brethren, 1784). Whilst he is accepted as an authorised expositor of the Moravian faith, he is the only wrote a few hymns, which are of fervent but rational piety, but do not entitle him to high rank as a hymnwriter. They were mostly written before 1746. Ten of these are included in the Brüder G. B. of 1778.

Of those ten hymns the following may be noted here:—

i. Der König ruht, und schaust doch. Christian Work. 1st pub. as No. 1004 in Anpr., i., 1737, to the Herrnhut G. B., 1735, and is in 8 st. of 10 l. Repeated in the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 1385, and in the Hist. Nachricht thereto, marked as "On Zinzendorf, May 26, 1734," i.e. as written for Zinzendorf's birthday. Included in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1865, No. 1126. Tr. as:—

High on His everlasting Throne. This is a spirited but free tr. by J. Wesley, in Hys. & Sac. Poems, 1742 (P. Works, 1868–72, ii. p. 61), in 13 st. of 8 l. St. i.–vi. are from st. i.-iii. of the German; vii. from iv.; viii. from v.; ix., x. from vi.; and xi.-xiii. from vii., viii. This tr. was included in full in the Moravian H. Bk., 1742, No. 57, and repeated abridged in later eds. (1886, No. 888, in 9 st.). Centos under the original first line are given in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, the Amer. Meth. Epis. Hymns, 1849, &c. Wesley's st. xi.-xiii., altered and beginning, "What shall we offer our good Lord," were included in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 479 (1875, No. 492), and repeated in the Meth. N. Conn. H. Bk., 1863, and others.

ii. Die Kirche Christi ist hin und her. Unity of the Christian Church. Included as No. 2210 in the 2nd Suppl., circa 1746, after the 12 Appendices to the Herrnhut G. B., 1735; and is in 12 st. of 5 l. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 959, st. ii., v.–viii., xii. are omitted, and it is altered to "Die Kirche Christi, die er gewählt." In the Hist. Nachricht to 1778 it is marked as composed in North America in 1745 (at a Union Synod at Lancaster, Pennsylvania). The text of 1778 is in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1562. In the Würtemberg G. B., 1842, st. i.-iii. are as i.-iii. in 1778; iv., v. are based on v., vi. in 1778; while st. vi. is not even suggested by Spangenberg. St. vi. reads:—

"O Geist des Herrn, der das Leben schafft,
Walt in der Kirche mit deiner Kraft,
Dass die Gotteskinder Gelassen werden
Gleich wie ein Lämmlein sich führen lassen auf Erden Zu Christi Preis."

The hymn has been tr. as:—

The Church of Christ that He hath bidden't here. This is a good tr. of st. i.-iii. of the 1778, and of the st. printed above, by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 58; repeated in Pr. & Hys., Bedford, 1859, No. 169.

iii. Heilige Einheit, Gnadenwunder. Christian Simplicity. This is an excellent picture of his own Christian character. It was 1st pub. as No. 1389 in Appx. x., circa 1741, to the Herrnhut G. B., 1735, and is in 19 st. of 4 l. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 835, reduced to 11 st. (st. iv. is by Zinzendorf), and this form is in Bunsen's Versuch, 1833, No. 823 (ed. 1851, No. 4441), and in some recent German collections, e.g. the Pfalz G. B., 1860. According to Bunsen, 1835, p. 904, it was written as a birthday hymn for his sister. The date which Bunsen gives for its composition (1744) is probably a misprint for 1741. Tr. as:—

i. When simplicity we cherish. This is given in 14 st. as No. 387 in pt. ii., 1746, of the Moravian H. Bk. In the 1789 and later eds. (1849, No. 693) it is reduced to 8 st., and is entirely rewritten, save the opening line. [See Various.] [J. M.]

Spee, Friedrich von, s. of Peter Spee (of the family of Spee, of Langenfeldt), judge at Kaiserswirth, was b. at Kaiserswirth, Feb. 25, 1591. He was educated in the Jesuit gymnasium at Cologne, entered the order of the Jesuits there on Sept. 22, 1610, and was ordained priest about 1621. From 1613 to 1624 he was one of the tutors in the Jesuit college at Cologne, and was then sent to Paderborn to assist in the Counter Reformation. In 1627 he was summoned by the Bishop of Würzburg to act as confessor to persons accused of witchcraft, and, within two years, had to accompany to the stake some 200 persons, of all ranks and ages, in whom innocence he himself firmly believed (His Cautio criminalis, seu de processibus contra sagas liber, Rinteln, 1631, was the means of almost putting a stop to such cruelties). He was then sent to further the Counter Reformation at Peine near Hildesheim, but on April 29, 1629, he was nearly murdered by some persons from Hildesheim. In 1631 he became professor of Moral Theology at Cologne. The last years of his life were spent at Trier, where, after the city had been stormed by the Spanish troops on May 6, 1635, he contracted a fever from some of the hospital patients to whom he was ministering, and d. there Aug. 7, 1635. (Koch, iv. 185; Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 193, &c.)

Spee was the first important writer of sacred poetry that had appeared in the Roman Catholic Church since the Reformation. Among his contemporaries he was noteworthy for the beauty of his style, and his mastery of rhythm and metre. He seems to have come independently to much the same conclusions as Opitz had arrived at in his Buch von der Deutschen Poeterey as old Opitz (see p. 871, ii.). He was however of a much deeper and purer nature than Opitz; and far surpasses him in originality, in imagination, and in poetic inspiration. His poems are characterised by a fresh and vivid love of nature, of the beauties of the world, and a delight in all the sights and sounds of the country, especially in spring and summer; and at the same time by a deep and fervent love to God, to Christ, and to his fellow-men. On the other hand his mannerisms are the Jesuitical fondness for allegory and dialogue which so is fond of using for upon modern ears when used on such serious subjects as the Agony in Gethsemane. In the hymns he is too self-conscious and analytical, and works out the idea of his hymn with Brillingian fulness of minute detail. His poems are often full of beauty, of pathos, and of genuine religious warmth, but they cannot be considered as suitable for public worship, and hardly any really came into use except as processionals sung by the pilgrims to the Holy Coat at Trier in the last century. A number passed into the Roman Catholic hymn-books of the 17th cent., and one or two still survive. Of these the best is st. i., ii. of No. 1166, but the finest is Jesus, Jesus, Jesus, which was sung in the Church was not so much direct as through the impulse his work gave to Scheffler (q. 1006, ii.). His earlier poems are included in his (1) Trutz Nachtigal, oder Geistliche Lieder, Cologne, 1649, (Brit. Mus., Berlin Library, Königl. Bibl., &c.), which was published in 1634, is in the Town Library of Trier; This is Spee's most important book; reached a 6th ed. in 1663, and has been several times reprinted in this century, e.g. ed. by Clemens Brentano (with selections from No. 2), at Berlin, 1817; by Wilhelm Simrock, at Heidelberg, 1829; by Karl Simrock, at Heilbronn, 1876; by Gustav Balke, at Leipzig, 1877, &c. (2) Güldenes Tugend-Buch, Cologne, 1649 (Königl. Bibl., Berlin); Güldenes Tugend-Buch, &c., Cologne, 1649 (Königl. Bibl., Berlin); Güldenes Tugend-Buch, &c., Cologne, 1649 (Göttingen Library). This is a prose work on the Christian Graces of Faith, Hope, and Love, and has a few hymns interspersed.

The hymns by Spee which have passed into English appear to be only two, viz.:—

i. Bei stiller Nacht, zur ersten Wacht. Passiontide. In the Trutz Nachtigal, 1649, p. 228, in 12 st. of 4 l., entitled "A successful song on the agony of Christ on the Mount of Olives." Repeated in the Catholisch Gesangbuch Lustgart, Cologne, 1658, p. 166, in 17 st., beginning, "Bei finster Nacht," and this text is followed in H. Bone's Cantate, 1847, No. 63, where it begins "Bei finster Nacht, vom Garten her," and is repeated in the 1862 ed. of the Cantate. The peculiarity of this is that in Trier G. B. (R. C.), 1846, p. 56, in 13 st., entirely rewritten, hardly anything save the first two lines being the same as in 1649. Tr. by C. T. B.:—

Within a Garden's bound. In full from the text of 1649, in Mine Own for Love Mysticus, 1864, p. 13, and in her Hys. from the German, 1864, p. 49. Her tr. of st. ii., iii. x.-xiii. are included in J. L. Petre's Coll., 1876.

ii. Du trübe Winter ist verbei. Summer. In his Trutz Nachtigal, 1649, p. 12, in 12 st. of 10 l., entitled "Song of praise on the joyful and charming time of summer (spring)." It is a beautiful poem entirely lyrical. Included in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850 and 1865, after the text of W. Smets. Tr. as:—

The gloomy winter now is o'er. By Miss Winkworth, 1869, p. 242. [J. M.]

Spener, Philipp Jakob, D.D., s. of Johann Philipp Spener, keeper of the archives of Count von Rappoltstein, at Rappoltsweiler, near Colmar, in Alsace, was b. at Rappoltsweiler, Jan. 13 (25), 1635. He matriculated at the University of Strassburg, in 1651, and graduated M.A. in 1653. From 1654 to 1656 he had the oversight of the studies of two sons of the Palsgraf Christian I. In 1659 he went to Basel, and then spent a year at Geneva. He left Geneva in 1661, and accompanied the young Count von Rappoltstein to Würtemberg, staying principally at Stuttgart and Tübingen. During 1662 he gave some University lectures at Tübingen. He was then appointed, in 1663, as general preacher at Strassburg (D.D. from the University in 1664), and gave also University lectures there; preaching his farewell sermon in the Cathedral on July 9, 1666. He then became chief pastor of the Franciscan church (Barfüsser-Kirche, now St. Paul's), and Senior of the Lutheran clergy at Frankfurt am Main. Here, in Aug. 1670, he began to hold the Collegia pietatis or prayer meetings which are regarded as the beginnings of Pietism. During this period he pub. his famous Pia desideria.* In 1686 he was called to become senior court preacher at Dresden, then regarded as the most important post in the German Lutheran church. Here, however, he found much in the court life which needed reformation; and finally, on the general Fast day, Feb. 23, 1680, he addressed to the Elector Johann Georg III., a respectful, but perfectly definite, remonstrance regarding his drinking habits. From this time forth the Elector planned his removal, and with his knowledge and consent Spener at last received from the Elector Friedrich Wilhelm III., of Brandenburg, an invitation to become Probst of the St. Nicolas church, Consistorialrath, and Inspector of Schools and Churches at Berlin. He preached his first sermon in Berlin on June 21, 1691, and his last on July 1, 1704. In the last months of his life he was unable to undertake any duty. He d. at Berlin, Feb. 5, 1705 (Koch, iv., 201, v., 66); Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 204; Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xiv., 500, &c.)

* First appeared, 1675, in his ed. of Arndt's Postilla. First separate ed. in German, dated Frankfort, 1676, with a dedication of Sept. 8, 1675, to the Brüd. Mat. Latin ed. pub. 1679. In this work he set forth what he considered to be the great desiderata in the Lutheran church of his time.

Spener was a man of high personal character, and of unquestionable sincerity. By means of his official positions, of his intercourse with men of light and leading all over Germany, and through the extensive correspondence on spiritual matters on which he became the centre, he greatly influenced the religious life of many people, he greatly moulded the religious life of his times. He came into fame and influence as the leader of a great religious movement. During his latter years at Berlin he had the pleasure of seeing the University of Halle founded (1694), and watching it, under the care of his favourite pupils, like A. H. Francke (see p. 393, ii.) and F. Anton, appointed professors, and propagating his teachings there, and bringing on the triumph of the Pietistic movement.

To Hymnology Spener did not make important contributions, and of the few hymns he has left us hardly any of it could be called poetry. His hymns derive their interest from the fact of their authorship rather than from their intrinsic value. In them we find the characteristic points of view of the Pietistic school, and we see the kind of hymns used in the conventicle hymns. They are very nine in all, and appeared in the Frankfurt ed., 1674, of Ortger's Praxis [see p. 573, i. Copy in the Hamburg Library), in the Prosaischer Christen erfreuliche Himmelfahrt Lust (copy in the Göttingen Library, and in the Berlin Royal Library), Frankfurt, 1675, 12mo, and as his Geistreiche Gesänge, at Halle, 1758. Six of them were included in Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704 and 1714.

Those of Spener's hymns which have passed into English are :—

1. Was ist aufrichtiger. Easter. 1st pub. 1674, as above, No. 364, in 14 st. of 10 l., marked as by "P. J. S." In Knapp's Ev. L., 1837 and 1865, No. 1, p. 1, it is from the text of the Württemberg G. B., 1765, No. 149, which begins, "Aus des Todesbanden." Tr. in "Lo! death's bands are riven." In the Sydney Herald, July 1868, p. 286, signed "W. T. H." Repeated in Reid's Psalms, 1871, p. 177.

2. Ich bin dass was ich mit Freuden. For the Spring. 1st Pentecost hymn. 1st pub. 1674, as above, No. 755, in 6 st. of 8 l., marked, "P. J. S. D." In Bunsen's Versuch, 1833, No. 981 (Allg. G. B., 1846, No. 409). Tr. as "Then now at last the hour is come." By Miss Winkworth, 1863, p. 179.

3. Soll ich denen mich täglich bekehren. Resignation. 1st pub. 1674, as above, No. 527, in 12 st. of 8 l., marked "P. J. Spener D." In Knapp's Ev. L., 1837 and 1865, No. 48. Tr. as "Shall I vow the future fast." By Miss Winkworth, 1863, p. 179.

[J. M.]

Spengler, Lazarus, was the 9th of the 21 children of Georg Spengler and Agnes his wife, and was b., March 13, 1479, at Nürnberg, where his father was clerk of the Imperial court of Justice (Landgerichtsschreiber). He entered the University of Leipzig in 1494; but on the death of his father on Dec. 27, 1496, he returned to Nürnberg, obtained a position in the town clerk's office, in 1507 became himself town clerk (Ratlis Syndikus), and in 1516 also Ratsherr. When Luther was passing through Nürnberg, in 1518, on his way to Augsburg, Spengler made his acquaintance. He warmly espoused the Reformation doctrines, pub. in 1519 his Schutzrede in Luther's favour, and himself became one of the leaders in the Reformation work at Nürnberg. He was one of those condemned by name in the Bull of Excommunication launched by Pope Leo the Tenth, on June 15, 1520, against Luther and his friends. Dr. Eck sent the Bull to the Town Council of Nürnberg, and urged them to proceed against Spengler, but they ignored it, and then sent him as one of their representatives to the Diet of Worms, in April 1521. In 1525 Spengler went to Wittenberg to consult with Luther and Melanchthon as to turning the Benedictine Augustinstift (Schottenkloster) into an Evangelical Gymnasium, and this was opened as such by Melanchthon on May 23, 1526. Spengler was also the prime mover to the Visitation of 1528, and upheld strict Lutheranism in the negotiations at the Diet of Augsburg in 1530. He d. at Nürnberg, Sept. 7, 1534 (Koch, i., 308; Will's Nürnbergisches Gelehrten-Lexikon, iii., p. 731; Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xiv., 510.)

Spengler was a trusty friend and valued counsellor of Luther and the principal Reformers of Germany. He also interested himself in the improvement of the Church Hymnody, and in 1524 published his Geistliche Liturgy d. Kirchenordnung privately. He wrote a considerable quantity of verse, sacred and secular; but only two hymns are ascribed to him. The one is an indifferent version of Fa. coeruli, beginning "Vergiftens ist all mein Gut," and the other is :—

Durch Adams Fall ist ganz verderbt. Fall and Redemption. 1st pub. in the Geistliche Gesangk Buchlyn, Wittenberg, 1524, and thence in Wackernagel, iii. p. 46, in 9 st. of 10 l. Also in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 108. During the Reformation period it attained a wide popularity as a didactic and controversial hymn of the Evangelical Church. It is one of the most characteristic hymns of the time, conceived in the spirit of deep and earnest piety, eminently Scriptural, and setting forth the Reformation teachings in concise and antithetical form, but is however too much like a system of theology in rhyme to be a true lyric. Tr. as "Through Adam's fall is sinful nature." By Dr. Coverdale, 1539, reprinted in his Remains, 1846, p. 556. 2. "When Adam fell our total frame." By J. C. Jacobi in his Psalmodia Germanica, pt. ii., 1722, p. 17. In his ed. 1732, p. 86, it begins "Als Adam fiel." This is a paraphrase, in 8 st. of 4 l., repeated in the Moravian H. B., 1754, pt. i., No. 304, and later eds. (1849, No. 181). (3) "Our nature fell in Adam's fall." This is a paraphrase, in 8 st. of 4 l., by Dr. M. Loy, in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880, No. 247.

[J. M.]

Spenser, Edmund (b. 1552; d. 1599), has a right to his place in this work extrinsically and intrinsically. Extrinsically his odes, entitled by himself Foure Hymnes, give us a connecting link with Chaucer; and intrinsically they are of "the brave translunary things" that ought long since to have introduced much in them to the Church's Hymnology. Spenser in the outset acknowledged Chaucer for his "dere maister;" and throughout there are echoes and re-echoes of him. Specifically in relation to the Foure Hymnes, the Complaynt of Pite must have been carried by the youthful Spenser to Hunstwood and the Pendle district, or was found in one or other of the contemporary cultured Spenser households there. The Complaynt is of "Love," as is Spenser's first of the immortal four "in honour of Love." Like Chaucer's, the metre of the new Hymnes is stynze-royal; and the meditative reader of the elder and later poets will catch notes and images common to both, e.g., in the "Hymne to Beautie" (l. 237) we find—

"Doe seeme like twinckling starres in frostie night."

So in the "Prologue" (l. 269):—

"His eyelen twinkled in his head aright
As doe the starres in the frostie night."

Nor is it mere verbal resemblance that we come upon. The thought and emotion flow in the same channels. It were easy to multiply proofs of the truth of Spenser's own grateful acknowledgment in Colin Clout :—

"The elephant's boy (best known by that name)
That doth Dyonysa line sing his fyt."

in imitation of, or as disciple of Chaucer, as we use the phrase of a painter "after Raphael." Intrinsically the Foure Hymnes have the additional interest of having been (in "Two Hymnes of Love and of Beautie" at least) among the earliest of the "newe poet's" verse-attempts, though delayed in publication until 1596. There is a brilliancy, a charm, an exquisiteness of phrasing, a delicacy and daintiness of wording, and a pervading melodiousness in them that should simply have rendered anything of their kind meagre between Chaucer's Complaynt of Pite and them. His "Rosalind" was their inspiring motif; but his "high mood" lifted him to Incarnate Love and Pity and Beauty. All the more noticeable is it, therefore, that in the epistle-dedicatory of the Foure Hymnes to the "Ladie Margaret, Countesse of Cumberland, and the Ladie Marie, Countesse of Warwicke," the poet distinctly assigns the two of Love and Beauty to "the greener times" of his "youth." Turning to the Hymnes themselves, the student-reader will be rewarded if he consult Professor F. T. Palgrave's inestimable Essay (Gresart's Spenser, vol. iv., pp. xcvii.–c.) on the "Minor Poems of Spenser." I can only call two bits on the two greatest of the Hymnes. Of "Love" :—

"The love painted here is at once so idealized and so great—the human and the personal aspect of passion so faintly present—that we feel as though this were some splendid procession unwinding itself before us in progress to the Capitol, rather than a hymn sung in the recesses of the heart. . . . Of the Hymne in honour of Love, then, Love set to lovely music: a stream of gorgeous beauty, in which the chivalry of the Middle Ages blends audibly with the mythology of the Renaissance."

Then of "Heavenly Love:"—

"Nowhere, I think, has Spenser written, in his larger pieces at least, with more uniformly equable dignity, united with more serene melody, than here; and great is the gain in reconciliations and charm to the celestial vision and the pictures from the Gospel story which he introduces, from the Nativity to the Ascension inclusive—so far as Platonism is so—which lingers the earlier companion Ode. Spenser, in fact, now writes from the fulness of his faith; and the poem has hence a reality which the most skilful art alone, in the most skilful hands, of the artist native as he will, never can fully counterfeit."

[A. B. G.]

Speratus, Paulus, D.D., was b. in Swabia, Dec. 13, 1484. In a poem, written circa 1516, on Dr. J. Eck, he calls himself Elophanglus, i.e. of Ellwangen; and in his correspondence, preserved at Königsberg, he often styles himself "a Rottilis" or "von Rötlen." These facts would seem to indicate that he was b. at the castle of Röthlen, near Ellwangen. This property belonged to the Probst of the ecclesiastical corporation at Ellwangen, and Speratus's father was probably their bailiff or agent. The family name seems to have been Hoffer or Offer, and to have been in later years, following a practice common in the fifth cent., Latinized by himself into Speratus. He is probably the "Paul Offer de Ellwangen," who matriculated at the University of Freiburg (Baden) in 1503. He is also said to have studied at Paris, and at some of the Italian universities. In 1518 we find him settled as a preacher at Dinkelsbühl, in Bavaria. In the end of that year he was invited to become preacher in the cathedral at Würzburg. He went to Würzburg in Feb. 1519, but his preaching was much too evangelical for the new bishop, and he had to leave, apparently in the beginning of 1520. Proceeding to Salzburg he preached for some time in the cathedral, until the archbishop there also would not tolerate his pronounced opinions. He left Salzburg in the autumn of 1520, and went to Vienna, where he appears to have graduated D.D. at the University. He was already married (probably as early as 1519), and was one of the first priests who had dared to take this step. After a violent sermon against marriage, delivered by a monk in St. Peter's church, at Vienna, the governor of Lower Austria (Count Leonhard von Zeeh) asked Speratus to make a reply. With the consent of the bishop he did so, and preached, on Jan. 12, 1522, a sermon in the cathedral (St. Stephen's), founded on the Epistle for the 1st S. after the Epiphany, in which he expressed his opinions very freely regarding the monastic life and enforced celibacy, and also clearly set forth the doctrine of Justification by Faith. This sermon (pub. at Königsberg in 1524) made a great impression, and was condemned by the Theological Faculty at Vienna, who also prevented Speratus from accepting an invitation to become preacher at Olön, near Vienna. On his way from Vienna to the north he stayed at Iglau in Moravia, where the abbot of the Dominican monastery appointed him as preacher. Here the people became greatly enamoured of him and of the Reformation doctrines, and stood firmly by him, notwithstanding the remonstrances and threats of the king, and of the bishop of Olmütz. In the summer of 1523 King Ludwig came to Olmütz and summoned Speratus to him. Without even the form of a trial he put him in prison, but after three months he released him, probably through the influence of his queen (Maria of Hungary, see p. 710, i.), and of his cousin, the Margrave Albrecht of Brandenburg, but on the condition of his leaving Iglau and Moravia. In the end of 1523 Speratus came to Wittenberg, where he worked with Luther, and assisted him in the preparation of the first Lutheran hymn book (the Etlich cristlich lider. See p. 708, ii. It contained 4 German hymns by Luther, 3 by Speratus, and 1 anonymous German hymn). Luther then recommended him to the Margrave Albrecht, and about May 1524 the Margrave appointed him as court preacher at Königsberg. Here he had also charge of the Altstadt church till Graumann came into residence, in Oct. 1525 (see p. 651, i.). He seems to have had the principal share in drawing up the Liturgy and Canons (Kirchenordnung or "Book of Church Order") for the Prussian church, which was presented to the Diet in December 1525, and printed in 1526. On March 31, 1526, he was chosen as the clerical commissioner to visit the parishes of Prussia and see that the new arrangements were carried out; and in the end of 1529 he was appointed Lutheran bishop of Pomerania, with his residence at Marienwerder. Here he remained till his death on Aug. 15, 1551

(Pseudo Speratus Leben und Lieder. By C. J. Cosack, Brunswick, 1861; Koch, i., 345; Herzog's Real-Encyclopädie, xiv., 518; Blätter für Hymnologie, 1885, p. 180; Altpreussische Monatsschrift, 1887, p. 504, &c.)

Speratus was the author of various works, but was best known as the Reformer of Prussia. Feeling that for the proper reformation of the country it was necessary that pastors who had been brought up in Prussia, and could preach, if need be, in Polish or Lettish, be gladly welcomed the foundation at Königsberg (1544) of the first Prussian university. Among other important events affecting his administration may be mentioned the Visitations of 1526, of 1528, and especially that which ended in the drawing up of the Articles of 1528; the Synods of 1529 (the Synodical Constitutions were pub. in 1530), of 1530, and of 1531; the new Kirchenordnung of 1544; and the welcome he extended, in 1548, to the exiled Bohemian Brethren who settled in Prussia.

As a hymn writer Speratus is principally known by the three hymns pub. in the Etlich cristlich lider, 1524. He also pub. (no place or date but Königsberg, 1527), in 1527, a version of Te. zarell., beginning, "Erzorn dich nicht, sei nicht neidisch;" and a Hymn of Thanksgiving, to be used after the sermon, beginning, "Gelobet sei Gott, unser Gott." These five are all that can be confidently ascribed to him. The two collections which Cosack attributes to him do not bear any indication of his authorship; and Wackernagel, i., pp. xix., 286, 287, 288; iii. pp. 618-645, denies that they are his, and thinks that they are, much more probably, by Caspar Löhner or Löner, who in 1524 became Lutheran pastor at Hof, in Bavaria; and in 1542, at Nördlingen in Bavaria. The Low German hymn-books which he was for some time supposed to have edited (1525 and 1526), were really edited by Joachim Slüter, the Rostock Reformer. (See Dr. J. Buchmann's Geseh. des evang. Kirchengesanges in Mecklenburg, Rostock, 1881, p. 28, &c.) Of the five hymns mentioned above two have passed into English, viz.:—

i. Es ist das Heil uns kommen her. Law and Gospel. This, his most famous hymn, is founded on Rom. iii. 28. It was probably written in the autumn of 1523, either during his imprisonment at Olmütz, or else during his stay at Wittenberg. Included as one of the 8 hymns in the Etlich cristlich lider, 1524, dated 1523, and entitled, "A hymn of Law and Faith, powerfully furnished with God's Word. Doctor Paul Speratus," in some eds. it has two pages of reference to texts of Holy Scripture printed with it (Wittenberg, 1524), and signed "Paulus Speratus." It was repeated in the Erfurt Enchiridion, 1524, and thence in Wackernagel, iii. p. 31, in 14 st. of 7 l. In the Unv. L. G., 1851, No. 611.

Lauxmann, in Koch, viii. 198, calls it "the true confessional hymn of the Reformation, or, as Albert Knapp puts it, 'the poetical counterpart of Luther's preface to the Epistle to the Romans,' from the powerful impression of the effects it produced. It is a dogmatical ballad, setting forth, in what was, for the time, excellent verse, the characteristic teachings of the German Reformers; and is indeed of considerable historical importance. But for congregational use it is too long, too controversial in style, and too much a compend of doctrinal theology."

The only version we have found in English C. U. is:—

To us salvation now is come. In full by Dr. H. Mills, in his Horæ Germanicæ, 1845, p. 44 (1858, p. 60). His trs. of st. i., ii., v., viii., were repeated, with alterations, in the Amer. Luth. Gen. Synod's Coll., 1850, No. 842, and the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880.

Other trs. are:—

(1) "Now is our health come from above." By Bp. Coverdale, 1539 (Remains, 1846, p. 532). (2) "God hath sent salvation from above." In Ps. Hymns & Spir. Songs, 1553 (Lamb., p. 10 (1853, p. 16)). Repeated in the Morenian & Bo., 1754 (1849, No. 19). (3) "Now comes salvation from above." By Dr. G. Walker, 1683, p. 78. (4) "Salvation hath come down to us." By Mist Winkworth, 1863, p. 125.

ii. In Gott gelaub ich, dass er hat aus nicht. The Apostles' Creed. This is a free version, in 9 st. of 19 l. 1st pub. in the Etlich cristlich lider, 1524. Repeated in the Erfurt Enchiridion, 1524; and thence in Wackernagel, iii. p. 33. It was included in V. Babst's G. B., 1545, and many others, but on account of its length and its unusual metre it has not found a place in recent hymnals. It is tr. as "In God I trust, for so I must." By Bp. Coverdale, 1539. (Remains, 1846, p. 547.) [J. M.]

Spirit Divine, attend our prayer. A. Reed. [Whitsuntide.] This hymn appeared, unsigned, in 7 st. of 4 l., in the Evangelical Magazine for June 1825, with the heading, "Hymn to the Spirit. Sung on the late Day appointed for solemn Prayer and Humiliation in the Eastern District of the Metropolis" From the April number of the same magazine we find that the "Day appointed for Solemn Prayer," &c., was the Good Friday of that year, and that it was "cordially recommended . . . as a day of humiliation and prayer, with a view to promote, by the divine blessing, a revival of religion in the British churches," by the Board of Congregational Ministers, resident in and about London, whose recommendation is dated "Tuesday, Feb. 10, 1829." The hymn was republished in Dr. Reed's Hymn Book, 1842; and again, in the Wesleyan Chapel Supp., 1872. It is the most widely known of Dr. Reed's hymns, and is in extensive use. It is one of his lost productions. [J. J.]

Spirit, leave thine house of clay. J. Montgomery. [Death and Burial.] This, in its original form, is a poem in 14 st. of 4 l. It was printed in Montgomery's Iris newspaper, July 14, 1803, and repeated in his Wanderer of Switzerland, and other Poems, in 1806, and again in his P. Works in 1828 and 1841. Its origin is explained in its title, which reads:—

"Verses to the Memory of the late Joseph Brewer, of Lotherdale, one of the People called Quakers, Who suffered a long Confinement in the Castle of York, and Loss of all his worldly Property, for Conscience Sake."

To adapt the poem for congregational use st. i.-iv., xiii., and xiv. were slightly altered, and given in Collyer's Coll., 1812. This form was repeated in J. Conder's Cong. H. Bk., 1836; the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, and others, as "Spirit, leave thy house of clay." [J. J.]

Spirit of God, that moved of old. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [Whitsuntide.] Appeared in the S. P. C. K. Hymns, 1852, No. 76, in 4 st. of 4 l. In Mrs. Alexander's Hym. Descriptive and Devotional, 1858, No. 15, it was republished in 5 st. of 4 l., the new stanza, the third, being "Unseal the veil within our hearts." The 1852 text is that usually given in modern hymn-books. In Dr. Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873, No. 93 is an altered form of st. ii.-iv. of the 1852 text, and begins, "Thou Power and Peace! in Whom we find." [J. J.]

Spirit of holiness, look down. W. H. Bathurst. [Whitsuntide.] 1st pub. in his Ps. & Hys., 1831, No. 59, in 3 st. of 4 l., and headed "For healing and strengthening Grace." The hymn, "Lord, let Thy saving mercy heal," in the American Church Psalter Bk., N. Y., 1882, is a cento from this hymn (st. iii., ii., iv.). [J. J.]

Spirit of life, Thine influence shed. W. H. Bathurst. [Whitsuntide.] 1st pub. in his Ps. & Hys., 1831, No. 56, in 3 st. of 4 l., and headed, "Spiritual Strength and Wisdom desired." In modern hymnals st. v. is usually omitted, as in the New Cong., 1859. [J. J.]

Spirit of mercy, truth, and love. [Whitsuntide.] The earliest date to which this hymn has been traced is 1774, when it appeared in the Collection published for use in the Foundling Hospital, London, where it is given as follows:—

"Spirit of mercy, truth, and love!
Shed Thy sweet influence from above,
And still from age to age convey
The wonders of this sacred day.

"In ev'ry clime, by ev'ry tongue,
Be God's amazing glory sung;
Through all the list'ning earth be taught
The acts—and all the mercy—wrought.

"Unfolding Thy divine design—
Thy counsels through eternity reside;
Still may mankind Thy blessings prove,
Spirit of mercy, truth, and love."

From the Foundling Collection it passed into those of Cotterill, Bickersteth, Elliott, Hall, and other compilers, both old and new. Several, who copied from R. W. Kyle's Collection, 1846, have attributed it to him. It was in print, however, before Kyle was born. Some of the slight changes in the text found in modern hymnals are from Cotterill's Sel., 1819. In the Anglican H. Bk., 1868, it is altered to "Blest Source of mercy, truth, and love." [J. J.]

Spirit of Truth! on this Thy day. Bp. R. Heber. [Whitsuntide.] Appeared in his posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 82, in 6 st. of 4 l. It is in several modern hymn-books in G. Britain and America, and usually in an abbreviated form. For the date 1812, sometimes assigned to it, we have no evidence. [J. J.]

Spirit of Truth, Thy grace impart. [Whitsuntide.] This cento was given in the 1863 Appendix to the S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hys., No. 236, as follows:—

1. "Spirit of Truth, Thy grace impart,
To guide our doubtful way;
Thy beams shall scatter every cloud,
And make a glorious day."

This is an altered form of st. v. of J. Needham's "Thy influence, mighty God, impart," from his Hymns, &c., 1708, p. 163.

2. "Like to Thy light, O may we see,
Thy grace and mercy prove,
Revived and cleansed and filled by Thee
Spirit of peace and love."

This is ll. 5-8 of C. Wesley's "Eternal Sun of Righteousness," from his Short Hys., &c., 1762, No. 201.

3. "Thy Thine to soothe the sorrowing mind,
With guilt and fear oppress'd,
'Tis Thine to tell the dying lives,
And give the weary rest."

This is an altered form of st. ii. of J. Hart's "Blest's Spirit of truth, eternal God," from his Hys., &c., 1759, No. 5, slightly varied from T. Cotterill's Sel., 1810, No. 66, "Eternal Spirit, Source of Truth."

4. "Bestow the power of every sin,
Whate'er that sin may be,
That we, in singleness of heart,
May worship only Thee."

Also from T. Cotterill's Sel., 1810, No. 66, as above.

In Thring's Coll., 1882, this text is repeated, together with a doxology from Tate & Brady with l. 2 borrowed from C. Wesley. [J. J.]

Spitta, Carl Johann Philipp, D.D., was b. Aug. 1, 1801, at Hannover, where his father, Lebrecht Wilhelm Gottfried Spitta,* was then living, as bookkeeper and teacher of the French language. In his eleventh year Spitta fell into a severe illness, which lasted for four years, and so threw him back that his mother (the father d. in 1805) abandoned the idea of a professional career, and apprenticed him to a watchmaker. This occupation did not prove at all congenial to him, but he would not confess his dislike, and his family were ignorant of it till an old friend, who was trying to comfort him after the death of a younger brother, discovered his true feelings. The younger brother had been preparing for ordination, and so Carl was now invited by the family to adopt this career. He joyfully accepted the offer, left the workshop in the autumn of 1818, and succeeded, by dint of hard study during the winter, in gaining admission to the highest class in the Gymnasium (Lyceum) at Hannover, which he entered at Easter, 1819. He was thus able, at Easter, 1821, to proceed to the University of Göttingen, where he completed his theological course, under professors of pronounced Rationalistic opinions, at Easter, 1824 (D.D. from Göttingen, 1855). He then became, in the beginning of May, a tutor in the family of Judge (Oberamtmann) Jacobson, at Lüne, near Lüneburg. Here he remained till his ordination on Dec. 10, 1828, as assistant pastor at Sudwalde, near Hoya. In Nov., 1830, he became assistant chaplain to the garrison and to the prison at Hausha on the Weser, and would have succeeded as permanent chaplain there, in the beginning of 1837, had not the military authorities, alarmed by reports which described him as a Pietist and a Mystic, refused to sanction the arrangement. As a compensation, he was appointed pastor at Werhold, near Hoya, in Oct., 1837, and married just before settling there. On his birthday, Aug. 1, 1847, he was instituted as Lutheran superintendent at Wittingen; in Oct., 1850, at Peine; and in July, 1859, at Burgdorf—all his appointments having been in the kingdom of Hannover. A few weeks after removing to Burgdorf he was seized with gastric fever, but had apparently recovered, when, on Sept. 28, 1859, while sitting at his writing table, he was seized with cramp of the heart, and died in a quarter of an hour. (Karl Johann Philipp Spitta, Ein Lebensbild von Dr. Theol. K. A. Münkel, Leipzig, 1861; Koch, viii., 232; Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xiv., 530, &c.)

* A native of Brunswick, and descended from a Huguenot family named de l'Hôpital, who had settled in Brunswick after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes. The French name was exchanged for the German equivalent, i.e. Spital or Spitta, and this was modified into Spitta.

Spitta had begun to write in verse when he was eight years old, along with his brother Heinrich (see No. xliv. below). During his university course he continued to write songs and secular poems, and pub. a collection of songs anonymously as a Studenten-Liederbuch. In 1847 he commenced what was destined to be a life-long friendship with Adolf Peters, afterwards professor in the St. Alba Gymnasium (Fürstenschule) at Meissen, in Saxony. He was also on intimate terms with Heinrich Heine, who was a fellow student at Göttingen, and contributed to the latter's patriotic union (see A. Stoddart's Grandmère, vol. ii., 1867, p. 309); and this friendship continued till Heine, while visiting him at Lüne, so jested at things sacred, even in the presence of Spitta's pupils, that their friendship was broken off. It was during the years 1847-48 he began about the end of his university course, Spitta ceased to write secular pieces. His hymn-writing proper seems to have begun in 1851. In writing to a friend on May 3, 1926, he says, "In the manner in which I have written my hymns, they are the result of connection my life and my love, and therefore my song. His love is the one great theme of all my songs; to praise and exalt it worthily is the desire of the Christian singer. He gave to me song and melody; I give it back to Him." In the autumn of 1851 he went to Klein Wittensee as an Lüne, where many of his most popular hymns were composed in the quiet evenings, in his own room, often after fasting, and when, sitting at the piano or at his harp, he had tuned his spirit to song. Many others were written in the beautiful summer days on the Lake Wesse, and by the intercourse with friends during his residence at Hamelin. In his later years his ecclesiastical duties absorbed his attention, and hardly any of his hymns were written after 1867. A number of them will be found in the Psalter und Harfe. Evangelisches Gesangbuch für alle Gläubige, which appeared from Jan. to June, 1859, and was edited by Spitta and by Pastor Zahnmann, of Lüneburg. Superintendent W. Bode of Lüneburg has recently found a copy of the Psalter und Harfe which belonged to Mrs. Spitta's mother. This contains ten hymns, viz.:—1. "Wir leiden Angst wir leiden. Noth." 2. "Ja, er hat euch stets geliebet." 3. "Wo selig ist ein Herz das Jesum kennet." 4. "Wir treten wie zerstreut und ohne Leiter." 5. "Ich habe überwunden, ich bin dein." 6. "Ich habe Hand und Fuss am Pflug." 7. "Selig, wer im Reich der Gnade." 8. "Heute, O Christ, nur offen Quelle." 9. "In der Angst der Welt will ich nicht klagen." 10. "O Jesu meine Wonne, Du alle Noth." Of these Nos. 1, 2 appeared in Nos. 1-4 of the Psalter und Harfe, 1st ser., Jan. 1-4 of May; and Nos. 9 to 10 in June. They are probably all by Spitta (p. 938, ii.), but only Nos. 5, 8, 9 are included in the Psalter und Harfe. No. 10 being given as "O Jesu meine Sonne."

In 1860 Spitta published a selection from the beautiful hymns of Gerhardt, entitled "Der Mensch hat hartge Stunden." (2) "Ein heilsam Licht ist uns gegeben." (3) "O dass mein Leben deine Rechte." (4) "Was macht ihr, dass ihr weinet." (5) "Wohlan, der Vater hat uns lieb." This work attained an extensive circulation, and was followed by a second and enlarged edition (2nd ed., the 10th ed. being pub. at Bremen in 1869. The success of this first series led Spitta to pub. a second series, consisting of 40 hymns, and entitled Psalter und Harfe. Zweite Sammlung, &c. Leipzig, 1861. This was followed by a 2nd ed. in 1863, and a third at Bremen in 1867. After Spitta's death, his widow handed over to Professor Peters (see above) a considerable number of pieces from her husband's unpublished papers, to which Peters added others by Spitta, and published them in 1882 as Nachgelassene geistliche Lieder, &c., at Leipzig, 1861. Of these pieces, hardly to be called a hymn, dates from 1852, the rest of the 112 were written in the years of Spitta's early manhood (from 1838 on), a fact which Peters has overlooked. Spitta himself, in 1843, published himself in 1843, ranked there among his happiest efforts. The circulation of this work has been comparatively limited (9th ed., Bremen, 1883, and hardly any of the hymns have found their way into the English and American books in Germany, or even into collections of German sacred poetry. It is by his Psalter und Harfe that Spitta is known and loved.

Various causes doubtless contributed to the popularity of Spitta's hymns in Germany. They are characterized, as a rule, of moderate length, are clear and simple in style, refined in diction, sweet, flowing and melodious. Their quiet beauty, their tone of earnest, sincere, and childlike piety, of glowing devotion to the Saviour, and of deep spirituality, as well as their poetic and devotional merits, endeared them to all saints and classes. They form a faithful mirror of his inner life and Christian experience. They at once met and ministered to the revival of Evangelical religion in Germany, and thus contributed to the same revival of hymnody and worship which the renewed churchly life in England brought to Keble's Christian Year. As the title adopted shows Spitta meant them for family and private use, and for this they are best fitted, being, for the most part, subjective in character. Hence they have not found their way into the German hymnbooks for church use, both at home and abroad, and translations of them are found in almost all recent English and American collections. An excellent version of both parts has been made by Miss Winkworth, entitled "The Psalter and Harfe," 2nd ser., London, 1864; 2nd ser., London, 1864. A glance at the lists below will show their popularity with translators. If (as already said at p. 937, ii.) Albert Knapp ranks higher than Spitta, both as a poet and as a writer of sacred lyrics, Spitta is the first of the hymn writers of the latter age of the 19th century, and in many issues fully represented in the English and American hymnals.

Another element of Spitta's popularity in Germany has been contributed by the very numerous musical settings which have appeared to his hymns. Koch, viii., 230, 231, gives a long list of the composers of the tunes, and, in fact, besides these, many of the separate pieces have been set to music by various composers, the "Angel of Patmos" (see p. 888, i.) being one of the greatest favourites (see also Dr. J. C. Schauer's Geschichte des Kirchenliedes Leipzig und Frankfurt, 1850, p. 748).

A number of Spitta's hymns are annotated under their original first lines (see Index of Authors and Translators). Of the rest we may note here the following :—

I. From his Psalter und Harfe. 1st Series, Firna, 1833, and the 2nd ed. Leipzig, 1834; 2nd Series, Leipzig, 1843.

i. Allen ist ein Heil beschieden. Communion of Saints. 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 27, in 5 st. of 7 l., entitled "Unity in spirit." Repeated in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850. Tr. as:—

Brethren, called by one vocation. By R. Massie in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 87. Thence, in full, in Sharpe's Songs of G. and G., 1872, No. 745.

Another tr. is:—"Salvation is a boon." By Miss Wy, 1868, p. 34.

ii. Es wird mein Herz mit Freuden wach. Sunday Morning. 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, p. 61, in 7 st. of 4 l., entitled "Sunday Morning." In the German hymn-books, e.g. in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850, it generally begins with st. ii. "Heut hält der Herr sin offenes Haus." Tr. as:—

My heart wakes with a joyful lay. This is a good and full tr. by Mrs. Findlater, in H. L. L., 4th Ser. 1862, p. 62 (1884, p. 245). Repeated, abridged and beginning "Awake! all hearts and joyful say," in G. S. Jellicoe's Coll., 1867, No. 26.

Other tr. are: (1) "My heart awaken with holy glee." By Miss Manington, 1863, p. 145. (2) "Awake, my heart, this day of rest." By E. Massie, 1864, p. 81. (3) "My heart is bright with joy." By Lady Durrant, 1873, p. 38.

iii. Gottes Stadt steht festgegründet. Christian Church. 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, p. 97, in 6 st. of 12 l., entitled "The City of God," and founded on Ps. lxxxvii. In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850 and 1865, the Hannover G. B., 1885. Tr. as:—

By the holy hills surrounded. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1864, p. 82, repeated in the Wes. H. Bk., 1875, No. 505.

iv. Hochgesegnet sind ihr Boten. Foreign Missions. 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 34, in 6 st. of 8 l., entitled "The Missionaries to the Heathen." Repeated in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837 and 1865. Tr. as:—

Blest are ye, ye chosen bearers. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 94, repeated in L. Rebman's Church of Sco, 1868, p. 104, and the Bk. of Common Praise, 1863.

Other tr.s. are: (1) "Ye messengers of Christ, By Him commissioned forth." By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 47. (2) "O blessed are ye, messengers, sent forth." By Lady Durrant, 1873, p. 32.

v. Ich glaube, darum rede ich. Faith. 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 56, in 5 st. of 8 l., entitled "I believe." Tr. as:—

I believe, and so have spoken. By R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 55. Repeated, omitting st. iii., in Adams's Church Pastorals, Boston, U.S., 1864, No. 552.

vi. Ich bin deines Stammes. Ps. xxiii. 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 44, in 7 st. of 8 l., entitled "The Lord is my Shepherd." In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837 and 1865. Tr. as:—

I hear my Shepherd calling. This is a good and full tr. by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 44. His st. i., ii., iv. are repeated in Flett's Coll., Paisley, 1871, No. 225.

2. Jesu, my Lord, my Shepherd. This is a very good tr., omitting st. vi., in the Catholic Apostolic Hyn. for the Use of the Churches, n.d. [1865], marked as tr. by "M. L. A. 1867."

Other tr.s. are: (1) "Shepherd of souls, Thy voice I hear, As sings." By Dr. E. Maguire, 1875, p. 166. (2) "I know Thy voice, my Shepherd." By Lady Durrant, 1873, p. 11.

vii. Ich und mein Haus, wir sind bereit. Family Use. A fine hymn, founded on Joshua xxiv., 15. 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 110, in 6 st. of 10 l., entitled "I and my house will serve the Lord." Repeated in the Württemberg G. B., 1842, the Hannover G. B., 1885, and other German collections. Tr. as:—

I and my house are ready, Lord. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 103, and thence in Hys. of the Apos, Boston, U.S., 1865, p. 107; and, abridged, in the Bk. of Common Praise, 1863, No. 223.

viii. Im Osten flammt empor der gold'ne Morgen. Morning. 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 91, in 7 st. of 8 l., entitled "At Morning." In Knapp's Ev. L. S. 1850. Tr. as:—

The golden morn flames up the Eastern sky. This is a good and full tr., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 74. Her st. i.-iii. are repeated in J. L. Porter's Coll., 1876, No. 60.

Other tr.s. are: (1) "The golden morn is in the East arising." By the Hon. E. E. Maxwell in his Sacred Poems, 1867, p. 114. (2) "On the far East now flames the golden Morning." By S. A. Storrs, in her Thoughts and Sketches, 1871, p. 74. (3) "Lo! in the East the golden morn appearing." By Dr. Pitts, 1876, p. 9. (4) "The golden glow the Eastern sky adorning." By E. Massie, 1866, p. 8. Repeated in Hys. of the Apos, Boston, U.S. 1865, p. 113. (5) "Out from the East, the golden morn is rising." By Miss Manington, 1861, p. 19. (6) "Behold, yon the golden morn." By Dr. R. Maguire, 1880, p. 27.

ix. Kehre wieder, kehre wieder. Lent. Founded on Jer. iii. 12, 13. 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 92, in 5 st. of 10 l., entitled "Turn again." Included in the Württemberg G. B., 1842, and many recent German collections. Tr. as:—

1. Return, return! Poor long-lost wanderer, home. This is a free tr. by Miss Borthwick in H. L. L., 2nd Ser., 1855, p. 53 (1884, p. 90). Included, omitting st. iii., and altered, in Kennaby, 1865, and thence in the Verse Bk., 1871.

2. Turn, poor wanderer, see the sentence. In full, by E. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 69, repeated, omitting st. ii., v. in the Meth. S. Com. H. Bk., 1865.

Other tr.s. are: (1) "Turn, O turn, no more delaying." By the Hon. E. E. Maxwell, in his Sac. Poems, 1867, p. 181. (2) "Return, return, thou lost one." By Lady Durrant, 1873, p. 39. (3) "Return again: return again." By J. Kelly, in his Hys. of the Present Century, 1885, p. 66.

x. Meine Stund' ist noch nicht kommen. Cross and Consolation. 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 37, in 7 st. of 8 l., entitled "The Lord's Hour." In Knapp's Ev. L. S. 1850. Tr. as:—

Jesus' hour is not yet come. This is a free tr., omitting st. v., by Miss Borthwick, in H. L. L., 2nd ser. 1855, p. 43 (1884, p. 102). Included, abridged, in the Amer. Epis. Hys. for Church and Home, 1860, the Scottish Evang. Union Hyl., 1870, &c.; and, in full, in Lyra Anglicana, 1864, Miss Warner's Hys. of the Church Militant, 1858, &c.

Other tr.s. are:—(1) "The rod yet the time appointed." By E. Massie, 1860, p. 67, and in Reid's Praise Book, 1871. (2) "My times, O Lord, are in Thy hand." By Dr. R. Maguire, 1865, p. 98.

xi. Nimm hin, was dein ist, Gott, nimms hin. Surrender to God. This beautiful hymn was 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, as above, p. 58, in 5 st. of 10 l., entitled "Resignation." Tr. as:—

I give Thee back Thine own again. A good and full tr. by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1864, p. 49, repeated, omitting st. ii., in the Eng. Presb. Ps. & Hys., 1867, No. 101.

xii. O du, der uns begegnet. Christian Service. 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, as above, p. 92, in 4 st. of 4 l., entitled "To Blessing of the Blest." Tr. as:—

O Thou Whose grace first found us, Whose love. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1864, repeated in Hewlett's Comp. Hyl., 1884.

xiii. O komm, du Geist der Wahrheit. Whitsuntide. 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 12, in 7 st. of 8 l., entitled "Whitsunday." Included in the Leipzig G. B., 1844, and various later collections. Tr. as:—

1. Draw, Holy Spirit, nearer. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 27. Repeated, in varying centos, in Sharpe's Songs of G. & G., 1872; Hurlimann's C. P. & Hyl., 1876; Meth. N. Com. H. Bk., 1875, &c.

2. O come, Eternal Spirit, Of truth, diffuse Thou light. In full by E. Cronenwett, as No. 100, in the Ohio Evang. Luth. Hyl., 1880.

xiv. O Vaterhand, die mich so treu geführet. Holy Trinity. A fine hymn, 1st pub. at Firna, 1833, as above, p. 128, in 7 st. of 8 l., entitled "Father, Son, and Spirit." Included in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. O Father-Eye, that hath so truly watch'd. By Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger. 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 63. Her st. i. ll. 1-4, and iii., altered to 3 st. of 10,10,10,10, were included in Hys. of the Spirit, Boston, U.S., 1864, No. 11.

2. Father whose hand hath led me so securely. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 124. Repeated in Rev. Eyre's Coll., 1860; Sharpe's Songs of G. & G., 1872; Lowe's Lessons, N.Y., 1884, and others.

1078 SPITTA, CARL J. P. SPITTA, CARL J. P. 1079

xv. O welche fromme schöne Sitte. Spiritual Conversation. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, as above, p. 101, in 6 st. of 8 l., entitled "The Blessing of Christian fellowship." In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837 and 1865. Tr. as:—

It is a practice greatly blest. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1865, p. 89, repeated, omitting st. iv., v., in Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872.

xvi. O wie feern wir uns der Stunde. Fellowship with Christ. 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, as above, p. 3, in 6 st. of 8 l., entitled "Thou hast the words of Eternal Life," and founded on St. John vi. 68. In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850 and 1865, and other German collections. Tr. as:—

Oh! how blest the hour, Lord Jesus. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1868, p. 2. Repeated, abridged, in the Eng. Presb. Ps. & Hys., 1867, Wm. H. Bk. 1875, and others.

Another tr. is: "How great the joy, how blest the hour." By Dr. R. Magoche, 1873, p. 161.

xvii. O wie manche schöne Stunde. Cross and Consolation. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, as above, p. 130, in 10 st. of 4 l., entitled "Comfort." Tr. as:—

1. O how many hours of gladness, Hath the Lord. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1859, p. 129, repeated, abridged, in the Bk. of Common Praise, 1863.

2. O how many hours of beauty. This is a good and full tr., by Mrs. Findlater, in H. L. L., 4th Ser., 1865, p. 11 (1884, p. 183). Included, omitting st. viii., viii., and beginning "O how many hours of gladness, Has the Master dealt around," in G. S. Jellicoe's Coll., 1867, No. 128.

Another tr. is: "O how many an hour of gladness." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 16.

xviii. Sehet, sehet, welche Liebe. The Love of the Holy Trinity. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, as above, p. 19, in 3 st. of 8 l., entitled "See what Love." Included in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1837, and other German collections. Tr. as:—

See, O see, what love the Father. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 50. Repeated in the Meth. S. Conn. H. Bk., 1863; Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872; Hatfield's Church H. Bk., N. Y., 1872, &c.

Other tr. are: (1) "Behold the Father's love." By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 2. (2) "See! what wondrous love, how matchless." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 23. (3) "See what love the Father hath—how great." By Dr. R. Magoche, 1873, p. 9.

xix. Unser Wandel ist im Himmel: Wie sie Mensch in sich versenkt. The Christian Life. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, as above, p. 75, in 7 st. of 8 l., entitled "Our Conversation is in Heaven, and suggested by Philipp. iii. 20). Tr. as:—

As a traveller returning. In full, by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 75. This is found in two centos:—

1. Down, like the gentle sunset, raises (st. iii., v., vi.) in the Ohio Evang. Luth. Hymn., 1880.

2. Can we have our hearts in heaven (st. v., vi.) in Adams's Church Psalmody, Boston, U.S., 1864.

Another tr. is: "We are citizens of heaven." In the British Herald, January, 1864, p. 305.

xx. Wandle leuchtender und schöner. Easter. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, as above, p. 9, in 9 st. of 8 l., entitled "Easter Festival." Included in the Württemberg G. B., 1842, and other recent German collections. Tr. as:—

Sun, shine forth in all thy splendour. This is a full and good tr. by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1860, p. 24, repeated in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869. Two centos, both beginning with st. iii., "Say, my soul, what preparation," are in (1) the Bk. of Common Praise, 1863, and (2) in the Ohio Evang. Luth. Hyl., 1880.

Another tr. is:—"With brighter glory, Easter Sun." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 4.

xxi. Wie sind des Herrn, wir leben, oder sterben. Life in Christ. A fine hymn founded on Rom. xiv. 8. 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, as above, p. 96, in 4 st. of 4 l. entitled "We are the Lord's." Tr. as:—

1. We are the Lord's: His all-sufficient merit. This is a good and full tr., by C. T. Astley, in his Songs in the Night, 1860, p. 22. Repeated in Bp. Ryle's Coll. 1860, Canadian Presb. H. Bk., 1880; Lyndes Domini, N.Y., 1884, and others.

2. We are the Lord's, whether we live or die. Also a good and full tr. by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, 1864, p. 81, and thence in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1870, and Horder's Cong. Hys., 1884.

Other tr. are: (1) "We are the Lord's in living or in dying." By Miss Fry, 1859, p. 24. (2) "We are the Lord's—in life, in death remaining." By Mrs. Findlater, in H. L. L. 1865, p. 36 (1884, p. 205).

Hymns not in English C. U.:—

xxii. Ach, welche Mutter, welche Plagen. Christ's Mercy. 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, p. 33, in 8 st. of 8 l. Tr. as "O Lord, what sorrows past expression." By R. Massie, 1864, p. 31, and in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872.

xxiii. Das Leben wird oft trübe. Spiritual Dryness. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, as above, p. 114, in 6 st. of 8 l. (1) "How many days have wanderers this life of thine spanned." By Miss Borthwick in H. L. L., 1856, p. 61 (1884, p. 45). Thence in Bp. Ryle's Coll., 1860, and the Schaff-Gilman Lib. of Rel. Poetry, 1881. (2) "Thou life's a dreamer, weary pilgrim." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 121. (3) "This life is oftimes gloomy." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 119. (4) "Life often seems so dreary." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 46.

xxiv. Der du in der Nacht des Todes. Epiphany. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 4 in 6 st. of 8 l. The tr. are: (1) "Thou Who in the night of death." By Miss Borthwick in H. L. L., 1856, p. 49, repeated in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870. (2) "Thou who in death's night of terror." By Miss Maningtree, 1864, p. 24. (3) "Christ, who in Death's night of darkness." By Dr. R. Magoche, 1873, p. 172.

xxv. Der Christen Schutz und Gottestand. Expostulating on Tribulations. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 115, in 4 st. of 4 l. The tr. are: (1) "The Christian's badge of honour here." By Mrs. Findlater in H. L. L., 1865, p. 36 (1884, p. 205). (2) "The Christian's Christian wears on earth." By R. Massie, 1866, p. 138. (3) "The Christian's star of honour here." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 42. (4) "The sign of faith, and love's true token." By Dr. R. Magoche, 1865, p. 72.

xxvi. Du schöne Lilie auf dem Feld. Trust in God. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 87, in 6 st. of 4 l. The tr. are: (1) "Thou beauteous lily of the field! Who taught." By S. A. Storrs in her Thoughts and Sketches, 1867, p. 77. (2) "Thou beauteous lily of the field! Who taught." By the Hon. S. R. Maxwell, in his Sacred Poems, 1867, p. 119. (3) "Thou beauteous lily of the field! Who taught." By Miss Borthwick in H. L. L., 1856, p. 73. (4) "Sweet lily of the field, declare?" By R. Massie, 1864, p. 14. (5) "Thou pretty lily of the field." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 171. (6) "Thou lovely lily of the field." By Mrs. A. W. Johns in her Hymns for Little Children, 1870.

xxvii. Ein lieblich Lose ist uns gefallen. The Christian's Portion. 1st pub. in the 2nd ed., Leipzig, 1835, and not in the Pirna ed. 1833 (ed. 1836, p. 116), in 2 st. of 6 l. In the Leipzig G. B., 1841, and others. Tr. as "Our lot is fallen in pleasant places." By R. Massie, 1846, p. 106, and thence in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870.

xxviii. Ein Pilger schickt sich an zur Fahrt. For the Dying. 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, p. 85, in 4 st. of 8 l. Tr. as "A pilgrim for his new abode." By the Hon. S. R. Maxwell, in his Sacred Poems, 1867, p. 107. (2) "A pilgrim for his new abode." By R. Massie, 1846, p. 76.

SPITTA, CARL J. P. SPITTA, CARL J. P. 1079

xxix. Erhalt' in mir den Lobesteich, das Schaut. The Plant of Grace. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 152, in 3 st. of 8 l. The tr. are: (1) "Maintain in me the sap of life, the yearning." By the Hon. S. R. Maxwell, in his Sacred Poems, 1867, p. 117. (2) "Maintain in me, O Lord, ev'ermore thine." By R. Massie, 1846, p. 116. (3) "Uphold in me a living wish and longing." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 177.

xxx. Es pietzt ein Lied der Lieder. The Lord's Supper. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 76, in 6 st. of 8 l. The tr. are: (1) "A Song of songs there is." By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 76. (2) "There is a song so thrilling." By R. Massie, 1865, p. 33. (3) "There is a song now singing." By Mrs. Findlater in H. L. L., 1865, p. 78 (1884, p. 220). (4) "There is a song now singing." By Mrs. Findlater in H. L. L., 1865, p. 78 (1884, p. 220). (5) "The song of songs—this sweetest." By Miss Burlingham, in the British Herald, Sept. 1865, p. 133, repeated in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872. (6) "A blessed Song of songs there is." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 27.

xxxi. Freut euch der schönen Zeit. Joy in the Beauties of Nature. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 85, in 6 st. of 4 l. In the Hanover G. B., 1855, and others. The trs. are: (1) "O rejoice in Nature's beauties." By S. A. Storrs in her Thoughts and Sketches, 1867, p. 61. (2) "Rejoice in the beautiful earth." By the Hon. S. R. Maxwell, in his Sacred Poems, 1867, p. 121. (3) "Rejoice in the beautiful earth! For well may." By Miss Fry, 1859, p. 162. (4) "Rejoice in the beautiful earth! For well may." &c. By R. Massie, 1865, p. 33. (5) "Joy in our this earth so lovely." By Miss Burlingham, in the British Herald, 1865, p. 133. (6) "Rejoice in Earth's fair beauty." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 37.

xxxii. Gehe hin in Gottes Namen. Before Work. 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, p. 64, in 8 st. of 4 l. In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850. The tr. are: (1) "Cheerly on, in God's name." By R. Massie, 1846, p. 64. (2) "In the name of God advancing." In Shelton's Coll. Edin. 1870, No. 120, and in the Schaff-Gilman Lib. of Rel. Poetry, 1881. (3) "In the Name of God go forward." By J. Kelly, 1866, p. 109.

xxxiii. Gehe hin, mein Herz, und bekümmal. Submission to God's Will. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 44, in 4 st. of 4 l. The trs. are: (1) "What Thou appointest I receive." By S. A. Storrs, in her Thoughts and Sketches, 1867, p. 67. (2) "Give what Thou wilt and where." By Miss Borthwick in H. L. L., 1856, p. 61. (3) "Thy will I cheerfully obey." By R. Massie, 1860, p. 67.

xxxiv. Ich steh' in meines Herren Hand. Trust in God. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 54, in 2 st. of 8 l. In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850, and others. Tr. as "I rest myself in Jesus' hands." By R. Massie, 1846, p. 53, repeated in Reid's Praise Book, 1872.

xxxv. In der Angst der Welt will ich nicht klagen. Christian Life. Included at Pirna, 1833, p. 120, in 6 st. of 8 l. In Knapp's Ev. L. S. 1849 and 1865. The trs. are: (1) "Amid the world's vexations." By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 125. (2) "Amid the world's distress I'll not grieve heavy." By R. Massie, 1846, p. 125, repeated in Lyra Anglicana, 1864. (3) "In this earth—life's bitter anguish." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 55.

xxxvi. O du, den meine Seele liebt. Holy Communion. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 72, in 6 st. of 8 l. The trs. are: (1) "O Thou, Who holdest in my heart." By R. Massie, 1864, p. 62. (2) "Oh Thou, my loving thoughts employ." By H. Thompson, in Lyra Eucharistica, 1864, p. 257.

xxxvii. Ich will dich keinen liebevollen Herren. The Love of Christ. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 31, in 5 st. of 8 l. The trs. are: (1) "I'll not thy paternal brand." By S. A. Storrs, in her Thoughts and Sketches, 1867, p. 85. (2) "With calm repose, Oh let me lie." By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 31. (3) "Thee as my Father I'll not espouse." By R. Massie, 1865, p. 38. Thence in Bp. Ryle's Coll., 1860, and in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870. (4) "On Thy breast, so full of love and mercy." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 33. (5) "My Father, Spirit of Perfect Love." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 62.

xxxviii. Stösse an das Lied vom Sterben. For the Dying. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 126, in 5 st. of 8 l. Sung at his own funeral on Sunday, Oct. 1, 1843. In the Leipzig G. B., 1844, and others. Tr. as "The song of death and dying." By R. Massie, 1846, p. 104. (2) "Sing now the Song of Dying." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 65.

xxxix. Vom Ölberg' wagt es nieder. Christ weeping over Jerusalem. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 107, in 7 st. of 4 l. In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850 and 1865. The trs. are: (1) "Black! for loud notes of joy." By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 97. (2) "Where yonder mount, with olive clad." By R. Massie, 1846, p. 65. (3) "From Olivet the surging crowd." By Dr. R. Magoche, 1873, p. 27.

xl. Was macht ihr dass ihr weinet. Communion of Saints. Founded on Acts xxi. 13. 1st pub. in the 2nd ed., Leipzig, 1836, and not in the Pirna ed. 1833 (ed. 1836, p. 146), in 3 st. of 8 l. In Schaff's Deutsches G. B. 1880, as a Funeral Hymn. The trs. are: (1) "What mean ye by this wailing." By Mrs. Findlater, in H. L. L. 1855, p. 16 (1884, p. 42). (2) "What mean these tears to weep." By Miss Borthwick in Sursum Corda and Sketches, 1867, p. 78. (3) "What mean ye these three tears to weep." By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 12. (4) "How mean ye thus by weeping." By R. Massie, 1860, p. 136. (5) "Why is it that ye're weeping." By Miss Maningtree in Lyra Anglicana, 1864, and thence in Miss Winkworth's Lyra Eccl. 1863, 2nd ser., p. 1. (7) "What mean ye, that ye weep." In the Friendly Treasury, 1875, p. 307.

xli. Weint nicht über Jesu Schmerzen. Repentance. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 93, in 4 st. of 8 l. The trs. are: (1) "For Jesu's agony and death." By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 108. (2) "Wherefore weep we over Jesus." By R. Massie, 1860, p. 73, thence in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870. (3) "Weep not over Jesus' sorrow." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 54.

xlii. Wie soll ich dich empfangen. Christ welcomed as Redeemer. Spiritual Life. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 142, in 9 st. of 6 l. In Knapp's Ev. L. S. ed. 1850. The trs. are: (1) "How shall I be with us, when we, forlorn?" By the Hon. S. R. Maxwell, in his Sacred Poems, 1867, p. 148. (2) "How shall I be with us, when we, forlorn?" By Miss Borthwick in H. L. L., 1856, p. 77. (3) "What shall we be, and whither shall we go?" By R. Massie, 1846, p. 144, and thence in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1870, and in Bp. Ryle's Coll. 1860. (4) "How will it be! when past the conflict heavy." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 157. (5) "How will it be! when, when the conflict over." By Dr. R. Magoche, 1873, p. 160.

xliii. Winter ist es. In den weiten Reichs. Winter. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 69, in 4 st. of 6 l. In Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850, and others. Tr. as "Winter is coming, and none may dare intrude." By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 113. (2) "It is winter. All seems dead or dying." By R. Massie, 1860, p. 18. (3) "Winter it is! o'er the mighty kingdom." By Miss Maningtree, 1865, p. 174. (4) "Winter it is! o'er the mighty kingdom." By Miss Burlingham in the British Herald, Feb. 1865. (5) "Winter is here. In Nature's wide domain." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 50. (6) "It is winter; and the wide domain." By Dr. R. Magoche, 1873, p. 137.

xliv. Wie schön leuchtet der Morgenstern. The Love of God. Founded on Rom. viii. 35. 1st pub. in the 2nd ed. Leipzig, 1834, and not in the Pirna ed. 1833 (ed. 1836, p. 110) in 7 st. of 8 l. This was, according to Koch vii. 243, one of the hymns which Spitta wrote during the cholera time of 1831. It was suggested by Ephesians iii. 18, and which on July 7, 1831, he sent in his brother Heinrich Spitta, professor of medicine at Rostock, but Ludwig Spitta dates it "Autumn, 1833." In the Leipzig G. B. 1844, &c. It is tr. as "How bright appears the Morning Star." By R. Massie, 1846, p. 87.

xlv. Wo ist dein leidendes Zeichen. Holy Communion. Christ. 1st pub. at Leipzig, 1843, p. 95, in 6 st. of 10 l. In Knapp's Ev. L. S. 1850 and 1865. The trs. are:—(1) "O where doth mercy dwell." By Miss Fry 1858, p. 96. (2) "Where is mercy and compassion." By R. Massie, 1865, p. 35. (3) "Where is Schaff's Christ in song, 1870. (2) "Where is Thine own compassion, that." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 67.

xlvi. Wort des Lebens, laute Quelle. Holy Scripture. 1st pub. at Pirna, 1833, p. 148, in 4 st. of 8 l. In Koenig's Bund. d. Ehre, 1840 and 1845, &c. The trs. are: (1) "Word of Life! unsullied fountain." By the Hon. S. R. Maxwell in his Sacred Poems, 1867, p. 80. (2) "Thou word of Life, unsullied spring!" By Miss Fry, 1858, p. 148. (3) "Word of Life, unsullied spring!" By R. Massie, 1865, p. 39. (4) "Word of Life, thou fountain bright." In L. C. Biggs's English Hymnology, 1873, p. 114.

The whole of the remaining hymns in the Psalter und Harfe, 1833 and 1843, have been tr. by R. Massie, in his Lyra Domestica, vol. i. 1860, ii. 1864; and versions of many of them are included in Miss Fry's Echoes of Eternity, 1859; Miss Maningtree's Footprints of the Holy Dead, 1863; and Lady Durand's Imitations from the Germans of Spitta and Tersteegen, 1873. To annotate them in full would exceed the limits of our space.

II. From his Nachgelassene geistliche Lieder. Leipzig, 1851.

Hardly any of these have come into use in Germany; and they have either remained unknown to or have been almost entirely ignored by translators into English. We need only note two, viz.:—

xlvii. Die erste Bekenntniss für die Welt. Christ as the Light of the World, 1845, p. 47, f.; and as No. 4 of the Hymns for Christmas. It is tr. as "The cradle which the world has given." In the Family Treasury, 1865, p. 351, and signed "X. X."

xlviii. Christus, du Abendstrahl. Intercession. Christ as the Light of the World, 1845, p. 48, f. tr. as "Gracious, fair presence evening." By Miss Borthwick, in the Family Treasury, 1864, p. 191, dated September 1864, and included in her Thoughtful Hours, 1867, p. 161. [J. M.]

Splendor paternae gloriae. St. Ambrose. [Morning.] A beautiful morning hymn, to the Holy Trinity, but especially to Christ as the Light of the World, and a prayer for help and guidance throughout the day. It is the companion and equal to the "Aeterne rerum Conditor" (p. 36, i.), and, like it, is almost indisputably by St. Ambrose. It has been ascribed to him by Fulgentius, Bp. of Ruspe, in North Africa (d. 533); by Bede (d. 735), in his De arte metrica; and by Hincmar, in his De non el non trina Deitate, 857. It is one of the twelve hymns which the Benedictine editors of St. Ambrose receive as genuine; and is included by Biraghi as one of the Inni sicuri e Carmi di Sant' Ambrogio, Milan, 1862. It is mentioned in the Rule of Aurelianus, Bp. of Arles (d. 550).

It is found in a ms. circa 700, in the Brit. Mus. (Vesp. A., i. f. 182); in a ms., circa 800, in the Bodleian (Junius 25, f. 223 b); in four mss. of the 11th cent., in the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris (Lat. 2291, f. 1; 2291, f. 34; Harl., 2961, f. 23 b; Add. 24,087, f. 7 b); in a ms. of the 11th cent., at Corpus Christi, Cambridge (201, p. 252); in the St. Gall mss., 387, 413, of the 11th cent.; and in the Lat. Hym. of the Anglo-Saxon Church, 1851, i. p. 3, and ii. p. 3. (See also Daniel, i. p. 3, and iv. p. 3, f. 2, f. 2 b). Most of the mediaeval Breviaries include it, e.g., the Ambrosian of 1539, Monastic of 1852, Roman (Venice, 1478, and the revision of 1632), Sarum, York, Aberdeen, &c. Its use was generally for Matins or Lauds, but in the Benedictine and Cistercian Breviaries (e.g., the Benedictines and Carthusians) used daily. It is printed by Daniel, i., No. 17, and iv., p. 20, from a Bodleian ms. of the 9th cent., a Bodleian ms. of the 10th cent., &c.; by Mone, No. 372, from a Trier ms. of the 10th cent.; by Kehrein, No. 1, from a ms. of the 11th cent. in his Hymnarium Moguntinum, 1845, p. 26, from a ms. of the 14th cent. Also in Wackernagel, i., No. 4; F. A. Marsh's Lat. Hym., 1875, p. 11; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865; and others. The text, with a translation by Dr. Neale, is in the Hymnal Noted, 1854, No. 1. Pitra's Hymnes du Breviaire Romain, vol. i., 1874, p. 139; and in Dr. J. Kayser's Beiträge zur Geschichte und Erklärung der altesten Kirchenhymnen, 1874, p. 16. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. O Jesu, Lord of heavenly grace. By J. Chandler, in his Hym. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 35, in 8 st. of 4 l., and his Hym. of the Church, 1841, No. 2. This tr. is found in a large number of hymn-books in G. Britain and America. In Mercer, 1864, Alford, 1867, Barry, 1862, the People's H., 1867, and others, the text is unaltered, but given sometimes with abbreviations; whilst in the Salisbury, 1857, Kennedy, 1863, the Irish Church Hy., 1873, and others, slight changes are introduced. See also Nos. 9 and 13.

2. From the Father's glory shining. By W. J. Copeland, in his Hym. for the Week, &c., 1848, in 9 st. of 4 l.; and in Horton's Hym., &c., 1851.

3. O Thou the Father's image bast. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 15, in 9 st. of 4 l.; and his Hym. & Poems, 1873, p. 10. This is given in several hymn-books, especially in those of the Roman Catholics.

4. Thou Brightness of the Father's ray. This tr. was contributed to the 1854 ed. of the H. Noted, in 8 st. of 4 l., but by whom we cannot determine. Its use is limited.

5. O Christ with each returning morn. This cento, from J. Chandler's tr., in the American Sabbath Hy. Bk., 1858, No. 46, is composed of st. viii., vii., v., and iv., in the order named, but considerably altered. It is given in other American hymnals.

6. O Jesu, Lord of Light and Grace. This tr. is given in H. A. & M., 1861, No. 3, in 7 st. of 4 l., st. i.–v., being Chandler's tr., as above, slightly altered; st. vi., ii. 1, 2, from Chandler, also altered; and ii. 3, 4, from the H. Noted text; and a new doxology. In the ed. of 1875, the text is thus altered: st. ii. 3, 4—st. iv., ii. 3, 4 —st. vi., from Church Hys., 1871, altered.

7. O Splendour of the Father's Might. By S. A. Dayman, in the Sarum Hys., 1868.

8. O Splendour of the Father's Boon. R. C. Singleton, in his Anglican H. Bk., 1868.

9. O Jesu, Lord of heavenly grace. This cento, in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, is thus composed: st. i.–iii., are from J. Chandler's tr., as above, and st. iv., v., are by Dr. F. J. A. Hort, and were made for Church Hys.

10. Brightness of the Father's glory. This tr., in the Hymnary, 1872, is W. J. Copeland's tr., rewritten by the editors.

11. O sonne, Thou Son of Righteousness. This, in the 1874 Suppl. to the New Cong., is composed of st. ii., iii., iv., and vii., of J. Chandler's tr., as above: but considerably altered.

12. Thou Image of the Father bright. By H. M. Macgill. This appeared in the 1874 draft of the Scottish Presb. Hymnal; and, again, after revision, in the official issue of that Hymnal, 1876, and in his own Songs of the Christian Creed and Life, 1876.

13. O Jesu, Lord of heavenly grace. This cento, in Thring's Coll., 1882, is st. i.–viii., and v., from J. Chandler, as above; and st. iv., altered from Church Hys., as above; and st. vi., by Dr. Hort. In Hys. for ... Sherborne School, 1883, it reads, "O Jesu, full of truth and grace."

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. O Splendour of Paternal Light. Primer, 1706.
2. O Splendour of the Father's glory. Bp. Mant, 1837.
3. Beam of supernal glory bright. T. Doddridge's Hymnorium anglicanum, 1744.
4. Thou Splendour of the Father's light. Sp. J. Williams, 1845.
5. O Splendour of the Father's glory. R. Campbell, 1856, in G. Stigler's Aureus Sanctus, 1884.
6. Thou Brightness of Thy Father's worth. J. D. Chambers, 1857.
7. Of the Father Effulgence bright. Card. Newman, 1865.
8. O Brightness of Thy Father's face. J. D. Chambers, 1857.
9. O Thou, who with the Father's glory crowned. Lord Ancaster, Bristol, 1866, p. 35. A partial rendering only.
10. O Thou, the Splendour of the Father's glory. D. T. Morgan, 1871.
11. Splendour of glory all divine. J. Walker, 1874.
12. Thou the Brightness of the Father's glory. D. T. Morgan, 1871. [J. M.]

Sponsa Christi quae per orbem. [All Saints.] This is one of the finest of the more recent French Sequences. It is found in the Paris Missal of 1859, p. 604.

In the Paris Missal of 1739, p. 684, the name of the author is given in the margin as "Joann. B. de Contes Decanus Paris," i.e. Jean Baptiste de Contes, who became Dean of Paris in 1647: and, after holding this office for 32 years, d. at Paris, July 4, 1679, aged 78. The Sequence is also found in the Narbonne Breviary of 1709; in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, No. 97, as "Sponsa (printer's error) Christi quae per orbem," in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865, and in Daniel, ii. p. 377. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. Spouse of Christ, to whom 'tis given. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 110, in 10 st. of 10 l.; and, again, in his Hys. of the Church, 1841, No. 63. It is found in a few collections, but in an abbreviated form.

2. Spouse of Christ is arms contending. By W. Palmer, in his Short Poems and Hys., the latter mostly Translations, 1845, No. 75, in 13 st. of 4 l. It speedily passed into several collections, usually in an abbreviated form, including the People's H., 1867, and others. See also Nos. 6 and 7 below. It is the most extensively used of the trs. of "Sponsa Christi."

3. Spouse of Christ, who, through the wide world Warring still, &c. By W. J. Blew, in his Church H. & Tune Bk., 1852-55. In two parts: Pt. ii., beginning with st. vi. of the original, "Prodigi vitae, crisere;" tr. as, "Martyrs, of their life-blood thriftless." In Rice's Sel. from Blew, 1870, No. 127 is composed of st. i. and iv. of Pt. i.; and st. iii. of Pt. ii.

4. Spouse of Christ, that through the wide world Militant dost, &c. This, in J. A. Johnston's English Hymnal, 1856 and 1861, is an arrangement of the above tr., with special indebtedness to Mr. Blew.

5. Bride of Christ, to whom 'tis given. This in Kennedy, 1863, No. 1378, is an altered form of J. Chandler's tr. as above.

6. Bride of Christ, through Him contending. This, in the Sarum Hymnal, 1868, is an altered form of W. Palmer's tr. as above.

7. Spouse of Christ, in arms contending. This, in the 1860 Appendix to the H. Noted, No. 194, is thus composed: st. i.–viii., and x., W. Palmer, x., xi.–xiii., a new translation by an unknown hand.

8. Church of Christ, whose glorious warfare. By J. Ellerton; written for and 1st pub. in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, with the omission of st. i., and in full in the Hymns of Love in the Church, St. Ethelburga, Bishopsgate, London, 1873. In the 1889 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M. it is altered to "British Church, whose glorious warfare," and in Mr. Ellerton's Hymns, &c., 1888, this revision is dated "1887."

9. Spouse of Christ in warfare glorious. In the Antiphoner and Grail, 1899; and the Hymner, 1882.

In Kennedy, 1863, "As the Church to-day rejoices," is a cento from W. Palmer's tr., as above, beginning with st. ii. in the original, "Haec dies cunctis dicata." [J. J.]

Spurgeon, Charles Haddon, the world-famous preacher, was b. June 19, 1834, at Kelvedon, in Essex, where his father was Congregational minister. He was educated at Colchester, and at an Agricultural College at Maidstone, after which he was for a few years usher in schools at Newmarket and Cambridge. In 1851 he became minister of a small Baptist church at Waterbeach, near Cambridge, and soon attained great popularity. In 1854 he removed to New Park Street, London, the place where Drs. Gill and Rippon had formerly ministered, and ere long the thronging of people to hear him led, first, to the temporary occupation of Exeter Hall, and of the Surrey Music Hall, and then to the erection of the great Metropolitan Tabernacle, where he still ministers. Mr. Spurgeon is chiefly known as a preacher and as the author of many vols. of sermons, expositions, and other homiletical literature; but he is also a hymn writer, and the compiler of a well-known hymn book. This book was prepared, in 1866, primarily for the use of the congregation at the Tabernacle. Hence its title Our Own Hymnbook, a collection of Pr. & Hys. for public, social, and private worship. It contains 220 versions of the Psalms, and 910 hymns. Of Mr. Spurgeon's contributions noted below, only one, "Sweetly the holy hymn," can be regarded as possessing any particular merit. The others do not rise above respectable mediocrity. His psalm-versions and hymns, all dated 1866, are:—

1. Amidst us our Beloved stands. Holy Communion.
2. Behold, O Lord, my days are made. Ps. xxxix.
3. Blessed is the man that feareth. Ps. cxii.
4. Here, O ye faithful, see. Holy Baptism.
5. I will exalt Thee, Lord of lords. Ps. xxx.
6. Jesus, poorest of the poor. Ps. xli.
7. Let all the people praise Thee. Ps. cx.
8. Lord, make my conversation chaste. Ps. lxxiii.
9. Lord, Thy church without a pastor. Election of a Minister.
10. Make haste, O Lord, my soul to bless. Ps. lxx.
11. Now, Lord, Thy servant let depart. Ps. xci.
12. O God, Thou hast cast off Thy saints. Ps. lx.
13. Our ears have heard, O glorious God. Ps. xliv.
14. Praise the Lord with exultation, My whole heart, &c. Ps. cxi.
15. Risen Lord, Thou hast received. Election of a Minister.
16. Sweetly the holy hymn. Prayer Meetings.
17. The Son of Zion speaks for Ingle. Ps. lxii.
18. The Holy Ghost is here. Prayer.
19. Thou, Lord, hast been favourable. Ps. lxxxii.
20. Thy strength, O Lord, makes glad our King. Ps. xxi.

In addition to these Mr. Spurgeon re-wrote or added to the hymns of others, as "Come ye who bow to sovereign grace", "Great King of Zion, now", "O God, before whose radiant throne"; and "Woe's me that I in Mesech am"; and composed two Graces for before, and two for after Meal. [W. R. S.]

Stabat mater dolorosa. Feast Innocent III. † [Passiontide.] This noble poem (used both as a sequence and as a hymn) has been, not unjustly, styled the most pathetic hymn of the Middle Ages. The vividness with which it pictures the weeping Mother at the Cross, its tenderness, its beauty of rhythm, its melodious double rhymes almost defying reproduction in another language, and its impressiveness when sung either to the fine plain-song melody or in the noble compositions which many of the great masters of music have set to it, go far to justify the place it holds, and has long held, in the Roman Catholic Church. It was not indeed officially sanctioned for general use, or regularly incorporated in the Roman Breviary or Missal, till by decree of Pope Benedict XIII., in 1727; but long before that date it was in popular use, especially after the Flagellants in the 14th cent. had brought it into notice by singing it on their way from town to town. The passages of Holy Scripture on which it is based are St. John xix. 25; St. Luke ii. 35; Zech. xiii. 6; 2 Cor. iv. 10; and Gal. vi. 17.

Concerning the authorship of this poem there has been, and still is, a great amount of uncertainty. It has been ascribed to Pope Gregory the Great (d. 604), to St. Bernard of Clairvaux (d. 1153), to Pope Innocent III. (d. 1216), to St. Bonaventura (d. 1274), to Jacobus de Benedictis (d. 1306), to Pope John XXII. (d. 1334), to Pope Gregory XI. (d. 1378), &c. The verse-form is, however, not earlier than about 1150, while Daniel, ii. p. 140, cites it as in a MS. not later than 1300. The only ascriptions which bear any impress of probability are those to Pope Innocent III. and to Jacobus de Benedictis.

For Pope Innocent III. there is, it must be confessed, little positive evidence. Pope Benedict XIV. (d. 1758), who had made Hymnology a special study, in his De festis Domini nostri Jesu Christi, Padua, 1750, ascribes it to Pope Innocent III. So does F. E. von Kehrein, in his Lat. Sequenzen der Mittelalters, Hamburg, 1854–63. So also does Mone in the notes to his No. 446. Certainly Pope Innocent III. had quite sufficient ability to have written such a masterpiece, and the ascription is strengthened by the fact that to him is attributed the hymn "Veni Sancte Spiritus," in many manuscripts of Latin sacred poetry, viz. the "Veni Sancte Spiritus Et emitte" (q. v.).

For Jacobus de Benedictis (Jacopone) the evidence at first sight seems more probable. In the Bibliotheque Nationale at Paris there is a MS. of the end of the 13th cent., which formerly was catalogued as No. 7315, but now bears the press-mark "Fonds italien, No. 918." From a collation kindly sent by M. Leopold Delisle, the Principal Librarian, it appears that the title of the MS. is "Incipiunt Cantica Fratris Jacobini Tudertini de Ordine Fratrum minorum, Poetae Sanctus poems in Italian this MS. has the following in Latin:—

i. Dues dulcis memoria.	f. 104.
ii. Virgo virginum praeclara mihi.	f. 105.
iii. Vexilla regis prodeunt.	f. 106.
iv. Cur mundus militat.	f. 108 b.
v. Ave regis angelorum.	f. 109.
vi. Stabat mater speciosa.	f. 110 b.
vii. Stabat mater dolorosa.	f. 111.

The whole of these, save No. i, are also included in the Latin MS. mentioned above. The ascription in No. i. is certainly not by Jacopone (see p. 1083, i.). No. ii. is also certainly not by him (see "Verbum caro"). His claim to No. iv. is also exceedingly doubtful (see e.g. the Rechtschapat, July 1868, p. 37). It may be noted that the Latin version of No. iii. is in the Jacopone's hands, pub. at Florence in 1490, not in the ed. of his Cantici, pub. at Rome in 1564. In the complete edition of his poems, that by the Franciscan, Giovanni Tresatti (Venice, 1617), the Stabat mater is not found. The Latin version of No. vi. is also one of all the evidence at his command, has come to the conclusion that it is exceedingly doubtful if Jacopone wrote any Latin hymns; or alternatively that he was merely an adorer or imitator of earlier compositions. The same conclusion applies to No. vii. which also bears the "Stabat mater dolorosa" could also have written the "Stabat mater speciosa." This difficulty being felt, it has been sought to meet it by asserting that the dolorosa is by Jacopone, and that the speciosa is by an earlier writer. Indeed Jacopone does not seem to have been capable of writing such a poem as the "Stabat mater dolorosa." Further, as the speciosa contains vi.–ix. of the dolorosa have been thought to refer to the Stigmatization of St. Francis of Assisi, the inference drawn being that the hymn was by a Franciscan. This, if true, would make it impossible that at least the speciosa could be by Pope Innocent III., who died in 1216, and the date commonly assigned to the conferring of the Stigmas on St. Francis is Sept. 15, 1222. It is however a little difficult to see how any ordinary person could be supposed truly to pray to be allowed to pass through such an ordeal (see the Roman Breviary under Sept. 15). And in the Vulgate there are various passages which might apply, e.g. Ps. xxxvii. 17, "Quoniam ego flagellum in medicinam paratus." Ps. lxxi. His plagasius eum in domo eorum qui diligebant me."), which the mediæval writers referred to the Passion of Our Lord; Gal. vi. 18 ("Ego enim stigmata Domini Jesu in corpore meo circumfero"). The Latin version of Jacopone given by Luke Wadding in his Scriptores ordinis Minorum, Rome, 1650, one must bear in mind that Wadding was an Irish Franciscan, and not unwilling to claim for his Order at least all that was its due. And in fact Wadding's account is much more of the nature of a mediæval pious imaginations than of a sober record of actual fact.

From the other MSS. containing the poem one does not get very much help, for none of those yet described are earlier than the 14th cent. In a MS. circa 1390, or slightly later, and now in the Bodleian (Liturg. Miscr. 375, f. 111) it is headed, "Quicunque rectaverit hanc sequenciam et vi karenas indulgentiarum a papa Bonifacio." The poem is also in a 15th cent. MS. in the Bodleian (Ashmole 1291, f. 140), in a Horae, circa 1440, in the British Museum (Add. 16382, f. 229 b), in three MS. of the 15th cent. at Munich (Nos. 19, 194, 715), in a MS. of the 15th cent. at Einsiedeln (Nos. 91, 184, 705), &c. Mone, No. 446, prints it from a Lichtenthal, a Reichenau, a Mainz, and a Salzburg MS., all of the 14th cent., and from other sources. Mone thinks that the Reichenau MS. is the oldest, and that the text of Jacopone may have made alterations and additions. He says that the text of the Roman Missal, with st. vi.–viii. omitted, would represent a form edited to the Seven Dolours of the B. V. M., and that this form is found in the Sarum Missal, with st. vi.–viii. restored, but thinks, he represented by six stanzas of the text of the Roman Missal, with slight alterations, and arranged in the order 1, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. This proposed text is actually printed by Wackernagel, i. No. 214, under the name of Jacopone, and by Daniel, ii. p. 140, under the name of "a sixteen form text under the name of Jacopone"; but it is purely conjectural, and is not found in any MS. yet described. Daniel, ii. pp. 139, 395, iii. p. 201, v. p. 56, prints the text from a MS. at Munich of circa 1350, and from another source, circa 1400. Wackernagel also gives by Gerhard Groote (d. 1340) in his Exercitia Quotidiana, where Stella speaks of it as being sung by the Flagellants in 1294 [in the chronicle compiled for the magistrates of Lübeck (Introm-ede Chronik) it is also mentioned under the same year]; and that given by Jacopone and also the text given by Bernardinus de Busto (d. 1500) in his Rosarium Sermonum. It may be noted in passing that though Bernardinus was a Franciscan, he evidently had no idea that the "Stabat mater dolorosa" was by a Franciscan. See also Mone, No. 446; Daniel, ii. 220; de Schrader, No. 140; in Kleinpaul, i. p. 181; in F. A. Marsh's Lat. Hymn., 1875, p. 217; in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865, &c.

Although, as stated above, this Sequence was brought into notice by the Flagellants, and was well known at least as early as 1350, yet it only very gradually came into use in the services of the Church. It seems to have been added to the Breslau diocesan Missal shortly after 1474, and is found in the printed Breslau Missal of 1483. It is also in the aeris Missale of 1483, and various other Missale of the 15th cent., but was not included in any of the English Missale. (The York Missal has a sequence somewhat resembling it, beginning "Stabat juxta Crucis crucem," and this is found in the MS. York Missal, circa 1390, now in the Bodleian, as well as in the printed edn.; the text being also in Wackernagel, i., No. 203, and in Kayser as below.) It was not received into the Roman Missal or Breviary till after 1727, and is there appointed for use in the office of the Seven Dolours of the B. V. M., held on the Friday after Passion Sunday (the office of the Seven Dolours appointed in the Breviary for the 3rd S. in September uses other hymns). In the Roman Breviary it is divided into three parts, viz. st. i.–v. at Vespers; vi., vii. ("Sancta mater, istud agas") at Matins; and viii.–x. ("Virgo virginum praeclara") at Lauds.

There is quite a literature on the subject of the "Stabat mater dolorosa." The best and most complete summary of it is that by Dr. J. Kayser, in his Beiträge zur Geschichte und Erklärung der altesten Kirchenhymnen, vol. iii., Paderborn, 1886, pp. 110–192, where the different forms of the text are printed in full, with an elaborate commentary and a full apparatus of various readings. See also Dr. F. Setaall, in Home at Home, for May 1867.

The "Stabat mater dolorosa" is also worthy of note by reason of the frequency with which it has been set to music by the great composers, such as Palestrina, Pergolesi, Haydn, Rossini, and, more recently, Dvorak. The particulars regarding their printed settings are given at length by C. H. Bitter, in his Studien zum Stabat mater, Leipzig, 1883. See also the Caecilien Kalender (Regensburg, Pustet), 1883, p. 59; 1886, p. 79; 1888, p. 97.

It is also noteworthy on account of the very numerous translations in which it has passed into various European languages. Dr. F. G. Lisco, in his Stabat Mater, Berlin, 1843, prints 78 versions in German, to which list a good many more might now be added. The list of English trs., as will be seen below, is also large. The fact that so much of the hymn is directly addressed to the B. V. M. has limited its use in hymn-books outside those of the Roman Catholic Church. Perhaps the most skilful attempt to bring the hymn into greater harmony with 1 Tim. ii. 5, is by J. S. B. Monsell, in his Parish Hym., 1873 (see below).

(J. M.)

The trs. of this poem into English are (1) of the full text, as in the Roman Missal and Breviary; and (2) of the stanzas as appointed for Vespers, and are:—

i. Roman Missal and Breviary text.

This text is thus divided:—

Vespers. Stabat Mater dolorosa.
Matins. Sancta Mater istud agas.
Lauds. Virgo virginum praeclara.

and is tr. sometimes with these divisions, and again as one hymn, viz.:—

1. At the Cross her station keeping. Vespers.
Holy Mother, pierce me through. Matins.
Virgin of all virgins best. Lauds.

By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 158; and in his Hym. and Poems, 1873, p. 76. Some three or four lines are from Dr. Mant's tr. as below. In these divisions, or as one hymn, this tr. is extensively used in Roman Catholic hymn-books for Missions and Schools.

2. In! her heart with anguish reading. Vespers.
This, O Holy Jesu, grant me. Matins.
King of saints, all saints out-shining. Lauds.

By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hymn & Tune Bk., 1852–55. The tr. of the Vespers text is also in Rice's Sel. from Blew, 1870, No. 39, altered to—"Stood the woe-worn Mother weeping."

3. At the Cross her station keeping. This, in the Roman Catholic Hym. for the Year, N.D. [1867], is composed of two parts: Pt. i. being E. Caswall's tr. of the Vespers text, as above; and Pt. ii., "Fount of Love and holy sorrow," a tr., probably by Dr. Rawes (the editor), of the rest of the hymn. This combined tr. is also in the Catholic Hym., N.D. [1860].

4. Plunged in grief the Mother stood. In The Crown of Jesus H. Bk., N.D. [1862]; a tr. of the full text as one hymn.

5. Sorrowful the Mother stood. In Saint Winifred's H. Bk., N.D. [1860]; a tr. of the full text as one hymn.

6. Close beneath the Cross that bore Him. By Francis Trappes, in his Liturgical Hym. for the Chief Festivals of the Year, &c., N.D. [1865]. In full, as one hymn.

7. Stood the mournful Mother weeping. By J. S. B. Monsell, in his Parish Hymnal, 1873; and his Watches by the Cross, 1876. In full, as one hymn.

Other trs. are:—

1. The Mother stood in wistful wise. Primer, 1599.
2. The Mother stood with griefe confounded. Primer, 1619.
3. The dolorous chant Mother stood. Primer, 1685.
4. Under the World-Redeeming Rood. Primer, 1687 and 1700.
5. Close by the ever-hallow'd cross that bore. D. French, 1839.
6. The Mother stands deploring. A. D. Wackerbarth, 1842.
7. Boiled in tears, and deeply grieving. W. Palmer, 1845.
8. Tearful stood the Mother lowly. J. R. Beste, 1849.
9. As the Mother stoodeth fearful. J. D. Chambers, 1852.
10. By the Cross and vigil keeping. Lord Lindsay in Sacra Quat. Hys. of the Church, 1865.
11. Stood 'th' afflicted Mother weeping. A. Coles, 1867.
12. By His Cross the Mother stood, Hanging on the fatal rood. D. T. Morgan, 1871.
13. How sorrowful the Mother stood. J. Wallner, 1874.
14. By the Cross on which suspended. D. F. Mac-carthy, in G. Shipley's Sacred Species, 1844.
15. Weeping sore the Mother stood. J. D. Aylward, in Shipley, as above.
16. By the Cross of expiation. A. de Vere, in Shipley, as above.

ii. The Vespers text. Stabat Mater.

1. By the Cross sad vigil keeping. Stood the Mother, doleful, weeping. By Bp. R. Mant, in the British Magazine, Oct. 1833, p. 397, in 3 st. of 6 l., and signed "A." It was repeated in Bp. Mant's Ancient Hys., 1837, p. 54, and 1871, p. 95. The original tr., was given in the People's H., 1867; and, again, with slight alterations, in the Hymnary, 1872, and other collections.

2. By the Cross, sad vigil keeping. Stood the mourning (mournful) Mother weeping. This canto appeared in Murray's Hymnal, 1852, No. 50, in 5 st. of 6 l. Of these 20 lines, 15 are from Mant, 1 from Caswall, and 14 altered from Mant, by the Editors.

3. By the Cross her station keeping. This, in the Sarum Hymnal, 1868; the Parish H. Bk., 1863 and 1875; and Thring's Coll., 1882, is Murray's text; in each case with slightly differing alterations.

4. At the Cross her station keeping. This canto, as given in H. A. & M., 1861 and 1875, is composed of 2 lines directly from Caswall, 21 lines directly or indirectly from Mant, through Murray, as above, and 7 lines by the compilers. Its proper designation, therefore, is "A conte, based upon Bp. Mant and E. Caswall, from Murray's Hymnal, 1852, somewhat altered." As Caswall's tr. begins with the same opening lines as this conte, it should be noted, to distinguish the two, that st. 5 begins in each thus:

Caswall:—"O thou Mother! fount of love!
Touch my spirit from above."
H. A. & M.:—"Come, real fount of love divine, Touch my heart and make it thine."

The H. A. & M. conte is found in a few collections; but outside of that work it is not so extensively used as the Murray conte, as above.

5. By the Cross, in anguish sighing. This tr., appeared in the Rugby School Pr. & Hys., 1850 (probably before), No. 62, in 4 sts. of 6 l. (ed. 1876, No. 105). It was possibly made by J. H. Buckoll, then Assistant Master in the School, and co-editor of the collection.

6. Near the Cross was Mary, weeping. By J. W. Alexander, in his work, The Breaking Crucible, and Other Translations, 1861; and in Londes Donné, N. Y., 1884.

7. By the Cross her sad watch keeping. This conte, in Skinner's Daily Service Hyl., 1864, is composed of st. i.–v., from Bp. Mant, and st. vi.–viii., by the Editor.

8. By the Cross and vigil keeping. This tr., in the Anglican H. Bk., 2nd ed., 1871, is by R. C. Singleton, the Editor, based upon Bp. Mant; and can be distinguished by st. v., which begins "Fountain of divine affection."

Other trs. are:—

1. Forth pouring many a bitter tear. By "O." in the British Magazine, July 1833.

2. By the Cross her watch weeping. By G. Rorison, in his Hys. & Anthems, 1851.

In addition to these metrical renderings of the Roman Missal and Breviary text, Mrs. Charles has, in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, 1858, p. 208, a prose tr. beginning: "The mournful mother stood tearful beside the Cross." There are also two or three metrical renderings by American writers which we have been unable to verify. [J. J.]

Stabat mater speciosa. Jacobus de Benedictis. † [Christmas.] As mentioned in the note above, this sequence is found in a 12th cent. MS. in the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris (formerly No. 7783, now Fonds Italien, 559 f. 169 b), and in 13 stanzas. From this MS. it was printed by O. F. Ozanam, in his Poëtes Franciscains en Italie au treizième Siècle, 1852 (Œuvres Complètes, Paris, 1855–1865, vol. v. p. 170), and his text is repeated in Kleinpaul, ii. v. 242; F. A. March's Lat. Hys., 1874, p. 178; and in Dr. C. Kayser's Beiträge zur Geschichte und Erklärung der Altesten Kirchenhymnen, vol. ii., Paderborn, 1866, p. 185. Ozanam thought it had never been printed, but it had appeared in Jacopone's Laude, Brescia, 1495. It has not been found in any other sources earlier than 1500, and for this cause, and for reasons mentioned in the preceding note, the present writer is inclined to think that it may possibly be by Jacopone. It has a certain beauty if looked at by itself. But on comparison with the "Stabat mater dolorosa" it is seen to be a servile and rather tame imitation of that poem, giving, on parallel lines, a picture of the B. V. M., as she may be supposed to have stood joyfully watching beside our Lord's cradle at Bethlehem. It never came into liturgical use. The trs. into English include:—

1. Pull of beauty stood the Mother. By J. M. Neale (with the Latin text), in his Stabat mater speciosa, Stabat mater dolorosa, &c., 1867, p. 1; and in the 2nd ed. of the same, 1867, p. 1; and [Sacr. Hymnal.], 1876, in three parts, Pt. i. beginning "Mother, fount of love still flowing," and Pt. iii., "Virgin, portion of condition."

2. Stands that Mother more than beauteous. An anonymous tr. in the Roman Catholic Parochial & Sch., n.d. [1885]. [J. M.]

Staffordshire Hymnbooks. In the early part of this century several collections were published in Staffordshire for local use. It will prevent confusion to treat these as a group. The first is:—

A Selection of Psalms and Hymns for Public and Private Use. Uttoxeter, Richards, 1805.

This Sel. contains 27 psalms (to which the Old 100th was added in later editions) and 128 hymns, many of which are from Watts, Cowper, and Newton. It was edited by the Rev. Jonathan Stubbs, M.A., sometime Fellow of New College, Oxford, and Curate-in-charge of Uttoxeter from 1804 until his death in 1810. He was assisted in compiling the Coll. by the Rev. T. Cotterill (q. v.), the Rev. Thomas Gisborne, and the Rev. Edward Cooper. Of Gisborne and Cooper we append the following biographical details:—

Gisborne, Thomas, M.A., s. of Mr. John Gisborne, of Yoxall, was b. circa 1760, and educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, where he was 6th Wrangler of his year, and M.A. in 1786. He was ordained in 1781, and was R. of Barlaston, Staffordshire, from 1789 to 1826. Subsequently he became a Prebendary of Durham. He was the author of Sermons; the Duties of Men; the Duties of Women; Poems Sacred and Moral, 1799 (in the later editions of which the Hymns in the Sel. of 1805 first appeared); and another volume of poetry entitled, Walks in a Forest, 1794. The following hymns by him are found in the Uttoxeter Sel.:—

1. A soldier's course from battles won. Soldiers of Christ. No. 78, in 8 sts. of 4 l., and in several hymnbooks.

2. Hark! 'tis the bell with solemn toll. Death. No. 74, in 6 sts. of 4 l.

3. O Father, glorify Thy name. In Sickness. No. 92, in 4 sts. of 4 l.

4. Reckon! when night involves the skies. Christ all and in all. No. 80, in 4 sts. of 4 l.

5. Thy humblest works with full accord. Teachings of Nature. No. 116, in 4 sts. of 4 l.

6. Thy will be done, my soul in silence keep. The hour of Pause. No. 14, in 4 sts. of 4 l.

All the above hymns, except No. 2, are in Gisborne's Poems, 3rd ed., 1835.

Cooper, Edward, B.A., of Queen's College, and sometime Fellow of All Souls' College, Oxford, was Rector of Hamstall-Ridware from 1789 to 1833, and of Yoxall, Staffordshire, from 1833 to 1864. He published two volumes of Sermons, and edited a small Coll. of Hymns (see No. 4 below); b. 1770, d. 1832. He contributed to the Uttoxeter Sel.:—

1. Father of heaven, whose love profound. No. 67. (See p. 1086, i.)

2. This is the day the Lord hath blest. Sunday. No. 90, in 4 sts. of 4 l.

The hymns in the Uttoxeter Sel. which Cotterill is believed to have written or recast are:—

1. Almighty Father, God of grace. For Pardon. No. 34, in 4 sts. of 4 l. See p. 32, ii.

2. How'd with the presence of their God. See p. 547, ii.

3. Jesus, exalted for on high. No. 71. See p. 556, ii.

4. Not unto us, but to Thy name. See p. 811, ii.

5. When the archangel's trump shall sound.

2. Next in order of time we have the following collection:—

Portions of the Psalms, chiefly selected from the Versions of Merrick & Watts, with occasional Hymns, adapted to the Church Service for every Sunday in the Year. Uttoxeter, Richards, 1808.

This Coll. contains 174 Portions of Psalms (to which may be added 8 second and third parts not separately indexed), 12 Doxologies, and 30 Hymns (with 9 second or third parts). It repeats E. Cooper's hymn "Father of heaven;" but with the exception of this and a few psalm versions found in all collections, it is wholly different, both as regards contents and plan, from the Uttoxeter Coll. of 1805, with which Mr. Elleston in his Notes to the 5th ed. of Church Hymns has confounded it, also erroneously assigning the editorship of the latter to E. Cooper, whose own Coll. was not published until 1811 (see iv.). A reference in the Coll. of 1808 to Ashbourne (a parish in Derbyshire on the borders of Staffordshire), and the statement that the music to which two of the hymns were sung was adapted or composed by Edward Simms, then organist of Ashbourne church, indicate that in all probability the Coll. was intended for use in that parish, and it is not unlikely that it was compiled by the Rev. Samuel Shipley, who became Vicar in 1806.

3. The third Sel. in this section is:—

A Selection of Psalms and Hymns for Public and Private Use. Newcastle, Staffordshire, 1810.

This Sel. was compiled by the Rev. T. Cotterill, and went through 8 editions. [See Cotterill, T., p. 283, ii.]

4. The fourth Sel. is:—

A Selection of Psalms and Hymns. Lichfield, Lomax, 1811.

This Sel. was made by the Rev. Edward Cooper for use in his churches of Hamstall-Ridware and Yoxall. A 2nd edition appeared in 1823. It is a small book, containing only Ken's Morning Hymn, 26 Psalms, and 19 Hymns. Of the latter, "Father of heaven, whose love profound" and "This is the day the Lord hath blest" are respectively Nos. 3 and 4.

5. The fifth Sel. is:—

A Selection of Psalms and Hymns for public worship. Uttoxeter, Morris & Son, 1845.

6. The Uttoxeter Sel. of 1805 remained in use for many years, and passed through several editions (4th ed. 1814) unaltered, until 1843, when a revised ed. was pub. This contains 49 Psalms, I Gloria Patri, 94 Hymns, and an Introductory Anthem, 185 pieces in all, of which 106 were taken from the older Sel., About 1854 this revised ed. was in its turn replaced at Uttoxeter by A Church Hymnbook for every Sunday and Holyday. London, Masters. One of the hymns (No. 126) in the Uttoxeter Sel. of 1805, "When heaves with sighs my anxious breast," in 2 sts. of 4 l., is by the Rev. Humphrey Price, Curate and afterwards (1819–25) Incumbent of Christ Church, Needwood, but it does not appear that he had any further part in compiling the Sel. This hymn was included afterwards in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist.

7. As connected with Staffordshire, though not as compilers of Hymnals for local use, two hymn-writers may be named here, the Rev. John Wakefield and Lady Lucy Whitmore.

Wakefield, John, M.A., s. of Mr. Thomas Wakefield, was b. at Uttoxeter, Jan. 17, 1798; educated at St. Edmund Hall, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. 1824, M.A. 1827. Took Holy Orders in 1824, and after holding curacies at St. Alkmond's and All Saints, Derby, became Vicar of Ashbourne, Derbyshire, in 1827. He published A Collection of Psalms and Hymns, chiefly designed for Public Worship. Belper, J. Mozen, 1826, containing 116 Psalms and 110 Hymns; and in 1841 printed privately a small vol. of 24 original hymns entitled Hymns for Private Devotion, during the Season of Affliction of a Burial Prater. W. Lowdes, printer, Much Wenlock; and in 1888, an Appendix thereto of 8 hymns.

Whitmore, Lady Lucy Elizabeth Georgiana, was the 2nd dau. of Thomas, 1st Earl Dartmouth, K.G., by Frances Finch, b. Jan. 25, 1795, married in 1818 to Mr. William Wolryche Whitmore, of Dudmaston, Shropshire, and d. Mar. 7, 1846. She published, "Family Prayers for every Day in the Week." &c., 1838, containing 14 original hymns, and 1839, Hymns, 12 of these hymns, "Father, again in Jesus' name we meet" (p. 365, ii.) has passed into many collections.

To information furnished by the Rev. J. Wakefield we are indebted for much of the material employed in this article. [G. A. C.]

Stallybrass, James Steven, fourth s. of the Rev. Edward Stallybrass, of the London Missionary Society, was b. Oct. 3, 1820, at Schoolcraik, in the province of Irkutsk, Siberia, where his father was then stationed. He resided for many years in Stoke Newington, London, and d. there Dec. 2, 1888. He was a well known educationist, and tr. from the German a number of scientific and other works. He contributed a large number of trs. from German hymns and poems to the various publications of Mr. Curwen, e. g. to the Songs and Tunes for Education, 1861 (the Tonic Sol fa Reporter, &c. In 1859 he contributed trs. of 4 German hymns to Mr. Curwen's Sabbath H. Bk. (Nos. 234, 417, 418, 420). To Mr. Curwen's Child's Own H. Bk., 1862, he also contributed:—

1. Who through Heaven is guiding. Ascension. Written for the 1st ed. of his Hymnal Comp. 1870, No. 70, in 3 sts. of 4 l. Repeated in No. 117 in Songs and Tunes, 1881, and marked as a tr., but Mr. Stallybrass in 1901 could not remember from what. It has since been included in the Congregational Hy. of Praise for Children, 1881.

2. Thou Lord of Hosts and Sabbaoth. Heaven anticipated. 1st pub. in 4 sts. of 4 l., as No. 106, in Songs and Tunes, 1861, and marked as a tr., but Mr. Stallybrass in 1901 regarded it as an original composition.

For Mr. Stallybrass's trs. from the German noted in this Dictionary see Index of Authors and Translators. [J. M.]

Stammers, Joseph, was b. at Bury St. Edmunds in 1801, and educated for the legal profession. After practising in London as a solicitor for some time he was called to the Bar in 1833, and joined the Northern Circuit. [Lyra Brit., 1868.] He d. in London, May 18, 1885. His popular hymn—

Round the wave, Christian (Perseverance) was contributed to the Cottage Magazine (a small serial edited by the Rev. Legh Richmond), vol. iii. p. 191, circa 1808. It has passed into several collections, including the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858; the People's Hyl., 1867 (altered), and others.

Mr. Stammers also contributed 4 hymns to Dr. Rogers's Lyra Brit., 1868, but these have not come into C. U.

Stand, soldier of the Cross. By H. Bohnstedt. [Adult Baptism.] Written for the 1st ed. of his Hymnal Comp. 1870, No. 291, in 6 st. of 4 l. It was also given in his Two Brothers, &c., 1871, p. 238. On its adoption by the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1874, st. ii., iii., were slightly altered by the author. [J. J.]

Stand the omnipotent decree. C. Wesley. [Trust and Confidence in God.] This is No. 16 of 17 hymns pub. in 1750, as Hys. for the Year, 1750, Particularly for the Fast-day, Feb. 6, in 4 st. of 8 l. (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. vi. p. 94). This Fast was held as a day of humiliation arising mainly out of a dread of an invasion by the French. Miss Steele's hymn "See gracious God, before Thy throne" (p. 1097, ii.), was also written for the same occasion. C. Wesley's hymn was republished, without alteration, in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 60, and has since passed into a large number of collections in most English-speaking countries. It has received great praise at the hands of many writers. J. Montgomery in the preface to his Christian Psalmist, 1825, p. xxix, says:—

"The hymn on the Day of Judgment, 'Stand the omnipotent decree' begins with a note, abrupt and awakening like the sound of the last trumpet. This is altogether one of the most daring and victorious flights of our author. Such pieces prove that if Charles Wesley had possessed the talent of versification in common for general purposes, it was from choice and predilection to certain views of the Gospel in its effects upon human minds, and not from want of diversity of gifts."

This was written by Montgomery in ignorance of the fact that the hymn was directly associated with Young's Night Thoughts. In his private copy of his Christian Psalmist, 1825 (in our possession) he has written in pencil on the margin opposite the above quotation "a paraphrase from Dr. Young's Night Thoughts." Jackson in his concluding chapter of the Memoirs of C. Wesley quotes this hymn as one of "two examples of the manner in which C. Wesley occasionally availed himself of the writings of other men." He says (small ed., 1848, p. 498):—

"The just and striking sentiments contained in the 'Night Thoughts' of Young, mingled with his sublimity and fancy, were exactly suited to Mr. Charles Wesley's peculiar temper and mental habits. He therefore entwined this book next to the holy Scriptures. Yet could he when occasion served surpass Young himself in the sublimity of his ideas, as the reader may see in the following example demonstrative. The author of the Night Thoughts (Night vi. The Infidel Reclaimed, pt. i.) exclaims:—

> "O man immortal! Hear the lofty style.
> If earth be man's, or what earth claims or yields,
> If earth disturb, or discord with her orb discord,
> And grind us into dust: The soul is safe;
> The man emerges; mounts above the wreck,
> As tow'ring flame from Nature's funeral pyre;
> Mounts, and keeps mounting, on the wings of praise;
> His charter, his inviolable right,
> Well plum'd to burn from Thunders impotence,
> Death's putrcitive darts, and Hell's defeated storms.'

"Mr. Charles Wesley, taking up the theme, thus sings in still loftier strains, and with a greater power of expression:—

> "Stand th' Omnipotent decree!
> Jehovah's Will be done!
> Nature's end we wait to see,
> And hear her final groan:
> Let earth dissolve, and blend
> With her first chaos, and be lost,
> Let those pond'rous orbs descend,
> And grind us into dust!
> Soon severs the righteous man!
> At his Redeemer's beck
> Soul, strength, and clay again,
> And earth, and heaven shall wreck.
> Lo! the heavenly spirit wrests,
> Like flames o'er nature's funeral pyre,
> Triumples in immortal powers,
> And claps his wings of fire!' "

Jackson quotes the remaining two verses of Wesley's hymn (see Wes. H. Bk., No. 61), but omits to point out that there is nothing corresponding thereto in the Night Thoughts, and that they are strictly Wesley's original composition. Young began his Night Thoughts after the death of his wife and daughter in 1741, and the Preface to pt. ii. of "The Infidel Reclaimed," which begins a few lines after those quoted above, is dated "July 7, 1744." This would give the date of his lines as quoted, circa 1744, C. Wesley's date is 1756. We may add that line 4 in st. iv:—

> "Yield we now our bodies up > To earthquake, plague, and sword," refers to the earthquake to the great earthquake which demolished the city of Lisbon on Nov. 1, 1755; the plague to the terrible mortality among the cattle which had been prevailing in various parts of England; and the sword to the invasion which was feared from France. These things made the strongest men in the land tremble.

[J. J.]

Stand up and bless the Lord. J. Montgomery. [Praise and Thanksgiving.] Written for the Sheffield Red Hill Wesleyan Sunday School Anniversary, held on Mar. 15, 1824; and also used at the Whitsuntide gathering of the Sheffield Wesleyan Sunday School Union, on the Whit-Monday of that year. The opening lines of the original read:—

> "Stand up and bless the Lord,
> Ye children of His choice."

When Montgomery included it in his Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 558, in 6 st. of 4 l., he altered this opening to:—

> "Stand up and bless the Lord, > Ye people of His choice:"

and this was repeated in his Original Hys., 1853, No. 96. In J. H. Thom's Hymns, &c., 1858, it begins, "Arise, and bless the Lord:" and in the American Songs for the Sanctuary, N. Y., 1865, "O Thou above all praise" (st. ii. altered). It is in extensive use in all English-speaking countries, and usually the 1825 text is followed.

[J. J.]

Stanley, Arthur Penrhyn, D.D., was b. at Alderley, in Cheshire, Dec. 13, 1815. His father, Edward Stanley, was the s. of Sir Edward Stanley of Alderley, and younger brother of the first Lord Stanley of Alderley, and was rector of the parish until 1837, when he became Bishop of Norwich. His mother, Catherine Stanley, was daughter of the Rev. Oswald Leycester, Rector of Stoke-upon-Tern, Shropshire. Arthur Stanley received his early education under the superintendence of his father; but in 1829 he was sent to Rugby to be under the direct charge of Dr. Arnold, who had been appointed to the head-mastership the year before, and of whom Mr. Stanley had been an early friend and admirer. Arthur Stanley bore the stamp of Rugby and of its great headmaster to the end of his life. In 1834 he went up to Oxford, having won a Balliol scholarship, the "blue ribbon of undergraduate life," and commenced a career of unusual brilliancy at the University. He gained the Newdigate prize for English Verse (the subject being The Gypsies); the Ireland scholarship (the highest test of Greek scholarship), and a First Class in Classical Honours, all in 1837. He won the Prize for the Latin

Essay in 1839, the Prize for the English Essay, and the Ellerton Prize for the Theological Essay in 1840, and won in the same year elected to a Fellowship at University College. He was then appointed College Tutor, and held that office for twelve years. In 1845–6 he was Select Preacher for the University. From 1850 to 1852 he was Secretary to the Oxford University Commissioners. In 1851 he was appointed Canon of Canterbury, and held that post until 1858, when he was elected Regius Professor of Ecclesiastical History at Oxford, to which a Canonry at Christ Church was attached. He was also chosen in 1858 Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of London, his fellow Englishman, Dr. Tait. These offices he held until 1863, when, on the elevation of Dean Trench to the Archbishopric of Dublin, he was appointed to the Deanery of Westminster. In the same year he married Lady Augusta Bruce, a sister of the Earl of Elgin, and a personal friend and attendant of Queen Victoria. This marriage brought him into still closer relation with the Court, at which he had before been so highly valued, that he had been twice chosen to accompany the Prince of Wales in his travels in the East. He was singularly happy in his married life, and felt the death of Lady Augusta, which occurred in 1876, as an irreparable loss. In 1872, he took part in the Old Catholic Congress at Cologne; and at the close of the same year he was again appointed Select Preacher, not, however, without considerable opposition being made to the appointment on account of the Dean's theological views; the vote, however, was carried by 349 against 287. In 1873 he was installed Lord Rector of the University of St. Andrews, having received the degree of LL.D. from that University four years previously. He died at the Deanery, Westminster, on July 18, 1881, after a short illness.

Dr. Stanley was a voluminous and very popular writer, his pure and picturesque style being singularly fascinating. The first work by which he became known to the literary world was the Life and Correspondence of Dr. Arnold, pub. in 1844, which is a most charming model of biography. Though the writer is distinctly a hero-worshipper, he never allows his worship to violate the rules of good taste, with he brings out all the points in his hero's character most vividly, and considers it most to his discretion to print only as much of his letters as will illustrate the man himself, as he subjects. Memorials of Addresses, Sermons, Visitations, and Cathedral Sunday, which is very interesting both for its intrinsic merits, and also as a pious tribute of filial affection. In 1854 appeared the Epistles to the Corinthians. In 1856 appeared the Epistles to the Corinthians, the value of which will be variously estimated according to the theological standpoint of the reader. But his next two works will command the admiration of all readers, whatever their views may be. These are Memorials of Canterbury, pub. in 1854, and Sinai and Palestine in connexion with their History, pub. in 1856. Dr. Stanley was again on his own proper ground when his almost unique powers of description had full scope in his Lectures on the History of the Eastern Church, pub. in 1861; this also was very popular, reaching a 5th ed. in 1869. Then followed a series of Lectures on the History of the Jewish Church, in 3 volumes (1863–76). His next publication again dealt with the East, viz. Lectures on the History of Westminster Abbey, pub. in 1867, may be regarded as a companion volume to the Historical Memorials of Canterbury, and is, at least, worthy of its predecessor. It is a fortunate circumstance that two of the most interesting places in England should have had for their historian one who, both from his position and his talents, was so well qualified to become the historian of his subject. Of the rest of Dr. Stanley's prose works it does not seem necessary to do more than specify the titles. They include Lectures on the History of the Church of Scotland, 1868; Essays on Questions connected with the Church, 1870; Addresses and Sermons, 1871; a great number of single Addresses, &c., on various subjects, and Christian Institutions, Essays on Ecclesiastical Subjects, pub. not long before his death.

Dr. Stanley attained great eminence as a preacher, and his sermons, delivered in his manner are most solemn and impressive, and his style chaste and accurately suited for a sermon. It is fair to add that sermons would also, of course, be the species of composition in which what many considered the most unsatisfactory features of Dr. Stanley's intellectual character, his vagueness of doctrine and extreme breadth of statement, were most conspicuous. The chief are: Sermons and Essays on the Apostolical Age (1846); Sermons preached in Canterbury Cathedral (1857), Sermons on the Church, Evangelical and Apostolical Preaching (1866), Sermons Preached in Westminster Abbey (1869), and Addresses and Sermons at St. Andrews, 1877.

The point of view from which this sketch naturally regards Dean Stanley as a writer is that from which he appears at the least advantage. Thirteen of his hymns which had been published singly have been incorporated in the Westminster Abbey Hymn Book, but none of them have attained any extensive popularity; and, to tell the truth, they do not deserve it. That exquisite taste and felicity of diction which distinguish more or less all his prose writings seem to desert him when he is writing verse. This is all the more strange because one would have said that he regarded outward nature, as well as the works and history of man, with a poet's eye. Like another great writer, Jeremy Taylor, his prose is poetical, but his poetry is prosaic. The divine afflatus is wanting. Of course he always writes as a scholar; hence his translations are more successful than his original hymns; but in neither department has he produced anything that can at all be termed classical; and it is from his general eminence rather than from his contributions to hymnology that he requires even the small space which has been devoted to him in this article.

[J. H. O.]

In addition to Dean Stanley's trs. from the Latin, and his popular hymns, "He is gone! beyond the skies," and "Master, it is good to be," which are annotated elsewhere in this Dictionary, the following are also in C. U.:—

1. Let us with a gladsome mind. National Hymn, the Accession. This hymn is called "Hymn for the Accession (June 20). An Accommodation of Milton's Version of Psalm cxxxvi." It appeared in Fraser's Magazine, June 1872, in 11 st. of 8 l. Lines 3, 4, of st. i.:—

> "Long our island throne has stood, > Planted on the ocean flood," will distinguish it from Milton's hymn.

2. O frail spirit, vital spark. Hymns. Given in "Hymns for Public Worship," 1867, and headed "Our Future Hope." An Easter Hymn. It has been thought that there may be a place for some expressions such as the following hymn or hymns endeavour to embody, of the prospect of another world, more hopeful than the touching expressions of Pope's graceful version of it in his well-known lines, "Vital spark of heavenly flame." The hymn following this introduction is in two parts:—Part I. "O frail spirit, vital spark," in 6 st. of 5 l.; and Part II. "Immortal spirit, vital spark," in 6 st. of 5 l. 1–4, of Pt. II., st. i., 1–4, are from Robert Seagrave's hymn, noted on p. 906, ii.

3. Spirit unseen, our spirits' home. Whitsuntide.

This hymn was pub. in Macmillan's Magazine, May, 1871, p. 61, in 7 st. of 4 l., with the following introduction:—"Mannin's Hymn for Whitsuntide. Of all the Sacred Hymns of Manzoni this is the one which breathes the most comprehensive spirit. The first part runs on the more mystical emblems of the Church. But the second part, which is the noblest, leads the reader deeply into the very heart of the doctrines of the spiritual nature of Christianity, and contains a meaning beyond the original force of the words, which was intended to be confined to the limits of the Roman Church. It is to this second part that the highest praise must have been attempted." Manzoni's poem on Pentecost was pub. circa 1820. (See Italian Hymnody, § 11.)

4. The Lord is come! On Hymns ancient. Advent. This hymn appeared in Macmillan's Magazine, Dec. 1873, in 7 st. of 4 l., with the following introduction:—"Hymns for Advent. From an unpublished hymn of Gerhardt's." The same version, with slight alterations, appeared in this Magazine, April 1874, (Sec. Lute 1883, see p. 859, ii.), on the Ascension, and the Transfiguration (April 1876, see p. 718, i.). The first four stanzas run parallel to the Gospels of the four Sundays in Advent, and the two last on the Gospels and Epistles for Christmas.

5. When the Paschal evening fell. Holy Communion. This appeared in Macmillan's Magazine, Nov. 1874, in 8 st. of 4 l., 1 st. of 12 l., and 1 st. of 8 l., with this introduction:—"Hymns for Holy Communion. The first is intended in the following lines to furnish a sacred hymn founded on the one common idea of commemoration which lies at the basis of all views of the Eucharist, whether material or spiritual, and to express this under the metaphors which are most familiar to us from the metaphorical language by which the ordinance is often described."

6. Where is the Christian's Fatherland? The Christian's Fatherland. This poem (it cannot be called a hymn) appeared in Macmillan's Magazine, July 1875, in 4 st. of 8 l., as a "Hymn for St. John the Baptist Day, June 24."

All these hymns were given in full, and without alteration, in the Westminster Abbey H. Bk., 1883. Their use is mainly confined to that collection.

Star of morn and even. F. T. Palgrave. [Morning or Evening.] Written in 1862, and given to Sir R. Palmer (Lord Selborne) in ms., and included by him in his Bk. of Praise, 1862, in 4 st. of 6 l. It is also given in the author's Hymns, 1867, p. 7, where it is entitled "The Day Star"; in the Sonnet Symnary, 1882; Thring's Coll., 1882, and others. It has been set to special music by Tillicard, Lond., Novello, 1868. [J. J.]

Stars of the morning, so gloriously bright. St. Joseph the Hymnographer. [St. Michael & All Angels.] In the Paraclete there are several Canons of the Bodleus Cross, and all are of an ornate character. In Dr. Neale's Hymns of the Eastern Church, 1862, these stanzas appeared with the following title and note:—"Stars of the Morning. A canto from the Canon of the 'Bodleus Cross.' Tuesday in the Week of the Fourth Tone." In omitting the opening line of the Greek, Dr. Neale, doubtless, intended it to be understood, that he had followed the spirit rather than the letter of the original. In fact, there is no attempt to reproduce the sequence of thought as set forth in the Canon, although the ornate character of the original is imitated. Since the adoption of Dr. Neale's translation for congregational use, in H. J. Palmer's Suppl. Hymnal, 1866, the People's, 1867, H. A. & M., 1868, and others, it has become most popular, and is found in a large number of hymn-books. The texts in use, however, vary considerably. Dr. Neale's authorized text is in the 3rd ed. of the H. of the E. Church, 1866. The original Greek Canon is found in modern editions of the Octoechus. [J. J.]

Statuta decreto Dei. C. Coffin. [Advent.] Pub. in his Hymni Sacri, 1736, p. 35, and also in the Paris Breviary the same year, where it is appointed as the Festal hymn at Vespers in Advent. It is in several modern French Brevs., in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, No. 38, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

1. The rolling years at length roll. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 42. Generally given in an abbreviated and altered form.

2. Deep hidden by divine decree. By I. Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Brev., 1839 p. 46. The tr. in the Hymnary, 1872, No. 104, "O Lord, the rolling years fulfil," is by the editors based on I. Williams's tr.

3. And now, by God's own word decreed. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-55, Advent, No. 7. This is a tr. of st. i., v., vi. The Advent hymn, No. 8, in Blew, is a tr. of the remaining stanzas of this hymn, beginning with st. ii., "Patris sedenti comites," which is rendered as, "While Adam's race sore wounded lay." This is in Lyra Messianica, 1864.

4. The fulness of time ordained. By J. A. Johnston, in his English Hy., 1856. Based on J. Chandler, as above.

Other trs. are:—

1. The times of old by God decreed. J. D. Chambers. 1857.

2. Sing we now redeeming love. D. T. Morgan. 1880.

3. Predestinate of God most high. By W. E. A. in O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. 1884. [J. J.]

Stay, Thou insulted Spirit, stay. C. Wesley. [Lent.] Pub. in Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1749, vol. i., No. 61, in 7 st. of 4 l. (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. iv., p. 370.) It was included in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 155, with the omission of st. vi., and the change of st. ii., l. 4, from, "For forty long rebellious years" (the forty referred to his own age at the time), to "For sorrow long," &c. The Wes. H. Bk. form of the text is in most of the Methodist collections, and a few others. Other forms of the text are:—(1) "Stay, injured, grieved, Spirit, stay," in Beckerstedt's Christian Psalmody, 1833, and later collections; and (2) "Stay, Thou long-suffering Spirit, stay," in the American Meth. Episco. Hymnal, 1878. [J. J.]

Steane, Edward, D.D., was b. at Oxford, Mar. 23, 1798, studied at the Baptist College, Bristol, and at Edinburgh University. In 1823 he became pastor of a Baptist church at Camberwell, London, where he laboured with success until his death on May 8, 1882. Dr.

Steane was for many years one of the most eminent ministers of the Baptist denomination. He was one of the founders of the Baptist Union; the Bible Translation Society; and the Evangelical Alliance. He edited Evangelical Christendom; and pub. The Doctrine of Christ developed by the Apostles, in 1872. He was one of the Committee which prepared the Baptist New Selection in 1828. The only hymn known to have been composed by him appeared in that book:—"Prophetic cry! blissful day!" (The Triumphs of Christ anticipated). It reappeared in the Selection Enlarged in 1838. [W. R. S.]

Steele, Anne, b. in 1716, was the daughter of Mr. Wm. Steele, a timber merchant, and pastor, without salary, of the Baptist Church at Broughton, in Hampshire. At an early age she showed a taste for literature, and would often entertain her friends by her poetical compositions. But it was not until 1760 that she could be prevailed upon to publish. In that year two vols. appeared under the title of Poems on Subjects chiefly Devotional, by Theodosia. After her death, which occurred in November, 1778, a new edition was published with an additional volume and a Preface by the Rev. Dr. Caleb Evans, of Bristol (Bristol, 1780). In the three vols. are 144 hymns, 24 Psalms in verse, and about 30 short poems. They have been reprinted in one vol. by D. Sedgwick, 1863. Miss Steele's hymns were first made available for congregational use in 1769, 62 of them being then introduced into the Bristol Bap. Coll. of Ash & Evans, the letter T for "Theodosia" being affixed; 47 were also given in Dr. Rippon's Sel., 1787, and 26 in Dr. W. B. Collyer's Coll., 1812. Among Baptist hymn-writers Miss Steele stands at the head, if we regard either the number of her hymns which have found a place in the hymnals of the last 120 years, or the frequency with which they have been sung. Although few of them can be placed in the first rank of lyrical compositions, they are almost uniformly simple in language, natural and pleasing in imagery, and full of genuine Christian feeling. Miss Steele may not inappropriately be compared with Miss F. R. Havergal, our "Theodosia" of the 19th century. In both there is the same evangelic fervour, in both the same intense personal devotion to the Lord Jesus. But whilst Miss Steele seems to think of Him more frequently as her "bleeding, dying Lord"—dwelling on His sufferings in their physical aspect—Miss Havergal oftener refers to His living help and sympathy, recognizes with gladness His present claims as "Master" and "King," and anticipates almost with ecstasy His second coming. Looking at the whole of Miss Steele's hymns, we find in them a wider range of thought than in Miss Havergal's compositions. She treated a greater variety of subjects. On the other hand, Miss Havergal, living in this age of missions and general philanthropy, has much more to say concerning Christian work and personal service for Christ and for humanity. Miss Steele suffered from delicacy of health and from a great sorrow, which befell her in the death of her betrothed under peculiarly painful circumstances. In other respects her life was uneventful, and occupied chiefly in the discharge of such domestic and social duties as usually fall to the lot of the eldest daughter of a village pastor. She was buried in Broughton churchyard. [W. R. S.]

A large number of Miss Steele's hymns are in C. U., the largest proportion being in American hymn-books. In addition to "Almighty Maker of my frame," "Far from these narrow scenes of night," "Father of mercies in Thy word," and others annotated under their respective first lines, there are also:—

1. From her Poems on Subjects Chiefly Devotional, 1760, vols. i., ii.

1. Come, let our souls adore the Lord. Planting for Heaven. 2. Two hymns on the Lord's Day. Feb. 14, 1757, the first being "While pastor warns his vengeful hand."
2. Come, taste ye saints, your rebless studies. Christ dying and Rising.
3. Deep are the wounds which sin has made. Christ, the Physician.
4. Enslaved by sin, and bound in chains. Redemption.
5. Eternal power, almighty God. Divine Condescension.
6. Eternal Source of joys divine. Divine Assurance desired.
7. Great God, to Thee my evening song. Evening.
8. Great Source of boundless power and grace. Desiring to Trust in God.
9. Hear, gracious God, Lord, my humble moan [prayer. Desiring to Love God dearly. 10. Hear, O my God, with pity hear. Ps. cxliii.
11. How long shall earth's allluring toys? On Longing after unseen pleasures.
12. How lovely, how divinely sweet. Ps. lxxxiv.
13. How oft, alas, this wretched heart. Pardoning Love.
14. In vain my roving thoughts would find. Lasting Happiness.
15. Jesus, the spring of joys divine. Christ the Way, the Truth, and the Life. 16. Jesus, the Saviour's name. 17. Lord, Thou hast been Thy Children's God. Ps. xc.
18. Lord, we adore Thy boundless grace. Divine Beauty.
19. Lord, when my (our) raptured thoughts surveys. Christ's Intercession.
20. Lord, when my thoughts delighted rove. Fruitfulness.
21. My God, 'tis to Thy mercy seat. Divine Mercy.
22. My God, to Thee I call. Lent.
23. O for a sweet, inspiring ray. The Ascended Saviour.
24. O Thou Whose tender mercy hears. Lent.
25. Permit me, Lord, to seek Thy face. Strength and Safety in God alone.
26. Sweet flowrets o'er the mourning field. During Affliction.
27. So fades the lovely, blooming flower. Death of a child.
28. Stretched on the Cross the Saviour dies. Good Friday.
29. The Lord, my Shepherd and my Guide. Ps. xxiii.
30. The Lord, the God of glory reigns. Ps. xciii.
31. The Saviour calls, let every ear. The Invitation.
32. There is a glorious world on high. Free Honour.
33. Thy mercy, Lord (mercy) fountain of true delight. Desiring to Know Jesus.
34. Thou only Sovereign of my heart. Life in Christ alone.
35. To Jesus, our exalted Lord. Holy Communion.
36. Ye sons of Redeemed glorious Name. Praise to the Redeemer.
37. To your Creator, God. A Festal Hymn.
38. When I survey life's varied scene. Resignation.
39. When sins and fears prevailing rise. Christ the Life, and Light.
40. Where is my God? does He retire. Breathing after God.
41. While my Redeemer's near. The Good Shepherd.
42. Why sinks my weak desponding mind? Hope in God.
43. Ye earthly vanities, depart. Love for Christ desired.
44. Ye glittering toys of earth adieu. The Pearl of great Price.
45. Ye humble souls, approach your God. Divine Guidance.

ii. From the Bristol Bap. Coll. of Ash & Evans, 1769.

48. Come ye that love the Saviour's Name. Jesus, the King of Saints.

49. Thou religious guilty nature lies. Need of Remembering Grace.

50. Praise ye the Lord,'tis praise employ. Praise.

iii. Centos and Altered Texts.

51. How blest are those, how truly wise. True Assurance. From "There is a glorious world on high." See No. 32.

52. How far beyond our mortal view. Christ the Supreme Beauty. From "Should nature's charms to please the eye," 1780, st. iii.

53. In vain I trace creation o'er. True happiness. From "When fancy spreads her boldest wings." 1780, st. ii.

54. Jesus, and didst thou leave the sky? Praise to Jesus. From "Jesus, in Thy transporting name," 1780, st. i.

55. Look up, my soul, with cheerful eye. Breathing after God. From No. 44, st. v.

56. Lord, in the temple of Thy grace. Christ His people's joy. From "The wondering nations have heard," 1784, st. iii.

57. My God, O could I make the claim. Part of No. 9 above.

58. My soul, to God, its source, aspire. God, the Soul's only Portion. From "In vain the world's alluring smile," st. iii.

59. Now all my thoughts and wishes fly. Part of No. 11 above, st. iv.

60. O for the eye of faith divine. Death anticipated. From "When death appears before my sight," 1780, st. iii., viii. altered, with opening stanzas from another hand.

61. O Jesus, our exalted Head. Holy Communion. From "To Jesus, our exalted Lord." See No. 33.

62. O world, of bliss, could mortal eyes. Heaven. From "Far from these narrow scenes of night," p. 383, ii.

63. See, Lord, Thy willing subjects bow. Praise to Christ. From "O dearer to my thankful heart," 1780, st. i.

64. Stern winter throws his icy chains. Winter. From "Behold the sluggard's field by frosts," 1780, st. i.

65. Sure, the blest Comforter is nigh. Whitsuntide. From "Dear Lord, and shall Thy Spirit rest," 1780, st. iii.

66. The God of my salvation lives. In Affliction. From "Jesus, my Lord, my God, my all," 1780, st. i.

67. The Gospel,O what endless charms. The Gospel of Redeeming Love. From "Come, Heavenly Love, inspire my song." p. 383, ii.

68. The mind was formed to mount sublime. The Mind. From "Ah! why should this immortal mind?" 1780, st. ii.

69. The once loved form now cold and dead. Death of a Child. From "Life is a span, a fleeting hour," 1780, st. iii.

70. Thy gracious presence, O my God. Consolation in Affliction. From "In vain, while dark affliction spreads," 1780, st. iv.

71. Thy kingdom, Lord, for ever stands. Ps. cxlv. From "My God, my King, to Thee I'll raise," 1780, st. i.

72. Triumphant, Christ ascends on high. Ascension. From "Come, Heavenly Love, inspire my song," 1780, st. xxxii. See p. 383, ii.

73. When blest with that transporting view. Christ the Supreme Beauty. From "Almighty Father, gracious Lord," 1780, st. v. See p. 83, ii.

74. When death before my sight. Death anticipated. From "When death appears before my sight," 1780.

75. When gloomy thoughts and boding fears. Comfort in Affliction. From "O kind religion, heavenly fire," 1780, st. ii.

76. When weary souls with sin distrest. Invitation to Jesus. From "Come, weary souls, with sin distrest," 1780. See p. 383, ii.

77. When with the royal Preacher rise. Example of Christ. From "And may my gospel pace all hire!" 1780, st. ii. See p. 62, i.

All the foregoing hymns are in D. Sedgwick's reprint of Miss Steele's Hymns, 1863. [J. J.]

Stegmann, Josua, D.D., s. of Andreas Stegmann, Lutheran pastor at Sülfeld, near Meiningen, and finally, in 1593, superintendent at Eckartsberga, near Merseburg, was b. at Sülfeld, Sept. 14, 1588. He entered the University of Leipzig in 1608, M.A. in 1611, and was for sometime adjunct of the Philosophical Faculty. In 1617 he was appointed Superintendent of the district (Gnadenthal) of Schaumburg, and also pastor at Stadthagen, and first professor of the Gymnasium there; and before entering on his duties graduated D.D. at Wittenberg, on Oct. 24, 1617. When the Gymnasium was erected into a university, and transferred (1621) to Rinteln, he became ordinary professor of Theology there. By the outbreak of war he was forced to flee from Rinteln, in 1623. After his return he was appointed, in 1625, Ephorus of the Lutheran clergy of Hesse-Schaumburg. By the Edict of Restitution, promulgated by the emperor on March 6, 1629, he was greatly harassed: for the Benedictine monks, after they had settled in Rinteln, in 1630, claimed to be the rightful professors, and demanded the restoration of the old church lands, and especially the property formerly belonging to the nunnery at Rinteln, but which had been devoted to the payment of the stipends of the Lutheran professors. They sent soldiers into Stegmann's house to demand that he should refund his salary, and on July 13, 1632, compelled him to hold a disputation, at which they annoyed him in every possible way. Soon after he was seized with fever, and d. Aug. 3, 1632. (Koch, iii., 128; Wetzel, iii., 231; Rinteln'sche Landesgeschichte des Gymnasiums Bernhardinum, Meiningen, 1888; an. from Pastor A. Bücker, Rinteln; Dr. Fürstenmann, Leipzig), &c.

Stegmann was known as a writer of Latin verse while yet a student at Leipzig, and by his contemporaries was reckoned as a hymn writer. It is, however, very difficult to ascertain which hymns are his, as the initials attached to his devotional works are given without any indications of authorship, and many of them are evidently by earlier writers, or recasts founded on earlier hymns. They appeared principally in his (1) Inspiritu Imperam. Libellus Precum Publicarum, Rinteln, 1628; (2) Inspiritu Libellus Precum Privatarum, Rinteln, 1628 (Brit. Mus. 3455 bbb. 3, SUCCESS (colophon gives the correct date, viz., "In Jahr 1629"). Of this there is a copy in the University Library at Breslau. In the Wöchtr Für Hymnologie, 1885, p. 162, a list is given of the more important hymns in No. 2, tracing as far as possible those which had previously appeared elsewhere. The following are the hymns ascribed to Stegmann, and are not found earlier than in his works, have passed into English as follows:—

1. Ach Herr mit deiner Gnade. Supplication. Included in 1628, as above, p. 462. In 1630 it is given, at p. 347, in 6 st. of 4 l., as a "Closing Hymn," after the "Prayer for the Preservation of the Doctrine, and of the Church of God," Thence in Wittrell, 1858, No. 337a. In J. Clausnitzer's Paulusstein nova, pt. ii., 1631, p. 205, it is ascribed to Stegmann, and so in later collections. It is a simple and beautiful hymn, and is found in most recent German hymnals, e.g. as No. 208 in the Ges. L. S., 1851. Lauxmann, in Koch, viii., 146, relates various incidents regarding its use (it was, e.g., a favourite hymn of king Friedrich Wilhelm IV. of Prussia), and thus analyses it:—

"It has as its keynote the saying of the two disciples at Emmaus, 'Abide with us.' St. 1 puts the prayer 'Abide with us, dear Lord Jesus;' st. ii. develops it in detail: Abide with us with Thy Word as our fortress' (ii.); with the illumination of Thy Spirit as our everguiding Torch (iii.); with Thy blessing as the God rich in mercy (iv.); and with Thy faithfulness as our Rock in the time of need (vi.).

The Translations are:—

1. Abide with us, our Saviour. This is a free tr. of st. i.-iii., as No. 51, in the Dalston Hospital H. Bk., 1848; and repeated in the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868. In Dr. Pagenstecher's Coll., 1864, fr. of st. iv., vi., were added.

2. O Saviour, go beside us. This is a free tr. of st. i., iv.-vi., with an original "Shepherd" st., as st. ii., by J. S. Stahlschmi, in the Texas Sotha Reporter, July 1857; and in Curwen's Sabbath H. Bk., 1859, No. 420. Thence in Dr. Pagenstecher's Coll., 1864, No. 115.

3. Abide among us with Thy grace. This is a good and full tr., in C.M., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd ser., 1858, p. 84; and her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 14. Included in Allon's Suppl. Hyn., 1868, Irish Church Hy., 1869 and 1873, and others; and in America, in the Cantate Domino, 1859, Boardman's Sel., 1861.

4. Abide with us, Lord Jesus! Thy grace. This is a complete tr., as No. 8 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880, and marked as a compilation.

5. Come, abide with Thy grace, in our hearts, O Lord. By Dr. E. Magnus, 1872, p. 197.

ii. Wie schön leuchtet der Morgenstern, Von Firmament des Himmels fern. Morning. Included in 1630, as above, p. 10, in 8 st. of 10 l., entitled, "Morning Hymn." (The text printed by Fischer, ii., p. 383, as that of 1630; is really the greatly altered form in the ed. of 1638); and repeated in the Leipzig Vermehrt, 1673, No. 858, and others. St. viii. is altered from st. ix. of "O Lebendrinnlein, tief und gross" (see p. 778, ii.). It is an imitation, but not a recast, of the hymn by P. Nicolai, noted at p. 806, ii. The form in C. U. was given to it by Burchard Wiesenmeyer, in Creiger's Neues collectenbüchlein G. B., 1640, No. 111, and further recast in Creiger's Praxis, 1648, No. 3, which begins, "Wie schön leucht uns der Morgenstern." This form in No. 477, in the Unv. L. S., 1851. The tr. in C. U. is—

How beautiful the Morning Star shines from the firmament afar. This was contributed by Philip Pusey to A. R. Reinagle's Ps. & Hy. Tunes, Oxford, 1840, p. 130 (see p. 1017, ii.). St. i. is a fairly close version of st. i., while st. ii., iii., are very free tr. of st. vi., vii. Included, slightly varied, in the Salisbury H. Bk., 1857, and thence, with st. i., ii. 5, 6, altered in Kennedy, 1863. It was considerably altered in the Sarum Hyl., 1868; and this form is repeated in R. Minton Taylor's Coll., 1872, and J. L. Porter's Coll., 1875.

Other trs. are—(1) "How fair shines forth the Morning-star." By R. J. Buckell, 1845, p. 24. (2) "How lovely now the morning-star." By Miss Cox, 1864, p. 3. (3) "How beautiful the morning star, Shines to." By R. Massie, in the Day of Rest, 1876, p. 473. [J. M.]

Stennett, Joseph, the earliest English Baptist hymn-writer whose hymns are now in C. U., was b. at Abingdon, Berks, in 1663. He received a superior education at the Grammar-School of Wallingford, and at the age of 22 removed to London, where for several years he engaged in tuition. In 1688 he married a daughter of George Gouil, a French Protestant refugee, another of whose daughters was the wife of the celebrated Presbyterian minister, Dr. Daniel Williams, who became a generous friend to Stennett. In the following year he was called to preach by the Baptist Sabbatarian congregation then meeting in Devonshire Square, London, afterwards in Pinners' Hall; and in 1690 became its pastor, a position he retained to his death, July 4, 1713. Since the meetings of this congregation for worship were on the seventh day of the week, he was free to preach to other congregations on the Sunday, which he did very frequently, especially to the General Baptist Church in the Barbican. Such was Stennett's repute for piety, learning and practical wisdom that his advice was very much sought by his Christian friends, and by the "great Whig Lords" of that day he was occasionally consulted as to the feeling of the Dissenters concerning national affairs. His published works include:—

(1) Hymns in commemoration of the Sufferings of Christ, and Exhortations to a worthy Approach for the Celebration of his Holy Supper, 1697; 2nd ed. 1712 (This is entitled in Stennett's Works, 1732, Hymns for the Lord's Supper). These were 37 in number, increased to 50 in the 3rd ed., 1709. (2) In 1700 he published a poetical version of Solomon's Song of Songs, together with the Song of Moses, Deborah, Hannah, and Habakkuk. (3) In 1712 he pub. twelve Hymns composed for the Celebration of the Holy Ordinances of Baptism; 2nd ed. 1722.

Stennett also translated Dacier's Plato and other works from the French, and published several sermons preached on days of National Thanksgiving and other public occasions. His Works were collected after his death and pub. in 1732, in 4 vols. 8vo. They contain a Memoir, Sermons and Letters, the Hymns and Poems mentioned above, and a few other poetical pieces. A controversial work, An Answer to Mr. Russen's Book on Baptism, 1705, may be reckoned as a 5th vol. Of his hymns, that which, in the form of varying centos, is most widely known is, "Another six days' work is done" (p. 71, ii.). Others in C. U. include:—

1. Gracious Redeemer, how divine. Holy Communion. Appeared in his Hys. for the Lord's Supper, 1st ed., 1697 (Works, 1732, ii. p. 98.) Usually abbreviated.

2. Immortal Love, for ever full. Holy Communion. Pub. in his Hys. for the Lord's Supper, 1st ed., 1697, (Works, 1732, ii. p. 97.) From this "We'll praise our theme Lord," is taken.

3. Jesus, O word divinely sweet. Redemption through the Blood of Christ. Pub. in Hys. for the Lord's Supper, 1709, No. 47. (Works, 1732, ii. p. 147.) In full in Sprague's O. O. B. Bk., 1866, and others.

4. Lord, at Thy Table I behold. Holy Communion. This hymn is not in Stennett's Works. It appeared in his Hys. for the Lord's Supper, 1709, No. 52. (Works, 1732, ii. p. 111.) Usually abbreviated.

5. The great Redeemer we adore. Pub. in his Hys. for Baptism, 1712. (Works, 1732, ii. p. 165.)

6. Thy mercies how tender, how firm to the end. Baptism. Pub. in his Hymns for Baptism, 1712, No. vi. (Works, 1732, ii. p. 166.) From this "See how the willing converts trace" is taken. It begins with st. iii.

Several of his hymns additional to those are given in the older collections, but have passed out of use. We may add that the Joseph Stennett, the subject of this article, had a son, Joseph Stennett, D.D., who also became an eminent Baptist minister, and was the father of Samuel Stennett, D.D. noticed below. [W. R. S.]

Stennett, Samuel, D.D., grandson of Joseph Stennett, named above, and s. of the Rev. Joseph Stennett, D.D., was b., most probably in 1727, at Exeter, where his father was at that time a Baptist minister. When quite young he removed to London, his father having become pastor of the Baptist Church in Little Wild Street, Lincoln's Inn Fields. In 1748, Samuel Stennett became assistant to his father in the ministry, and in 1758 succeeded him in the pastoral office at Little Wild Street. From that time until his death, on Aug. 24, 1795, he held a very prominent position among the Dissenting ministers of London. He was much respected by some of the statesmen of the time, and used his influence with them in support of the principles of religious freedom. The celebrated John Howard was a member of his congregation and an attached friend. In 1793, the University of Aberdeen conferred on him the degree of D.D. Dr. S. Stennett's prose publications consist of volumes of sermons, and pamphlets on Baptism and on Nonconformist Disabilities. He wrote one or two short poems, and contributed 36 hymns to the collection of his friend, Dr. Rippon (1787). His poetical genius was not of the highest order, and his best hymns have neither the originality nor the vigour of some of his grandfather's. The following, however, are pleasing in sentiment and expression, and are in C. U. more especially in Baptist congregations:—

1. And have I, Christ, no love for Thee? Love for Christ desired.
2. And will the offended God again? The Body the Temple of the H. Ghost.
3. As on the Cross the Saviour hung. The Thief on the Cross.
4. Behold the hypocrite here. The Assizing of the Leper.
5. Come, every pious heart. Praise to Christ.
6. Father, at Thy call, I come. Lent.
7. Great God, amid the darkness night. God, a Sun.
8. Great God, what hosts of angels stand. Ministry of Angels.
9. Here at Thy Table, Lord, we meet. Holy Communion.
10. How charming is the place. Public Worship.
11. How shall the sons of men appear? Acceptance through Christ alone.
12. How soft the words my [the] Saviour speak. Early Piety.
13. How various and how new. Divine Providence.
14. Not all the nobles of the earth. Christians as Heirs.
15. On Jordan's stormy banks I stand. Heaven anticipated.
16. Prostrate, dear Jesus, at thy feet. Lent. Sometimes, "Thus far Lord, assisted at Thy feet."
17. Sweet harmonious saviour kindly hear. The greatest of these is Love. From this, "Had I the gift of tongues," st. iii., is taken.
18. Thou art a sacred consecrating grace. Holy Scripture. From "Thy scripture, from above to-day."
19. Thy life I read, my dearest Lord. Death in Defiance. From this "'Tis Jesus speaks, I fold, say He."
20. 'Tis finished! so the Saviour cried. Good Friday.
21. 'Twas Christ, the Lord, let every tongue. Praise of Christ. From this, "Majestic sweetness sits enthroned," st. iii., is taken.
22. To God, my Saviour, and my King. Blessing God.
23. To God, the universal King. Praise to God.
24. What wisdom, majesty, and grace! The Gospel. Sometimes, "What majesty and grace!"
25. Where'er three or three with sweet accord. Before the Sermon.
26. Why should a living man complain? Affliction. From this, "Lord, see what floods of sorrow rise," st. iii., is taken.
27. With tears of anguish I lament. Lent.
28. Yonder amazing sight I see. Good Friday.

All these hymns, with others by Stennett, were given in Rippon's Bapt. Sel., 1787, a few having previously appeared in A Coll. o Hys. for the use of Christians of all Denominations, London. Printed for the Booksellers, 1782; and No. 16, in the 1778 Supplement to the 8th ed. of the Bristol Bap. Sel. of Ash and Evans. The whole of Stennett's poetical pieces and hymns were included in vol. ii. of his Works, together with a Memoir, by W. J. Jones. 4 vols., 1824. [W. R. S.]

Stephano primo martyri. [St. Stephen.] This hymn is found in various forms. Mone, No. 1156, gives first what he professes to consider to be the original text, and which he says is very probably by St. Ambrose himself. But for this text (which begins "Stephano coronas martyrum") he gives no source, and seems to derive it from his own imagination. His second form begins "Stephani coronis martyris." If from this second form are rejected the additions (including st. i., which is not found in other MSS.), from a Benedictine MS. cited through Casenader, then we have what is probably the original text, beginning "Stephano primo martyri." This last form is found in two MSS., circa 1130, in the Bodleian (Liturg. Hymn., 202, f. 144; Liturg. Misc., 297, f. 306): in a MS. of the 12th cent. in the British Museum (Add. 18301, f. 112): in the St. Gall MS., No. 413, of the 11th cent.: in a MS. of the 10th cent. at Munich, &c. Also in the Ambrosian Breviary, 1539. In the Ambrosian Breviary, 1620, there is a rosad beginning "Duci cruento martyrum": and this text is in Dr. Neale's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1851, p. 79. All these forms and variations are given by Daniel, i., No. 82, and iv. pp. 49, 50, 334–337. [J. M.]

Of these forms of the text two have been rendered into English, viz.:—

i. Stephano primo martyri.

1. To Stephen, first of martyrs, raise. By J. D. Chambers, in his Lauds Spon, 1857, p. 87.

2. Blood is on the martyr's palm. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-55. This was altered by Canon W. Cooke, and given in the Cooke and Denton Hymnal, 1853, No. 30, as "Jesu, Lord, Thy praise we sing."

ii. Duci cruento martyrum.

To Thee, O Christ, our hymn we raise. By E. A. Daymus, in the Sarum Hymnal, 1868, No. 46. This is rather a paraphrase than a tr. of the hymn. [J. J.]

Stephenson, Thomas Bowman, D.D., LL.D., s. of the Rev. John Stephenson, was b. at Newcastle on Dec. 22, 1836, and educated at Wesley College, Sheffield, subsequently graduating at the University of London. In 1860 he entered the Wesleyan Ministry, and has since laboured in Norwich, Manchester, Bolton, and London. The great work of his life has been the establishment and maintenance of The Children's Home at Victoria Park, London, and its branches at Bolton, Birmingham, and the Isle of Man, and in Canada. Dr. Stephenson has written for Magazines and Reviews, and pub. a small work on Sisterhoods, and a Memorial Sketch of the late James Barlow. He has written several hymns, of which the following are most widely known:—

1. Fading like a lifetime ends another day. Evening. Written circa 1875, and pub. in The Meth. S. S. Bk., 1879, No. 497, in 3 st. of 4 l.

2. O Father, Whose spontaneous love. Easter, or The Children's Home. Children's Hymns. Written for a Festival at the Children's Home, circa 1879.

3. O Father, Whose spontaneous love. Easter, or Missions. Appeared in The General Hymnary for Missions, &c., 1868, No. 266, in 8 sts. of 4 l.

4. Onward, o'er Time's great ocean. Life a Voyage. Written circa 1875, and pub. in The Meth. S. S. Bk., 1879, No. 494, in 4 sts. of 4 l.

5. Sweetly dawns the Sabbath morning. Sunday Morning. Written circa 1875, and pub. in The Meth. S. S. B. Bk., 1879, No. 844, in 4 sts. of 4 l.

6. This is the glorious gospel word. Jesus saves. Children's Hymns. Written for a Festival at the Children's Home, circa 1879, and pub. in The Meth. S. S. Bk., 1879, No. 310, in 4 sts. of 8 l., and in The General Hymnary, 1880, No. 421, with an additional stanza (st. iv.). [J. J.]

Στερέωσόν με, Χριστέ. ["Αντωμεν πάντες λαοί.]

Στέφουμε μὲν ὕμνοις. ["Εσωσε λαὸν.]

Sternhold, Thomas. [Old Version, § ix. 1: x.]

Steuerlein, Johannes, s. of Caspar Steuerlein, or Steurlein, first Lutheran pastor at Schmalkalden, was b. at Schmalkalden on July 3, 1546. After completing his course as a student of law, he was, about 1580, appointed Town-clerk of Wasungen (between Schmalkalden and Meiningen), and then, in 1583, secretary in chancery (Kanzlei-Secretär), at Meiningen, to the Henneberg administration. He was also Notary Public, and, about 1594, Mayor at Meiningen. He d. at Meiningen, May 5, 1615. (Koch, ii. 248, 287, 353; C. von Winterfeld's Evang. Kirchengesang, 1843, i. p. 415; K. Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. ii., 1886, pp. 21, 171, 208, 273; prefaces to his Gründliche und unerhörte Beschreibung, Jena, 1611, &c.)

Steuerlein was crowned as a poet by the Emperor Rudolph II., and was the author of a metrical version of the Psalms, and of numerous Latin and German Motets in 1591. He was an excellent musician, and pub. various works containing melodies and four-part settings by himself. His most important work is his Sieben und Sonntäglich neue geistliche Gesenge, mit vier Stimmen componirt, &c., 1608 (Brit. Mus. Library, and Royal Library of the Institut für Kirchenmusik at Breslau). Of these 21 hymns 3 are marked as by Steuerlein, 4 as by Cyriacus Schneegass, 3 as by Erasmus Alber, and 1 as by Martin Luther. The other 17 have no names of authors affixed.

One of these 17 hymns is:

Das alte Jahr vergangen ist. Wir danken dir, Herr Jesu Christ. New Year. In 1590 as above, No. 1, in 5 sts. of 8 l. In the Ahasverus Fritsch Gesangbuch, Leipzig, 1683, p. 1766. This is the earliest appearance so far as is yet known, of the hymn in this six stanza form. A shorter form, in 5 lines (st. i., ii. of the 1590), is in Clemens Stephani's Schöner ausserlesener deutscher Lieder, Leipzig, 1628, and in Crüger's Praxis Pietatis Melica, 1648. In the Hinlein, 1667, p. 112. It is thus very doubtful if Steuerlein is the original author of this hymn, and, as already pointed out, he did not write the shorter form. The 1st line of the hymn (st. iii.-vi. may be by Steuerlein, though they have been frequently ascribed to Jakob Tapp (q.v.), and indeed in Trümpelmann's Hymns Stories, pt. vi., Wolfenbüttel, 1859, No. 1 (in Index marked as "Autor Texter Jacob Tapp"). In the Appendix to the Hinlein, 1667, p. 1285, is the English, st. i., not having seen the 1668, given the six stanza form as an anonymous hymn, quoting it from the Kirchen G. B., 1668. The text in the Ges. L. L., 1851, No. 63, is nearly that of 1668. Steuerlein is probably the author of the 1st line only of this hymn, but which, in 1668, was set to N. Herman's hymn, "Gott Vater der du deine Sonn" (see Dr. J. Zahn's Psalter und Hirtfl., 1886, No. 84). Tr. as:—

1. With this New Year we raise new Songs. In full by J. M. Sloan, as No. 187 in Wilson's Service of Praise, 1866.

Another tr. is: "Another year is gone, and now." By Dr. G. Walter, 1880, p. 84. [J. M.]

Stevens, John, was b. at Aldwinkle, in Northamptonshire, June 8th, 1776. About the age of sixteen he went to London, where he joined the Baptist church in Grafton Street, whose pastor was at that time R. Burnham (p. 196, ii.). He began to preach, and in 1797 became minister at Cundle, soon afterwards at St. Neots, and then at Boston. In 1811, after the death of Burnham, he was invited to succeed him at Grafton Street. Stevens had popular gifts as a preacher: the place became too small, and ultimately a new chapel was built in Mead's Court, Soho, where he continued to minister until he d., Oct. 6, 1847. Stevens was a High Calvinist in theology, and an ardent polemic. He wrote several controversial works, the most famous of which was entitled, A Scriptural Display of the Triune God & the early existence of Jesus' human soul, Lond. 1812. From the theory advocated in this book he was called a Pre-existerian. In 1809 he pub. A New Sel. of Hymns, including also several Original hymns never before offered to the Public. This, and the 2nd ed., 1812, contained 465 hymns. The 5th ed., 1825, had an Appendix of 102 hymns, and the 12th, 1868, one of 365 hymns. The ed. of Stevens's hymn-book now in C. U. was edited, in 1851, by J. S. Anderson. It is described on the title-page as "enlarged and improved," and contains 970 hymns. Of these a few are by Mr. Anderson, and 34 by Stevens. Many of the hymns of Stevens embody High Calvinistic views, strongly expressed; some, however, on the Lord's Supper would be accepted by most Christians. Of his hymns the following are in Sturgis's Songs of G. & G., 1872.

1. Christ has a chosen Church (1868). Election.
2. Eternal election preserves us secure (1868). Election.
3. Grace is Jehovah's sovereign will (1868). Election.
4. Long as I live I'll sing the Lamb (1868). Praise to Jesus. [W. R. S.]

Stevenson, George John, M.A., was b. at Chesterfield, Derbyshire, July 7, 1818. In early life he was connected with the printing and bookselling business, and continued thereto until 1844, when he entered St. John's College, Battersea, where he was trained for an organizing Mastership under the National Society. In 1846 a Reformatory School was established in the Philanthropic Institute, Southwark, for the benefit of the better conducted criminals from the convict prisons, and Mr. Stevenson was the first Master. This school is now represented by the Farm School at Red Hill, Reigate. In 1848, he was appointed Head Master of the endowed parochial school at Lambeth, but resigned in 1855, and established himself in Paternoster Row as a bookseller and publisher, where he continued the business until a few years before his death, on Aug. 16, 1888. His interest in education was shown in his publication of the periodicals, School and Teacher, The Pupil Teacher, and The English Journal of Education. In 1861 he purchased the Wesleyan Times newspaper, and for six years he bore the editorial and financial responsibility. Mr. Stevenson's literary work began with contributions to the Sheffield Patriot, in 1839, and the Norfolk Notes, 1841. Having joined the Methodist Society in 1851, his interest in Methodism, and specially in Methodist history and literature, became very keen, and has had much to do with his literary life. His publications outside of hymnology are numerous, and include biographical works mainly on the Wesley Family, and Methodist Worthies; historical works on City Road Chapel; the Young Men's Christian Association; Methodism in Chesterfield; Methodism in Hackney; and historical articles on Methodism in several Encyclopedias, &c.; Essays on Education; and smaller works on other subjects. His hymnological work began with his biographical sketches of hymn-writers and notices of hymns in the Wesleyan Times, which were subsequently largely used by Dr. Rogers in his Lyra Britannica, and Miller in his Singers and Songs of the Church. His Methodist Hymn Book and its Associations was pub. in 1869; and in an enlarged form as The Methodist Hymn Book Illustrated with Biography, Incident, and Anecdote, in 1883. The first of these dealt with the writers and hymns of the Wes. H. Bk. of 1780-1831; and the second with the revised ed. of the same, 1875. The latter is the most complete account of Methodist hymnody extant, and is indispensable to every lover of the Wesleyan Hymn-book. Outside of Methodist hymnody, Mr. Stevenson's acquaintance with English and American hymnology was very superficial; and of the vast stores of Greek, Latin, German, French, Italian, Scandinavian, and other treasures he knew almost nothing. His reputation entirely rests upon his researches as a student of and authority upon Methodist Hymnody. In this department he had no equal. [J. J.]

Stichéra. [Greek Hymnody, § xvi. 9.]

Still with Thee, O my God. J. D. Burns. [Evening.] Included in his little work, The Evening Hymns, 1857, No. 23, in 6 st. of 4 l. It passed into the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858; and, subsequently, into other collections. In the Cong. Hyl., 1887, it begins "With Thee, my Lord, my God." Although mainly included, because of its beautiful simplicity, in children's hymn books, it is yet better adapted for congregational use. [J. J.]

Stock, Sarah Geraldina, b. Dec. 27, 1838, has devoted much time to literature with special reference to Mission work and Sunday Schools. Her prose publications include Lessons on Israel in Egypt, &c., 1874; The Child's Life of our Lord, 1879; Bible Stories from the Old Testament, &c., 1882, and others. Her hymns in C. U. include :—

1. A Soldier! For the love of God unbounded. Missions. Written for the Church Missionary Almanack, 1875, and also issued as a C. M. S. leaflet.
2. Behind and Before. Importance of Missionaries. Written for the Church Missionary Union, and sung at the dismissal of Church of England Zenana missionaries, Sep. 30, 1887. Since issued as a C. M. S. leaflet.
3. Called to Thy service, Lord. Holy Matrimony. Written for the marriage of Mr. W. Merry and Miss Stock, Oct. 4, 1871, at "Salem Chapel," Bethnal Green Road, London, March 14, 1872.
4. Gaily the wind is sweeping. For Workers. Pub. in the Church S. School Magazine, 1866.
5. Jesus! All-sufficiency. Teachers' Devotional Meetings. Pub. in the Church S. School Magazine, 1866.
6. Lord of light, and Feast of love. Home Missions. Written for the Church Missionary Union, 1874; in Hys. for Special Services, &c., Swedenborg, 1881.
7. Lord, Thy ransomed Church is waking. Home Missions. Written for the London Februrary Mission, 1874, and pub. in the Church S. S. Magazine, Feb., 1874, and subsequently in several hymnbooks.
8. O Master, we would speak with Thee. Departure of Missionaries. Written for India's Women, and first sung at the Valedictory Meeting of the Ch. of England Zenana Society, Oct. 2, 1868.
9. Shall we gather at the gates of heaven. Christmas. Pub. in the Church of England Leaflets, No. 6, with music by C. H. Nottingham.
10. Shot out from heaven's glory. Harvest. Pub. in the same Leaflets, as No. 9.
11. The tender light of home behind. Departure of Missionaries. Written for the Church Missionary Gleaner, Sep. 1867, and first sung at the Valedictory Meeting of the Church of England Zenana Society, Sep. 30, 1867.
12. There's a fight to be fought, there's a work to be done. Missions. Written for the Church Missionary Gleaner's Annual Meeting, Nov. 1880, and issued as a C. M. S. leaflet.
13. We know not how the rays that stream. Holy Trinity. Written for the Church S. S. Magazine. Pub. in an abridged form as "We cannot read the mystery," in the Church S. S. H. Bk., 1866.
14. Welcome, welcome, sweet singing. Thanksgiving. Written for the opening of Miss Macpherson's "Home of Industry," Bethnal Green Road, London, 1867, and issued as a leaflet.

Of these hymns, Nos. 1, 7, 8, 11, and 12, were pub. in Eight Missionary Hys. and Poems, C. M. S., 1869. Miss Stock contributed 3 hymns to the "Golden Songs," which appeared in the S. S. U. Sunday S. Chronicle, 1873; 7 for children to the Sunday at Home. She has also written several others on various subjects, which have been issued as leaflets. Her hymns are bright and musical, and should be sought out by hymnal compilers. Her poems are pub. as Joy in Sorrow, 1884. She d. Aug. 29, 1898. [J. J.]

Stocker, John, some-time of Honiton, Devonshire, contributed, during 1776 and 1777, 9 hymns to the Gospel Magazine. These hymns were collected and reprinted, in 1861, by D. Sedgwick, as Hys. and Spiritual Songs, and, with their dates, are :—

1. Thy mercy, my (1) God, is the theme of my song. Mercy. "J. S.," March, 1776.
2. Of Jesus, my Saviour, I'll sing. Praise. "J. Stocker," October, 1776.
3. Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take, burdens oppress. Invitation. "John Stocker," May, 1777.
4. No strength in myself I possess. Christ All and in all. "J. S.," May, 1777.
5. Awake, my soul; arise and sing. Praise of Jesus. "J. Stocker," July, 1777.
6. Jesus, my Saviour, I avow. Glorying in Christ. "J. Stocker," May, 1777.
7. Jesus, my Rock, which cannot move. Confidence through Jesus. "J. Stocker," July, 1777.
8. Jesus, my Saviour, I rejoice in my fears. Death anticipated. "J. Stocker, Honiton."
9. Gracious Spirit, Dove divine (p. 443, l.). "J. Stocker," July, 1777.

These varying signatures, "J. S.", "J. Stocker," and "John Stocker," led D. Sedgwick to conclude that the signature "J. S." meant the same person as the other two. We doubt this: first, because Nos. 3, 4, 5, and 6 above, were all printed in May 1777, in the order named; and we cannot see why "J. S." should have been adopted in this manner; and, second, because other hymns signed "S." are found in the same numbers of the magazine as those signed "J. Stocker." If "J. S." is John Stocker, why not "S." also? Sedgwick had no authority for saying that "J. S." was John Stocker; we have no authority for saying this is not so. There is no proof either way. [J. J.]

Stola regni laureatus. Adam of St. Victor. [Common of Apostles.] A very fine sequence, dealing with the symbolic character of the apostles, not with their individual histories. It is found in the Augustinian Missal, printed at Paris in 1520, for use at St. Victor. It is given by Gautier, in his Œuvres poétiques d'Adam, 1858, vol. ii. p. 407. In his new ed., 1881, p. 197, Gautier cites it as in a Gradual of St. Victor before 1220 (Bibl. Nat., Paris, No. 14452), and a 14th cent. Missal of St. Victor (B. N., No. 14446). Also in Trench, ed. 1864, p. 202, with copious notes, and D. S. Wrangham's The Liturgical Poetry of Adam of St. Victor, 1881, vol. iii. p. 136. The use of St. Victor was for Oct. 28 ("SS. Simon and Jude"). Tr. as :—

1. Laurelled with the stole victorious. By J. M. Neale, in the enlarged ed. of his Mediæval Hys., 1863, p. 153, in 10 st. of 6 l. In an abbreviated form it is in the 1857 Appendix to the H. Noted, and the Hymner, 1882.

2. In regal stole of splendour. By Jackson Mason and the Compilers of H. A. & M., in the 1889 Suppl. Hymns to that collection.

Other tr. are :—
1. To the apostolic cohort. D. T. Morgan. 1871.
2. Arrayed in royal splendour. Anon. 1848.
3. Decked with robes each man doth befitting. D. S. Wrangham. 1881. [J. M.]

Στολίον πώλων ἀδαών. [Ilomena, T. P.]

Stone, Samuel John, M.A., s. of the Rev. William Stone, M.A., was b. at Whitmore, Staffordshire, April 25, 1839, and educated at the Charterhouse; and at Pembroke College, Oxford, B.A. 1862; and M.A. 1875. On taking Holy Orders he became Curate of Windsor in 1865, and of St. Paul's, Haggerston, 1870. In 1874 he succeeded his father, at St. Paul's, Haggerston. Mr. Stone's poetical works are (1) Lyra Fidelium, 1866; (2) The Knight of Intercession and Other Poems, 1872, 6th ed., 1887; (3) Sonnets of the Christian Year, first printed in the Leisure Hour, and then pub. by the R. T. Society, 1875; (4) Hymns, a collection of his original pieces and translations, 1886. He has also pub. Order of The Consecration Church Service for Children, with Original Hymns, 1883. Mr. Stone's hymns, most of which are in C. U., and several of which have a wide popularity, include :—

1. A sower went to sow his seed. The Sower. In his Hymns, 1886, the author says this hymn was "Written specially in allusion to the sixteen years' work of the first Vicar (his Father) of St. Paul's, Haggerston, which had then risen from a room to a church, schools, or School, or Vicarage, or Parsonage."
2. Bear the troubles of thy life. Patience. A tr. of Thomas à Kempis's "Adversa omnia tolera." (p. 22, ii.) made for the Rev. S. Kettlewell's Thomas à Kempis, 1893.
3. By Paul at war in Gentile lands. St. Mark. Written at Windsor in 1870, and pub. in his Knight of Intercession, 1872.
4. By Shepherds first was heard. Carol. Written for the Church S. School Magazine, 1867.
5. By Thy love which shone for eyes. Litany of the Love of God. Written at Haggerston in 1883, and printed in the Monthly Packet, 1884.
6. Christ the Wisdom and the Power. For Church Workers. Written for the Sunday School Teachers of St. Paul's, Haggerston in 1875, and pub. in The Knight of Intercession, 1872.
7. Dark is the sky that overhangs my soul. Sorrow succeeded by Joy. Written at Windsor in 1869 for the Monthly Packet, and printed therein 1870. Pub. in The Knight of Intercession, 1872, under the title of "Light at Eventide."
8. Deeply dark and deeply still. The Transfiguration. Written in 1871 and pub. in The Knight of Intercession, 1872.
9. Eastward, ever eastward. Processional for Sunday Morning. Written at Haggerston in 1876, and pub. in the Monthly Packet, 1884.
10. Faith, Hope, and Charity, be our portal. Faith, Hope, and Charity. Written at Windsor in 1868, and pub. in the Monthly Packet, 1868, and The Knight of Intercession, 1872.
11. Far off our brethren's voices. Missions. Written at Windsor in 1870, and pub. in The Knight of Intercession, 1872, and pub. in The Knight of Intercession, 1872, "For Colonial Missions."
12. Give the word, Eternal King. Missions. Written for the First Day of Intercession for Foreign Missions, 1872.
13. Glory in heaven to God. Christmas Carol. Written in 1882 for G. H. Leslie's Cantata The First Christmas Morn, 1882.
14. God the Father, All, and One. For Unity. Written in 1869 for Church S. Yeadless' Service for Unity, and pub. in the Monthly Packet, 1869.
15. God the Father's Only Son. Offices of Christ. Pub. in his Lyra Fidelium, 1866, on Art. iv. of the Apostles' Creed, "And in Jesus Christ His Only Son our Lord."
16. God the Spirit, we adore Thee. The Holy Ghost. Pub. in his Lyra Fidelium, 1866, on Art. vi. of the Apostles' Creed, "I believe in the Holy Ghost."
17. Great Captain of God's armies. For Purity. Written in 1864 for the Ch. of England Purity Society, and printed in Church Bells, April 16, 1864.
18. Hail, Mother of our Lord. Purification of Divine Service. Written in 1864 at Haggerston; and included in the author's Hymns, 1886, as a "Hymn after Benediction."
19. How can we praise Thee, Father! For the Church. Written for the Festival of the Church Penitential Home for Waifs and Strays," 1866, and printed in the Monthly Packet, 1866.
20. In there no hope for those who lie! Missions. Written in 1870 for the Monthly Packet; and also included in the author's Hymns, 1886.
21. Jesu, be my heart most precious. Jesus, All in All. A tr. of Thomas à Kempis's "De dulcedine Jesu," made for the Rev. S. Kettlewell's Thomas à Kempis, 1892.
22. Lo! they 'were, and they are, and shall be. St. Michael and all Angels. Written in 1871 for The Scottish Guardian, in which it was given in 1879.
23. Lord Christ, my Master dear. For Church Workers. Written for the Sunday School Teachers of St. Paul's, Haggerston, 1868, and given in his Hymns, 1886.
24. Lord of the harvest, it is right and meet. Missions, Thanksgiving. Written for the Second Day of Intercession for Foreign Missions, 1871, and pub. in The Knight of Intercession, 1872, and in the 1886 Appendix to the H. A. & M. as somewhat altered.
25. Most true, most High; O Trinity. Holy Trinity. A tr. of Thomas à Kempis's "O vera summa Trinitas" made for the Rev. S. Kettlewell's Thomas à Kempis, 1892.
26. My Saviour! I behold Thy life. Passiontide. Pub. in his Lyra Fidelium, 1866, on Art. iv. of the Apostles' Creed, "Suffered under Pontius Pilate, was Crucified, Dead, and Buried."
27. Now hath the golden city gone. Evening. Written at Windsor in 1868, and was pub. in the Monthly Packet in 1870. Also in The Knight of Intercession, 1872.
28. None else but Thee for evermore. God the Father. In his Lyra Fidelium, 1866, on Art. i. of the Apostles' Creed, "I believe in God the Almighty Father, Maker of Heaven and Earth."
29. O joy, the purest, noblest. Evening. A tr. in two parts of Thomas à Kempis's "O qualis quantaque lætitia" (p. 22, ii.) made for the Rev. S. Kettlewell's Thomas à Kempis, 1893. Pt. ii. begins "Unde et divinæ splendor."
30. O Thou by Whom the saints abide. Litany of the Holy Spirit. Written for a Confirmation at Haggerston in 1875, and included in the 1st ed. of The Knight of Intercession, 1872.
31. O Thou Whose love paternal. Holy Matrimony. Written at Windsor in 1862.
32. On Olivet a little band. Ascension. Pub. in his Lyra Fidelium, 1866, on Art. vi. of the Apostles' Creed, "He ascended into Heaven," &c.
33. Peace! ingway of mystic power. Peace. Written

1096 STONE, SAMUEL JOHN STOWELL, HUGH

in 1893 for The Society of St. Katharine for Invalids, and in 1895 for The Girls' Friendly Society.

34. Remember Me, above forth thy fault. Holy Communion. Written at Windsor for the Monthly Packet, in 1874, and included in The Knight of Intercession, 1876.

35. Thou Who forsook the Father's home. Christmas. Pub. in his Lyra Fidelium, 1866, as Art. iii. of the Apostles' Creed, "Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary."

36. The old year's long campaign is o'er. The New Year. Written at Windsor in 1870, and pub. in The Knight of Intercession, 1876.

37. The whole creation groans and cries. Travail of the Creation. Written at Windsor for the Monthly Packet, 1869, and included in The Knight of Intercession, 1872.

38. The world is sad with hopes that die. Eventide. Pub. in his Lyra Fidelium, 1866, as Art. xii. of the Apostles' Creed, "The Life Everlasting."

39. Their names are names of Kings. Saints Days. Written at Windsor for the Monthly Packet in 1869, and included in The Knight of Intercession, 1872.

40. Thou Who hast changed Thine elder sons. Rejected Teachers. Written in 1861 for St. Katharine's Day, and first published in 1868, and subsequently adapted for use by teachers of both sexes.

41. Thou Who didst love us when our woes began. Temperance. Written for the Ch. of England Temperance Society Magazine, 1866.

42. Thy Spirit's breathings from Macedon. Missions. Written for the First Day of Intercession for Foreign Missions, 1871.

43. Unchanging God, hear from eternal heaven. On behalf of the Jews. Written for the East London Mission, 1871, and pub. in the Report for 1872, as an adapted form in the 1868 Appendix to H. A. & M.

44. While the Shepherds kept their vigil. Christmas Carol. Written at Windsor in 1865.

45. Winter in his heart of gloom. The Resurrection of the Body. Pub. in his Lyra Fidelium, 1866, as Art. xi. of the Apostles' Creed, "The Resurrection of the Body."

47. Watchful are our waiting eyes. The Judgment. Pub. in his Lyra Fidelium, 1866, as Art. xii. of the Apostles' Creed, "From thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead."

46. Ye faithful few of Israel's captive days. Holy Scriptures. Written at Windsor for the Monthly Packet, in 1869.

Some of Mr. Stone's finer hymns, including "Round the Sacred City gather;" "The Church's One Foundation;" "Weary of earth and laden with my sin," and others, are annotated under their respective first lines. These, together with the 48 above, are given in his Hymns, 1886, some of the 8vs being recast. Additional 8vs. from Thomas à Kempis are also noted under his name.

Another hymn, inseparably associated with Mr. Stone's name is:—

49. Lord of our Soul's salvation. National Thanksgiving. This was ordered by command of Her Majesty the Queen to be sung at the Thanksgiving for the Recovery of H. R. H. The Prince of Wales, on Feb. 27, 1872. In its original form it was in 7 st. of 8 l., and was sung to the tune "Hanover" (Irons). For use in public worship, the necessary mutilations as to time in the Cathedral service, a selection of four verses only—the 1st, a combination of the 1st and 4th, the 6th, and the 7th—was adapted by the author for use in St. Paul's." The full text was included in The Knight of Intercession, 1874.

Mr. Stone's hymns vary considerably in metre and subject, and thus present a pleasing variety not always found in the compositions of popular hymn-writers. His best hymns are well designed and clearly expressed. The tone is essentially dogmatic and hopeful. The absence of rich poetic thought and graceful fancy is more than atoned for by a masterly condensation of Scripture facts and of Church teaching given tersely and with great vigour. His changes and antitheses are frequently abrupt, in many instances too much so for congregational purposes, and his vocabulary is somewhat limited. His rhythm, except where broken either by long or by compound words, is rarely at fault, and his rhyme is usually perfect. A few of his hymns are plaintive and pathetic, as the tender "Weary of earth and laden with my sin"; others are robly musical, as "Lord of the harvest! it is right and meet"; but the greater part are strongly outspoken utterances of a manly faith, where dogma, prayer, and praise are interwoven with much skill. Usually the key-note of his song is Hope. He d. Nov. 19, 1900. [J. J.]

Stowe, Harriet, née Beecher, daughter of the Rev. Lyman Beecher, D.D., was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, June 15, 1812. In 1832, her father having been appointed President of Lane Seminary, Cincinnati, Ohio, she removed there with the family; and in 1833 was married to the Rev. Calvin E. Stowe, D.D., Professor of Languages and Biblical Literature in the same Institution. Her high reputation as an author is well known; and the immense success of Uncle Tom's Cabin, which first appeared in The National Era, in 1852, ensures her a lasting reputation. She has also written other well-known works. Three of her hymns appeared in the Plymouth Collection, edited by her brother, H. W. Beecher, in 1855:—

1. Still, still with Thee, when purple morning breaketh. Communion with God.

2. That mystic word of Thine, O sovereign Lord. Abiding in Jesus.

3. When winds are raging o'er the upper ocean. Peace.

Another hymn by Mrs. Stowe, "How beautiful, said he of old" (The Gospel Minstrel), is No. 231 in the Boston Hymn of the Spirit, 1864. Her poetical pieces were pub. in her Religious Poems, 1867; and from a poem therein the hymn, "Knocking, knocking, who is there?" (Christ knocking), in Sankey's Sac. Songs and Solos is adapted. [F. M. B.]

Stowell, Hugh, M.A., s. of Hugh Stowell, Rector of Ballaugh, near Ramsey, was b. at Douglas, Isle of Man, Dec. 3, 1799, and educated at St. Edmund Hall, Oxford, B.A. 1822; M.A. 1826. He was ordained in 1823, and held the curacy of Shipscombe, Gloucestershire; and then that of Holy Trinity, Huddersfield. Subsequently he was Curate in charge of St. Stephen's, Salford, and became rector of Christ Church, Salford, in 1831. In 1845 he was appointed Hon. Canon in Chester Cathedral; in 1851 Chaplain to the Bp. of Manchester; and Rural Dean of Eccles. He d. at Salford, Oct. 8, 1865. His Memoir, by the Rev. J. B. Marsden, was pub. in 1868. Canon Stowell was a popular and effective preacher. His publications included Protestantism Tested, 1845; A Model for Men of Business, 1854; Pleasures of Religion and Other Poems, 1832; The Peaceful Valley, 1838; and a large number of single sermons, pamphlets, &c. His Sel. of Ps. & Hys. was pub. as:—

A Selection of Psalms & Hymns Suited to the Services of the Church of England. By the Rev. H. Stowell, M.A., Manchester. Printed by H. ray Smith, St. Ann's Square, 1831.

This Sel. contained 233 hymns, in addition to versions of the Psalms. Of the hymns the following were by the compiler:—

1097

STOWELL, THOMAS ALFRED STRAUSS, VICTOR F. VON 1097

1. Almighty Shepherd, Who didst give. (1858.) The Good Shepherd.
2. From every stormy wind that blows. See p. 399, i.
3. Jesus Saviour, look down in kindness. Sunday School Anniversary.
4. Great God, we dare not bow the knee. Holy Communion.
5. Mock Lamb of God, on Thee. Lent.
6. To Thee, O God, we raise. Sunday School Anniversary.
7. Thee every heart, wake every tongue. Sunday School Anniversary.
8. When Jesus left the glorious sky. For an Infants' School.
9. To-day, in the morning of our years. Sunday School Anniversary.

The 12th ed. of this Sel. pub. by Canon Stowell in 1864, was increased to 275 hymns, the additional hymns being in nearly every instance his own compositions. In addition to those already given we have:—

10. Again our yearly strain we raise. 1864.
11. Another year has glided past. 1864.
12. Children of Jerusalem, arise. (Before 1846.)
13. Before Thy throne, O Lord, we bend. (Before 1846.)
14. By passing dangers compassed round. 1843 (?).
15. Christ, when we call to blessed Lamb. 1844.
16. Dear Saviour, ere we leave to-day. 1844 (?).
17. Hark, how sweet those infant voices. 1841 (?).
18. How fruitless is the ploughman's toil. 1854.
19. How gently in night's silent hours. 1850.
20. Jesus is our Shepherd, Wyling, &c. 1843.
21. Jesus, Lord, we look to Thee. 1853.
22. Jesus, we wait on Thee. 1853.
23. Jesus, our Saviour and our Lord. (Before 1846.)
24. Jesus, Prophet of Thy Church. 1861.
25. Lord, if our land be great and free. 1851.
26. Lord, in Thy mercy hear our cry. 1855.
27. Lord, in Thy mercy hear our cry. 1855.
28. Mock Lamb of God, Who dost impart. 1859.
29. O God, the loyal sign of grace. 1854.
30. Sailing o'er life's changeful ocean. (Before 1844.)
31. Saviour, Who by Thy cross and grave. 1844.
32. The day of rest is passed away. (Before 1846.)
33. The morn of our life-time is fast gliding by. (Before 1846.)
34. Though our lot be poor and lowly. 1847.
35. Wake, wake our yearly strain anew. 1853.
36. Wake, wake our yearly strain anew. 1853.
37. Wake, wake the joyful song. 1844.
38. We, a little simple throng. (Before 1846.)
39. We, little pilgrims of a day. 1846.
40. We will not weep as others do. 1857.
41. We will not weep as others do. 1845.
42. What is your life? It glances by. 1860.
43. What though our earthly lot be low. 1854.

These hymns were all written for the Anniversary Services of Christ Church Sunday Schools, Salford, and are included with others in a special Appendix in the 1877 ed. of the Sel. as above. Other hymns by Canon Stowell are:—

44. Children of old, Hosannah sang. Sunday Schools. 1858.
45. Lord of all power and might, Father of love, &c. Missions. Written for the Jubilee of the S. & F. Bible Society, March 7, 1825.
46. Shepherd of the reasoned sheep. The Good Shepherd.
47. Pilgrim in the narrow way. Sunday School Anniversary. This was his last hymn, and was written for the Christ Church S. School Anniversary, 1865.

Of Canon Stowell's hymns the most popular are Nos. 2, 3, 29 and 44. As a writer for children he was very successful. All the foregoing hymns are in the 15th ed. of his Sel. edited by his son, Manchester, 1877; and in Hymns. By the late Rev. Canon Stowell, M.A. Manchester, 1868. [J. J.]

Stowell, Thomas Alfred, M.A., s. of Canon H. Stowell, was b. at Salford, July 15, 1831. He was Bridgman Exhibitioner at Queen's College, Oxford, 1853, and B.A. in honours in 1855. Taking Holy Orders in 1857, he became Curate of Bolton, Diocese of Ripon, 1857–59; Incumbent of St. Stephen's, Bowling, Bradford, 1860–65; and then Rector of Christ Church, Salford, in succession to his father, 1865. He was also appointed Rural Dean of Salford in 1876, and Hon. Canon in Manchester Cathedral in 1879. Canon T. A. Stowell has pub. The Church Catechism simply and clearly explained, 1882, various Sermons, papers on Education, &c. Most of his hymns were written for the Anniversary Sermons of Christ Church S. Schools, Salford (nearly 2000 children), and include:—

1. Blessed Saviour, hear us when we cry. 1872.
2. Dear Lord, Thy children look to Thee.
3. In God's holy dwelling. 1873.
4. Lord, on Thy day, within Thy holy dwelling. 1877.
5. Lord, Thy children lowly bending. 1876.
6. My Saviour, be thou near me, When I lie down, &c. 1874.
7. O Jesu (Saviour) we have promised Henceforth to be Thine Own. Confirmation. 1877.
8. Seven day of rest which God has given. Sunday. 1866.
9. While the sun is shining. Work. 1869.

These 9 hymns are in Canon T. A. Stowell's 1877 ed. of his father's Sel., and of these Nos. 3 and 9 are the most popular. He is also the author of:—

10. Come, Christian youths and maidens. S. School Anniversary. In Mrs. Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1881, and others.

11. Hail the holy women came. Easter. In the Church Monthly, April, 1884.

12. Remember thy Creator. Youthful Piety. In the Church S. School Mag., Feb. 1848.

13. Saviour, we are young and weak. The Christian Hero. In Mrs. Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1881.

Several of these are popular hymns for children, and will no doubt gradually come into somewhat extensive use. [J. J.]

Stratford, Elizabeth, daughter of H. Stratford, of Belper, b. in London, Oct. 30, 1828; d. at Belper, April 4, 1868. Her hymns appeared in Hymns for the Collects throughout the Year, for the Use of Children, 1857 (W. F. Stevenson's Hys. for Ch. and Home, 1873). From this, "God Almighty heareth ever" (Love of God), "Once to our world there came" (Transitoriness), and "We praise Thee, we bless Thee, O Father in heaven" (Praise for Salvation), have come into C. U. [J. J.]

Strauss, Victor Friedrich von, was b. at Blücksburg, Schaumburg-Lippe, Sept. 18, 1809. He became a student of law at the Universities of Erlangen, Bonn, and Göttingen. In 1832 he married Albertine von Torney, daughter of a Hanoverian landed proprietor; and, in 1872, at the request of her relations, added her name to his own (Strauss und Torney), having been previously, in 1851, raised to the Austrian nobility. Having entered the diplomatic service of Schaumburg-Lippe, in 1832, he was appointed, in 1840, Archivrath at Bückeburg; and attended the Frankfurt Diet as Gesandt, in 1850, as the accredited representative of Schaumburg-Lippe. He was also, from 1853 to 1866, the regular representative of Schaumburg-Lippe, at the North German Diet. Thereafter he retired on a pension, and spent at Easter, 1869, to Erlangen, where he wrote a tr. of the works of the Chinese philosopher Lah-tsè, with a commentary (pub. 1870). In 1872 he removed to Dresden, where he still [1889] resides. In 1889 he pub. the 1st vol. of a work on Altkirchliche Gütterglaube (Koch vii. 270; O. Krum, 1879, p. 525, &c.).

1098

Both as a scholar and as a sacred poet, Strauss holds high rank among his contemporaries in Germany; not so much for popularity, as for wealth of ideas, breadth of culture, beauty of form, and clear, simple expression. His influence on the development of the hymn-book and hymn-writing, was mainly through the impression of manifest unlikeness left upon him by reading D. F. Strauss's Leben Jesu, 1835. This led him to study the New Testament for himself; and to find, in the old Lutheran hymns, the food which his soul craved. Such hymns, while, like most modern hymns, in his case subjective, often catch the ring and noble simplicity of the older objective classical hymns, but are more finished in form. Many have passed into recent German hymnbooks. His collected hymns appeared in 3 vols. Stuttgart, large, 1844–45; and in his own—(1) Gaildorf, Scheible, 1841; (2) Lieder aus der Gemeine für das Christliche Kirchenjahr, Hamburg, 1843; and (3) Weltliche und Geistliche, Heidelberg, 1854. The hymns in No. 3 are largely on the model of Goethe's Westöstlicher Divan, and entitled Geistliches zu Gedichten und Liedern. The work entitled Das Kirchenjahr en Masse, Heidelberg, 1848, is a series of poetical meditations, and not of hymns properly so called.

The hymns by Strauss which have passed into English are :—

i. Leitpunkt und nahrst Gottes Ruhm. Advent, 1st pub. in 1856, as above, pt. ii., p. 8, in 16 st., entitled "Advent." Tr. as, "The Lord doth in His Kingdom come." By J. Kelly, 1885.

ii. Was gingst auch du. Easter Eve. 1st pub., 1843, as above, p. 126, in 7 st. of 5 l., and entitled, "The Lord in the Grave." Included in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850, No. 560. Tr. as :—

Thou wert captive'd. A good tr., omitting st. v., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 34; and thence in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 56. Included in the Hymnary, 1872, Parish H. Bk., 1875, Evang. Hyl., N. York, 1880, and others.

iii. O mein Herz, gieb dich zufrieden. Waiting on God. 1st pub., 1841, as above, p. 160, in 5 st. of 8 l., and entitled, "Tranquillity." Included in Knapp's Ev. L. S., 1850, No. 1055. The tr. in C. U. is :—

O my heart, be calm and patient. A tr. of st. i., ii., v., by Miss Borthwick, as No. 243 in Dr. Pagenmacher's Coll., 1864.

Other trs. are :—

(1) "O my heart, be calm, confiding." By Miss Burbidge, in the British Herald, June 1866, p. 267; and (2) "O my heart, be calm and patient." By Miss Bevan, in her Songs of Faith, 1870, p. 74. [J. M.]

Streatfeild, Charlotte, née Saint, eldest daughter of the Rev. J. J. Saint, Rector of Spaldhurst, was b. at Spaldhurst, Dec. 31, 1829, and married, in 1852, to Charles N. Streatfeild, Lieutenant, Royal Navy, eldest s. of Major General Streatfeild, R.-yal Engineers. Mrs. Streatfeild has pub. :—

(1) Hymns and Verses on the Collects: Lond., Longmans, 1865. (2) Hymns on the Lord's Prayer, and the Home above: Lond., Skeffington, 1867. (3) A Little Garland of De Sanctis, and other Verses: Oxford, Mowbray, 1877. (4) The Story of the Good Shepherd: Lond., Skeffington, 1885. Mrs. Streatfeild also contributed to Mrs. Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1881.

The following include Mrs. Streatfeild's hymns in C. U. :—

1. And didst Thou hunger then, O Lord. 1st S. in Lent. Appeared in her Hys. and Verses on the Collects, 1865.

2. Brothers, tread the holy portals. For the Dedication of a Church. Pub. by Skeffington, with music by M. S. Skeffington. A Processional.

3. He scarcely felt the cruel stones. St. Stephen. Pub. in her Hys. and Verses on the Collects, 1865.

4. High o'er the glittering temple. Gospel for 1st S. in Lent. Contributed to Mrs. Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1881.

5. How beautiful the hills of God. Gospel, 1st S. in Lent. Contributed to Mrs. Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1881.

6. I linger round the fold of God. Lent. Pub. in The Story of the Good Shepherd, 1885.

7. I see a Cross, a Cross of shame. Lent. Appeared in her Hys. on the Love of Jesus, &c., 1877.

8. Jesus, tender Shepherd, looking for Thine own. The Good Shepherd. Pub. in The Story of the Good Shepherd, 1885.

9. Sweet Shepherd, Thou hast sought us. The Good Shepherd. As explained, in her Hys. on the Love of Jesus, &c., 1877; and The Story of the Good Shepherd, 1885.

10. There is joy amongst the angels. Joy in Heaven over Repenting Sinners. Pub. in her Hys. on the Love of Jesus, &c., 1877; and The Story of the Good Shepherd, 1885.

Mrs. Streatfeild has also a "Litany for a Children's Service," in A Little Garland of the Scents, 1877. Nos. 1, 3, 4, 5 and 7 of the above hymns are in Mrs. Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1881, and they all rank with the sweetest and most tender of modern verses for children. Some have been arranged as songs, and have been set to music by M. S. Skeffington. Mrs. Streatfeild's prose works include Meditations on the Seven Last Words, 1874; and Words of Comfort, 1875. [J. J.]

Strong, Nathan, D.D., a leading Congregational divine of his day, was b. at Coventry, Connecticut, Oct. 16, 1748, and educated at Yale College, where he graduated in 1769. His first studied law, but soon turned his attention to the ministry. In January 1774 he became the Pastor of the First Congregational Church at Hartford, and remained there to his death in 1816. In 1796 he won much repute through his essay on The Doctrine of Eternal Misery consistent with the Infinite Benevolence of God. He founded The Connecticut Evangelical Magazine, in 1800, and also took a prominent part in establishing the Connecticut Home Mission Society in 1801. His degree of D.D. was conferred by the University of Princeton. His services to American hymnology, as the principal editor of the Hartford Sel. [American Hymnody, p. 97. tr.], 1799, have been very great. As in that Sel. the author's names were not given, most of his numerous contributions thereto cannot be identified. Six of those hymns, however, are reproduced in Nettleton's Village Hymns, 1824, with his name attached thereto. These are :—

1. Alas, alas, how blind I've been. The Sinner awakened.

2. Blest Lord, behold the guilty scene. Prayer for sinners to Rescue.

3. Dark and lone I walked this dreary road. The Sinner's Complaint.

4. Sinner, behold, I've heard thy groans. The Further Going.

5. Clouds by the law, I'm justly slain. The Love, and the Glory.

6. Thrummer harvest spreads the fields. The Great Harvest.

In addition to these the following are from the Hartford Sel., 1799 (but not in the Village Hym.) They are the best known and most widely used of Strong's hymns :—

7. Almighty Sovereign of the skies. National Thanksgiving.

8. Swell the anth-m, raise the song. National Thanksgiving. [F. M. B.]

Stryker, Melancthon Woolsey, D.D., s. of the Rev. Isaac Pierson Stryker, was b. at Vernon, New York, Jan. 7, 1851, and educated at Hamilton College (1872) and Auburn Theological Seminary (1876). In 1876 he entered the Presbyterian ministry as Pastor at Auburn, New York. In 1879 he removed to Ithaca, N. Y., in 1883 to Holyoke, Massachusetts, and in 1885 to Chicago, Illinois. He received his degree of D.D. from Hamilton College in 1889. He has edited Christian Chorals, 1885; New Alleluia, 1880–86; and Church Song, 1889. He was also joint editor with H. P. Main of The Church Praise Book, 1882. He has also pub. Hymns and Verses, 1883, and Songs of Mirian, and Other Hymns and Verses, 1888. To two of these works which have been designed for daily use in divine worship Dr. Stryker contributed the following original hymns :—

i. The Church Praise Book, 1882.

1. Burst forth, O Bridegroom, from Thy chamber bright. Second Advent desired. (1882.)

2. Death cannot make my soul afraid. Death Contemplated. (1881.)

3. Eternal day hath dawned. Heaven. (1881.)

4. Mighty God, Thy Church recover. Missions. (1882.)

5. Sing again, ye starry chime. Christmas. (1885.)

6. Sing, Israel, for the Lord your strength. Passing the Red Sea. (1882.)

7. The tribes of faith from all the earth. Heaven. (1881.)

8. Thy Kingdom come, O blessed Son of God. Second Advent Desired. (1880.) Re-written in Church Song, 1889, as "Thy Kingdom come, O everlasting Lord."

9. When the everlasting Lord. Morning. (1880.)

ii. Church Song, 1889.

10. Arouse Thy Church, Almighty God. Missions. (1887.)

11. Father, as here we bow. Holy Trinity. (1886.)

12. Four hundred years their course have sped. American National Hymn. (1885.)

13. God of our Fathers, our God to-day. National Hymn. (1886.)

14. Lo, where that spotless Lamb for sin provided. Passiontide. (1884.)

15. O Maker, at Thy holy throne. Holy Baptism. (1885.)

16. O God, Thy judgments give the King, Thy Son. Missions. (1882.)

17. O Thou, Eternal, Changeless, Infinite. Praise to God. (1886.)

18. O Thou, Omnipresent. Omnipresence of the Father. (1886.)

19. O Thou Shepherd of Thine Israel, hear us. Ps. lxxx. (1883.)

20. Thou art our Redeemer. Opening of a Place of Worship. (1885.)

21. Robbed, bruised, and dying, once I lay. The Good Samaritan. (1885.)

22. Sing, every boy and maiden. Praise to God. (1886.)

23. Thee, Lord of my life, by the words Thou hast said. Lent. (1887.)

24. Thy grace is all of grace. Divine Grace. (1888.)

25. To Thee, our God, these babes we bring. Holy Baptism. (1885.)

26. Tranquilly, slowly, serenely, lowly. Burial. (1884.)

27. We close Thy blessed Word. Sunday Evening. (1887.)

28. While all the night-stars fade and wane. Easter. (1884.)

In addition to these original hymns Dr. Stryker has several translations from the German which are in C. U., and are noted in this Dictionary (see Index of Authors and Translators). One of his hymns, No. 313, "Now I lay me down to sleep" (Child's Evening hymn), in Church Song, 1889 (dated 1884), begins with a stanza by another hand. In the same work there are also several of his tunes. Dr. Stryker's hymns are massive and rugged, full of dogmatism and fire, but they lack unity and purity of rhythm. In some instances words stand for thoughts, and exclamations for ideas. Nevertheless a few will live. (So also American Hymnody in Various.) [J. J.]

Stubbs, Jonathan. [Staffordshire Hymnbooks.]

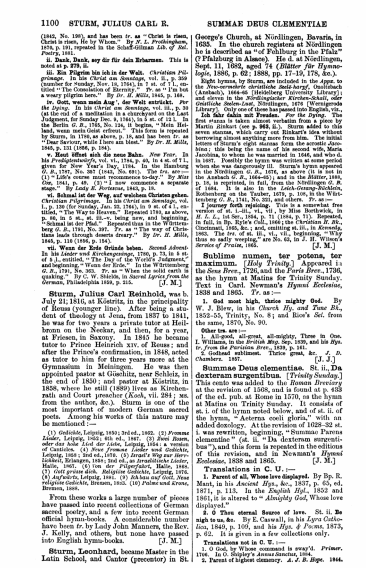
Sturm, Christoph Christian, s. of Johann Jakob Sturm, lawyer (Imperial notary) at Augsburg, was b. at Augsburg, Jan. 25, 1740. He studied at the universities of Jena (M.A. 1761) and Halle. He was then appointed, in 1763, as one of the masters in the Pædagogium at Halle, and in 1765 became Conrector of the school at Soran, in Brandenburg. In 1767 he returned to Halle as fourth pastor of the Market Church, and became third pastor in the same year. He left Halle in 1769, to become second pastor of the church of the Holy Spirit at Magdeburg, where he passed the happiest part of his professional life, and where he wrote most of his devotional works. Finally, in 1778, he was appointed chief pastor of St. Peter's Church at Hamburg. Here he at first lived happily, beloved and respected as a preacher and author, until, in 1782, his views on the Salvation of the Heathen led J. M. Goeze, chief pastor of St. Katherine's Church in Hamburg, to accuse him of Rationalism, &c. The resulting controversy embittered and shortened Sturm's life. In his latter years he suffered from a weak chest; and in the night of Aug. 10–11, 1786, he was seized with an attack of spitting of blood, from which he never recovered. He d. at Hamburg, on Aug. 26, 1786 (Koch, vi., 357; Bode, p. 136, &c.).

Sturm is best known to English readers by his devotional works, which were for some time very popular, viz., his "Confessions with God in the Morning Hours" (Betrachtungen über die Werke Gottes, 3 vols., Halle, 1780), and his "Reflections on the Works of God" (Betrachtungen über die Werke Gottes, &c., Halle, 1772–78). He was one of the most prolific hymn-writers of the Rationalistic period, being the author of more than 1,000 hymns. His hymns are somewhat diffuse in style of the time, and are not without earnestness, devotion, and lyric power; but they are often too rhetorical, and not sufficiently simple. They found great favour with the compilers of hymn-books from 1765 to 1805, but not many have survived. His collected hymns (1,000) appeared as hymns on the Works of God in Nature, and hymns for Children. Long lists of his works are given by Koch and Bode. We need only note the following :—(1) Der Christ am Sonntage, Halle & Leipzig, 1764–65 (Hamburg Library); (2) Der Christ in der Natur, 1766 (Hamburg); hymns by Sturm. (3) Sammlung geistlicher Gesänge über die Werke Gottes in der Natur, Halle, 1775 (Brit. Mus. and Wernigerode Library). Over 40 of the hymns are originals by Sturm. (4) Vollständiger Gesangbuch für Sonn- und Festtage, Magdeburg, 1779–80. Nearly 50 hymns seem to have been written by Sturm for this work. (5) Freitagsmelodien, Hamburg, 1779–84 (Brit. Mus.). An eight years' course of sermon-outlines on the Gospels for Sundays and Festivals; with over 80 hymns by Sturm. (6) Sammlung geistlicher Gesänge zum Kirchen- und Kirchengebrauche, Hamburg, 1786 (Royal Library, Hannover). With 54 hymns, many being recasts of his earlier hymns, made by himself or by J. S. Dietrich. (7) Gesangbuch für Garten-freunde und Liebhaber der Natur, Hamburg, 1787 (Hamburg Library). More than 60 of the hymns seem to have been written up Sturm for this work.

The hymns by Sturm which have passed into English are :—

1. Lobet ansern, anbetenden, Lobet den Herr, den uns verbindet. Easter. In his Predigtentwürfe, vol. iii., 1778, p. 144, in 8 st. of 8 l. It is based on J. C. Lavater's "Lobet ansern, anbetenden" (in his Zweites Pfingst-christlicher Lieder, Zürich, 1774), and on Johann Friedrich Dunnicke's [b. Nov. 21, 1719, d. Quedlinburg, Dec. 29, 1783, as Pastor of Quedlinburg and Superintendent of St. Ulrich's (Ägidius') church] "Halleluja! Lasset loben" (in his Christliche Empfindungen, Quedlinburg, 1782). Sturm's hymn is in the Hamburg G. B. 1791, No. 109



1100 STURM, JULIUS CARL R. SUMMAE DEUS CLEMENTIAE

(1845, No. 136), and has been tr. as "Christ is risen, Christ is risen," by Miss C. L. Prentiss, in her Hymns of Faith, 1876, p. 101, reprinted in the Schaff-Gilman Lib. of Rel. Poetry, 1881.

ii. Dank, Dank, sey dir für dein Erbarmen. This is noted at p. 279, ii.

iii. Ein Pilgrim bin ich in der Welt. Christian Pilgrimage. In his Christ am Sonntage, vol. ii., p. 359 (Leipzig, 1844), in 9 st. of 4 l., entitled, "Das Lied des Christen" ("The Complaint of Heresy"). Tr. as "I'm but a weary pilgrim here." By Dr. H. Mills, 1845, p. 169.

iv. Gott, wenn mein Aug', der Welt entrückt. For the Dying. In his Christ am Sonntage, vol. iii., p. 26 (at the end of a meditation on a churchyard on the Last Judgment, for Sunday Dec. 3, 1843), in 5 st. of 12 l. In the Stäudlin, ii. 1844-45, it is entitled, "Mein Verlangen, wenn mein Auge." This form is repeated by Sturm, in 1846, as above, p. 16, and has been tr. as "Dear Saviour, while I here am blest." By Dr. H. Mills, 1845, p. 233 (1864, p. 184).

v. Rest öffnet sich die neue Bahn. New Year. In his Predigtentwürfe, vol. vi., 1784, p. 40, in 4 st. of 8 l., entitled "Das Neujahr." In the Stäudlin, ii. 1844-45, p. 179, No. 387 (1842, No. 681). The trs. are:—(1) "Life's course must recommence to-day." By Miss Cox, 1841, p. 49. (2) "I now commence a separate stage." By Miss C. Wynne, 1845, p. 19.

vi. Schlaf und der Tod sind Brüder. Christian-ghen. Christian Pilgrimage. In his Christ am Sonntage, vol. i., p. 126 (for Sunday, Jan. 23, 1841), in 9 st. of 4 l., entitled, "The Way to Heaven." Repeated 1846, as above, p. 86, in 5 st., st. iii.-v., being new, and beginning, "Ihr Pilger, die ihr hier auf Erden." In the Stäudlin, ii. 1844-45, p. 190, No. 407. Tr. as "The way of Christians leads through deserts dreary." By Dr. H. Mills, 1845, p. 118 (1864, p. 184).

vii. Wenn der Erde Gründe beben. Second Advent. In his Lieder und Kirchengesänge, 1780, p. 75, in 8 st. of 8 l., entitled, "The Day of the World's Judgment." In the Stäudlin, ii. 1844-45, p. 179, No. 386; and Knapp, ii. 8, 170, No. 363. Tr. as "When the wild earth is quaking." By C. W. Stiefel, in Sacred Lyrics from the German, Philadelphia 1859, p. 315. [J. M.]

Sturm, Julius Carl Reinhold, was b. July 21, 1816, at Köstritz, in the principality of Reuss (younger line). After being a student of theology at Jena, from 1837 to 1841, he was for two years a private tutor at Heilbronn on the Neckar, and then, for a year, at Friesen, in Saxony. In 1845 he became tutor to Prince Heinrich XIV. of Reuss: and after the Prince's confirmation, in 1848, acted as tutor to him for three years more at the Gymnasium in Meiningen. He was then appointed pastor at Gieschütz, near Schleiz, in the end of 1850; and pastor at Köstritz, in 1858, where he still (1889) lives as Kirchenrath and Court preacher (Koch, vii. 284; with, from the author, &c.). Sturm is one of the most important of modern German sacred poets. Among his works of this nature may be mentioned:—

(1) Gedichte, Leipzig, 1850; 2nd ed., 1862. (2) Fromme Lieder, Leipzig, 1853; 4th ed., 1867. (3) Buss Sturm, oder das hohe Lied der Liebe, Leipzig, 1854; a version of Canticles. (4) Neue Fromme Lieder und Gedichte, Leipzig, 1858; 2nd ed., 1878. (5) Israel's Weg zur Herrlichkeit, Leipzig, 1860. (6) Gedichte aus der Gefangenschaft, Halle, 1865. (7) Um der Pilgerfahrt, Halle, 1866. (8) Gott grüsse dich. Religiöse Gedichte, Leipzig, 1876. (9) Auf nach Ost, Leipzig, 1881. (10) Ob kan auf Gott. Neue religiöse Gedichte, Bremen, 1885. (10) Palme und Krone, Bremen, 1888.

From these works a large number of pieces have passed into recent collections of German sacred poetry, and a few into recent German official hymn-books. A considerable number have been tr. by Lady John Manners, the Rev. J. Kelly, and others, but none have passed into English hymn-books. [J. M.]

Sturm, Leonhard, became Master in the Latin School, and Cantor (precentor) in St. George's Church, at Nördlingen, Bavaria, in 1633. In the church registers at Nördlingen he is described as "of Fuhlburg in the Pfalz" (? Pfalzburg in Alsace). He d. at Nördlingen, Sept. 11, 1682, aged 74 (Blätter für Hymnologie, 1886, p. 62; 1888, pp. 17-19, 178, &c.).

Eight hymns, by Sturm, are included in the appx. to the Neu-vermehrte christliche Seele-harpf, Ouolzbach (Ansbach), 1664-66 (Heidelberg University Library); and seven in the appx. to the Geistliche Seelen-Lust, Nördlingen, 1676 (Wernigerode Library). Only one of these has passed into English, viz.,

Ich fahr mit Freuden. For the Dying. The first stanza is taken almost verbatim from a piece by Martin Rinkart (see p. 963, ii.). Sturm added to this seven stanzas, which carry out Rinkart's idea without improving it. The initial letters of Sturm's eight stanzas form the acrostic Jacobina; this being the name of his second wife, Maria Jacobina, to whom he was married in 1646, and who d. in 1667. Possibly the hymn was written at some period between these dates. It is found in the Seelen-Lust, and in the Nördlingen G. B., 1676, as above (it is not in the Ansbach G. B., 1664-66); and in the Blätter, 1888, p. 18, is reprinted, in full, from the Nördlingen G. B. 1676. It is also found in the Nördlingen G. B., Gotha, Rothenburg, and Zweibrücken, 1675, p. 100, by the Wittenberg G. B., 1741, No. 321, and others. Tr. as —

I journey forth rejoicing. This is a somewhat free version of st. i.-iii., vi., vii., by Miss Borthwick, in St. L., ist Ser., 1864, p. 71 (1884, p. 71). Repeated, in 1869, in Miss Borthwick's Hymns from the Land of Luther, Cincinnati, 1885, &c.; and, omitting st. iii., in Kennedy, 1863. The trs. of st. iii., vi., vii. beginning, "Why thus so sadly weeping," are No. 63, in J. H. Wiser's Service of Praise, 1865. [J. M.]

Sublime numen, ter potens, ter maximum. (Holy Trinity.) Appeared in the Sens Brev., 1726, and the Paris Brev., 1736, as the hymn at Matins for Trinity Sunday. Text in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

1. God most high, thrice mighty God. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-55, Trinity, No. 8; and Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870, No. 90.

Other trs. are :—

1. Almighty, great, all-mighty, Three in One. By Bp. Mant, in the British Mag. Nov. 1839, and his Hys. for from the Parishes Brev., 1939, p. 161.

2. Godhead sublimest. Thrice great, &c. J. D. Chambers. 1857. [J. J.]

Summae Deus clementiae. St. ii., Da dexteram surgentibus. (Trinity Sunday.) This couplet was added to the Roman Breviary at the revision of 1568, and is found at p. 433 of the ed. pub. at Rome in 1570, as the hymn at Matins on Trinity Sunday. It consists of st. i. of the hymn noted below, and of st. ii. of the hymn, "Æterna cœli gloria," with an added doxology. At the revision of 1628-32 st. i. was rewritten, beginning, "Summae Parens clementiae" (id. ii. = "Da dexteram surgentibus"), and this form is repeated in the editions of this revision, and in Neumann's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U. :—

1. Parent of all, Whose love displayed. By Bp. R. Mant, in his Ancient Hys., &c., 1837, p. 65, ed. 1871, p. 115. In the English Hy., 1852 and 1861, it is altered to "Almighty God, Whose love displayed."

2. O Thou eternal Source of love. St. ii. Be nigh to us, &c. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 109, and his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 62. It is given in a few collections only.

Translations not in C. U. :—

1. O God, by Whose command is sway'd. Primer, 1706. In O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884.

2. Parent of highest clemency. A. J. B. Hope. 1866.

3. Of boundless love Parental Source. W. J. Copeland. 1848.

4. Great Source of goodness, Godhead blest. St. R. Give Thy right Hand. J. Wallace. 1874. [J. J.]

Summae Deus clementiae Mundique factor machinae. (Saturday. Morning.) This has been ascribed to St. Ambrose, as by Bäumer, in his "De una et non trina Deitate," 897, but it is not one of the twelve hymns received as genuine by the Benedictine editors of St. Ambrose, nor is it included by Biraghi as one of the Inni sinceri e Carmi di Sant' Ambrogio, 1862. Daniel, i. No. 24, gives both this text and that of the Roman Brev., 1632 (see below), and at iv. p. 38, cites it as in a Rhenish MS. of the 10th cent., ranking it among the hymns of the 7th or 8th cent. Mone, i. p. 372, cites it as in a MS. of the 8th cent. at Trier. Among the British Museum MSS. it is found in three 11th cent. Hymnaries of the English Church (Vesp. D. xii. f. 245; Jul. A. vi. f. 39; Harl. 2961, f. 229b): in a Monastic Hymnarium of the 11th cent. (Add. 30851, f. 175): a Monastic Breviary of the 11th cent. (Add. 30848, f. 80), &c. It is in a MS. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (391, p. 227); in three MSS. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall, Nos. 387, 413, 414; and in the Latin Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Ch. (Surtees Society's), 1851, is printed from an 11th cent. MS. at Durham (B. iii. 32, f. 9). In the Roman Breviary, 1632, it begins "Summae Parens clementiae, Mundi regis qui machinam." The original form is included in the older Roman (Venice, 1478), Sarum, York, Aberdeen, and other Breviaries, for Saturday at Matins. This text is also to be found in Wackernagel, i. No. 5: Hymnarium Sarisb. 1851, p. 37; G. M. Dreves's Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, from a MS. of the 10th cent., &c. The revised text of the Roman Breviary, 1632, is given in the recent edn. of that revision, in Daniel, i. No. 24, and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. See also note on the previous hymn. [J. M.]

Both forms of this hymn have been rendered into English, viz.:—

i. Summae Deus clementiae. Mundique.

1. O God of mercies infinite. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-55.

2. Thou Framer of earth's fabric! base. By J. D. Chambers, in his Psalter, 1852, p. 248.

3. Great God of boundless mercy base. By J. D. Chambers, in his Lauds Syon, 1857, p. 31. This is given in the Hymner, 1882, with extensive alterations, as, "O God of mercy passing thought."

ii. Summae Parens clementiae, Mundi.

1. O Thou eternal Source of love. St. ii. For Thy dear mercy's sake, &c. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 35, and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 20. In limited use.

2. Great God, eternal Source of love. In Hys. for the Year, 1867. No. 314. E. Caswell, altered.

3. Father of mercies infinite. By Card. Newman, in his Verses on Religious Subjects, 1853, p. 68; and his Verses on Various Occasions, 1868, p. 215. It is in the Marquess of Bute's Roman Brev., into English, 1879, O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884, &c., and several other collections.

Other trs. are :—

1. O God, by Whose command is sway'd. Primer, 1706.

2. O God of graciousness, Maker of all we see. Hymnarium Anglicanum. 1844.

3. Parental Source of love divine. W. J. Copeland. 1848.

4. Father, Thou Whose love and care. R. Campbell. 1850.

5. Great Source of goodness, Godhead blest. St. R., May we Thy mercy, &c. J. Wallace. 1874. [J. J.]

Summae, Deus, clementiae, Septem Dolores Virginis. (Sidours of the B. V. M.) This is the hymn at Lauds in the office of the Seven Dolours, which was declared in 1814 to be of obligation. The office is found in the Preparatio officiorum . . . . ordinis servorum B. M. V. in Germanica, Prague, 1726, and includes three hymns, viz.:—

Septem. Quæ nulla lachrymarum. (See Various.)

Summae Deus clementiae. (See above.)

Stabat Mater dolorosa. (See Various.)

In the Rempten ed., 1746, of the Roman Breviary, this hymn is at p. clix. The text is to be found in recent edns. of that Breviary, and also in Daniel, iv. p. 306. Tr. as :—

1. God, in Whom all grace doth dwell. E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 171; and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 93. It is given in a few Roman Catholic hymn-books for Missions and Schools.

2. God of mercy, let us run. By F. W. Faber, in Hys. for the use of the Schools and Oratory of St. Wilfrid's Staffordshire, 1849; and Hymns and Mary, &c., 1849; Oratory Hys., 1854, and his Hymns, 1862.

Another tr. is :—

Great God of clemency supreme. By J. Wallace. 1874. [J. M.]

Summe Pater, O Creator. (Life of our Lord.) This appears in J. M. Meré's Paradisus Animæ Christianæ, Cologne, 1644, pp. 266-71, in the Section "On the Life and Passion of our Lord." It is entitled, "Rosarium D. N. Jesu Christi, prescipua vitæ ac Passionis ejus puncta, grata brevitate complectens: et ulterum meditandi materiam, facilemque praxin suppeditans." It opens with an introduction in 10 lines, the rest being divided into decades i.-v. There are three trs. of the complete poem, made in this order, viz.:—(1) In Dr. Frasey's tr. of the Paradisus Animæ Christianæ, 1867, where, according to Canon Liddon, the tr. is probably by W. J. Copeland; (2) by F. W. Faber, in his Jesus and Mary, &c., 2nd ed., 1852, and (3) by Canon F. Oakeley, in his tr. of the Paradisus, 1850. These trs., in the order of the poem, are :—

Summe Pater, O Creator.
1. Father, All-creating Mind. Frasey.
2. Father, Who from Thy throne above. Faber.
3. Father most high, Who didst so make. Oakeley.

Jam Dominum majestatis.
1. Jam, for lost sinners' sake. Frasey.
2. Jam, When Thou throne didst come. Faber.
3. Jam, Leaving the throne of glory Thou. Oakeley.

Jam Jesu Tu Pater.
1. Jam, as the waters crown Thee. Frasey.
2. Jam, the Father's words approve. Faber.
3. Jam, baptized, the Father's voice. Oakeley.

Jam Jesu Rex et Heros.
1. Jam, Lord and Master great. Frasey.
2. Jam, Who dominest it not unmeet. Faber.
3. Jam, our Lord and Master, Thou. Oakeley.

Jam crucem tam portabas.
1. Jam, now the hard cross bearing. Frasey.
2. Jam, along Thy sorrow road. Faber.
3. Jam, along Thy fearful road. Oakeley.

Jam sanctus ex sanctis.
1. Jam, by that Death of pain. Frasey.
2. Jam, all hail, Who for my sin. Faber.
3. Jam, because of all our guilt. Oakeley.

From these tra. the following hymns have come into C. U.:—

1. Father, Creator, Lord most high. Faber.
2. Jesus, along the Calvary road. Faber.
3. Jesus, by Thy Mother chosen. Faber.
4. Jesus, Who from the dead arose. Faber.

These appeared in the Cooke and Denton Church Hymnal, 1853. Another series of cantos is in the Roman Catholic Parochial H. Bk., n.d. [1880]:—

1. Jesus! Thy spotless Mother chose. Faber.
2. Jesus! how could Thy blessed feet. Faber.
3. Jesus! how could Thy blessed feet. Faber.
4. Jesus! Who saw'st on that sad night. Faber.
5. Jesus! Who is the Father praying. Faber.
6. Jesus! Who in the garden knelt. Faber.
7. Jesus! Who in Thy agony. Faber.
8. Jesus! Who from the dead arose. Faber.

There is also a canto from Faber:—"O Lord along Thy chosen road." J. Austin gives, in his Devotions in the Ancient Way of Offices, 1668, two cantos from this poem:—"Jesu, Who from Thy Father's throne;" and (2) "Jesu, Whose grace inspires Thy priests." These, tr. by Austin, are reprinted in Griffith, Farran, & Co.'s Ancient and Modern Library (Giles Fletcher's Christ's Victory and Triumph), 1888. From the canto "Jesu, Whose grace inspires Thy priests," as given in Hickes's reprint of Austin's Devotions, 1687 (see p. 97, i.), J. Wesley took st. ii.–vi., and gave them, with slight alterations, in his Charles-Town Ps. and Hys., 1736-37, and again in the Wesley Hys. & Spr. Poems, 1739, as:—"Jesu, behold the wise from far" (Wesley, P. Works, 1868-72, vol. i., p. 116). This is repeated in Lord Selborne's Bk. of Praise, 1862. [J. J.]

Summer ended, harvest o'er. G. Philemore. [Harvest.] Contributed to the Parish H. Bk., 1863, No. 180, in 8 st. of 4 l.; of which lines 3, 4, of st. i., and the whole of st. iii., were by the late Bp. Woodford, of Ely. The hymn was repeated in the Sursum Hyl., 1868, the Hymnary, 1872, the 1873 ed. of the Parish H. Bk., and others. [J. J.]

Summers, Thomas Osmond, D.D., LL.D., son of James Summers, was b. near Corfe Castle, Dorsetshire, England, Oct. 11, 1812. Proceeding to the United States in after years, he was admitted to the Baltimore Conference in 1835. From 1840 to 1845 he was a missionary in Texas; removing to Tuscaloosa, Alabama, 1844, and Charleston, South Carolina, 1846. From 1845 he acted as Secretary of the Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was also Book Editor. Subsequently he was Professor of Theology and Pastor of Vanderbilt University. He was Chairman of the Hymn Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and edited the Songs of Zion, 1851, and the Hodgson Psalter, 1855. He d. in May 1882. Dr. Summers is the author of several original works, and of the following hymns:—

1. The morning bright, With rosy light. Morning.
2. The daylight fades, The evening shades. Evening.

Concerning these Morning and Evening hymns Dr. Summers says:—

"My first child was born in January, 1845. When she was about a year old, as I was descending the Tombigbee River, I wrote the morning hymn. I wrote the Hymn for her on the back of a letter, transcribed it when I reached Mobile, and sent it to her at Tuscaloosa. That was the origin of 'The morning bright.' When editing the Southern Christian Advocate, I put it without name in the Child's Department. It was copied into the religious papers generally, and into books. My second child was born in 1847, and for her I wrote 'The daylight fades,' as far as I can recollect, about 1848. . . . The hymns were published in a volume written and now singing birdsongs with the angels." (Sherman's Hym. for Ch. & Home, Misc. Index, 1875.)

These hymns have attained to great popularity as children's hymns, and are found in numerous collections both at home and in Great Britain. The 3rd l. of st. i. of the Morning Hymn should read:—"Has waked me up from sleep," and not as found in many collections. [F. M. B.]

Summi largitor præmii. [Lent.] Sometimes ascribed to St. Gregory the Great, but not assigned to him by the Benedictine editors. It is found in three mss. of the 11th cent. in the British Museum (Vesp. D. xii., f. 240; Harl. 2961, f. 237b; Add. 30848, f. 95b); and in the Latin Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Ch. (Surtees Society), 1851, p. 67, is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32, f. 19b). In these mss. it begins "Summe largitor." Among the St. Gall mss. it is in No. 95 of the 10th or 11th cent., and No. 414 of the 11th. It is also in a 10th cent. ms. at Bern, No. 455. Also in the Sarum, York, Aberdeen, and other Breviaries, the Sarum use being at Matins on the 1st S. and daily up to the 3rd S. in Lent. The printed text is also in Mone, No. 75; Daniel, i. No. 133, iv. p. 217; Wackernagel, i. No. 98; Biggs's annotated H. A. & M., 1867; G. M. Dreves's Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, from a ms. of the 10th cent., &c. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. O Thou Who dost to man accord. By J. W. Hewett, in his Verses by a Country Curate, 1859, p. 34, from the text as in Daniel. It was included in an altered form in H. A. & M., 1861. The H. A. & M. text was repeated in the 1869 Appendix to the S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hys., &c.

2. Giver of the perfect gift. By J. Ellerton, made for and first pub. in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, and again in Mr. Ellerton's Hymns, &c., 1888.

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. Thou Giver of august reward. W. J. Blew. 1852-53.

2. Dispenser of the gifts of heaven. J. D. Chambers. 1865, and 1881.

Summi Parentis Filio. [Lent. The Sacred Heart of Jesus.] Probably of the 18th cent. In the Roman Breviary, Lisbon, 1786, pars estiv. p. 461, it is the hymn at Lauds in the office of the Most Sacred Heart of our Lord Jesus Christ. Text also in Biggs's annotated H. A. & M., 1867. (See note on Salvatoque eorum quæritis.) Tr. as:—

To Christ, the Prince of Peace. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 125, and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 69. It is in a great many modern hymn-books, usually unaltered, but sometimes with the changes in the text made in H. A. & M.

Another tr. is:—

To Jesus, Son of God most high. J. Wallace. 1874. [J. M.]

Summi pusillus grex Patris. Guillaume de la Brunière (Compass of a Just Man. Suicide Dept.) Appeared in the Paris Brev., 1680 and 1736. Also in the Narbonne Brev., 1700, as the hymn for first and second Vespers, in the Common of Just Persons. It is also in later French Breviaries; in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 99; and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as:—

Be not afraid, ye little flock. I. Williams, as the first of a series of trs. from the Paris Brev., contributed by him to the British Magazine. This appeared in Dec. 1833. It was republished in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 314, and in the 1863 ed. of the Appendix to the H. Noted, No. 201.

Other trs. are:—

1. Thou little flock whose Shepherd is above. J. Chambers. 1846.

2. To God, your mightiest Father, rise. J. D. Chambers. 1846.

3. Little flock, be not afraid. D. T. Morgan. 1866. [J. J.]

Summi Regis potentia. [St. Andrew.] This is found in a ms. of the early part of the 14th cent. in the Bodleian (Ashm-ole, 1525, f. 236b), as a hymn in 6 st. and a doxology for the "Translatio of St. Andrew." Mr. Chambers erroneously quotes the first line as "Rex Jesu potentissime." Mr. Chambers's tr. "O King Supreme, of boundless might," appeared in the 1863 Appendix to the H. Noted, No. 168, and again in his Lauds Syon, Pt. ii. 1866. [J. M.]

Supernæ matris gaudia. Adam of St. Victor. [All Saints.] This sequence is, as Dr. Neale justly remarks, "one of the loveliest that Adam ever wrote." In it, contrary to the usual practice, the church triumphant is spoken of as the mother, the church militant as the daughter. Gautier, in his ed. 1881 of Adam's Œuvres poétiques, gives it at p. 200 from a Gradual of St. Victor before 1220 (Bibl. Nat. Paris, No. 14452), a Paris Gradual of the 13th cent. (B. N. No. 15615), and says it is also in a 12th cent. Antiphonary now in the Library at Chaumont, and formerly of the monastery of Montiérender. It is also in a collection of sequences written circa 1199 (Calig. A. xiv. f. 85), and a French Missal of the end of the 13th cent. (Add. 22935, f. 459 b), both in the British Museum; and in a ms. of the latter half of the 13th cent. in the Bodleian (Rawlinson, C., 910, f. 33 b). Among Missals it is found in an early 14th cent. Paris in the British Museum (Add. 16905, f. 232 b), the Salisbs of 1491, and others. The printed text is also in Mone, No. 623; Daniel, v. p. 109; Kehrein, No. 338; and D. S. Wrangham's Lit. Poetry of Adam of St. Victor, 1881, vol. iii. p. 176. [J. M.]

Translations in C. U.:—

1. The Church on earth, with unswerving love. By J. M. Neale, in the enlarged ed. of the H. Noted, 1854, and again in his Mediæval Hys., 2nd ed., 1863. It has passed into a few collections, including the People's H., 1867, the Hymnary, 1872, &c.

2. The strains of joy that ceaseless flow. By Harriet M. Chester, made for and first pub. in the Hymnary, 1872, as "Angels! to Christ's Church on earth below to-day. Rejoiceth. By C. S. Calverley, also made for and first pub. in the Hymnary, 1872. In the 2nd ed. 1872, it was considerably altered, and begins, "Christ's Church in heaven is glad to-day."

Translations not in C. U.:—

1. Sing, O Church, exultingly. Anon. In the Shirley Parish, 1865.

2. Those endless joys the Church on earth pourtrays. D. T. Morgan. 1871 and 1886.

3. The Church on earth those joys pourtrays. D. S. Wrangham. 1881.

Supreme High Priest, the Pilgrim's Light. A. M. Toplady. [Christ the High Priest, or Lent.] 1st pub. in his Poems on Sacred Subjects, Dublin, 1759, p. 99, in 12 st. of 4 l., and again in Sedgwick's reprint of Toplady's Poetical Works, 1860. In Drummond and Greville's Ch. of England H. Bk., 1838, st. v.–viii. were given, unaltered, as "Ah, give me, Lord, the single eye." These stanzas have passed into later collections. [J. J.]

Supreme Motor cordium. C. Coffin. [Saturday Evening; or Quinquagesima.] Appeared in the Paris Breviary, 1736, and his Hymni Sacri, p. 31, the same year. It is the hymn for Saturdays at Vespers from Trinity to Advent. The text is in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 34; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865, and L. C. Biggs's annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867. Tr. as:—

1. Supreme Disposer of the heart. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 31, and a few hymnals.

2. Great Mover of all hearts, Whose hand. By I. Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839. This is the most popular and widely used of the trs. of this hymn. It is in a large number of hymn-books, including H. A. & M., 1875, Thring's Coll., 1882, and others.

3. Lord of the hearts of men. By J. R. Woodford, in the Parish H. Bk., 1863, No. 30, and again in the enlarged ed., 1875. It is also in the Sursum Hyl., 1868, and the Hymnary, 1872.

Other trs. are:—

1. Great Mover of the heart, Alone. R. Campbell. 1857.

2. Thou Ruler of the human heart. J. D. Chambers. 1865.

3. O Sovereign Mover of the heart. D. T. Morgan. 1886. [J. J.]

Supreme quales, Arbiter. Jean Baptiste de Santeül (Pantheul of an Apostle). This is given in the Cluniac Brev., 1686, p. ii.; his Hymni Sacri et Nov., 1689, p. 190 (ed. 1698, p. 236); the Paris Brev., 1736; and later French Brevs. It is also in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 86, with the omission of a stanza; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865; and L. C. Biggs's annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867. Tr. as:—

1. Dispenser Supreme, And Judge of the earth. I. Williams, pub., together with the Latin, in the British Magazine, June 1836 (vol. ix. p. 657), and again in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 271. It has passed, either in its full form or abbreviated, into a large number of hymn-books. Of the altered texts the most popular is that in H. A. & M., 1861-75. For congregational purposes this is one of the most successful of the translator's efforts.

2. What feeble instruments. O Lord. B. J.

Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 97, and again in his Hys. of the Church, &c., 1841, No. 55. In a few of the older collections.

5. Imperial Monarch! Judge divine. By J. D. Chambers, in his Lords Sym, Pt. ii., 1866, p. 2.

6. O Lord, through instruments how weak. C. S. Calverley, made for and pub. in the Hymnary, 1872. [J. J.]

Supreme Rector coelitum. [Whitsun Eve.] This anonymous hymn is in the Cluniac Brev., 1686, p. 206; the Paris Brev., 1736, and later French Brevs. The text from the Paris Brev. is also in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, No. 78; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865; and L. C. Biggs's annotated ed. of H. A. & M. Tr. as :—

1. Ruler of the hosts of light. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 98. It is found in a few collections. The popular tr. of this hymn is the cento in H. A. & M., 1861 and 1875. It is thus composed: st. i., Chandler; st. ii. ll. 1, 2, Chandler, ll. 3, 4, Compilers; st. iii., Compilers; st. iv. v., Chandler, rewritten by the Compilers.

2. Dread King, to Whom the angelic hosts do cry. By J. Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 148; and Lyra Messianica, 1864.

3. Sovereign of heaven, Who didst prevail. By C. S. Calverley, made for and pub. in the Hymnary, 1872.

Other trs. are :—

1. O King, most high, of earth and sky. W. J. Hew. 1852-58.
2. Celestial Monarch, strong to quell. J. D. Chambers. 1857.

Surrexit Christus hodie. [Easter.] This hymn, or rather Easter Carol, exists in a great variety of forms. For the determination of the original text we have three mss. of the 14th cent., viz., a Munich ms. of the 14th cent., cited by Mone, No. 143: a Prag ms. of the 14th cent. cited by G. M. Dreves in his Cantiones Bohemicae, No. 183, and an Engelberg ms. of 1372 cited by Bäumker, i. p. 317. From these we obtain the following :—

1	5
" Surrexit Christus hodie Humano pro solamine.	" Mulieres o tremulae, Iu cultamen pergite.
" Mortem qui passus corpore Miserimo pro homine.	" Discipulis hoc dicite, Quod surrexit ea gloriae.
3	" Paschali plena gaudio Benedicamus Domino.
" Mulieres ad tumulum Deus ferunt aromatum.	6
4	" Laudemus sancta Trinitate.
" Altum victrices angelum Annunciantes gaudium.	Deo dicamus gratias."

Of these eight stanzas 1-4 and 6 are found in all three mss., 5 in the Engelberg and Prag mss., 7 in the Engelberg and Munich, 8 in the Engelberg and Prag. The text above is from the Munich ms.; the only variations of importance in the Prag ms. being ii. 1. i, pausa pedis and vii. 1. i., Ziyo cum dulci melodo.

Dreves gives two additional st. which are probably of Bohemian origin, and are not found in the later printed books, viz. :—

9	10
" Utique praecedet nos, Quo dilexit, discipulos.	" Sit benedictus hodie, Qui surrexit, redemit nos gratias."

He quotes them from two mss. now at Prag, viz. a Hohenfurt ms. circa 1410 (st. 1.-3.); and the Graduale of Jistebnice circa 1420 (st. 1.-iii. v.-vii., ix., x.). The later stanzas are apparently all interpolations. Those given by Daniel i., No. 290, are :—

11	12
" Quaerentes Jesum Domi-num Qui est Salvator homi-num.	" Petro dehinc et caeteris Apparuit apostolis.

" Gloria tibi Domine Qui surrexisti a morte."

Of these st. 12 is found in the second part of Luise-metric's G. B. (R. C.), 1267; st. 11 in the Dilingen G. B. (R. C.), 1380; and st. 13 in the Speier G. B. (R. C.) printed at Cologne, 1509. The order of stanzas in Daniel's text is 1-3, 11, 4-6, 12, 7, 13, 8; and he gives st. 7, i. 1, as "In hoc paschali gaudio." The Dilingen G. B., 1380, gives four additional st., which need not here be printed. Wackernagel, i., Nos. 276-280, gives various forms of the text. See also Hoffmann von Fallersleben, ed., 1861, Nos. 201-204. Also see under Jesus Christ is risen to-day, p. 596, ii. The trs. from the Latin include :—

1. To-day the Victor o'er His foes. By J. M. Neale, in his Mediaeval Hys., 1851.

2. Lo! Christ is risen this day, and brings. J. W. Hewett, in Hymns Ancient and Modern, 1861; and Lyra Messianica, 1864.

It has also often been translated into German. One of three trs. has passed into English, viz. :—

Erstanden ist der heilige Christ. This is found in a Nürnberg broadsheet of 1544, and in Wackernagel, ii. p. 721, from a broadsheet printed at Nürnberg, 1544, and in No. 125 in the Cres. C. E., 1851. It is in 19 st. of 2 l. with Hallelujah. St. 1.-vii. are narrative, viii.-xvii. a dialogue between Mary and the Disciples, and xviii. xix. a prayer. The text is based on st. i.-viii., xi. of the Latin. This form probably originally formed part of an Easter play. Tr. as: "Christ our Lord is risen to-day," in Lyra Germica, 1798, p. 13. [J. M.]

Sutton, Amos, D.D., was b. at Sevenoaks, Kent, on Jan. 21, 1802. Though educated with a view to secular business, when about the age of 21 he felt constrained to offer himself for service in connection with the General Baptist Foreign Missionary Society. He was sent to India; and in the year 1825 was stationed at Cuttack, in the province of Orissa, where, with intervals during which he visited England and America, he laboured most usefully until his death on Aug. 17, 1854. He was gifted as a translator; and compiled an Uriya Dictionary, besides translating a number of English books into that language. He also prepared the first Uriya Hymn Book, 179 of the hymns being of his own composition. [Missions, Foreign.] The degree of D.D. was conferred on him by the College of Waterville, U.S.A. On his visit to England in 1833 he composed a farewell hymn to the tune of "Auld lang syne"—"Hail sweetest, dearest tie that binds." (Part. Ing.) It soon became very popular, and is still in C. U. Another hymn written about the same time, entitled "The Macedonian Cry," is now almost forgotten. [W. R. S.]

Sutton, Henry Septimus, b. at Nottingham, 1825, the son of a bookseller and newspaper proprietor. He was articled to a surgeon, but abandoned medicine for literature. Mr. Sutton's connection with newspaper work has been life-long, and for upwards of thirty years he has been editor of the Alliance News. His first volume of Poems was issued from the Review office, Nottingham, 1848. This included Clifton Grove Garland, a long descriptive and narrative poem. In 1854 appeared Quinquiversia, a prose work of mystical religion, the author being a member of the New Church. To this was appended a series of poems, entitled Rose's Diary, written in memory of an early friend of the author's, who died in 1850. In successive cantos the changing moods and aspirations of personal religion are depicted, with occasionally a touch of quaintness in the language and imagery which reminds one of the best of the devout poets of the seventeenth century. An enlarged and revised edition of the Poems was published by David M. Main, Glasgow, 1886. In Martineau's Hymns, 1873, appear the following five pieces, selected from Rose's Diary :—

1. I have a little trembling light, which still. The lowered light. Canto I. and the last two stanzas of Canto III.
2. O Father! I have sinned. I have done. Under the sense of sin. Canto 2.
3. Fix not on me, O Lord, this work divine. Self-distrust and self-surrender. Canto VIII.
4. The sky with light its genial self suprels. The coming of the Comforter. Canto IX.
5. What mean these slow returns of love; these days. The sleep that keeps for waking. Canto X. [V. D. D.]

Swain, Joseph, was b. at Birmingham in 1761, and after being apprenticed to an engraver, removed to London. After a time he became a decided Christian, and being of an emotional poetic temperament, began to give expression to his new thoughts and feelings in hymns. In 1783 he was baptized by the Rev. Dr. Rippon, and in 1791 became minister of a Baptist congregation in East Street, Walworth. After a short but popular and very useful ministry, he d. April 16, 1796. Swain pub. the following :—

(1) A Collection of Poems on Several Occasions, Lon. 1791; (2) Redemption, a Poem in Six Books, Lon. 1791; (3) Experimental Hymns on Divine Subjects, Lon. 1791; (4) Sacred Hymns for the Use of Christians Assembling at Church Meeting there, Lon. 1792, 120 hymns; with a Supplement, 1794, 105 hymns; (5) A Pocket Companion and Directory, Lon. 1794.

In addition to a limited number of Swain's hymns, annotated under their respective first lines, the following, from his Walworth Hys., 1792, and the 2nd ed., 1796, are also in C. U. :—

1. Brethren, while we sojourn here. Mutual Encouragement.
2. Children of the King of grace. Holy Baptism.
3. Come, ye that love the Lord. Mutual Encouragement.
4. Come, ye weak, by sin afflicted. The Voice of Christ.
5. How sweet, how heavenly is the sight. Communion of Saints.
6. In expectation sweet. Second Advent.
7. Lift up your heads, ye gates. Ascension.
8. Love is the sweetest bud that blows. A Flower on Bushes of Christ.
9. O how the thought that I shall know. Heaven Anticipated. Suggested by, and with st. ii. "For ever to behold Him shine" (p. 887, i.).
10. On earth the song begins. Heaven Anticipated.
11. On the wings of faith upspringing. Passiontide.
12. Pilgrims we are to Canaan bound. Pilgrimage of Life.
13. Praise ye the Lord, the eternal King. Heavenly Kingdom of Christ.
14. Praise your Redeemer, praise His Name. Praise for Redemption.
15. The heavens begun below. Heaven Anticipated.
16. What is it for a saint to die? Death and Burial.
17. What must [will] it be to dwell above? Heaven Anticipated.
18. When firm I (we) stand on Zion's hill. Confidence. Sometimes as "I stand on Zion's mount," in American collections.
19. Who can forbear to sing? Praise of Jesus.

From his Redemption, a Poem in Five Books, 1791, the following hymns are also in C. U. :—

20. O Thou in whose presence my soul takes delight. In Affliction.
21. O kingdom of Zion, desires, have you seen? Comfort in Affliction.

Of these hymns the most widely known are Nos. 1, 5, 6, and 20. We may add that several of Swain's hymns appeared in The Theological Miscellany, 1784-1789. [W. R. S.]

Swain, Leonard, n.m., was b. at Concord, New Haven, Feb. 26, 1821, and educated at Dartmouth College and Andover. In 1847 he became a Congregational minister at Nashua, New Haven: and in 1852 of Central Church, Providence, Rhode Island. He d. July 14, 1869. His hymns, "My soul, it is thy God" (The Christian Race), and "My soul, weigh not thy life" (The Great Flight of Faith), appeared anonymously in The Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, and their authorship has only recently been determined. The second hymn is the more widely used of the two. [F. M. B.]

Swaine, Edward, b. at London, Sep. 21, 1750. He was for about 40 years a deacon of Craven Chapel (Congregational) under the pastorate of Dr. Leifchild and others; one of the directors of the London Missionary Society, and founder and chairman of the Pastors' Insurance Aid Society. He d. April 22, 1862. (Miller's Singers and Songs, 1869, p. 441.) Mr. Swaine wrote several tracts, and also printed for private circulation The Blood of God, A Fragment, with Poems, Hymns, and Versions of Psalms, 1859. His hymns, "Hail! blessed communion of love" (Holy Communion), and "Lord Jesus, let Thy watchful care" (For Emigrants), were written in 1855 for the New Cong. H. Bk., and given therein, 1859. See also, "O how the thought that we shall know" (p. 887, i.). [J. J.]

Swedenborgian Hymnody. The hymnody of the religious body known as The New Church signified by the Jerusalem in the Revelation, or briefly, The New Church, commenced with the Rev. Joseph Proud. Proud was the son of a General Baptist minister, and was b. at Beaconsfield, March 23, 1745. Entering the Baptist ministry, he became pastor successively at Knipton, Friet, and Norwich. In 1788 his religious views underwent a change, and the following year he openly adopted those of Emanuel Swedenborg. He at once broke out into song: and it is told us by his biographer, the Rev. E. Madeley, that his first volume of more than 300 original hymns occupied him only some three months in its production. This volume appeared in 1790; again, with additions, in 1791: and, again in 1798. The title of the 3rd ed. is:—

Hymns and Spiritual Songs for the Use of the Lord's New Church, signified by the New Jerusalem in the Revelation, by Joseph Proud, N. H. M. London, Printed by R. Hudson, and sold at the New Jerusalem Temple in Crown Court, Russell Street, Covent Garden.

This volume contained 359 original hymns of decided merit. After leaving Norwich Proud went to Birmingham, where he suffered great misfortune. He passed on to Manchester, but in a few months again returned to Birmingham. Subsequently London was the scene of his labours for a time. During his residence there he printed a small book of Hymns and Songs for Children in 1816. Three years later he returned to Birmingham, where he d. on Aug. 3, 1826. The esteem in which his hymns are held by The New Church is seen in their authorised hymn-book of 1880, in which of a total of 720 hymns, 164 are by him.

2. The next hymn-writer of note in The New Church was the Rev. Manoah Sibly (b. 1757), whose Hymns and Spiritual Songs appeared, in 1802, from the press of the same printer as Proud's book; but also "sold by the Author, No. 35, Goswell Street." It contained 223 original hymns and 11 doxologies. The literary merits of this volume are below that of Proud's work. The hymns are solid and practical, and are more akin to those by Beddome and Doddridge than to those either by Wesley or Watts. Sibly died in 1840.

3. The first Swedenborgian minister in Manchester was the Rev. William Cowherd, a man of high scientific attainments, who had been for some time a clergyman in the Church of England. Shortly after joining the Swedenborgian body he established a cause in Manchester, which he called "The Bible Christian Church." The members of this society held the doctrine of Swedenborg in a modified form, with the additional obligations of total abstinence from animal food and intoxicating liquors. (See Vegetan.) For their use Cowherd compiled Select Hymns for Christian Worship. By the Rev. W. Cowherd, Manchester. Printed by Sowler & Russell, 1809. The 3rd ed., pub. at Stumport in 1810, contained 318 hymns; the 5th ed., printed at Salford in 1818, was increased to 321 hymns, a few of which were by Cowherd, but the greater part were taken from Proud, Sibly, Watts, Wesley, and others.

4. In 1815, the Rev. Robert Hindmarsh, then minister of the Swedenborgian congregation in Salford, compiled a small volume of hymns, chiefly selected from Proud and Sibly, which he published as:—

Hymns, for the Use of the New Church, signified by the New Jerusalem in the Apocalypse. Carefully corrected, and arranged under proper heads. Manchester: R. Innes, 1815. It contained 153 hymns and 4 doxologies.

5. Next, in order of date, came a small volume as:—

Original Hymns, for Family and Congregational Worship, chiefly designed for the use of those who acknowledge the Supreme Divinity of the Great Redeemer. By F. W. Foster. Manchester, J. Gleave, 1819.

This volume contains only 45 hymns and 2 doxologies. Whilst some of these hymns do not rise above mediocrity, others have certainly higher literary and poetic merit than those of either Proud or Sibly, and one or two are not unworthy of C. Wesley. Of his hymns 6 are in the authorised hymn-book of 1880. Of his life little is known. He was at one time with the Rev. Richard Jones, as joint minister of the Manchester and Radcliffe Swedenborgian Societies. Afterwards he preached in St. George's Chapel, near Oldham Road, Manchester; and, at a later period, he settled in Hull.

6. In 1822 a new departure was made. The General Conference of The New Church, in session, respectively, at Manchester and London, authorised a Committee to prepare a hymnal for general use, "adapted not only for public devotion, but also for private meditation and instruction, and which should form a useful and agreeable companion on every day of the week, at home as well as in the public assemblies of the Church." The outcome of this was the first authorised hymn-book of the Swedenborgians. It was pub. as:—

Hymns for the Use of the New Church signified by the New Jerusalem in the Revelation, Ch. xxi. 1, 2. Compiled by order of the General Conference. London, E. Sopher & R. C. Wilson, 1824.

This collection contains 600 hymns and 7 doxologies. While borrowing largely from Proud and Sibly, it is at once catholic and eclectic. The alterations made in the texts of the hymns of Watts, Wesley, and others, to adapt them to the creed of The New Church are less frequent and distasteful than in many similar cases. A singular feature in this collection is the large number of Unitarian hymns found therein, when doctrinal differences would have suggested the necessity for their exclusion. This hymn-book was mainly compiled by the Rev. William Mason (b. 1790, d. 1863) of whose original hymns about 60 are included therein. Mason subsequently published a separate collection as:—

Hymns of Spiritual Experience, variously adapted to promote the growth of individual piety. Chiefly selected, with a Few originals. London, 1828.

This volume contains 166 hymns, of which 23 are by Mason. We may add that Mason possessed musical gifts of no mean order, and that he composed a number of hymn tunes.

7. In 1873 an authorised Supplement to the 1824 collection was published as:—

Supplement of Hymns for the New Church, Compiled by order of the General Conference. London, James Speirs.

In this Supplement translations of Latin and German hymns are found for the first time in Swedenborgian hymnody. This blending of the old and the new was hardly successful, and the hymns were more didactic than lyrical. The general result was felt to be most unsatisfactory, and led to the appointment of a Committee, to whom was entrusted the compilation of a new hymnal. Of this committee the Rev. Jonathan Bayley, D.D., was the chairman, and the Rev. John Presland, the secretary. The result of their labours was published in 1880, as:—

Hymns for the Use of The New Church signified by the New Jerusalem in the Revelation. Compiled by the Authority of the General Conference of the Church in Great Britain. London, James Speirs, 1881.

This collection contains 750 hymns, and deserves the attention of compilers of hymnals. To it Dr. Bayley contributed 5 hymns, the Rev. Joseph Deane 9, and "J. C." 3. From this collection a selection for mission services was published in 1883.

8. The Swedenborgians have been amongst the foremost in recognizing the value of hymns and music in Sunday schools. As already noted, Proud's Hymns and Songs for Children (1816) were published contemporaneously with the early efforts in the same direction by Anne and Jane Taylor. In 1835, an excellent little collection was published by the Rev. E.

Madeley, which went through several editions. In 1868 it was greatly enlarged and revised from a poetical and musical point of view, by Mr. John Bragg, of Birmingham. To this revised edition, 73 modern hymns were added, in 1887, by "The New Church Sunday School Union." In its complete form it contains 336 hymns. [See Various.] (W. T. B.)

Sweet as the Shepherd's tuneful reed. W. Shirley. (Spring.) Pub. in The Coll. of Hys. sung in the Countess of Huntingdon's Chapels, Bath, W. Gye, n. d. (circa 1775), No. 86, in 4 st. of 6 l. In common with all the hymns in that Coll. it is anonymous; but in the Life of the Countess, 1839, vol. ii. p. 291, it is definitely stated to be by W. Shirley. The most widely known form of this hymn begins with st. ii., "Peace, troubled soul, whose plaintive moan." It is composed of st. ii., iii., and appeared in the American Prosper Hb. Coll., 1856, No. 199. It is repeated in several American hymn-books. [J. J.]

Sweet day, so cool, so calm, so bright. G. Herbert. (Virtue. Spring.) Appeared in his posthumous work, The Temple, 1633, in 4 st. of 4 l., as a poem on "Virtue." (The Chandos Classics, ed. 1887, p. 140.) It is a beautiful poem, but is unsuited as a hymn for congregational use, although found in a few collections for that purpose. I. Walton's reference to it in his Compleat Angler, 1653, is very tender and just:—"Pscatour.—And now, scholar! my direction for thy fishing is ended with this shower, for it has done raining. And now look about you, and see how pleasantly that meadow looks; nay, and the earth smells as sweetly too. Come, let me tell you what holy Herbert says of such days and showers as these: and then we will thank God that we enjoy them. "Sweet day, so cool," &c. [J. J.]

Sweet feast of love divine. Sir E. Denny. (Holy Communion.) Pub. in his Sol. of Hymns, 1839, No. 295: and again in his Hys. & Poems, 1848, p. 96 (3rd ed., 1870, p. 96), in 6 st. of 4 l. It is in C. U. in its original form; but much more extensively as "Blest feast of love divine." In America especially, this is the popular form of the hymn. [J. J.]

Sweet is the last, the parting ray. (Saturday Evening.) This hymn is usually attributed to Charles Jenkins, for some years a Congregational Minister in Portland, Maine, but upon insufficient evidence. D. C. Colesworthy (p. 941. ii.) says that it was repeated by Mr. Jenkins in a sermon, and the congregation supposed it to have been his own. No other claimant having appeared it is often attributed to him on this uncertain ground. J. Curtis, in his Union Coll., Lond., 1837, No. 213, gives it as from the "American Monthly Mag." [P. M. B.]

Sweet is the scene when virtue dies. Anna L. Barbauld, nee Aikin. (Death and Burial.) Appeared in the Leisure Hour Improved, pub. at Ironbridge, 1809, in 5 st. of 4 l., and again in The Works of Anna Laetitia Barbauld, with Memoir, 1825, p. 215, with the heading "The Death of the Virtuous." In the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, it begins, "Sweet is the scene when Christians die." On the death of Mr. Barbauld, Nov. 11, 1808, Mrs. Barbauld wrote the "Dirge," beginning "Pure Spirit! O where art thou now" (p. 941. ii.). From the date of the publication of "Sweet is the scene when virtue dies" (1809), it is probable that it was the outcome of the same sad event. The popular form of this hymn is, "How blest the righteous when he dies," which appeared in Cotterill's Sel., 1819, No. 190. In the Sheffield Iris for January 13, 1824, James Montgomery gave an account of the Rev. T. Cotterill's funeral, in which he says concerning "How blest the righteous when he dies," which was sung on that occasion:—

"This hymn was not the composition of the deceased, as has been mistakenly reported. It was extracted with some modifications from a longer copy of verses which appeared in the Iris many years ago, the author of which we understood to be Robert Bernard, Esquire, of Abington, one of the Society of Friends. The opening of the original lines being "Sweet is the scene when virtue dies," was altered for "How blest, &c.," for an obvious reason when the stanzas were adopted for Mr. Cotterill's hymn-book. We can further say that he was peculiarly delighted with them. The following additional stanza from the same source is the first as they stand in the hymn-book:—

"'So fades a summer cloud away,
So sinks the gale when storms are o'er,
So gently shuts the eye of day,
So dies a wave along the shore.'"

From this extract it is evident that the alterations in the text of the poem to adapt it for congregational purposes were made by Montgomery for Cotterill. Montgomery's guess as to the authorship of the original was disproved by the publication of Mrs. Barbauld's Works in 1825 with the poem therein. This form of the hymn is in C. U. in all English-speaking countries. [J. J.]

Sweet is the work, my God, my [and] King. I. Watts. (Ps. xcii. or Sunday.) 1st pub. in his Ps. of David, &c., 1719, p. 257, in 7 st. of 4 l., and headed, "A Psalm for the Lord's Day." In G. Whitefield's Hys. for Social Worship, &c., 1753, No. 39, st. i., ii., iii., vii. were given as "Sweet is the work, O God, our King." This was repeated in M. Madan's Ps. & Hys., 1760, No. 165. A. M. Toplady gave the same stanzas in his Ps. & Hys., 1776, as No. 34, but with other changes in some stanzas, and the opening line as "Sweet is the work, my God and King." This reading is found in some modern collections in the Church of England. Other arrangements of the text are given in hymn-books in G. Britain and America. It is a good and popular hymn. [J. J.]

Sweet Saviour, bless us ere we go. F. W. Faber. (Evening.) 1st pub. in his Jesus and Mary, first edition, 1849: and again in his Hymns, 1862, p. 251, in 7 st. of 6 l. It was written in 1849 for use as an Evening Hymn at the London Roman Catholic Oratory, of which Dr. Faber was then the Superior. In most hymnals the last stanza is usually omitted, or if retained, the second line, "Mary and Philip, tear us be," is altered. In some collections it opens with "Dear Saviour, bless us ere we go," or "O Saviour, bless," &c.: and in others, "O Father, bless us ere we go." In the Wellinton College H. Bk., 1860–80, it begins with st. ii., "The day is done; its hours have run," and the text is somewhat altered. The use of this hymn in its various forms is extensive. [J. J.]

Sweet the time, exceeding sweet. G. Burder. [Christian Fellowship.] Pub. in the Gospel Magazine, April, 1775, p. 220, in 5 st. of 4 l., headed "An Hymn for Christian Company," and signed "A. B." In 1784 it was given, unaltered, in G. Burder's Coll. of Hymns, as No. 66, and in the Index it is styled "G. Burder." In Cotterill's Sel., 1810, No. 46, it is altered to "Great the joy, the union sweet." This form is in extensive use. In the 8th ed. of his Sel. Cotterill altered it again to "Great the joy when Christians meet." This, also, is well known. In one or two collections it is also altered to "Gladsome 'tis when Christians meet.' [J. J.]

Sweetest Saviour, if my soul. G. Herbert. [Redeemed in Christ.] First pub. in his Temple, &c., 1633, in 4 st. of 8 l., as a "Dialogue" between the Soul and the Saviour. (Works in the Chandos Classics, 1857, p. 168.) In 1730, it was rewritten by J. Wesley, and pub. in Hys. & Sac. Poems, as "Saviour, if Thy precious love," in 4 st. of 8 l., and again in P. Works, 1868–72, vol. i. p. 107. In 1872, st. i.–iii. were given in the revised edition of the Wes. H. Bk., No. 218*, where it replaced "Ye that pass by, behold the Man." In this form it is suited for private reading, or as the words of an anthem, but does not make a good hymn for congregational use. [J. J.]

Sweetly sang the angels, In the clear, calm night. J. Julian. [Christmas.] Written Nov. 7, 1873, and first printed in the Preston Herald [Lancashire], Nov. 11th, 1873, in an article entitled "Table Talk." It was in 5 st. of 8 l., with a refrain of 4 l. In 1874 it was included in the Hymn Book pub. for the use of St. Mary's Church Sunday School, Preston; in Dec. 1874, in an article on "Christmas Hymns" in the Churchman's Shilling Magazine; again in Horder's Cong. Hys., 1884, and other collections. It is also set as a part song by A. J. Caldicott. Mus. B., No. 147 of The Choral Handbook, Lond., J. Curwen. [J. J.]

Swift, James Frederick, s. of Joseph Swift, was b. at Manchester, Dec. 26, 1847. In 1851 he removed with his parents to Liverpool, where he was educated at the Commercial School of Liverpool College. At an early age he displayed a talent for music, and performed in public as a pianist as early as 1859. In 1863 he was appointed organist at the Cranmer Wesleyan Chapel. Subsequently he was organist at St. Andrew's Church, Liverpool, for 10 years, and then, from 1880 to the present, at St. Bride's, in the same city. He has composed a large number of songs and instrumental pieces under the nom-de-plume of "Godfrey Marks." He has also written a number of hymns and sacred odes, for which he has composed music. From these eight were pub. with the music, in 1875, as Hys. for Home and Sacred Festivals (London, Novello). From this small collection the following hymns have come into C. U.:—

1. When evening shadows gather. Evening. Written in 1875, and first sung in public at the Wesleyan Choral Festival in St. George's Hall, Liverpool, in 1874. It was included in his Hys. for Home, &c., No. 2, in 2 st. of 4 l. It then passed into Dorling's Coll., 1885, the Hymn. Noth. Hymnal, 1887, and others. It is a very beautiful Evening Hymn.

2. Have you heard the sweet, sweet story? Life in Christ. Written in 1874, and pub. in his Hys. for Home, &c., 1875, No. 4, in 3 st. of 8 l., with a chorus of 4 lines.

3. When life is gay with sunshine. Refuge in Trouble. Written in 1874, and pub. in his Hys. for Home, &c., 1875, No. 1, in 3 st. of 8 l.

Of these hymns Nos. 2, 3 have been largely used at Sunday School Anniversaries and similar gatherings. [J. J.]

Sylvestris, in the Gospel Magazine, 1776, &c., i.e. Sylvestris Brewer.

Symington, Andrew James, s. of R. B. Symington, of Paisley, Scotland, was b. there on July 27, 1825. After receiving his education at the Grammar School of his native town he entered into business with his father and brother. During the intervals of business he has devoted himself to literature. His publications include Harebell Chimes, 1848; Gravestone, and Other Poems, 1851; The Beautiful, in Nature, Art, and Life, 1857; Pen and Pencil Sketches of Persia and Iceland, 1862; The Reasonableness of Faith; with Appendix containing Hys. and Verses of Consolation and Hope, 1870; Hints to our Boys, 1884; Poems, and other works. He also edited Burke's series of Men of Light and Love 1864, and has contributed to a large number of magazines in Great Britain and the United States. Several of his hymns have been pub. by J. and R. Parlane, Paisley, as leaflets, and include:—

1. Hear Jesus say to Thee. Jesus the Way, the Truth, and the Life. (1868.)
2. Stemmed in, armed hosts behind, on either side. Israel at the Red Sea.
3. How much we've then? Debtors to Mercy. (Sep. 1870.)
4. I long for rest. Rest desired. (1868.)
5. Lord in love and mercy save us. Morning or Evening. (1868.)
6. Sing Jesus's feed. Christ's Invitation.
7. Tossing through the restless night. Rest. (1868.)
8. When anguish overwhelms the heart. Comfort.

Of these hymns No. 5 is the best known and most widely used. Taken as a whole Mr. Symington's hymns are better suited for private devotion than for public worship. [J. J.]

Synesius, a native of Cyrene, b. circa 375. His descent was illustrious. His pedigree extended through seventeen centuries, and in the words of Gibbon, "could not be equalled in the history of mankind." He became distinguished for his eloquence and philosophy, and as a statesman and patriot he took a noble stand. When the Goths were threatening his country he went to the court of Arcadius, and for three years tried to rouse it to the dangers that were coming on the empire. But Gibbon says, "The court of Arcadius indulged the zeal, applauded the eloquence, and neglected the advice of Synesius." In 410 he was made Bishop of Ptolemais, but much against his will. He d. in 430. Synesius's opinions have been variously estimated. That he was imbued with the Neo-Platonic philosophy there is no doubt (see Greek Hymnody, v. and viii.), but that he was a semi-Christian, as alleged by Mosheim [see Eccl. History, Lond., ed. 1845, vol. i., pp. 310, 430 and Notes], or that he denied the doctrine of the Resurrection as stated directly by Gibbon [see Decline and Fall, vol. ii.], and indirectly by Bingham [see Christian Antiq., Lond., 1845, i. pp. 464-5] is very doubtful. Mr. Chatfield, who has translated his Odes in his Songs and Hymns of the Greek Christian Poets, 1876, contends that his tenth Ode "Lord Jesus, think on me," proves that he was not a semi-Christian, and that he held the doctrine of the Resurrection. The first is clear; but the second is open to doubt. He certainly prays to the Redeemer: but there is nothing in the hymn to shew that he looked upon the Redeemer as being clothed in His risen body. This tenth ode is the only Ode of Synesius, which has come into C. U. The original Odes are found in the Anth. Graeca Carm. Christ., 1871, p. 2 seq., and Mr. Chatfield's Trs. in his Songs, &c., 1876. (Greek Hymnody, § v. and Μοῦσα Χριστέ.) Synesius's Odes have also been tr. by Alan Stevenson, and included in his The Ten Hymns of Synesius, Bishop of Tyrene, A.D. 410 in English Verse. And some Occasional Pieces by Alan Stevenson, LL.B. Printed for Private Circulation, 1865. [See Various.] [J. J.]

Syriac Hymnody. No history of Christian hymnody can be deemed complete which fails to give some account of the hymns and other metrical compositions of the ancient churches of Syria, Upper Mesopotamia, and Western Persia. At an early period in Christian history a fountain of sacred poetry and song burst forth in that region, from which for a time there flowed a stream of marvellous fulness; but soon the stream dwindled, and its flow became intermittent, until, by the middle of the 14th century, like a river lost in desert sands, it had almost, if not entirely, disappeared.

Syriac, the language of these ancient hymns and poems, is akin to the Hebrew, and resembles, if it is not identical with, the language spoken by the common people of Palestine in the time of our Lord. It is still used in religious services, like Latin in the Church of Rome; but, as a vernacular in Syria proper, it has long been supplanted by the Arabic; whilst, in Mesopotamia and Persia, the Christian inhabitants, though they call themselves Süryâyê, or Syrians, speak a dialect termed Sürâth, which differs almost as much from the old Syriac as Italian from Latin.

i. History of Syriac Hymnody.

Concerning the hymns sung in Syria in the first century after Christ we have no certain information, although tradition connects the origin of responsive singing in Christian worship with Ignatius, the martyred bishop of Antioch. But the commencement of Syriac hymnody, so far as known to us, was on this wise.

1. Bar-Daisan, or Bardesanes, b. A.D. 154, at Edessa, now called Urfah, in Upper Mesopotamia, was a religious teacher, who sought to combine with the truths of Christianity certain speculations of the Gnostics. Being a man of poetic genius, he was led to compose hymns or songs, which, set to music and sung by his disciples, became very popular. His son, Harmonius, followed in his steps, composing additional hymns and introducing new metres. But of their compositions only a few fragments have been preserved.

2. Simeon bar Sabbae. The next Syrian hymn-writer of whom we have any mention was of the orthodox school, Simeon bar Sabbâê, bishop of Seleucia, who suffered martyrdom A.D. 296. Two hymns composed by him are said to be found in the sacred offices of the Chaldæans.

3. Ephraem Syrus. But about A.D. 307 there was born at Nisibis, in northern Mesopotamia, Ephraem or Ephraim Syrus, the most celebrated father of the Syrian church, and famous not only as a theologian, but also as a poet and hymn-writer. Historians differ as to the details of his life: but it is known that having first been a pupil of James, bishop of Nisibis, he finished his education at Edessa, where for the rest of his days he chiefly resided. He visited Basil at Cæsarea, in Cappadocia, and by him he was ordained to the office of deacon. He d. at Edessa in June, 373. Ephraim was a most voluminous writer of commentaries, expository sermons, hymns, and metrical homilies. Metrical Homilies, first mentioned in connection with him, are a peculiar kind of composition, to which we know of nothing in other literature exactly similar. The tracts in verse explanatory of the Christian religion, circulated by missionaries in some parts of India, and which the people like to read aloud in a kind of chant, seem most nearly to resemble them. The Homilies are in metre, i.e. in lines containing a fixed number of syllables, e.g. 4, 2, 6, 7, 8, or 12, as the case may be, and are divided into strophes, but differ from hymns proper in their greater length and more decidedly didactic character. We might have supposed them to be poems intended to be simply read, but from notes found on mss. giving directions as to the singing, it appears as though, at least in some cases, they were actually sung or chanted in connection with religious services. In neither the hymns nor the homilies is any regard paid to accent or quantity, and only occasionally does there seem to have been an attempt at rhyme or assonance. The main characteristics of Syriac poetry are (1) a certain elevation of style, (2) division of the verses into strophes, and (3) the use of lines or verses with a fixed number of syllables. The following are illustrations of some of the metres, taken from the writings of Ephraim, the translations being those of Dr. H. Burgess, in his Select Metrical Hymns and Homilies of Ephraem Syrus, translated, with Notes, &c., London, 1853, a work to which reference may be made for further examples.

a. Tetrasyllabic Metre. Two verses from an "Evening Hymn."

عَشِيَّةٍ وَفِي كُلِّ Bâkhin nîmâsê

لَكَ يَعْشِيَةٍ وَفِي كُلِّ Lôh thebhâkhê

"In all evenings
To Thee let there be praise."

5. Pentasyllabic Metre. Two verses from the 11th Homily concerning the "Paradise of Eden."

ܐܵܦ ܥܲܠ ܦܲܪܕܹܝܣܵܐ ܕܥܹܕܢ̈ܵ ܐ̈ܝ ܡܲܠܦ̈ܵܢ̈ܵ ܠܲܢ ܒ̈ܢ̈ܝ ܐ̈ܕܡ̈ܵ ܡܲܢ ܕ̈ܒ̈ܪ̈ܝ ܕ̈ܐ̈ܕ̈ܡ̈ܵ ܠ̈ܐ ܢ̈ܫ̈ܬ̈ܘ̈ܩ̈ܘ̈ܢ̈ ܒ̈ܗ̈ ܒ̈ܫ̈ܘ̈ܠ̈ܡ̈ܵ ܐ̈ܦ ܥ̈ܠ ܦ̈ܪ̈ܕ̈ܝ̈ܣ̈ܵ ܕ̈ܥ̈ܕ̈ܢ̈ ܐ̈ܝ ܡ̈ܠ̈ܦ̈ܵܢ̈ܵ ܠ̈ܢ ܒ̈ܢ̈ܝ ܐ̈ܕ̈ܡ̈ܵ ܡ̈ܢ ܕ̈ܒ̈ܪ̈ܝ ܕ̈ܐ̈ܕ̈ܡ̈ܵ ܠ̈ܐ ܢ̈ܫ̈ܬ̈ܘ̈ܩ̈ܘ̈ܢ̈ ܒ̈ܗ̈ ܒ̈ܫ̈ܘ̈ܠ̈ܡ̈ܵ

Mār'yā phārādeysō — Mdyrdy'ā bsānē

"The air of Paradise
Is a blest fount of sweetness."

6. Heptasyllabic Metre, which has traditionally borne the name of Ephraim, as being his favourite metre. Two verses from a hymn on "Death."

ܡܲܪ ܕ̈ ܠ̈ܡ̈ܫ̈ܡ̈ܫ̈ܢ̈ ܕ̈ܡ̈ܟ̈ ܡ̈ܢ̈ ܕ̈ܡ̈ܢ̈ ܐ̈ܝ̈ ܕ̈ܒ̈ܝ̈ ܕ̈ܐ̈ܒ̈ܕ̈ ܕ̈ܒ̈ ܡ̈ܢ̈ ܕ̈ܐ̈ܒ using in their worship Syriac hymns and prayers. They are probably descendants of Syrians, who centuries ago, came from Western Asia by way of the Persian Gulf and settled in these parts. They are Nestorian in their creed, either Chaldean and not of them, through the Portuguese who came to bear upon them, or Portuguese at Goa, have adopted the faith of Rome.

Now all these differing sections of Syrian Christians have their respective service books and liturgies, and all use hymns. The following are the facts we have been able to ascertain with respect to their use of hymns:—

(α) The Nestorians. In 1852, an Anglican clergyman, the Rev. G. P. Badger, D.D., published two volumes (London, J. Masters) containing a narrative of visits paid by him to the Syrian Churches of Kurdistan and Mesopotamia, with an account of his researches into the condition of the Nestorians, Syrian Jacobites, Papal Syrians, and Chaldeans. The work is entitled The Nestorians and their Rituals, and is full of information concerning the Nestorian service books.

(1) First, he mentions a book called Turgâmâ, or Interpreter, containing hymns chanted before the reading of the Epistle and Gospel. This we have referred to in the case of Nestorius, of Natifleh.

(2) Another book is the Khudra, or Cycle of Services for all the Sundays in the year and for certain fast days. Dr. Badger describes this as a collection of anthems, responsories, hymns and collects, comprised in a large folio volume of more than 500 pp.

(3) The Ourdo or Breviary contains the services for all the festivals throughout the year, Sundays excepted. It also comprises anthems, hymns and collects, and is a volume equal in size to the Khudra.

(4) The Kâsâ, or Book of Prayer of the Nestorians, is described as "a collection of hymns in verses ascribed to St. Ephraim Syrus," and from the account given of its contents is evidently the metrical Syriac service-book we have referred to as containing the Nestorian Canon, but it is connected with no festival commemorative service, having reference to the Nineveh, lasting for three days and accompanied with fasting.

(5) The Khoosi is a collection of hymns chiefly in reference to the Life, Passion and Miracles of Our Saviour and on the duty of Repentance. It has its name from its author, Khamis bar Kardâlé, whom we have mentioned as a writer of the 13th century. A long hymn from this collection, which has been translated by Dr. Badger, is appointed in the Gezza to be used on the fifth Sunday after Epiphany.

(6) The Warrâ is a collection of hymns written and compiled by George Warrâh, already mentioned. They were apparently prepared for use at church festivals, the particular occasion for which they are fitted being indicated in the title. Thus, "Hymns for Sundays," hymns from the Warrâh, five pages in length, in praise of the Virgin Mary, and intended to be used on any of the festivals commemorative of her.

In the services for Marriages and Burials, anthems and hymns are introduced. The following is a translation by Dr. Badger of a short and rather beautiful hymn sometimes sung in the part of the marriage service called "The Setting up of the Bridal Chamber." It seems intended to be sung responsively.

"Blessed is He who hath built for His Church a house not made with hands, and hath raised and set her up on high according to His promise.

"Blessed is the sleek Church saith to Christ in her angelic theme, as she hears from the Scriptures what deeds Thou will give unto me.

"O lovely Spouse, incline thine ear and hearken to my voice; leave thy father and thy mother, and come, follow me, for I am thy Bridegroom.

"Thy Father, O Lord, in Thy Gospel confesses all the ranks of the heathen, and leave off worshipping them, and flee to Thy cross.

"Thou hast been baptized thee through water and the Spirit, and have saved thee from Satan and from death: because that thou become not another's, for there is none other that can help thee as I can.

"If thou art faithful unto Me, O thou daughter of the poor, I will make ready for thee a bridal chamber above, and will call prophets, apostles, and martyrs to thy wedding.

"Thy commandments are dearer unto me than gold or much fine gold, and the words of Thy mouth are sweeter unto me than honey and the honey-comb."

From all this it will be seen that hymns are largely used by the Nestorians, besides which they chant Psalms from the Daweedha, or David, in connection with nearly every service. But it must be added that only the clergy and a few of the more educated laymen fully understand the meaning of the words read or sung. Indeed, says Dr. Badger, "many even of the clergy have no certain knowledge of what they read in the churches;" so great is the difference between the modern Garsh and the ancient Syriac, and such the present backward state of education.

(β) The Chaldeans services appear to resemble those of the Nestorians, excepting that a few expressions have been modified in accordance with the Roman doctrines they have embraced.

(γ) The Jacobites and Maronites. J. W. Etheridge states, in his book on the Syrian Churches (Lond., 1846), that, among the liturgies in use among the Jacobites and Maronites, the favourite one is that ascribed to St. James, the brother of our Lord. Now in the public or preparatory part of this service a hymn is appointed to be sung after the prayer for all believers, and this hymn is said to be frequently a composition of Mar Ephraim, as he is termed—Mor signifying Master or Lord. A letter, also, with which we have been favoured from the Rev. Dr. Caraluw, missionary of the Free Church of Scotland at Sitwair, on Mount Lebanon, informs us that the hymns of Ephraim are now used in that region by both Jacobites and Maronites, though not to any great extent. But they are simply read by the priest, not sung either by priests or people. Dr. Caraluw adds that most of the service of the Maronites is in the ancient Syriac, but as a rule neither priest nor people understand it. The priests learn to read it, and that is all that is considered necessary.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel Bliss, President of the Protestant College at Beyrout, has also obtained for us the following list of first lines of hymns now used in the Maronite churches of Mount Lebanon, with the names of their reputed authors. All are in the ancient Syriac language.

1. By St. Peter the Apostle:—
"O Lord God of Peace and Master of Safety."
2. By the Twelve Apostles:—
"O Lord God, Father of Him who hast prepared for us this spiritual table."
3. By St. James, Brother of our Lord:—
"O Lord, our God and our Master, Lover of mankind."
4. By St. John, the Apostle and Evangelist:—
"O Lord, mighty God, Thou art the true Love."
5. By St. Mark, the Evangelist:—
"O Lord God Almighty, Thou art the Holy One, who hast true love."
6. By Pope Sixtus of Rome:—
"O Lord, grant Thy church, and the sheep of Thy pasture, safety, peace and everlasting salvation."

7. Prepared by order of the Holy Roman Catholic Church, Mother of all churches:—
"O our Lord Jesus Christ, who hast said to Thine Apostles 'Peace, I leave with you, my peace I give unto you.'"

8. By St. John Maron, Patriarch of Antioch:—
"O Lord God, merciful and holy God, who hast through Thine only Son, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ," &c.

(δ) Christians of St. Thomas. With regard to the use of Syriac hymns by the so-called Christians of St. Thomas, on the Malabar coast of India, we have been kindly furnished with information from agents of the Church Missionary Society, whose head-quarters are at Cottayam, in Travancore, which is also the centre of the district inhabited by the Syrian Christians. One of our correspondents is the Rev. J. H. Bishop, B.A., the other the Ven. Archdeacon Koshi Kosha, who is himself of Syrian parentage.

Mr. Bishop informs us that "The Syrian Christians of Travancore have no choral service, and therefore no hymns are introduced into their worship. The ancient liturgies of St. James and others are monotoned by the Cathanars or Priests, and the people standing in the nave repeat the responses from memory. In many Syrian churches the services are performed in Malayalim, the vernacular of the natives of the country, "though formerly they were always performed in the Syriac tongue, which is still used more or less, especially in the celebration of the Mass."

Archdeacon Koshi states that

"The hymns used in the Syrian church are too many to enumerate. The Syrians have such voluminous books in their service books that it is impossible even to form a guess respecting their number. The Syrians have no separate collection of hymns such as we have. They have more than 360 tunes, and everyone of their hymns is composed to one or other of these 360 different tunes. All the great poets of old, such as Mar Ephraim, had each his own eight tunes distinct from the eight belonging to every other, and on hearing any hymn sung, the priests instructed in these matters could tell who the author was. The modern poets, even those of considerable grade, who were unable to invent new tunes, are never credited to their real authors, but go under the names of those to whose tunes they were adopted."

The Archdeacon then proceeds to give a list of hymn-writers, a number of his names coinciding with those we have given in the former part of this article. If at first view there seems to be some disagreement between the accounts of our two correspondents, the explanation is doubtless to be found in the fact already stated, that the Syrian Christians of India are divided among themselves, and consequently, in all probability vary in their usage as regards singing.

We have seen the past and present of Syriac Hymnody: one word may be permitted with respect to its future. It is then, we think, morally certain that Syrian Christians, in whatever country living, will, with the progress of enlightenment, come to realise the fact that acceptable worship must be intelligent and spiritual, and will therefore cease to employ in their religious services a dead language. Nevertheless the large-minded student of Christian history will always feel an interest in the great collection of old-world metrical compositions, lyrical and hortatory, noticed in this article, remembering that for a thousand years or more they were the medium of prayer and praise, consolation and admonition, to successive generations, confessing the One Saviour, and having hopes and fears, joys and sorrows, duties and temptations common to man. [W. R. S.]

Several of the Syriac hymns of Ephraem Syrus have been translated into English as follows:—

Of his hymns 20, and of his metrical homilies 8, have been rendered into prose, printed as blank verse, by Dr. Henry Burgess, in his Select Metrical Hymns and Homilies of Ephraim Syrus (Lond., 1853). Of these, the following versions the Rev. T. G. Crippen rendered into English metre in his Ancient Hymns and Poems (Lond., 1850). Mrs. Charles, in her Voice of Christian Life in Song (Lond., 1858), gives 4 versions from the Gr. into German metre. Dr. Daniel Schenkel, of Heidelberg, gives 3 hymns to the Syriac, with German verse taken from Dan. Zingerle's Heilige Mass der Syrer. The Rev. J. B. Morris, in his Select Works of S. Ephraem the Syrian (Oxford, 1847). There is also 1 fr. in the Rev. J. W. Stevenl's Verses by a Country Curate, 1850.

As for the majority of our readers it would be useless to give the Syr. under the first lines of the Syriac, they are here given together.

i. Versions by Horatius Bonar.

1. Glory to the glorious One. For the Lord's Day. (Canon 47.) Fr. 36 3rd series, 1841, of his Hys. of Faith and Hope, in 11 st. of 8 lines. From this st. 1, 5, 6, 10, 11, he compiled a hymn for holy communion, 6 st. adopted from Dr. Rosenthal, A. & M., No. 94, in 10 st. of 8 lines. Dr. Burgess quotes the hymn from the 2d. of S. Ephraem's Opera, in 4 folios, pub. at Rome, 1732–46 (vi. p. 428), says it is tetrasyllabic, with strophes unequal in length, and gives his version at p. 5.

2. Jehovah, judge my cause. Smiths being expelled from Edessa. (Canon 44.) Fr. 34 3rd series, 1841, of his Hys. of Faith and Hope. Dr. Burgess quotes it from the Opera, vi. p. 408, says it is heptasyllabic, in strophes of 4 lines, and gives his version at p. 90.

ii. Versions by Mrs. Charles.

1. To Thee, O God, be praises. On the Children in Paradise. (Canon 44.) In 3 st. of 4 lines (p. 44, ed. 1858). Syriac and German texts in Daniel, iii. pp. 153, 156.

2. Adam is shouting with her children. Palm Sunday. 6 st. of 4 lines (p. 51, ed. 1858). Syriac and German texts in Daniel, iii. pp. 162–164.

3. He calls us to a day of gladness. Christ's Entry into Jerusalem. In 11 st. of 4 lines (p. 45, ed. 1858). Syriac and German texts in Daniel, iii. pp. 159–161.

4. A star shines forth in heaven sublimely. Epiphany. In 8 st. of 4 lines (p. 39, ed. 1858). Syriac text in Dr. Schaff's Christ in Song (ed. 1870, p. 24). Syriac and German texts in Daniel, iii. pp. 149–151.

5. Child by God's sweet mercy given. Death of a Child. A beautiful lament of a father on the death of his child. In 7 st. of 12 lines (p. 82, ed. 1858). In 8 st. of 12 lines (p. 82, ed. 1847). Syriac and German texts in Daniel, iii. pp. 151–152. Dr. Burgess says it is tetrasyllabic, in strophes of 12 lines, and gives his version at p. 84.

6. Who has because they fled from him. Eve and Mary. Part of a poem on Eve and Mary, being a tr. of lines 38–48 of Zingerle. Syriac and German texts in Daniel, iii. pp. 164, 165.

iii. Versions by the Rev. T. G. Crippen.

1. Blessed be Messiah's name. Easter. (Canon 48.) In 8 st. of 8 lines, given at p. 1. Dr. Burgess quotes it from the 2d. of S. Ephraem's Opera, vi. p. 428, says it is tetrasyllabic, in strophes of 8 lines, and gives his version at p. 11.

2. When softly breathes the Resurrection air. Resurrection. (Canon 45, "In future generations.") In 8 st. of 4 lines, given at p. 4. Syriac and German texts in Daniel, iii. pp. 154–156. Dr. Burgess says it is tetrasyllabic, in strophes of 4 lines, and gives his version at p. 32.

3. In the time of evening let Thy grains second. Blessing. (Canon 46.) In 9 st. of 7 lines, given at p. 11. Dr. Burgess quotes it from the 2d. of S. Ephraem's Opera, vi. p. 428, says it is tetrasyllabic, in strophes of 7 lines, and gives his version at p. 73.

4. Pity me, Father, for Thy mercies sake. Last Judgment. (Canon 66.) In 8 st. of 4 lines, given at p. 11. Dr. Burgess quotes it from the 2d. of S. Ephraem's Opera, vi. p. 428, says it is tetrasyllabic, in strophes of 4 lines, and gives his version at p. 16.

iv. Version by J. W. Stevenl.

O my child, my best beloved one. Death of a Child. In his Verses by a Country Curate, 1850, p. 167, from Dr. Burgess's Tr., but adapted for a mother instead of a father.

v. Versions by Dr. Henry Burgess.

Besides those already mentioned Dr. Burgess gives 14 hymns on the Death (a) of children (pp. 4, 5), (b) of youth (pp. 9, 11), (c) of a Private Person (pp. 14, 20), (d) of a Presbyter (pp. 17, 43, 56), (e) of a Bishop (p. 35), (f) of a Deacon (p. 33), (g) of a Monk (p. 46), (h) of a Virgin (p. 51), (i) of a Penitent (p. 54), (k) of a Layman on his Ordination (p. 57), and Preparation for Death (pp. 22, 25, 28, 41, 63). The rest are on the Funerals of a Prince or Rich Man (p. 34), in Particulars (p. 61), for Morning (p. 67), before retiring to rest, Evening (p. 69), for his Whole Charge (pp. 88, 91), to the Trinity (p. 93), for the whole Year (p. 95), and a Collection of Prayers for Several Occasions (pp. 97-110). Also of 3 Metrical Homilies (pp. 112-122).

See also "Glad sight, the Holy Church," p. 484, i. [J. M.]

T

T., i.e. Theodosia, the initial of Anne Steele in the Bristol Bap. Coll., 1769, of Ash & Evans.

T. C. and J. C., in English and Scottish Psalter. [Old Version.]

T. B., the initials of Dr. Thomas Ruffles, in Collyer's Collection, 1812.

T. W. C., the initials of the Rev. T. W. Carr, in the People's Hymnal, 1867.

Take comfort, Christians, when your friends J. Logan. [Sorrow, but not without Hope.] 1st pub. in the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1781, No. lxiii., in 8 st. of 4 l., and based on 1 Thess. iv. 13-18. In many American collections a canto beginning with st. iii., "As Jesus died and rose again," is given for Easter, and is most suitable for that purpose. It is given in Hatfield's Church Hys., N. Y., 1872, &c. We have ascribed this paraphrase to John Logan, and not to Michael Bruce, on evidence set forth on p. 188, ii. [J. J.]

Take my heart, O Father, take it. [Holiness Desired.] This hymn was given anonymously in Dr. C. A. Bartol's Hys. for the Sanctuary, commonly known as the West Boston Unitarian Coll., 1840, No. 230, in 5 st. of 4 l. This was repeated in the Sabbath H. Bk., 1858; the Leaders Denial, 1884, and other American hymn-books. Another form of the text is, "Take my heart, O Father, mould it," in 3 st. It appeared in the Unitarian Hys. of the Spirit, Boston, 1864. This is altered from the former. [F. M. B.]

Take my life, and let it be. Frances R. Havergal. [Self-Consecration to Christ.] This hymn was written at Areley House, Feb. 4, 1874, in 11 st. of 2 l., and pub. in her Loyal Responses, 1878; the musical ed. of the same, 1881; and in Life Chords, 1880. It has also been printed as a leaflet, in various forms for Confirmation, Self-Consecration, and for enclosing in letters, some being accompanied by her father's tune Patmos. It has been tr. into French, German, Swedish, Russian, and other European languages, and into several of those of Africa and Asia. The history of its origin is thus given in the HAY. 1888. :—

"Perhaps you will be interested to know the origin of the consecration hymn 'Take my life.' I went for a little visit of five days [to Areley House]. There were ten persons in the house, some unconverted and long prayed for, some converted, but not rejoicing Christians. He gave me the prayer 'Lord, give us all in this house.' I had it in my heart when I left home, and it was given as a blessing. The last night of my visit after I had retired, the governess asked me to go to the two daughters. They were crying, &c.; then and there both of them trusted and rejoiced; it was nearly midnight. I 'sat too happy to sleep,' and passed most of the night in private communion with God. Next morning, ere I left my room, the complete thread of the verses came into my heart one after another, till they finished with 'Ever, ONLY, ALL for Thee!'"

The music to which Miss Havergal invariably sang this hymn, and with which it was always associated in the publications over which she had any influence, was her father's tune Patmos, and the family's desire is that this course may be followed by others. [J. J.]

Tam. The assumed name of Thomas Mackellar, in Neal's (American) Gazette, 1845.

Tandem audite me. [Love to Christ.] Probably of the 17th cent., and founded on Canticles ii. 5. It is found in the Mainz G. B. (R. C.) 1661, p. 434, in 6 st. entitled "Hymn on the love of the Mother of God in her dying hour." It is also in Wagner's G. B., Leipzig, 1697, vol. iii. p. 745; the Hymnodia Sacra, Mainz, 1674, p. 121; Daniel, iv. p. 344; and Trench's Sacred Latin Poetry, ed. 1864, p. 249. In R. Campbell's St. Andrew's Hyl., 1850, the hymn "Mary mourner, sad, forlorn," for St. Mary Magdalen, is partly derived from this hymn. [J. M.]

Tandem peractis O Deus. C. Coffin. [Saturday.] Appeared in the Paris Brev., 1736, and in his Hymni Sacri, p. 29, of the same year. In the Paris and later French Breus. it is the hymn at Matins for Saturdays from Trinity to Advent. The text is in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 32; Card. Newman's Hymns Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865; and L. C. Biggs's annotated ed. of H. A. & M. 1867. Tr. as:—

1. At length creation's days are past. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 29, and again in his Hys. of the Church, &c., 1841, No. 16. In the Hymnal for St. John the Evangelist, Aberdeen, 1870, it begins, "And now the six-days' work is done." In one or two others it is given without alteration.

2. And now Thy labours, Lord, are done. By L. Williams, in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Breviary, 1839, p. 58. In the Hymnary, 1872, No. 49, this tr. is rewritten as "At length six days their course have run."

3. Six days of labour now are past. This tr. was given in H. A. & M., 1861. It was based on J. Chandler's tr. as above. In the 1875 ed. of H. A. & M. it begins with the same first line, but several other lines have been rewritten and much improved thereby.

Other trs. are :—

i. At length the six days' course is past. W. Palmer, 1841.

ii. At length, O God, Thy work is done. A. D. Chambers, 1857.

[J. J.]

Tappan, William Bingham, was b. at Beverley, Massachusetts, Oct. 29, 1794, and was apprentised to a clockmaker at Boston in 1810. In 1815 he removed to Philadelphia, where he was engaged in business for a time. In 1822 he was engaged as Superintendent of the American Sunday School Union. In 1840

he was licensed to preach with the Congregational body, his sphere of usefulness on behalf of Sunday Schools being thereby considerably widened. He d. suddenly, of cholera, at West Needham, Massachusetts, June 18, 1849. His poetical works include:—

(1) New England and Other Poems, 1819; (2) Poems, 1822; (3) Lyrics, 1823; (4) Poetry of the Heart, 1845; (5) Sacred and Miscellaneous Poems, 1848; (6) Poetry of Life, 1849; (7) The Sunday School Hymn Book, Boston, 1844; (8) Hymns for Sabbath Schools, Boston, 1849; (9) Gems of Sacred Poetry, 1850.

Of these works the earliest are the most important. His hymns in C. U. include the following :—

1. Rule to this as was the place. Public Worship is included in his Lyrics, 1832; and given in Lyra Sac Americana, 1865.

2. The reasoned spirit to her home. Love. Appeared in Smithson's Village Hys., 1824. This is probably his best hymn.

3. There is an hour of hallowed peace. Heaven, a Place of Rest. Given in his New England and other Poems, 1819.

4. There is an hour of peaceful rest. Heaven a Place of Rest. The author's account of this hymn in his Gems of Sacred Poetry, 1850, is that it "was written by the late Mrs. Sigourney, and published in the Ladies' Pocket Book, edited by Richard Bache, Esq., and was introduced by him to the public in terms sufficiently flattering to a young man who then certainly lacked confidence in himself. The piece was republished in the Portfolio, and in a volume of my own miscellaneous and magazine, and was extensively circulated in my own native land, where it has found a place in several hymn and music-books. It was pub. in my first volume of Poems, at Philadelphia, in 1819, and soon after in a volume of Poems by Mrs. Sigourney, in the same city." It is in Lyra Sac. Americana, 1865, p. 265.

5. 'Tis midnight, and on Olive's brow. Gethsemane. Appeared in his Poems, 1822, and repeated in Lyra Sac. Amer., 1865, and several hymnals.

6. 'Tis night, but soon your redemption is near. Missions. Appeared in the Lyrics, 1823. It was sung at the wharf in New Haven at the embarkation of Missionaries for the Sandwich Islands, 1822.

7. When sorrow casts its shades around us. Resignation. From his New England and other Poems, 1819, and repeated in his Poetry of Life, 1849.

8. While the solemn note of time. Saturday Evening. Pub. in his Poems, 1822; repeated in Lyra Sac. Americana, 1865, and thence into Turin's Coll., 1882. [F. M. B.]

Τὰς ἕδρας τὰς αἰωνίας. St. John of Damascene. [All Saints.] In his Hymns of the Eastern Church, 1862, Dr. Neale entitles this "Idiomela for All Saints." According to this it should be found in the Pentecostarion. Various editions, however, have been searched in vain. Dr. Neale's tr., "Those eternal bowers," was given in his Hys. of the E. Church, 1862, in 4 st. of 8 l. It has since appeared in various collections, and ranks with the more popular of his translations from the Greek. [J. J.]

Tate and Brady. [New Version; also Psalters, English, § 12.]

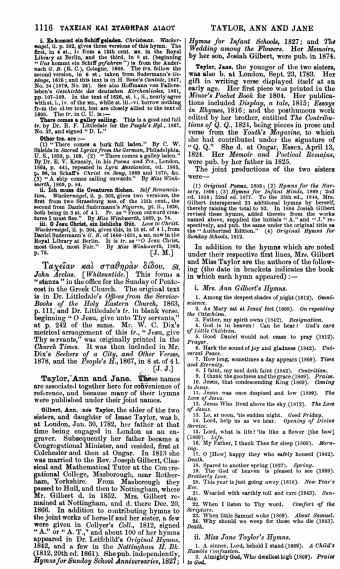
Tate, Nahum. [Psalters, English, § 13.]

Tauler, Johannes, was b. at Strassburg about 1300, and seems to have been the son of Nikolas Tauler or Tawsler, of Finkweilen, who in 1304 was a member of the Strassburg Town Council (Mitglied des Rathe). About the year 1318 he entered the Dominican convent at Strassburg. He studied for eight years at Strassburg, where the famous Meister Eckhart (d. 1327) was Dominican Professor of Theology from 1312 to 1320. He then went to Cologne to undergo a further training, in theory and practical work, extending over four years. Thereafter he returned to Strassburg where he soon came into note as an eloquent and practical preacher. When much of Germany was laid under interdict by Pope John XXII., because of resenting his interference with the election of the German Emperor in 1324, the Dominicans at Strassburg still continued to preach, to celebrate mass, and to administer to the people the consolations of the Church, even though Strassburg was under the Papal ban. After the Diet of Frankfurt in 1338 the strife between Emperor and Pope (now Benedict XII., Pope since 1334) became more pronounced. Up to 1339 the Dominicans at Strassburg still continued to sing mass, but were then compelled to cease doing so by command of the superiors of their Order. As the Strasburg magistracy still remained faithful to the Emperor, they resented this submission, and accordingly closed the Dominican convent in 1339, and it stood empty for three years and a half. About the beginning of 1339 we find Tauler in Basel, where he remained for some years, in close connection with Heinrich of Nördlingen and others of the so-called "Friends of God" in that city and neighbourhood. About 1346 he was again in Strassburg, and he spent most of the remainder of his life there and at Cologne. He d. at Strassburg on June 16, 1361. (Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xv. 251; Goedeke's Grundrisse, vol. i., 1884, p. 210; Tauler's Bekehrung, by F. H. S. Denifle, Strassburg, 1879; Zeitschrift für deutsches Alterthum, 1880, p. 206, &c.)

The above notice embraces what seem to be the best authenticated details of Tauler's life. It differs greatly from the account which till recently was regarded as historical, and which has been made accessible to English readers by Miss Susanna Winkworth (see below), and to German readers by Dr. Jundt, in his Histoire du panthéisme populaire au moyen âge et au seizième siècle, Paris, 1875. The basis of the former account was a work by Ruzbaan Nouwrin, which Denifle's investigations have shown to partake much more of the nature of a novel with a purpose than of authentic biography. (See also Dr. Jundt's Histoire, p. 69.)

Tauler was one of the most celebrated of the Mediæval Mystics, and one of the most famous of all German preachers. Much uncertainty still exists however, not only as to the details of his life, but also as to what writings are his. Of his sermons, 80 in all, 25 are undoubtedly and six in general, which were first printed at Leipzig in 1498 (good recent ed. by Jülius Hamberger, Frankfurt, 1864, and Prag, 1872. English version of 25, with an account of his life, by and ed. by Miss Susanna Winkworth, London, 1857). The well-known Nachfolge des armen Jesu Christi has since been shown by Denifle to be a work of the 15th cent., the most recent critical ed. (Munich, 1877), by d'opinion that it is not by him (a recent English version by J. R. Morell, London, 1887). His Theologia Germanica (good English version by Susanna Winkworth, London, 1854, with an interesting introduction on the "Friends of God") has also often been ascribed to him, but on no good grounds; though in its teaching it is in full accord with his, as to the necessity of mortification of self and self-will, and complete devotion to the will of God, and that in this inner union with God we again become God's children, as at the first, the Theologia Germanica has much affinity with Tauler's teachings.

The hymns attributed to Tauler were printed in his Werke, Cologne, 1543, and by Daniel Sudermann, in his Schöne auserlesene sinnreiche Figuren, Strassburg, 1620, and his Blicke hohe göttliche Gedänge, Strassburg, 1626. Sudermann seems to have rewritten them, or at least considerably altered them. Wackernagel, ii. pp. 392-397, gives 11 (really 9) pieces under Tauler's name. Three of these have passed into English, viz.:—



1116 ΤΑΧΕΙΑΝ ΚΑΙ ΣΤΑΘΗΡΑΝ ΔΙΔΟΥ

1. Es kommt ein Schiff geladen. Christmas. Wackernagel, ii. p. 343, gives three versions of this hymn. The first, in 4 st., is from a 15th cent. ms. in the Royal Library at Berlin, and the third, in 8 st. (beginning "Das kommt ein Schiff gefahren") is from the Andernacher Gesangbuch, 1608. The second, in 5 st., is a second version, in 4 st., taken from Suderman's Geistliche Lieder, 1616; and this text is in H. Bone's Cantate, 1817, No. 34 (1876, No. 38). See also Hoffmann von Fallersleben's Geschichte des deutschen Kirchenliedes, 1861, pp. 160-162. Translations: (1) "There comes a ship laden," which is, in the ms., while st. iii.-vi. borrow nothing from the other text, but are closely allied to the text of 1609. The Fr. is C. U. M——

There comes a galley sailing. This is a good and full tr. of st. i.-iii. of the English for the People's Hymnal, 1867, No. 12, and signed "E. L."

Other trs. are:—

(1) "There comes a bark full laden." By C. W. Shields in Sacred Lyrics from the German, Philadelphia, U. S., 1859, p. 108. (2) "There comes a galley laden." By Dr. E. V. Kennedy, in his Poems and Tr., London, 1863, p. 96, and repeated in his Christian Ballads, 1867, p. 96, in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870, &c. (3) "A ship comes sailing onwards." By Miss Winkworth, 1869, p. 94.

ii. Ich weiss die Gnadenen Sieben. Self Renunciation. Found in Wackernagel, iii. p. 1004, in 7 st., the first from two Strassburg mss. of the 15th cent., the second from Daniel Sudermann's Figuren, pt. ii., 1626, both being in 3 st. of 4 l. Tr. as "From sinward overturns I must flee." By Miss Winkworth, 1869, p. 74.

iii. Ich weiss ein Blümlein hübsch und fein. Christmas. Wackernagel, iii. p. 304, gives this, in 10 st. of 4 l., from Daniel Sudermann's G. B. of 1626-1651, a ms. now in the Royal Library at Berlin. It is tr. as "O Jesu Christ, most Good, most Fair." By Miss Winkworth, 1869, p. 76.

[J. M.]

Ταχείαν καὶ σταθηρὰν δίδου. St. John Arcles. [Whitsuntide.] This forms a "stanza" in the office for the Sunday of Pentecost in the Greek Church. The original text is in Dr. Littledale's Offices from the Service-Books of the Holy Eastern Church, 1863, p. 111, and Dr. Littledale's tr. in blank verse, beginning "O Jesu, give unto Thy servants," st. p. 242 of the same. Mr. W. C. Dix's metrical arrangement of this tr., "Jesu, give Thy servants," was originally printed in the Church Times. It was then included in Mr. Dix's Seekers of a City, and Other Verse, 1878, and the People's H., 1867, in 8 st. of 4 l.

[J. J.]

Taylor, Ann and Jane. These names are associated together here for convenience of reference, and because many of their hymns were published under their joint names.

Gilbert, Ann, née Taylor, the elder of the two sisters, and daughter of Isaac Taylor, was b. at London, Jan. 30, 1782, her father at that time being engaged in London as an engraver. Subsequently her father became a Congregational Minister, and resided, first at Colchester and then at Ongar. In 1813 she was married to the Rev. Joseph Gilbert, Classical and Mathematical Tutor at the Congregational College, Mansborough, near Rotherham, Yorkshire. From Mansborough they passed to Hull, and then to Nottingham, where Mr. Gilbert d. in 1852. Mrs. Gilbert remained at Nottingham, and d. there Dec. 20, 1866. In addition to contributing hymns to the joint works of herself and her sister, a few were given in Collyer's Coll., 1812, signed "A." or "A. T.," and about 100 of her hymns appeared in Dr. Leifchild's Original Hymns, 1842, and a few in the Nottingham Y. Bk. (1812, 20th ed. 1861). She pub. independently, Hymns for Sunday School Anniversaries, 1827; Hymns for Infant Schools, 1827; and The Wedding among the Flowers. Her Memoirs, by her son, Josiah Gilbert, were pub. in 1874.

Taylor, Jane, the younger of the two sisters, was also b. at London, Sept. 23, 1783. Her gift in writing verse displayed itself at an early age. Her first piece was printed in the Minor's Pocket Book for 1804. Her publications included Display, a tale, 1815; Essays in Rhymes, 1816; and the posthumous work edited by her brother, entitled The Contributions of Q. Q., 1824, being pieces in prose and verse from the Youth's Magazine, to which she had contributed under the signature of "Q. Q." She d. at Ongar, Essex, April 13, 1824. Her Memoir and Poetical Remains, were pub. by her father in 1825.

The joint productions of the two sisters were:—

(1) Original Poems, 1805; (2) Hymns for the Nursery, 1806; (3) Hymns for Infant Minds, 1809; 2nd ed. 1810; 32nd ed. 1877. To the 35th ed., 1844, Mrs. Gilbert interspersed 23 additional hymns by herself, and altered the original title to "Hymns for Infant Minds." Several of these hymns, added thereto from the works named above, supplied the initials "A." and "J." respectively, and pub. the same under the original title as the "Authorised Edition." (4) Original Hymns for Sunday Schools, 1812.

In addition to the hymns which are noted under their respective first lines, Mrs. Gilbert and Miss Taylor are the authors of the following (the date in brackets indicates the book in which each hymn appeared):—

i. Mrs. Ann Gilbert's Hymns.

1. Among the deepest shades of night (1812). Omniscience.
2. As Mary sat at Jesus' feet (1809). On requesting the Catechism.
3. Father, my spirit owns (1842). Resignation.
4. God is in heaven! Can he hear? God's care of Little Children.
5. Good David would not cease to pray (1812). Prayer.
6. Hark the sound of joy and gladness (1842). Universal Peace.
7. How long, sometimes a day appears (1809). Time and Eternity.
8. I faint, my soul doth faint (1842). Consolation.
9. I'm but a little stammerer (1809). Infant Prayer.
10. Jesus, that condescending King (1809). Coming to Jesus.
11. Jesus was once despised and low (1809). The Love of Jesus.
12. Jesus, Who lived above the sky (1812). The Love of Jesus.
13. Lo, at noon, 'tis sudden night. Good Friday.
14. Lord, help us as we hear. Opening of Divine Service.
15. Lord, what is life? 'tis like a flower [the bow] (1809). Life.
16. My Father, I thank Thee for sleep (1809). Morning.
17. O [How] happy they who safely housed (1842). Death.
18. Spared to another spring (1837). Spring.
19. The God of heaven is pleased to see (1809). Brotherly love.
20. This year is just going away (1815). New Year's Day.
21. Wearied with earthly toil and care (1842). Sunday.
22. When I listen to Thy word. Comfort of the Scriptures.
23. When little Samuel woke (1809). About Samuel.
24. Why should we weep for those who die (1842). Death.

ii. Miss Jane Taylor's Hymns.

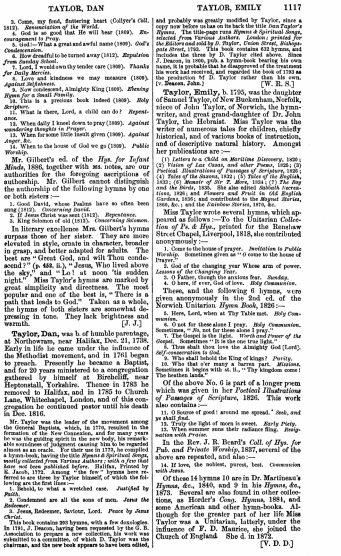
1. A sinner, Lord, behold I stand (1809). A Child's Humble Confession.
2. Almighty God, Who dwellest high (1808). Praise to God.

1117



TAYLOR, DAN 1117

2. Come, my fond, fluttering heart (Collyer's Coll. 1812). Renunciation of the World.
4. God is so good that He will hear (1809). Encouragement to Pray.
5. Hail!—What a great and awful name (1809). God's Condescension.
6. How dreadful to be turned away (1812). Expulsion from Sunday School.
7. Lord, I would own thy tender care (1809). Thanks for Daily Mercies.
8. Lord, what a sinfulness we may measure (1809). Against Self-Esteem.
9. Now condescend, Almighty King (1809). Blessing Hymn for a Small Family.
10. This is a precious book indeed (1809). Holy Scripture.
11. What is there, Lord, a child can do? Repentance.
13. When daily I kneel down to pray (1809). Against wandering thoughts in Prayer.
14. When to some little heart given (1809). Against Anger. &c.
15. When to the house of God we go (1809). Public Worship.

Mr. Gilbert's ed. of the Hym. for Infant Minds, 1836, together with ms. notes, are our authorities for the foregoing ascriptions of authorship. Mr. Gilbert cannot distinguish the authorship of the following hymns by one or both sisters:—

1. Good David, whose Psalms have so often been sung (1812). Concerning David.
2. If Jesus Christ was sent (1812). Repentance.
3. King Solomon of old (1812). Concerning Solomon.

In literary excellence Mrs. Gilbert's hymns surpass those of her sister. They are more elevated in style, ornate in character, broader in grasp, and better adapted for adults. The best are "Great God, and will Thou condescend?" (p. 608, ii.), "Jesus, Who lived above the sky," and "Lo! at noon 'tis sudden night." Miss Taylor's hymns are marked by great simplicity and directness. The most popular and one of the best is, "There is a path that leads to God." Taken as a whole, the hymns of both sisters are somewhat depressing in tone. They lack brightness and warmth.

[J. J.]

Taylor, Dan, was b. of humble parentage, at Northowram, near Halifax, Dec. 21, 1738. Early in life he came under the influence of the Methodist movement, and in 1761 began to preach. Presently he became a Baptist, and for 20 years ministered to a congregation gathered by himself at Birchcliff, near Heptonstall, Yorkshire. Thence in 1783 he removed to Halifax, and in 1785 to Church Lane, Whitechapel, London, and of this congregation he continued pastor until his death in Dec. 1816.

Mr. Taylor was the leader of the movement among the General Baptists, which, in 1770, resulted in the formation of the New Connexion, and for many years he was the guiding spirit in the new body, his remarkable powers of intelligent exposition and his fervent appeals attracting large audiences. In 1772, he compiled a hymn-book, having the title Hymns & Spiritual Songs, mostly collected from Various Authors: with a few that have not been published before. Halifax, Printed by Nath. Walker. In the "few" hymns, the only ones known to are three by Taylor himself, of which the following are the first lines:—

1. Behold, to what a wretched case. Justified by Faith.
2. Condemned are all the sons of men. Jesus the Saviour.
3. Jesus, Redeemer, Saviour, Lord. Peace by Jesus Christ.

This book contains 202 hymns, with a few doxologies. In 1791, Dr. Deacon, having been requested by the "Association of the General Baptists" to revise it, was associated to a committee, of which D. Taylor was the chairman, and the new book appears to have been edited, and probably was greatly modified by Taylor, since a copy now before us has on its back the title Dan Taylor's Hymns. The title-page runs Hymns & Spiritual Songs, for the use of Christian Worship. Selected by the Ministers and edited by D. Taylor, Falcon Street, Blakspate Street, 1785. This book contains 633 hymns, and includes the three by D. Taylor cited above. Since J. Deacon, in 1800, pub. a hymn-book bearing his own name, it is presumable that he disapproved of the treatment the work had received, and regarded the book of 1772 as Taylor's, and not as D. Taylor rather than J. Deacon's.

[W. R. S.]

Taylor, Emily, b. 1795, was the daughter of Samuel Taylor, of New Buckenham, Norfolk, niece of John Taylor, of Norwich, the hymnwriter, and great grand-daughter of Dr. John Taylor, the Hebraist. Miss Taylor was the writer of numerous tales for children, chiefly historical, and of various books of instruction, and of descriptive natural history. Amongst her publications are:—

(1) Letters to a Child on Maritime Discovery, 1829; (2) Voices of Last Cause, and other Poems, 1833; (3) Poetical Illustrations of Passages of Scripture, 1826; (4) Poetical Illustrations of the Book of Psalms, 1827; (5) Memoir of Sir T. More, 1833; (7) The Bay and the Birds, 1835. She also edited Sabbath Recreations, 1826; and Flowers and Fruit in Old English Gardens, 1836; and contributed to the Repos. Sibrin, 1840, &c.; and the Rainbow Series, 1870, &c.

Miss Taylor wrote several hymns, which appeared as follows:—In the Unitarian Collection of Fs. & Hys., printed for the Renshaw Street Chapel, Liverpool, 1818, she contributed anonymously:—

1. Come to the house of prayer. Invitation to Public Worship. Sometimes given as "O come to the house of Prayer."
2. God of the changing year Whose arm of power. Seasons of the Changing Year.
3. O Father, though the anxious Sar. Sunday.
4. O here, if ever, God of love. Holy Communion.

These, and the following 6 hymns, were given anonymously in the 2nd ed. of the Norwich Unitarian Hymn Book, 1826:—

5. Here, Lord, when at Thy Table met. Holy Communion.
6. O not for these alone I pray. Holy Communion. Sometimes "O not for these alone I pray."
7. The Gospel is the light. Words and Power of the Gospel. Sometimes "It is the one true light."
8. Thus shall thou love the Almighty God [Lord], Self-consecration to God.
9. Who shall inherit the King of kings? Purity.
10. Who that ever many a barren part. Missions. Sometimes it begins with st. ii., "Thy kingdom come! The heathen lands."

Of the above No. 6 is part of a longer poem which was given in her Poetical Illustrations of Passages of Scripture, 1826. This work also contains:—

11. O Source of good! around me spread. "Seek, and ye shall find.
12. Truly the light of morn is sweet. Early Piety.
13. Ye saints, whose name their radiance flings. Imagination with Praise.

In the Rev. J. R. Beard's Coll. of Hys. for Pub. and Private Worship, 1837, several of the above are repeated, and also:—

14. If love, the noblest, purest, best. Communion with Jesus.

Of these 14 hymns 10 are in Dr. Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1840, and 9 in his Hymns, &c., 1873. Several are also found in other collections, as Horder's Cong. Hymns, 1884, and some American and other hymn-books. Although for the greater part of her life Miss Taylor was a Unitarian, latterly, under the influence of F. D. Maurice, she joined the Church of England. She d. in 1872.

[V. D. D.]

1118

Taylor, Helen, daughter of Martin Taylor, was the author of The Child's Book of Homilies, N. Y.; Sabbath Bells, A Series of Simple Lays for Christian Children, N. Y.; and Missionary Hymns: for the Use of Children, 1846. From her Sabbath Bells, "I love that holy Scripture." (Concerning Heaven) is taken. The following are all from her Missionary Hymns, 1846:—

1. A feather's seed that lifted is. Value of Little Things.
2. And shall we dwell together? Concerning Heaven.
3. Father, the little effort's take. Offertory.
4. There is a happy land on high. Concerning Heaven.

[J. J.]

Taylor, Jeremy, D.D. This poet of preachers was born of very humble parentage on both sides, at Cambridge, in August, 1613. His father was a barber. He must have had a good school ass a boy. He entered Caius College, of his native city, as a "sizar" in 1626. His career at the university was a brilliant one. He was made fellow of All Souls College, Oxford, in 1632; and rector of Uppingham, Rutlandshire, in 1638, as is still proudly remembered there. He was inevitably "sequestered" by Parliament in 1642. Inexorable necessities of circumstance put him in prison. During the opening of the great Protestorate he kept a school in Wales along with William Nicholson, and acted as chaplain to the Earl of Carberry at Golden Grove, Carmarthenshire, one of the pilgrim spots of our country, because of this and of his imperishable book named after it. In 1658 he is found in Ireland. He preaches at Lisburn and Portmore. He returned to London early in 1660, and signed the loyalist or royalist Declaration of the Nobility and Gentry, on April 24th, thirty-five days before the "Restoration." He was not overlooked, as so many faithful royalists were. He was consecrated bishop of Down and Connor in January, 1661; made a member of the Irish Privy Council in February; entrusted with the diocese of Dromore in March; and in the same year was chosen Vice-chancellor of the University of Dublin. He d. at Lisburn, August 13th, 1667, and was interred in the choir of the cathedral of Dromore. Bishop Taylor's complete works have been repeatedly edited, e.g. by Henry Rogers, Pitman, Bp. Heber, Eden; and manifold Selections and single books, as his Holy Living and Holy Dying. Notwithstanding his rich and imperial intellect, and enthralling eloquence, and absolute command of words, Bishop Taylor holds only a very small place in the Anthem of England. It has been admirably said by Dr. Rowland Williams, "Poetry differs from eloquence, as love differs from friendship" (Stray Thoughts, 1876). His attempts at verse are eloquence, not poetry, and even the eloquence hampered and shallowed. The present writer collected his entire poems and verse-translations in the Miscellanies of the Fuller Worthies' Library (1870). In the "Introduction" the reader will find a critical account of the various hymns; and also therein an account is furnished of a flagrant misappropriation of Bp. Taylor's Hymns by Samuel Speed in his Prison Piety, or Meditations divine and moral. Digested into poetical heads on mixt and various subjects (1677). The following is the original title-page of the volume in which all the Festival Hymns, save one, first appeared:—

The Golden Grove, or a Manuall of Daily Prayers and Letanies Fitted to the Seasons of the Week. Containing a short Summary of what is to be Believed, Practised, Desired. Also Festival Hymns According to the manner of "The Ancient Church." Compared for the Use of the Diocese of Sarum. Whereunto is annexed a Guide for the Sicke or "The Great Exemplar." London: Printed by J. F. for R. Royston, at the Angel in Ivie Lane, 1655. (Univ.) A 3rd ed. appeared in 1667 with the Author's name thus, By Jer. Taylor, D.D., Chaplain in Ordinary to His Majesty; and other changes necessitated by the circumstances. A 3rd ed. seems to have disappeared. The 4th ed. appeared in 1660; and from it is derived the second Christmas Hymn, "Awake, my soul," which was not in either the 1st or 2nd ed. Heber, Pitman, and Eden overlooked this hymn. [A. B. G.]

From Bp. Taylor's Golden Grove, 1655, the following hymns are in C. U.:—

1. Full of mercy, full of love. Prayer for Charity. The full of mercy, p. 145, where it is given in lines, thus headed, "A Prayer for Charity." It was given in Bp. Heber's posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 109, and thus came into later hymn-books.
2. Lord, come away, why dost Thou stay. Advent, see p. 1, ii.
3. Lord, let Thy flames of holy charity. Whitsunday. This begins with line 12 of his hymn in the G. Grove, "On the Feast of Pentecost, or Whitsunday," p. 157.

His Christmas Carol, "Where is this blessed Babe," and his Prayer, "My soul doth pant towards Thee," are also from the Golden Grove. (See English Hymnody, Early, § V.) [J. J.]

Taylor, John, b. July 30, 1750, was the s. of Richard Taylor, of Norwich, and grandson of Dr. John Taylor (1694-1761, the eminent Hebrew scholar, who was for many years minister of the Octagon Chapel, Norwich, and afterwards Divinity tutor at the Warrington Academy. Dr. Taylor published A Coll. of Tunes in Various Airs, one of the first collections of its kind, and his grandson was one of the most musical of Unitarian hymnwriters). Young Taylor, after serving his apprenticeship in his native place, was for two years in a banking house in London, at which time he was an occasional poetical contributor to the Morning Chronicle. In 1773 he returned to Norwich, where he spent the rest of his life, first as a manufacturer, and afterwards as a wool and yarn factor. For nearly fifty years he was a deacon at the Octagon Chapel. At the time of the French Revolution he joined in the support of The Cabinet, a periodical brought out by the Liberals of Norwich, in conjunction with Dr. Enfield, William Taylor, Miss Alderson (Mrs. Opie), and others, and, as a "poet of the olden time," he contributed five poems thereto. These, and other political songs and poems relating to family events, &c., together with 50 hymns, were collected in Hymns and Miscellaneous Poems, Reprinted for Private Distribution, 1803, with a Memoir taken from the Monthly Repository of Sept. 1826, by his son, Edward Taylor, then Gresham Professor of Music. An earlier and less complete edition, containing 43 hymns, he had himself caused to be printed by his sons, Richard and Arthur Taylor, London, 1818. He d. June 23, 1820. Of his hymns the following 9 were contributed to Dr. Enfield's Sel. of Hymns for Social Worship, Norwich, 1799 (see p. 391, ii.) :—

1. Far from mortal cares retreating. Divine Worship.
2. Father divine, before Thy view. Divine Providence.
3. Father of our feeble race. Christian Love. This begins in Hunter's Cong. Hys., 1864, and others, with st. ii., "Lord, what offering shall we bring?"
4. Glory be to God on high. Divine goodness celebrated. The first stanza is by C. Wesley (see p. 427, ii.), and the rest are by Taylor.
5. God of mercy, God of love (grace), Hear our sad repentant song. Penitence.
6. O sing to the Lord a new song. Praise to the Supreme Ruler and Judge.
7. Our God, our help in ages past. Praise to the Father. The hymn "Saints with pious zeal attesting" in Sheffield's Church H. Bk., N.Y., 1872, begins with line 4 of st. i. of this hymn.
8. Raise your voice and joyful sing. Praise.
9. Thou Sovereign Ruler of the skies. Resignation recommended to the Saviour. The first stanza and ll. 3 and 4 of all are by C. Wesley (1854, ii.), and the rest are by Taylor.

J. Taylor edited Hymns intended to be used at the Commencement of Social Worship, London, 1802. To that collection he contributed 10 hymns, including :—

10. At the portals of Thy house. Divine Worship. In a few American collections a centо from this hymn is given as "Lord, before Thy presence come."
11. Blessed Sabbath of our (the) Lord. Sunday.
12. Come, Holy Spirit, come. Divine Worship.
13. Supreme o'er all Jehovah reigns. Divine Worship.

All the foregoing, except No. 8, were republished in the Norwich Coll. of 1814. That edition contained 33 of Taylor's hymns. To the 2nd ed., 1826, he added 9 more. To R. Aspland's Sel. of Ps. and Hys. for Unitarian Worship, Hackney, 1810, he contributed 26 hymns, old and new, including :—

14. Like shadows gliding o'er the plain. Time and Eternity.
15. The Mighty God who rolls [rules] the spheres. God the Preserver of Men.

These 15 are the best known of Taylor's hymns, and are largely found in Unitarian collections. See especially Dr. Martineau's Hymns, &c., of 1840, and of 1873. [V. D. D.]

Taylor, Rebekah Hope, née Morley, eldest dau. of S. Morley, M.P., and wife of H. W. Taylor, a member of the Plymouth Brethren, is represented in the Enlarged London H. Bk., 1873, by :—

1. Blessed Saviour, I would praise Thee. Praise to Jesus.
2. My Saviour, I would own Thee. Steadfastness.
3. The race boundary passed o'er. New Year.
4. Thou art the Way, O Lord. The Way, Truth, and Life.

Mrs. Taylor d. Nov. 8, 1877. Her Letters were pub. in 1878.

Taylor, Thomas Rawson, s. of the Rev. Thomas Taylor, some time Congregational Minister at Bradford, Yorkshire, was b. at Ossett, near Wakefield, May 9, 1807, and educated at the Free School, Bradford, and the Leaf Square Academy, Manchester. From the age of 15 to 18 he was engaged, first in a merchant's, and then in a printer's office. Influenced by strong religious desires, he entered the Airedale Independent College at 18, to prepare for the Congregational ministry. His first and only charge was Howard Street Chapel, Sheffield. This he retained about six months, entering upon the charge in July 1830, and leaving it in the January following. For a short time he acted as classical tutor at Airedale College, but the failure of health which compelled him to leave Sheffield also necessitated his resigning his tutorship. He d. March 7, 1835. A volume of his Memoir and Select Remains, by W. S. Matthews, in which were several poems and a few hymns, was pub. in 1836. His best known hymn is "I'm but a stranger here" (p. 562, ii.). The rest in C. U. all from his Memoirs, 1836, are :—

1. Earth, with her ten thousand flowers. The love of God.
2. Saviour and Lord of all. Hymn to the Saviour, Adored as "born, immanuel" in the Leeds H. Bk., 1853.
3. There was a time when children sang. A School Anniversary.
4. Yes, it is good to worship Thee. Divine Worship. From the "Tis sweet, O God, to sing Thy praise," beginning with st. ii.
5. Yes, there are little ones in heaven. Sunday S. Anniversary.

[J. J.]

To decet laus = ei nydeu alvos. See pp. 1121, col. iii., 1125, 1127, etc.

Te Deum laudamus, the most famous non-biblical hymn of the Western Church, intended originally (as it appears) for daily use as a morning hymn. It is not now known to the Eastern Church in a Greek form, though the first ten verses exist in Greek. In the West it is known to have been in use from the beginning of the 6th cent. as a hymn for the Sunday service for mattins before the lesson from the Gospel.

The subject will be treated under the following heads : i. Authorship; ii. Text; iii. Title; iv. Date and Authorship; v. Origin and Intention; vi. Versions; vii. Liturgical use; viii. Musical Settings.

i. Authorship. Of the Authorship the most important are :—

1. For the earlier literature it is sufficient to refer to Bingham's Antiquities, bk. xiv. ch. iv. § 8, and the notes by C. M. Ancus in 3 vols. 8vo, Venice, 1764-65, ii. pp. 127-153, and to Cardinal J. M. Thomasius' Opera, ed. Vezzosi, Rome, 1747, vol. i. p. lxii fol. and vol. ii. p. 414 fol. In the former the question of the Ambrosian authorship is discussed, and the Benedictine theory (by Massei), in the latter several MS. texts are given with various readings. The dissertation of W. E. Tentzel, Exercitationes duæ, Leipzig and Frankfort, 1692, is also frequently referred to.

2. Till recently the best modern authority was Daniel's Thesaurus Hymnologicus, vol. i. Halle, 1841, pp. 99-104, where the Benedictine theory has been well set forth by Prebendary Edgar C. S. Gibson, of Wells, in his able and learned article on the Te Deum in the Church Quarterly Review, of April, 1884 (vol. 18, pp. 1-27), supplemented by one on the Gloria in Excelsis, ibid., Oct. 1884 (vol. 19, pp. 1-27). Both of these are of the greatest service to the writer of this article. Dr. Neale-Smith's article in Cheetham's Dict. of Christian Antiquities (1880) is ill-arranged, but touches some points not noticed by the later writer.

3. In 1886 Archdeacon Dowden of Ebenezer Thomson called a "Vindication of the Hymn Te Deum laudamus, &c., London, J. Russell Smith, 1886, contains a certain number of notices, not readily accessible elsewhere.

4. In 1887 Dr. Julian published in the Academy several acute remarks, i. p. 210 fol., Mar. 1887. W. Meyer's Rhenanische Schulprog., for 1888, pp. 13-34, Nicetas of Remesiana, his Life and Works, Camb., 1905. Cp. Bp. Chadwick; Dr. Salisbury, The T.D., its Structure, &c., etc., Cincinnati, U.S., 1875.

5. Thanks are due to M. L. Delisle and Prof. S. Berger of Paris, Dr. Ceriani of Milan, Dr. Ehrensen of St. Gall, Dr. Lehnerdt of Bamberg, and Rev. H. J. White for copies and collations of MSS.; to Mr. W. J. Hardy, of Magdalene College, Cambridge, for many notes and references; to Mr. Bass Mullinger for the section on the Benedictine version, and on the musical settings (see below, vii. 4, and viii. 5).

ii. The Text. As it is impossible to discuss the Date and Authorship and Origin and Intention of the hymn without a minute analysis of its text, we here present, in parallel columns, four of the most ancient forms which we possess.

I. Irish Version.	II. Milan Version (f).	III. Ordinary Version of the Hymn.	IV. Greek Version.
Bangor Antiphonary, Milan Bibl. Ambrosiana, C. 5 Inf, a.D. 680–691 (A); and Book of Hymns, Tr. Coll. Dubl. E. 4. 2, sacc. x. / (D) Also in the leaves we, in the Franciscan convent at Dublin (I), and the Nunnaminster ms. B.M. Hurt, 7853 (printed in Appendix) sacc. viii.–ix. (H).	Milan Cathedral Breviary, sacc. xi. (M); Cp. Vatican 81 (V.); and Cod. Monacensis (Lat. 343 sacc. x.)	Bibl. Bamberg. A. I. 14 (copied from a ms.; written A.D. 999), and many other mss.	Found in the Quadruple Psalters emanating from S. Gall, viz.: Cod. Bamberg. A. I. 14 (B); S. Gall. 17, sacc. ix., x. (G); also Cologne Cathedral 1) and in the Tournai Psalter a.D. 1105 (T) Paris, lat. Nouvelles Acquisitions, 2135.
Tenuus in dia dominico. A (non D†).	[Acta Finiterium sine titulo.]	Tenuus matutinalis.	Tenuus matutinalis.
1. Laudate pueri dominum laudate nomen dominii · te deum laudamus te dominum confitemur	1. Te-deum laudamus te dominum confitemur	1. Te-deum laudamus te dominum confitemur	1. Se theon enomen se kyrion exomologumen
2, 3. Te æternum patrem omnis terra veneratur · tibi omnes angeli tibi cæli et universæ potestates ...	2. Te æternum patrem omnis terra veneratur 3. Tibi omnes angeli Tibi cæli et universæ potestates	2. Te æternum patrem omnis terra veneratur 3. Tibi omnes angeli Tibi cæli et universæ potestates	2. Se eonion patera posa igi 3. Si pantes aggeli si uranji ce pase exaseis
4, 5. Tibi hirubin et syraphin incessabili voce proclamant · sanctus sanctus sanctus dominus deus sabaoth ..	4. Tibi cherubin et seraphim incessabili voce proclamant dicentes 5. Sanctus sanctus sanctus dominus deus sabaoth	4. Tibi cherubim et seraphim incessabili voce proclamant 5. Sanctus sanctus sanctus dominus deus sabaoth	4. Si cherubim ce seraphim acatapausto foni anaxrazin. 5. Agios Agios Agios kyrios o theos sabaoth
6. Plent sunt cæli et uniuuers terra honore gloriæ tuæ	6. Pleni sunt cæli et terræ gloriæ maiestatis tuæ	6. Pleni sunt cæli et terra maiestatis gloriæ tuæ	6. Plirs urani ce igi tis megalosinis tis doxis su
7, 8. Te gloriosus apostolorum chorus · te prophetarum laudabilis numerus	7. Te gloriosus apostolorum chorus 8. Te prophetarum laudabilis numerus	7. Te gloriosus apostolorum chorus 8. Te prophetarum laudabilis numerus	7. Se doksasmenos apostilon choris 8. Se prophitis enetos arithmos
9, 10. Te martyrum candidatus laudat exercitus · te per orbem terrarum sancta confitetur ecclesia	9. Te martyrum candidatus laudat exercitus 10. Te per orbem terrarum sancta confitetur ecclesia	9. Te martyrum candidatus laudat exercitus 10. Te per orbem terrarum sancta confitetur ecclesia	9. Se martirpon eclampros est stratí 10. Se cata pasan tin ikumenin lagia exomologi ecclisia
11, 12. Patrem immense maiestatis · venerandum tuum verum unigenitum filium ...	11. Pater immense maiestatis 12. Venerandum tuum verum et unicum filium	11. Patrem immense maiestatis 12. Venerandum tuum verum unicum filium	11. Patera emmeio megalosinis 12. [sin ai] tis sikos monogeni - yh]]
13, 14. Sanctum quoque paraclitum spiritum · tu rex gloriæ christe ...	13. [S]m qooque paraclitum spiritum 14. Tu rex gloriæ christe	13. Sanctum quoque paraclytum spiritum 14. Tu rex gloriæ christe	The rest of the column is erased.
15, 16a. Tu patris sempiternus es filius · tu ad liberandum mundum suscepisti hominem ;	15. Tu patris sempiternus es filius 16. Tu ad liberandum hominem non horruisti virginis uterum	15. Tu patris sempiternus es filius 16. Tu ad liberandum suscepisti hominem non horruisti virginis uterum
16b, 17. Non horruisti virginis uterum · tu deuicto mortis aculeo aperuisti credentibus regna cælorum	17. Tu deuicto mortis aculeo aperuisti credentibus regna cælorum	17. Tu deuicto mortis aculeo aperuisti credentibus regna cælorum
18, 19. Tu ad dexteram dei sedes · in gloria patris · iudex crederis esse uenturus ..	18. Tu ad dexteram dei sedes in gloria patris 19. Iudex crederis esse uenturus	18. Tu ad dexteram dei sedes in gloria patris 19. Iudex crederis esse uenturus
20. Te ergo quæsumus nobis tuis famulis subueni quos pretiosæ sanguinis redimisti ...	20. Te ergo quæsumus tuis famulis subueni quos pretioso sanguine redemisti	20. Te ergo quæsumus tuis famulis subueni quos pretioso sanguine redemisti
21. Æternam fac cum sanctis gloriam muneri	21. Æterna fac cum sanctis tuis gloria muneri	21. Aeterna fac cum sanctis tuis gloria muneri
22, 23. Salvum fac populum tuum domine · et benedic hereditati tuæ · et rege eos et extolle illos usque in sæculum	[32.] Per singulos dies benedicimus te [33.] Et laudabo nomen tuum in æternum et in sæculum sæculi	22. Salvum fac populum tuum domine et benedic hereditati tuæ (Ps. xxviii. 9 Rsb.) 23. Et rege eos et extolle illos usque in æternum (ibid.)

24, 25. Per singulos dies benedicimus te · et laudamus nomen tuum in æternum et in sæculum sæculi amen .	[34.] Salvum fac populum tuum domine et benedic hereditatem tuam [35.] Et rege illos et extolle eos usque in æternum	24. Per singulos dies benedicimus te (Ps. cxliv. 2) 25. Et laudamus nomen tuum in sæculum et in sæculum sæculi (ibid.) 26. Dignare domine die isto, sine peccato nos custodire (Τῶν ἁγίων ἀοθικός)
[26.] Fiat domine misericordia tua super nos quemadmodum speravimus in te /	[36.] Benedictus es domine deus patrum nostrorum et laudabilis et gloriosus in sæcula sæculorum (Cf. Dan. iii. 56, LXX. and Vulg., and note on col. iii. 52.)	27. Miserere nostri domine miserere nostri (Ps. cxxiii. 3) 28. Fiat misericordia tua domine super nos quemadmodum speravimus in te (Ps. xxxiii. 22) 29. In te domine speravi non confundar in æternum (Ps. xxxi. 1 and lxx. 1) LAUDS (LIGHT) LECTIONARY AND EUANGELIE. Te deum laus te deum hymnus tibi gloria deo patri · et filio cum sancto spiritu in sæcula sæculorum Amen. (Τῶν ἁγίων ἀοθικός).
Sequitur in D.: Te patrem adoramus æternum · te semperternum filium invocamus · tuque spiritum sanctum in una divinitatis substantia confitemur · tibi omnes · tibi cæli et universæ debitas laudes et gratias referunt ut te incessabili voce laudare mereamur per eternæ sæcula. Sequitur in A.: TRACTE QUASDO COMMUNICARE SACERDOTES, etc. (See p. 989, l.)
Tit. Hanc est laus sanctæ trinitatis quam augustinus sanctus et ambrosius composuit B. Note attributing the hymn to Nicetas coarb. of Peter in Rome I. 1. Te-ðominum confitemur · te-deum laudamus D. 4. hirubin et seraphin D proclamant · dicentes DI, ô to WT. 6. honore gloriæ tuæ: gloria tua omnia in excelsis H. 9. laudat: laudet A, om. H. 11. maiestatis + tuæ. 13. sanctum + WT. 14. unigenitum AD. 15. ad liberandum mundum ADHI, absolvisti G. 17. deuicta morte: deuicta morte H. aperuisti om. credentibus H. 18. om. dei H. sedens A: sedes DI, sedis H. 20. quæsumus H: rogamus I. 21. sanctis + tuis DI. gloriam (gloriæ A) numerari: in gloriam introire H. and ends here. 23. amen A: om. DI.	This version agrees most with that of Val. 81 (V.), as given by Thomasius from an early Psalter, probably Old Latin. 11. Pater: patrem V. 12. verum unigenitum V. 18. Note the omission of suscepisti, which is also omitted in Muratori's MS., English Primer: see below, p. 1188, ll. 20. om. sancte V; it is found however in other MSS. in the order te ergo sancte quæsumus. Mr. Gibson derives this gloss from the Gallican Rite for the morning Agnus, Rex eterne domine	rerum creator omnium. (See p. 977, ll.) 23. laudabo: laudamus V. 26. + at end Amen V.	12. unicum + nimis MSS. but not the best. 14. suscepisti most old MSS.: susceptura Turicus 1061 and Leonbach 427, Cyprian of Toulon (a.D. 534-546) Ep. ad Rusticum, Diaconum and Alloa of Fleury, and many other MSS. 20. ergo + sancte. See note on col. II. tuis famulis > famulis tuis later texts; see also col. I. 21. gloria numerari most old MSS.; a few have in gloria numerari: in gloria numerari does not appear to be found in any MSS.; it is a conjecture of Mr. Gibson's, author of the Breviary from which [401 onwards. Mr. Gibson suggests (p. 14) that it is not so much due to the natural confusion of letters as to "the well-known words added by Gregory the Great to the Canon of the Mass, to clericorum tuorum labeas grege numerari." 23. After this verse Alex. M. adds "Benedictus es domine deus patrum nostrorum et laudabilis et gloriosum nomen tuum in sæcula," instead of verses 24 and 25. Cp. II. [36] and the Greek morning hymn quoted above.	Tit. Hymnus sfori doctori ambrosii et augustini episcoporum T. 1. theon GT: theos B. airumen G, kiin T, exomologin B. 2. Sy pantes aggeloi sy uranoi ke pasai exousiai ô. 4. Sy kairoibeis k'ai ô. aneasaton T.] 5. Agyos agyos agyos kiis o theis T. 6. uranoi ke ô. megaloisiii ô. 7. choris B. 8. aineton G. 9. ekkangyos aineî G. 10. hata ô, oikimenin G] legya T, ekklisia G. 11. eisgeno T. This seems a barbaric translation of the Latin immensæ. 12. So in G: om. ST.

iii. Title (cp. esp. Thesaurus, l. c. 3, p. 614 foll. note, C. Q. E. pp. 5–7, 11). The hymn is found in many mss. without any title and also in some printed books. In earlier literature it is generally cited by its first three words. Later it is simply, as with ourselves, the Te Deum, and sometimes, though less commonly, the Hymnus Ambrosiacus. The titles found in Psalters and early printed books may be divided into three classes: (1) those which define or describe its ritual use; (2) those which refer to its character or contents; (3) those which assign it to a particular author or authors. Sometimes 2 and 3 may be combined. The first class appears to be the earliest, which would harmonize with the early method of citation and with the uncertainty as to its authorship.

1. Titles denoting its ritual use are, Yenus matutinalis (Bamberg Quadruple Psalter, copied from one dated A.D. 999, A. L. 145), Hymnus ad matutina dicendus die dominico (Queen Christina's Psalter in the Vatican, ascribed to the 7th cent., Cod. Vat. Alex. xi. cf. Thomas. 2. p. 345, and 3. p. 614 n.) and many similar titles, e.g. Lambeth 427; Hymnus dominicale (Alcuin, officia per ferias, tom. 2. p. 116=Migne's P.P. Lat. 101, p. 597), Yenus in die dominico (Bangor Antiphonary, late 7th cent., now at Milan, Bib. Ambros. C. 5 infra, rather incorrectly printed in P. P. Lat. 72, p. 587), Hymnus dominicalis pro nocturnis hoc est cum festivum evangelii (S. Gall. 20, 9th cent.), Hymnus dom.(in)ic(a) nocturnis leudis can(endus) (B. M. Arundel 155, 11th cent.).

2. Titles descriptive of contents are, Laudatio dei (Book of Cerne, 8th or 9th cent., Camb. Univ. Ll. 1, 10), Hymnus et oratio de laude domini (Corbie Psalter, 11th cent., Paris Bib. Nat. Lat. 11550), Hymnus SS. Patrum in honorem sanctae Trinitatis and Hymnus de honorem sanctae Trinitatis (Thomas. 2. p. 345, and 3. p. 614). More colourless titles are, Hymnus optimus (Bacon's Psalter, Camb. Univ., quoted by Swainson, l. c.); Oratio pura cum laudatione (B. M. Reg. 2 B. v.); Laus angelica (Camb. S. John's, C. 13), and simply Yenus (Boll. Donce 127, prob. 11th cent., Lambeth Psalter).

3. Titles indicating authorship are numerous but inconsistent. Indeed they may not all have been intended at first positively to assert the authorship of the person named, but perhaps to ascribe the introduction of the hymn to him, or possibly its musical setting, or it may be even to refer to his frequent use of it as a favourite hymn. Some however distinctly assert composition.

(a) The oldest of these titles as far as MSS. are concerned, would appear to be Hymnus quem S. Hilarius primus composuit (Cod. S. Emmeramni, 8th or 9th cent., C. lxvii., now at Munich, Daxel's M. 1.). Cp. the Queen Mary Psalter, Brit. Mus. Reg. 2 B. v.; Bodl. Auct. D. 2. 14, Lat. 118, p. 93) f. 18, "in hoc psalmodia quam composuit Hilarius Pictauiensis episcopus non inuia querendum inperitorum structura numquid, sed potius sanctorum inpositum est."

(b) The next would seem to be those which incorporate the tradition with regard to S. Ambrose and S. Augustine, Hymnus quem S. Ambrosius et S. Augustinus in uicem conditerunt (S. Gall. 21 and 97, 9th cent., Vienna Psalter, No. 1861, said to have been sent by Charles the Bald to Ermenrich of Ellwangen), Hymnus (not in a later hand; B. M. Cotton Vitellius, E. xviii.; Bodl. Laud. 16, 11th cent., preceded by the older title, Laudes post oratum; Troyes 184, circa A.D. 1040), Hymnus Xcm)c(ipm)s dictum(m) Ambrosii & Augustini Episcoporum (Tournai Psalter, Paris, Lat. nouvelles acquisitions 2195, with Greek version of verses 1–11), Hoc est canticum quod Ambrosius et Augustinus fecerunt (Book of Ambrosius composuit (Irish Book of Hymns, 11th cent., Tr. Coll. Dublin, E. 4. 2), Hymnus Augustini (Salzburg Psalter, A. V. 31, quoted by Swainson).

(c) Several MSS. refer to S. Nicetas or Nicetius, but the reference is to the author of the hymn, not to the hymn as meant to be used. Such are the Florence Laurentian Plut. XVII. iii. and viii. of 11th cent., Brit. Mus. Harl. 863, 10th or 11th, and a Cotton MS. cited by Alp. Lesley, but not now identified. In the 11th century Sacramentary of S. Gall. (Swainson, p. 113), and in the Rouen, in the 12th (Bd. 27), Yenus novelli Yuet episcopi Xcihus dominicis ad matutinas, which is probably meant for the same person. In the very ancient Psalterium Davidicum ad usum ordinis Sacrificatorum, printed by Kyngston and Sutton, Lond., 1551, is the rubric: "Quando cum hoc cantico," and a note stating that the traditional author is Nicetius; and in the Irish Book of Hymns, "Quod non est versus sed decantarunt unum prae compositum per beatum Nicetum episcopum Vinc(i)ensem, quod inuisi cantabatur in festivitate sanctorum confessorum." Cp. the Irish MS. Z. 2. 5, Trinity College, Dublin, "On that is

6. What then are the facts as to the use of the phrases "susciperes" or "assumeres hominem" by the Fathers? This question has been discussed by Gerhard, Loci theologici IV., vi. § 26, in opposition to Bellarmine who accused Brentius of Nestorianism for having said, "Filius dei assumpsit filium hominis." Though it is not easy to verify Gerhard's quotations, it is possible to add many to them.

S. Cyprian does not seem to use either phrase exactly; though he has "susceptus de virgine" (Testim. ii. 20, quod ideoli dii non sunt, 11 and 14). Others however do not shrink from it, having on their side Biblical authority in two striking phrases: (1) the old version of Hebrews ii. 16 (Sabatier), "nec enim statim angelis adfuit sed semen Abrahae adsumpsit," and (2) the frequent use in the Psalter of "assumpsisti" or ἀνελάβου σου, answering to various Hebrew words, which was sometimes taken literally as "he who takes me up" or "upon himself." Much stress cannot be laid upon the use of "assumere" in the Creed, though it was probably made early and widely used. Here we find "facere id est Deum assumendo hominem," &c. assumpsit ex Maria, ex Israhel, &c. Bellarmine, de Christo, v. 1. ii. 15, 7). S. Hilary of Poitiers comes very near the usage of the Te Deum when he says of the Holy Spirit, "Ipse (Deus Ps. lxii.) † 3, and he actually uses "assumere" (though not "susciperé") "hominem," de Trin. ix. 38. Ambrose too goes closely up to it, but scarcely touches it, so far as has been as yet observed. In de Fide, v. 1, 46, he has the remarkable phrase "quando ex personae homini incarnati susceptae loquuntur" (on which Gerhard has a long note, Loc. theol. IV. vi. 26, footnote); but in his treatise de Incarnatione, while he constantly uses the verb "susciperé" and less frequently "assumere," it is always apparently with "virum," "corpus," "animam," "servum," "formam servi," "naturam humanam," "carnem," "mortem," but never "hominem." Indeed the guarded language of his treatise would seem by itself to make it highly improbable that he could have been the author of the Te Deum.

On the other hand, the phrase appears to be widely used by the Fathers who were the contemporaries, for instance in his de Prædestinatione Sanctorum, where he does not shrink from asking the question, "Ille homo, ut a verbo Patri coæterno, in unitatem personae assumptus, Filius dei unigenitus esset, unde hoc meruit?" (Op. Imp. ii. 178). Cæsarius of Arles, who was certainly upon such a speculation he is a Nestorian misconstruction. Other instances are Sermo ad Catech. 8, de Fide et Symbolo v ("ut totum hominem susciperé dignaretur in utero virginis") and 18, Excitatorius 36, ep. de Trin. I. vii. ii, where Augustine uses the phrase "susciperé hominem" of himself (de Sec. contra Nestorium, § 8 and 9, 3, where he also uses the phrase "homo-unitas Dei") and I. Leo Serm. 26, 4 and 15, 4 (cp. Dr. W. Bright, Sermons of S. Leo, p. 189, ed. 3). It may be that, as Mr. Gibson suggests, the phrase was in use in the Nestorian controversy, but they are not the latest writers who use the phrase. Vigilius Tapsensis (circa A.D. 484) writes "Ingressus est virginis uterum, dei filius, . . . et susceptus totum hominem, qui in utero erat, a parte inviolabili usque ad ultimum, id est usque ad humanitatis carnem" (Dial. ii. 3, 343). Another sufferer from Vandal persecution in Africa, Fulgentius of Ruspe, uses the phrase frequently, both with "hominem" alone and qualified by an epithet, in his books ad Trasimundum regem, written A.D. 523 (de Fide ad Petrum, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, canticles in the Quadruple Psalters have their Greek originals, in parallel columns, in just the same writing and style as the Te Deum; and (3) that there is nothing in verses 1–10 which reads like a translation except the form of the Tersanctus and a phrase which we shall discuss below, verse 8. It is only necessary to read them in a form which is more easy for ourselves than the Latin characters into which the Greek of the Psalter is (as usual) transliterated, to be convinced of their genuine ring of strength and simplicity.*

1126 TE DEUM LAUDAMUS TE DEUM LAUDAMUS

1. Σὲ θεὸν (θεὸς B.) αἰνοῦμεν · σὲ κύριον ὁμολογοῦμεν ·
2. Σὲ ἀίδιον πατέρα πᾶσα ἡ γῆ [σέβεται].
3. Σοὶ πάντες ἄγγελοι, σοὶ οὐρανοὶ καὶ πᾶσαι ἐξουσίαι,
4. Σοὶ χερουβὶμ καὶ σεραφὶμ ἀκαταπαύστοις φωνῇ ἀνακράζουσιν ·
5. Ἅγιος ἅγιος ἅγιος κύριος ὁ θεὸς σαβαώθ ·
6. Πλήρεις εἰσὶν οὐρανοὶ καὶ ἡ γῆ τῆς μεγαλωσύνης τῆς δόξης σου.
7. Σὲ ἀποστολικὸς ἐπαινετὸν χορὸς ·
8. Σὲ προφητῶν αἰνετὸς ἀριθμὸς ·
9. Σὲ μαρτύρων ἐκθαυμάστου αἶνοι στρατιὰ ·
10. Σὲ κατὰ πᾶσαν τὴν οἰκουμένην ἡ ἁγία ἐξομολογεῖ ἐκκλησία.

In verse 2 we notice the absence of a verb after γῆ, such as σέβεται. This is an argument, it may be, for the mutilation of the Greek copy from which the scribe wrote, but does not suggest (as verses 11 and 12 do) an attempt at translation by an ignorant person. For any one who could (on hypothesi) translate so freely, using for instance the compound words which this writer does, would have been able to find an equivalent for "veneratur." Its absence might indeed be explained as an omission from carelessness on the part of a scribe who was making an interlinear gloss, such as seems occasionally to be met with in the versions about to be examined. But such omissions of words may equally be set down to carelessness of transcription, e.g. the Marbach O.G. ms. omits to gloss "rebendel" in verse 20; which is probably merely an accident in copying. The only other verse which calls for remark in point of style is the 8th, where the use of ἀριθμὸς is rather peculiar. The verses after the Trisagion rise to a gradual climax in point of extent. First comes the small and well-defined band of Apostles (cp. χορὸς προφητῶν, 1 Sam. x. 5, 10, and χορὸς εὐήρατος at the close of the hymn of Clement of Alexandria), then the well-disciplined and therefore praiseworthy regiment (numerus) of prophets, then the bright-clad army of martyrs, then the universal Church. Now there is no doubt that "numerus" constantly means a regiment, from the time of Tacitus onwards, but this use of ἀριθμὸς is not so common. It is found indeed in the LXX. in Isa. xxxiv. 24=a tablet, in 1 Macc. ix. 65, and in later writers as noticed by Sophocles, Lexicon, s. v., and it may be remarked that ἐκθαυμάστους and αἴνετοι occur together in the Greek Song of the Three Children and in the Antiphons to the Gloria in excelsis. We are however bound to notice that the Tersanctus follows the wording of the Latin Mass (God of hosts and heaven instead of heavens), and not that of the Greek Liturgies. This is an almost conclusive argument against the originality of the Greek poem, at any rate as it has come down to us.

6. But this version, if not original, is the work of one to whom Greek was thoroughly familiar, and implies that verses 1–10 are a separate hymn. For the peculiar form of verse 11 in all three MSS., and of verse 12 in the S. Gall. MS., and the absence of verse 13 (see Text, § ii. p. 1126) betray an incompetent and bungling hand attempting to translate at a later date and dropping the attempt. The barbarous word "summo" or "emmeo" can scarcely be anything else than a puerile transliteration or vague representation of "immense," remembering the length of e in Latin before n and the forms Κάισαρ, Κάτσαρ, &c., for "Cæsar," "Cæsarea," which show how easily the s was dropped in such a position. No true Greek word can be thought of (such as ἀμέτρητον) of which "emmeo" could be a corruption.

The next verse in the S. Gall MS., on the other hand, might be a bad copy of a correct but mutilated or blotted line, but on the whole it is most probable that the "all th ellen" represents a barbarous διαθεὸς, not a blurred ἀναθεὸς, formed on the analogy of such words as barbarus, alebardo, &c. The absence of the last line would then be due to the interpreter's consciousness of failure, or at any rate to his self-distrust, unless the theory of an incomplete doxology be resorted to, as in the grace after meat at the close of the Apostolic Constitutions.

7. The arguments in favour of the theory that this early part of the hymn is in adoration an address to Christ are chiefly based on the first verse and on the use of the accusatives case in it. "We praise thee who art God; we acknowledge thee who art the Lord." The parallel of the Gallican Confessio quoted above, which is addressed distinctly to our Lord, is very striking, and we are also necessarily reminded of the confession of S. Thomas, "My Lord and my God." The application of the Trisagion to the second person of the Trinity is also justified by the quotation from Isaiah, chap. vi. 10, made by S. John, and by his description of the scene from which it is taken, "These things said Esaias when he saw his glory and spake of him" (John xii. 41). The only real difficulty is in the αἰώνιον πατέρα or "æternum patrem," which we should expect to find as an equivalent to obi-ad in the versions of Isaiah ix. 6, but do

* They differ very much from the Greek translators in the Septuagint. We have to thank Dr. Gibson, by which Mr. Gibson has kindly transcribed for this article, which appears to be simply a very rough and unscholarly attempt at rendering into Greek from the Latin, and which is only a fragment. It runs as follows (verses 1–3):

Σὲ θεὸν αἰνοῦμεν σὲ κύριον ὁμολογοῦμεν.
Σὲ τὸν αἴδιον πατερα πασα ἡ γη σεβεται.
Σοὶ πάντες ἄγγελοι σοὶ οὐρανοὶ καὶ πᾶσαι ἐξουσίαι.
Σοὶ χερουβὶμ καὶ τὰ σεραφὶμ ἀκαταπαύστῳ φωνῇ βοᾶ[ν]·
Ἅγιος ἅγιος ἅγιος κύριος ὁ θεὸς σαβαώθ·
Πλήρης εἰσὶν ὁ ουρανὸς τῆς μεγαλωσύνης τῆς δόξης σου Σε ὁ δοξίος τῶν ἀποστόλων χορὸς Σε πάντων ὁ ἐπαινος ἀριθμὸς. Σε τὸν μαρτύρων ἐκθαυμαστὸν αἶνοι στρατιὰ.

The rendering of the Greek Prayer-book printed by Field, Cambridge, 1853, is naturally better than this Milan text, but is not so good as that of our four MSS. which we have exactly used. In verse 4 ἀκαταπαύστοις is not so good as ἀκαταπαύστῳ, and in verse 6 μεγαλωσύνης is not so natural as μεγαλωσύνη.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS TE DEUM LAUDAMUS 1127

not exactly find, the nearest being Symmachus's æterly sidere.

8. On the whole the parallel of the angelic Tersanctus, after the angelic praise, to the Trinitarian doxology after the Church's praise, pointed out by Dr. Gibson, strongly reinforces the arguments in favour of the originality of the Latin text as we have it, and emphasises the Trinitarian intention of the whole first part.

vi. Versions. 1. Old German. The old-German version is possibly the earliest that has come down to us, unless the Anglo-Saxon may be considered earlier. It is contained in a MS. assigned to the earlier part of the 9th century, where it formed the last of a series of twenty-seven hymns. The first twenty-five are metrical Latin hymns (all in Daniel), with an interlinear old German or Theotisc gloss. No. 26 is the "Te deo laus" to which reference has been frequently made in this article, which was wrongly attached by Grimm, following Junius and Price, to No. 25. No. 27 (Grimm, 26) is the Te Deum which, like all the rest, is in the form of an interlinear gloss.

The volume in which this important collection is bound (MS. 911 in the Imperial Library) was written A.D. 1670 in the Sodalian library. From a note on fol. 193 b. (p. 33 of the Glossary) it is known to have belonged to the Abbey of Murbach (M. Morbacense, Monasterii), in southern Alsace, in the middle of the 15th century (A.D. 1453). The hymns are in a single hand, and another hand of Reichenau (M. Augiense) is, of course, matter of conjecture; but there are reasons for inclining to the latter opinion. Through the temporary disappearance of this volume, or through the carelessness with which it was originally catalogued, the hymns, which in a different but hardly later hand, have long been bound before hymns 1–25—this collection has been chiefly known from a transcript made by Junius (No. 74). Another transcript (No. 116) is said to have been made by Price, but was unknown to Dr. Bucheler. Four of the hymns, including the Te Deum, were printed by Dr. Geo. Hickes in his Grammatica Francica-Theotisca, Oxf. 1705; the Te Deum was printed also by J. G. Eccard at Helmstädt in 1713, and the others in his Francia Orientalis, Wirceburg, 1729, vol. ii. p. 911. The complete edition of the 28 hymns was published by Jakob Grimm at Göttingen in 1830, but based, as he tells us in his preface, upon a copy made for him by Dr. Price, Bodley's librarian, who died in 1812. This copy was unfortunately not from the Murbach MS., but from Junius's transcript, No. 74. From this edition of Grimm's the hymns were reprinted by Dr. Wackernagel (Das deutsche Kirchenlied von Martin Luther bis auf Nicolaus Hermann, &c., No. 3a, p. 40, Stuttgart, 1841), who is followed by Daniel II. 277; and lastly Thomsen, Wackernagel has a few useful notes, 1841, pp. xiii. He has also published a separate edition of the hymns in his Lateinische und deutsche Kirchenlied von der Altesten Zeit bis zu Anfang des xvii. Jahrhunderts, vols. i–v., Leipz. 1855.

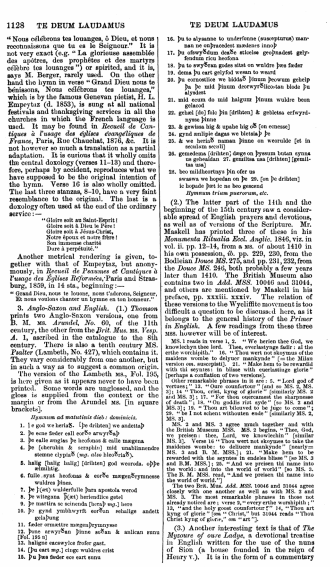
In 1874, however, Prof. Ed. Sievers edited the whole from the original MS. (Die Murbacher Hymnen nach der Handschrift herausgegeben at Halle), printing, like Grimm, the Latin and German in parallel columns, with the addition of a literal translation. He has carefully assigns the MS. to the early part of the 9th century, but the interlinear gloss is very probably older, inasmuch as over some words there are two glosses standing side by side, showing that the MS. was based upon a double translation. Sievers's edition is by far the most valuable, as in many cases only the termination is written, while the stem of the word is left to be supplied by the reader—which implies a rather unusual condition of knowledge of languages. These stems are supplied by the editors in italics, and are of great assistance to the philologist. The following are the double glosses in the Te Deum. Verse 2 unwortlaz unwirdit ist; verse 17 dorftec: karitenes, but thurwonnenes is also written in the margin; verse 22 pegahuuandih list.

The following are the most important verses:—

1 dih ist (habe)nes.
thih [truht]ian gilouen;
2 thih enzigen fater eskinotlih erda uuirdit ent:
11 fater unglihnenero naglichizzo[ta],
12 ertaftan thinen unsuon einago[n] sun;
13 helfand thinan liut gisalbotan
16 thir za sinuuaro sculagi nazzan.
ni lebihtestes thera magini ror
21 enzigero tuo salt sculles thinen thurlia losot (1st. uuesarro).

In verse 2 the word "kascouuz" for "confidites" appears to mean "adored" or "splendid," The same word is used for the translation of "crown" in ss. iii., ix No. xi. in this ms.

Thomsen prints a High German Te Deum from a Psalter printed at Basel (1502) beginning: 1 "Wir loben dich God: wir bekennen dich Her. 2 "Alle ost ent vorchten dich ewiger vater: alle erden lobent dich. dich ensprechen die menschen, hast ist verscheinet den leib der junchfrawen," and ii " Heiss ep begalet werden, mit den heiligen, mit der ewigen ere." Other notices of German versions may be found in Zeitsch (II. pp. 193, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 200, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 210, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 220, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 230, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 240, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 250, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9,



1128 TE DEUM LAUDAMUS

"Nous celebrons tes louanges, ô Dieu, et nous reconnaissons que tu es le Seigneur." It is not very exact (cp. "La glorieuse assemblée des apôtres, des prophètes et des martyrs célèbre tes louanges") or spirited, and it is, says M. Berger, rarely used. On the other hand the hymn in verse "Grand Dieu nous te bénissons, Nous célébrons tes louanges," which is by the famous Genevan pietist, H. L. Empeytaz (d. 1853), is sung at all national festivals and thanksgiving services in all the churches in which the French language is used. It may be found in Recueil de Cantiques à l'usage des églises évangéliques de France, Paris, Rue Chaudiat, 1876, &c. It is not however so much a translation as a partial adaptation. It is curious that it wholly omits the central doxology (verses 11–13) and therefore, perhaps by accident, reproduces what we have supposed to be the original intention of the hymn. Verse 16 is also wholly omitted. The last three stanzas, 8–10, have a very faint resemblance to the original. The last is a doxology often used at the end of the ordinary service:—

"Gloire soit au Saint-Esprit!
Gloire soit à Dieu le Père!
Gloire soit à Jésus-Christ,
Qui nous a rachetés par son sang!
Nos heureuses chants
Dure à perpétuité."

Another metrical rendering is given, together with that of Empeytaz, but anonymously, in Recueil de Pseaumes et Cantiques à l'usage des Eglises Réformées, Paris and Strasburg, 1839, in 14 stz., beginning:—

"Grand Dieu nous te bénissons, Seigneur, Et nous voulons chanter un hymne en ton honneur."

3. Anglo-Saxon and English. (1.) Thomson prints two Anglo-Saxon versions, one from B. M. MS. Arundel, No. 60, of the 11th century, the other from the Brit. Mus. MS. Vesp. A. 1, ascribed in the catalogue to the 8th century. There is also a tenth century MS. Psalter (Lambeth, No. 427), which contains it. They vary considerably from one another, but in such a way as to suggest a common origin.

The version of the Lambeth MS., Fol. 135, is here given as it appears never to have been printed. Some words are unglossed, and the gloss is supplied from the context or the margin or from the Arundel MS. [in square brackets].

Hymnum ad matutinale dicit ꝺ dominicis.

1. Ꝺ god we læriaꝺ. [þe-leriaꝺ] we andetaþ
2. þe eow ferðer call eorðe ænyrfiaþ
3. halig [halig halig] [drihten] god weoroa. ofþe stialling.
4. fulle ryhtlæ heofonas & eorðe mægna[ſ]ymeoneſ wuldres þinen.
5. halig [halig halig] [drihten] god weoroa. ofþe stialling.
6. fulle ryhtlæ heofonas & eorðe mægna[ſ]ymeoneſ wuldres þinen.
7. þe [cet] wuldorfulle þara apostola weroð
8. þe witegena [cet] herinoſlice getel
9. þe martira se witerolla [here]-rap[.] lucra
10. þe eyrd ymbhwyrft eorðan ſeſaliga andett gelyhung
11. ſeder ureuſtre mægna[ſ]ymeoneſ
12. [þu eart wuldres cyning[ſ]ſan þinre aeðan & aelican eaxa [fol. 136 r]
13. haligre aeceneſlice ſroſer gaſt.
14. [þu eart wuꝑ.] clæn wuldres cinſt
15. þu þaſa ſeder ece eart ealra

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS

16. þu to alyſanne to underfonne (aeceptaſure) manſan ne oſþyncaſt mancſeo inoſ
17. þu oſwyrðeſt ſeðan deaðe ricciaſ geopnaſeſt geſyſſenſum rice heofona
18. þu to eyrſ[ſan gode ſitaſ on wuldre þea ſeder
19. ðema þu eart geſyhſt weman to waard
20. þe cumcelloſ we biddaſ [þinum þeowum geheip þe þe aiſ þinum deorwyrðſinum bloſe þa alyſaſt
21. aſi eceſ do aſd halgum [þinum wuldre beon geſaſoſ
22. griaſ [þe] ſiſ þin [drihten] & geſiſeaſ erfeyrdnyſſe þinre
23. & gewinn big & upaſe big oð [on eroſe]
24. gyrd aelſige dagaſ we biriaſ þe
25. & we beriaſ naman þinne on weoruldc [et in aeoſlan aeoſi]
26. [þu eart] [halig halig] dægeſ on þyſſum biſaſ eyrſaſ on geſeſ[ſan] [drihten] eſ. genirina ua [drihten] [genilitan ua]
27. beo aliſheortaſſ þu eðr ua swaaſa we hopeſan on þe 29. [on þe drihten] is hopaſe þet ic aa beo generaſ

Hymnum trium puerorum, etc.

(2.) The latter part of the 11th and the beginning of the 15th century saw a considerable spread of English prayers and devotions, as well as of versions of the Scripture. Mr. Maskell has printed three of these in his Monumenta Ritualia Eccl. Anglic. 1846, viz. in vol. ii. pp. 12–14, from a MS. of about 1410 in his own possession, ib. pp. 229, 230, from the Bodleian Douce MS. 275, and pp. 231, 232, from the Douce MS. 246, both probably a few years later than 1410. The British Museum also contains two in Add. MSS. 10046 and 31044, and others are mentioned by Maskell in his preface, pp. xxxiii. xxxiv. The relation of these versions to the Wycliffite movement is too difficult a question to be discussed here, as it belongs to the general history of the Primer in English. A few readings from these three MSS. however will be of interest.

MS. 1 reads in verse 1, 5. "We beriee thee God, we knoweliche thee lord. Thee, everlastynge fadir: al the erthe worshipith." 16. "Thou wert nor skeymous of the maidens wombe to delyuer mankynde" [=the Milan version, non horruisti]. 20. "Thi blessid hem to be rewarded with thi mercyes" to bliss with everelastinge glorie" [perhaps a conflation of two versions].

Other remarkable phrases in it are: 1. "Lord god of vertues;" 13. "Oure comfortour" (and so MS. 2; MS. 3 has "Oure confortour"). "Thou art kyng of glorie" (so MS. 3); 15. "For thou, ouercomed the sharpenesse of death"; 18. "Oo goddis riet syde" [so MS. 2 and MS. 3]; 19. "Thou art bileuyed to be jugge to come"; 20. "be I not schent withouten ende" [similarly MS. 2, MS. 3].

MS. 2 and MS. 3 agree much together and with the British Museum MS. MS. 2 begins, "Thee, God, we preisen. thee, Lord, we knowlechi" [similar MS. 3]. Verse 16 "Thou wert not skornes to take the manhede of a maiden to delyuer mankynde" [so MS. 3 and B. M. MSS.]. 21. "Make hem to be rewarded with the seyntes in endeles blisse" [so MS. 2 and B.M. MSS.]; ib. "And we preisen thi name into the world: and into the world of world" [so MS. 3, B. M. MSS.]. 22. "And, "And we preisen thi name into the world of world."

The two Brit. Mus. Add. MSS. 10046 and 31044 agree closely with one another as well as with MS. 2 and MS. 3. The most remarkable phrases in these not found in the others are: 1. "Lord god of vertues;" 13. "and the holy goost confortour?" 14. "Thou art kyng of glorie" [so "Christ," but 31044 reads "Thou Christ kyng of glorie," on "art"].

(3.) Another interesting text is that of The Myrroure of oure Ladye, a devotional treatise in English written for the use of the nuns of Sion (a house founded in the reign of Henry v.). It is in the form of a commentary on the services to be said by the nuns, and is apparently quite independent of the preceding versions. The modern editor, Rev. J. H. Blunt (Early English Text Society, extra series, No. xix., 1873, p. lx.) inclines to the belief that the author was Dr. Thos. Gascoigne, Warden of Merton, &c., in the middle of the 15th century. There is a certain beauty and freedom about the version of the Te Deum, e.g. "We praise thee, God, we knowlege the Lord. And all the earth worshippeth thee: endless Father. All angels sing to thee: heavens and all powers sing to thee. To thee cherubyn and seraphyn cry with voice that never ceaseth." . . . 8. "The fair host of Martyrs that are washed white and fair in their own blood praise thee." . . . 14. "When thou shouldest take upon thee mankind for the deliverance of man, thou hatydest not the Virgin's womb." 19. "We believe that thou shalt be rewarded in endless bliss with thy saints." . . . 25, 26. "Govern them here by grace and enhance them into bliss without end. And we praise thy Name from time to time, unto the end of the world, and after without end."

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS 1129

(4.) The next text that has come to our notice is from the Primer in English and in Latin sette out alonge: after the use of Sarum, Robert Valentin, 1536, where it is headed "The Songe of Austyn and Ambrose." This curious version is the first to read "We prayse the (oh God)," &c., as well as "Salnacthe" in v. 3, and "O Lord in the have I trusted." But its chief characteristic is paraphrase, e.g. verse 10, 11 run, "The holy congregacyon of holy hall throughe all the world magnyfy the. Ther knowledge the to be the father an infinite maiesty. Ther knowledge thy honorable and very onely sonne. And ther holy ghost the comforter proceadynge of them both." "Then (when thou shouldest take upon the our nature to delyuer man) dydest not abhorre a vyrgynes wombe." Verse 21 has the modern mistake, for the first time, "Make them to be numbered with thy saints in joy everlastynge." The text agrees closely with that in the Primers of Henry VIII., Oxford, 1834, p. 61 which agrees generally with the preceding, but has some curious peculiarities of its own; e.g. verses 3, 4, "Holy art thou. Holy art thou. Holy art thou. Thou art worthy to be praised of all tongues. Thou art worthy to be with the glory of thy majesty;" v. 8, "The fair fellowship of martyrs praise thee." In v. 16 it agrees generally with the preceding, but reads "the virgin's," and proceeds, "Thou hast opened the kingdom of heaven to the faithful." 19. "We believe that thou shalt come to be our judge." This version is probably presupposed in the two other Primers (of 1539 and 1545), printed by Dr. Burton in the same volume, pp. 337 and 445, where the first words only are given—(1) the first Primer reads "Te Deum Laudamus—with the second, Te Deum Laudamus—with the second, Te Deum laudamus, The praise of God, the Father that lets and the Holy Ghost.

(5.) The version of the last Primer of Henry VIII. 1546 (reprinted in facsimile at the end of the 17th or beginning of the 18th century), and of the first Prayer Book of Edward VI. (1549) is practically the same as that in our Prayer-books. We have seen that the later versions gradually approach to the present, which is not a new one but merely a revision, based apparently upon a collation or reminiscence of several existing forms, which may plausibly be ascribed to Cranmer. It cannot be said to be successful in point of accuracy, though it is beautiful in its smoothness and rhythm. It appears to be the first to introduce the inaccurate renderings "when thou tookest upon thee to deliver man" and "thou didst open the kingdom of heaven to all believers," the last evidently merely for the sake of euphony; and it stereotypes the misrenderings "We praise thee, O God," and "make them to be numbered with thy saints in glory everlasting," the later, however, being a misreading, as we have seen, of somewhat earlier date. (See Notes on the Metrical Versions at the close of this article).

5. Thomson prints a modern Swedish version beginning "O Gud! vi lofwe dig: O Herre! wi tacke dig." Verse 16 runs "Till sakmånckones förlossning varet du i Jungfru lifwe mandom," and v. 21 "Och gifwer dem den ewiga hälsigheten med dit Helgom." Quotations from the Icelandic version are given below.

6. Russian. The Te Deum, though unknown in the Greek-speaking churches (which use the "Great Doxology," or Gloria in Excelsis in some form or other) is very popular in Russia. It is not sung at Matins, but at what are called "molebni," which are short thanksgiving services connected with anniversaries, birthdays, &c. The "Great Doxology" is in these cases allowed as an alternative. It is always called the "Song of St. Ambrose," and appears to be translated almost word for word from the Latin, very much in the manner of an interlinear gloss. As the MSS. in which it occurs (according to the testimony of Prof. Pokrofskii, of the Academy of S. Alexander Nevski at St. Petersburg) appear not to be older than the 17th century, it is not unlikely that it is of comparatively modern introduction. Mr. W. J. Birkbeck, to whom this information is due, suggests that it was introduced by Peter Mogila, who was at first a monk, and was educated at Rome and Paris, and who, as Metropolitan of Kieff (circa 1630) introduced many useful reforms and practices from the West, while he guarded against certain Roman errors in doctrine. The Te Deum may be found on p. 220 of the Molitvoslof, or popular book of prayer for the City of St. Petersburg, Press of the holy Synod, 1886, and is headed, "A song of praise of St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan." In verse 1 the accusative Boga ("God") answers to Deum. In the Tersanctus the fuller Latin form is used instead of that of the Liturgies and the copula (and) = and would have been omitted in Slavonic except in a litany. In verse 16 the words mean "Thou for deliverance about to take upon Thee man didst not, &c." In verse 21 the words seem to represent "Dignare (cos) cum sanctis tuis in æterna gloria tua regnare," which is the only serious departure from the original. The last verse runs "O Lord in thee have we trusted let us never be ashamed (postylimsja)."

vii. Liturgical Use. 1. The ancient Liturgical use has been touched upon in passing in noticing the earliest references to the hymn, in the monastic rules of Cesarius, Aurelian and Benedict. Palmer remarks that the usage prescribed by the first and second, who both appoint the hymn to be sung in the morning, is a kind of argument for their better acquaintance with the author's design than the rule of Benedict who ordered it to be sung at the nocturnal office on Sundays, i.e. on Saturday night (Orig. Lit. i. p. 228). From Sundays its use seems gradually to have extended to Saints' Days, and from the regular to the secular clergy.

Isenii, ii. p. 281, quotes Amalarius to shew that in Rome, in 813, it was not yet sung even on Sundays, "in terrogatis ejusmodi per Dominicos noctes Te Deum; Responsum est; Tantum In Natalitiis pontificum Te Deum laudamus. Hæc ille. Hodie tamen in Romana Curia non inde in exceptione to the singing of the hymn on all festivals throughout the year. Benedictines were accused in the 14th century of omitting the hymn even in Advent or Lent, when the rest of the Church usually dropped it (Durand, p. 201). Technically speaking, its ordinary place is after the Lesson (or 9th) Nocturn of Matins and the rest of Matins and Lauds, but in the Benedictine use the responsory is said as well. "In the ancient English offices," says Palmer (Or. Lit., p. 31), "the matins (nocturns) terminated with the Te Deum, and were immediately followed by lauds (ancient Prime), but in the Sarum Breviary it is ended at Matins and Festivals; but in the Sarum Breviary it is noted that it is not to be said in Advent or Lent (from Septuagesima to Easter), or on vigils, or generally in the Ember seasons. The Advent rubric is as follows: "Non dicitur Te Deum laudamus in Adventu Domini, neque in servitiis, sed semper Responsorium reiniciatur; et hoc fit in Dominicis et in festis ix. lectionis tantum. Non dicatur etiam per totum annum Te Deum laudamus in vigiliis, nec in Quatuor temporibus nisi in Vigilia Pentecostes, nec in Rogationibus, nec in Litaniis majoribus quando in quarto responsorio celebratur Pontificalis." (Procter and Wordsworth's Sarum Brev., Sec. I., p. 58). The Septuagesima rubric runs, "Ab hac die usque ad Pascha non dicatur Te Deum, sive de Temporali, sive de Sanctis, neque in Dominicis neque in festivitatibus; sed Responsorium reiniciatur: et hoc in Festis ix. Lectionum tantum. Non enim repetatur Responsorium in Commemoratione Beatæ Mariæ, nec de Festo loci." In agreement with this, there are special notes for S. Mark's Day (April 25), the Rogation Days, and the Ember Days. (Dec. 21) that it is not to be said. For the Purification (Feb. 2), the note is "Si Dominica Septuagesimæ hac die contigerit, totum servitium fiat de Festo; sed sine Alleluya et Te Deum."

1130 TE DEUM LAUDAMUS

The order for saying the Te Deum in the Roman Breviary (Ordo ad recitandum officium, xxxi.) is very similar to the above rubric:

Hymnus, Te Deum, dicitur in omnibus festis per annum, tam totum quam novem Lectionum, & per octavas earum, nisi quando occurrit Dominica infra octavam, Dominica dicitur tamen in ejus die Octava. Dicitur etiam in omnibus Dominicis, a Festo Resurrectionis inclusive, usque ad Adventum inclusive, et a Nativitate Domini inclusive, usque ad Septuagesimam inclusive; in omnibus festis temporis Paschalis, scilicet a Resurrectione in Albenegras ad Ascensionem inclusive, & a Septuagesima usque ad Dominicam Palmarum inclusive, neque in festis extra tempus Paschale.

5. Cum dicitur, omittitur semper nonum, vel tertium Responsorium; & statim dicitur post ultimum Lectionem.

4. Cum non dicitur, sive hoc pontes nonum vel tertium Responsorium quo dicto statim incipiuntur Laudes. Inuitur quando dicitur Te Deum, ex Hymno Ambrosiano, Gregorius Papa Magnum Sacramentum Nativitatis Domini: quia tunc dicitur Gratia, postea celebratur Missa, ut sæpe notatur.

As a general rule we may say Te Deum is sung at Matins only whenever the Gloria in excelsis is sung at Mass.

6. As to the method of recitation we have the following statements and directions:—

(1) Durand says (p. 201, 2) "Si vectatur officium divinum in choro inchoatur antiphona a Celebrante vel a prælo chori: prosequuntur reliqui stando in pluribus ecclesiis alternatim cantando. Ad primum versiculum demittitur capita, ad verba divinitus etc. &c. Non horruisti virginis uterum profunde inclinatur. Quum pervenitur ad Judex crederis, surgitur. Ad ultimum versiculum etc. genuflectunt omnes usque ad finem."

(2) The rubric of the first Prayer-book of Edward VI. (1547) is as follows, at morning prayer: "After the third Lesson shall follow Te Deum laudamus, in English, daily throughout the year, except in Lent. In which time, in the place of Te Deum shall be used Benedicite omnia Opera Domini Domino in English as followeth." Later prayer-books order the Te Deum daily, but permit the omission of the Canticles.

(3) The following is from Water and Wine s. v.: "The Te Deum is sung exceptionally to thank God for any great blessing. In such a case the Te Deum commences by itself, religious solemnity, or it is attached to the end of the Litany, when that is sung at the end of the office. The Roman Ritual specifies several occasions on which the Te Deum ought to be sung, for example at the consecration of a bishop, the coronation of a king, the consecration of a virgin. The Roman Ceremonials adds the election of a Pope, the reception of a cardinal, the publication of a treaty of peace, the reception of a relic, the establishment of a feast of the Church. In Bavaria it is sung on the festival of the king and of the queen. In France it is used also on the festival of a sovereign, after confirmation, first Communion," &c. "The officiant vested in a cope and bearing a wax stands before the altar on which not less than two candles are lighted. Incense is not employed. When they sing the verse Te ergo quæsumus all kneel, except when the holy sacrament is exposed. The colour is usually white, except when it follows a mass, when it is that of the day."

(4) Bona says of the conclusion of an alliance in favour of the Church the decree Carthaginiensis gives the following: "a Pater Noster then V. Salvos fac servos tuos domine ℣ Deus meus sperantes in te ℣. Disciplina quæsumus hæc nobiscum. ℣ Ut obtemperantes divinis tuis ut confirmatur nominal ℣ Mitte nobis domine auxilium de sancto. ℣ Et de Sion tuere nos. The office ends with the prayers Inclina (unde contra persecutores Ecclesiæ) and the post-communion Deus mortes pacis of the twelve mass pro pace."

(5) In the old English services the Te Deum was similarly used. It is a well-known feature in the Coronation Service of our kings and queens, though it is not mentioned in the Ordo of Edgar. Previous to, or in the Missa pro regibus in the Pontifical of Abp. Egbert (8th cent.) and the similar form in the Leofric Missal (Muskell ib. pp. 14-21, Warren Leofric Missal, 238-252). In the service for the consecration of King Edgar (973 A.D.) at Bath, the choir, after the anthem, forms the first act after the procession from the Church is "Pervenisse rex ad ecclesiæ prosternat se coram altare et hymnizetur. Te Deum laudamus: te dominum confitemur." Then follows the triple oath to keep the Church in peace, to forbid rapine and wrong, and to command justice and mercy in all judgments. Some time or other after the Norman Conquest the place of the Te Deum was changed from the beginning to the latter part of the service. It is mentioned in this place in the Coronation of Richard I. (Stubbs, Hist. i. 580), 27 Jan. 1377-8, i.e. after the coronation itself, followed by the investiture with globe and sceptre, the benediction and the kiss, and before the mass (Muskell, ib. p. xxxii.). This is practically where it is found at present, though the arrangement of the parts has been somewhat changed. (6) In Henry VI.'s Progress of Piety, Bp. Aylmer, in Strype, Eccl. Mem. iii. 1, 27, Strype, Ann. Reform. Reform, &c. iv. 18, 26). It is referred to by Shakspeare at the coronation of Anne Boleyn (Hen. VIII. act iv. sc. 1). It is possible that the use at the coronation of Edward may have been in imitation of a continental custom, and that of Louis I. (the Pious) by Pope Stephen IV. in 816 at Rheims, on his entry into the Church, and again at that of Charles the Bald in 869 at Metz. Louis also concluded the assembly of Bishops at Tribur in 872 with the hymn. (7) The use of the hymn as a song of victory is quoted above, was sent by the same Emperor on a mission to Rome in 851.

In England it was apparently conspicuously after the victory of Agincourt (1415). In the office for the anniversary of Edward I. accompanies the central act (Muskell, iii. p. 291). It is also appointed at the reception of an archbishop's pall (ib. p. 284) and before he is actually invested (ib. p. 285).

(8) Other early instances of such occasional use are the translation of S. Germanus (740), the restoration of Pope Leo III. to his See by Charles the Great, and the coronation of Edric, Abp. of Rheims (Durand, p. 201).

(7) The use of the hymn as a song of victory is referred to by Shakspeare, Hen. V. act iv. sc. 8 (taken from Holinshed):

"Do we all holy rites; Let them be sung Non nobis, and Te Deum."

Handel's Dettingen Te Deum will also occur to every one.

Lastly the more than hazardous act of S. Bonaventura in inventying the Te Deum into a confiteor Marianum may just be mentioned ("Te matrem Dei laudamus, te omnis terra venerabur, æterni patris sponsam"). It is, however, satisfactory to be informed that this had never been admitted into any public devotion, to the best of Daniel's knowledge (p. 293).

[JOHN SARUM.]

viii. Musical Settings.—One musical setting only of the Te Deum is to be found in 1131

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS 1131

the chorо-liturgical books of the Western Church. Although slight differences appear in various dioceses, these are never more than mere local embellishments or variations, such as are constantly to be met with in local versions of the melody of the Preface, Pater Noster, and other invariable portions of the Latin services. Indeed, as Dom Pothier has pointed out in his Mélodies Grégoriennes (p. 238), there is a close connection between these melodies and that of the Te Deum, as may be seen by comparing Per om-ni-a sæ-cu-la be-ne-di-ci-mus te.

and

Sur - sum cor - da

with the opening phrase,

Te De-um lau - da - mus :

or, to

te De-um-lau-da-mus ;

take a portion of another melody belonging to the same class :

Ex-ul-tet jam an-gel-i-ca tur-ba cæ-le-stis with the first half of the verse,

Te, u-ni-versa Pa-tren:

This last cláusula tri-ca ru - ne - ra - tur.

quotation from Te Deum has been purposely taken from another version of the melody to show the nature of the variations between different dioceses. The former is undoubtedly the older of the two, but the latter (Sarum) is a natural development of the original melody, with the addition of an intonation after the pause in the middle of the verse, analogous to that which appears above on the words Per omnia or Te Deum. This melody is used, with only such variations as the changes in the number of syllables or in the position of the accents necessitate, till the end of the 13th verse: and its obvious connection with the Preface music would seem to indicate its very early appearance in the Western offices: for apart from the early date which the absence of a fixed dominant suggests, the melody appears in portions of the Ambrosian and Mozarabic uses, and is therefore clearly Pre-Gregorian. At verse 14 Te ergo, quæsumus, Christe a fresh melody is introduced, which closely resembles the ordinary Psalm tone of the fourth Gregorian mode in a somewhat ornate form, of which the following verse constituting a full complement of syllables is a specimen :

Tu ad li - ber-an-dum sus-ce-pi-en-do ho - mi - nem:

non ho - rru - i - sti vir - gi - nis u - te - rum.

This melody, with its clearly defined dominant, is certainly Gregorian rather than Ambrosian in character, and would seem to belong to a distinctly later period than the first. It is continued down to the end of verse 20; but for verse 21 we have the following setting :

Æ - ter - na fac . . . cum sanc - tis tu - is in gló - ri - a nu-me-ra. - ri.

the music of which is in the form of an antiphon of the fourth mode, and stands in the same relation to the previous seven verses as an ordinary antiphon might to its Psalm, bringing it to a complete close with a regular cadence ending upon the final of the mode. After this, although no fresh melody is introduced, the music fully bears out the conclusion to which a comparison of the various texts leads. First come two verses (22 and 23) set to the antiphon melody, and then five verses (24-28) to the Psalm tone, when the whole is brought to a fit close once more by the antiphon form :

In te Do-mi-ne spe-ra - - - vi :

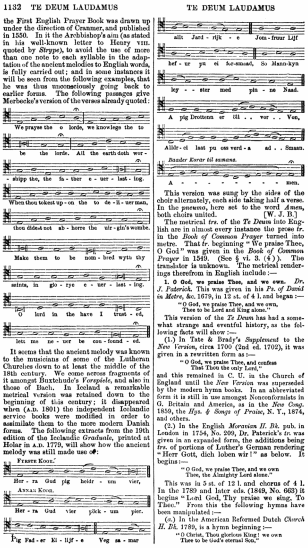
non con-fun-dar in æ - ter - - - num.

The placing together of the three antiphon forms (verses 21-23) is musically as well as liturgically extremely unnatural, and points to some different earlier arrangement in which these verses were either used separately, or else divided by some verses of the Psalm melody, as indeed No. 2 of the Latin versions suggests, where verses 24 and 25 come between 21 and 22. At the end of the last verse there appears in almost all copies, both ancient and modern, a long string of notes to be sung upon the last syllable, known as the pneuma :

This is not part of the original melody, but is one of a set of eight similar passages composed by Guido of Arezzo, one for each mode, and which were much used during the middle ages at the end of the principal antiphons, in order to give greater dignity to the services on festivals, much in the same way as a short voluntary is sometimes played at the present day on the organ between (e.g.) the Te Deum and the second Lesson. Their use has now almost entirely ceased, except in the case of the Te Deum, which being used on Festivals alone, and therefore always with the pneuma, was never written without it, and so has retained it in nearly every diocese of the Roman Church.

The above examples have been taken (with one exception) from the Sarum version, not only because it represents an extremely pure form of the melody, but also for the sake of supporting it with the adaptation by Merbecke to the English text. Merbecke's setting of

1132



It seems that the ancient melody was known to the musicians of some of the Lutheran Churches down to at least the middle of the 18th century. We come across fragments of it amongst Buxtehude's Fortgalde, and also in those of Bach. In Iceland a remarkable metrical version was retained down to the beginning of this century; it disappeared when (A.D. 1801) the independent Icelandic service books were modified in order to assimilate them to the more modern Danish forms. The following extracts from the 1695 edition of the Icelandic Graduale, printed at Hólar in A.D. 1779, will show how the ancient melody was still made use of:

This version was sung by the sides of the choir alternately, each side taking half a verse. In the pauses, here set to the word Amen, both choirs united.

(W. J. B.)

The metrical tr. of the Te Deum into English are in almost every instance the prose tr. in the Book of Common Prayer turned into metre. That tr. beginning "We praise Thee, O God" was given in the Book of Common Prayer in 1549. (See § vi. 3. (4).). The translator is unknown. The metrical renderings therefrom in English include:—

1. O God, we praise Thee, and we own. Dr. J. Patrick. This was given in his Ps. of David in Metre, &c. 1679, in 13 st. of 8 l. and began:—

"O God, we praise Thee, and we own, Thee to be Lord and King alone."

This version of the Te Deum has had a somewhat strange and eventful history, as the following facts will show:—

(1.) In Tate & Brady's Supplement to the New Version, circa 1700 (2nd ed. 1702), it was given in a rewritten form as:—

"O God, we praise Thee, and confess That Thou the only Lord," and this remained in C. U. in the Church of England until the New Version was superseded by the modern hymn books. In an abbreviated form it is still in use amongst Nonconformists in G. Britain and America, as in the New Cong. 1850, the Hym. & Songs of Praise, N. Y., 1874, and others.

(2.) In the English Moravian H. Bk. pub. in London in 1754, No. 299, Dr. Patrick's tr. was given in an expanded form, the additions being trs. of portions of Luther's German rendering "Herr Gott, dich loben wir!" as below. It begins:—

"O God, we praise Thee, and we own Thee, the Almighty Lord alone."

This was in 5 st. of 12 l. and chorus of 4 l. In the 1789 and later eds. (1849, No. 662) it begins "Lord God, Thy praise we sing. To Thee." From this the following hymns have been manipulated:—

(c) In the American Reformed Dutch Church H. Bk. 1789, is a hymn beginning:—

"O Christ, Thou glorious King! we own Thee to be God's eternal Son."

which is taken from the Moravian H. Bk. 1754, with several lines rewritten. This is No. 193 in the American Reformed Dutch Hym. of the Church, N. Y. 1869.

(b.) In the American Ref. Dutch Ch. H. Bk. of 1792, there is another hymn from the same source which begins:—

"Almighty God, we praise and own Thee our Creator King alone."

Several of the lines are altered, the whole being from the first part of the Te Deum. This is No. 47 of the American Ref. Dutch Hym. of the Church, N. Y. 1869.

(c.) In the 1815 Appendix to T. Cotterill's Sel. of Ps. & Hys. pub. in Staffordshire, No. 214 begins:—

"Thee we adore, eternal Lord!
We praise Thy name with one accord."

This has no connection with the version in the Moravian H. Bk. of 1754. It embraces st. i.-iii. of the Prayer Book version of the Te Deum, and was probably by Cotterill. When Cotterill issued the 8th ed. of his Sel. in 1819 he was incumbent of St. Paul's, Sheffield. In the preparation of this edition he was assisted by the Moravian poet, James Montgomery, at whose press it was printed. In this edition "Thee we adore, eternal Lord" is given as No. 25. This was followed by two hymns based on the remaining stanzas of the Te Deum as follows:—

No. 26. "Thee, King of glory, Christ we own,
The Father's everlasting Son."

No. 27. "The Church on earth confesseth Thee,
The Father, throned in majesty."

These two hymns are adapted from the tr. in the Moravian H. Bk. 1754, and were probably moulded into their present form by Montgomery.

(d.) In the American Hym. & Songs of Praise, N. Y. 1874, No. 5, beginning "Thee we adore, eternal Lord," is a conte from the above three hymns in Cotterill's Sel. st. i.-iii. being from No. 25; st. iv. from No. 26; and st. v. from No. 27.

(e.) In the Leeds H. Bk. 1853, No. 207, and some other collections, a conte in 5 st. of 4 l. is taken direct from the Moravian H. Bk. 1754, and, with slight alterations, is given as:—"Both heaven and earth do worship Thee." It forms a most successful hymn.

(f.) In James Montgomery's Original Hys. 1853, No. 13, there is a rendering of the Te Deum in 50 lines. Of these 11 are word for word from the Moravian H. Bk. 1754; 9 are partly therefrom; and the rest are only the Moravian tr. rewritten. From this Moravian-Montgomery text (which begins as in the Moravian H. Bk.) the conte in C. U. in America:—"Hail King of Glory! Christ the Lord," is taken.

2. We sing to Thee, Thou Son of God. J. Conder. Pub. in his Sacred Hys. for the Use of Religious Societies, &c. Pt. i. 1745, No. 3. This has been abbreviated and altered by various hands, beginning with Whitefield's Coll. 1753; then Toplady, in his Ps. & Hys. 1776; J. Conder, in the Congregational H. Bk. 1836; and others. The text now commonly in use is that of the Cong. H. Bk. 1836. It is in the Leeds H. Bk. 1853, &c.

3. Infinite God, to Thee we raise. C. Wesley. Appeared in Hys. for those that seek and those that have Redemption, 1747, No. xiii. in 14 st. of 6 l. In the 1830 Supplement to the Wes. H. Bk. it was broken up into three hymns, and given as Nos. 564-5-6, as follows:—I. "Infinite God, to Thee we raise" (sts. i.-v.). 2. "Messiah, joy of every heart" (sts. vi.-ix.). 3. "Saviour, we now rejoice in hope" (sts. xii.-xiv.). The first line of No. 3 is altered from the original to adapt it as the opening of a separate hymn. There are also other alterations in this and No. 2 as above. (Orig. text in P. Works, 1869-72, vol. iv. pp. 324-27.) The hymn in some American collections "To Thee to laud in songs of praise," is a conte from this version of the Te Deum.

4. How can we adore, Or worthily praise! W. Hammond. Pub. in his Ps. & Hys. &c. 1745, p. 193, in 17 st. of 8 l. An abbreviated form of this rendering of the Te Deum is in Hatfield's Church H. Bk. N. Y. 1872.

5. We praise, we worship Thee, O God. This anonymous version of the first part of the Te Deum is traced to P. Gell's Ps. & Hys. 1815. It is also in W. Urwick's Coll. of Hymns, Dublin, 1826; the Leeds H. Bk. 1853, the New Cong. 1859, the Prim. Meth. Hymnal, 1887, and others. In some books it is given in 5 sts. and in others in 6 sts. The doxology is later than Gell's Coll.

6. God eternal, Lord of all. J. E. Millard. Written for and first pub. in the Rev. T. F. Smith's Devout Chorister, 1848, p. 106, in 8 st. of 4 l. and entitled "Hymn for Choristers." It was subsequently republished in Hys. and Anthems, Lond. Masters, 1852; Lord Selborne's Bk. of Praise (original text), 1862, and others. An abbreviated and altered form of the text was given in H. A. & M. 1861, as:—"God eternal, Mighty King," and this has been repeated in several collections in G. Britain and America.

7. Holy God, we praise Thy Name, Lord of all, &c. C. A. Wutherich. This is dated 1853 in the American Evangelical Hymnal (Hall and Lasar), Bacnas & Co., N. Y. 1880.

8. Thou art the everlasting Son. This anonymous rendering of the latter part of the Te Deum appeared in the American Sabbath H. Bk. 1856, No. 335, in 3 st. of 6 l. and has been repeated in a few American collections.

9. Thee God we praise, Thee Lord confess. W. Robertson. This rendering of the first part of the Te Deum was given in the Hym. for Public Worship, 1861, and the Scottish Hymnal, 1870.

10. Thee, Thee, we praise, O God, and own. E. P. Hatfield. Written in 1871 for, and pub. in 1872 in his Church H. Bk. in 6 st. of 4 l.

Other translations are:—

1. We praise thee God, we knowledge thee. Old Version, 1585.

2. We praise thee, O God, with one accord. W. Barton, 1659.

3. O God, we praise Thy Holy Name. W. Barton, 1659.

4. We praise thee, God, we acknowledge thee. W. Barton, 1659.

5. We give thee praise, O God, with one accord. W. Barton, 1659.

6. O God, we praise thee, thee our Lord. Miles Smyth, 1668.

7. Thou Sovereign God! our grateful accents praise. I. Stopford, 1705. Repeated in The Christian's Mag. 1764.

8. Thee Sovereign God! our anthems praise. B. Wardle. circa 1800.

9. We praise Thee God, before Thee fall. By "M. A. C." in Almeda's Hym. for Occasional Use in the Parish Church of St. Peter in Nottingham. 1819.

16. Before Thee, Lord of all, we bow. W. W. Hall. 1875.

17. Thee God! we praise, and Thee our Lord confess. A. French. 1876.

12. We praise Thee as our God. W. W. Hall. 1852.

The above four renderings of the Te Deum by W. Barton were written at the request of Richard Baxter (see p. 116, ii.). J. R. Beste has a kind of blank verse rendering in his Church Hys. 1840, as :—"Thee we praise, O God; we own Thee our Lord Almighty." W. H. Jewitt (p. 628, ii.) pub. in 1874, twenty-three hymns on the various clauses of the Te Deum of which four have come into C. U. [J. J.]

Many German versions of the Te Deum have been made at various periods. Of these one is noted on p. 518, i., "Herr grosser Gott." Another is:—

Herr Gott, dich loben wir! Herr Gott, wir danken dir. This is a free version, by Martin Luther, in 32 lines arranged for antiphonal singing. It apparently was first pub. in King's G. B. Wittenberg, 1529; and from this passed into the Rostock G. B. (Low German) of 1531. Wackernagel, iii. p. 15, prints it from the Geistliche Lieder, Wittenberg, 1531. It is also in Schlenke's ed. of Luther's Geistliche Lieder, 1854, p. 1, and in the Unv. L. S. 1851, No. 188. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Thee Lord, our God, we praise. This is No. 356 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl. 1880, marked as a canto.

Other trs. are :—

(1) "Dir, Lord our God! Thy name we praise." By Miss Fry, 1841, p. 65. (2) "Lord God, to Thee we raise." By J. Anderson, 1846, p. 65. In his ed. 1847, p. 84, altered to "Lord God of hosts, to Thee we raise." (3) "Thee, Lord, we praise." By Dr. J. Hunt, 1855, p. 166. (4) "Lord God, Thy praise we sing, Lord God." By R. Mant, 1854, p. 48, repeated by Dr. Bacon, 1884, p. 56. (5) "Lord God, Thine praise do we." By Dr. G. Macdonald in the Sunday Magazine, 1867, p. 94, repeated, altered, in his Exotics, 1876, p. 115. [J. M.]

Te Deum Patrem colimus. [Grace after Meat.] The earliest text known is in a folio volume of 17th cent. mss. misc. in the Library of Christ Church, Oxford (H. 1. 21). It is given thus with the following note (kindly communicated by the Rev. T. Vere Bayne, the librarian) :—

"This hymn is sung every day, in Magdalen College Hall, Chirk, (Dinner and Supper); through the years for the after Grace, by the Chaplains, Clerks, and Demies, founded by William Smith, Bishop of Lincoln, Doctor of Medicine of the University of Oxon, 1668."

The ms. is in the autograph of Dr. Rogers, but whether he was the author of words as well as music does not clearly appear. The hymn is still sung every year on the first of May by the choristers from the top of Magdalen College Tower, and is annually sung as the after grace in Magdalen College Hall on Gaudy Day, viz. St. Mary Magdalen's Day. The text is :—

"Te Deum Patrem colimus,
Te laudibus prosequimur:
Qui in sempiternum
Coelesti sermone gratis,
"Te adorantes, o Jova,
Te fili suigenite,
Te qui non dedignatus es
Subire claustra virginis.
"Astra tu creavis, factus es
Homo pro perditis:
Per te, Salvator, venia,
Vitae spes nobis redditi.
"Tibi, Eterne Spiritus,
Cujus officit, laudis,
Unicum inter Maria,
Arternum benedicimus.
"Trinus Deus hominum
Salutis auctor optime,
Immensum hoc mysterium
Omne linguâ canitum."

Dr. Rogers's music is given in the Sarum Hymnal, 1868, No. 181 (a tr. of the Latin as above), and is dated in the Index, 1600. Tr. as :—

1. Father of all! To Thee we raise. By W. Palmer, in his Short Poems & Hys., the latter mostly Translations, 1845, p. 21, and headed "Hymn of Thanksgiving after Dinner. Sung in Latin in the Refectory of St. Mary Magdalene College, in the University of Oxford." In 1850 it was included in Dr. Oldknow's Hys. for the Service of the Church, and later in several other collections, as the Sarum (where it is attributed to J. Chandler in error), and others. In the Hymnary, 1872, it is altered to "To Thee, O Father, here we raise."

Other trs. are :—

1. Thee, mighty Father, we adore. By G. Horne, in his Memoirs, by William Jones, 1795, p. 233.
2. Almighty Father, just and good. J. Chandler, 1837 and 1841. [J. M.]

Te laeta mundi Conditor. C. Coffin. [Epiphanytime.] Appeared in the Paris Brev., 1736, and in Codin's Hymni Sacri, p. 44, the same year. It is also in later French Breva. It is the hymn at Vespers on the Saturdays before Septuagesima, Sexagesima, and Quadragesima. The text is in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 26; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865; and L. C. Biggs's annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867. Tr. as :—

1. Thou great Creator, art possessed. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 62, and again in his Hys. of the Church, 1841, No. 35. Repeated without the doxology in the Sarum Hymnal, 1868, &c.

2. Thou, Creator, art possessed. By R. Campbell, in his St. Andrews Hys. and Anthems, 1850, p. 60, and the Hymnal for St. John the Evangelist, Aberdeen, 1870.

3. Thou, Maker of the world, doth rest. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-1855, Septuages. 8, and Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870, No. 52.

4. Maker of earth, to Thee alone. By J. M. Neale, in an article in the Christian Remembrancer. It was repeated in Murray's Hymnal, 1852, the People's H., 1867, and other collections.

5. Creator of the world, to Thee. This tr. was given in H. A. & M., 1861, and repeated in 1875. In the Index to the latter ed. it is stated to be by the "Compilers: based upon older translations from Latin." These "older translations" were specially the two by Chandler and Neale noted above. This text was repeated in Pott's Hymns, &c., 1861, the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, &c., sometimes with, and at other times without the doxology. In the Hymnary, 1872, the text, slightly changed, begins, "Creator of the earth to Thee."

Other trs. are :—

1. Thee, Lord, in endless rest. J. Williams. 1839.
2. Creator, Majesty divine. J. D. Chambers. 1857. [J. J.]

Te lucis ante terminum. [Evening.] This hy. sometimes been ascribed to St. Ambrose; but it is not assigned to him by the Benedictine editors, by Biraghi, or even by Thomasius. Mone, i. p. 372, cites it as in a ms. of the 8th cent. at Darmstadt. Among the British Museum mss. it is found in three 11th cent. Hymnaries of the English Church (Vesp. D. xii. f. 10 b; Jul. A. vi. f. 28; Harl. 2961 f. 220 b); in an 11th cent. Monastic Breviary (Add. 30848 f. 66 b), &c. It is in a ms. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi, Cambridge (391, page 231); in a ms. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall, No. 387; and in the Latin Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Ch. (Surtees Society), 1851, it is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32 f. 4 b). It is included in the Hymns (Venice, 1478, and, with slight differences in the text, in the revision of 1632), Sarum, York, Aberdeen, Paris of 1643, and other Breviaries, generally as a hymn at Compline. The text is also in Daniel i. No. 63 (the older, and the Rom. Brev. texts), Wackernagel, i. No. 9, the Hymnarium Sarisb., 1851, p. 3; Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiae, 1838 and 1865, and L. C. Biggs's annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867 (Rom. Brev.). [J. M.]

Translations in C. U. :—

1. Now that the daylight dies away, By all Thy grace and love. By Card. Newman, from the Rom. Brev., in the Tracts for the Times, 1836, No. 75, p. 84, his Verses on Religious Subjects, 1853, p. 105, and his Verses on Various Occasions, 1868, p. 223. In O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1884, and others.

2. Ere the waning light decay. By Bp. R. Mant, from the Rom. Brev., in his Ancient Hymns, &c., 1837, p. 29; ed. 1871, p. 53. This tr. is in a large number of hymn-books, including the Parish H. Bk., 1863-1875; Thring's Coll., 1882; and others

3. Thee before the close of day. By W. J. Copeland, in his Hys. for the Week, 1848, p. 18, and the Hyl. for the Use of St. John the Evangelist, Aberdeen, 1870.

4. Now with the fast departing light. By E. Caswall, from the Rom. Brev., in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 37, and his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 22. This tr. is in several Roman Catholic collections for Missions and Schools.

5. Before the ending of the day. By R. Campbell, from the Rom. Brev., in his St. Andrews Hys. and Anthems, 1850, p. 27.

6. Before the ending of the day. By J. M. Neale, in the H. Noted, 1852, No. 8. In this tr. Dr. Neale took the opening lines from R. Campbell, as above, as the first stanza from each will show :—

Campbell, 1850. "Before the ending of the day
Creator of the world, we pray,
Beneath Thy kind protection take
And shield us for Thy mercy's sake."
Neale, 1852. "Before the ending of the day
Creator of the world, we pray
That with Thy wonted favour, Thou
Wouldst be our Guard and Keeper now."

The popular form of the hymn under these opening lines is that in H. A. & M., 1861 and 1875, st. i. of which reads :—

Compilers of H. A. & M. 1861. "Before the ending of the day,
Creator of the world, we pray
That Thou with watchful love wouldst keep Thy sealed servant all while we sleep."

This tr., which is by the Compilers of H. A. & M., based upon Neale, has passed into several collections, but usually with slight alterations, as Pott's Hymns, &c., 1861; the Sarum Hyl., 1868; the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871; the Hymnary, 1872, and others.

7. Father, at the close of day. By G. Rorison, from the Rom. Brev., in his Hys. and Anthems, 1855, No. 6.

8. Now that the daylight dies away. By W. J. Blew, from the Sarum Brev., in his Church Hy. & Tune Bk., 1852-55, and Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870, No. 100.

9. To Thee before the close of day, Creator of the world, &c. By J. D. Chambers, in his Psalter, &c., 1858, p. 356, and his Lauds Sync, 1857, and the People's H., 1867.

10. Ere darkling wanes the day. By Archbishop Benson, from the Rom. Brev. Written for and first pub. in the Wellington College H. Bk., 1860, and appointed for Tuesday evening in Summer.

11. Before the waning light decay. This cento was given in Kennedy, 1863, No. 1451, and is thus composed :—st. i., ii., Bp. Mant's tr. as above altered; st. iii., from C. Wesley's "Earth in Thy name, O Lord, I go," st. v. (p. 393, ii.); st. iv. probably by Dr. Kennedy; st. v., doxology.

12. As now departs the light of day. This is No. 15 in T. Darling's Hys. for the Ch. of England, 1887. In the Index it is said to be by "J. Mason Neale." It is really the H. A. & M. version from Campbell and Neale as above, with alterations by Mr. Darling.

Translations not in C. U. :—

1. Before the lightsome day expyre. Primer. 1539.
2. Maker of all, we Thee intreate. Primer. 1539.
3. Before the closing of the day, Creator, Thee, &c. Primer. 1539.
4. Thee, before the close of day. Primer. 1706.
5. To Thee, before the close of day, Creator of all things. Evening Office. 1746.
6. Ere yet the shades o'erwhelm the light. B. French. 1837.
7. The evening pales; the dying day grows wan. T. Doddridge's Hymns ascrib. Anglicanum. 1844.
8. Thee, before the daylight dies. Bp. J. Williams. 1845.
9. Before the closing of the day. R. S. Burnham. 1864.
10. Ere now the daylight fades away. J. W. Stocqueler. 1852.
11. Creator, ere the fall of day. F. Trygg. 1868.
12. Creator of the earth and sea. G. Moultrie, in his Hys. & Lyrics. 1867.
13. Before the waning of the light. J. Wallace. 1871. [J. J.]

Te matrem Dei laudamus, te omnis terra veneratur. St. Bonaventure (?). [R. V. M.] This travesty of the "Te Deum laudamus," referred to in the previous article thereon as the production of St. Bonaventure (which is open to question), is known to us in two forms. The first form is in Daniel, ii. p. 293; and the second in Mone, ii. p. 229, where it is given from two mss. of the 14th century, and begins, "Te matrem laudamus, te virginem confitemur." Mone's text is tr. by Mrs. Charles in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, &c., 1858, p. 210, as, "We praise thee, O Mother, we acknowledge thee to be the Virgin." [J. J.]

Te Redemptoris Dominique nostri. [R. V. M.] This is the hymn "at Lauds on the festival of the B. V. M. under the title of "Help of Christians." This office has been added to the Roman Breviary since 1740, and is now said as a Greater Double on May 24. The hymn is in the Roman Breviary, Bologna, 1827, Pars Verna Supplement, p. 359, in 7 st., and is repeated in later eds. of the Breviary and in Daniel iv. p. 303. Tr. as :—

Mother of our Lord and Saviour. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 152, and his Hym. and Poems, 1873, p. 81. Repeated in a few Roman Catholic hymn-books for Missions and Schools.

Another tr. is :—

Mother of our Redeemer and our Lord. J. Wallace. 1874. [J. M.]

Teach me, my God and King. G. Herbert. [Duty.] This hymn is found in modern hymn-books in two forms, the first as written by Herbert, and the second as altered by J. Wesley. Herbert's text was printed in his Temple, 1633, p. 179, under the title "The Elixir"; and J. Wesley's in his Coll. of Psalms & Hymns, 1738. The two texts are :—

By G. Herbert, 1633.	By J. Wesley, 1738.
"Teach me, my God and King,	"Teach me, my God and King,
In all things Thee to see,	In all things Thee to see,
And what I do in anything	And what I do in anything
To do it as for Thee.	To do it as for Thee.
"Not rudely as a beast,	"Not rudely, as a beast,
To run into an action;	To run into action;
But still to make Thee prepossest,	But still to make Thee prepossest,
And give it his perfection.	And give it his perfection.
"A man that looks on glass,	"A man that looks on glass,
On it may stay his eye;	On that may fix his eye;
Or, if he pleaseth, through it pass,	Or unregarded pass
And then the heav'n espy.	through it pass
	And heaven beheld thereby.
"All may of Thee partake;	"All may of Thee partake;
Nothing can be so mean	Nothing so mean can be,
Which with his tincture (for Thy sake), (a)	But doth, when acted for Thy sake,
Will not grow bright and clean.	Become both rich and worth from Thee.
"A servant with this clause	"If thou to obey Thy laws, Even servile labour shines;
Makes drudgery divine;	But still to Thee
Who sweeps a room as for Thy laws	Makes that and th' action fine,
Makes that and th' action fine.	The meanest work divine.
"This is the famous stone	"This is the long-sought stone (d),
That turneth all to gold;	That all converts to gold;
For that which God doth touch and own	For that which God for His doth own
Cannot for less be told."	Cannot for less be told."

In modern hymn-books, as in Mercer and others, J. Wesley's text, with the omission of the last stanza, is usually followed. We must note that in Herbert's text the line (a) reads in the 7th ed. "Which with this tincture for Thy sake," and that in later editions of J. Wesley's Coll. of Ps. & Hys. the following changes are also made :—

(b) "Nothing so small can be."
(c) "Hallow'd to toil, if this the cause."
(d) "The stone this the stone."

This rugged, but beautiful hymn is well adopted in its original form for private use. [J. J.]

Teacher of hearts, 'tis Thine alone. C. Wesley. [Ordination.] Printed from the Wesley MSS. in the P. Works, 1868–72, vol. xii. p. 146, in 2 st. of 8 l. The opening stanza reads :—

"Teacher of hearts, 'tis Thine alone
Thine officers to ordain,
Point out Thy instruments, unknown
To unthrowning men;
Our apostolic guides appoint
And fix their proper place,
And stir them up to consecrate
The men designed by Thee."

In the 1875 ed. of the Wes. H. Bk., No. 871, ll. 5, 6, read :—

"Thy pastors of Thy Church appoint Of Thine unseen decree."

and this reading was repeated in the Primitive Methodist Hymnal, 1887. By this change Charles Wesley's well-known convictions respecting Holy Orders are completely suppressed. [J. J.]

Tell it out among the heathen that the Lord is King. Frances R. Havergal. [Missions.] Written at Winterdyne, April 19, 1872, and first pub. in Evening Hours, 1872, and subsequently in her Under the Surface, 1874, Life Mosaic, 1879, &c. The MAY. MSS. tell us that it "was written at Winterdyne, when unable to go to church one snowy morning. She asked for her Prayer-Book (in bed), always liking to follow the services of the day. On Mr. Shaw's return from church, he heard her touch on the piano: 'Why, Frances, I thought you were reading!' 'So I was, but I could not help putting in the Psalms for to-day! I read, "Tell it out among the heathen that the Lord is King." I thought, "What a splendid first line!" and then words and music came rushing in to me. There it's all written out. With the accompaniment, which I afterwards wrote out the words, music and harmonies complete."

The words and music are issued by Parlane of Paisley as a leaflet. Both are also in the musical ed. of Stepp's Songs of G. & G., 1880. The hymn is also repeated in other collections. [J. J.]

Telluris ingens Conditor. St. Gregory the Great. † [Tuesday, Evening.] Mone, No. 274 and i. p. 372, gives this as probably by St. Gregory (it is not assigned to him by the Benedictine editors), and cites it as in a ms. of the 8th cent. at Trier, one of the 9th cent. also at Trier, &c. Daniel, i. No. 51, gives it as a hymn On the Work of the Third Day [of the Creation]; and at iv. p. 50, cites it as in a Rheinau ms. of the 10th cent., and ranks it as a hymn of the 7th or 8th cent. Among the British Museum mss. it is found in three 11th cent. Hymnaries of the English Church (Vesp. D. xii. f. 16 b; Jul. A. vi. f. 26; Harl. 2961 f. 222 b), in an 11th cent. Mozarabic Breviary (Add. 30848 f. 73), &c. It is in a ms. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi, Cambridge (201, pages 224), in a ms. of the 9th cent. (No. 595), and three mss. of the 11th cent. (Nos. 367, 413, 414), at St. Gall; and in the Latin Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Ch. (Surtees Society), 1851, is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32 f. 6 b). In the revised Roman Brev. 1632 it begins "Telluris alme Conditor." The original form is included in the older Rouen (Venice, 1478), Sarum, York, Aberdeen and other Breviaries, as a hymn at Vespers on Tuesday. Also in Wackernagel, i. No. 91, the Hymnarium Sarisb., 1851, and G. M. Dreves's Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, from a 10th cent. ms. The Roman Breviary text is in recent eds. of that Breviary, in Daniel i. No. 51, and Card. Newman's Hymni Eccles., 1838 and 1865. [J. M.]

Both forms of this hymn have been tr. into English and are in C. U. The variations in the Latin text are very slight, and are :—

St. i. l. 1. "Telluris ingens conditor,
l. 3. Mundi solium qui struxit."
St. iv. l. 4. "Et mortis actum noscitur."
Amen "Telluris alme conditor,
St. iv. l. 3. Mundi solium qui struxerat."
St. iv. l. 4. "Et mortis actum noscitur."

Translations in C. U. :—

1. All-beautiful Creator, Who. By Card. Newman, from the Rom. Brev., in his Verses on Religious Subjects, 1853, p. 98, and again in his Verses on Various Occasions, 1868, p. 245. It is repeated in the Marquess of Bute's Roman Breviary into English, 1879. It was partly rewritten by W. J. Blew, and given in his Church Hy. & Tune Bk., 1852–55, as "Almighty Builder of the earth." This form of the text is in Rice's Sel. from Blew, 1870, No. 26.

2. O bounteous Framer of the globe. E. Caswall, from the Rom. Brev., in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 21, and again in his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 13. It is in several collections, including the Hymnary, 1872, and others.

3. Creator, great and good. By W. J. Copeland, from the Rom. Brev., in his Hys. for the Week, 1848, p. 28, the Hys. for the Use of St. John the Evangelist, Aberdeen, 1870, and others.

4. Thou Framer of this earthly sphere. By J. D. Chambers, in his Lauds Span, 1857, the People's H., 1867, &c.

5. Earth's mighty Maker, Whose command. Contributed to the enlarged ed. of the H. Noted, 1854, by "a friend" of Dr. Neale's. It is in the Hymner, 1882.

Translations not in C. U. :—

1. O mighty Maker of the Land. Primer. 1599.
2. Great Maker of man's earthly Realme. Primer. 1615.
3. Most bright Creator of the Land. Primer. 1632.
4. O God, Who when at nature's birth. Primer. 1706 and 1761. In O. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, 1844.
5. All bounteous Framer of the earth. Sp. S. Mont. 1837.
6. Eternal Architect sublime. T. Dentleshy's Hymns, 1845, p. 142 (1862, p. 141).
7. Creator of the Universe. A. J. B. Hope. 1846.
8. Creator eternal, Who fram'd the earth. Sp. J. Williams. 1846.
9. Great Creator, wise and good. R. Campbell. 1849.
10. Thou Maker of all worlds. J. D. Chambers, in his Psalter, 1865, p. 381.
11. O Blest Creator of the earth. J. Wallace. 1874.
12. Thou mighty Maker of earth's frame. S. W. Duffield, in his Latin Hy. Writers, &c. 1888.] [J. J.]

Tellus ac aethra jubilant. Paschal. [Passiontide.] A hymn for Maundy Thursday, on the Last Supper and the washing of the disciples' feet. It is found in two mss. of the 11th cent. in the British Museum (Add. 29788 f. 37 b; Vesp. D. xii. f. 67); and in the Latin Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Ch., 1851, is printed from an 11th cent. ms. at Durham (B. iii. 32, f. 230). The printed text is in Daniel i. No. 208, with notes at ii. p. 383, iii. p. 286, iv. p. 70. (Daniel quotes two mss. as the 10th cent. (which does not seem to have existed either); Mone, No. 79, and Blankov, No. 32. Tr. by J. D. Chambers in his Psalter, &c., 1852, p. 212, and his Lauds Span, 1857, p. 139, and repeated in Skinner's Daily Service Hys., 1864, as "Let earth and skies rejoicing sing." [J. M.]

Tellus tot annos quid tegis. Jean Baptiste de Santeüil. [Invention of Holy Cross.] Pub. in his Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, p. 25 (ed. 1698, p. 90), and again in the Paris Brev., 1736, and later French Breves, as the hymn for first Vespers at the Feast of the Holy Cross. Hymn No. 249 in the People's H., 1867: "Wherefore, O earth, while years flow by," is a tr. by "S. M." [J. J.]

Temperance Hymnody. The Temperance movement has produced abundant stores of verse, consisting of hymns, odes, ballads, and compositions descriptive, imaginative, humorous, pathetic, satirical, and elegiac. America has furnished much of this material, but its principal sources have been Scotch and English. The department here treated, Hymnody, may be considered as to its rise and progress, with brief notices of some of its chief contributions and contributors. The Temperance Reform, which began in America early in 1826, took root in Ireland and Scotland in the autumn of 1829, and in England early in 1830. The first societies, founded on the basis of abstinence from distilled spirits only, do not appear to have made use of any special hymns bearing upon the Temperance question. In a few years they took the position of abstinence from all intoxicating liquors; and in 1836 a collection of Temperance Hymns and Songs was issued from the office of the Temperance Advocate at Preston, a town which had been for some years the chief centre of total abstinence propagandism. Before the middle of 1837, the Rev. F. Beardsall, of Manchester, brought out the first general Temperance Hymn Book, containing nearly 200 hymns, which the editor had culled from temperance periodicals, American and British. In a second edition the number of hymns was increased to 226, and afterwards to 255. Subsequently appeared the Hymn Book of the New British and Foreign Temperance Society, n. d.; Temperance Hymns and Songs, edited by J. W. Green, n. d. (enlarged in 1853); and the Scottish Temperance League Hymn Book, n. d. (edited by the Rev. F. C. Wilson). Collections were also issued by Rev. R. G. Mason, and by others under the names of Gwynfor Kendal, Nottingham, Leicester, and Bristol. The demands of the Juvenile Temperance movement, especially in the Band of Hope form, stimulated the publication of poetical pieces with music attached; but hymns, strictly so called, did not multiply in the same proportion. Among works, largely but not exclusively used in meetings of young persons, may be named, The Crystal Fount, n. d.; The Crystal Spring, n. d.; The British Band of Hope Melodist, n. d.; The National Temperance Hymn Book, n. d., compiled by the Rev. H. A. Hamwood: Hymns and Melodies of the Band of Hope, n. d.; The New Penny Temperance Hymn Book, n. d., by J. W. Kirton; The Book of Song of Bands of Hope, n. d.; and Odes for Good Templars, n. d.; and W. Hoyle's Hymns and Songs, n. d. The Committee of the United Kingdom Band of Hope Union have published a handsome volume of 176 Hymns and Songs for Bands of

1138 TEMPERANCE HYMNODY TEMPLI SACRATAS PANDE

Hope, M. D. In connection with the Church of England Temperance Society a book of 324 Hymns and Songs has been published, but only a small number are on temperance topics. In 1864, Mr. G. H. Graham, of Maidstone, published the National Band of Hope and Temperance Melodist, comprising 250 pieces, the production of above 70 writers. In succession to this, and as the result of much labour, Rev. John Compston edited for Mr. Graham the National Temperance Harmonist, 1870, containing 520 hymns and songs. The musical edition contained 341 tunes. In 1878 this work was retained in an improved form, under the name of the National Temperance Hymnal, the editor as before being the Rev. John Compston. The hymns in this collection are 490. In 1876 also appeared the Standard Book of Song for Temperance Meetings and Home Use, edited by Mr. T. Bowick; followed in 1881 by an elegant volume containing these hymns with music, by Mr. A. J. Burch. All the more recent works can be obtained from the National Temperance Publication Depôt, 33, Paternoster Row. It may be observed that all these collections abound in songs as well as hymns, and it is difficult to judge of the numerical proportion they bear to each other in the whole body of metrical compositions. Perhaps it will be an approach to accuracy to estimate the number of distinct hymns at about 200, and of hymn-writers at from 60 to 70. In the earliest collections many hymns by the same writer are printed; but in the later compilations no writer, with rare exceptions, is represented by more than a few specimens of his poetic powers.

ii. Amongst the most popular and widely used of Temperance hymns are the following:—

1. A glorious light has burst around us. Whither.
2. Abstainers, wake, there is work to be done. J. Leeder.
3. All gracious Lord, we look to Thee. W. J. Harvey.
4. Almighty Father, while we own, Thy saving power, &c. Verses.
5. Am I my brother's keeper? Yes. American.
6. Come, brothers, come, the time is short. Verses.
7. Come all dear children, sing a song. J. Pennell.
8. Come, gentle daughters of our land. Clara L. Balfour.
9. Come, lovers of mankind. Verses.
10. Come, ye that love the Saviour's name. Verses.
11. Father of the human race. B. C. Mace.
12. Friends of Temperance, onward go. J. B.
13. Give me a draught from the crystal spring. T. Hastings.
14. Great God, Thy presence we implore. John Burns.
15. Hail, Temperance, bright celestial ray. J. W. Green.
16. Lo Zion droops, in vain, in vain. H. Anderton.
17. O Lord, Thy children hear us plead. Verses.
18. O Thou from Whom all gifts proceed. Verses.
19. Onwards the animating sound. American.
20. Parent, who with unwilling feeling. Signswrap.
21. Pledged in a noble cause. H. P.
22. Rejoice, rejoice, ye sons of Zion. T. F.
23. Round the Temperance standard rally. John Burns.
24. Wake, for the time of slumber. Duncan Burnet.
25. We praise Thee, if one reversed soul. Signswrap.
26. We sing the praise of Him who died. Verses.
27. Who the sacred page perusing. Verses.
28. Who will tell of strength and freedom? Eliza Cook.
29. Wine is a mocker; it beguiles. J. B.

iii. In furnishing a few biographical details of Temperance hymn-writers we confine ourselves to the following, who have all passed away:—

1. Anderton, Henry, was b. at Walton-le-Dale, near Preston, Lancashire, in 1815. He was a member of the early Preston abstainers. He was a popular speaker, and his poems were widely recited and sung. A complete edition of his Poems, with a Memoir by R. Grubb, has been published.

2. Clara Lucy Liddell, née Lucas, was b. Dec. 21, 1844. She edited several Temperance Journals, and pub. the Garland of Water Flowers, and many other Temperance works. On literary as well as on Temperance subjects she was an elegant writer and charming speaker. She d. Feb. 3, 1879.

3. Reed, Thomas, a Minister of the Baptist denomination, was b. at Sheffield, Sept. 6, 1799, and entering the Ministry he became an active friend of the Temperance cause in Manchester, and edited the Temperance Star for some time. In 1837 he pub. the first general Temperance Hymn Book, which passed through numerous editions. He d. June 23, 1841, while on a voyage to America.

4. Burns, Jabez, D.D., the well known Baptist Minister, was b. at Oldham, Lancashire, Dec. 14, 1805, and was one of the first Ministers of Religion in London who identified himself with the Temperance cause. His Temperance publications, and employed a versatile and forcible pen in the cause of Temperance, both in prose and verse. He d. Jan. 31, 1876.

5. Green, John William, was b. in 1793, and received a Congregational education. He became a Temperance lecturer and speaker. His collection of Temperance Hymns and Songs, had a large sale in London and the neighbourhood. He d. Feb. 1, 1860.

6. Mann, Robert Grey, was b. Nov. 19, 1795. He was a member of the early Preston abstainers, and Temperance cause found in him a powerful friend on the platform. He edited the Temperance Hymn Book, &c. &c. He d. Aug. 31, 1867.

7. Tunnicliff, Jabez, a Minister of the Baptist denomination, was b. at Leeds, Dec. 1, 1800, and became a Baptist congregationalist. In Leeds, where he founded the first Band of Hope, in 1847, the outcome of a visit to Leeds of Mrs. Carlile of Dublin. He wrote many songs and hymns for children. He d. June 15, 1865.

iv. When it is remembered that Temperance hymns have been necessarily restricted to one topic, the variety of expression found therein may be justly regarded as being somewhat remarkable. And although not one hymn can be named which ranks with the highest productions of sacred song, yet the literary and devotional merits of not a few are conspicuous. Several of those named above would make no unworthy addition to modern hymn-books designed for special use in divine worship. They might be embodied in a separate section on Temperance. [D. B.]

Templi sacratas pande, Sion, fores. Jesu Baptiste da Sanctitè. [Purification of B. V. M.] Appeared in the Paris Brev., 1680, the Cluniac Brev., 1686, p. 924, and the author's Hymni Sacri et Noti, 1689, p. 6 (ed. 1698, p. 62). It is also in the Paris Brev., 1736, and later French Breva., as the hymn at 1st Vespers of the Feast of the Purification. Text in Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865, and L. C. Biggs's annotated H. A. & M., 1867. Tr. as:—

1. Sion, ope thy hallowed doors. Appeared in I. Williams's Hys. tr. from the Parisian Brev., 1839, p. 185, as having been contributed thereto by "a friend," who is usually understood to have been J. Chandler, although it did not appear in Chandler's Hys. of the Church, 1841. In addition to being in C. U. in its original form, it is also found as:—

(1) O Sion, ope thy hallowed doors, in the Baptist Hy., 1852 and 1861.

(2) O Sion, open wide thy gates. The Lord before, &c., in Pott's Hymns, &c., 1861.

(3) Zion, ope thine hallowed doors, in Kennedy, 1863.

TEMPORA FLORIGERO THN ΗΜΕΡΑΝ ΔΙΕΛΘΟΝ 1139

1. O Sion! open wide thy gates: Let figures disappear. By L. Carwall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 271, and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 172. Repeated in H. A. & M., 1861; the Sarum Hyl., 1868; the Hymnary, 1872, and others, sometimes with, and at other times without, a doxology.

2. The forty days are past. By Jane E. Leeson, in the Irvingite Hys. for the Use of the Churches, 1864 and 1871, with the signature "J. E. L."

4. Sion, open wide thy gates, Christ before His temple waits. An anonymous tr. in the Parish H. Bk., 1863-75.

5. O Sion, ope thy temple gates: The victim-priest, &c. By R. C. Singleton, in his Anglicus H. Bk., 1868.

Other trs. are:—

1. Now, Sion, to the approaching King. W. Palmer, 1845.

2. Sion, thine hallowed gates unfold. W. J. Blew, 1852-55.

3. Sion, open fling Thy sacred temple gates. J. D. Chambers, 1857.

4. Set wide the temple gate. D. T. Morgan, 1868. [J. J.]

Tempora florigero rutilant distincta serено. V. H. C. Fortunatus. [Easter.] This is No. 9 in Bk. iii. of his Poems. It is a poem on the Resurrection, addressed "ad Felicem Episcopum" [Felix, Bp. of Nantes, d. 582], and is in 110 lines. The full text is in F. Leo's ed. of Fortunatus's Opera poetica, Berlin, 1881, p. 39; from a St. Petersburg ms. of the 8th or 9th cent., a Paris ms. of the 9th cent. (Lat. 9347), &c. Also in a ms. of the 9th cent. in the Brit. Mus. (Add. 24193, f. 35. "In this sweet poem," says Dr. Schaff (Christ in Song, ed. 1870, p. 185), "the whole Nature, born anew in the Spring, and arrayed in the bridal garment of hope and promise, welcomes the risen Saviour, the Prince of spiritual and eternal life." In the Middle Ages varying extracts beginning with ll. 39, 40: Salve festa dies toto venerabilis ævo, Qua Deus infernum vicit et astra tenet came into extensive use as Processionals from Easter to the Ascension. Thus the forms given by Daniel, i. No. 143, in 14 conflicts, is found in an Echternach Gradual of the end of the 10th or beginning of the 11th cent. now in the Bibl. Nat., Paris (Lat. 10510; printed by A. Reimers in his Propers- Proser- und Prädikten-Gesänge, Luxemburg, 1884, p. 75) and Daniel, as ll. 1, p. 382, cites it as in a Munich ms. of the 11th cent. Other early forms, beginning with l. 39, are in a ms. circa 1200, in the Bodleian (Lond. Misc. 6, f. 140), in a ms. of the 11th cent. at St. Gall, No. 381, &c. In the Sarum and York Processionale it appears in various forms, and several hymns in imitation are also included in them, all beginning "Salve festa dies." (See Sequences, pt. ii.) Other centos from Fortunatus are in Wackernagel, i. No. 83; Trench, ed. 1864, p. 152 (10 lines); Rimbr, No. 57 (10 lines), and others. It would appear that Cranmer had made an English tr. in 1544 (see p. 344, i.). There are versions from the "Salve festa dies" in German as early as the 14th cent., one of which has passed into English as follows:—

Also heilig ist der Tag. Wackernagel, in his D. Kirchenlied, ii. p. 712, gives three, really four, forms of this, i.-iii. in 1 st. of 8 l.; iv. in 3 sts. of 8 l. The tr. follow the text given by Wackernagel in 8 lines from the Psalter Brismarianus, Mainz, 1668, where it is entitled Geweichtes Mittel Pfingstgesang. It seems to have been sung on Whitsunday, Ascension Day, and pilgrimages. The text in the Ord. Sar., 1851, No. 132, is nearly that of 1543 (see also Mittell, No. 238, and Bäumker, Nos. 114, 115). It is tr. as (1) "Hallow we with praise the day." A free tr. by A. T. Thring, in pt. ii. 146 in the Ps. & Hymns, 1862, as (2) "To holy is this day of days," by Miss Winkworth, 1869, p. 86. [J. M.]

The rendering into English from this poem have been confined to the extract given in Daniel, i. No. 143, or to selected portions of the same as follows:—

Salve, festa dies, toto venerabilis ævo.

1. Hail, festal day, for evermore adored. By J. M. Neale, in the enlarged ed. of the H. Noted, 1854. It is a tr. of a selection from Daniel. Its use is limited.

2. Hail, festal day, ever exalted high. By Elizabeth Charles, in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, &c., 1858, p. 135. This is a literal tr. of the text, as in Daniel.

3. Hail, Day of days, in peals of praise. By W. J. Copeland, in Lyra Messianica, 1864, p. 287; the People's H., 1867, and Schaff's Christ in Song, 1870.

4. Welcome, happy morning, age to age shall say. By J. Ellerton, constituted by R. Brown-Borthwick's Suppl. Hy. and Tune Bk., 1868. It was republished in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871; the Hymnary, 1872; Thring's Coll., 1882, and several other hymn-books in G. Britain and America, sometimes in an abbreviated form. It is a vigorous and popular paraphrase rather than a direct translation. Full text in Mr. Ellerton's Hymns, &c., 1888.

5. Hail! festal day, to endless ages known. By T. A. Lacey. In the Altar Hymnal, 1864, there are two paraphrases by this translator, one for Easter day and one for the Ascension, and both beginning with the same first line. [J. J.]

Tempted oft to go astray. J. S. B. Monsell. [SS. Philip and James.] The first stanza of this hymn was given in the 1st ed. of his Parish Musings, 1859. In his Spiritual Songs, 1857, three st. were added, thus forming a hymn of 4 st. of 8 l. In the revised and enlarged ed. of the Hy. Comp., 1876, st. i., ii. and iv. were given as No. 335. [J. J.]

Την ἡμέραν διέλθων. [Evening.] The usually accepted history of this hymn is that given by Dr. Neale in his Hymns of the Eastern Church, 1862, as follows:—

"This little hymn, which, I believe, is not used in the public service of the Church, is a great favourite in the Greek hive. Its peculiar style and evident antiquity may well lead to the belief that it is the work of our Constantinopolitan Cosmas. It is the last evening hymn of Cleo and Mitylene, what Bishop Kyrá is forming hymn is to the villages of our own land; and its melody is singularly plaintive and soothing."

In 1874, under date of May 1st (13th), The Very Rev. S. G. Hellicar, then Priest of the Greek Church, Wolverhampton, and subsequently of that at Bristol, pub. Dr. Neale's tr. "The day is past and over," with slight alterations; a tr., by a friend, of the original Theotokion, in the same metre; an original tune by himself, and a note in which he pointed out that the hymn was taken from the Great After-Supper service (in Slavonic "Great After-Vespers"), and was a cento from two parts of that service. Dr. Neale took his cento from Daniel iii. p. 127, where it is given not in the original rhythmical prose but in a metrical form; and in his original tr. of 1853, as given below, he closely followed that form. The original Greek is in the Horologion (Ἐρασάγγελε τὰ μέγα, Venice ed. 1851, pp. 136, 137; ed. 1876, pp. 127, 128). The Greek text occurs in the Great After-Supper service as follows :—

1140 ΤΗΝ ΗΜΕΡΑΝ ΔΙΕΛΘΩΝ

It is introduced by the Stichoi, "Ὅτι μεθ' ἡμῶν ὁ θεός (" For God is with us "), and then proceeds :—

"Τὴν ἡμέραν διελθὼν πληρωσατὰ σου, κύριε· τὴν ἑσπέραν αἰτούμεθαι Σὸν τῷ ἐλέει συναντηθῆναι, ἱκετεύοντες σοι, σκεπὴν καὶ σκέπην μοι.

" Δέξαι.

"Τὴν ἡμέραν τερατεύσαι διδάσκαλε σου, δέσποτα· τὴν ἑσπέραν αἰτούμεθα Σὸν τῷ νυκτὶ ἀνεκδιήγητον, ἱκετεύοντες σοι, σκεπὴν καὶ σκέπην μοι.

" Καὶ πάν.

"Τὴν ἡμέραν διέλθω, "Ἐκκλησιῶ σε, βοῶ· τὴν ἑσπέραν αἰτούμαι Σὸν τῷ νυκτὶ ἀνεκδιήγητον, ἱκετεύουσα μοι, σκεπὴν, καὶ σκέπην μοι.

" Δέξαι.

" Θώρηκα τοῦ ἀφράστου μοι Χριστὲ ὁ θεὸς, κράτος ἔνδυσον Εἰς ἄπρακτον, μόνος εἶ ὁ κρίνων μου· ἰσχύσω πρὸς αὐτόν.

" Δέξαι.

"Ἀστεύσατο τῆς ἁγνῆς μου Γένου ὁ θεὸς, ἵν' μέσον διελθὼν σκηνῶν πάλιν· "Γένου μοι εἰς κέρας σωτηρίας μου Ἅγιέ, ὦ ἁγιάσματος.

" Καὶ πάν.

"Ὅτι οἶδε ἔχειν πεῖρατον διὰ τὰ πολλὰ ἡμῶν ἐκπαράπτωμα, σὺ τὸν, ὃν γενεήθεν δυσώνυμον θεοτόκε Παῖδον· πολλὰ γὰρ ἰσχύει θέατε Μαρίᾳ πρὸς πλανωμένα ἀφράστως. Μὴ παρέλθῃ ἀκαρπώτως ἐκείνου ἡ κάτοψις· τὸν ἐκφύγων ἀπὸ πολλῶν πειρῶν δυσώνυμος, ὁ τὸν ἐκεῖνον ἀπὸ πολλῶν πάθεων."

It must be noted that these stanzas are not signed. (See below concerning authorship.) It will possibly be of interest to the English reader to have a literal translation of these stanzas together with the Theotokion omitted by Daniel and the translators who have followed his text. It is as follows, with the portions known as the hymn "The day is past and over," in italics :—

" God is with us, let the nations know and be discomfited: for God is with us.

" The day is passing on, I thank Thee, O Lord: that the evening with the night may be sinless, I beseech, Grant it to me, Saviour, and acceptable.

" Glory to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

" The day is passing away, I glorify Thee, O Master: that the evening with the night may be offensless, I entreat, Grant it to me, Saviour, and acceptable.

" Both now, and ever, and to ages of ages. Amen.

" The day has passed away, I hymn Thee, O Holy: that the evening with the night may be pleasing, I beseech,—Grant it me, Saviour, and acceptable.

" Δέξαι. Accept, O Lord, the confession of the Cherubim, of nature bodiless, with loud hymns glorify Thee.

" The Seraphim, the six winged living ones, with conscious voices exalt Thee.

" Δέξαι. All the Angelic host, with thrice-holy songs praise Thee.

" For before all things Thou art the Father, I Am, and last Thy co-unoriginate Son.

" And dost bear the equal-honoured Spirit of life, and art worshipped in all creation.

" All holy Virgin, Mother of God; ye eyewitnesses and ministers of the Word:

" All ye choirs of Prophets and Martyrs, having life as immortal:

" Intercede earnestly for all, that we may be supported in all dangers.

" That being delivered from the wandering of evil, we may cry aloud the Angelic ode :

" Holy, Holy, Holy, Thrice Holy Lord, have mercy and save us.

" ℣. And straightway in a low voice :—

" I believe in One God, the Father, Almighty, &c.

THE HYMN FOR THE DAY 1141

" ℣. Then the following Stichoi, the first of which is said thrice, and the rest twice, excepting the last, which is said once only. The second choir begins [i.e. that in the second and subsequent Stichoi the first choir may take its place as leader.]

" ℟. All-Holy Mistress Theotokos, intercede for us sinners.

" O all ye heavenly Powers of holy Angels and Archangels, intercede for us sinners.

" O holy John, Prophet and Forerunner, and Baptist of our Lord Jesus Christ, intercede for us sinners.

" O all ye holy, glorious, and all-laudable Apostles and Martyrs, and all ye Saints, intercede for us sinners.

" O devoted and God-bearing Fathers, our Pastors and Ecumenical teachers, intercede for us sinners.

" Let not the unconquered, and indissoluble, and life-giving Cross, the immovable and lifemaking Cross, be ever wanting to us sinners.

" O God, be gracious to us sinners.

" And have mercy upon us.

" ℟. Thou—Holy God: three times. Glory. Both now, and ever, and to ages of ages. Amen. All-Holy Trinity, have mercy upon us. Lord, cleanse away our sins. Master, pardon our iniquities. Holy One, visit and heal our infirmities, for Thy Name's sake. Lord, have mercy. Lord, have mercy. Lord, have mercy. Glory. Both now, and ever, and to ages of ages. Amen. Our Father, &c. For Thine is the kingdom, &c. And three Troparia :—

" Lighten mine eyes, O Christ the God, lest I sleep in death: lest mine enemy say, I have prevailed against him.

" Glory to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

" Be the defender of my soul, O God, for I pass through the midst of snares: deliver me from them, and save me, O God, at Lover of men.

" Both now, and ever, and to ages of ages. Amen.

" Lighten mine eyes, O Christ the God, lest I sleep in death: lest mine enemy say, I have prevailed against him.

" As we have not boldness through our many sins, do thou, O Virgin Theotokos, supplicate Him who is born from thee, for the prayer of the Mother availeth much in propitiation, to compassionate all creation, for He Who condescended to suffer for us is merciful, and powerful to save."

On turning to the hymn as known to the English reader through Dr. Neale's tr., and comparing it with the above, it is clear that it is not a complete hymn in itself, but a cento composed of three stanzas from one part of the Greek Great After-Supper service, and two stanzas from another part of the same service with the omission of the Theotokion. (This cento from of the text is taken from C. Pelargus's Eschirídion, Frankfurt, 1594.) Another point which is equally clear is that the whole of the stanzas are anonymous in the Greek service-bo.k. Dr. Neale attributes them to St. Anatolius, who died in 458. The Anatolius, however, of the Greek service-books, has his name appended to hymns in commemoration of martyrs of the latter part of the sixth and the early part of the seventh centuries. (See Anatolius, p. 69, i.) There must have been therefore two hymn-writers of the same name (Anatolius), one as stated by Dr. Neale, and another, who wrote in the 7th cent. In the Greek service-books the subject matter or nature of a hymn is often indicated by a kind of heading or preface to the hymn, as for instance Στιχηρὰ ἀναστάσιμα; Στιχηρὰ ἀναστάσιμα; and so on. In the case of the first three stanzas of this cento there is no such heading, nor is there any author's name given in any Greek service-book with which we are acquainted. In fact, no heading including the words Στιχηρὰ ἀναστάσιμα (the natural title of a Morning hymn) could have been attached to an Evening hymn. Whilst therefore we cannot determine the authorship of these Stichoi, we regard them as very ancient, and possibly of the sixth or seventh centuries.

2. The first tr. of this hymn into English was by Dr. Neale, and was evidently taken from the text as given in Daniel. This tr. was first pub. in The Ecclesiastic and Theologian, 1853, p. 161. As both in this instance and in the 1st ed. of his Hys. of the Eastern Church, 1862, the tr. is more faithful to the original than his revised tr. in the 2nd ed. of that work in the same year, we subjoin the text as given in The Ecclesiastic :—

1141

ΤΗΝ ΗΜΕΡΑΝ ΔΙΕΛΘΩΝ THN ΗΜΕΡΑΝ ΤΗΝ ΦΡΙΚΤΗΝ 1141

" The day is past and over :
All thanks, O Lord, to Thee !
I pray Thee now that sinless
The eve and night may be :
Grant that I even, O God, and save !
" The day hath parted from us !
All glory, Lord, to Thee !
I pray Thee now that sinless
The eve and night may be :
Grant that I even, O God, and save !
" The tale of day are over,
I raise the hymn to Thee ;
And pray that eve and night-time
Without attack may be,
O Saviour, Lover of mankind, and save !
" Lighten mine eyes, O Saviour !
Or sleep in death shall I ;
And lo, mine adversary,
Triumphantly shall cry
I have assailed and have prevailed.
" Be Thou my soul's preserver !
For I pass 'mid the snares
The source and nine are many Through which I have to go ;
Lover of men, oh hear my call,
And guard and save me from them all ! "

When this tr. is compared with the revised text by Dr. Neale in his 2nd ed. of the Hys. of the E. Church, 1862, and which is followed in the hymn-books, it will be seen that the latter is much more smooth, and musical, than the former (although less literal), and on that account is better suited for public worship. Amongst the earliest hymnals in which it found a place was T. Darling's Hys. for the Church of England, 1862 ; the Parish H. Bk., 1863, and others, in some cases st. iv. being omitted. At the present time it is found in almost every hymnal of note in all English-speaking countries.

In addition, Mrs. Charles has a tr. (from Daniel) in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, 1858, p. 23, the first of which reads :—

" The day is passing on,
I thank Thee, O Lord.
I beseech Thee this evening and this night
Keep me without sin,
Saviour, and save me ! "

Dr. H. Bonar has also rendered it into English (from Daniel), and included it in his Hymns of Faith and Hope, 2nd series, 1864. The opening stanza is :—

" The day is done !
I thank Thee, Lord, alone.
'Tis evening, and I cry,
O Saviour, be Thou nigh,
This night from sin me keep,
Preserve me while I sleep."

3. Some twenty-five years ago Mr. Hallerly wrote a time in double counterpoint which was published in Our Own Fireside in Nov. 1865, to a "Foundationale Hymn," but was incorporated with the 6th ed. of the Rev. W. H. Havergal's Old Church Psalmody in 1867, in alliance with Dr. Neale's tr. of the present hymn. It subsequently became popular in the Levant. To adapt the original Greek to the tune it has been rewritten in the following form by an unknown hand, and is one of the very few current instances of a rendering back into the original tongue of what had previously been translated from it.

" Ἀκάθιστον.
" Τὴν ἡμέραν τὴν ἁγίαν
Σὺ δὸς κύριε ἐλπὶς
Ὅ ὅτι καὶ τὴν ἑσπέραν
Καὶ νύκτα μὴ τὴν κακὴν,
Ἵνα, ὦ ἐξ ἔργων σωτηρίαν,
Καὶ σώσον με τὸν σωτῆρα.
" Παρῆλθεν τὴν ἁγίαν
Σὺ δὸς κύριε ἐλπὶς
Ὅ ὅτι καὶ τὴν ἑσπέραν
Καὶ νύκτα μὴ τὴν κακὴν,
Νίκη ἀποστράτευμα μοι δὸς,
Καὶ σώσον στρατιῶτα.
" Λιμπάνει τὴν ἁγίαν
Σὺ δὸς κύριε ἐλπὶς
Ὅ ὅτι καὶ τὴν ἑσπέραν
Καὶ νύκτα μὴ τὴν κακὴν,
Ἐκκλησία με συνάγει,
Καὶ σώσον με τὸν σωτῆρα.

For many and important details in this article we are indebted to the Very Rev. R. G. Hatherly, Mus. Bac., editor of the 4th ed. of Dr. Neale's Hys. of the Eastern Church, 1862. (J. J.)

Τὴν ἡμέραν τὴν φρικτὴν. St. Theodore of the Studium. [Sexagesima.] This is the opening line of Ode i. of the Canon for Apocreos. The Apocreos answers to the Sexagesima of the Anglican Church, and on that day the Greek Church commemorates "The Second and impartial Coming of Our Lord Jesus Christ."

"This commemorates the next Sunday but one after the two parables" [i.e. the Gospels of the two preceding Sundays, The Pharisee and Publican, and the Prodigal Son], "lest any one, learning from them the mercy of God, should live carelessly, and say, 'God is merciful, and whenever I wish to relinquish sin, it will be easy for me to repent,' the Church, as I said, has therefore commemorated that fearful day, that, by the consideration of death, and the expectation of the dreadful things that shall hereafter be, they might terrify men of negligent life, and bring them back again to the right way, that they might not despair of the goodness in God's mercy, considered by itself, but to remember also that the Judge is just, and will render to every man according to his works." Dr. Neale adds to the above tr. : "At the Eastern Church has no such season as Septuagesima, this commemoration is peculiarly appropriate." Hymns of the E. C., 2nd ed. 1863, pp. 161, 162.

This Canon is found in the Triodion, and dates from the beginning of the ninth century. As a Judgment hymn, for majesty and power, it has been regarded by Dr. Neale and other competent judges as second only to the Dies Iræ, which it anticipates some four hundred years. Four Odes only have been tr. into English. These are by Dr. Neale, and were pub. with notes (from which we have quoted) in his Hys. of the Eastern Church, 1862. The variation of metre in the tr. follows that of the original ; but Dr. Neale omits the δεσπόσιον (address to the B. V. M.) which closes each Ode. The contrast in Ode iv. with human courts of justice, is much more vivid in the original. [" Orator permission " = ἀκούσατε κριταί.] In the first three Odes, Ode ii., st. 3, l. 1, Dr. Neale has the curious misprint of "David" for "Daniel." This has been corrected in the 4th ed. He also omits st. v. of that Ode. The untranslated Odes repeat the same ideas as those translated, which are as follows :—

Ode i. Τὴν ἡμέραν τὴν φρικτὴν.
That fearful day, that day of speechless dread. This was repeated in Lyra Mystica, 1864 ; the Hymnary altered 1871-5 ; and later collections.

1142

Ode iii. O vejove Λογενε.
God comes, and who shall stand before His face. Re-published in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1870.
Ode iv. Χαιρετωσαν ἐν ὑμιν.
The day is near, the Judgment is at hand. Repeated in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1870.
Ode v. Ὁ κυριος ἐγγυς.
The Lord draws nigh, the righteous throne's Assessor. Also in Lyra Mentonica, 1864. [J. J.]

Ten thousand times ten thousand. H. Alford. [Processional for Saints' Days.] Appeared 1st in his Year of Praise, 1867, No. 229, in 3 st. of 8 l. In 1870 it formed part of the poetical setting of F. H. Pickersgill's illustration of the Lord's Prayer, which was pub. as The Lord's Prayer Illustrated by F. H. Pickersgill, R.A., and Henry Alford, D.D., p. 16. On Jan. 17, 1871, it was sung at the author's funeral, with the additional stanza, "Bring near Thy great Salvation." In this full form it was printed in the author's Life, &c., 1872, p. 885; in H. A. & M., 1875, and again in other collections. [J. J.]

Ter sancte, ter potens Deus. Chant de Sanctedil. [Holy Trinity.] Appeared in the Cassian Brev., 1686, p. 617. In the Paris Brev., 1680, and later French Brevs. it is the hymn for the 1st and 2nd Vespers on Trinity Sunday. The Paris text is in J. Chandler's Hys. of the Primitive Church, 1837, No. 82 and Card. Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ, 1838 and 1865. Tr. as :—

1. Thrice holy, thrice Almighty Three. By I. Williams, in the British Magazine, Sep., 1837 (vol. xii., p. 267), and again in his Hys. tr. from the Parisian Brev., 1839, p. 160.

2. Thrice holy God, of wondrous might. By J. Chandler, in his Hys. of the Prim. Church, 1837, p. 93, and again in his Hys. of the Church, &c., 1841, No. 53. It is in several collections. The form in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, and Thring's Coll., 1882, is a conto in which st. i., ii., and ll. 1, 2 of st. iii. are by J. Chandler, slightly altered, and the rest of the hymn is by J. Ellerton.

3. Lord, thrice holy, and supreme. By E. Caswall, in his Masque of Mary, &c., 1858, p. 275, and altered in his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 135, to "Lord, thrice holy! Lord of might!" Given, with slight alterations, in the Hymnary, 1872, as "Lord, thrice holy, God of might."

4. Thrice holy and thrice potent God. By W. L. Alexander, in his Augustine H. Bk., 1849, No. 198 (ed. 1865, No. 205).

5. God thrice holy, God of might. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852–55; Trinity, 7; and Blew's Sel. from the same, 1870, No. 82.

6. Thrice holy God, of sovereign might. By R. C. Singleton, in his Anglicus H. Bk., 1868.

Other tr. are :—
1. Threefold holiness and might. W. Palmer, 1845.
2. Thrice thou, thrice mighty Duty. J. D. Chambers, 1857. [J. J.]

Tersteegen, Gerhard, s. of Heinrich Terstegen (otherwise ter Stegen or ter Stiege), merchant at Mörs (Meurs), in Rhenish Prussia, was b. at Mörs, Nov. 25, 1697. His parents intended that he should become a minister of the Reformed Church in Germany. His father however d. in 1703, and his mother found that after giving him a thorough classical training in the Latin school at Mörs she was unable to afford the cost of his University course. He was accordingly apprenticed, in 1713, to his brother-in-law, a merchant at Mülheim on the Ruhr, and in 1717 started in business on his own account, at Mülheim. As he found his time much broken up, and his opportunities of meditation few, he gave up his business in 1719; and, after a short trial of linen weaving, took up the easier and much more lucrative occupation of weaving silk ribbons. During the years 1719–24 he passed through a period of spiritual depression, at the end of which his faith in the reconciling grace of Christ became assured (see No. xxxiv. below), and on Maundy Thursday, 1724, he wrote out a solemn covenant with God which he signed with his own blood. Previous to this, even before 1719, he had ceased to attend the ordinary services of the Reformed Church; and also absented himself from Holy Communion on the ground that he could not in conscience communicate along with open sinners. About the beginning of 1725 he began to speak at the prayer meetings (styled "Erbauungen") which had been held at Mülheim, since 1710, by Wilhelm Hoffmann, who was a candidate of theology (licensed preacher) of the Reformed Church. Terstegen soon became known as a religious teacher among the "Stillen im Lande," as the attenders on these meetings were called, and in 1728 gave up his handicraft in order to devote himself entirely to the fr. of works by mediæval and recent Mystics and Quietists, including Madame Guyon and others, and the composition of devotional books, to correspondence on religious subjects, and to the work of a spiritual director of the "awakened souls." From this date to his death he was supported by a small regular income which was subscribed by his admirers and friends. About 1727 a house at Osterbeck, between Mülheim and Elberfeld, was set apart as a "Pilgerhütte," where the "awakened souls" could go into a spiritual retreat, under the direction of Terstegen. This house, with accommodation for eight persons, was retained until about 1800. Terstegen, however, did not confine himself to Mülheim, but travelled over the district, addressing gatherings of like-minded Christians, giving special attention to Elberfeld, Barmen, Solingen, and Crefeld. From 1732 to 1753 he also went regularly every year to Holland, to visit his spiritual friendsfr. at Amsterdam and elsewhere. From 1750 to 1750 a law against conventicles was strictly enforced, and Terstegen could not hold meetings except on his visits to Holland. During this period he removed to a house which had been Wilhelm Hoffmann's, where he preached, and provided food and simple medicines for the poor. After 1750 he resumed his public speaking until 1756, when he overstrained himself, and had to confine himself to the smallest gatherings obedutely. In 1769, dropsy set in, and after patient endurance for a season he d. on April 3, 1769, at Mülheim (Koch, vi. 46; Herzog's Real-Encyclopädie, xv. 324; Max Goebel's Gesch. des christl. Lebens in der Rheinisch-Westphälischen Evang. Kirche, vol. iii., 1860, p. 285, &c.).

Up to the end of his life Terstegen remained outside the Reformed Church, but never act up a sect of his own. After his death his followers as a rule remained themselves with it, especially when a less formal type of religion began to prevail therein.

Of Terstegen's public addresses given between 1733 and 1756, reports were taken of the more important, and in 1760–70, thirty-three of these were pub. as Geistliche Brosamen von den Herrn Tisch gefallen, &c. Seven of them have been tr. by S. Jackson as Spiritual Crumbs from the Master's Table, 1857. In addition he pub. in 1750 a collection of tracts as Weg der Wahrheit. A large number of his German letters were pub. in 1773–5, at Solingen; and of his Dutch letters, at Hoorn, in 1772.

Terstegen's most important hymnological work was his Geistliches Blumen-Gärtlein, of which many editions were published, details of the more important of which we subjoin.

The 1st ed. was pub. in 1729: 2nd, 1732; 3rd, 1738; 4th, 1744; 5th, 1751; 6th, 1757; 7th, 1760; and the 8th in 1768. (Nds. 1–4, 6 pub. by Böninger, at Frankfort and Leipzig; 5, 7, 8, by Schmitz, at Solingen.) Of these eds. the British Museum has the 1st, 2nd, and 8th; and the Wernigerode Library has the 1st and 2nd. The 8th is in the Library of the Prediger-Seminar at Hannover. The 6th is in the possession of Professor Dr. Kleinert, in Berlin. No copy of the 5th ed. has been accessible to the writers of this article. Koch (vi. 111; viii. 112, 113, 116–117; ix. 109–111) the 1732, 1–40, 109–111; the 1737, 1–40, 109–111; the 1760, 1–111. In Dr. Kleinert's copy of the 1737 ed. the additional hymns of the 1738 ed. are appended in the shape of several separately printed supplements, but none of these seem earlier than 1744. So far as the hymns proper are concerned the dates at which they appeared in the successive editions (the numbers in each case being as in Bk. iii. of the ed. of 1760), are as follow: 1729 has 1–25, 41–111; 1732, 1–25, 41–111; 1738, 1–111; 1744, 1–111; 1751, 1–111; 1757, 1–111; 1760, 1–111; the 1762, 1–40, 109–111; the 1767, 1–40, 109–111; the 1768 viously in the Hesse-Homburg G. B., 1734, No. 1664. Koch, vi. 50, speaks of it as written before 1724. In the Elberfeld G. B., 1857. Tr. as:—

Jesus, pitying Saviour, hear me. In full, by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 133, repeated, omitting st. ii.–iv., in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 109. In her Christian Singers, 1869, p. 296, she gave st. i., v., vi., beginning "Lord in darkness, girt with dangers."

v. Nun so will ich denn mein Leben. Self-Surrender. In the 2nd ed., 1735, as above, Bk. iii., No. 37, in 10 st. of 6 l. entitled "Thorough resolution to give oneself wholly to God." Previously in the Hesse-Homburg G. B., 1734, No. 960, in 10 st. Also in the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 718. According to Koch, vi. 68, it was originally in 9 sts., and st. 10 was added at the suggestion of his friend Wilhelm Hoffmann (see above). Tr. (omitting st. ii., iii., vi., x.) as:—

I. Lo! my choice is now decided. By Miss Cox, in her Sacred Hys. from the Germans, 1841, p. 120 (Hys. from the Ger., 1864, p. 215, altered). Her tra. of st. viii., ix., vii., altered and beginning, "One thing first and only knowing," are repeated in Hedge & Huntington's Hys. for the Church of Christ, Boston, U.S., 1853.

2. Now at last I and the strife. By Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 187, repeated (omitting the tr. of st. viii.), as No. 131 in her C. B. for England, 1863.

vi. O ihr liebe Seele! klimmt du weiter. The Childlike Spirit. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iv., No. 7, in 18 st. of 4 l., entitled "Picture of Christian childhood." Repeated, abridged, in Bunsen's Versuch, 1833, No. 824. It is a beautiful description of ideal childhood. Tr. as:—

Soul! amidst thee, while on earth remaining. By Miss Cox, omitting st. ii.–iv., ix., xv., in her Sacred Hys. from the German, 1841, p. 115. Her tra. of st. i., xvii., xviii., were repeated, altered, in Hedge & Huntington's Hys. for the Church of Christ, Boston, U.S., 1853. In Miss Cox's Hys. from German, 1864, p. 197, it begins "Soul, while on earth thou still remainest."

Other ties, are: (1) "Wouldst thou, my soul, the secret find." By Lady E. Fortescue, 1843, p. 47. (2) "Whoe'er would, amidst thro' becomes a child." By Miss Winkworth, 1855.

vii. Singet Jesu, Himmelskönig. Ascension. In the 2nd ed., 1735, as above, Bk. iii., No. 54, in 7 st. of 8 l., entitled "Prayer to Jesus on His Ascension." Repeated in the Berlin G. L. B. ed. 1863, No. 1031. Tr. as:—

Conquering Prince and Lord of Glory. By Miss Winkworth, omitting st. ii., in her Lyra Ger. 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 48. In her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 65, considerably altered; a tr. of st. ii. being added, and the tra. of st. iii., iv., omitted. This form is repeated in the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868.

viii. Wo gut ists, wenn man abgeschieden. Lent or Self-Renunciation. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iv., No. 21, in 9 st. of 6 l., entitled "Of the sweetness of the hidden life of Christians." Tr. as:—

How sweet it is, when, wean'd from all. This is a good and full tr. by S. Jackson, in his Life of Terstegen, 1832 (1837, p. 417). His tra. of st. i., iii., v., ix. are repeated in the Christian Hyl., 3rd ed., Adelaide, 1872, No. 225.

Other hymns by Terstegen which have been rendered into English are:—

ix. Ach Gott, so langst doch Jesusnen sieht. On the Omnipresence of God. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iii., No. 31, in 11 st. of 4 l. Previously in the supplemental Hymns appended to some copies of the 6th ed (see above). Tr. as "Ah God! the world has sought to please." By Miss Winkworth, 1869, p. 264.

x. Ach Gott, vom Himmel sieh darein. Prayer. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iii., No. 43, in 8 st. of 6 l. Tr. as (1) "Oh! could I but be still." By Mrs. Bevan, 1858, p. 134. (2) "Ah, could I but be still." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 77.

xi. Allgenugsam Wesen. God's All-sufficiency. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iv., No. 14, in 8 st. of 8 l. The tra. are (1) "Thou All-sufficient One! Who art." By Miss Warner, 1845, p. 401, repeated in Hys. of the Ages, Boston, U.S., 1846, p. 142. (2) "Thou, whose love unshaken." In the Christian Treasury, 1855, p. 403, signed "B.," i.e. J. L. Burns. (3) "All-sufficient God!" By Miss Cox, 1864, p. 211. (4) "All-sufficient God!" In Hall's Mod. of the Church, 19th and 20th centuries, N. Y., 1868, vol. i. p. 143.

xii. Bald naht sich mein Pilgerung. Eternal Life. In the 7th ed., 1760, as above, Bk. iii., No. 105, in 11 st. of 6 l. Previously in the Freylinghausen, 1741, appended to some copies of the 6th ed. Tr. as "Weary heart, be not despairing." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 84.

xiii. Barmher hesion! schlafet nicht. Lent. In the 6th ed., 1745, as above, Bk. iii., No. 81, in 8 st. of 8 l. Tr. as "Mercy! mercy! slumber not." By Miss Winkworth, of earnal call." By S. Jackson, in his Life of Terstegen, 1832 (1837, p. 413). (2) "Sleep not, O Soul by God awakened." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 88.

xiv. Das ewige Sonnenlicht ist da. Morning. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iv., No. 1, in 8 st. of 6 l. Tr. as (1) "The World's bright Sun is risen on high." By R. C. Bucknall, 1842, p. 51. (2) "The outer sunlight now is risen." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 75.

xv. Das Kreuz ist dennoch gut. Cross and Consolation. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iii., No. 42, in 11 st. of 6 l. Tr. as "The Cross is ever good." By Mrs. Findlater in H. L. L., 1862, p. 72 (1864, p. 264), repeated in Lyra Mystica, 1865.

xvi. Die Blümlein klein und gross in meines Herren Garten. Christ's Garden. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iii., No. 85, in 12 st. of 4 l. It is one of the supplemental hymns appended to some copies of the 6th ed. The tra. are (1) "Flowers that in Jesu's garden have a place." By Miss Dunn in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 66. (2) "Flowers, little flowers, in my Lord's garden blooming." By Dr. H. Mennies in his tr. of Tholuck's Stunden, 1870, p. 162.

xvii. Die Liebe will was ganzes haben. Entire Consecration to Christ. In the 6th ed., 1757, as above, Bk. iii., No. 83, in 8 st. of 6 l. The form tr. into English is that in Bunsen's Versuch, 1833, No. 571, in the Berlin G. L. B. ed. 1863, No. 1043, and in Knapp's Lieder, No. 1, in parts of st. i.–v., i., ii., vii., iii., vi., begins "Ich bete an die Macht der Liebe." The tra. are (1) "Consecrate's by love so warm and tender." By R. Massie in Lyra Mystica, 1865, p. 324, and his Treasury of Song, 1867. Praise Bk., 1872, No. 418. (2) "My soul adores the might of loving." By Mrs. Edmund Ashley in the British Herald, Sept., 1867, p. 138, repeated in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872, No. 502.

xviii. Für dich sei ganz mein Herz und Leben. Consecration to Christ. In the 6th ed., 1757, as above, Bk. iii., No. 84, in 8 st. of 6 l. The form tr. into English is that in Bunsen's Versuch, 1833, No. 572, in the Berlin G. L. B. ed. 1863, No. 1044, and in Knapp's Lieder, No. 1, in parts of st. i.–v., i., ii., vii., iii., vi., begins "Ich bete an die Macht der Liebe." The tra. are (1) "Consecrate's by love so warm and tender." By R. Massie in Lyra Mystica, 1865, p. 324, and his Treasury of Song, 1867. Praise Bk., 1872, No. 418. (2) "My soul adores the might of loving." By Mrs. Edmund Ashley in the British Herald, Sept., 1867, p. 138, repeated in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872, No. 502.

xix. Du bist, o Jesu, mein ich schwöre. God's Presence. In the 6th ed., 1745, as above, Bk. iii., No. 80, in 12 st. of 4 l. Tr. as "God, to Whom I have my being." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 81.

xx. Jauchzet ihr Himmel! frohlocket ihr englischen Chöre. Praise. In the 6th ed., 1757, as above, Bk. iii., No. 79, in 8 st. of 8 l. In the Berlin G. L. B. ed. 1863, No. 103. Tr. as "Triumph, ye heavens! rejoice ye with high adoration." In the British Herald, Sept., 1866, p. 138, and in Reid's Praise Bk., 1872, No. 20.

xxi. Jam, fan ich meine. Life in Christ. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iii., No. 14, in 11 st. of 6 l. Tr. as "Jesus, whom I long for." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 82.

xxii. Jesu Name, du höchster Name. The Name of Jesus. In the 2nd ed., 1735, as above, Bk. iii., No. 36, in 8 st. of 8 l. Previously in the Hesse-Homburg G. B., 1734, No. 951. Tr. as "Jesu's name, then highest name." By S. Jackson in his Life of Terstegen, 1832 (1837, p. 417).

xxiii. Lieber Gott, deiner Güte Will. Resignation to the Will of God. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iii., No. 18, in 10 st. of 4 l. Tr. as (1) "Thou sweet beloved Will of God." By Mrs. Bevan, 1858, p. 14. Of this st. i., ii. were adopted as st. i., ii. of No.

337 in J. Montgomery's Hys. of Consecration and Faith, (2) "O Will of God, all sweet and perfect." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 86.

xxiv. Mein ganzes Sinn. Lent. Turning to God. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iv., No. 23, in 8 st. of 6 l. Tr. as "My whole mind has its joy turn away." By Miss Warner, 1869, p. 30.

xxv. Mein Gott, mein Gott, mein wahres Leben. Self-Salvation. In the 6th ed., 1751, as above, Bk. iii., No. 49, in 9 st. of 6 l. Tr. as "My God, my God, my true Salvation." By S. Jackson in his Life of Terstegen, 1832 (1837, p. 414).

xxvi. Mein Herz, ein Klaus gab und ab. Cross and Consolation. In the 6th ed., 1757, as above, Bk. iii., No. 93, in 8 st. of 6 l. Tr. as "A trough and sharpness have I found in my heart." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 79.

xxvii. Mein's seelen Augenlicht. Morning. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, p. 321, in 3 st. of 8 l. Tr. as "Each moment I turn me." This is No. 613 in pt. 5 of Knapp's Lieder, 1784 (marked as from "Ein's jeden Augenblick.").

xxviii. Nun lobet alle Gottes Sohn. Praise to Christ. In the 6th ed., 1746, as above, Bk. iii., No. 94, in 9 st. of 6 l. Tr. as "Give glory to the Son of God." By Miss Warner, 1869, p. 30.

xxix. O Jesu, König, hoch zu ehren. Self-surrender. In the 2nd ed., 1730, as above, Bk. iii., No. 33, in 12 st. of 4 l. Previously in the Hesse-Homburg G. B., 1734, No. 952. Tr. as "O Jesus, Lord of majesty." By Miss Warner, 1869, p. 30.

xxx. So spricht von Ewigkeit zu Ewigkeit. Jesu Name. In the 7th ed., 1760, as above, Bk. iii., No. 97, in 7 st. of 4 l., entitled Sincere disposition on New Year's Day or on one's Birthday, and with the note: "This I wrote for my birthday, when I was 43 years old, and it is the first piece in my book." Repeated in Freylinghausen's Supplement. It is one of the supplemental hymns appended to some copies of the 6th ed., 1757. Tr. as "Thus, then another year of pilgrim-life." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 73.

xxxi. Soll ich nicht gelassen sein. Cross and Consolation. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iv., No. 17, in 8 st. of 6 l. Tr. as "Should I not be meek and still." By Mrs. Bevan, 1858, p. 40.

xxxii. Von allen Dingen ab. Turning to God. In the 6th ed., 1751, as above, Bk. iii., No. 52, in 9 st. of 6 l. Tr. as "From all created things." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 85.

xxxiv. Wie bist du mir so innig gut. The Grace of Christ. In the 2nd ed., 1730, as above, Bk. iii., No. 34, in 14 st. of 4 l. Previously in the Hesse-Homburg G. B., 1734, No. 1130. In Bunsen's Versuch, 1833, No. 757, in the Berlin G. L. B. ed. 1863, No. 1045, and in Knapp's Lieder, No. 1, begins "Wie bist du mir so innig gut." At the close of his time of spiritual despondency. "This state of spiritual darkness continued five years; until at length, whilst on a journey to a neighbouring town, the day-spring from on high again visited him; and the Sun of Righteousness arose with healing in his wings, convincingly apparent to him, that his heart was set entirely at rest. On this occasion he composed that beautiful hymn, &c." (see S. Jackson's Life of Terstegen, ed. 1837, p. 7). Tr. as "How gracious, kind, and good, Thou art to me." By Miss Warner, 1869, No. 14 in St. Gertrude's Original Hys., 1867.

xxxv. Winterton ein Augenblick. The Night of Time. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, p. 353, in 6 l. In the 7th ed., 1760, Bk. iii., No. 109, in 7 st. of 4 l. Tr. as "Winter's night is but a moment." By Miss Cox, 1864, pt. i. of the Invention H. Hy., 1774, (2) "One more flying moment." By Lady Durand, 1873, p. 90.

xxxvi. Wilkommen, verklärter Gottes Sohn. Easter. In the 1st ed., 1729, as above, Bk. iv., No. 25, in 10 st. of 6 l. Tr. as "Welcome, Son of God transfigured." Verses, 1865, No. 777, which is st. vii.–x., beginning "Verklärter Herre, von hinnet dir." This is tr. as "O Glorious Head, Thou livest now." By Miss Winkworth, 1855, p. 60. Repeated in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1870.

The first Book of the Blumen-Gärtlein contains short poems, more of the nature of aphorisms than of hymns. In the ed. of 1760 there are in all 568 pieces in Bk. i., and of these Miss Winkworth has tr. Nos. 429, 474, 565, 573, 575, 577 in her Christian Singers, 1869. Others are tr. by Lady Durand, in her Imitations from the German of Spitta and Terstegen, 1873, as above, and by S. Jackson, in his Life of Terstegen, 1832.

To the 2nd and later eds. of the Blumen-Gärtlein a collection of aphorisms, entitled Der Frommen Lotterie, was appended. This was enlarged in the successive eds. till the ed. of 1768 contained 381 in all. Of these 200 were selected and tr. by Lady E. A. Durand, and pub. in 1874, as The Spiritual Lottery. A selection translated from Gerhard Terstegen's Frommen Lotterie. [J. M.]

Thank and praise Jehovah's Name. F. Montgomery. [Ps. cvii.] This version of Ps. 107 was given in his Songs of Zion, 1822, in five numbers as follows:—

1. They that cross Jehovah's name.
2. They last across the desert gloom.
3. Fools, for their transgression, sore.
4. They that toil upon the deep.
5. Let the elders praise the Lord.

In his Original Hys., 1853, numbers 1-4 were given as one hymn in four parts, with No. 5 altered to "Sinners, for transgression," and making 24 st. of 4 l. in all. The most widely used part is No. 1. It is sometimes altered to "Magnify Jehovah's Name," as in the American Baptist Praise Bk., 1871, and other collections. [J. J.]

Θαύματος ὑπερφυοῦς. [Χαρᾶτε γενέσθω.]

That holy rite, that solemn vow. S. Oxler. [Holy Baptism.] 1st pub. in Hall's Mitre H. Bk., 1836, No. 140, in 2 st. of 6 l., and again in Oxler's Church and King, March, 1837, as the conclusion of an article on "Easter Even." In 1838 it was adopted by the Bap. Ps. & Hymns, No. 711, but the stanzas were transposed, st. ii. being placed first, and thus opening "Baptized into the Saviour's death." In this form it is found in a few collections. [J. J.]

That we might walk with God. S. Beddome. [Leadings of the Holy Spirit.] This is No. 126 of Beddome's posthumous Hymns Adapted to Public Worship, &c., 1817, in 4 st. of 4 lines, and headed "Leadings of the Spirit." In its original form it is not in C. U.; but it has supplied the following to a large number of American hymn-books:—

1. Rule of unending life. This appeared in the American Prayer Bk. Coll. 1826, No. 310, in 3 st. of 4 l. In the Prot. Episcopal Hymn Bk., 1871, No. 314, it is altered on S. Wesley and st. i. added. Unaltered centos say that this cento was arranged by Bp. Onderdonk, who also wrote st. i. It is in several collections.

2. To God the Spirit leads. This is composed of st. ii., iii., and is in numerous collections, chiefly in America. It appeared in this form, anonymously, in Dickenson's Christian Psalmody, 1833, and is in extensive use in America.

Sometimes Beddome's hymn is dated 1735, the year of his death. [J. J.]

The angel comes: he comes to reap. H. M. Milman. [Second Advent.] 1st pub. in Bp. Heber's posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 40, in 4 st. of 4 l., and again in Dean Milman's Sel. of Ps. & Hys., 1837. It is given in several modern hymn-books, including Dale's English H. Bk., 1874, and others. [J. J.]

The apostle slept, a light shone in the prison. [Burial of the Dead.] J. D. Burns. Appeared in his Vision of Prophecy,

&c., 1858, as a paraphrase of the account contained in Acts xii. of the deliverance of St. Peter from prison. It was repeated in his Poems, 1865, p. 248, in 9 st. of 4 l., and entitled "The death of a Believer." As a whole this hymn is not in C. U., but the couplet for the Burial of the Dead, "A voice is heard on earth of kindfolk weeping," in the Hy. Comp., 1876, is composed of st. vii.–ix. [J. J.]

The ark of God in safety rode. Bp. C. Wordsworth of Lincoln. [For use of Sea.] Appeared in The Holy Year, 1862, p. 216, in 20 st. of 4 l., and entitled, "Prayers at Sea—The Sailors' Hymn." In later editions it is divided into four parts thus:—

Pt. i. "The ark of God in safety rode."
Pt. ii. "O Thou Whose way is on the waves."
Pt. iii. "Our bodies are with earthly food."
Pt. iv. "The stars will fall, the sun be dark."

These parts are in the 1869 Appendix to the S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hys., st. vi. of the original being omitted. This revision was made by the author. In the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, is a cento composed of st. i., ii., v., xiv.-xx. [J. J.]

The billows swell, the winds are high. W. Cowper. [Temptation.] Appeared in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. iii., No. 18, in 3 st. of 4 l., and entitled "Temptation." It was extensively adopted by the older collection, but is somewhat restricted in its modern use. [J. J.]

The bird that soars on highest wing. J. Montgomery. [Humility.] This poem appeared in his Poet's Portfolio, 1835, p. 179, in 3 st. of 6 l., and headed "Humility." It is given as a hymn in several collections, including Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1840; the Prim. Meth. S. School Union H. Bk., 1879, and others in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

The chariot! the chariot! its wheels roll on fire. H. H. Milman. [Advent.] 1st pub. in Dr. Heber's posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 7, in 3 st. of 4 l., but not included by the author in his Sel. of Ps. & Hys., 1827. It is in several modern hymn-books, including Kennedy, 1863; Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872, &c. [J. J.]

The Church has waited long. H. Bynar. [Advent.] Pub. in the Bible H. Bk., 1845, No. 299, in 5 st. of 8 l., with the refrain "Come then, Lord Jesus, come." It was repeated in the 3rd ed. of the author's Songs for the Wilderness, Kelso, 1850, p. 29, and again in his Hys. of Faith and Hope, 1857, p. 31. It is in extensive use in G. Britain and America, sometimes without the refrain. [J. J.]

The Church of God lifts up her voice. W. C. Dix. [Easter.] This hymn is based upon a tr. in thank verse by Dr. Littledale of a short hymn near the end of his tr. of the office of the Greek Church for Easter Sunday, as pub. in his Offices from the Service Books of the Holy Eastern Church, &c., 1863, p. 222, and begins in the original Ἤδεγε νῦ ἐχρυσὸν Mr. Dix's rendering was made in 1864, and pub. in 6 st. of 5 l., in the St. Raphael (Bristol) Hys. for Public Worship, No. 203, as one of six additional hymns given at the end of the collections, and headed, "Founded on translation from the Greek. Written by W. C. D. for St. Raphaels. Easter, 1864." It must be observed that by an error of the printer this note reads as though it referred to No. 202 (another hymn by Mr. Dix), instead of to No. 203, the present hymn. [J. J.]

The Church's one Foundation. S. J. Stone. [Processional for Festivals.] The impression made upon the author's mind by Bishop Gray's (Cagetown) noble defence of the Catholic Faith against the teachings of Bishop Colenso, was in chief the origin of this magnificent hymn. It has thus associations of historical value, to which special reference is made in the stanza:—

"Though with a scornful wonder
Men see her sore oppress,
By schisms rent asunder,
By heresies distress,
Yet saints their watch are keeping
Their cry goes up, "How long?"
And soon the night of weeping
Shall be the morn of song."

The hymn was written in 1866, and is based on the ninth article of the Apostles' Creed. It is known in three forms, (1) the original, which was pub. in the author's Lyra Fidelium, 1866, in 7 st. of 8 l., and headed "The Holy Catholic Church: The Communion of Saints. 'He is the Head of the Body, the Church'"; (2) the revised form in 3 st. of 8 l., made in 1868 for, and pub. in the Appendix to H. A. & M., No. 320 (the form in universal use); and (3) the expanded text in 10 st. of 8 l., made in 1885 for Processional use in Salisbury Cathedral. We give here the full form of 1885, with notes in the margin which explain the position of each stanza in 1866 and 1868:—

St. i. in 1866, and 1868. 1. "The Church's one Foundation
Is Jesus Christ her Lord:
She is His new creation
By water and the Word:
From heaven He came and sought her
To be His Holy Bride
With His own blood He bought her
And for her life He died.

St. ii. in 1866, and 1868. 2. "Elect from every nation,
Yet one o'er all the earth,
Her charter of salvation,
One Lord, one Faith, one Birth;
One Holy Name she blesses,
Partakes one holy Food,
And to one hope she presses
With every grace endued.

St. iii. in 1866, omitted in 1868. 3. "The Church shall never perish!
Her dear Lord to defend,
To guide, sustain, and cherish,
Is with her to the end:
Though there be those that hate her,
And false sons in her pale,
Against both foe and traitor
She ever shall prevail.

St. iv. in 1866; and st. iii. in 1868. 4. "Though with a scornful wonder
Men see her sore oppress,
By schisms rent asunder,
By heresies distress:
Yet saints their watch are keeping,
Their cry goes up, "How long?"
And soon the night of weeping
Shall be the morn of song.

St. v. in 1866, and st. iv. in 1868. 5. "Mid toil and tribulation,
And tumult of her war,
She waits the consummation
Of peace for evermore;
Till with the vision glorious
Her longing eyes are blest,
And the great Church victorious
Shall be the Church at rest.

New in 1868. 6. "So, Lord, she stands before Thee,
For evermore thine own;
No merit is her glory,
Her boasting this alone:

That she who did not choose Thee
Could choose, at Thy call,
Nor, once, there or now Thee
Or from Thy favour fall.

New in 1868. 7. "For Thy true word remaineth;
No creature far or nigh,
No fiend of ill who reigneth
Can quench Thy purpose high:
No nothing world's delusion
That holds her in despite,
Shall hide her from Thy vision,
Shall lure her from Thy light.

New in 1868. 8. "Thine, Thine! in bliss or sorrow,
As well in shade as shine:
One Name shall be her morrow,
To all the ages, Thine!
Thine in her great commission,
Baptized into Thy Name,
And in her last fruition,
Thine, Thine for evermore. Amen.

St. vi. in 1866; st. v., ll. 1–4, in 1868; ll. 5–8 omitted in 1868. 9. "A city of no earth hath risen
With God, the Three in One,
So hath she sweet communion
With those whose rest is won;
With all her sons and daughters,
Who by the Master's hand,
Have passed the living waters,
Repose in Eden-land.

St. vii. in 1866; ll. 1–4 in 1868. 10. "O happy ones and holy!
Lord, give us grace that we
Like them, the meek and lowly,
On high may dwell with Thee;
There past the border mountains,
Where, in sweet vales, the Bride
With Thee, by living fountains,
For ever shall abide. Amen."

A collation of the above text of 1885, with those of 1866 and 1868, gives the following results:—

St. i. The same in all.
St. ii. In 1866, line 1 reads "She is from every," &c.
St. iii. The same in 1866 and 1885.
St. iv., v. In 1866, st. iv. here is omitted. New in 1868.
St. iv., vi., vii. New in 1885.
St. iv. In 1866 and 1868, ll. 1–4 read:—
"Yet on earth hath union
With God the Three in One,
And mystic sweet communion
With those whose rest is won."
St. iv., ll. 5–8, same in 1866, not in 1868.
St. v., ll. 1–4, same in all; ll. 5–8, same in 1866 and 1885, not in 1868.

This collation and further reference to the full text show that the 1868 version of the hymn is the freest of the three, and that which will live in the hymn-books of the future. The use of this form of the text is most extensive in all English-speaking countries. It has also been translated into several European and other languages. The versions in Latin include "Nobis unum est fundamen," by the Rev. E. Marshall, 1882 (and circulated as a card); and "Qui Ecclesiam instauravit," by the late T. G. Godfrey-Faussett, in Memorials, 1878.

In reference to the fact that this hymn was chosen as the Processional at each of the three great services at Canterbury Cathedral, at Westminster Abbey, and St. Paul's Cathedral, when all the Bishops of the Lambeth Conference of 1888 assembled, the following lines were written by Bishop Nelson, of New Zealand. They appeared in Church Bells of Nov. 30, 1888.

"Band of the Church, in these divided days
For warrie of harmony to thee be praise:
Of love and oneness then didst strike the chords,
And set our thoughts and prayers to tuneful words.
The Church's one Foundation then didst sing,
Through church and chancel, aisle, and transept ring,
Through church and chancel, aisle, and transept deep,
In fullest melody thy watch-notes sweep;
Now in the desert, now upon the main,
In mine and forest, and at crowded plain,
Band of the Church, thy blest inspires the best."

The city paved with Gold. Bp. W. W. Hoe. [The New Jerusalem.] "Written for Church Hymns, 1871. Designed specially as a counteractive to the merely materialist and futurist tone of many of the ordinary 'Jerusalem' hymns" (Notes on Ch. Hymns, p. lxxxiii.). This is attempted to be accomplished by giving a spiritual meaning to the "gold" and "gates of pearl," &c., of the New Jerusalem, as for instance:—

"The gates of pearl are there
In penitential tears,
Bright as a jewel rare
Each saintly grace appears;
And they who tread the streets of gold,
And he the pavement is of gold."

is said of the "true kingdom" within the man. Although well conceived, and executed in good style, it has failed to gain attention, and is very limited in its use. [J. J.]

The day is past and gone, Great God, we bow to Thee. W. J. Hoe and J. Ellerton. [Evening.] This is a cento from Mr. Blew's tr. of "Grates, peracto jam die" (p. 481, i.), with original additions by Mr. Ellerton. Mr. Blew's tr. appeared in his Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-55, in 6 st. of 4 l. In 1868 Mr. Ellerton compiled the cento for the Nantwich Festival of Choirs. It was composed of 4 st. from Mr. Blew's tr., 3 original st. by Mr. Ellerton, and a doxology, thus:—

i. The day is past and gone. Blew.
ii. Fain would we praise Thy Name. Blew.
iii. Where all things shall be peace. Blew.
iv. Faint are our voices here. Ellerton.
v. Yet, Lord, to Thy dear will. Ellerton.
vi. This Thine each soul to calm. Ellerton.
vii. Thy Name, O Jesus. Blew.
viii. One God, the Father, Son. Doxology.

In 1869 this cento was rewritten in 6 st. as "The day of praise is done," and pub. in the Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick's Supplemental Hy. & Tune Bk., and again in his Select Hymns, 1871. This text was revised by Mr. Ellerton for the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., where it was given in 1871 as "Our day of praise is done." In this form it has nothing of Blew's hymn except that the line of thought is the same. It is a hymn of great merit, and in popularity and extensiveness of use it is unequalled by any of Mr. Ellerton's original hymns except his "Saviour, again to Thy dear name we raise," which was also written for a Nantwich Choral Festival. [J. J.]

The day, O Lord, is spent. J. M. Neale. [Evening.] 1st pub. in his Hymns for Children, 1st series, 1843. No. xviii., in 4 st. of 4 l., and given as a daily hymn for use at 6 P.M. It is in a large number of hymn-books, and usually unaltered, as in Thring's Coll., 1882. In the Cooke and Denton Hymnal, 1853, No. 195, in 4 st. of 4 l., beginning, "Saviour, abide with us," is a cento, of which st. i. and iv. are by Canon W. Cooke, and st. ii. and iii., the corresponding stanzas of this hymn, by Dr. Neale. This cento is repeated in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, with the omission of the doxology. [J. J.]

The days of old were days of might. Jane E. Leeson. [The Days of Old.] Pub. in her Songs of Christian Chivalry, 1848, No. 21, in 4 st. of 6 l., and entitled, "The Days of Old." In Kennedy, 1863, No. 1206, it is altered to "The ancient days were days of might." It is a plaintive poem mourning departed greatness. It is answered by No. 22, "Yes, watch and wait a little while," which is entitled "Rejoinder," and is a poem of faith in and hope for the future. [J. J.]

The deluge, at the Almighty's call. P. Doddridge. [Safety in Christ.] Pub. in Job Orton's posthumous ed. of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1755, No. 336, in 7 st. of 4 l., and again in J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1839, No. 362, and in each case with the heading, "Noah preserved in the Ark, and the Believer in Christ." In H. W. Beecher's Plymouth Coll., 1855, st. ii., iii. are omitted, whilst in the Presbr. Pr. & Hyn. for the Worship of God, 1867, st. vi., vii. are given as "Enter the ark, while patience waits." [J. J.]

The eternal gates lift up their heads. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [Ascension.] Contributed to the S. P. C. K. Hymns, 1852, No. 62, in 5 st. of 4 l. In 1858 it was published in a revised form in Mrs. Alexander's Hys. Descriptive and Devotional, No. 14, as "The Golden gates are lifted up." It is in C. U. in both forms: but the earlier is the more widely used of the two. In addition st. iii., iv. are given in the American Unitarian Hys. of the Spirit, Boston, 1864, as "O, ever on our earthly path." [J. J.]

The fabric of nature is fair. S. Fearo. [During Sickness.] This poem, for it cannot be called a hymn, unless taken as such for private devotion, appeared in A. Fuller's Memoir of Samuel Fearo, 1809, and again in the 2nd ed., 1801, at the end of the Memoir. It is in 13 st. of 4 l., and entitled "On being prevented by sickness from attending on Public Worship." It was added to Rippon's Sel. in 1800, No. 540, Pt. ii., through which it passed into other collections. [J. J.]

The faithful men of every land. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [Holy Catholic Church.] 1st pub. in her Hys. for Little Children, 1848, No. 16, in 8 st. of 4 l., and headed with the words from the Apostles' Creed, "The Holy Catholic Church." In many instances where the hymn is in C. U. the following stanzas are omitted (iv., v.):—

> "All members of one body vast
> With Jesus for their Head,
> And Sacraments whereby their souls
> Are born again and fed;
> "All things good we have of them,
> And all things good we send them,—
> This is the Holy Church, wherein
> We have our places each."

The hymn in full or in part is in several collections. [J. J.]

The festal morn, my {O} God is come. J. Merrick. [Fr. exxii. Sunday Morning.] Pub. in his Poems, 1763; and again in his Psalms Translated or Paraphrased in English Verse, 1765, p. 327, in 7 st. of 6 l. It was given in several of the older, and is still retained in a few modern collections, but usually in an abbreviated and slightly altered form, as in Hadfield's Church H. Bk., N. Y., 1872; E. Prout's Psalmist, 1875, and others. In the American Prayer Bk. Coll., 1826, st. i.-v. were given as "With joy shall I behold the day." This form is repeated in several American collections, including The Church Hymnal, Philadelphia, 1869; and in 4 st. in the Protestant Episc. Church Hymnal, 1871. [J. J.]

The first sad hours of shame. H. Alford. [Annunciation of B. V. M.] 1st pub. in his Ps. & Hys., 1844, No. 82, in 5 st. of 4 l., and again in his Year of Praise, 1867, No. 255. Its use is limited. [J. J.]

The foe behind, the deep before. J. M. Neale. [Easter Carol.] This carol for Easter was pub. in his Carols for Easter-tide, 1854, p. 55, in 12 st. It is found in several modern hymn-books, but usually in an abbreviated form. It reads like an Ode from a Greek Canon, and is sometimes taken for one. As Dr. Neale tr. the Canon for Easter by St. John of Damascus, "'Tis the day of resurrection" in 1853, and this Carol for Easter was pub. in 1854, it is not improbable that the direct source of inspiration was the Greek of St. John, although many of Neale's carols for Easter-tide are "free imitations" of Latin Sequences (see Preface). [J. J.]

The gath'ring clouds with aspect dark. J. Newton. [In Time of War.] In the Rev. Josiah Bull's John Newton of Olney and St. Mary Woolnoth, 1868, p. 210, there is the following entry from Newton's Diary:—

> "1st [May 31st, 1778.] The paper this evening brought an account of the commencement of hostilities in New England and of the concurrence both of Spain and Holland. I fear, are the beginning of sorrows. O that I could be suitably affected with what I see and hear."

Mr. Bull adds to this extract:—

> "A few days afterwards Mr. Newton says that 'having proposed an extraordinary meeting for prayer weekly on account of the times, we began this morning; and, though we met at five o'clock, more people were present than we usually have in the evening.'"

Following this is a further extract from Newton's Diary:—

> "Sunday, June 11th [1778]. In the evening I gave a brief sketch of the past and present state of the times, with a view of the proper frame of mind we should attend our Tuesday morning meetings by appraising them of the importance of the present crisis. Hymn 207 was composed for this service."

The hymn thus referred to was that now under notice. In the July number of the Gospel Magazine it was given in 9 st. of 4 l., headed "On the Times," and signed "Vigil." It appeared in the Olney Hymns, 1779, as No. 64 of Bk. ii., and with the heading, "On the Commencement of Hostilities in America." Beyond these historical and biographical associations the hymn has little value, and could not be used except under very exceptional circumstances. [J. J.]

The glorious myriads round the throne. A. Rutherford. [Saints in Glory; or All Saints Day.] This hymn is found in the 5th ed. of the Glasite or Sandemanian Christian. Songs, &c., Dundee, L. Chalmers, &c., 1775, No. 69 [see Scottish Hymnody, § x. 81; and again in later editions of the same. In its rewritten form as, "The countless multitude on high," it is found in the 1830 Appendix to the Scottish Bapt. Psa., Hys. & Spiritual Songs, No. 448. It has passed into several modern hymn-books, including Flett's Coll., Paisley, 1871; Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1873, and others. The original is sometimes attributed to Robert Sandeman but in error. [J. M.]

The glorious universe around. J. Montgomery. [Communion of Saints.] This hymn appeared in the Leeds Sel. of Hys., Compiled and Original, &c., by R. Parsons and others, 1823, No. 829, in 5 st. of 4 l. In Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 476, it was given with a slight revision and the addition of the stanza "The earth, the ocean, and the sky" as st. ii. in its revised form of 6 st. The same text was repeated in his Original Hys., 1853. In Spurgeon's O. H. Bk., 1866, st. iv.-vi. of the 1825 text are given as "In one fraternal bond of love." [J. J.]

The glory of the Spring, how sweet. T. H. Gill. [Spring.] "Composed at Whitsuntide, 1867, and 1st printed in the Golden Chain, &c., 1869." No. 112, in 9 st. of 4 l., and entitled "The Divine Renewer. 'Thou renewest the face of the earth.' 'Be renewed in the spirit of your mind.'" It is an exquisite lyric, and has been somewhat widely used, but usually with the omission of one or more stanzas. In G. Britain it is in Dale's English H. Bk., 1874, No. 1143; the Bapt. Hymnal, 1879, No. 816; Horder's Cong. Hymns, 1884, No. 922, and others, and in America in the Songs of the Spirit, N. Y., 1871, &c. [J. J.]

The God of Abraham praise. T. Olivers. [Praise to and Trust in the God of Abraham.] Concerning the origin and first publication of this hymn somewhat conflicting accounts are in circulation. The most circumstantial is that quoted by Miller from an unauthenticated source. (Singers & Songs, 1869, p. 245):—

> The son of a Welshman Minister said a few years since, that his father was present when Olivers, who once stood in the aisle of City Road Chapel, during a conference in Wesley's time, Thomas Olivers, one of the preachers, came down to him and said, 'Look at this: I have rendered it from the Hebrew, giving it, as far as I could, a Christian character, and I have called on Leoni, the Jew, who has given me a synagogue melody to suit it; here is the tune, and it is to be called Leoni.'"

On communicating with the late Rev. Dr. Adler, the Chief Rabbi of the British Empire, we find that this account of the origin of this hymn is as near the actual facts as possible. The hymn is a free rendering, with, as Olivers puts it, as decided "a Christian character" as he could give to it, of the Hebrew Yigdal or Doxology, which rehearses in metrical form the thirteen articles of the Hebrew Creed. The Yigdal is supposed to have been composed by Daniel ben Judah, a Mediæval writer, the date of whose birth and death is unknown. The thirteen articles were drawn up by Moses Maimonides (1130-1205), the first who formulated the Dogmas of Judaism. (See article on the Dogmas of Judaism in the Jewish Quarterly Review, October, 1888.) The Yigdal is contained in the Hebrew daily Prayer Books, and is sung at the conclusion of divine service on the eve of Sabbaths and Festivals. Leoni, or rather Meyer Lyon, was chorister at the Great Synagogue, Duke's Place, Aldgate, London, at the end of the last century. Leoni sang the Hebrew Yigdal to the melody now known as Leoni. It is still chanted on Friday evening in every Synagogue of the British Empire, and at the family worship in Jewish homes (Dr. Adler's MS.)

As this hymn, both in its Hebrew form, and as a paraphrase by Olivers, is of world-wide interest, we append (1) The Hebrew Text, as used in the Jewish Synagogues, supplied by Dr. Adler, (2) A literal translation, as appended to the Hebrew text in the printed form as used in some of the Synagogues, supplied by Dr. Adler, (3) the Paraphrase by Olivers, and (4) The Melody, as sung in the Jewish Synagogues.

i. The Hebrew Text.

יִגְדַּל אֱלֹהִים חַי וְיִשְׁתַּבָּח	•	נִמְצָא וְאֵין עֵת אֵל מְצִיאוּתוֹ :
אֶחָד וְאֵין יָחִיד כְּיִחוּדוֹ	•	נֶעְלָם וְגַם אֵין סוֹף לְאַחְדוּתוֹ :
אֵין לֹא דְּמוּת הַגּוּף וְאֵינוֹ גוּף	•	לֹא נַעֲרֹךְ אֵלָיו קְדֻשָּׁתוֹ :
קַדְמוֹן לְכָל־דָּבָר אֲשֶׁר נִבְרָא	•	רִאשׁוֹן וְאֵין רִאשִׁית לְרִאשִׁיתוֹ :
הִנּוֹ אָדוֹן עוֹלָם לְכָל־נוֹצָר	•	יוֹרֶה גְּדֻלָּתוֹ וּמַלְכוּתוֹ :
שֶׁפַע נְבוּאָתוֹ נָתַן אֶל־	•	אַנְשֵׁי סְגֻלָּתוֹ וְתִפְאָרָתוֹ :
לֹא קָם בְּיִשְׂרָאֵל כְּמֹשֶׁה עוֹד	•	נָבִיא וּמַבִּיט אֶת־תְּמוּנָתוֹ :
תּוֹרַת אֱמֶת נָתַן לְעַמּוֹ אֵל	•	עַל־יַד נְבִיאוֹ נֶאֱמַן בֵּיתוֹ :
לֹא יַחֲלִיף הָאֵל וְלֹא יָמִיר דָּתוֹ	•	לְעוֹלָמִים לְזוּלָתוֹ :
צוֹפֶה וְיוֹדֵעַ סִתְרֵינוּ	•	מַבִּיט לְסוֹף דָּבָר בְּקַדְמָתוֹ :
גּוֹמֵל לְאִישׁ חֶסֶד כְּמִפְעָלוֹ	•	נוֹתֵן לָרָשָׁע רַע כְּרִשְׁעָתוֹ :
יִשְׁלַח לְקֵץ יָמִין מְשִׁיחֵנוּ	•	לְפְדוֹת מְחַכֵּי קֵץ לִישׁוּעָתוֹ :
מֵתִים יְחַיֶּה אֵל בְּרֹב חַסְדּוֹ	•	בָּרוּךְ עֲדֵי־עַד שֵׁם תְּהִלָּתוֹ :

ii. A literal Translation of the same.

Extolled and praised be the living God, who exists unbounded by time.
He is one of unparalleled unity, invisible and eternal.
Without form or figure,—incorporeal,—holy beyond conception.
Prior to all created things,—the first, without date or beginning.
Lo! He is Lord of the world and all creation, which evince His greatness and dominion.

The flow of His prophetic spirit has He imparted to men selected for His glory.
God has given the true law to His people, by the hands of his trusty prophet.
His perceives and is acquainted with our secrets,—sees the end of all things at their very beginning.
He rewards man with kindness according to his work; dispenses punishment to the wicked, according to his misdeeds.
At the end of days by Him appointed, will He send our Messiah, to redress those who hope for final salvation.
God, in His great mercy, will recall the dead to life. Praised be His glorious name for evermore.

iii. The Paraphrase by T. Olivers.

" PART THE FIRST.

1.
" The God of Abrah'm praise,
Who reigns enthroned above;
Ancient of everlasting days,
And God of Love:
JEHOVAH GREAT I AM!
By earth and heaven confest:
I bow and bless the sacred Name,
For ever blest.

2.
' The God of Abrah'm praise,
At whose supreme command,
From earth I rise—and seek the joys
At His right hand:
I all on earth forsake,
Its wisdom, fame, and power;
And him my only Portion make,
My Shield and Tower.

3.
" The God of Abrah'm praise,
Whose all-sufficient grace
Shall guide me all my happy days,
In all my ways:
He calls a worm his friend!
He calls himself my God!
And he shall save me to the end
Thro' Jesu's blood.

4.
" He by Himself hath sworn,
I on his oath depend,
I shall, on eagle's wings upborne,
To heaven ascend:
I shall behold his face,
I shall his power adore,
And sing the wonders of his grace
For evermore.

" PART THE SECOND.

5.
" The' nature's strength decay,
And earth and hell withstand,
To Canaan's bounds I urge my way,
At his command:
The wat'ry deep I pass,
With Jesus in my view;
And through the howling wilderness
My way pursue.

6.
" The goodly land I see,
With peace and plenty blest;
A land of sacred liberty,
And endless rest:
There milk and honey flow;
And oil and wine abound,
And trees of life for ever grow,
With Mercy crown'd.

7.
" There dwells the Lord our King,
The LORD our RIGHTEOUSNESS
(Triumphant o'er the world and sin),
The Prince of Peace:
On Sion's sacred height,
His Kingdom still maintains;
And glorious with his saints in light,
For ever reigns.

8.
" He keeps his own secure,
He guards them by his side,
Arm'd in garments, white and pure,
His spotless bride:
With streams of sacred bliss,
With groves of living joys—
With all the fruits of Paradise
He still supplies.

" PART THE THIRD.

9.
" Before the great TRINE-ONE
They all exulting stand;
And tell the wonders he hath done
Thro' all their land:

10.
The list'ning spheres attend,
And swell the growing theme;
And sing the songs which never end,
The WORTHY NAME.

11.
" The God who reigns on high,
The great archangels sing,
And ' Holy, holy, holy,' cry,
' ALMIGHTY KING!
' Who WAS, and IS, the same;
' And everyone shall be,
' JEHOVAH, GREAT I AM!
' We worship Thee.'

12.
" Before the SAVIOUR'S face
The ransom'd nations bow;
O'erwhelm'd at his Almighty grace,
For ever new:
He shews his prints of Love—
They kindle—to a flame!
And sound thro' all the worlds above,
The slaughter'd LAMB.

13.
" The whole triumphant host,
Give thanks to God on high;
' Hail, FATHER, SON, and HOLY GHOST,'
They ever cry:
Hail, Abrah'm's God—and mine!
(I join the heavenly lays,)
All Might and Majesty are Thine
And endless Praise.

The title of the tract, from which this text is reprinted, is :—

A Hymn to the God of Abraham. In Three Parts: Adapted to the Three Grand Periods of the Divine Dispensations, &c., as the Same Synagogue, in London: By Thomas Olivers. (Quotations of H. Scripture.) Sold Gingham, Printed by S. Oswald, Bookseller, &c.

Tradition says that Olivers wrote the hymn at the house of John Bakewell (p. 168, i.), at Westminster, in 1770. The copy from which we print is undated: the 4th ed. is 1772: 5th, 1772: 6th (London and Philadelphia) and 7th, 1773: 8th, Fine, Bristol, 1775. In addition to its use in an abbreviated form in varying lengths, all beginning with the first stanza, there are also the following centos :—

1. By faith we, day to day. This, in T. Darling's Ps. and Hymns, Glasgow, 1847, is a cento in 3 st. from T. Olivers and T. Darling.

2. The God who reigns on high. This is the most popular cento of any, and is in numerous hymnals in G. Britain and America. It begins with st. i.

3. Though nature's strength decay. This, with st. vi., is in several collections in G. Britain and America.

4. Though mortal strength be weak. This cento, in the People's Pr., 1867, in 5 st. of 4 l. is in v. w., and is a portion of Olivers's hymn, beginning with st. v., reading st. v. ll. 3, 4, vi., vii.

5. Though nature's strength decay. This cento, beginning with st. v., is in a few collections only, including Kennedy, 1863.

6. The God who dwells the glorious King! This, in Darling's Ps. for the Church of England, 1868, is based on this hymn.

Christopher in his Epworth Singers, Stevenson in his Methodist H. Bk. Notes, 1883, and Duffield in his English Hymns, 1886, enter largely upon the spiritual use of striking portions of this hymn to many individuals. Stevenson's account is specially worthy of attention. Under date of July 29, 1865, Henry Martyn, then on the eve of his voyage to India, wrote :—

" I was much engaged at intervals in learning the hymn, 'The God of Abraham praise'; as often as I could use the language of it with any truth, my heart was a little at ease. There was something peculiarly solemn and affecting to me in this hymn, and particularly in singing it to the tune to which I have been well enough. But, alas! I felt that the state of mind expressed in it was above mine at the time, and I felt loath to forsake all on earth."

The opinion of James Montgomery as expressed in the "Introductory Essay" to his Christian Psalmist, 1825, is just and discriminating. Had it known, however, that this "noble ode" by "an unlettered man" had its inspiration in, and was built up from, the metrical form of the Hebrew creed, his astonishment at the result would have been somewhat modified. His note is :—

" That noble ode, page 364, 'The God of Abraham praise,' &c., though the essay of an unlettered man, claims especial honour. There is not in our language a lyric more majestic in style and sublime in thought. Its form is glorious from its circumstances, simple, attractive; and, on account of the short lines, unusually smooth; but, like a stately pile of architecture, severe and simple in design, it strikes less on the first view, and requires deliberate examination, when its proportions appear graceful, its dimensions expand, and the mind itself grows greater in contemplating it." Preface, p. xxviii.

iv. The Melody.

The following melody has been supplied by the Rev. Francis L. Cohen, Minister of the Borough New Synagogue, London :—

YIGDAL "LEONI."

PRECENTOR. Andantino.

CONGREGATION.

Mr. Cohen accompanies the melody with the following note :—

" In Leoni's time it is most unlikely that its [The Melody's] Synagogue version was written in score similar to our knowledge of the confines of Synagogue song in those days. The melody was probably sung in unison, with no doubt an improvised accompaniment by the 'hazan,' and 'singer' (i.e. soprano), who as 'precentor' (i.e. accompanying singer) sustained the Hazan, (precentor). I give you, however, the most correct form of the melody as now sung."

In connection with this hymn and the above Melody, it may be of interest to note a few facts concerning Leoni himself. Leoni is sometimes said to have been the uncle of the celebrated Braham, but for this statement there is no evidence. Both were choristers at the same time in the Great Synagogue, Duke's Place, London. Braham left the synagogue for the stage. Leoni was also a public singer either at Drury Lane, or Covent Garden. It is said that his voice surpassed that of Braham in sweetness and melody. In every other respect he was unsuited for the stage, and his appearance was a failure. Subsequently he became the first qualified chazan of the English and German Synagogue in Jamaica. Leoni died in Jamaica. (See Jewish Chronicle, Dec. 26, 1873.) [J. J.]

The God of glory walks His round. Bp. R. Heber. [Septuagesima.] Pub. in his posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 64, in 6 st. of 4 l., and is based on the Parable of the Labourers in the Vineyard. It is in C. U. in its original form; as "The God of mercy warns us still," in Kennedy, 1863; and as "The God of Glory looks around" in others. [J. J.]

The God of harvest praise. J. Montgomery. [Harvest.] The original text of this hymn is dated 1840. From Holland's Memoirs of Montgomery we find that in August, 1840, the poet visited the widow of R. C. Brackenbury (p. 168, i.), of Raithby Hall, Spilsby, Lincolnshire, and that on his return journey he wrote this hymn. On reaching Sheffield he gave the stanzas to Holland, saying, " You may do what you like with them." Holland adds, "The hint was well understood, and the author's townsmen had the pleasure of reading his beautiful harvest hymn the next day in the Sheffield Mercury" (Memoirs, vol. v. p. 407). It was also printed in the Evangelical Magazine of Nov. 1840, as "A Harvest Hymn for 1840," and dated "The Mount, Sheffield, Sept. 1840." Montgomery included it in his Original Hys., 1853, No. 279, in 7 st. of 7 l. It is a spirited hymn, and in an abbreviated form would be of some value. [J. J.]

The God of love my Shepherd is. [Ps. xxiii.] Various versions of Ps. 23, each beginning with the same first line are in C. U. These are :—

1. George Herbert's version, pub. posthumously in his Temple, 1633, in 9 st. of 4 l., and repeated in all subsequent editions of the same. The first stanza is :—

" The God of love my Shepherd is,
And he that doth me feed:
While He is mine and I am His,
What can I want or need?"

2. George Rawson's rendering in the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, No. 26, is based upon the above by Herbert, and the first stanza is :—

" The God of love my Shepherd is,
To watch me and to feed;
Since He is mine and I am His,
What can I ever need?"

This text was slightly altered by Mr. Hawson for the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, and again for his Hymns, Verses and Chords, 1876.

3. G. Rawson has a second version of Ps. 23 in his Hymns, &c., 1876, the opening stanza of which is:—

"My Shepherd is the Living Lord,
So I can never need;
In pastures green
He makes me down to feed.
I lay me down to feed."

4. G. Rawson's third version in his Hymns, &c., 1876, in 6 st. of 4 l., begins:—

"The God of love my Shepherd is,
And He that doth me feed;
I shall not want, for I am His:
In all supplied."

This was given in Thring's Coll., 1882, with a new verse by Prebendary Thring in the place of Mr. Rawson's st. v. The latter reads:—

"Thy grace astonds my demon foes;
Thou oil of joy is mine;
My cup of mercy overflows
With care divine."

Prebendary Thring's substitute is:—

"Thou spread'st my table 'mid my foes,
The oil of grace is mine,
My cup with mercy overflows
And love divine."

5. Mr. Rawson, not content with his original version, supplied us with the following in MS.:—

"God is my host, His welcome gives;
The life is mine;
My board is spread, my cup overflows,
By care divine."

To our mind Prebendary Thring's version is the most acceptable of the three renderings of the fifth stanza. [J. J.]

The God of nature and of grace. J. Montgomery. [Glory of God in Creation.] Pub. in his Greenland and other Poems, 1819, p. 174, in 10 st. of 4 l., and headed, "The Visible Creation." It was repeated the same year in Cotterill's Sel., No. 351, in 8 st. of 4 l.; again in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 520, also in 8 st. of 4 l. (slightly altered); and again, in the same form, in his Original Hymns, 1853. In Kennedy, 1863, No. 398, st. i., and st. ii. ll. 1-4, are from this hymn —the rest of the cento being by Dr. Kennedy. The cento begins with the same first line as above. In addition there are in C. U. two centos from the original: (1) "Behold this fair and fertile globe" (st. ii.), and (2) "How excellent, O Lord, Thy Name." [J. J.]

The golden gates are lifted up. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [Ascension.] Pub. in her Hymns Descriptive and Devotional, &c., 1858, No. 14, in 5 st. of 4 l., and repeated in later editions. It is in C. U. in its full form, and also as "Thou art gone up before us, Lord," beginning with st. ii. [J. J.]

The great Apostle called by grace. H. Alford. (Conversion of St. Paul.) 1st pub. in his Ps. & Hys., &c., 1844, No. 75, in 4 st. of 4 l., and again in his Year of Praise, 1867, No. 320. It is given in several hymnals in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

The ground on which this day we stand. J. Montgomery. (Laying the Foundation Stone of a Church.) Written for the laying of the foundation stone of Holy Trinity Church, The Wicker, Sheffield, erected by the Misses Harrison (compilers of the Weston H.

Bk.), which took place on June 30th, 1847. It was written at the earnest request of the Incumbent, though much against Montgomery's own wish, as he judged that on that subject he had written enough, and had "nothing more to say" (Memoirs, vol. vii. p. 79). The hymn was included in Montgomery's Original Hymns, 1853, No. 294, in 6 st. of 4 l. [J. J.]

The head that once was crowned with thorns. T. Kelly. [Christ Perfect through Sufferings.] This hymn is sometimes given as from the 1804 ed. of his Hymns, &c. This is not so. It appeared in the ed. of 1820, in 6 st. of 4 l., and is No. 33 in the edition of 1853. It is based on Heb. ii. 10, "For it became Him, for Whom are all things, and by Whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the Captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings." It has passed into numerous collections in G. Britain and America, and has been tr. into Latin by H. M. Macgill, in his Songs of the Christian Creed and Life, 1876, as, "Spinis caput coronatum." [J. J.]

The heart of childhood is all mirth. J. Keble. (2nd Sun. after Epiphany.) 1st pub. in his Christian Year, 1827, in 17 st. of 4 l., and based upon "The Marriage in Cana of Galilee, the Gospel of the Day." Two centos therefrom have come into C. U. (1) "The silent joy, that sinks so deep," and (2) "Fathers may hate us or forsake." Beyond these no other use has been made of the poem for congregational purposes. [J. J.]

The heathen perish: day by day. J. Montgomery. (Missions.) 1st printed in the Sheffield Iris newspaper, of which Montgomery was the proprietor and editor, on the 20th April, 1824, in 3 st. of 4 l. It was repeated in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 531, and again in his Original Hymns, 1853, No. 226. It is given in comparatively few modern hymn-books. [J. J.]

The highest and the holiest place. H. Alford. (St. Matthias.) 1st pub. in his Ps. & Hys. &c., 1844, No. 81, in 3 st. of 4 l., and again in his Year of Praise, 1867, No. 252. It is also in Kennedy, 1863, and other collections. [J. J.]

The hour of my departure's come. J. Logan. [Death anticipated.] This is hymn No. 5, in 6 st. of 4 l., of the "Hymns" appended to the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1781. We have most reluctantly assigned this sweetly plaintive hymn to J. Logan rather than to M. Bruce, for reasons which are given on p. 185, ii. of this Dictionary. The hymn is in several modern hymn-books in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

The hours of [day] school are over. J. Ellerton. [Evening.] Written in 1858 as a companion hymn to "Day by day we magnify Thee" (p. 285, i.), and pub. in the author's Hys. for Schools and Bible Classes (Brighton), 1858. In the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, Mr. Ellerton changes the opening line to "The hours of day are over." It is in C. U. both in this form and in the original. [J. J.]

The King of love my Shepherd is. Sir H. W. Baker. [Ps. xxiii.] 1st pub. in the 1868 App. to H. A. & M., in 6 st. of 4 l., and from thence has passed into numerous collections, and usually in an unaltered form. Mr. Ellerton, in his annotations thereon in Notes to the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, says truly and sympathetically, "It may interest many to know that the third verse ['Perverse and foolish oft I strayed'] of this lovely hymn, perhaps the most beautiful of all the countless versions of Psalm xxiii., was the last audible sentence upon the dying lips of the lamented author. February 12, 1877" (p. 107, ii.). A tr. of this paraphrase into Latin, by J. P. M., appeared in Blackwood's Magazine, Feb., 1887, as "Rex, Rex amoris, ut Pastoris." [J. J.]

The last and greatest herald of heaven's King. W. Drummond. [St. John the Baptist.] This in 14 lines is No. 9 of his Flowers of Zion; or, Spiritual Poems, 1623. Also in The Works of William Drummond of Hawthornden, &c., Edinburgh, James Watson, 1711. It was repeated in Bp. Heber's posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 131, in 2 st. of 6 l., and again in later collections. [J. J.]

The Lord ascendeth up on high. A. T. Russell. [Ascension.] Pub. in the Hys for Pub. Worship and Private Devotion, pub. for the benefit of the London German Hospital, Dalston, 1848, in 4 st. of 6 l. In 1854 st. i., ii., and a third stanza by Bp. How, were given in Murrell and How's Ps. & Hys., No. 31, each stanza being in 7 l. This text was repeated in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871. See folio ed. of the same, 1881, for note thereon, and for the original text. [J. J.]

The Lord forgets His wonted grace. Anne Steele. [Divine Compassion.] 1st pub. in her Poems on Subjects Chiefly Devotional, 1760, vol. i. p. 80, in 7 st. of 4 l., and again in D. Sedgwick's reprint of her Hymns, 1863. In some American hymn-books a part of this hymn beginning with st. iv. is given as "A mother may forgetful be," and again in others, "Forgetful, can a mother be?" [J. J.]

The Lord is King; He wrought His will. J. Keble. [Christ the King.] "Composed on the occasion of the Visit of the British Association for the Promotion of Science, to be sung in the Parish Church of St. Nicholas, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, 1863," and pub. in the author's posthumous Miscellaneous Poems, 1869, in 6 st. of 4 l. In Thring's Coll., 1882, and others. [J. J.]

The Lord is King! lift up thy [your] voices. J. Conder. [Christ the King.] Pub. in his Star in the East, &c., 1824, p. 50, in 8 st. of 4 l., and based upon the words "Alleluia: for the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth." It was repeated in the Cong. H. Bk., 1836, No. 461; in Conder's posthumous Hys. of Praise, Prayer, &c., 1856, p. 196. It is sometimes given as "The Lord is King! lift up your voice." In addition there are also centos in C. U. beginning (1) "The Lord is King! Child of the dust" (st. iii.), and "He reigns! ye saints, exalt your strains." Through these various forms this hymn is in extensive use. [J. J.]

The Lord is my Shepherd, He makes me repose. W. Knox. [Ps. xxiii.] Appeared in his Songs of Israel, &c., 1824, and again in his posthumous Poems, 1847, p. 107, in 4 st. of 4 l. It is in a few modern hymnbooks only, including the Songs for the Sanctuary, N. Y., 1865. [J. J.]

The Lord is risen indeed. T. Kelly. [Easter.] 1st pub. in his Coll. of Ps. & Hys., &c., Dublin, 1802, No. 363, in 7 st. of 4 l., and then in his Hymns, &c., 1804, and later eds. In the latest eds. it was expanded to 8 st. as in that of 1853, the addition there being st. vi. It is found in full or in an abridged form in a large number of hymn-books. [J. J.]

The Lord Jehovah calls. P. Doddridge. (Warning to Sinners.) This hymn is No. 64, in the D. MS. It is in 4 st. of 4 l., and headed, "On hearing God's Voice immediately: from Heb. iii. 13." It has no date; but being found between one hymn dated "April 10, 1735," and another "Jan. 1, 173," we may date it circa 1736 with tolerable certainty. In Job Orton's posthumous edition of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1755, it was given in a slightly different form as No. 305, and with the heading changed to "An immediate Attention to God's Voice required," Heb. iii. 15. The same text and heading were repeated in J. D. Humphreys's edition of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1839, No. 335. [J. J.]

The Lord Jehovah reigns, His throne is built on high. I. Watts. [Ps. cxlviii.] Although given in his Hys. and S. Songs, 1709, Bk. ii., No. 109, as a version of Ps. 148, in 5 st. of 8 l., it did not appear in his Psalms of David, 1719, nor in any subsequent edition of the same. It is in somewhat extensive use. [J. J.]

The Lord, my Saviour, is my Light. Anne Steele. [Ps. xxvii.] Appeared in her Poems on Subjects Chiefly Devotional, 1760, vol. ii. p. 120, in 13 st. of 4 l., and again in D. Sedgwick's reprint of her Hymns, 1863. In Cotterill's Sel., 1810, Ps. 27, st. i., iv., v., xi., xv. were given in an altered form as "Thou Lord, our Guide, our Light, our Way." This was repeated in the 1819 ed. of the same, p. 16. In Kennedy, 1863, No. 260, Cotterill's form of the text is altered to "O Lord, our Guide, our Light, our Way." [J. J.]

The Lord of might from Sinai's brow. Bp. R. Heber. [Pentecostal.] Pub. in his posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 60, in 6 st. of 7 l. as the second hymn for the 6th Sunday in Lent. It has passed into numerous collections in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

The Lord of Sabbath let us praise. S. Wesley, junr. [Sunday.] Appeared in his Poems on Several Occasions, 1736, in 4 st. of 4 l.; again in J. Wesley's Coll. of Ps. & Hys., 1741; and again in Nicholl's reprint of the Poems, &c., 1862, p. 364. It was included in the Church of England collections at an early date; and is found in its original form in several modern collections, including the 1875 ed. of the Wes. H. Bk., No. 850. In some hymn-books, as Mercer and others, it is given as "Lord of the Sabbath, Thee we praise." The well-known couplet:—

"'Twas great to speak a world from nought;
'Twas greater to redeem:"

concludes this hymn. [J. J.]

The Lord shall come! the earth shall quake. Bp. R. Heber. [Second Advent.] Of this hymn there are three forms in C. U., as follows:—

1. The Lord shall come! the earth shall quake. This, the original form of the hymn, was given (in 8 st. of 4 l.) in the Oct. number of the Christian Observer, 1811, as a hymn for the 4th S. in Advent. In its original form it is not in C. U. In the 1815 Appendix to Cotterill's Sel., No. 144, it was given in 6 st. of 4 l., and as in No. 144. In the 4th ed. of his Sel., 1819, No. 196, Cotterill restored st. iv. in an altered form. This form of the text was repeated in J. Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 310, and is given in several modern hymn-books. See also Kennedy, 1863, No. 1139; Pp. Hymns, 1864; The People's H., 1867, and others.

2. The Lord will come; the earth shall quake. This revised form of the hymn appeared in Bp. Heber's posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 5. It is in extensive use in G. Britain and America, and is probably the most popular form of the hymn. Usually the text is unaltered as in the Hy. Comp., 1876.

3. The Lord will come: the earth shall quake. In Murray's Hymnal, 1852, the 1827 text was given with slight alterations, and repeated in the 1866 ed. In Allon's Hymnal, 1857 and 1861, st. i.-iii. of Bp. Heber's 1827 text, slightly altered, were given with a new stanza beginning, "O King of Mercy, grant us power," and the doxology as in Murray's Hymnal, 1852. This arrangement of the text, with slight variations, is No. 111 in Thring's Coll., 1882.

In other hymn-books there are variations from the above forms of this hymn. These variations can be traced by the works already named. Of Bp. Heber's 1827 text a rendering into Latin is given in R. Bingham's Hymns. Christ. Latina, 1871, as "Advenit Dominus! Tellus tremefacta hâbescat;" and another of the same text in H. M. Macgill's Songs of the Christian Creed & Life, 1876: as "Deus venit; trementes." [J. J.]

The Lord will happiness divine. W. Cowper. [Lent.] Pub. in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. i., No. 64, in 6 st. of 4 l., and entitled "The contrite heart." It is in a large number of hymnals in G. Britain and America, and is specially suited for private use. [J. J.]

The Lord's my Shepherd, I'll not want. Scottish Psalter, 1650. (Ps. xxiii.) We have selected this for treatment as a specimen of the so-called Scotch Version, seeing that it is the most familiar of all in Scotland; and is also included in many English and American hymnals of the present day. It is founded on the version by Francis Rous. His 1st ed. of 1641 has not been accessible, but the text of his 1643 ed. is here quoted from Dr. Laing's Letters and Journals of Robert Baillie, vol. iii., 1842.

" My Shepherd is the living Lord,
and his that doth me feed:
How can I then lack anything whereof I stand in need.

" In pastures green and flourishing
he makes me down to lye:
And gently me doth lead to the streames which run most pleasantly.

" And when I fade and go astray then home he me doth bring,
Conducting me in his right paths,
even for his owne Names sake.

" And though I were even at death's doore, yet would I fears none ill;
Thy rod, thy staff do comfort me,
and thou art with me still.

" Then hast my table richly stor'd
in presence of my foes;
My head with oile thou dost anoint,
my cup doth overflow.

" Thy grace and mercy all my dains shall surely follow me:
And I will dwell in the house of God,
my dwelling place shall be."

In great measure this text is taken from Whittingham's "The Lord is on by my supplyer," 1st pub. in the One and Fifthe Psalmes of Dauid, Geneva, 1556. After being revised by the Divines of the Westminster Assembly, it appeared in 1646 as:—

" The Lord my shepheard is, I shall therefore want nothing:
He in pastures green, me leads by streames that do run quietly.

" My soule he doth restore again, and me to walk doth make
On in the paths of righteousnesse, e'en for his own names sake.

" Yea though I walk in death's dark vale
I'le fear no evill thing,
Thou art with me, thy rod, thy staffe, to me do comfort bring.

" Before me thou a table fit'st
in presence of my foes,
My head thou dost with oile anoint, and my cup overflows.

" Goodnesse and mercy all my life
shall surely follow me:
And in God's house for evermore
my dwelling place shall be."

The version pub. in 1650 is a revised form of this, the variations being in st. i., st. iii. ll. 2–4, and st. iv. ll. 1, 4.

On analysing it we thus find: Of Whittingham's original version only two lines survive (ll. 1, 4, iii. 1, 4); of Rous, 1643, only seven lines (i. 1, 3, ii. 1, 4, iii. 1, 3, iv. 1, 2, 3); of Rous, 1646, only eight lines (i. 1, 3, 4; iii., i. 1; iv. 2, 3, 4); and st. v. exactly, and st. ii. 1, 3, and iv. 1, 4 nearly. Zachary Boyd's various editions only furnish one line (st. i. 1. 1 from his 3rd ed. 1648). The version by Sir William Mure, 1639 (in his Select Works, Edinburgh, Blackwood, 1852), Musalter, Glasgow, 1868, p. 182) affords the following:—

iii. 3. " For thou art with me, Lord, thy rode and staffe me comfort still."

iv. 1. " For me a table thou dost spread,
in presence of my foes;
With oyle thou dost anoint mine head
my cup it overflowes."

Thus the only lines of the 1650 not given exactly, or nearly, in any of the above are:—

i. 3. " He leadeth me
The quiet waters by."

iv. 1. " My table thou hast furnished."

The first religious verse learnt at a mother's knee, and often the last repeated before entering "the valley of the shadow of death," its place in the Psalter makes it needless to include it in Scottish hymnals. Among collections of the present time it is found in England in the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, Barry's Hymnal, 1867, the Canterbury Hymnal: and in America in the Andover Sabbath H. Bk., 1858; Robinson's Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865, Dutch Reformed H. Bk., 1869. It is also in full, and unaltered from the 1650 Psalter in the Wes. H. Bk., 1875. [J. M.]

The morning dawns upon the place. J. Montgomery. [Passiontide.] Pub. in his Greenland and Other Poems, 1819, p. 181, in 8 st. of 8 l. and headed "Christ's Passion." In Cotterill's Sel., 1819, No. 223, it is headed "For Good Friday." In his Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 492, Montgomery gave it in a revised form in 7 st. of 4 l., the omitted lines being st. iv. ll. 1–4.

" He dies:—the veil is rent in twain:
Darkness o'er all the land is spread:
High without tempest rolls the main:
Earth quakes: the graves give up their dead."

The 1825 text was repeated with slight variations in Montgomery's Original Hymns, 1853, No. 61, and is that usually given in the hymn-books both in G. Britain and America. Sometimes the text is abbreviated. [J. J.]

The morning flowers display their sweets. S. Wesley, jun. [Death.] Appeared in David Lewis's collection of Miscellaneous Poems, 1726; in Wesley's Poems on Several Occasions, 1736; and in the 1802 reprint of the same, 1862, p. 81, in 6 st. of 4 l. In the Poems it is headed "Verses on Isaiah xl. 6, 8. Occasioned by the death of a Young Lady." It was also given in the Wesley Hys. and Sac. Poems, 1743, and in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 44 (ed. 1875, No. 46). It is in extensive use in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

The morning stars in concert sang. J. Montgomery. [Praise.] Written for the Sheffield Sunday School Union Whit Monday gathering of 1849, and printed on a broad sheet for use on that occasion. In Montgomery's Original Hymns, 1853, in 6 st. of 4 l. it is given "For the Opening of an Organ," for which it is well adapted. [J. J.]

The night is come; like to the day. Sir T. Browne. [Evening.] 1st pub. in the 1642 ed. of his Religio Medici, Pt. ii., § 12, and is thus introduced in speaking of sleep:—

" It (sleep) is that death which we may be literally said to die daily, a death which Adam died before he tasted of the material fruit, and the misery and mediating point betwixt life and death. In fear to like death I dare not trust it without my prayers and an half adieu unto the world, and take my farewell in a colloquy with God:—

" The night is come; like to the day," &c.

[extended to 36 l.] " Now, because I am loth to bedward, I send in other lucubrium than this to make me sleep; after which I close mine eyes in security, content to take my leave of the sun, and sleep unto the resurrection."

From the above-named 36 lines, the cento in common use has been compiled. It is also sometimes given in an altered form as "The sun is gone: like to the day," as in Bap. Pr. & Hys., 1858. Original text in The Canadian Classics, Lond., W. Scott, 1886. [J. J.]

The night is wearing fast away. [Second Advent.] This appeared anonymously in the Plymouth Brethren's Hys. for the Poor of the Flock, 1838, No. 86, in 5 st. of 4 l., and again in several later collections. In The Christian Hyl. (n.d.) it is attributed to Sir E. Denny, but it is not in his Hys. and Poems, 1848 or 1870. In J. Denham Smith's New Tunes of Refreshing, 1888, the author's name is given as "Hearn." [J. J.]

The poorest of the poor are we. J. Montgomery. [Sloped Schools.] Under the date of 1849, Holland says in his Memoirs of Montgomery, vol. vii. p. 216:—

" We (Mr. J. Everett and himself) found that our entrance had arrested his pen in the midst of two-and-twenty lines which he had begun to compose upon for the use of Ragged Schools. On being requested to favour us with a hearing of the verses, he read what he had written, but with such an involuntary accompaniment of deep feeling that my felt more pain than pleasure in the affecting incident."

This hymn is in 9 st. of 4 l. in Montgomery's Original Hymns, 1853. In its full form it is not in C. U., but st. iv. vi.–viii. are given in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873, No. 373, as "O God, most merciful and just." [J. J.]

The race that long in darkness pined. J. Morison. [Epiphany.] This fine hymn appeared as No. 19 in the Draft Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1781, as a version of Isaiah ix. 2–8 thus:—

I.
" The race that long in darkness pin'd have seen a glorious light:
There gentle dwell in my who dwelt in Death's surrounding night.

II.
" To hail thy rise, thou better Sun!
the gath'ring nations come,
Joyous, as when the reapers bear the harvest-treasures home.

III.
" For thou our burden hast remov'd, and quell'd th' oppressor's sway;
Quick as the slaughtered squadrons fell in Midian's evil day.

IV.
" Through storms of war, and scenes of blood,
the warrior reigns on;
The light'ning's speed, great Saviour! marks the conquest thou hast won.

V.
" To us a Child of hope is born;
to us a Son is giv'n;
Him shall the tribes of earth obey, him, all the hosts of heav'n.

VI.
" His name shall be The Prince of Peace;
the Wise, the Mighty One;
With justice shall he rule the earth from his eternal throne."

In the public worship of. issued in that year by the Ch. of Scotland, and still in use st. iv. was omitted and st. vi. rewritten thus:—

" His name shall be the Prince of Peace, for evermore ador'd,
The Wonderful, the Counsellor, the great and mighty Lord.

VI.
" His pow'r increasing still shall spread;
his reign no end shall know:
Justice shall guard his throne above, and peace abound below."

In the markings by the eldest daughter of W. Cameron (p. 806, ii.), ascribed to Morison. The revised text of 1781 is included in full and unaltered as No. 53 in Lord Selborne's Bk. of Praise Hymnal, 1866, and slightly altered as No. 47 in the American Episcopal Coll., 1826, and as No. 80 in the Anglican H. Bk., 1871. Omitting st. iii. it has been included in the American Baptist Psalmist, 1843, Kennedy, 1863, the Baptist Hymnal, 1879, and other collections. It is also found in the following forms:—

1. The race which long in darkness pined. Prait's Coll., 1826; Liverpool Coll., 1841.

2. The race that long in darkness lay. Urwick's Coll., 1846.

3. The race that long in darkness walk'd. S. P. C. K. Hymns, 1851; Common Praise, 1879, &c.

4. The people that in darkness sat. A greatly altered form in the Irish Church Hymnal, 1874, No. 84, with an added doxology. This has been included in Surry's Hymnal, 1887, and in the Hymnary, 1872. The version in the Irish Church Hymnal ed., 1880, No. 53, is st. i., iv., v. of H. A. & M., and of the Irish Church Hymnal ed., 1874, as given above, as in the 1861. In America it has appeared in the Hymn. Hymnal, New York, 1880.

5. The race that long in darkness sat. Thring's Coll., 1882, No. 144, the revised text of 1781 slightly altered in st. i. 1, 2, 3, 4; ii. 1, 2, 3, 4; iii. 1, 2, 3, 4; with st. ii. 1, 3, st. iii. 2, and st. iv. 1, 2, 3, 4 of H. A. & M.

6. To hail thy rising, Sun of life. American Prot. Epis. Hymnal, 1871, No. 37, beginning with st. ii. altered.

7. To us a Child of hope is born. St. iv.–vi. included in England in Curwen's and various other children's hymn-books, and in America in the Andover Sabbath H. Bk., 1858; Robinson's Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865; Dexter, Mass., Cong. Bk., 1849; Baptist Praise Bk., 1858, and various others.

8. Lo! unto us a child is born. St. iv., v. altered in Mercer's C. P. & H. Bk., Ox. ed., 1864, No. 417.

The text should also be compared with Watts's Hymns, 1709, Bk. i., No. 13, "The lands that long in darkness lay:" and "The people that in darkness walk'd," in Miss Lorean's Paraphrases & Hymns for Congregational Singing, 1853, No. 45. [J. M.]

The radiant morn hath passed away. C. Thring. [Afternoon.] Written in 1864, and 1st pub. in his Hys. Congregational and Others, 1866, p. 66; and again in his Hys. & Lyrics, 1874, p. 137, in 5 st. of 4 l. It was adopted as the opening hymn of the 1868 Appendix to H. A. & M., and has since then been included in numerous collections in G. Britain and America. In H. A. & M. it is set to special music by Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart. This tune is known as "St. Gabriel." [J. J.]

The roseate hues of early dawn. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [Evening.] Mrs. Alexander has published this hymn in two forms as follows:—

1. The first form appeared in the S. P. C. K. Hymns, 1852, No. 155, as:—

> "The roseate hues of early dawn,
> The brightness of the day,
> The crimson of the sunset sky,
> How fair they fade away!
> O for the pure and perfect morn,
> Oh! for the golden floor,
> Oh! for the Sun of Righteousness,
> That seteth nevermore!
>
> "The highest hopes we cherish here,
> How fast they tire and faint!
> How many a spot defiles the robe
> That wraps an earthly saint!
> O for the pure and perfect life,
> Oh! for a soul washed white,
> Oh! for a voice to praise our King,
> Nor weary day or night.
>
> "Here faith is cure, and heavenly hope,
> And grace to lead us higher,
> But there are perfectness and peace,
> And nothing to desire.
> Oh! by thy love, and anguish, Lord!
> Oh! by thy life laid down!
> Oh! that we fall not from thy grace,
> Nor cast away our crown."

This text was repeated in Mrs. Alexander's Legend of the Golden Prayers, &c., 1859, p. 139; and is also found in a large number of hymn-books in G. Britain and America, including H. A. & M., the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., Tiring's Coll., the Hy. Comp., and others. Sometimes st. ii., l. 8, reads "Nor weary day nor night," as in H. A. & M. In some collections the hymn opens with st. i. l. 5, "O! for the pearly gates of heaven," and in others with st. ii., "The highest hopes we cherish here." In Bigg's annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867, the full text is rendered into Latin by Lord Lyttelton (1866), as, "Aurorae roseus primigenus color."

2. Mrs. Alexander's recast of this hymn appeared in her Hys. Descriptive and Devotional. For the Use of Schools, 1858, No. iv., as:—

> "The crimson of the sunset sky,
> The last gold lines of day
> Along the mountain's rosy verge
> How fast they fade away!

> O for the pearly gates of Heaven,
> O for the golden floor,
> O for the Sun of Righteousness
> That setteth nevermore.
>
> "The late that near'd so high at dawn
> The flowers in England all day long
> Are dead or killed now.
> O for the songs that never cease
> Where saints to angels call,
> O for the tree of life that stands
> By the pure river's wave.
>
> "O for the hope that breaks the night
> And all the strand is dark,
> Save where a line of broken foam
> Lies at low water mark.
> O for the land that needs no light,
> The Lamb the Light thereof,
> O for the quiet home in Heaven,
> Where there is no more sea.
>
> "The highest hopes we cherish here,
> How fast they tire and faint,
> How many a spot defiles the robe
> That wraps its earthly saint!
> O for the pure and perfect life,
> O for a soul washed white;
> O for a voice to praise our King,
> Nor weary day or night."

In this recast it will be noticed that the portions in italics are from the original text. Taken as a whole the recast is more poetical but less adapted for public worship than the original. Its use is limited. [J. J.]

The Sabbath day has reached its close. Charlotte Elliott. [Sunday Evening.] 1st pub. in Elliott's Ps. and Hymns, 1835, in 3 st. of 3 l., with the refrain, "Smile on my evening hour." In 1839 it was enlarged to 7 st., the 3rd and 4th of which, as in modern collections, being added, and republished in her Hymns for a Week. This latter text is found in Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872, with the refrain lengthened to form a 5 l. st. hymn, "Oh, smile upon my evening hour." It is given in a large number of modern hymn-books. [J. J.]

The Saviour stood on Olivet. [Ascension.] This hymn appeared in the British Magazine for July, 1832, p. 605, in 6 st. of 4 l., and signed "S. J. W." It was reprinted in the Salisbury H. Bk., 1857, No. 110, with the addition of a doxology: and again in Kennedy, 1863, in 3 st. of 8 l. We have failed to ascertain the author's name. [J. J.]

The Saviour, what a noble flame. W. Cooper. [Foundation.] Pub. in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. ii., No. 55, in 5 st. of 4 l., and headed "Jesus hasting to suffer." In its original form it is seldom used. In Cotterill's Sel., 1810, hymn No. 4, begins, "See! what unbounded zeal and love." This is composed as follows:—

> st. i. "See what unbounded zeal," &c. Cotterill.
> st. ii. "Good-will to man, and zeal," &c. Cooper.
> st. iii. "With all His sufferings," &c. Cooper.
> st. iv. "By His obedience," &c. Cotterill.
> st. v. "Jesus, Thy boundless love," &c. Cooper.
> st. vi. "With love like Thine," &c. Cotterill.

On the withdrawal of the 5th ed. of Cotterill's Sel., 1819 (see Cotterill, J., p. 363, ii.) st. v. and vi. were rewritten, and the cento in this revised form was given in the 9th ed., 1820, and is that which is in C. U. (as in Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872) at the present time. It is sometimes given as "How wondrous was the burning zeal." Another cento in C. U. is "With all His sufferings fall in view." This begins with st. iii. of the original. [J. J.]

The scene around me disappears. J. Montgomery. [Christmas.] Pub. in his Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 488, in 4 st. of 7 l., and headed, "A visit to Bethlehem in Spirit"; and repeated, without alteration, in his Original Hymns, 1853, No. 52. In Holy Song for All Seasons (Bell & Daldy), 1859, it begins "Fair Bethlehem's star again appears." It is limited in use. [J. J.]

The secret of the Lord, From sinners, &c. [Covenant of Free Grace.] This hymn appeared in the Gospel Mag. for March, 1779, p. 151, "7 st. of 4 l., headed "Psalm xxv. 14," and signed "Ingenuus." In Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872, st. v.–vii. are given as "The covenant of free grace." We have not found this extract elsewhere. [J. J.]

The shadow of th' Almighty's cloud. J. Keble. [Confirmation.] Written on Feb. 21, 1827, and 1st pub. in his Christian Year, 1827, in 10 st. of 4 l. The cento, "Spirit of might and sweetness too," in Kennedy, 1863, begins with st. vi. of this poem, the doxology being an addition by Dr. Kennedy. In most other collections, as the Wellington College Chapel Hymns, 1860 and 1880, the doxology is omitted. [J. J.]

The sick man in his chamber. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [During Sickness.] This poem in 14 st. of 4 l., was contributed to Rutherford's Lays of the Sanctuary and other Poems, 1850, p. 88, under the title "The Sun of Righteousness." It appeared also in the same year in Mrs. Alexander's Legend of the Golden Prayers, 1858, p. 151. From it the cento "The sick man lieth weary," in Kennedy, 1863, No. 15, is taken. It is composed of st. vii., viii., xi.–xiv. [J. J.]

The Son of David bowed to die. J. Austin. [Easter.] Appeared in his posthumous Hymns, pub. by his widow in 1836, No. 15, in 4 st. of 6 l. It is sometimes given in its full form, and at others abbreviated to 3 st. as in Thring's Coll., 1882. It is a spirited hymn and worthy of more attention than it has received. [J. J.]

The Son of God goes forth to war. Bp. R. Heber. [St. Stephen.] Pub. in his posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 17, in 8 st. of 4 l. It is usually given in an unaltered form as in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, and is often accompanied by a fine musical setting as in the same hymnal. [J. J.]

The Son of God in mighty love. H. Bonar. [Christmas.] This hymn is given on p. 161, ii., as first appearing in Bonar's Hys. of Faith and Hope, 1857, in error. It was pub. in his Songs for the Wilderness, 1st ed., 1843, in 8 st. of 4 l., with the heading "The Word made Flesh." It was repeated in his Hys. of Faith and Hope, 1857, in the same form. In addition to being in C. U. in its original form, it is abbreviated as "In love, the Father's sin-less Child" (st. ii.); and "Jesus, Whom angel-hosts adore." [J. J.]

The Spirit breathes upon the word. W. Cooper. [Holy Scripture.] Included in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. ii., No. 67, in 5 st.

of 4 l., and entitled "The Light and Glory of the Word." It is in use in its original form, and also as "A glory gilds the sacred page" (st. ii.). In the latter form it is found in a large number of hymn-books, especially in America. It is also often found as "What glory gilds the sacred page!" [J. J.]

The starry firmament on high. Sir R. Grant. [Ps. xix.] This was given in Lord Glenelg's posthumous edition of Grant's Sacred Poems, 1839, p. 28, in 4 st. of 8 l., and headed with the following words:—

> "This is intended as a sequel or counterpart to Addison's hymn, 'The spacious firmament.' It corresponds to the latter portion of the 19th Psalm, as Addison's does to the former."

The use of this paraphrase in its full form is confined to a few American collections. The last stanza, "Almighty Lord, the sun shall fail," is given in Laudes Domini, N. Y., 1884, as No. 233. [J. J.]

The sun is set, the twilight's o'er. Bp. E. H. Bickersteth. [Holy Communion.] Written in 1869 for the author's Hy. Composies, in which it was pub. in 1870 in 5 st. of 4 l. It was also included in his Two Brothers and Other Poems, 1871. Outside of the Hy. Comp. its use is limited. [J. J.]

The Sun of Righteousness appears. S. Wesley, jun. [Easter Day.] 1st pub. in his Poems on Several Occasions, 1736, in 4 st. of 4 l., and again in Nichols's reprint of the same, 1862. At an early date it appeared in the Ps. & Hys. of J. & C. Wesley, and other collections. It has passed into a limited number of modern hymn-books. The fourth stanza is noteworthy as being that upon which C. Wesley based his st. iii. in "Christ the Lord is risen to-day." The two stanzas are as follows:—

S. Wesley, jun.	"In vain the stone, the watch, the seal Forbid an early rise To Him Who breaks the gates of hell, And opens paradise."
C. Wesley.	"Vain the stone, the watch, the seal; Christ has burst the gates of hell: Death in vain forbids His rise: Christ has open'd paradise."

S. Wesley's hymn was given in Bp. Heber's posthumous Hymns, &c., 1827, p. 60, as Jesus. In a few collections st. iii., iv. are given as "Alone the dreadful race He ran." [J. J.]

The thing my God doth hate. C. Wesley. [Holiness Inserted.] This cento was given in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, No. 331, in 3 st. of 8 l., and is composed of No. 1240 as st. i., and 1232 as st. ii., iii. of his Short Hymns on Sel. Passages of Holy Scripture, 1762, vol. ii. (P. Works, 1868–72, vol. x., Nos. 1262, and 1256). Several times it has been printed out that the line (st. iii., l. 5) "Soul of my soul, wreath I" is evidently taken from Sir Richard Blackmore's "Ode to the Divine Being," where we have the same expression thus:—

> "Soul of my soul, my Treasure call,
> My Portion, my Reward immense,
> Soul of my soul, my Life, my All."

One can hardly think that this is accidental. This hymn is in several collections in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

The virtues of Thy saints, O Lord, Bp. C. Wordsworth of Lincoln. [St. Mark.]

1st pub. in his Holy Year, 1862, p. 169, in 14 st. of 4 l. In the 1863 ed. of the Holy Year, it was divided into two parts, pt. ii. beginning with st. ix., "Taught by St. Mark, the Morians land." To this line the following note is appended in both editions:—

"St. Mark was Bishop of Alexandria in Egypt, and died there as a martyr, and the celebrated Catechetical School which produced Clement, Origen, and other famous ancient Teachers of Christianity, bore his name."

In the Hymnary, 1872, No. 357 is composed of st. viii. of pt. i., and the whole of pt. ii. It begins "Jesu, we praise Thee for his work." The text is altered. [J. J.]

The voice of one that cries. H. Alford. [Advent.] 1st pub. in his Ps & Hys. 1844, No. 1, in 4 st. of 4 l., for the 1st Sunday in Advent; and again in his Year of Praise, 1867, for the same Sunday. As a s. m. hymn it is an acceptable change of metre in the Advent hymns. [J. J.]

The voice that breathed o'er Eden. J. Keble. [Holy Matrimony.] Written for and first pub. in the Salisbury H. Bk., 1857, where it was given as No. 187, in 8 st. of 4 l. In the author's posthumous Miscellaneous Poems, 1869, it is headed "Holy Matrimony. To be sung at the Commencement of the Service," and is dated "July 12, 1857." In Bigg's annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867, it is rendered into Latin by Lord Lyttelton (1866) as "Ille Edenseus qui Patris Deus." The original is in extensive use, and is one of the most beautiful of modern hymns for Holy Matrimony. [J. J.]

The winds of God have changed their note. [Easter.] In a volume of verse consisting of English poems by H. Vaughan and some Latin verses by his brother Thomas, put forth by one "J. W." in 1678 as Thalia Redivira: the Postumes and Diversions of a Country Muse, a short poem in 14 l. was given under the motto, "The Revival." In Bell & Daldy's ed. of H. Vaughan's Sacred Poems, &c., 1858, it was repeated at p. 226. From it the following lines were taken by the Rev. T. Darling, and, after being elaborated into the hymn, "The winds of God have changed their note," were given in the 1st ed. of his Hys. for the Church of England, 1855, and continued in later editions:—

"Hark! how the winds have changed their note,
And chide and blow and call for you!
The frosts are past, the storms are gone,
And backward flits at last comes on.
The lofty groves to express joys
Reply unto the warbler's voice,
And through the spring time of the year
The lilies of His love appear."
[J. J.]

The winds [are] were howling o'er the deep. Bp. R. Heber. [Epiphany, 4 S.] This hymn in 10 st. of 4 l. was given in the 1828 ed. of Heber's posthumous Hymns, &c., as the 5th hymn for the 4th Sunday after the Epiphany, and is based on the stilling of the tempest, the Gospel for that day (St. Matt. viii. 23). The cento "How long the time since Christ began," in Lewis H. Bk., 1853, and several others in G. Britain and America is from this hymn. The original in an abbreviated form is in several American hymnals, including the Plymouth Coll., 1855, and others. [W. T. B.]

The wise men to Thy cradle throne. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [Epiphany.] Pub. in her Hys. Descriptive and Devotional, &c., 1858, No. 8, in 5 st. of 4 l. Although seldom found in modern collections it is in Mrs. Alexander's best style. Possibly her interpretation of the gold, frankincense, and myrrh, as symbolizing love, prayer, and repentance, has made against the general adoption of the hymn. [J. J.]

The Word of God, Who hid in flesh. Archbishop Benson. [Passiontide.] This hymn for the Thursday before Easter, and dealing with the Institution of the Holy Communion, was contributed to the Wellington College H. Bk., 1863, in 6 st. of 4 l., and appointed for the morning of that day. A slight alteration in ll. 3, 4 of st. i. would make it a most acceptable hymn for Holy Communion for use at any season. [J. J.]

The world can neither give nor take. [The Love of God.] This is a cento compiled from John Mason's Songs of Praise, pub. in 1683. It is thus composed:—

St. i., ii. From "Song of Praise," No. 23, for Peace of Conscience, st. i., ii.
St. iii. From "Song of praise," No. 23, st. iv.
St. iv., v., vi. From the same st. iv., v., and vi. altered.

In this form it is found in the Countess of Huntingdon's Collection, 1780, and later editions. Orig. text in D. Sedgwick's reprint of Mason's Songs of Praise, 1865. The 1780 text of the cento is in Lyra Brit., p. 655, where its compilation and alterations are ascribed to Lady Huntingdon. This ascription, however, is open to doubt. The cento is still in C. U. [J. J.]

The world to-day divides its year. J. S. B. Monsell. [Annunciation B. V. M.] This poem of 14 st. of 6 l. appeared in his Spiritual Songs, 1857, with the heading "Lady Day. The Incarnation of Christ. Commonly called The Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary." In his Hys. of Love and Praise, &c., 1865, the hymn for "The Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary" is "O Saviour! Thou this day didst make." This hymn begins with st. vii. of this poem; and of its 8 st. of 4 l. there are 18 lines from the latter part of the poem (some of them somewhat freely altered), and the rest are new. In the revised ed. of the Hy. Comp., 1876, the cento "O Saviour, Who in love didst take," is from the original (st. vii.) poem with an alteration of the opening line. It makes a much better hymn than Dr. Monsell's arrangement in his Hys. of Love and Praise as above. [J. J.]

The year begins with Thee. J. Keble. [Circumcision.] Written June 10, 1824, and 1st pub. in his Christian Year, 1827, in 17 st. of 4 l., and headed with the text "In Whom also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands." In its full form it is not in C. U. It has, however, supplied the following centos to modern hymn-books:—(1) "The year begins [begun] with Thee." In several collections; (2) "Art Thou a child of tears?" and "Is there a mourner true?" In a few collections only. The poem as a whole is better adapted for private devotion than for public worship. [J. J.]

Thebesius, Adam, s. of Peter Thebus or Thebesius, pastor at Steffendorf near Liegnitz in Silesia, was b. at Steffendorf, Dec. 6, 1596. After studying at the University of Wittenberg (A.A. 1617) he was instituted, on Nov. 26, 1619, as pastor at Mondschütz, near Wahlau, and in 1627 became pastor at Wahlau. Finally, in 1639, he was appointed pastor of SS. Peter and Paul, the principal church in Liegnitz, and in 1642 he also became assessor of the consistory. He d. at Liegnitz suddenly, after a double stroke of paralysis, on the evening of Dec. 12, 1652. (Koch, iii. 64; S. J. Ehrhardt's Presbyterologie Schlesiens, 1780–89, vol. iv. p. 265, &c.)

Thebesius was a diligent, faithful and popular preacher. He was much tried by family afflictions (his wife and four children predeceased him), and by the misfortunes of war. His house and property at Wahlau were burned in a raid in 1634. Mützell, 1036, prints two pieces as his. One of these, which, according to Koch, outweighs all his other poetical productions is:—

Du grosser Schmerzensmann. Passiontide. This appeared in the Schlesische Singschule, Breslau, 1851 (Wackernagel's Library), No. 338, in 7 st. of 4 l., marked as by "M. Adam Thebesius." Included in Mützell, 1036, No. 816, and in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 234. Tr. as "Thou Man of Sorrows, hail!" This is a good tr. in Lyra Mystica, viii. by A. T. Russell, as No. 89 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851. [J. M.]

Thee in the loving bloom of morn. H. Bonar. [God in all, and all in God.] Pub. in his Hys. of Faith and Hope, 3rd Series, 1866, in 12 st. of 4 l. Repeated in full in the Westminster Abbey H. Bk., 1883. [J. J.]

Thee we adore, eternal Name. I. Watts. [Life frail, Eternity unending, or New Year.] 1st pub. in his Hys. and Spiritual Songs, 1707 (2nd ed. 1709, Bk. ii., No. 55), in 7 st. of 4 l. It is found in a large number of hymn-books in all English-speaking countries. The form of the text which is in the most extensive use is that given in the Ps. & Hymns of J. and C. Wesley in 1738, and continued in the revised ed. of the Wes. H. Bk., 1875, in which there are four slight changes from the original. The original came into use in the Church of England through M. Madan's Ps. & Hys., 1760. In Dale's English H. Bk., 1874, it begins with st. ii., "Our wasting lives grow shorter still." [J. J.]

Their hearts shall not be moved. Jane E. Leeson. [To come.] Pub. in her Hys. and Scenes of Childhood, 1842, No. 57, in 6 st. of 6 l. In the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, No. 174, st. i.–iii. are given in an altered form, and opening with the same first line. These alterations were made by G. Rawson. This text was repeated in the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, and other collections in G. Britain and America, and is that in C. U. [J. J.]

Theocistus of the Studium. A monk of the great monastery of the Studium at Constantinople, circa A.D. 800. Neale calls him a friend of St. Joseph. [See Greek Hymnody, § xvii. 1.] His only work known to the Church is his "Suppliant Canon to Jesus," which is found at the end of the Parendeion or Great Octoechus, a volume in eight parts, containing the Festal Office for eight weeks. From that canon Dr. Neale compiled a cento beginning, 'Ιησοῦ γλυκύτατε, and pub. its translation, "Jesu, Name all names above," in his Hys. of the Eastern Church, 1863, in 6 st. of 8 l. In 1867 it was included in an unaltered form in the People's H., and subsequently repeated in the Hymnary, the Parish H. Bk., and other collections. In the 1869 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M. there is another tr., "Sweet Saviour, In Thy pitying grace" (Love). This was contributed thereto by the Rev. R. M. Morrson. [J. J.]

Theodore, St., of the Studium. One of the Greek hymn-writers. He was b. at Constantinople, circa 759, and educated by his uncle, St. Plato. He was banished by Constantine, for his resolute refusal to acknowledge the Emperor's illicit marriage with Theodota, in 797. On the accession of Irene (798), he was recalled, and enjoyed the favour of the Empress. In 809 he was again banished, for the old cause, refusal to acknowledge the legitimacy of Constantine's marriage. Recalled once more in 811, he was imprisoned and again banished for his defence of the Icons, under Leo the Armenian. He was recalled a third time at the death of Leo, and d. Nov. 11, 826 (Dr. Neale adds, "in banishment"). He succeeded his uncle, St. Plato, as Hegumen of the Monastery of The Studium. See further Greek Hymnody, § xviii. 1, and Cotelier's Ecclesiæ Græcæ Monumenta, iii. 1–3. [H. L. B.]

Theodosia, the nom de plume of Anne Steele.

Theophanes, St. The third in rank among the Greek ecclesiastical poets called Melodists, circa 800–850. He was a son of pious parents, and a native of Jerusalem. He may have been educated, as his elder brother Theodore was, in the Laura of St. Sabas, and thence have imbibed his taste for the composition of hymns. He was sent, with his brother, by the Patriarch of Jerusalem, to Constantinople, to remonstrate with the Emperor Leo the Armenian (reg. 813–820), against Iconoclasm. They were scourged and banished from Constantinople. After the murder of Leo they were allowed to return, but were again banished. In the reign of Theophilus (reg. 829–842) they were again at Constantinople, and were then branded on their faces with some opprobrious Iambic verses (from which they were afterwards known as "Graptè"), and a third time banished. After 842 Theophanes was exalted, on the triumph of the defenders of the Icons at the accession of Theodora, and was made Archbishop of Mida, where he died. The brothers are commemorated in the Greek calendar on Dec. 27. The sketch here given will be found quite different from that prefixed to the translations from Theophanes in Neale's Hymns of the Eastern Church. Dr. Neale mistook the poet for an earlier saint, Theophanes of Syrgiana, who continued the Chronicon of George Syncellus. The identification of the poet with Theophanes Graptus is however universally attested by the Greek writers, and the Canon of Theophanes of Syrgiana is written by Theophanes Graptus on the accretial, Θεοφάνους μάλιστα τὸν Συγριανὸν. (See Dict. Greek and Roman Biography; Cotelier's Auctores sacri; and Greek Hymnody, § xviii. 3. [H. L. B.]

Θεὸς ὧν εὐρύχωρος. [Χριστὸν γεννῶσα.]

Θεοτόκιον. [Greek Hymnody, § xvii. 2.]

There came a little Child to earth. Emily E. S. Elliott. [Christmas.] 1st pub. in 1856 in Matty's Missionary Box (Lond.: T. Nelson & Son), and since included in Miss Elliott's Chimes for Daily Service, 1880, p. 97, in 4 st. of 8 lines. It has appeared in the Church S. S. H. Bk., 1868, Scottish Presbyterian Hymnal, 1876; Allen's Children's Worship, 1878, &c.; and is included in full and unaltered (save st. ii. l. 3) as No. 373 in the Scottish Free Church H. Bk., 1882. Its use is extensive. [J. M.]

There is a blessed home. Sir H. W. Baker, Bart. [Heaven anticipated.] Written in 1861, and pub. in H. A. & M. the same year as No. 182, in 4 st. of 8 l. It has passed into several collections, and is a beautiful and touching hymn. It was sung over the author's grave. In Bigge's Annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867, there is a rendering in Latin by Lord Lyttelton (1868) beginning "Est beatrum Domus incolarum." [J. J.]

There is a book, who runs may read. J. Keble. [Septuagesima.] Written in 1819, and pub. in his Christian Year, 1827, as the poem for Septuagesima Sunday, in 12 st. of 4 l. It is in several collections in G. Britain and America, but usually in an abbreviated form. In a few collections it begins with st. ix., "One Name above all glorious names." The original, which is very beautiful, is based upon the words, "The invisible things of Him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made:" Rom. i. 20, with a distinct reference to Gen. i., which is the first Lesson for Septuagesima Sunday Morning. In R. Bingham's Hymns. Christ. Latina, 1871, st. i.–v., xii., as in H. A. & M., are rendered into Latin as "Est liber, atque illum qui currit perlegat, omnem." [J. J.]

There is a calm for those who weep. J. Montgomery. [Death and Burial.] This is the opening of Montgomery's poem "The Grave," which first appeared in his Sheffield Newspaper, the Iris, June 20, 1805, in 30 st. of 4 l., and signed "Alcæus:" again in his Wanderer of Switzerland and Other Poems, 1806; and again in various editions of his Poetical Works. In the 1854 ed. of his P. Works Montgomery has dated it 1804. Various centos from this poem are in C. U. as hymns, and all but one begin with st. i. In Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1840, No. 365 is composed of st. i., ii., xvi., xix., xxv., xxvii. slightly altered; and No. 366 of st. xxviii.–xxx. It must be noted that st. xxviii. is a repetition of st. i. with the third line rewritten. The centos in American hymn-books differ from these, and from each other. [J. J.]

There is a Fountain filled with blood. W. Cowper. [Penitential.] This hymn was probably written in 1771, as it is in Cowper's Coll. of Ps. and Hys., 1772, in 7 st. of 4 l. It was republished in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. I., No. 79, with the heading "Praise for the Fountain opened." It is based on Zech. xiii. 1, "In that day there shall be a Fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for uncleanness." This hymn in full or abbreviated is in extensive use in all English-speaking countries.

A well known form of this hymn is "From Calvary's Cross a Fountain flows." This appeared in Cotterill's Sel., 8th ed., 1819, No. 43, in 5 st. of 4 l., and consists of st. i.–v., very much altered. In Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, 1833, No. 49, the same opening stanza is given, with a return, in most of the remaining six stanzas, to the original text. The question as to by whom these alterations were made, first in Cotterill's Sel., 1819, and then in Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, 1833, is answered by R. W. Dibdin, in the Christian Annotator, vol. iii., No. 76, for July 5, 1856, p. 278, where he writes concerning this hymn:—

"About 30 years ago, I was repeating to the late Rev. Thomas Kelly, my dear son, of Bluffhill, that hymns were so frequently printed differently from the originals as written by their authors. I pointed out the very hymn mentioned by G G G [i.e. 'There is a Fountain,' &c.] in the Rev. Edward Bickersteth's Coll. as an example. He smiled, and said, 'I altered it as you see it here: Bickersteth asked me to alter it.'"

We know from Montgomery's Memoirs that he altered hymns for Cotterill's 1819 ed. of his Sel. and here by his own confession we have one of those alterations. Previously to this, however, he had acknowledged having rewritten the 1819 text as in Cotterill's Sel. in these words:—

"I entirely reverse the first verse of that favorite hymn, commencing 'There is a Fountain filled with blood.' The words are objectionable as representing a fountain being filled, instead of springing up; I think the version is unexceptionable."

The two versions are:—

W. Cowper, 1771-2.	"There is a Fountain filled with blood, Drawn from Immanuel's veins; And sinners plung'd beneath that flood, Lose all their guilty stains."
J. Montgomery, 1816.	"From Calvary's cross, a Fountain flows, Of water and of blood, More healing than Bethesda's pool, Or famed Siloam's flood."

It should be noted also that Montgomery's alteration of st. ii., ll. 3, 4, has changed the whole meaning and character of the hymn, so far as Cowper was concerned. Cowper's original stanza reads:—

"The dying thief rejoic'd to see
That Fountain in his day;
And there have I, as vile as he,
Wash'd all my sins away."

In Cotterill's Sel., 1819, Montgomery altered this to:—

"The dying thief rejoic'd to see
That Fountain in his day;
And there may I, though vile as he,
Wash all their guilt away."

In Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, Montgomery rewrote it thus:—

"The dying thief rejoic'd to see
That Fountain in his day;
And there could I though vile as he,
Wash all my sins away."

In later collections ll. 3, 4 have again been altered to,

"And there may I, though vile as he,
Wash all my sins away."

In these alterations of the text the sustained confidence and rapture of Cowper are entirely lost. This may suit public taste, but it gives an entirely false view of the state of Cowper's mind when he wrote this hymn. Our positive knowledge of the poet's frequent depression of spirits and despair is painful enough without this gratuitous and false addition thereto.

Five stanzas of this hymn, taken from the commonly received text, are rendered into Latin in R. Bingham's Hymns. Christ. Latina, 1871, as "Fons est sanguine redundans." Dr. H. M. Macgill has however taken the original text for his rendering into Latin in his Songs of the Christian Creed and Life, 1876, where it reads:—"Sanguis en Emmanuelis." In addition to Latin, various forms of the text have been translated into many other languages. [J. J.]

There is a God, all nature cries. J. Montgomery. [Nature's witness to the Existence of God.] The ms. of this hymn is dated "January 8, 1838." It was included in Montgomery's Original Hymns, 1853, No. 6, in 7 st. of 4 l., and headed "The Guilt and Folly of denying God." It must be distinguished from Miss Steele's "There is a God, all nature speaks," which is also in C. U. [J. J.]

There is a green hill far away. Cecil F. Alexander, née Humphreys. [Good Friday.] 1st published in her Hys. for Little Children, 1848, p. 51, in 5 st. of 4 l., and based upon the words "Suffered under Pontius Pilate, was Crucified, Dead, and Buried," of the Apostles' Creed. It is an exceedingly popular children's hymn, and is in extensive use. [J. J.]

There is a happy land. A. Young. [Heaven.] In 1838 Mr. Young was spending an evening in the house of Mrs. Marshall, the mother of some of his pupils. Among other pieces she played one air which caught his attention. On inquiry he found it was an Indian air called "Happy Land." With the air ringing in his ears he composed this hymn to it. It was sung in his classes at Nishby Street School, Edinburgh, and there heard by the Rev. James Gall, who included it in the first series of the Sacred Song Book, 1843 (see Salmon, C. H., p. 116, ii.), from whence it has passed into many hymn-books. It has been tr. into Chinese, many Indian and African dialects, &c., and in these and its original form is now to be heard in Sunday Schools all over the world. In 1872 Mr. Young included it in his The Scottish Highlands and other Poems, p. 117, in 3 st. of 4 lines. Originally st. iii. l. 3 began "We rejoice," but subsequently, and in his volume of 1876, Mr. Young altered it to "Reign, reign." The text of 1879 is included unaltered in the Hy. Comp., 1876, the Scottish Free Church H. Bk., 1882, and others. In the Cottage Melodies, N. Y., 1830, an imitation beginning "O and the word divine" as a hymn on Sending the Bible to the Heathen is included as No. 945. It may be noted that the Rev. John Inglis, D.D., Presbyterian missionary in the New Hebrides tr. it in 1854 (as his first attempt), into the Aneityumese language, beginning "Et eleue Inoelilag." This version was a great success and continues to be a favourite. Dr. Geddie and Dr. Inglis, assisted to some extent by others, tr. 51 Psalms and Hymns (of which this is No. 23) into Aneityumese, included as part of the Nakrutiat Itap, pub. by the Religious Tract Society of London in 1880. [Missions Foreign, p. 761, ii., § ii., iii., 2.] [J. M.]

There is a holy sacrifice. Charlotte Elliott. [The Contrite Heart.] This hymn is usually attributed to J. Montgomery on the grounds that its first appearance as far as yet traced was in the 1819 ed. of Cotterill's Sel., to which Montgomery largely contributed; and that in the Series of W. Oliphant & Son's Sacred Poetry, n. d. [circa 1820], pp. 291-2, it is attributed to Montgomery. In 1836 Miss Elliott pub. her Hours of Sorrow, with an Introduction "To the Reader" which begins:—

"Not for the gay and thoughtless do I weave These plaintive strains;"

These words to our mind clearly intimate to the Reader that the entire contents of the book were by Miss Elliott. At p. 10 this hymn is given in 5 st. of 3 l., with the refrain "The contrite heart!" as in Cotterill's Sel., 1819, No. 341. Seeing that in 1819 Miss Elliott was 20 years of age, that it is in her Hours of Sorrow as above, and that its style and metre it is the same as a large number of her hymns, and that it is not in any known work by Montgomery, we have no hesitation in ascribing it to her. It is a sweet hymn for private use, and is found in several collections. [J. J.]

There is a land of pure delight. I. Watts. [Heaven anticipated.] 1st pub. in his Hys. and S. Songs, 1707, and again in the 2nd ed., 1709, Bk. II., as No. 66, in 6 st. of 4 l., with the heading "A prospect of Heaven makes Death easy." In the older collections very many variations in the text were introduced, but most of these have gone out of use. Of those which remain the following appeared in Hall's Mitre H. Bk., 1836, No. 182:—

St. i. "Infinite day" to "Eternal day."
St. ii. "Never sickening" to "Never fading."
"This heavenly" to "That heavenly."
St. v. "Could we make" to "could we all."
St. vi. "We but climb" to "we but stand."

The last alteration was made by Dr. Blomfield, to whom the "proofs" of the Mitre H. Bk. were submitted. Other variations are found in the text in some hymn-books: but latterly a strong reaction has taken place in favour of the original as given in Lord Selborne's Bk. of Praise, 1862-7. The use of this hymn has extended to all English-speaking countries, and it has been translated into many languages. In his Hymns. Christ. Latina, 1871, R. Bingham has rendered four stanzas into Latin as, "Extat terra procul sacris habitata beatis." This hymn is one of the earliest of Watts's compositions. A tradition exists in Southampton that it was suggested by the view of the Isle of Wight as seen from that town. [J. J.]

There is a path that leads to God. Jane Taylor. [A Child Pilgrim.] 1st pub. in the Hymns for Infant Minds, by A. and J. Taylor, 1810, in 7 st. of 4 l., and entitled "The Little Pilgrim." It is one of the best examples of the writer's clear, simple, nervous style, and exceeds in popular use all of her other compositions. It is found in numerous collections for children in Great Britain and America, but often in an abbreviated form. Orig. text in the Hy. Comp. [J. J.]

There is a safe and secret place. H. F. Lyte. [Ps. xci.] Appeared in his Spirit of the Psalms, 1834, as his c. m. version of Ps. 91, in 3 st. of 4 l. It is very simple and tender, and is in somewhat extensive use in G. Britain and America. In the enlarged ed. of the Spirit of the Psalms, 1836, st. ii. ll. 1, 2, are altered from :—

"The least, the feeblest there may bide Uninjured and unawed;"

to

"The least, the feeblest there may bide Unharmed and unawed."

The change of thought from hiding in terror, to abiding in calm repose is a decided poetic improvement; and is certainly more in accord with the Psalmist's declaration "Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day; nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness, nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday" (vers. 5, 6), than the original reading. [Psalms, English, § xvii.] [J. J.]

There is an everlasting home. M. Bridges. [Christ, the Rock of Ages.] Pub. in his Hym. of the Heart. For the use of Catholics, 1848, in 6 st. of 4 l., and entitled "Latus Salvatoris." In its full or abbreviated form it is in several collections, including the People's H., 1867, &c. The tune Milford, by T. Woolsey White, was specially composed for this hymn. [J. J.]

There is no night in heaven. F. M. Kneilla. [Heaven.] Contributed to the Leaf of the Sanctuary, &c., 1859, in 10 st. of 4 l., and entitled "The One Family. Thoughts for the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels." In the edition of 1861 it is given in 9 st. of 8 l. In this form it was included in Kennedy, 1863, No. 1104. Its well-known and popular form appeared in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, where to sts. i., iii., vii., ix. of the original of 1859 are given with alterations, and an additional stanza was added by the Rev. J. Elherton. In Thrupp's Coll the orig. text of these stanzas is restored. [J. J.]

There is no sorrow, Lord, too light (slight). Jane Crewdson, née Fox. [Divine Sympathy.] Given in her A Little While and Other Poems, Manchester, w.d. (circa 1860), p. 19. In Kennedy, 1863, it begins, "There is no grief, however light," and in one or two others the words "too light" are changed to "too slight," in the opening line. It is sometimes also given as "There's not a grief however light." [J. J.]

There were ninety and nine that safely lay. Elizabeth C. Clephane. [The Lost Sheep.] This beautiful poem was probably written in 1868 at Melrose, where the authoress then resided, and first pub. in 1868, in a small magazine for the young, entitled, The Children's Hour, pt. ii. p. 15, in 5 st. of 6 l. Subsequently it appeared as No. 8 of the series of her hymns entitled Breathings on the Border, in the Family Treasury, 1874, p. 595. Thence it was copied into the Christian Age, May 13, 1874, where it was seen by Mr. I. D. Sankey, who set it to music and sang it with great effect at his gospel meetings. He included it in 1875 in his Sacred Songs and Solos. It has since appeared in England, in the Hy. Comp., 1876; Thrupp's Coll., 1883; Bapt. Ps. & Hys. Supp., 1880, &c., and in America in the Rosary, Association H. Bk., Cleveland, 1882, and other collections. It is rapidly attaining a foremost position among modern hymns. [J. M.]

There's a friend for little children. A. Midlane. [Jesus, the Children's Friend.] Written Feb. 27, 1859, and first pub. in Good News for the Little Ones, Dec., 1859. The stanzas, however, were not in the order in which they are usually found, but as follows :—

i. "There's a rest," &c.; ii. "There's a home," &c.; iii. "There's a Friend," &c.; iv. "There's a crown," &c.; v. "There's a song," &c.; vi. "There's a robe," &c.

The rearrangement produces a better sequence in the order of the stanzas, and gives greater unity to the hymn. Soon after its appearance in 1859 it was adopted by various hymn-books, and at the present time it is in extensive use in G. Britain and America. It has been set to music several times, and is the most popular of Mr. Midlane's hymns. [J. J.]

There's not a bird with lonely nest. W. B. Noel. [God the Divine Father of All.] This hymn was given anonymously in common with the rest of the hymns in W. B. Noel's Sel. of Ps. and Hys., 1851 (ed. 1853, No. 561), in 7 st. of 4 l. It is commonly attributed to W. B. Noel, and we see no reason to doubt the authorship. It is in several collections, but usually in an abbreviated form. In Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, 1833, No. 37, it is given in its full form. In R. Bingham's Hymns. Christi. Latrian, 1871, st. i., iii.-v., are rendered into Latin as, "Non avis est, aidum quæ scia ponit cremo." [J. J.]

There's not a star whose twinkling light. J. C. Wallace. [God seen in Nature.] This hymn appeared in A Supplement to the 5th ed. of Robert Aitken's Selection of Psalms and Hymns for Unitarian Worship, London: Rowland Hunter, 1815, No. 45, in 3 st. of 4 l., and entitled "The Creator seen in his Works." As it has undergone rearrangement and enlargement, we give the opening line of each stanza :—

St. i. "There's not a star whose twinkling light."
St. ii. "There's not a cloud whose riven shroud."
St. iii. "There's not a place in earth's vast round."
St. iv. "Around, beneath, the heavens breathe."
St. v. "Then rise, my soul! and sing His name."

In J. R. Beard's Unitarian Collection of Hymns, &c., Lond.: J. Green, 1837, to which Mr. Wallace contributed more than sixty hymns, this hymn was given in 6 st., and is rearranged thus :—

i. "There's not a place." ii. "There's not of grass." iii. "There's not a tempest." iv. "There's not a star." v. "Around, beneath." vi. "Then rise, my soul."

In the new ed. of Mr. Beard's Collection, 1860, another arrangement with changes is introduced, which leaves the hymn thus :—

i. "There's not a tint that paints the rose." ii. "At early dawn." iii. "There's not of grass." iv. "There's not a tempest." v. "There's not a star." vi. "There's not a cloud." vii. "There's not a place." viii. "Around, beneath." ix. "Then rise, my soul."

From these outlines the construction of the hymns, "There's not a place," &c., and "There's not a tint," &c., as in Curwen's Child's Own H. Bk., Major's Book of Praise, the Meth. S. S. H. Bk., and many others, including American collections, may easily be traced, and a reference to Aspland's and Beard's works, as above, will correct the text. In Major's Bk. of Praise for Home & School the author is said to be John Aikman Wallace, and in the Prim. Meth. S. School H. Bk., 1879, Heber, but both are in error. [J. J.]

These glorious minds, how bright they shine. I. Watts. [Martyrs.] 1st pub. in his Hymns, &c., 1707, Bk. i., No. 41, in 6 st. of 4 l., and entitled "The Martyrs glorified. Rev. vii., 13, &c." In this form it is rarely used.

In the Draft of the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases of 1745, it is given as No. xlii. As from this recast the modern form of Watts's hymn has mainly come, we give it in full, indicating the alterations in italics :—

"These glorious Minds how bright they shine!
whence all their white Array?
How came they to the happy Seats of everlasting Day.

"Lo! these are they, from sorrows Joy, from Tribulation, and
And wash'd their Raiment in the Blood of Christ, the dying Lamb.

"Now they approach a holy God,
and bow before his Throne;
With Hearts entirely fit to serve him still,
and Tongues to sing his Praise.

"His Presence fills each Heart with Joy:
tuneo ev'ry Mouth to sing
By Day, by Night, the blest Abodes with glad Hosannas ring.

"Hunger and Thirst are felt no more, nor Suns with scorching Rays
Or painful Heats disturb the cheering Beams of pure eternal Joy.

"The Lamb shall lead his heav'nly Flock where living Fountains rise;
And Love divine shall wipe away
the Sorrows of their Eyes."

The author of this recast is unknown. This text was repeated, with slight changes, in the Draft of 1751, but in the authorized issue of the Trans., &c., of 1781, it underwent considerable changes. It opens, as No. lxvi., as :—

"How bright these glorious spirits shine!"

and is derived thus :—

St. i. Watts altered in 1751 Draft; st. ii. from 1745 altered; st. iii. new in 1781; st. iv. from 1745, with sacred courts, for "blest abodes"; st. v. from 1745 unaltered; st. vi. new in 1781, based on Watts's st. vi.; st. vii. new in 1781.

This text has been in authorized use in the Church of Scotland for more than 100 years. It is also in extensive use in all English-speaking countries, and sometimes with a doxology added thereto, as in H. A. & M. It has been tr. into several languages, e.g. into Latin, by H. M. Macgill, in his Songs of the Christian Creed and Life, 1876, as:—"Animæ claræ lucentes." The 1781 version is claimed by the eldest daughter of W. Cameron (p. 266, ii.), as his. His indebtedness, however, to the recast of 1745 was very great. Its right designation is I. Watts, 1709; Scottish Draft Tra. and Paraphs., 1745; and W. Cameron, 1781. From the 1781 text we also have :—

1. A numbered company behold. By Jane R. Leeson, in her Paraphrases and Hys., 1853. This is a recast.
2. How bright these saints in glory shine. In T. Darling's Hys. for the Church of England. 1827-28.
3. How bright these glorious spirits shine. In J. R. Whitley's Hys. for the Church Catholic. 1883.

These altered versions of the text are not in extensive use. [J. J.]

They are all gone into the world of light. H. Vaughan. [Death and Burial.] Pub. in his Silex Scintillans, 2nd ed. 1655 ; in H. F. Lyte's reprint of the same, 1858 ; and in Grosart's Fuller Worthies, 1868. In some collections, as in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873, it begins as above ; but in the American Unitarian Hys. for the Church of Christ, Boston, 1853, it opens, "Dear, beauteous Death! the jewel of the just." [J. J.]

They come, God's messengers of love. B. Campbell. [St. Michael and All Angels.] Written for, and 1st pub. in his Hys. and Anthems, 1850, p. 94, in 6 st. of 4 l. In 1852 it was republished, with alterations, in Murray's Hymnal, No. 79. This was repeated in several collections, including H. A. & M., 1861, and has become the accepted form of the hymn. Sometimes it is abridged to four stanzas. It is the most widely adopted hymn for St. Michael and All Angels of any in the English language. [J. J.]

They whom the Father giveth. J. Conder. [Perseverance.] 1st pub. in his Star in the East, 1824, p. 34, in 8 st. of 6 l., and based upon John x. 27, 28, "My sheep hear My voice . . . and I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish." In 1836 it was reputed in his Hys. of Praise, Prayer and Devout Meditation, pp. 152–57. In its original form it is not in common use, but st. v., vi., vii. and viii., beginning, "Christ watches o'er the embers," were given in Kennedy, 1863. This arrangement is adapted to "Burial," or a service associated therewith. [J. J.]

They whose course on earth is o'er. J. M. Neale. [Communion of Saints.] 1st pub. in his Hymns for the Young, 1844, No. xv., in 9 st. of 4 l., and based on the article of the Creed "The Communion of Saints." In 1866, Dr. Neale revised the text on his death-bed, and made alterations in st. iv., v. and ix. This text was pub. in his posthumous Original Sequences, Hymns, and other Ecclesiastical Verses, 1866, p. 64, and given there for All Souls at Vespers. The same text was repeated in the People's H., 1867 ; and, with the omission of st. ii., in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871. [J. J.]

Thilo, Valentin, s. of Valentin Thiel or Thilo [b. Jan. 2, 1579, at Zinten, became diaconus of the Altstadt Church in 1609, and d. of the pestilence at Königsberg in 1620]. diaconus of the Altstadt Church in Königsberg, was b. at Königsberg, April 19, 1607. He matriculated in 1624 at the University of Königsberg as a student of theology, but devoted himself more especially to the study of rhetoric. When the Professor of Rhetoric, Samuel Fuchs, retired in 1632, he recommended Thilo as his successor. The post was, at Thilo's desire, kept open for two years, during which he pursued his studies at the University of Leyden. On returning to Königsberg, he graduated M.A. there on April 29, 1634, and was thereafter installed as Professor of Rhetoric. During his 28 years' tenure of office he was five times elected as dean of the Philosophical Faculty, and twice as Rector of the University. He d. at Königsberg,

July 27, 1662. (Koch, iii 202; K. Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 135, &c.)

This was a great friend of Heinrich Albert (b. 23, i.) and of Simon Dach (b. 276, ii.), and was with them a member of the Königsberg Poetical Union. He was the author of two text books on Rhetoric, pub. in 1616 and 1647. Some of his separately printed occasional poems are noted by Goedeke as above. His hymns were almost all written for various Festivals of the Christian Year. Also to those of Dach. They appeared principally in the Preussische Post-Lieder, Elbing, 1642-44 (Berlin Library), and in the Neu Preussischen sollstädtischen G. B., Königsberg, 1648 (Hamburg Library). A list of the hymns in the latter is given in Goedeke's Grundriss, Königsberg, 1648, p. 326, where evidence is given to show that they are by the younger Thilo, and not, as has sometimes been said, by the father.

The only hymn by Thilo tr. into English is :—

Mit Ernst, o Menschenkinder. Advent. This is a fine hymn founded on St. Luke iii. 4, 5, and was 1st pub. in pt. i., Elbing, 1642, of the Preussische Post-Lieder, as No. 8, in 4 st. of 8 l., entitled "On the Fourth Sunday of Advent. Parata viam Domino," and marked as by "Valentinus Thilo." Thence in the Königsberg G. B., 1650, as above, p. 37, also marked as by "Valentinus Thilo." In the Hannover G. B., 1657, st. iv. was re-written, and this form, passing through Freylinghausen's G. B., 1704, is found in most recent German hymn-books. In the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 15, both forms of st. iv. are given. Lauxmann, in Koch, viii. 8, considers st. iii. the finest, and thinks that it may have been suggested by the remembrance of his beloved sister (wife of Pastor Kuhn, of the Reagart Church in Königsberg), who d. of the pestilence on Aug. 16, 1639, and as a picture of her character. Tr. as :—

1. O sons of men, your spirits. This is a good tr. of st. i.–iii., by A. T. Russell, as No. 55 in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

2. Ye sons of men, in earnest. This is a good tr. of the original form, by Miss Winkworth, as No. 84 in her C. B. for England, 1863. It is repeated, omitting st. iii., in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880, No. 121. [J. M.]

Thine for ever! thine for ever! C. Wordsworth, Bp. of Lincoln. [Confirmation.] Contributed to the 1869 Appendix to the S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hymns. It was originally in 4 st. of 8 l., but in later editions of the S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hymns it is given in 6 st. of 4 l. In 1871 it reappeared in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, in 8 st. of 4 l., this last being the authorized text. [J. J.]

Thine, Jesus, Thine. A. Midlane. [Self Dedication to Jesus.] A birthday hymn written on the author's 26th birthday, Jan. 23, 1861, and pub. in the Things Old and New magazine, in May the same year. It has passed into a large number of what are commonly known as "Gospel hymn-books," including The Enlarged London H. Bk., 1873; The Little Flock, 1880, and others. [J. J.]

Thine, O Lord, our quiet trust. B. H. Kennedy. [Ps. lxv. Horrost.] This version of Ps. 65 appeared in Dr. Kennedy's Psalter in 1860, p. 95, in 10 st. of 4 l. From this Dr. Kennedy compiled the hymn, "Thou Who hearest human prayer," and included it in his Hymns. Christ. 1863, No. 1290. The same text was again altered for the Wm. H. Bk., 1875, No. 579, where it is given as "O Thou God, Who hearest prayer, All shall come to Thee, that live." This opening line is borrowed from J. Conder (b. 286, ii.). [J. J.]

Thine, Thine for ever, blessed bond. By E. H. Bickersteth. [Confirmation.] Written in 1870 for the 1st ed. of the Hymnal Companion, and included therein in 1870. Also in his work The Two Brothers, 1871, p. 240, in 6 st. of 4 l. It is designed "To be sung after the benedictory prayer, 'Defend, O Lord, this Thy servant with Thy heavenly grace, that he may continue Thine for ever,'" &c. It is a hymn of much beauty, and is very popular for Confirmations. [J. J.]

Think gently, and as gently speak. J. S. B. Monsell. [Gentleness.] Appeared in his Spiritual Songs, 1857 (ed. 1875, p. 31), in 10 st. of 4 l., and based on the Gospel for the 5th S. after Epiphany. In Dale's English H. Bk., 1874, No. 709, st. i., ii., viii.–x. are re-written, and given as "Gently think, and gently speak." In this form it is a serviceable hymn for congregational use. [J. J.]

Think gentle of the erring [one]. [Gentleness.] This hymn is given in the American Universalist's Hys. for Christian Devotion, by Adams and Chaplin, Boston, 1846, No. 813, in 2 st. of 8 l., and headed "Compassion for the Sinning." It is there given as by "Miss Fletcher," a writer to us otherwise unknown. It is in the awkward metre of 7.6.8.6.8.6.6. As usually found in modern American hymn-books it is in c.m. as given in H. W. Beecher's Plymouth Coll., 1855, No. 1002, in 4 st. of 4 l.; but sometimes with the omission of st. iii. [J. J.]

Think, O ye who fondly languish. W. B. Collyer. [Death Anticipated.] Given in his Coll., 1812, No. 839, in 4 st. of 8 l., and entitled "Consolation." In modern hymnals st. i., iii. are usually given as in Hatfield's Church H. Bk., N. Y., 1872. [J. J.]

Think on the mercy of our God. Emily Garnier. [Christmas.] This was given in The Child's Christian Year, 1841, in 3 st. of 6 l., and is found in several hymn-books. From the Sedgwick use we find that it was written in 1833 by Emily Garnier, daughter of the Dean of Winchester, who died at the age of 14, and that it was printed in The Child's Christian Year from ms. [J. J.]

This day and at this very hour. E. Cassall. [Birthday.] Pub. in his Hours of Mary, &c., 1858, p. 245, in 18 st. of 4 l., and headed "Prayer written on my Thirtieth Birthday" (i.e. July 15, 1844), and again, after revision, in his Hys. & Poems, 1873, p. 268. A cento compiled from this poem was given in the Hymnary, 1872, No. 227, "Thus, Jesu, suffering, crucified," as a hymn for Lent, for which it is specially suitable. [J. J.]

This day the Light of heavenly birth. Bp. W. W. Hoe. [Sunday.] Contributed by Bp. Hoe to the 1st ed. of Mozell & Hoe's Ps. & Hys., 1854, in 4 st. of 4 l., and again in the enlarged ed., 1864, as "This day by Thy creating word." Of this hymn we have the following forms :—

1. The original as above.
2. The 1864 revised text as above.

3. No. 136 in Chope's Hymnal, 1864, with the 1st st. of the original and the remaining stanzas with many alterations. This version is repeated in Bishop's Coll., 1885, No. 99. It has not the author's authority.

4. "This day by Thy creative word." In addition to slight alterations this text has Bp. Kerr's doxy. added thereto. It was given in the Hymnary, 1872, No. 14.

5. "This day by Thy creative word." In addition to Hymnal text by Bp. Hoe, 1871, No. 8, with the doxology from H. A. & M., 1861, No. 3. This is the authorized text of the hymn.

When these various forms of the text are taken together, it is found that the hymn is in extensive use. [J. J.]

This is the day of Light. J. Ellerton. [Sunday.] Written in 1867, and 1st pub. in Hymns for Special Services and Festivals in Chester Cathedral, a collection of 100 hymns, compiled by Dean Howson, 1867 (Chester: Phillipson & Golder). No. 51, in 5 st. of 4 l. From thence it passed into the 1868 Appendix to H. A. & M.; the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871; Thring's Coll., 1882, and several other hymnals both in G. Britain and America. It is a good hymn, and ranks in popularity with some of the best of Mr. Ellerton's compositions. [J. J.]

This is the day the Lord hath made, He calls the hours His Own. I. Watts. [Easter-day, or Sunday.] First pub. in his Paslms of David, 1719, p. 309, as a paraphrase of a portion of the 118th Psalm, in 5 st. of 4 l., and headed, "Hosanna: the Lord's Day; or, Christ's Resurrection, and our Salvation." It is in several collections and usually unaltered and unabbreviated. In the Hymnary, 1872, the cento "Behold the tomb its prey restores," is composed of st. i. new, ii.–iv. from this by Watts, slightly altered, and v. new. It is a successful hymn for Sunday. [J. J.]

This is the day the Lord hath made, Let young and old rejoice. J. Montgomery. [Sunday.] Written for the Sheffield Red Hill Sunday School Anniversary, held on March 26, 1826, and printed on a fly sheet for that occasion. It was repeated in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 467; and again in his Original Hys., 1853, No. 95, in 5 st. of 4 l. Its use is limited. [J. J.]

This is the feast of heavenly wine. W. Cowper. [Holy Communion.] 1st pub. in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. ii., No. 53, in 5 st. of 4 l., and headed "Welcome to the Table." Sometimes it begins with st. ii., "O bless the Saviour, ye that eat." See also "Blessed with the presence of their God." [J. J.]

This is the month, and this the happy morn. J. Milton. [Christmas.] This is the opening of Milton's great ode On the Morning of Christ's Nativity, written in his 21st year (1629), and found in all editions of his Works. It has an introduction of 4 st. of 7 l., and then follows the hymn proper in 27 st. of 8 l. beginning, "It was the winter wild." From this the following centos have come into C. U. :—

1. It was the winter wild (st. i.). This is in a few hymnals.

2. No war or battle's sound (st. iv.). This is in H. W. Beecher's Plymouth Coll., 1855, and other American hymn-books.

3. Ring out ye crystal spheres (st. xiii.) In Hys. for the Use of the University of Oxford in St. Mary's Church, 1852, and others.

4. This is the month, and this the happy morn. From the Introduction to the hymn.

This livelong night we've toiled in vain. J. Keble. [Obedience.] This poem is dated 1821. It appeared in the Christian Year, 1827, for the 5th Sun. after Trinity, and based upon a portion of the Gospel of the day, St. Luke v. 1, &c. In its original form it is unknown to modern hymnals, but a cento compiled from its 15 st. is given in the New Cong., 1859, beginning with st. i. [J. J.]

This night I lift my heart to Thee. W. Bartholomew. [Evening.] Written in 1854 for Costa's oratorio Eli, and 1st pub. therein, 1854, as one of the songs appropriated to the Prophet Samuel. It is in 2 st. of 4 l., and was repeated in the New Cong. H. Bk., 1859, and subsequently in other collections. [J. J.]

This place is holy ground. J. Montgomery. [Death and Burial.] This is the opening line of Verses to the Memory of the late Richard Reynolds, of Bristol. London: Longmans, 1816. The Verses were given in three parts: i. "The death of the Righteous"; ii. "The Memory of the Just"; iii. "A Good Man's Monument." Mr. Reynolds was an eminent Quaker philanthropist; and the "Monument" referred to was the Society for the relief of persons in necessitous circumstances which was founded in Bristol in his memory. The Verses were reposted in all the complete editions of Montgomery's Works. The cento given in several American hymn-books, including Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872, is composed of st. i., ii., vii.–ix. of pt. i. on "The death of the Righteous." The original is in 9 st. of 6 l. [J. J.]

This stone to Thee in faith we lay. J. Montgomery. [Laying Foundation-stone of a Church.] Written in 1822, for the laying of the Foundation-stone of Christ Church, Attercliffe, Sheffield, and sung at that ceremony on Oct. 30, 1822. It was printed in Montgomery's newspaper, the Sheffield Iris, Nov. 5, 1822, together with a full account of the whole ceremony. Subsequently it was pub. in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 474, his Poetical Works of various dates, and his Original Hymns, 1853, No. 300, in 6 st. of 4 l. It is in extensive use in its full or in an abbreviated form, and also as :—

1. Here, in Thy Name, eternal God. This form is given in Hatfield's Church H. Bk., N. Y., 1872, and others.

2. When in these courts we seek Thy face. In the American Catholic H. Bk., Andover, 1856, it begins with as altered from st. iii.

3. Thy foes shall own Thy stable let heavenly peace. In the American Church Praise Bk., N. Y., 1868. Of this text in 3 sts., st. i. is from J. Newton's "O Lord, our languid souls inspire," Olney Hys., 1779, Bk. ii., No. 43, st. v., and st. ii. and iii. are from this hymn by Montgomery.

4. When here, O Lord, we seek Thy face. This form of the text, beginning with st. ii., is in the Plymouth Coll., U.S.A., 1855. [J. J.]

Tholuck, Friedrich August Gottfreu, D.D., was b. at Breslau, March 30, 1799. He studied at the Universities of Breslau and Berlin. He became a University lecturer (Privatdocent) at Berlin, in Dec. 1820, and extraordinary professor of Theology there in April, 1823 (D.D. from Berlin in 1826). In Nov., 1825, he was appointed ordinary professor of Theology at Halle, and entered on his duties at Easter, 1826. He was also appointed as University preacher, in 1839, and a member of the Magdeburg consistory in 1829. From Michaelmas, 1828, to Easter, 1829, he officiated as chaplain to the German Embassy at Rome, having gone there on sick leave. Otherwise, after 1826, his life was spent almost entirely at Halle. He d. at Halle, June 10, 1877 (Kirch. viii. 26; Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xv., 569, &c.).

Tholuck was a celebrated preacher, and a great linguist. He is perhaps best known to English readers by his Commentaries, as e.g. on Romans, 1824 (8th ed., 1856; Eng. tr., 1837 and 1856); on St. John's Gospel, 1827 (11th ed., 1857; Eng. tr., 1859); on Hebrews, 1836 (5th ed., 1843; improved in 1850); on Hebrews, 1836 (3rd ed., 1850; Eng. tr. 1842); on the Psalms, 1843 (2nd ed., 1871; Eng. tr., 1842), &c.; and by his Lehre von der Sünde und vom Versöhner (1823; 2nd ed., 1825; 3rd ed., 1838; 4th ed., 1823 (enlarged ed., 1839; 8th ed., 1871), a sort of religious novel which has powerfully influenced many, e.g. C. J. P. Spitta (see p. 1073, ii.), and has been tr. into English (two versions as Guido and Julian, &c., by J. E. Ryland, 1838, and by J. Morris, 1845), French, Danish and Swedish. He was a voluminous writer, and exercised a great and far-reaching influence over his contemporaries, and who, by the charm of his personal character as well as by his learning, drew crowds of students to Halle, not only from all parts of Germany, but also from Great Britain and America. His Blumen der Morgenländischen Geistlichkeit, Hamburg, 1839–41. This is a volume of Meditations which has passed through many eds. in German (8th ed., 1870), and of which at least two versions have appeared in English (as Hours of Christian Devotion, by Mrs. Austin, 1847; and as Flowers and Catherine H. Dunn, pub. at London in 1851; 2nd ed., 1857), and a nearly complete one by Dr. R. Menzies, pub. at Edinburgh in 1870 (partly pub. as The Circle of Roman Life, Edinburgh, 1847; and completed by The Flowers of Piety, Edinburgh, 1847). In the Preface to the Sweden, Tholuck mentions that he had intended to introduce many quotations from German hymns and sacred poems, but could find few that suited his purpose. So he adds "I therefore myself spoke in the name of many, when I said that I felt that I had been misreported are by other authors." He does not however indicate in any more definite way which are his own compositions. A few pieces from this work have passed into American-German hymn-books, and they are given in full in the Appendix, as above. Two which have not been traced earlier, and are probably original, may be here noted, viz.:—

i. Einst wird's geschehn, dass auf der Erde. Second Advent. In his Stunden, 1840, p. 470, as the conclusion of Med. lxvii., in 2 sts. of 8 l., and founded on Rom. viii. 21–23. "It will be."

ii. An day so dawn when from on high. In full by Dr. R. Menzies, 1870, as above, p. 181. Included by H. L. Hastings in his Songs of Pilgrimage, Boston, U. S., 1866, No. 184.

ii. O süsser Hirte, unter deinen Stabe. The Good Shepherd. In his Stunden, 1840, p. 130, as the conclusion of Med. xxxiii., in 3 sts. of 4 l. The trs. are (1) "O gentle Shepherd, guided by Thy hand, My soul hath found her everlasting rest." By Miss Dunn, 1853, as above, p. 152. (2) "O gentle Shepherd, with Thy staff and crook." By Rev. Dr. Hastings in the Bristol Herald, Penn., 1869, & in Hastings & Bird's Praise Bk., 1872. (3) "Beneath Thy gentle care, O Shepherd dear." By Dr. R. Menzies, 1870, as above, p. 178.

[J. M.]

Thomas, Joan, of Rhaiadur, was b. 1730, in the parish of Myddfai, Caermarthenshire. One of the first books he ever read was the Weldmans's Candle. He published several books of hymns. The first appeared in 1771, The Golden Treasury, a translation of C. H. von Bogatzky, with some of Dr. Watts's hymns. In the same year appeared Flosculorum Grob, and in 1788, Cenniadon Sion. His hymns in all number about 200. He was a minister with the Independents in Radnorshire, but d. at Carmarthen in 1804. [W. G. T.]

Thomas, Joan Elizabeth. [Dunlop, Joan E.]

Thomas of Aquino, confessor and doctor, commonly called The Angelical Doctor, "on account of," says Dom Guéranger, "the extraordinary gift of understanding wherewith God had blessed him," was born of noble parents, his father being Landulph, Count of Aquino, and his mother a rich Neapolitan lady, named Theodora. The exact date of his birth is not known, but most trustworthy authorities give it as 1227. At the age of five he was sent to the Benedictine monastery at Monte Cassino to receive his first training, which in the hands of a large-hearted and God-fearing man, resulted in so filling his mind with knowledge and his soul with God, that it is said the monks themselves would often approach by stealth to hear the words of piety and wisdom that fell from the lips of the precocious child when conversing with his companions. After remaining at Monte Cassino for seven years, engaged in study, St. Thomas, "the most saintly of the learned, and the most learned of the saints," returned to his family, in consequence of the sack of the abbey by the Imperial soldiers. From thence he was sent by his parents to the University of Naples then at the height of its prosperity, where, becoming intimate with the Fathers of the Dominican Order, and being struck, probably, by the devoutness and ability of the Dominican Professors in the University, he was induced to petition for admission into that order, though he was at that time not more than seventeen years of age. This step gave such umbrage to his mother that she caused him to be waylaid on the road to Paris (whither he was being hurried to escape from her), and to be kept for more than two years in prison, during which time his brothers, prompted by their mother, used all means, even the most infamous, to seduce him from religion.

At last the Dominicans' influence with the Pope induced the latter to move the Emperor Frederick to order his release, when St. Thomas was at once hurried back to Naples by the delighted members of his order. He was afterwards sent to Rome, then to Paris, and thence to Cologne. At Cologne his studies were continued under the celebrated Albertus Magnus, with whom, in 1245, he was sent by the Dominican Chapter once more to Paris for study, under his direction, at the University. In 1248, when he had completed his three years' curriculum at Paris, St. Thomas was appointed, before he was twenty-three years of age, second professor and "magister studentium," under Albertus, as regent, at the new Dominican school (on the model of that at Paris), which was established by the Dominicans in that year at Cologne. There he achieved in the schools a great reputation as a teacher, though he by no means confined himself to such work. He preached and wrote: his writings, even at that early age, were remarkable productions and gave promise of the depth and ability which mark his later productions. His sermons also at that time enabled him to attract large congregations into the Dominican church. In 1248 he was directed to take his degree at Paris; and though his modesty and dislike of honour and distinction made the proposal distasteful to him, he set out and begged his way thither; but it was not until October 23rd, 1257, that he took his degree. The interval was filled by such labours in writing, lecturing, and preaching, as to enable him by the time he became a doctor to exercise an influence over the men and ideas of his time which we at this time can scarcely realise. So much was this the case that Louis IX. insisted upon St. Thomas becoming a member of his Council of State, and referred every question of honour and distinction made the proposal distasteful to him, he set out and begged his way thither; but it was not until October 23rd, 1257, that he took his degree. The interval was filled by such labours in writing, lecturing, and preaching, as to enable him by the time he became a doctor to exercise an influence over the men and ideas of his time which we at this time can scarcely realise. So much was this the case that Louis IX. insisted upon St. Thomas becoming a member of his Council of State, and referred every question that came up for deliberation to him the night before, that he might reflect on it in solitude. At this time he was only thirty-two years of age. In 1259 he was appointed, by the Dominican Chapter at Valenciennes, a member of a Commission, in company with Albertus Magnus and Pierre de Tarentaise, to establish order and uniformity in all schools of the Dominicans. In 1261 the Pope, Urban IV., immediately upon his election to the Pontifical throne, sent for St. Thomas to aid him in his project for uniting into one the Eastern and Western Churches. St. Thomas in that same year came to Rome, and was at once appointed by the General of his Order to a chair of theology in the Dominican College in that city, where he obtained a like reputation to that which he had secured already at Paris and Cologne. Pope Urban being anxious to reward his services offered him, first the Patriarchate of Jerusalem, and then a Cardinal's hat, but he refused both. After lecturing, at the request of the Pope, with great success at Viterbo, Orvieto, Perugia, and Fondi, he was sent, in 1268, as "Definitor," in the name of the Roman Province, to the Dominican Chapter held in London. Two years later Clement IV., who succeeded Urban as Pope, appointed him, by bull, to the archbishopric of Naples, conferring on him at the same time the revenues of the convent of St. Peter ad Aram. But this appointment he also declined. In 1269 he was summoned to Paris—his last visit—to act as "Definitor" of the Roman Province at the General Chapter of his Order, and he remained there until 1271, when his superiors recalled him to Bologna. In 1272, after visiting Rome on the way, he went to Naples to lecture at the University. His reception in that city was an ovation. All classes came out to welcome him, while the King, Charles I., as a mark of royal favour bestowed on him a pension. He remained at Naples until he was summoned, in 1274, by Pope Gregory X., by special bull, to attend the Second Council of Lyons, but whilst on the journey thither he was called to his rest. His death took place in the Benedictine Abbey of Fossa Nuova in the diocese of Terracina, on the 7th of March 1274, being barely forty-eight years of age.

St. Thomas was a most voluminous writer, his principal work being the celebrated Summa Theologiæ, which, although never completed, was accepted as such an authority as to be placed on a table in the council-chamber at the Council of Trent alongside of the Holy Scriptures and the Decrees of the Popes. But it is outside the province of this work to enlarge on his prose works. Though not a prolific writer of hymns, St. Thomas has contributed to the long list of Latin hymns some which have been in use in the services of the Church of Rome from his day to this. They are upon the subject of the Lord's Supper. The best known are:—

Pange lingua gloriosi Corporis Mysterium: Adoro te devote latens Deitas; Sacris solemniis juncta sint gaudia; Lauda Sion Salvatorem; and Verbum supernum prodiens. The 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th in the Sum. Prec., the 2nd, 4th, and 5th in Newman's Hymni Ecclesiæ; the 4th in the Sum. Missal; all of them appear in Daniel; the 2nd and 4th in Mone; and the 2nd, 4th, and 5th in Königsfeld. The 1st, 2nd, and 5th are in common use in Roman Catholic Missals, as:—O sacra convivia, in Ritt. 41; and the O sacrosanctæ series under (q.v.). See also Mone, No. 189, and ii. p. 357.

Of these hymns numerous translations have been made from time to time, and amongst the translators are found Caswall, Neale, Woodford, Morgan, and others. Each of these hymns is annotated in this work under its original first line. [D. S. W.]

Thomas of Kempen, commonly known as Thomas à Kempis, was b. at Kempen, about fifteen miles north-west of Düsseldorf, in 1379 or 1380. His family name was Hammerken. His father was a peasant, whilst his mother kept a dame's school for the younger children of Kempen. When about twelve years old he became an inmate of the poor-scholars' house which was connected with a "Brother-House" of the Brethren of the Common Life at Deventer, where he was known as Thomas from Kempen, and hence his well-known name. There he remained for six years, and then, in 1398, he was received into the Brotherhood. A year later he entered the new religious house at Mount St. Agnes, near Zwolle. After due preparation he took the vows in 1407, was priested in 1413, became Subprior in 1425, and d. according to some authorities on July 26 and others on Aug. 8, 1471. Much of his time was occupied in copying Missals, Breviaries, and other devotional and religious works. His original writings included a chronicle of the monastery of St. Agnes, several biographies, tracts and hymns, and, but not without some doubt as to his authorship (for a résumé of the controversy see Enc. Brit., 9th ed.) the immortal Imitatio Christi, which has been translated into more languages than any other book, the Bible alone excepted. His collected works have been repeatedly published, the best editions being Nürnberg, 1494, Antwerp in 1607 (Thomæ Malleoli à Kempis . . . Opera omnia), and Paris in 1640. An exhaustive work on St. Thomas is Thomas à Kempis and the Brothers of the Common Life, by S. W. Kettlewell, in 2 vols., Lond., 1882. In this work the following of his hymns are tr. by the Rev. S. J. Stone:—

i. From his Vita Beati Monachi, ii.:—
1. Vitam Jesu Christi. Imitation of Christ. Be the life of Christ thy Saviour.
2. Apprehende arma. Christian Armour. Take thy weapons, take thy shield.
3. Contra dolores. Resignation. Bear thy sorrows with resignation.

ii. From his Orationes Spirituales:—
1. O dulcissime Jesu. Jesus the most Dear. O [Christ] Christ Jesu, clement, tender.

5. O Vera summa Trinitas. Holy Trinity. Most true, most High, O Unity,

6. Adversa nimirl tolera. Resignation. Bear the trials of this life, [p. 1167, l. 1.]

7. O quale gaudium! lucida. [p. 966, ii.]. Eternal life. O joy the purest, noblest.

Of these trs. Mr. Stone has repeated Nos. 5, 6, and 7 in his Hymns, 1886, and No. 4 in a rewritten form as "Jesus, to my heart most precious," in the same. [See also Index of Authors and Translators.] Pastor O. A Spitzen has recently published from a MS. circa 1480, ten additional hymns by Thomas, in his "Nalezing op sijn Thomas à Kempis," Utrecht, 1881. Six of these had previously been printed anonymously by Mone. The best known are "Jerusalem glorium" (p. 979, ii.), and "Nec quisquam oculis vidit" (p. 980, i.) We may add that Thomas's hymn-writing is not regarded as being of the highest standard, and that the modern use of his hymns in any form is very limited. [J. J.]

Thompson, Alexander Ramsay, D.D., a minister of the American Reformed Dutch Church, was b. at New York, Oct. 22, 1812, and graduated at the New York University, 1842, and the Princeton Seminary, 1845. He was Reformed Dutch Pastor at various places, including East Brooklyn, St. Paul's (R. P. D.), New York City, North Reformed Church, Brooklyn (1874), and others. Dr. Thompson was joint editor of the Reformed Dutch Hym. of the Church, N. Y., 1869, and the Hym. of Prayer and Praise, 1871. He has contributed original hymns and trs. from the Latin to these collections, to Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869, and to the Sunday School Times, Philadelphia, 1883, &c. His trs. will be found in the Index of Authors and Translators. In addition two original hymns:—

1. O Thou Whose finest and fairing eye. God Priding.

2. Wayfarers in the wilderness. Life a Pilgrimage. are in the Hym. of the Church, 1869, with the signature "A. R. T." [F. M. B.]

Thompson, Henry John, M.A., s. of John Northon Thompson, was b. at Kingscliere, Hants, 1830; was Tyrwy Exhibitioner Queen's College, Oxford, 1850; and graduated B.A. in 1853, M.A. in 1856. On taking Holy Orders, he became curate of St. Mary's, Warwick. In 1859 he was instituted to the vicarage of Dodford, near Weedon, Northants. In 1878 he became chaplain to the R.A. garrison at Weedon, and in 1879 was appointed rural dean of Weedon. Mr. Thompson has written, "Christ, we come before Thee" (Holy Matrimony), to be sung at the commencement of the office of Holy Matrimony. It was 1st printed, with music by the Rev. T. B. Mathews, by Novello & Co.; and again, together with the same music, in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, No. 238, in 4 double st. of 8 l. Mr. Thompson has also written a few hymns for "Harvest," "Confirmation," and other occasions, and some carols. These, with other poetical pieces, were pub. in his Hymns and other Verses, and form a pleasing volume. He d. Dec. 12, 1887. [J. J.]

Thompson, Jemima. [Cox, Jemima.]

Thou art coming, O my Saviour, Frances R. Havergal. [Advent.] Written at Winterdyne, Nov. 16, 1873. 1st printed in the Rock newspaper, 1873, and then as one of Parlane's leaflets, 1874; her Under the Surface, 1874; and Life Mosaic, 1879. It is one of the most popular of Miss Havergal's hymns. Sometimes it is divided, when Pt. ii. begins with "Thou art coming; at Thy Table." Miss Havergal's tune St. Paul was written to this hymn; but she preferred to hear it sung to Dr. Monk's tune Advent, as in H. A. & M. [Hav. mss.] [J. J.]

Thou art gone to the grave! but we will not deplore thee. Bp. R. Heber. [Death and Burial.] Was written in December, 1818, on the death of his daughter, aged six months. (Memoirs, vol. i. p. 501.) So far as is at present known its earliest publication was in the Rev. Carus Wilson's Friendly Visitor, for August, 1824. It is also found, with variations, in st. iii. in a vol. of Sacred Poetry, Edin.: W. Oliphant, n.d. In 1827, the text, as in the Friendly Visitor, was included in Bp. Heber's posthumous Hymns, p. 150. It is rendered into Latin by R. Bingham in his Hymn. Christ. Latina, 1871, as "Mortuo inter rosidos, et alsena." [J. J.]

Thou art [hast] gone up on high, To mansions, &c. Emma Toke, nee Leslie. [Ascension.] Written in 1851, and contributed anonymously to the S. P. C. K. Hymns for Public Worship, 1852, No. 61, in 3 st. of 4 l.; and again in later editions of the same collection. Its use is very extensive in most English-speaking countries. The text is seldom altered, a marked instance to the contrary, however, being the Hymnary, 1872. In H. A. & M., 1861, st. i. l. 2, reads "To realms"; but in the 1872 ed. the original reading "To mansions" is restored.

In 1871, Mrs. Toke slightly altered the text for the Rev. R. Judd's S. S. Liturgy & H. Bk., No. 62 (Halifax), and wrote at the same time the following additional verse, which is given in Judd's collection as the first:—

"Thou hast gone up on high!
Triumphant o'er the grave,
And there Thy throne is nigh,
Thy ransomed ones to save.
Thou hast gone up on high!
Oh! help us to ascend,
And there with Thee continually
In heavenly bliss to blend."

This stanza is practically unknown to compilers, and is not in general use. [J. J.]

Thou biddest, Lord, Thy sons be bold. T. H. Gill. [Liberty of the Children of God.] The second hymn written by the author, composed in 1845, and 1st pub. in G. Dawson's Pr. & Hys., 1846, No. 113, in 9 st. of 4 l. In 1859 it was included in Hedge & Huntington's Hys. for the Ch. of Christ, Boston, U.S.A., No. 507, with the omission of st. ii., viii., and was thus introduced to the American collection. It was revised for the author's Golden Chain, &c., 1869, and included as No. 132 in 4 st. of 8 l., with the heading "The glorious Liberty of the Children of God." In Dale's English H. Bk., 1874, No. 633, st. ii. of the 1869 text is omitted. The American Hym. of the Spirit, Boston, 1864, contains two cento from this hymn, (1) "We stand unto our God, how near!" and (2) "Thou biddest, Lord, Thy sons be bold." [J. J.]

Thou boundless Source of every good. [Divine Guidance desired.] This hymn in a cento, and as such it appeared in T. Cotterill's Sel. of Pa. & Hys., 1st ed. 1810, in 6 st. of 4 l., and headed "For the right improvement of the dispensations of Providence." It was repeated in Cotterill's Sel., 1819 and 1820; Rickerstath's Christian Psalmody, 1833; and again in a great many modern hymn-books, including the S. P. C. K. Pa. & Hys. &c. It is sometimes abbreviated to 4 st. Of the original cento st. ii., iii., iv., vi. are from O. Heginbotham's (p. 966, i.) "Father of mercies, God of love," which was No. 9 of his Hymns, &c., Sudbury, 1794, but in an altered form; and st. i. and v. are probably by T. Cotterill. [J. J.]

Thou child of man, fall down. H. Alford. [Adult Baptism.] 1st pub. in G. Stevenson de M. Rutherford's Lays of the Sanctuary, and Other Poems, 1859, p. 7, in 8 st. of 4 l., and headed "Lines for an Adult Baptism." In 1868 it was included by the author in the revised ed. of his Poetical Works, p. 256, with the simple heading "1846," the date of its composition, and probably of a special Baptism for which it seems to have been composed. In Kennedy 1863, No. 771, "Servant of God, go forth," is composed of st. iv.-viii. It is a hymn of some merit, and might be divided with ease into two parts: the first to be sung before, and the second after, the administration of the Holy Rite. [J. J.]

Thou dear [great] Redeemer, dying Lamb. J. Cennick. [The Holy Name Jesus.] Pub. in his Sacred Hymns, &c., Pt. iii., 1743-44, p. 143. It was included in the 1875 ed. of the Wes. H. Bk. as "Thou great Redeemer, dying Lamb." In the English Moravian H. Bk., 1886, it is given in 5 st., and begins with the original first line. [J. J.]

Thou didst leave Thy throne and Thy Kingly crown. Bodily E. S. Elliott. [Christmas.] 1st privately printed, 1864, for the use of the choir and schools of St. Mark's Church, Brighton, and first pub. by the authoress in the Church Missionary Juvenile Instructor, 1870, p. 188; and again in her Chimes for Daily Service, 1880, p. 99, in 5 st. of 6 l. It was repeated in Wilson's Service of Praise, 1882; Allen's Children's Worship, 1878; Mrs. Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1881; Church Praise, 1883, &c., and is given in full, and almost in the 1880 text as No. 374 in the Scottish Free Church H. Bk., 1882. [J. M.]

Thou glorious Sun of Righteousness. Charlotte Elliott. [Sunday Morning.] This hymn is in C. U. in two forms, and both are by Miss Elliott. The first form is in 3 st. of 4 l., beginning as above, and appeared in the "Third Thousand" of H. V. Elliott's Ps. & Hys., 1839, No. 291. This text is repeated in the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, and others. The second form is that given in Miss Elliott's Morning and Evening Hys. for a Week, 1839, p. 5, in 11 st. of 4 l. Of this form of the text st. i., ii. and xi. are the preceding hymn, the remaining stanzas being new. This form is repeated, sometimes abbreviated, in Brownlow Bothwick's Select Hys., &c., 1871; the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871; Stopp's Songs of Grace and Glory, 1872; Thring's Coll., 1882, and others. [J. J.]

Thou God art a consuming fire. J. Montgomery. [Prayer.] Written in 1818, and first printed on a broadsheet with Montgomery's "Prayer is the soul's sincere desire," and "What shall we ask of God in prayer?" for use in the Nonconformist Sunday schools in Sheffield. It was included in Cotterill's Sel., 1819, No. 279, in 4 st. of 8 l.; in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 431, with alterations, and in 8 st. of 4 l.; and again in his Original Hymns, 1853, No. 68, without further alteration. This last is the text usually given in the hymnals. [J. J.]

Thou God of glorious majesty. C. Wesley. [Death and Judgment.] 1st pub. in Hymns and Sacred Poems, 1749, vol. i., in 6 st. of 6 l., and entitled "An Hymn for Seriousness" (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. iv. p. 310). In 1780 it was included in the Wes. H. Bk., as No. 58, and from thence has passed into many collections. The hymnals of the Church of England however received their text from M. Madan, who included the hymn in his Ps. & Hymns, 1760, and appended to the lines:—

"Give me to feel their solemn weight,
And tremble on the brink of Hell
And wake to Righteousness," and a long note, thus introduced:—

"I am glad of an Opportunity to rescue this significant Word [Fate] out of the Hands of the Infidels, who use it together with Luck, Fortune, Chance, Destiny, to signify the Disposal of Things, without the Intervention of a particular Providence of the Wise Disposer of all Events from the Government of the Affairs of Man."

He then proceeds to justify the use of the word by first giving its derivation from the Latin, Fatus, and then quoting classical authorities for its use in the same sense as that in which it is used by Wesley. Fate is that which God has spoken concerning man. In this verse of the hymn that word is, "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." Hence its truth.

Concerning the second stanza, "Lo! on a narrow neck of land," much controversy has arisen as to whether or not it was written "on a narrow neck of land" at the Land's End, Cornwall. Mr. T. Jackson, in his Life of C. Wesley, asserts that there is no proof of its having been written under these circumstances; and Dr. Osborn, the learned editor of the Poetical Works of J. & C. Wesley, is silent on the subject. Failing to find elsewhere any evidence of value in favour of the common belief, we must join the above authorities in pronouncing against it.

The literary merits of this hymn won the praise of Montgomery:—

"'Thou God of glorious majesty!' In a sublime contemplation, in amber vein; solemn, collected, unimpassioned thought, but thought occupied with that which is the highest object of human intellect. Nothing can be the topic of a contrast between 'two extremes.'"—Christian Psalmist. Introductory Essay.

As abbreviated form of this hymn is found in a few collections including Major's Book of Praise, &c., No. 65. It is composed of st. iii.-vi., beginning "O God, mine inmost soul convert." The same stanzas, considerably altered, are given as "O God, Thy saving grace impart," in Kennedy, 1863. [J. J.]

Thou knowest, Lord, that they. J. Austice. [In Temptation.] First privately printed in Hys. by the Rev. Joseph Austice, n.d., Lond.: 1836, and afterwards pub. in The Child's Christian Year, 1841, in 5 st. of 6 l., and appointed for the 19th S. after Trinity. In 1863 Dr. Kennedy gave in his Hymns Christ., an altered version, beginning "Help, Lord, Thou know'st that they," in 4 st.; the fourth stanza being omitted. [J. J.]

Thou, Lord, delightst Thy saints to own. J. Allen. [Holy Baptism.] This imperfect line is the opening of a hymn out of which a fairly good lyric has been made. The original, by J. Allen, appeared in A Collection of Hymns for the use of those that seek, and those that have Redemption in the Blood of Christ. Kendal: Printed by Thomas Ashburner, MDCCLVII., No. 114, as follows:—

> "1. Thou, Lord, delightst Thy saints to own
> In Thy appointed ways;
> This ordinance with blessings crown,
> And tokens of Thy grace.
> "2. Jointly we make our hearts to Thee,
> Thy powerful Spirit breathe;
> And, as we enter, let us see > Baptist's into Thy death.
> "3. O let Thy unction on Him rest,
> With grace his heart believe;
> And within Him let mercy crown,
> And witness with his sister breast
> Thy name and nature too.
> "4. If Thou shouldst quickly end his race
> Or if Thou lengthen out his days,
> Or if Thou lengthen out his days,
> Continue still Thy care.
> "5. Thy faithful soldier may he prove,
> Begirt with truth divine;
> A sharer of Thy dying love,
> A follower of Thine."

In 1792 Thomas Rees included it in an altered form in his Hymns Calculated for the Purposes of Public, Social, and Private Worship, &c., Rochester, 1792, as No. 105, thus:—

> "Dedicating the Child to God in Baptism.
> "1. Thou, Lord, art pleased Thy saints to own,
> In Thy appointed ways;
> This ordinance crown with mercy crown,
> And tokens of Thy grace.
> "2. Jesus, we raise our souls to Thee
> [And, as in orig. above.]
> "3. O let Thy unction on him rest,
> Thy grace his soul believe;
> [And, as in orig. above.]
> "4. [As above with l. 1 "race" to "days;" and > l. 3 "Continue" to "care."]
> "5. [As above with l. 2 "Begirt," to "Ocalod." > and l. 3 "sharer of" to "sharer (s.)"]
> "6. A new stanza, being:—
> "Plant we into His death,
> Our hearts to Him believe;
> Partakers of His cross beneath,
> And of His crown above."

from Hys. on the Lord's Supper, by J. and C. Wesley, 1745, No. cxlviii. 4, rewritten in c.m. as:—

> "Lord, plant us all into Thy death,
> That we Thy life may prove;
> Partakers of Thy cross beneath,
> And of Thy crown above."

In 1833, this cento took the form in which it is known in modern hymn-books, appearing in Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, No. 351, as "Jesus, we lift our souls to Thee," in 5 st., beginning with the second stanza altered, by Allen, and concluding with the stanza, also altered as above, by Wesley. In the Irish Church Hymnal, st. 4, as in Bickersteth, is omitted. The cento should therefore be ascribed "J. Allen, C. Wesley, T. Rees, and E. Bickersteth." [W. T. B.]

T. Randall. [Loss.] First appeared as No. 11 in the Dod Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1745, as a version of 1 Cor. xiii., in 14 st. of 4 lines. In the Draft of 1781, No. 42, slightly altered, and beginning "Though perfect eloquence adorn'd." Thence 1825, No. 282. It is in C. U. in Great Britain public worship ed. based in that year by the Church of Scotland and still in use. In the markings by the oldest daughter of W. Cleaves (p. 206, n.), the original is ascribed to T. Randall, and the alterations in 1781 to W. Cameron. In the Eng. Presb. Ps. & Hymns, 1867, the text of 1781 was included as Nos. 281–283, No. 282 beginning "Love suffers long, love envies not" (st. v.), and No. 283 beginning with st. x., "Here all our gifts imperfect are." It is also found in the following forms:—

1. Though every grace my speech adorn'd, beginning with st. i. altered in the Springfield Coll., 1848, No. 347 (American).

2. Love still shall hold an endless reign, st. ix., x., xii.–xiv. of Dobson's Hymns, 1866, No. 162.

3. Love still shall hold an endless reign, st. ix., x., xii., xiv. in Swedenborg Chapel Coll., 1845, p. 64.

4. Faith, hope, and love, now dwell on earth, st. xiii., xiv. in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 384, and in Alorton in Adams & Chapin's Coll., 1860, No. 247. (Compare Walter Hymns, 1623, p. 138, 13b.) [J. M.]

Though holy, holy, holy, Lord. J. Montgomery. [Holy Trinity.] This appeared in Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, 1833, No. 12, in 7 st. of 4 l., and based on Isaiah vi. 3. It is given in a few modern hymn-books in G. Britain and America, but is not found in Montgomery's Original Hys., 1853. [J. J.]

Though troubles assail, And dangers affright. J. Newton. [Security in God.] Written in February, 1775, for the service at the Great House at Olney (Bull's Life of Newton, 1868, p. 208), and first pub. in the Gospel Magazine, Jan. 1777, p. 42, in 8 st. of 8 l., and headed "Jehovah-Jireh, i.e. The Lord will provide, Gen. xxii. 14." It was included in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. i., No. 7, with the title "The Lord will provide." It is usually given in an abbreviated form. [J. J.]

Thought on thought in solemn train. E. Cassall. [Man Perfect, Fallen, Redeemed.] This poem of 222 lines appeared in his Measure of Mercy, &c., 1858, p. 232, as "Musing in a solemn train," in 7 parts as follow:—i. Nature in Paradise; ii. Nature Fallen; iii. Nature Comforted; iv. Nature Redeemed; v. Nature Warned; vi. Nature Restored; vii. Nature Glorified. In his Hye and Feerne, 1873, p. 259, it was repeated in full with the same divisions, and the general heading "Human Nature before and since the fall." In the Hymnary, 1872, two centos were given from it as (1) "Hail, O Thou of grace divine"; (2) "If thou wouldst life attain." The latter of these has been repeated elsewhere. [J. J.]

Thousands, O Lord of hosts, this day. J. Montgomery. [During Sickness.] Pub. in Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, 1833, No. 183, in 8 st. of 4 l., and again in the Watea H. Bk., compiled by the Misses Harrison of Sheffield, 1836, No. 198. It was republished in Montgomery's Poet's Portfolio, 1835, p. 255, with the title "'The Prisoner of the Lord.' A Sabbath Hymn for a Sick Chamber;" and the addition of two stanzas ("I, of such fellowship bereft," and "O make Thy face on me to shine"). This text was repeated in his Original Hymns, 1853, No. 185. It is in C. U. in Great Britain and America usually in an abbreviated form; and also as follows:—

1. Mary, O Lord, my God, to-day. In T. Darling's Hys. for the Church of England. Hull.

2. Thousands, O Lord, of souls this day. In the American Unitarian Hys. of the Spirit, Boston, 1864, p. 2-6.

3. The dew lies thick upon the ground. In the American Church Psalmody, 1844, st. i.–viii. [J. J.]

Three in One, and One in three. G. Burden. [Holy Trinity.] The sec. of this hymn was sent in 1849, with seven others, to H. Campbell for insertion in his St. Andrews Hymnal, but they were not included therein, although the secs. were retained and now form part of the c. sec. The heading of this special sec. is "Trinity Sunday, An imitation and combination from the Rorate Brevicoy 'Tu Trinitatis Unitas,' and 'Jam sol recedit igneus.'" The hymn was first pub. in Dr. Kerlan's Hys. and Anthems, 1851 (Preface dated "All Saints Day, 1850"), p. 97, as follows:—

> "Three in One and One in Three!
> Ruler of the earth and sea,
> Hear Thy people's cry to Thee:
> Holy chant and praise.
> "Light of lights! with morning-shine
> Lift on us Thy light divine;
> And let charity benign
> Breathe on us her balm.
> "Light of lights! when falls the even > Fold us in the peace of heaven;
> Shed a vesper calm.
> "Three in One, and One in Three!
> Darkling here we worship Thee:
> With the Saints hereafter we > Hope to hear the palm."

In Murray's Hymnal, 1852, it was repeated with "Dimly here," &c., for "Darkling here," &c., in st. iv., l. 2. This text was given in H. A. & M., 1861, with the additional change of "Shed a vesper calm," "to shed a holy calm." Other, but slight, alterations have been introduced in modern hymn-books, including:—

1. Ever blessed Trinity. In the 1880 Appendix to the Bp. Pr. & Bks.

2. Three in One, One in Three. In the Roman Catholic Hys. for the Year 1867.

3. Lord of love! as day and free. In J. Hunter's Hys. of Faith and Life, Glasgow, 1868.

It must be noted that most editors of hymnals have misquoted st. i. by printing the compound substantive "morning-shine" as two words, followed by a semicolon, an oversight which destroys the whole point and meaning of the stanza, and goes far towards spoiling the entire hymn. The text, usually as in H. A. & M., is in extensive use in G. Britain and America. The H. A. & M. text is also tr. into Latin by G. S. Hodges, and is given in his County Palatine, 1876, as "Una Trina Deitas." [J. J.]

Threlfall, Jeannette. This sweet singer of hymns and other sacred poems, was born in the town of Blackburn, Lancashire, on 24th March, 1821. She was the daughter of Henry Threlfall, wine merchant, and

Catherine Eccles, the latter a somewhat noticeable local family, who disapproved of the marriage. She was early left an orphan, and became the "beloved inmate" (as a memorial-card bears) of the households successively of her uncle and aunt Bannister and Mary Jane Eccles, at Park Place, Blackburn; and Golden Hill, Leyland; and later of their daughter, the late Sarah Alice Aston, and her husband, of Dean's Yard, Westminster. Latterly she met with a sad accident that lamed and mutilated her for life, and a second rendered her a helpless invalid. She bore her long slow sufferings brightly, and to the end retained a gentle, loving, sympathetic heart, and always a pleasant word and smile, forgetful of herself. Throughout she was a great reader, and at "idle moments" threw off with ease her sacred poems and hymns. These were sent anonymously to various periodicals. They were first collected and issued in a small volume, entitled Woodcarol; or, Leaves from a Retired Home. By J. T. Lond.: J. Nisbet, 1856.* There are thirty-five poems in all. They do not appear to have won any notice except among friends. Years later she selected 15 pieces from Woodcarol and added 53 others, and put them as Sunshine and Shadow. Poems by Jeannette Threlfall. With Introduction by the Lord Bishop of Lincoln (Wordsworth), Lond.: (Hunt), 1873. A 3rd ed. (1880) is entitled New Edition. With In Memoriam from the Sermons of the Dean of Westminster and Canon Furrar. The two memorial tributes are very tender and sweet. A few words from each will be acceptable. Dean Stanley, amongst other things finely put, says:—

"If I may speak of one who has been taken from these precincts within the last week: when a life, bright and lovely in itself, is suddenly darkened by some terrible affliction, when all the interests, all the active enjoyment of everything in the enjoyment of nothing when year by year, and week by week, the suffering, the weakness, have increased; and when yet, in spite of this, the patient sufferer has become the centre of the affections of a wide circle of friends, and the life of all of them has been a constant stream of cheerfulness under the severest pain; when there has been a flow of gratitude for any act of kindness, however slight; when we recall the eager hope of such an one, that progress and improvement in the condition of others, and in the destiny of the newly-awakened soul; then, when the end has come, we feel more than ever that the future is greater than the present."

So Canon Farrar:—

"A few days ago there passed away a resident of this parish, a member of this congregation, whose name was known to many, whose face was known to all. Her brief brotherly who had the love of God and the large heart; who helped the charities of this parish with a spontaneous generosity which is extremely rare; whose purse was ever open, unasked, to every good work of which she heard; whose delicate mind was alive to every sympathy; who had pre-eminently

'The faith, the patience, the unfailing wise,
And the heart at leisure from itself,
To soothe and sympathise.'"

Bp. Wordsworth praises her poems, and observes:—

"It is an occasion for great thankfulness to be able to point to poems, such as many of those in the present volume, in which considerable mental powers and grace of composition are blended with pure religious feeling and hallowed by sound doctrine and fervent devotion."

* The title Woodcarol was chosen from its name in Italian "Alleluia," and because Fra Angelico puts in with daisies, at foot of the Cross in one of his most lovely paintings.

The sacred poems are not very well wrought, nor at all noticeable in thought or sentiment. But all through one feels that a sweet spirit utters itself. She d. on 30th November, 1880, and was interred at Highgate Cemetery, 4th Dec., 1880. [A. B. G.]

Of Miss Threlfall's hymns those in C. U. include:—

1. Hosanna! loud hosanna, The little children sang. Palm Sunday.
2. I think of Thee, O Saviour. Good Friday.
3. To us to-day a child is born. Christmas.
4. Thy mercies bade us seek Thee early. Early Piety.
5. We praise Thee in the morning. Morning.
6. When from Egypt's house of bondage. Children on Pilgrims.

These hymns are all taken from Miss Threlfall's Sunshine and Shadow, 1873. No. 2 was written during a dangerous illness, at her dictation, by a friend. No. 1 is the most widely used of her compositions. [J. J.]

Throsher, Mrs. J. B., a sem. de pleno of Mrs. Van Alstyne, q. v.

Thrice happy saints who dwell above. S. Browne. [Sunday.] Appeared in his Hys. and Spiritual Songs, 1720, No. 122, in 10 st. of 4 l., and headed, "Lord's Day." In its full form it is not in C. U. In Bickersteth's Christian Psalmody, 1833, pt. iv., v.; vii., viii. were given as No. 283 as "Frequent the day of God returns." This cento has been repeated in a large number of hymnals in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

Thrice happy souls, who born from heaven. P. Doddridge. [Walking with God.] This is No. 37 in the n. ess. in 8 st. of 4 l., headed, "Of spending the day with God," from Prov. xxiii. 17, and dated "March 27, 1727." In J. Orton's posthumous ed. of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1755, No. 75, it was given with several changes in the text, and with the heading altered to "Walking with God: or, being in His fear all the day long." Proverbs xxiii. 17: and again in J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1839, No. 93. This text again differs from both the above. That however in C. U. is from Orton. In the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, No. 445, st. v., vi., iv. and iii., are given as, "Lord, we must labour, we must care." Both this and the text as in Orton are in several collections. [J. J.]

Thring, Edward, M.A., brother of Godfrey Thring, was b. at Alford, Somerset, on Nov. 29 1821, and educated at King's College, Cambridge; B.A. 1844. He won the Porson Prize in 1843, and was elected a Fellow of King's College in 1844. He became Head Master of Uppingham School in 1853, and retained the same to his death on October 22, 1887. He was the author of several important works for schools and colleges, of a volume of Sermons pub. in 1858, and two other vols. in 1886, and of Death Lyrics, 1881. He was joint editor with Herr David of the Hymn Book for the use of Uppingham and Sherborne Schools, 1874, and to it he contributed some trs. from the German (see Index of Authors and Translators). Two of his original hymns are in Thring's Coll. (1) "A day of work is done" (Per the Sick), and (2) "Death shut the gates of Paradise" (Death). His great success as the Head Master of a Public School has become a matter of history. [J. J.]

Thring, Godfrey, M.A., s. of the Rev. J. G. D. Thring, of Alford, Somerset, and brother of the Rev. E. Thring (see above), was b. at Alford, March 25, 1823, and educated at Shrewsbury School, and at Balliol College, Oxford, B.A. in 1845. On taking Holy Orders he was curate of Stratfield-Turgis, 1846-50; of Strathfieldsaye, 1850-53; and of other parishes to 1858, when he became rector of Alford-with-Hornblotton, Somerset. R.D. 1867-76. In 1876 he was preferred as prebend of East Harptree in Wells cathedral. Prebendary Thring's poetical works are:—Hymns Congregational and Others, 1866; Hymns and Verses, 1866; and Hymns and Sacred Lyrics, 1874. In 1880 he pub. A Church of England Hymn-book Adapted to the Daily Services of the Church throughout the Year; and in 1882, a revised and much improved edition of the same as The Church of England Hymn Book, &c. (for details concerning which see England, Hymnody, Church of, p. 351, § vi.). A great many of Prebendary Thring's hymns are annotated under their respective first lines (see Index of Authors and Translators); the rest in C. U. include:—

1. Beneath the Church's hallowed shade. Consecration of Churches, &c. Written in 1876, and first pub. in one of four hymns set to music by Dr. Dykes, and first pub. by Novello & Co., 1875. It was also included (but without name) in the author's Hys. & Sacred Lyrics, 1874, p. 178, and in his Coll., 1882.

2. Blessed Jesus, Thou hast taught us. Quinquagesima. Written in 1866, and first pub. in the author's Hys. Congregational and Others, 1866. It was republished in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874; and his Coll., 1882. It is based upon the Epistle for Quinquagesima.

3. Blest Creator of the light. Morning. Written in 1866, and first pub. in Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866; Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874; and his Coll., 1882. It is in several collections in G. Britain and America, and has been specially set to music by H. H. Pierson (Novello & Co.), and by Dr. Monk.

4. Bowed down with sorrow, sin, and shame. Lent. Written in 1866, and first pub. in his Coll., 1882, as a Processional during Lent. It is of more than usual merit.

5. Bulwark of a mighty nation. Church Conferences, &c. Written in 1876, and first pub. with music by the Rev. E. H. Bickersteth (Novello), 1877, and by Dr. Monk in the Church Hymnal, 1881.

6. Dead to life, yet built to die. Invitation to the Weary. Written in 1865, and first pub. in Morrell & How's Ps. & Hys., 1864; and again in the author's Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866; and in his Coll., 1882, and in other hymnals.

7. For mercy, Lord, I cry. Lent. Written in 1865, and first pub. in his Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866, and his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874.

8. From the eastern mountains. Epiphany. Written in 1865, and first pub. in his Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866, and his Coll., 1882. It is a Processional for Epiphany, and is found in several collections.

9. Go forth, soldiers, for the battle. Purity. Written for the Wilton Diocesan Conference, and first pub. in White Dispersion Magazine, July, 1884.

10. God the Father, God the Son, Holy Spirit, Three in One. Litany for Close of Service. Written in 1871, and first pub. in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874; and in his Coll., 1882, and in many hymnals.

11. God, in our heavenly Father. Growth in Grace desired. Written in 1881, at the request of the Rev. Preb. W. Mitchell, Diocesan Inspector of Schools for Bath and Wells, to set forth the growth of religion through the agency of the Church, and first pub. in Prebendary's Coll., 1882.

12. Great Architect of worlds unknown. Holy Worship. Written in 1873, and first pub. in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874; and his Coll., 1882.

13. Hail, sacred day of earthly rest. Sunday. Written in 1865, and first pub. in his Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866, in 14 st. of 4 l. Originally it was not intended for Public Worship; but from it st. i.-iii., v., vi., viii., ix., xi., were adapted by the author and Dr. How for the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871, st. i., ii. 3, 4, reading:

"Hail! day of light, that bringest light
And joy to me,"

for the original:

"Hail! quiet spirit, bringing peace
And joy to me."

Although the altered form is in the author's Coll., 1882, the original is his authorised text for the future.

14. Hark! hear ye not the angel-song. Christmas Eve. Written in 1873, and first pub. in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874, and again in his Coll., 1882, in 9 st. of 8 l. Of the hymn, st. ii., l. 1-4, are by George Wither.

15. Hark! the vault of heaven is ringing. Ascension. Written in 1873, and first pub. in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874, and again in his Coll., 1882; and again in other hymnals.

16. Hast thou sinned? sin no more. Lent. Written in 1867, and first pub. in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874. In C. U. in America.

17. Here we stand for Him Who died! Conversion of Children. Written in 1876, and pub. in his Coll., 1882, and again in 1892.

18. Hear us, O my Saviour, hear. Lent. Written in 1866, and first pub. in his Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866, in 5 st. of 4 l., and again in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874, and his Coll., 1882. In the latter st. iii. l. 1-4 are omitted. It has been specially set to music by H. H. Pierson in his Hymns Tunes, 2nd series, 1872. Its use has extended to America.

19. How we thank God for Him Who died! Conversion of Children. Written in 1876, and pub. in his Coll., 1882, and again in 1892.

20. In the Name of God the Father. Holy Baptism. Written in 1865, and first pub. in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874, and again in his Coll., 1882. The second stanza is from the Gloria Patri, altered and expanded.

21. Jesu, heavenly Shepherd. The Good Shepherd. Written in 1873, and first pub. in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874, and again in his Coll., 1882; also in other hymnals, but omitted from the 1892 ed. of the same, although it is in the Appendix to the Supplement.

22. Lord God Almighty, Who hearest all, &c. God the Hearer of Prayer. Written in 1866, and first pub. in his Coll., 1882, and repeated in the ed. of 1892.

23. Lord of Power, Lord of Might. Collect, 7th S. after Trinity. Written in 1866, and first pub. in the author's Hymnal the same year. It was repeated in Morrell & How's Ps. & Hys., 1864; in the author's Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866; his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874, and his Coll., 1882. It is also in a large number of collections, and is a favourite hymn in many of the Public Schools. It has been specially set to music by Dr. Monk, and by H. H. Pierson.

24. Make me baby, O my Saviour. Holiness desired. Written in 1867, and first pub. in his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874, and his Coll., 1882. [Private Use.]

25. O Christ, in Thee my soul hath found. Originally published with Sup. Written in 1865, and pub. in Chope's Hymnal the same year. Also in the author's Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866; his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874; and his Coll., 1882. It has been specially set to music by H. H. Pierson, and by Dr. Monk.

26. O for the faith that knows no doubt. Unfailing Faith desired. Written in 1864, and first pub. in his Hys. and Verses, 1866; his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874; and his Coll., 1882, but omitted from the ed. of 1892.

27. O God, our mercy, Lord of might. Lent. Written in 1865, and first pub. in his Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866, and again in his Coll., 1882, in 5 st. of 4 l.

28. O for the King of glory, Who. Collect, S. after the Ascension. Written in May, 1865, and pub. in his Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866; his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874; and his Coll., 1882; but omitted from the ed. of 1892.

29. Almighty God, Creator, King. For those travelling by Land or by Sea. Written in 1876 for his Coll., and pub. thereby, 1882, and 1892.

30. O sing to the Lord with a psalm of thanksgiving. Church Conference. Written in 1871, and pub. in Four Hymns set to music by Dr. Dykes, 1871; and in the author's Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874, and his Coll., 1882. A fine Processional hymn for Church gatherings of various kinds.

31. O Thou Who fashioned in realms of light. Praise for Solemn Service. Written in 1862, and first pub. in his Hys. Cong. and Others, 1866; his Hys. & Sac. Lyrics, 1874; and his Coll., 1882. Specially set to music by H. H. Pierson in his Hymn Tunes, 2nd Series (Singakademie & Mansfield), 1873.

32. O Thou, Who every change of human life. Holy Matrimony. Written in 1865, and first pub. in his Coll., 1882, and also in the 1892 ed. of the same.

33. O Thou, Who from one blood didst make. For Daily. First pub. in his Coll., 1866; again in 1880, and in his Lyrics, 1874.

34. O Thou Who makest land and sea. For Orphans. Written in 1861, and included in his Coll., 1862.

35. O Thou, Who sitt'st enthroned above all worlds both great and small. Consecration of a Church. Written in 1871, and first pub. in his Hymns, Original and Others, 1874, and used at the consecration of Hambleton Church, Feb. 19, 1874. Also specially set to music by H. S. Irons (Novello), 1874. It was repeated in the author's Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874; and his Coll., 1882, and in several hymnals.

36. See the Sun high heaven ascending. Mid-day. Written in 1864, and first pub. in his Hym. Comp. and Others, 1866; in his Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874; and in his Coll., 1882.

37. Thou that sendest sun and rain. Power of Prayer. Written in 1871, and first pub. in his Hym. Comp. and Others, 1866, as a hymn for a Harvest Festival. It was repeated in his Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874; his Coll., 1882, and in several hymnals.

38. Thou to Whom the sick and dying. On behalf of Hospitals. Written in 1870, at the request of Prof. Sir Thomas Watson, M.D., for the Hospital at Lincoln, 1871; and again with music by H. W. Greatorex, in Hymns Tunes (Simpkin & Marshall), 1875. It is also in the author's Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874; his Coll., 1882, and several other hymn-books.

39. Thrice happy he whose tranquil mind. Contentment. Written in 1864, and first pub. in his Hym. Comp. and Others, 1866; and his Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874. It is given in one or two American hymn-books.

41. Thy love for all Thy creatures. Mid-day. Written in 1864, and first pub. in his Hym. Comp. and Others, 1866; his Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874; his Coll., 1882, and several hymn-books.

42. To Thee, O God, we render thanks. Holy Scripture. Written in 1866, and pub. in his Coll., 1882.

43. Watch now, ye Christians, watch and pray. Advent. Written in 1866, and pub. in his Hym. Original Hymnal, 1866. Afterwards repeated in the author's Hym. Comp. and Others, 1866; his Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874; and his Coll., 1882, also in other hymnals.

46. We know not, O we know not, how for a prayer to Thee. Prayer. Written in 1866, and pub. in his Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874; and again, abbreviated, in his Coll., 1882 (Private Use).

52. With tears and hearts bowed down with sorrow. Death of a Child. Written by request in 1861 for the funeral of the Rev. Thomas Godfrey Thring, son of the Rev. W. H. Orr, Rector of West Lutton, Somerset, who was killed by the fall of a shed, under which he with five other boys had taken refuge during the great storm on Oct. 14, 1861. It was included in the author's Coll., 1862. The tune to which it was sung was composed by Mr. Hall, sang in Somerset's Church. "Wer nur den lieben Gott lässt walten." (See p. 790, b.)

56. Work is sweet for God has blest. Work. Written in 1862, and first pub. in his Hym. Comp. and Others, 1866; his Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874; his Coll., 1882, and other hymn-books.

In addition to the above, and those annotated under their respective first lines, Prebendary Thring wrote in 1868 a series of "Hymns on the Creation," as set forth in the first chapter of Genesis, and pub. the same in his Hym. & Soc. Lyrics, 1874, and in his Coll., 1880 and 1882. These hymns have also passed into other collections. They are all in the same metre (8.8.8.8.8.6), and are certainly very fine. The first lines are:—

47. When o'er the water's misty deep. Sunday.
48. The earth in robes of light arrayed. Monday.
49. With snare girdle circled round. Tuesday.
50. Fair shone the sun, and bright the moon. Wednesday.
51. Four days had come and gone to me. Thursday.
53. The last great day of work had come. Friday.
55. And now, "mid myriad worlds enthroned. Saturday.

Although, as in natural, Prebendary Thring's hymns are more fully represented in his own Coll. than elsewhere, yet a fair proportion are found in a large number of hymn-books in Great Britain and America. His hymns are mainly objective, and are all of them of a strong and decided character. The poetical, as distinct from the sermonizing style of hymn-writing on the one hand, and the grand use of Holy Scripture (as by Bishop C. Wordsworth) on the other, is very prominent, with a tendency to diffuseness and over-elaboration. His descriptive and narrative hymns are very few, and Pascitoldic and the two Sacraments of the Church are almost untouched. In some of his finer hymns his tone is high and his structure massive, in several others his plaintiveness is very tender, whilst very varied, and his rhythm is almost always perfect. The prominent features throughout are a clear vision, a firm faith, a positive reality, and no vacillating hopefulness. His hymn-book possesses the same features of strength, beauty, and excellence. [J. J.]

Through all the changing scenes of life. Trials & Benefits. [Fr. xxxiv.] 1st appeared in the New Version, 1696, in 18 st. of 4 l., divided into two parts. As a c.u. rendering it is regarded as one of the most successful in the New Version, and has been a perfect mine of wealth for cento makers. Its use as a whole in modern hymn-books is unknown, but cento of varying length and arrangements are in most extensive use. Of those the following are the most popular:—

1. St. i., ii., iii., vii., viii. This was given with slight alterations in Cotterill's Sel., 1810; and repeated with the omission of st. iii. in his 2nd ed., 1820. It appeared in Rowsell's Coll., 1841; Hickenbotham's Christian Psalmody, 1839; Stowell's Ps. & Hys., 1853, and others in the Ch. of England. The Cong. H. Bk., 1836; Leeds H. Bk., 1853; New Cong., &c., 1859; the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858; Kennedy's Hymnal, 1863, and in numerous collections of various denominations both in Great Britain and America. In some instances Cotterill's alteration of st. ii. l. 4, "And charm their griefs," to "And soothe their griefs," is reproduced; but in most cases the original reading is retained. This is the most popular extract from the hymn.

2. St. i., v., vii., viii. Meth. Hymnal, 1836; Meriall of New, 1854-64.

3. St. i., ii., iii., vi. S. P. C. K. Ps. & Hys., 1858.

4. St. i., iii., vii., viii. Elliott's Ps. & Hys., 1858; Mercy, &c.

5. St. i., iii., vi., vii., viii. Allen's Ps. & Hys., 1844; Allen's Fast of Penance, 1847. Hy. Comp., 1870; Stevenson's Hys. for Ch. & Home, 1873, and others.

6. St. i., iii., vii., viii. Kennedy's Hymnal, 1863. Shedy's doxology: H. and M. &c. Hymnody: Tierney's Coll. in Biggs's Annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867, a French version of this cento, without the doxology, is given as in common use in Guernsey: "O Jamais je ne berai."

7. St. i., ii., iii., iv., v., vi., vii., viii. Bickersteth's Christian Ps. & Hys., 1833; Hurry: Sursum: New H. Bk., 1875; Islington Ps. & Hys., and others.

8. St. i., ii., vi., vii. Kennedy's Ps. Christ., 1863.

9. St. i., ii., vi., vii., viii. Windle's Mel. Pandor & Mel.

10. St. i., ii., vi., vii., xviii. The S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871.

11. St. vi.-ix. In Martineau's Hymns, 1840, beginning, "The hosts of God encamp around."

Although other cento can be pointed out both in the older and modern collections, sufficient evidence is supplied in the above to show the great hold this version of Ps. xxxiv. has upon the public mind. The collections quoted are but a small part of those in which some portion of this version is found. Its use in various forms is universal. [See New Version, and Psalms, English, § 19 p.] [J. J.]

Through all the dangers of the night. T. Kelly. [Morning.] 1st pub. in the 1st ed. of his Hymns on Various Passages of Scripture, 1804, in 5 st. of 4 l., and based upon the words in Job vii. 20, "O Thou Preserver of men" (ed. 1833, No. 497). It is found in several modern collections. [J. J.]

Through endless years Thou art the same. [Fr. etc.] This cento is found in several English and American hymn-books; sometimes in four and at other times in five stanzas; and in most cases differing somewhat in the text. The earliest date to which we have traced it is the English Bap. New Sel. of Hys., 1828, No. 17, in 5 st., the first of which is taken from Wade's version of Ps. cii., and the rest from the New Version, 1696, and in both instances with alterations. This text, with alterations and the omission of st. v., was given in the American Congregational Church Psalmody, by Mason and Greene, Boston, 1831, No. 102. In some later American hymn-books, st. v., as in the English Bap. New Sel., 1828, or altered, is restored. The text of the 1880 Suppl. to the English Bap. Ps. & Hys., is from the New Sel., slightly altered. [J. J.]

Through the day Thy love has spared us. T. Kelly. [Evening.] Pub. in the 2nd ed. of his Hymns, &c., 1805, in 2 st. of 6 l. (ed. 1853, No. 506). It has come into extensive use in all English-speaking countries and has been tr. into several languages. R. Bingham's tr. into Latin in his Hymno. Christ. Latinus, 1871, begins:—"Per hunc diem tegis, pulsum." [J. J.]

Throw away Thy rod. G. Herbert. [Discipline.] 1st pub. in his posthumous work, The Temple, 1633, under the title "Discipline," thus:—

"Throw away Thy rod,
Throw away Thy wrath:
O my God,
Take the gentle path.

"For my heart's desire
Unto Thine is bent;
I aspire
To a full consent.

"Not a word or look
I affect to own,
But by book,
And Thy book alone.

"Though I fall, I weep;
Though I weep, arise;
Yet I creep
To the throne of grace.

"Then let wrath remove;
Love will do the deed;
For with love
Stony hearts will bleed.

"Love is swift of foot;
Love's a man of war,
And can shoot,
And can hit from far.

"Who can 'scape his love?
Who thinks wrought as Thus Brought Thee low,
Needs must work on me.

"Throw away Thy rod;
Though man frailties hath
Thou art God;
Throw away Thy wrath."

The earliest attempt known to us to adapt this poem for congregational use was made by John Wesley. In his Coll. of Ps. & Hys., printed at Charlestown, America, 1736-7, it was altered from its 5.5.3.3 metre to 8.8. and given as No. vii. of the "Ps. & Hys. for Wednesday and Friday." The first stanza begins:

"O throw away Thy rod!
O throw away Thy wrath!
My gracious Saviour and my God,
To take the gentle path."

The original poem, usually in an abbreviated form, is found in several modern hymn-books, including the People's H., 1867; the Cong. Ch. Hymnal, 1887, and others. [J. J.]

Thrupp, Dorothy Ann, daughter of Joseph Thrupp, of Paddington Green, was b. at London, June 30, 1779, and d. there on Dec. 14, 1847. Her hymns, a few of which have come into extensive use, were contributed to the Rev. W. Carus Wilson's Friendly Visitor and his Children's Friend, under the nom de plume of Ista; to Mrs. Herbert Mayo's Sel. of Hys. and Poetry for the use of Infant Schools and Nurseries, 1838 (3rd ed. 1846, with change of title to A Sel. . . . of Infant and Juvenile Schools and Families), in which her signature is "D. A. T."; and also to the Hys. for the Young, which she herself edited for the R. T. S. circa 1830, 4th ed., 1836. In 1836 and 1837 she also pub. Thoughts for the Day (2nd series), in which she embodied many hymns which previously appeared in the Friendly Visitor. In addition to her hymns, which are annotated under their respective first lines (see Index of Authors and Translators), there are also in C. U.:—

1. Come, Holy Spirit, come. O hear an infant's prayer. Child's Prayer. Appeared in Mrs. Mayo's Sel. of Hys. and Poetry, 1838, No. 31, and signed "D. A. T."

2. God loves the little child that prays. God's love for Children. Given in Miss Thrupp's Hys. for the Young, 4th ed., 1836; and again in Mrs. Mayo's Sel. of Hys., &c., 2nd ed., 1840, and signed "D. A. T." It is sometimes given as "God loves the child that humbly prays."

3. Have you read the wondrous story? Life and Death of Jesus. This appeared anonymously in Miss Thrupp's Hys. for the Young, S. T. S., 1835, No. 12, in 7 st. of 4 l. In Miss Thrupp's later publications this hymn is omitted. It is found, however, in a few later compilations, but possibly that of a friend. It is in the Leeds C. S. Union H. Bk., 1853-70.

4. Let us sing with one accord. Praise of Jesus. This hymn is usually associated with Miss Thrupp's name, but it appeared anonymously in the 1st ed. of her Hys. for the Young, 1836, and again in the 2nd ed. of Mrs. H. Mayo's Sel. of Hys. and Poetry for the Use of Infant and Juvenile Schools, &c., 1840, and in both instances without signature. We know of no evidence to show that it is by Miss Thrupp, although certainly by Miss Thrupp. The hymn is in the Leeds S. S. Union H. Bk., 1853-70, and several others.

5. Poor and needy though I be. Divine Providence. Appeared in Miss Thrupp's Hys. for the Young, 4th ed., 1836, No. 20, and in Mrs. Mayo's Sel. of Hys., &c., 2nd ed., 1840, and signed "D. A. T."

6. See, my child, the mighty ocean. Love of God compared to the Sea. Given in Miss T. T.'s Hys. for the Young, 4th ed., 1836, No. 26, and in Mrs. Mayo's Sel. of Hys., &c., 2nd ed., 1840, and signed "D. A. T." In Kennedy, 1863, it begins "Have you seen the mighty ocean."

7. Thou Guardian of my earliest days. Jesus the Children's Friend. This hymn we have traced to her Hys. for the Young, 4th ed., 1836, No. 1, sometimes given as "Thou Guardian of our earliest days."

8. What a strange and wondrous story. Life and Death of Jesus. This hymn is found without signature in her Hys. for the Young, 4th ed., 1836, and again in Mrs. Mayo's Sel. of Hys., &c., 2nd ed., 1840. As we have found no authority for ascribing it to Miss Thrupp, in the Ch. S. S. H. Bk., n.d., 6 lines have been added as a concluding stanza by an unknown hand.

9. What led the Son of God? Love of God in Christ. This appeared anonymously in her Hys. for the Young, 4th ed., 1836, No. 2, and in Mrs. Mayo's Sel. of Hys., &c., 2nd ed., 1840. In modern collections it is attributed to Miss Thrupp, on the ground that it is found in her Hys. for the Young, which she edited.

10. Where they in heaven who stand? All Saints. Pub. in Mrs. Mayo's 2nd ed., 1840, No. 64, in 4 st. of 4 l., and signed "A. D. T." It is in the Prim. Methodist S. S. H. Bk., 1879, and others.

Several additional hymns to those named above have also been attributed to Miss Thrupp on insufficient authority. This has probably arisen out of the fact that all the hymns in the Hys. for the Young, including her own, were given anonymously. [J. J.]

Thrupp, Joseph Francis, M.A., s. of a solicitor, was b. May 20, 1827, and educated at Winchester School and Trinity College, Cambridge. At Winchester he gained the Hasthorpe and Duncan prizes, and the Queen's gold medal for an English poem, and was Head Prefect during his last year. He graduated in 1849 as 7th Wrangler, and 11th in the 1st class of the Classical Tripos. In 1850 he was elected a Fellow of his college. Taking Holy Orders in 1852, he was appointed Vicar of Barrington, Cambridge, in 1859, and Select Preacher before the University in 1865. He was also for some time a member of the Board of Theological Studies, and was associated with the S. P. C. K. some 20 years. He d. at Surbiton, Sept. 24, 1867. His published works include An Introduction to the Study and the Use of the Psalms; A Revised Translation of the Song of Songs; Ancient Jerusalem; and Psalms and Hymns (Cambridge, Macmillan), 1853. This last contains prefaces, indices with authors' names, 93 psalms, 236 hymns, 16 doxologies. Of these 28 psalms and 18 hymns are by Mr. Thrupp. The best known of his hymns are, "Awhile in spirit, Lord, to Tiree" (p. 104, ii.); "Hail, that head, all torn and wounded"; "O Son of Man, Thyself once crossed." Mr. Thrupp's versions of individual psalms have not come into common use beyond his own collection. They are therein signed with his initials, "J. F. T.," but are not separately annotated in this Dictionary. His hymns are mainly on the special Festivals of the Church, and, in addition to those annotated elsewhere are:—

1. Abide with us, O Saviour dear. Evening.
2. Eternal Word! Incarnate Light. Christ our all.
3. Eternal Word! Who ever wast. Annunciation.
4. How beauteous are their peaceful feet. Ordina tion.
5. Lord of majesty and might. School Festival.
6. Master, the Sea of God art Thou. St. Bartholomew.
7. O Saviour of our earthly race. St. Luke.
8. O Thou, Whom upward in the sky. Ascension.
9. Thou Who hast Thy footstool trod. Ascension.
10. Ope, Saints, ope thy temple gates. The Presentation.
11. Saviour of men, Almighty Lord. St. Mark.
12. Thou Who didst Thy brethren twain. SS. Simon and Jude.
13. Thou Whose voice upon the border. St. Andrew.
14. To David's Son hosannas sing. Palm Sunday.
15. Two and two, Thy servants, Lord. SS. Philip and James.
16. What, though the ground all good at first. Lent.

Mr. Thrupp contributed several articles to Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, and was one of the selected writers on the staff of the Speaker's Commentary. [J. J.]

Thus far on life's bewildering (perplexing) path. J. Montgomery. [Safety in God.] 1st printed on a broadsheet for use at the Anniversary Sermons, on behalf of the Red Hill Sunday School, Sheffield, March 28, 1819, in 6 st. of 6 l., and signed "J. M." In Montgomery's Greenland and Other Poems, 1819, p. 171, it was given in 6 st. of 6 l., the new stanzas being st. iv. and v. of the text as included in his Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 479, and his Original Hymns, 1853, No. 55. The 1819 text was altered in 1825; and again, but very slightly, in 1853. In modern collections the text is usually abridged. [J. J.]

Thus speaks the heathen: How shall man. J. Logan. [Mercy rather than Sacrifice.] 1st pub. in the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1781, No. xxxi., in 6 st. of 4 l., on Micah vi. 6–8. It is rarely found outside of that work. This paraphrase is ascribed to J. Logan, on evidence given in the memoir of M. Bruce (p. 118, ii.). [J. J.]

Thus speaks (saith) the high and lofty One. J. Logan. [God with the Humble.] Pub. in the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1781, No. 27, on Is. lvii. 15, 16, in 5 st. of 4 l. [See Bruce, M., p. 118, ii.] In Miss Jane E. Leeson's Paraphrases & Hymns, 1853, this text is given in an altered form as, "Thus saith the high and lofty One." [J. J.]

Thy living saints on earth, Thy saints who sleep. [All Saints' Day.] Appeared in E. W. Eddis's Irvingite Hys. for the Use of the Churches, 1864, in 3 st. of 8 l., and signed "E. S., 1849," in common with several other hymns in the same book. We have seen it stated that "E. S." was Ellen Eddis, née Shepherd, but have been unable to authenticate the statement. This hymn has passed into other collections. [J. J.]

Thy promise, Lord, is perfect peace. H. F. Lyte. [Pa. lxii.] Pub in his Spirit of the Psalms, 1834, in 4 st. of 4 l. It is in C. U. in its full form, and also, altered as "Lord, how the troublers of my peace," in the American Bap. Service of Song, 1871. [J. J.]

Thy throne, O God, in righteousness. J. Montgomery. [For Schools.] The earliest work in which this hymn has been found is Select Portions of Ps. from the New Version, Hys. and Anthems, &c., compiled by the Rev. Dr. Sutton, Vicar of Sheffield, for use in that Parish Church, circa 1815, 2nd ed. 1816, No. 103. From thence it passed into Cotterill's Sel., 1819; Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, No. 342; and his Original Hymns, 1853, No. 245. Among modern collections it is found in the Meth. S. S. H. Bk., 1879; Major's Bk. of Praise, &c. [J. J.]

Thy way, not mine [ours] O Lord. H. Bonar. [Resignation.] Appeared in his Hys. of Faith and Hope, 1st Series, 1857, in 7 st. of 4 l. It is sometimes given as, "Thy way, not ours, O Lord"; and as "Father, Thy way, not mine." There is also an adaptation in three stanzas, beginning, "My portion, Thou! my only," in the American Church Pastorals, 1864. The original is in extensive use in most English-speaking countries. [J. J.]

Τί σοι Θέλεις γενέσθαι. St. Gregory Nazianzen. [Private Use.] This hymn "To His own Soul," is given in his Opera, Paris, 1611; Dom. Thu. Hymn. iii. 13; and in the Anth. Græc. p. 26. Mr. Chatfield's tr. in his Songs and Hymns, &c., 1876, in 32 st. of 4 l. is from the latter, which contains 181 lines. In spite of this poem, "The original is one of the most spirited pieces anywhere to be found, truly forcible and racy," p. 106. His tr., "O soul of mine, reclining," is pleasing and vigorous, but not adapted to congregational use. [See Greek Hymnody, § iv.] [J. J.]

Tibi Christe, splendor Patris. St. Rabanus Maurus (?). [St. Michael and all Angels.] Daniel, i. No. 188, gives the text of this hymn, and st iv. p. 165 cites it as in a Rheinau MS. of the 11th cent. It is not however included by E. Dümmler in his ed. of the Carmina of Rabanus. Among the British Museum mss. it is found in three 11th cent. Hymnaries of the English Church (Vesp. D. xii. f. 91 b; Jul. A. vi. f. 56 b; Harl. 2961 f. 242); in an 11th cent. Monastic Breviary (Add. 30848, f. 199 b), &c. It is in a MS. of the 11th cent. at Corpus Christi, Cambridge (201, page 266); in the Bern MS. 455, of the 10th cent.; and in the Latin Hys. of the Anglo-Saxon Ch. (Surtees Society), 1851, is printed from a MS. of the 11th cent. at Durham (B. iii. 32, f. 94). Also in Mone, No. 307; and in G. M. Dreves's Hymnarius Moissiacensis, 1888, p. 68, from a 10th cent. MS. It is included in the older Sarum (Venice, 1478), Sarum, York, Aberdeen, and other Breviaries. In the Roman Breviary, 1632, it is recast greatly for the worse, and begins Te splendor et virtus Patris; and this recast is repeated in later edns. of that Breviary, in Daniel i. No. 189, and others. In some of the more recent edns. of the Roman Breviary (e.g. Kempten, 1746, and Lyons, 1832), the original form is repeated, with slight alterations to suit the festival of St. Raphael (Oct. 24); and this text is in Königsfeld ii. p. 136. [Various.] [J. M.]

This hymn has been tr. from both forms of the text as follows:—

i. Tibi Christe splendor Patris.

1. Thee, O Christ, the Father's splendour. By J. M. Neale, in his Medieval Hys., 1851, p. 25, and the H. Noted, 1853, No. 42. It has passed into a few collections, including the Hymner, 1882.

2. Christ, to Thee, the Father's glory. By W. J. Blew, in his Church Hy. & Tune Bk., 1852–55, H. Seasons, No. 47, and Blew's Sel. from the same, 1870, No. 124. Altered in J. A. Johnston's English Hyl., 1856–61, to "Christ, to Thee the Father's brightness."

3. Christ, the Father's mirrored brightness. By J. D. Chambers, in his Lauds Sync, 1866, p. 95, and the People's H., 1867, No. 284.

Other trs. are:—

1. Thy Father's brightness, Christe to thee. Primer, 1599.
2. To thee, O Christ, thy Father's light. Primer, 1631.

ii. To splendor et virtus Patris.

1. Thee, the Father's power and light. By Bp. R. Mant, in his Ancient Hymns, &c., 1837 (ed. 1871, p. 121), Dr. Oldknow's Hys. for the Service of the Ch., 1850, and later edns., &c.

2. Thee, Who the Father's brightness art. By W. J. Copeland, in his Hys. for the Week, &c., 1848, p. 127, and subsequently in a few hymnals.

3. O Jesu! life-spring of the soul. By E. Caswall, in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 145; and his Hys. and Poems, 1873, p. 79. Given in a few collections, including Pott's Hymns, &c., 1861, &c.

4. Life and strength of all Thy servants. By the compilers of H. A. & M. in the 1889 Suppl. of that collection.

Other trs. are:—

1. We praise thee, Christ, among the Quires. Primer, 1685.
2. O Lord of Hosts, whose Beams impart. Primer, 1706.
3. Jesus, the Father's ray and might. Sarum Offices, 1783.
4. We praise Thee 'mid the Angel hosts. A. & B. Hymn, 1864.
5. O Brightness of the Father's Light. W. Palmer, 1865.
6. Ruler of the dread Immense. J. F. Thrupp, in his Ps. & Hys., 1865. A paraphrase rather than a translation.
7. Splendour of glory all divine. J. Wallace, 1874. [J. J.]

Till he come, O let the words. Bp. Bickersteth. [Holy Communion.] Written in 1861 and first pub. in his work The Blessed Dead, 1862, and subsequently in his Supp. to Psalms and Hymns, No. 41; The Two Brothers, 1871; and the 1870, 1876, and 1890 edn. of the Hymnal Companion. The author says that it is given in his Hymnal Comp. as presenting "one aspect of the Lord's Supper which is passed over in many hymns. 'Ye do show forth the Lord's death till He come'; and also our communion with those of whom we say 'We bless Thy holy Name for all Thy servants departed this life in Thy faith and fear.'" (Note in the annotated ed. of Hy. Comp.) It is in several hymn-books. [J. J.]

Time is earnest, passing by. [Old and New Year.] This popular Sunday School hymn appeared in three publications in the same year, and in each case anonymously. (1) It is found in Sidney Dyer's American South-western Psalmist, 1851 (p. 317, ii.), and signed "Avon." (2) again in an American paper called Independent, 1851 (3) and again, in England, in The Bible Class Magazine, 1851, with the signature "Independent," the name of the American paper from which it was taken. It was in 4 st. of 4 l. Subsequently it was reprinted in The Bible Class Magazine, with name by Mr. Joseph Dyer, the Schoolmaster of the Wesleyan School, Pocklington. Miller says (Singers & Songs, &c., 1869, p. 551) that "it also appeared in Select Music for the Young (Sunday School Union), where it is headed, 'All Things Earnest; composed by Joseph Dyer.'" This curious association of two men of the name of Dyer with the hymn, the first in America, and the second in England, has led to its authorship being attributed at one time to Sidney Dyer, and at another to Joseph Dyer, and in each case without authority of any weight. Usually the hymn is given in an abbreviated form of 3 st. as in the Universal H. Bk., 1885, the Cong. Church Hyl., 1887, and others. [J. J.]

Time is wingeing us away. J. Burton, sen. [New Year.] Pub. in Hys. for the Use of Sunday Schools selected from Various Authors, Nottingham, J. Dunn, 1812, No. 305, in 2 st. of 8 l., and entitled "Brevity of Life." It has passed into a very large number of hymn-books in G. Britain and America. Of Burton's hymns it ranks next to his "Holy Bible, book divine," in popularity. [J. J.]

'Tis a point I long to know. J. Newton. [In Doubt and Fear.] Appeared in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. i., No. 113, in 9 st. of 4 l. It is in C.U. in an abbreviated form, and opening with the first line as above. In some collections it begins, "Lord, my God, I long to know"; and in others, "Could my heart so hard remain" (st. iii.). Those altered forms of the text are in use principally in America. [J. J.]

'Tis enough, the hour is come. J. Merrick. [Nunc Dimittis.] This paraphrase of the Nunc Dimittis was pub. in his Poems on Sacred Subjects, 1765, p. 19, in 22 lines. As given in Kennedy, 1863, No. 185, some of the lines are transposed, and the whole are expanded into 3 st. of 8 l. [J. J.]

'Tis finished, the Messias dies, Cut off for sins, &c. C. Wesley. [Good Friday.] Pub. in the Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1781, No. 37, on Is. liii. 5, 6, in 5 st. of 4 l. [See Bruce, W., p. 118, ii.] In Miss Jane E. Leeson's Paraphrases & Hymns, 1853, this text is given in an altered form as, "Thus saith the high and lofty One." [J. J.]

day.] In 1762 this hymn, in 2 st. of 8 l., appeared in C. Wesley's Short Hymns, vol. ii. p. 224. Those stanzas are:—

"Ye finished! the Messias dies,
Cut off for sins, but not His own!
Accomplished is the sacrifice,
And glorious redeeming work is done;
Finish'd the first transgression is,
And purg'd the guilt of actual sin,
And everlasting righteousness
In now to all the world brought in.

"Ye finish'd, all my guilt and pain,
All my atoning Lamb hath slain,
For me, for me, the Lamb is slain,
Am I am more than justified;
All grace is now to sinners given,
All pow'r in heaven and earth is Thine,
Be earth, hallelujah, and heaven."

It is from the first four lines of this hymn that Blair formed st. iv. of his canto, "Behold the Saviour on the cross," p. 180, i. The original, as above, was given in A. M. Toplady's Ps. & Hys., 1776, No. 223, and thus came into use in the Church of England. Charles Wesley, however, was not satisfied with these stanzas, and at his death he left in ms. another hymn on the same text, "It is finished," in 8 st. of 4 l., of which st. i. and viii. are st. i. ll. 1-4, and st. ii. ll. 5-8 (slightly altered) respectively of the 1762 text, and st. ii.-vii. are new. This text was given in the 1830 Supplement to the Wes. H. Bk., and again in the P. Works, 1868-72, vol. xii. p. 90. [J. J.]

